number were invited, and a very pleasant and sociable time was had.

Read the supplement.
Help clean the grove to-day.
Lettuce, onions and rhubarb pie.

Cal Brown, of Auburn, attended the commencement last evening.

St. Joe had more graduates this year than any other school in the county.

Quite a number from Spencer's were in attendance at the commencement exercises.

It is rumored that there will be a wedding in town in the near future if not before.

Misses Minnie Watter and Plmie
Rex of Auburn, attended the commencement exercises.

Extra copies of this paper can be had this week at 2 cents each. Send a copy to your friends.

Rev. S. P. Fryberger will deliver a memorial sermon at the Lutheran church in Spencer's, next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The members of the Grand Army Post will attend in a body, and all others are invited to be present.

WANTED 50 CUSTOMERS

To Buy Our Carpet Samples.

We have a large line of Tapestry, Walton and Body Brussels, Ingrain, and Hemp Carpet Samples which we are closing out for Rugs. We also carry a full line of E. P. Reed & Co's and Gokey & Son's Ladies' Misses and Children's Fine Shoes. Secure a pair of those 75 cent Fine Slippers before they are all gone.

J. D. Leighty, St. Joe, Ind.

Ditch Notice.

In the matter of the petition of Frank P. Hart of Concord township, notice is hereby given that a petition has been filed with the Auditor of De Kalb County, State of Indiana, and viewers have been appointed, who have viewed and reported said view which is on file in my office. The hearing of said petition upon its merits will be on

Tuesday, the 7th Day of June, 1887, the same being the second day of their June term, 1887.

The prayer of said petition is that a ditch be constructed on the following route, to-wit:

Beginning nineteen hundred and (1900) feet west and ten hundred and seventy five (1075) feet north of the south-east corner of section sixteen (16) township thirty-three (33) north range fourteen (14) east, State of Indiana, De Kalb County and from thence as follows:

South 80 degrees, East 400 feet
South 80 degrees, East 100 feet
South 80 degrees, East 115 feet
South 52 degrees, East 585 feet
South 22 degrees, East 100 feet
South 41 degrees, East 100 feet
South 30 degrees, East 600 feet
South 11 degrees, East 100 feet
South 5 degrees, East 100 feet
South 18 degrees, West 100 feet
South 22 degrees, West 100 feet
South 13 degrees, West 180 feet
South 32 degrees, East 120 feet
South 47 degrees, East 100 feet
South 60 degrees, East 570 feet
South 16 degrees, East 30 feet
South 3 degrees, East 180 feet
South 63 degrees, East 840 feet
South 35 degrees, East 200 feet
South 50 degrees, East 400 feet
South 79 degrees, East 60 feet

Ending in the St. Joseph river on the east and west line between land owned by Christopher Curie and John W. Dills, situated in the north-west quarter of section twenty-two (22) township thirty-three (33) north range fourteen (14) east, State of Indiana

De Kalb county.
And also the following lateral ditch, commencing thirty-five (35) rods south and twenty (20) rods east of the north-west corner of section twenty-one (21) township thirty-three (33) north range fourteen (14) east and from thence as follows:

South 60 degrees, East 280 feet
South 75 degrees, East 225 feet
South 38 degrees, East 365 feet
South 65 degrees, East 170 feet
South 75 degrees, East 150 feet
South 60 degrees, East 120 feet
South 61 degrees, East 290 feet
South 50 degrees, East 200 feet
North 82 degrees, East 100 feet
North 87 degrees, East 100 feet
South 82 degrees, East 200 feet
East 100 feet
North 84 degrees, East 350 feet
South 47 degrees, East 150 feet
North 80 degrees, East 400 feet
North 70 degrees, East 170 feet
North 70 degrees, East 170 feet
On the

South 50 degrees, East 145 feet
Ditching in the main ditch, seventy five (75) feet below stake twenty-five (25) on land of John Y. Davis.

The proposed work will affect the lands of the following persons:

Heirs of Isaac C. Culbertson.
Alexander and George Culbertson
Franklin L. Hart
Robert Davis
James W. Hart
Jacob L. White
Christopher Curie
Abraham D.
John F. Davis
William L.
David Kuisely
Lucia Myers
William H. Taylor
John and Jacob D. Leighty
Emilia Case
Henry H. and Orange J. Jiles
Emanuel Linn
Solomon Shearer
Dennis D. Barley

Chas. C. W.
Auditor De Kalb County

WOOL WANTED!

100,000 Pounds of Wool Wanted, for which we will pay the highest market value. Also all kinds of country produce wanted. Call and see us.

S. & F. BARNEY.

To the Ladies!

I have received this week some elegant new millinery goods, such as Gause Trimmings in different shades of color, new novelties in Ribbons, Tips, Laces &c. Also some of the latest shapes in Hats and Bonnets. I hav'nt time to tell you all about the new goods that I have, but I will say for your eyes. Don't forget the place, and come as early as possible, while you can have a full line to select from. Prices always the lowest. Miss S. A. Bartlett, St. Joe, Ind.

LOCALS

Wm. Vanzile was in town a short time Tuesday.

Jerry Andrews is buying wool for S. & F. Barney.

Ira Gingery of Hicksville was in town Wednesday.

Janus Malone is quite badly afflicted with rheumatism.

Sara Widney has been at Auburn this week on the jury.

Since the rain you can almost see the garden as a room up.

Rev. J. A. Thomas will preach in the Lutheran church Sunday evening.

C. F. Master, editor of the Bristol Banner, made this office a pleasant call Wednesday.

George De Long of Newville called Wednesday and paid his annual rent to the News.

If you want a handsome rug for a little money, call at J. D. Leighty's and get one of those carpet samples.

R. G. Coburn was called by telegraph to Kansas City last Monday, on account of the serious illness of his son.

The W. C. T. U. will meet at the residence of Mrs. Harry Meek, on Thursday, June 2nd, at three o'clock. All are invited.

Call at Patterson's and get a copy of the "Gazette". There is some good reading matter in them, and they don't cost any thing.

George Metcalf of Garrett dropped in on us Tuesday and deposited 75 cents for the News. Alright George, we'll keep you posted for a year.

Two ladies from Hicksville were in town Wednesday, trying to get a class in music. We understand that they succeeded in getting quite a class.

As Rollin Bearss was driving home the other evening with a load of brick, he got to near the edge of the narrow grade just south of Fred Johnson's, and he, with the team, wagon, brick and all, rolled down the embankment. Fortunately, Mr. Bearss and the team escaped with but slight injury, but the wagon and brick were considerably broken up.

Dr. Boland of Butler, was in town Tuesday.

Case & Olds have the finest line of Oriental Laces in town.

Another invoice of Fine Parasols received this week at Case & Olds.

Dr. T. J. Hills of Fort Wayne visited with his brother J. W. over last Sunday.

Bill Leighty is selling the "Daisy" garden plow. They are a mighty nice thing.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gelhausen of Garrett were in town a short time last Sunday.

Miss Lettie Kimmont, of Auburn, visited with Bessie Patterson a few days last week.

S. & F. Barney are paying the tip-top highest price for wool, and in consequence are getting lots of it.

Rev. D. F. Bain of Albion was in town Monday, on his way home from the Lutheran conference at May 4.

The rain last Monday evening was indeed a welcome visitor, and done an immense amount of good to the growing crops.

There is to be a change in the B. & O. time card next week, and it is said that there will be two new passenger trains put on the road.

One of our subscribers wants to know whether Dr. Bowman will sell his cow? He says he has always wanted a crushed raspberry cow.

Geo. Wilson lost a memorandum book between Spencerville and Hicksville last week. The finder will be rewarded if the book is left at this office.

Our citizens are taking right hold of the arrangements for the old settler's meeting with a vim that means business. They propose to have thing just about right.

It is amusing to hear Al Weirick deliver one of his high-fluting speeches. When Al gets to soaring off on his high flights of oratory it makes a man shed tears to listen to him.

A man in Waterloo has given warning to his neighbors to keep their potato bugs at home. Why not put up notices to the effect that all potato bugs trespassing on these premises, will be dealt with according to law.

Wid. Patterson dug a lot of bait and went fishing the other afternoon, but as usual, came home with an empty fish string; after having got his mouth all puckered for fish, he wasn't going to be beat out of them, so he went up to Mart Tustison's and bought a dried herring, and had it for supper.

The pay car came in right on time last Monday. This is one nice feature about working for a railroad; a man may have to work pretty hard and often times when the weather is disagreeable, but he is always sure of his pay when the work is done. He don't have to wait until after harvest to get it, and then perhaps have to take it out in chips and whet-stones, but he gets it cash down and no grumbling.

A good many people throughout the county are going to Hamilton Lake on fishing expeditions, but they don't have much better success than those who fish in our own St. Joe river. Last week a party of gentlemen from Hicksville came over here to fish, and they drove up to the hotel and asked Bill Leighty if he knew where they could catch some minnows? Bill told them that they didn't need any minnows; that they could catch just as many fish without them, as with them. We hav'nt heard what success they had, but suppose of course they caught a barrel or two.

This Champion Binder takes the toll of all others, and don't you forget it. Call on Shutt & White for full particulars.

Try Primley's Remedies!

- Blood and Liver Medicine for a Blood Purifier.
- Speedy Cure for Coughs, Colds and Lung Affections.
- Iron Tonic Bitters for Kidney trouble and General Debility.
- Glycerine and Arnica Salve for all purposes where a salve is needed.

For Sale at the St. Joe Drugstore.

HOUSE PAINTING. Graining, Glazing, Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcox. Call and see me, or leave orders at the St. Joe Drugstore.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencerville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

ST. JOE MARKETS

CORRECTED EVERY FRIDAY.
Wheat	84 cts.
Oats	29 cts.
Corn	40 cts.
Butter	10 cts.
Eggs	10 cts.
Tallow	34 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	60 cts.
Smoked Hams	10 cts.
Shoulders and Side Meat	8 cts.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union, of this place, at a special meeting called May 10th, passed the following resolutions in regard to the death of Sister Lizzie Evans, and ordered a copy of the same sent to the county papers:

Whereas, Divine Providence has seen fit to remove our worthy sister and secretary of the W. C. T. U.,

Resolved, That we commend her usefulness and untiring energy as worthy of imitation by all. That in the death of Sister Evans, we have lost a member and consistent worker in the temperance cause.

Resolved, That as a society we deeply mourn our loss but hope for a reunion in the Sweet Bye and Bye.

Resolved, That we, the members of the W. C. T. U., extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in this time of their great affliction.

By Order of Committee.

If you want any printing done give us a call.

Mell Bishop will have new potatoes about the middle of June or later.

The contract for building the addition to the school house was let to Copp & Furgerson for $1140.00.

STAR WIND ENGINE

TAKES THE LEAD

E. A. WANEMAKER

Has the agency for this county. See him, or write for prices on Wind Mills, Tanks, Pumps, Pipe &c. A special feature of the Star Wind Engine is the Regulator. See it before you buy.

Sa, did you ever notice how far it takes a woman to pick out a hat to suit her? Of course it depends a little on circumstances, but it usually takes an ordinary woman from three to six days to get a hat to suit her, and then it hardly ever suits. Last week a man living up north over here, brot his wife to town to get a new hat, and he told her to be as spry as she could for he was in a hurry to get back; she said she woodn't be gone but a few minnits, but I'll be hanged if it didnt take her neerly the whole afternoon, an then she didnt find any thing to soot her complexhun. If that aint wat yu caul woman's rites, I dont no wat is?

Bareus Q. Hippenhammer.

IN FAR-OFF LANDS.

Women in Cuba—Women in India—Women Under the Crescent.

First we were introduced to the Captain General of Cuba. Then he brought in his daughter, a typical Spanish girl, and one of the most beautiful women I have ever seen. She was about twenty years of age, had a rich, fair complexion, and her very motion was grace. She was quite accomplished, and spoke French fluently and English fairly well. Mrs. Gen. McCook, one of the French scholars of the party, carried on quite a conversation with her, and shortly after this the young lady brought in her baby, a little coffee-colored tot of 5 months, whose bright black eyes looked soberly from one Senator to another, and, finally, seemed most pleased with Senator Palmer. Palmer took it from its mother during the visit, and jumped it up and down with all the skill of a grandmother nurse. The baby laughed at him, and it did not cry during our whole visit. It was a rather smart baby of its age, and the ladies remarked that it was wearing short clothes at five months—rather sooner than among the Americans. Its feet were dressed in little white kid shoes of the finest texture, and out of the tops of these, showing against its fat olive-brown little legs, peeped silk stockings of a pale-blue. The short dress was of white cambric, and the mother herself wore a lawn such as any American girl would think fit for everyday working wear. The grandfather, the Captain General, was evidently highly pleased with the attention it received, and he is, I doubt not, as doting as most grandfathers.—Havana letter, in Cleveland Leader.

HOME NOT MUCH OF A HEAVEN.

Now for an idea of a Hindoo woman's home life. She lives in a small room almost destitute. The floor and walls are of clay, with no ornamentation of any sort, and the least furniture possible. Every morning she has to pray, not for herself—as she is taught she has no soul—but for her husband, for rain, and for general blessings. There she spends two or three hours preparing the breakfast. She doesn't eat with her husband, but, perhaps, fans him at his repast. During the daytime she either sleeps, gossips with the other women, or sometimes a reader reads to them from the lives of the gods. At night they prepare their husband's meal in the same manner. They are not protected against the weather and dampness, nor are they properly fed and clothed. The rich live the same as the poor. If sick they are deemed cursed by the gods, and are taken to the stable and left alone. The only food they can get is left by stealth. Thousands die of neglect. The first day that a Hindoo boy abuses his mother is a festive occasion with his father who boasts of it to his friends. To be a widow is the sum of unhappiness. She is especially cursed by the gods. As the husband dies half a dozen barbers' wives rush upon her and tear the jewelry from her ears and nose. Behind the funeral cortege she follows, surrounded by these fiends, who throw her in the water. If she drowns they say she was a good wife after all.—A traveler, in Macon (Ga.) Telegraph.

LOVE UNDER THE CRESCENT.

Turkish girls are promised usually when they are very young, even at a tender age, when they are only 2 or 3 years old. If the young bride should happen to die before her marriage, or be required for the Sultan's harem—for it may be promised that this is a case that breaks all engagements, and is esteemed as a great honor by parents—the intended husband is not expected to weep over what he loses, for he has never seen it. When the young girl reaches her 12th or 13th year, or somewhat later, her 14th year, she receives the nuptial blessing, and the husband cannot see the face of his wife until after that ceremony. No woman, not even the wife, takes part in the solemnity of marriage, which is effected by proxy, delegated to an uncle or to an elder brother, often with a full beard, who plays the role of the bride. The parents of the couple sign the contract before the Imam of their quarter, in the presence of a few friends, who act as witnesses. The nuptials are then celebrated by the families with a calmness and gravity that would be as suitable for a funeral as for a wedding.—Cosmopolitan.

A JAPANESE JAR NOT OFTEN HEARD OF.

Generally speaking the Japanese men make kind and affectionate husbands, and the women make virtuous and exemplary wives and mothers; and the children are certainly the happiest little imps in the world; their parents fondle and spoil them most effectually, and at the same time never losing their control over them. The husband has absolute control over the person of his wife; at the same time, one never sees a man strike a woman in Japan; yet there is considerable pinching and slapping done on occasions when those strange and ungovernable spells of exasperating ugliness known as tantrums settle down upon their matrimonial horizon. On these occasions there is considerable free hitting, biting, and scratching indulged in on both sides of the house; but the greater strength of the husband invariably leaves him master of the situation, and the belligerent household speedily resumes its serene and happy course.—Brooklyn Magazine.

How Omaha Was Named.

There are several legends as to how this city was given the name of "Omaha." By some of the old-timers it is claimed that the name was suggested by Jesse Lowe. "Omaha" was the name of a tribe of Indians in the immediate vicinity. The meaning of the name, it is claimed, is "above the water." The tradition is that two tribes of Indians had, a great many years ago, met on the Missouri River, and had engaged in a hostile encounter, in which all on one side were killed but one, who had been thrown into the river. Rising suddenly from what was thought to be a watery grave, he lifted his head above the surface, and pronounced the word "Omaha" which had never been heard before. Those who heard it adopted it as the name of their tribe. Another story is that the town was named after a white man who was an Indian doctor, and who took the name of Omaha from the tribe of Indians of that name. Mr. James C. Savery, who in early days was a prominent citizen of Iowa, and built the Savery House at Des Moines, tells an interesting story in connection with the naming of this city. Mr. Savery, who is now a resident of Montana, while on his way East recently, said to a member of the Life staff: "Col. James Redfield, of Albany, was really the projector of Omaha. He and eleven others went into the Council Bluffs and Omaha Ferry Company, each putting in $400. Col. Redfield borrowed his $400 and got me to indorse for him. The company then plotted the town. When Redfield's note came due he couldn't pay it, and he then offered me his share of the town site, but I declined to accept it. There was a white crank, with long hair, who claimed to be an Indian doctor, and went by the name of Omaha. One night at the Pacific House, in Council Bluffs, while the town-site men were on a drunk, it was agreed to call the new town Omaha after this crank Indian doctor. That's how Omaha got her name. In due time Col. Redfield sold his interest at cost. He was a Colonel in the Union army of the war of the rebellion and was killed on the field of battle."—Omaha Bee.

Chinese and Christianity.

An illustration of the difficulty attending the discovery of the real condition of the Chinese mind in regard to the progressive policy obtaining in western countries is contained in the following anecdote, for the authenticity of which the writer can vouch: A bishop of the Episcopal Church was returning from China with his servant, whom he thought he had converted to Christianity. Whenever the bishop held services in the cabin of the steamer in which they both were passengers the servant attended and took part very devoutly in the responses, etc. One day a passenger observed the servant on his knees worshipping an image, with candles and joss-sticks, and he asked the servant if he was not a Christian, and elicited the following reply: "As I am in the employment of the bishop it is my duty to observe the Christian ceremonies when my master does so, but when I am acting for myself of course I worship according to my own faith."—Boston Advertiser.

They were sitting together the other Sunday evening, with an album between them, when she pleasantly asked, "How would you like to have my mother live with you?" In just fifteen seconds he had his hat half-way down over his face, and was bolting through the gate.

Peculiar Mexican Rooms.

Every Mexican house has its sala de recibio (reception room), of more or less magnificence. It may not contain much furniture, but is always the largest room in the house, generally of immense proportions, being long and narrow like a town hall. The artistic beauty of its softly tinted halls, painted with fresco outlines or the natural grayish plaster left unadorned, contrasted with floor of shining cement or dark-red tiles, is extremely pleasing to the eye. The Mexican house-mother according to the sweet German rendering of the word—has other ideas than ours in the arrangement of her furniture. There are always straight rows of chairs and sofas standing stiffly all around the great room, as if set for a funeral or a "lodge" meeting. Though there are few occasions in life (or death) when such a surprising number of seats could possibly be required, the family feels itself poor, indeed, who does not possess a sufficient number of them to extend in an unbroken line around the entire circuit of the sala.

Into each corner of the room a triangular table is fitted, and in the center is a larger one, with a row of snaky vases and alleged ornaments in glass and china, ranged at regular distances straight around the outer edge. This table is generally covered with a crêched or knitted spread which sweeps the floor. It represents a vast expenditure of precious eyesight and hundreds of spoils of fine thread, for the mistress of the manse began it when a child, and finished it only in time for her wedding. Of necessity there is a lack of those little ornaments which American ladies so delight in—brackets, easels, bric-a-brac, etc.—because here the demands of the custom-house on all such articles place them beyond the reach of any but the most wealthy. Each corner table, however, like that in the center, is loaded with glass lamps and china vases, which are valued for ornament rather than use. Huge bouquets of paper flowers sometimes enter into the decorations, but blossoms made by Mother Nature are seldom seen within doors. Chromos and engravings appear but sparingly, if at all, because the duties on them render pictures extremely expensive—a chromo dreadful enough to set one's teeth on edge, which might be bought, frame and all, for a couple of dollars in any other country, here costs as much as a decent oil painting.

At the extreme end of the sala de recibio furthest from the entrance, precisely the same arrangement of furniture is found in every house—a rug or square of carpet, with two lines of chairs, placed close together, vis-a-vis, upon it. This little island, in the sea of the big, bare room, is bounded on the further side by the sofa against the wall; and to this particular spot guests are conducted with great ceremony on entering; for here the hostess concentrates all her social forces.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The Art of Letter Writing.

Beneficent as the discovery of printing is generally believed to have been it has been gravely argued more than once that it was really an injury to mankind. The chief ground for the contention is that through the multiplication of books and newspapers mankind has been spared the necessity for original inquiry and investigation; and that the capacity therefore is gradually but surely falling.

That there is some truth in this is more than possible; but we do not believe that mankind will ever be induced by such arguments to permit the art of printing to fall into disuse. It certainly will not with the consent of the press, and without their consent it cannot. There is one of the kindred arts, however, which many a man, and women, too, is often tempted to wish had never been discovered. It is the art of letter writing. It is so easy, so simple a thing to write a letter; and yet what tremendous consequences often flow from it. What hours that might have been profitably spent have been wasted in it. What reams upon reams of paper have been thrown away. What homes have been wrecked. What hopes, politically and matrimonial, have been blasted. What lawsuits have been engendered. In a word, what untold confusion, discomfort and even misery have been brought upon humanity by the art of correspondence.

Yet conscious as mankind is of these terrible results it will not consent to abandon the iniquitous practice of writing letters. The papermakers and the postoffice must be kept up though hearts are broken and families separated and statesmen ruined. The only apparent way out is in the invention of an ink that will endure but for a season, and fading out leave no vestige behind which photography, the microscope or the chemist can trace. The man or the woman who will make that discovery will rescue mankind from most of the evils which persistent letter-writing has inflicted and win the blessing of prosperity.—Detroit Free Press.

A Few Quotations.

If there is a modern drama in existence in which none of the following sentences is found, we would be glad to know its name:

Unhand me, villain!
Not another word.
I am lost!
All is lost!
Back again to the old homestead.
To-morrow all the world will know that D'Arcy O'Brien is a bankrupt!
You have pronounced your own doom.

Fly, ere it is too late!
Curses on ye all!
Is it thus that we meet after all these years?

No resource is left me but death.
Mandeville Snooks, you are in my power!

Man, man, have you no pity?
Would you know my story? Listen.
Reginald! Reginald! Great heavens he is gone!

Aha! you tremble!
This, then, is the end of all.
Would that I were dead!

Hector Reilly, you see before you a desperate man.

If you have no pity for me, at least consider her.

And this is the man I called my friend!

You have sent for me—I am here.
Oh, Percy, how I have longed for this meeting!

Can he suspect?
Villain, you have betrayed me!
Have you no mercy?
She must, she shall be mine!
So, so! all my schemes prosper.
The priceless heritage of an untarnished name.

You cast me off—so be it.
For years I have waited for this hour.
Wretch! would you strike a woman?
Who will save me?—Tid Bits.

Negotiated a Loan Under Difficulties.

A man dropped in on a Stockton lawyer and wanted to borrow $10.

"Haven't got it," said the lawyer.

"Well," returned the modest man, "can't you borrow it for me?"

"I might; but you must pay back that $5 you borrowed of me a year ago first."

He left. The next day he came again and brought the $5.

"Thank you, thank you," smiled the member of the bar, pocketing the piece.

"That ain't the proper thing to say, 'thank you' is too tame."

"Yes?"

"Yes."

"What should I say, then?"

"Why, you ought to say: 'Come on, old boy, let's go down, an' have somethin'.'"

"Well, then, come on, old boy!"

They went down and had something, and the "old boy" called up all his old friends. There was just $3.10 left out of the half-eagle.

That afternoon the "old boy" dropped in on the lawyer again.

"How about that $10?" he asked.

"What $10?"

"Why, that $10 you were going to lend me if I brought back the $5. I've come to get it."

"Great Caesar! Say, just sit down over there and go to studying law. I need a man just like you; I'm going to make you my partner."—Stockton (Cal.) Mail.

Not Yet.

"Does this road desire to be exempt from the long-and-short-haul provisions of the Interstate Bill?" asked the reporter as he entered the President's office.

"Well, not quite yet. We are now engaged in stealing three miles of street and four acres of ground of the city, and have fifty-two suits for injuries to passengers to defend, and we are not exactly prepared to meet the Commissioners yet."—Wall Street News.

A woman has been appointed as one of the six city physicians of Rochester, N. Y.

A New Profession.

From all portions of the country, but especially from the South, there comes a demand for men of scientific training and practical experience to manage farms. Capitalists engaged in other branches of business are owners of farms and country seats which they have neither the leisure nor the knowledge to cultivate at a profit. Fancy farming for mere occupation, involving a wasteful expenditure of money, is at a discount. Even men of the amplest means are anxious to have their amateur agriculture prove a financial success. To realize such aspirations, a class of men of specific qualifications is now called for.

To the young men now studying with proper zeal and energy in our agricultural colleges this demand opens a brilliant prospect. Those of them who have the requisite capital will, of course, own and work their own farms; but there are others, without farms and without capital, who can exercise their scientific and economic skill only in combination with the farms and capital of others. With such as these the non-professional landholders will be well satisfied to share the profit of farming enterprise.

It is a healthful sign of the times that our large estates, especially in the South, are in process of subdivision. Let the good work go on until the mass of the farming interest is in the hands of small proprietors, a true yeomanry, working their own patrimony, and cherishing those ideas and habits of independent manhood which are essential to true manhood. But when this subdivision shall have attained its full legitimate development, there will be still a wide scope for farming on a large scale, requiring men of specific agricultural training for their management. The young men without capital now studying scientific agriculture, if found possessed of these qualifications, will find a noble and lucrative sphere of activity.—American Cultivator.

Mr. H. CARL, 139 Fourth Street, Troy, N. Y., says: "My daughter had a sprained ankle; St. Jacobs Oil cured her in a day or two. My son had rheumatism about nine years ago; St. Jacobs Oil cured him; he has not been affected since." Price Fifty cents.

The lack of money may, but the lack of brains never, prevent a person from getting into what is called "society."—Boston Courier.

From Philipsburg, Pa., Mr. S. M. Cross writes, briefly and pointedly, thus: "Your St. Jacobs Oil has cured me of neuralgia of the face and head." Price Fifty cents.

Sue's "Mysteries of Paris."

Some curious reminiscences are evoked by the revival of Eugene Sue's "Mysteries of Paris" at a boulevard theater. The tale first appeared as a feuilleton in the grave, then official, Journal des Debats. The sale of the paper was enormous while the mysteries were being doled out in daily driplets to a crowd of abonnes and promiscuous readers, who flocked around the offices every morning loudly clamoring for a number. In the country the lumbering old diligences were besieged on their arrival in the market places, and the provincials who, being subscribers, received the journal first, were pestered by people who wanted to know how the story was going on, what had become of Fleur de Marie, and whether Rigolette was safe. The Debats was gravely censured at the time by the powers that were, for it was contended that if the hideous misery and horrible criminality depicted by the popular novelist of the period had existence in fact the story implied a blame on the Government for neglecting their duty in not stamping them out. The proprietors of the newspaper, however, who were netting a golden profit by the adventures of Fleur de Marie and her compeers, calmly went on their way without heeding the official murmurs of discontent. The attention which in the days of Sue was given to one or two of the accredited story-tellers is now lavished on a dozen. Fashionable people can, for instance, choose between Zola, Guy de Maupassant, Alphonse Daudet, and Paul Bourget; while the small fry of society have the Petit Journal with its Richenourgs and Bouviers in perennial variety.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Beautiful Women

Are made pallid and unattractive by functional irregularities which Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" will infallibly cure. Thousands of testimonials. By druggists.

You never hear of a strike among astronomers. The business is always looking up.

Clear the Way

Without loss of time, when the intestinal canal is blocked up by reason of constipation, chronic or temporary. It should be borne in mind that this ailment is prone to become lasting and obstinate, and breed other and worse complaints. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the precise remedy to remove the obstruction effectually, but without drenching or weakening the blocked bowels, a consequence always to be apprehended from the use of violent laxatives, which are among the most pernicious of the cheap nostrums swallowed by the credulous and misinformed. The hat of experience, and of the medical fraternity, sanctions the claims of this standard aperient. Not only as a source of relief and permanent regularity to the bowels, liver, and stomach, but as a means of remedying and preventing kidney and bladder troubles and fever and ague, it is without a peer.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

"See here, Garibaldi," said a gentleman who was having his boots shined, "haven't you breathed about enough on those boots? I'm in a big hurry."

Garibaldi hastily completes the job, and in response to a dime says:

"Notta centa change."

"Well, go and get it."

Garibaldi goes and gets two nickels, one of which he reluctantly turns over. "Caramba!" says Garibaldi, profanely, "ze tam signor is no too bigga hurry to waita for ze change."—New York Sun.

They Rush for It.

It is said the women swarm after Moxie Nerve Food with a perfect furor. It is known to be customary for young men to try a mug of it to antidote the effects of a debauch, which it does within an hour so effectually, there is nothing left after to remind them that they have had one. Some of our most eminent physicians say it is the only nerve food of any account, as all others are actually only mild stimulants, and soon lose their effects, while this does not, more than common food. It has been but thirteen months on the market, and the druggists say its sale is the most extraordinary ever known.

A Town with a Wicked Name.

A town in Nooilda County, Texas, which is big enough to have a postmaster, bears the euphonious but suggestive name of Can-Can. The town attained a temporary prominence a short time ago through the murder of its postmaster by a local tough. The name is supposed to have been given to the town by its admiring residents just after the visit of a free-and-easy ballet troupe, whose high kicking became higher than ever under the stimulus of border license.—Durham Driver.

Don't hawk, hawk, blow, spit, and disgust everybody with your offensive breath, but use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy and end it.

For dyspepsia, indigestion, depression of spirits, and general debility, in their various forms, also as a preventive against fever and ague and other intermittent fevers, the "Ferro Phosphate Elixir of Calisaya," made by Hazard, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic; and for patients recovering from fever or other sickness it has no equal.

It is odd that the wages of sin remain just the same as they were when the hours were shorter.

Endurance of Society People.

A prominent society lady of Washington, being asked by the Prince of Wales, "Why is it you people here manifest so little fatigue from dancing, receptions, etc.?" replied, "Why, you see, we Americans regain the vitality wasted in these dissipation by using Dr. Hartner's Iron Tonic."

STRAIGHTEN your old boots and shoes with Lyon's Heel Stiffeners, and wear them again.

BEST, easiest to use and cheapest. Piso's Remedy for Catarrh. By druggists. 50c.

That Tired Feeling

Is so general at this season that every one knows what is meant by the expression. A change of season, climate, or of life has such a depressing effect upon the body that one feels all tired out, almost completely prostrated, the appetite is lost, and there is no ambition to do anything. The whole tendency of the system is downward. In this condition Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It purifies the blood, sharpens the appetite, overcomes the tired feeling, and invigorates every function of the body. Try it.

The Weak Made Strong.

"I never took any medicine that did me so much good in so short a time as Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was very much run down, had no strength, no energy, and felt very tired all the time. I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before I had used one bottle felt like a different person. That extreme tired feeling has gone, my appetite returned, and it toned me up generally." CLARA W. PHELPS, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered considerably, being for nearly a year troubled with indigestion. I am now on my fourth bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and never felt better in my life. It has made a new man of me." H. M. HILLMAN, Desplantes Street Police Station, Chicago, Ill.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

Is It Not Singular

That consumptives should be the least apprehensive of their own condition, while all their friends are urging and beseeching them to be more careful about exposure and overdoing? It may well be considered one of the most alarming symptoms of the disease, where the patient is reckless and will not believe that he is in danger. Reader, if you are in this condition, do not neglect the only means of recovery. Avoid exposure and fatigue, be regular in your habits, and use faithfully of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." It has saved thousands who were steadily failing.

TEXAS has a paper called the Bedbug. It is gradually creeping into notice.

EVERY wide awake town of 500 inhabitants or over, should have its local newspaper. Full particulars regarding the cost of outfit, and how to run it and make money, can be had by addressing Practical Printer, box 121, Fort Wayne, Ind.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

IT IS A PURELY VEGETABLE PREPARATION CONTAINING PRICKLY ASH BARK AND PRICKLY ASH BERRIES. SENNA-MANDRAKE-BUCHU AND OTHER EQUALLY EFFICIENT REMEDIES. It has stood the Test of Years, in Curing all Diseases of the BLOOD, LIVER, STOMACH, KIDNEYS, BOWELS, &c. It Purifies the Blood, Invigorates and Cleanses the System.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS
CURES ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER, KIDNEYS, STOMACH AND BOWELS.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.
PRICE 1 DOLLAR.

It is purely a Medicine as its cathartic properties forbid its use as a beverage. It is pleasant to the taste, and as easily taken by children as adults.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CO.
Sole Proprietors, ST. LOUIS AND KANSAS CITY.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

FOR HORSES.
UNION, W. Va., Nov. 17, 1886.
Recently I bought a young horse. He was taken very ill with Pneumonia. I tried to find of something to relieve him. Concluded what was good for the world would be good for the horse. So I got a bottle of Piso's Cure and gave him half of it through the nostrils. This helped him, and I continued giving same doses night and morning until I had used two bottles. The horse has become perfectly sound. I can recommend Piso's Cure for the horse as well as for man.

N. S. J. STRIDER.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

ESTAB. 1866. W. H. FAY & CO. Camden, N. J.
Also ST. LOUIS, MINNEAPOLIS, OMAHA.

BEST ROOFING Any one can apply it. Catalogue and samples free.
ESTAB. 1866. W. H. FAY & CO. Camden, N. J.
Also ST. LOUIS, MINNEAPOLIS, OMAHA.

$350 Will buy a complete Newspaper Outfit, suitable for publishing a weekly paper in a town of 1000 or over, inhabitants. Address FOUR WAYNE NEWS-PAPER UNION, Fort Wayne, Ind.

VALUABLE RECEIPTS 25c. each, 3 for 50c. Cure for Dropsy, Cure for Scrofula, Cure for Kidney Complaints, Found in Diary of an Eminent Ebb Doctor, now deceased. Address, ADMINISTRATION, Box D, Springfield, Ohio.

PATENTS R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Instructions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 17 years' experience.

Pierce's Little Pleasant Purgative Pills

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS. ALWAYS ASK FOR DR. PIERCE'S PELLETS, OR LITTLE SUGAR-COATED PILLS.

Being entirely vegetable, they operate without disturbance to the system, diet, or occupation. Put up in glass vials, hermetically sealed. Always fresh and reliable. As a laxative, alterative, or purgative, these little Pellets give the most perfect satisfaction.

SICK HEADACHE

Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may truthfully be said that their action upon the system is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative influence. Sold by druggists, 25 cents a vial. Manufactured at the Chemical Laboratory of WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

$500 REWARD

is offered by the manufacturer of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for a case of Chronic Nasal Catarrh which they cannot cure.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH. Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and purrid; the eyes are weak, watery, and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, dizziness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with sores from ulcers; the voice is changed and has a nasal twang; the breath is offensive; smell and taste are impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility. Only a few of the above named symptoms are likely to be present in any one case. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, or less understood by physicians.

By its mild, soothing, and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases of Catarrh, "cold in the head," Coryza, and Catarrhal Headaches. Sold by druggists everywhere; 50 cents.

"Unfolded Agony from Catarrh."

Prof. W. HARTNER, the famous mesmerist, of Utica, N. Y., writes: "Some ten years ago, I suffered untold agony from chronic nasal catarrh. My family physician gave me up as incurable, and said I must die. My case was such a bad one, that every day, towards sunset, my voice would become so hoarse I could barely speak above a whisper. In the morning my coughing and clearing of my throat would almost strangle me. By the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, in three months, I was a well man, and the cure has been permanent."

"Constantly Hawking and Spitting."

Thomas J. RUSHING, Esq., 200 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh for three years. At times I could hardly breathe, and was constantly hawking and spitting, and for the last eight months could not breathe through the nostrils. I thought nothing could be done for me. Luckily, I was advised to try Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I believe it to be the only sure remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and one has only to give it a fair trial to experience astounding results and a permanent cure."

Three Bottles Cure Catarrh.

THE LATTERS, Durham Driver, Raleigh, N. C., writes: "My daughter had catarrh when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her; a third bottle effected a permanent cure. She is now eighteen years old and sound and hearty."

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH PENNYROYAL PILLS

The Original and Only Genuine. Safe and always reliable. Beware of worthless imitations. Ladies, ask your Druggist for Chichester's English, and take no other, or unless to change it, for particulars in letter by return mail. NAME AND ADDRESS OF CHICHESTER CHEMICAL CO., 2515 Madison Square, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Ask for "Chichester's English" Pennyroyal Pills. Take no other.

ESTD 1862. Your "Tansill's Punch" are the best cigars we ever handled. CLASSETT & BRAGG, Monroe, Wis. We think, without doubt, that your "Tansill's Punch" are the finest cigars we have ever had. WM. L. DAVIS & CO., Druggists, Worcester, Mass. Address: R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

RUPTURE

If you want relief and cure at your home, send for Dr. J. A. Sherman's circular of instructions. 24 Broadway, New York.

PENSIONS. Officer's pay, bounty procured; deserters relieved. 21 years' practice. Success or no fee. Write for circulars and new laws. A. W. McBRIDE & SONS, Washington, D. C., & Cincinnati, O.

FRECKLES, PIMPLES, TAN, TETTER, etc., all removed and Complexion made beautiful by our CHAMPION CHEMICAL COMPOUND. Sent by mail for 50 cents. Address C. C. CHEMICAL CO., SPRINGFIELD, OHIO.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50. FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Address: Breaker's Safety-Ring-Holder, Holly, Mich.

PENSIONS COLLECTED and Increased by Fitzgerald & Powell, Indianapolis, Ind. Call on us before sending. Send for copy of laws, free.

N. U. F. W. No. 22-87. When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

PITH AND POINT.

He does a driving business—The cabman.

LEGAL-TENDER—A lawyer's clerk.—Pretzel's Weekly.

We learn from a scientific journal that "all modern high explosives are now almost universally exploded by the agency of electricity." There is one notable exception. Coal oil is still exploded by the agency of the hired girl and a cook-stove.—Jersey City Journal.

A book published recently is entitled, "How to Become a Public Speaker." Books of this kind are not greatly needed in this age. There are enough of public speakers. What the times demand is a book entitled, "How to Prevent Public Speakers from Speaking."—Boston Courier.

A CORRESPONDENT of the New York Morning Journal thinks that there is something in the American air that inclines people to chew. Men chew tobacco and women chew gum. It is probably because America is a free country where people do pretty much as they chews.—Boston Courier.

"AND what does your costume represent?" said Chauncey DePew to a young lady at a fancy ball, whose dress began too late and ended too soon. "O! This is an idea of my own, you know. I am the New York Central." "So I see. The Fast Limited, at the lowest Cut Rates, I imagine," replied the wit.—Town Topics.

AMATEUR tenor (who has been abroad).—Ah! my man, you are an eye doctor, I understand. Oculist—I am an oculist, sir. "Yes; well, what I want to know is whether there is any way to prevent the eyes from filling with water while singing." "None that I know of except to steel your heart against the sufferings of the audience."

MISS ETHEL—Have you seen the new American book of heraldry? Miss Blanche—No; have you? "Not yet, but I have sent for it; you ought to get one, too, and see if your name is in." "That would only be a waste of money; I know it is in. It is in every book." "Is it?" "Yes; my name is Smith, you know."—Omaha World.

CATHARINE OWENS has published a book called "Ten Dollars Enough." She may think so now; but by the time she gets all the jet trimming and overskirt, she will find that about $10 more is necessary, not including the dressmaker's bill. Ten dollars is enough for the material, but the trimming and the making cost like sixty.

"AND so your dear Uncle David is dead? Was he sick long?" "Not a great while, but he was a great sufferer. Everything, however, was done for him that was possible." "Then of course you are all satisfied with his medical treatment?" "O, yes; that is to say, all of us except cousin John. Uncle David didn't leave John anything but the family Bible."—Boston Transcript.

An old tramp who had agreed to saw wood for half an hour for his breakfast from a Baltimore woman, quit at the seventh stick and said: "Madam, I have struck for more breakfast and less wood; are you willing to arbitrate?" "Certainly," she replied, and she left the case in the hands of her bulldog, who can the tramp half a mile and decided that a lockout was inevitable.

His Last Words.

"What were the dying words of poor Maj. Junket, the editor of the Snake Hollow Coker?" was asked of the clergyman present when the Major breathed his last.

"Well," he replied, "I will read them to you—I don't understand them myself—but he spoke very slowly and I wrote them down. He seemed to be very much troubled for some time and then he said: 'Tell Mr. Harcourt he'd better run off an extra quire this week—may need 'em to send to friends, and don't publish any poetry about me, and set that editorial double-leaded in which I do up the Scooter man about who has the most job work, and don't forget about those ads. of Dr. Sagehen's Catarrhal Cavorter, and Piesbiter's Consumption Cure, and Howler's Hair Persuader, and Prof. Cemetery's Celebrated Rough on Life Salve; and put them all top column, preceding my obituary and call attention to them editorially and locally. Ask him to be very particular about these.'"—Dakota Bell.

Ambushing a Bushwhacker.

When the war feeling in East Tennessee had become so bitter that all Union men had to flee from their homes or remain at the peril of their lives, a mountaineer named Alexander Brown left his wife and two children to make his way through to the Union lines and enlist. I knew him well. He was not an educated man, and one would not have looked for sentiment under his coon-skin cap and ragged clothes. It was curious, speaking of sentiment, how the uncouth, uneducated and poverty-stricken mountaineers were aroused by the war and made to take sides for and against the Union. If one was a Unionist he was as firm as a rock; if one was a Confederate you couldn't move him. Brown was for the Union, and, though an ignorant man in the general sense, he had a ready tongue, a good memory and he could out-talk any man in the neighborhood. After a time this made him a dangerous man to the Confederates, and he received plenty of hints that his life was not safe. He could not remove his family, having no means, and he was determined not to enter the Confederate ranks. He therefore bade his family good-bye one evening and started for a tramp of sixty miles across the county.

A man named Ben Lock, living in a cabin about eight miles from Brown, and getting his living by hunting, farming, and stealing, had by this time gathered a dozen other bad men around him, assumed the title of Captain, and was riding around the country to rob and abuse Unionists. I met him and his gang the very day Brown fled, and understood from their talk that they were after him. It seems they got a hint of his having left home and laid for him along a path which he was expected to follow. He was thus captured. In the struggle he killed one of the men, and in return they roasted him alive at the stake. It was six months before the facts were known to Mrs. Brown. She had remained right at home, and though known to be a Unionist had not been disturbed. When she learned of the horrible fate meted out to her husband she registered a vow to kill every man engaged in the affair. As the whole crowd had been merged into another command and sent off to Virginia, the chances of her threat being fulfilled looked very slim. She did not leave home, but she waited for time to aid her in her vengeance.

In January, 1863, Ben Lock, who was a sergeant of cavalry, came back home for the first time, having a mission to enlist such men as could be prevailed upon to join his flag, and to drive out certain Unionists who were supposed to be working harm to the Confederate cause. He took up his quarters at a house about three miles from Mrs. Brown's, and during the first hour of his arrival gave out that he intended to burn her cabin and drive her and her children into the hills. The news may have reached her or it may not, but she must have known of his arrival. On that first night, as he took the water-pail just at dusk and started for a spring a few rods away, the report of a gun was heard, and when some of the people went out to investigate they found Ben Lock lying near the spring with the top of his head blown clean off by a heavy charge of buckshot. They got sight of the Widow Brown moving away with a gun on her shoulder; but, indeed, she made no secret of the deed. It was well known for miles around that she ambushed and killed Lock, but, so far as I know, she was never disturbed on that account. On the contrary, the Confederates around her praised her nerve, and had no lamentations for the fellow, who was tumbled into a shallow grave.—Detroit Free Press.

He Neglected His Opportunities.

Ethel—Don't you like Mr. Fitz-Jones?

Mabel—No, I don't. I despise him.

Ethel—Why?

Mabel—Well, he was calling on me last night, and I undertook to show him how well I could whistle.

Ethel—Well, what of that?

Mabel—A great deal of that. I just puckered my lips up as sweet and pretty as I could, and then—

Ethel—Well, what then?

Mabel—He just let me go on and whistle.

Ethel—How mean!—Tid Bits.

"GARMENTS without buttons" are advertised. Evidently the cast-off clothing of bachelors who don't know how to handle thread and needle.

J. H. CONRAD,

DEALER IN

ROOFING AND SPOUTING

GUTTERING, HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.

Cutlery, Nails, Paints, Woodenware &c.

MAIN STREET, ST. JOE IND.

All work and goods guaranteed to give satisfaction. Give me a call.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

St. Joe Meat Market,

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

M. TUSTISON,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES,

EARTHEN POTS FOR HOUSE PLANTS

PROVISIONS, OYSTERS, LEMONS.

ORANGES, CANDIES, CIGARS &c.

MAIN ST. ST. JOE, IND.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

R. G. COBURN,

AGENT FOR THE

A L BION SPRING Cultivator

AND FIELD HARROW.

AND DAISY RAKE.

Farmers will save money by seeing me before buying. I will call on you with a sample in a few days. R. G. Coburn, St. Joe, Ind.

Take Notice!

Having returned from Tennessee, I will assist again in

Raising & Moving Buildings,

in short all kinds of Rope, Tackle and Jack-screw Work. Having had 15 years experience, and improved machinery, I feel safe in guaranteeing satisfaction. Heavy and difficult work a specialty. Correspondence solicited. Direct all communications to H. or M. Milliman, St. Joe Station, Ind., or A. Monroe, Hicksville, Ohio.

A. KINSEY,

Undertaker and Embalmer. "Keeps on hand constantly, a stock of Undertaking Supplies, Coffins, Caskets, Burial Robes &c. I can supply as fine goods as can be furnished. Will attend to making all arrangements for funerals. Call, responded to at all hours of the night. Office on corner of Main and Second Streets; residence on corner of Main and Fourth Streets, St. Joe, Ind."

Arthur James,

DEALER IN—

Watches, Clocks,

AND JEWELRY.

Repairing done promptly and all work warranted. Call and see me at Bair & Son's store, Spencerville, Ind.

M. T. BISHOP,

—DEALER IN—

LUMBER

OF ALL KINDS,

Shingles, Lime, Lath, MOULDINGS &c.

Large Stock and Prices Low. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNESS

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

Supplement to the St. Joe News.

FRIDAY, MAY 27, 1887.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

WESTBOUND.

No. 9 Mail and Express 11:10 A. M.
3 Chicago Express 10:43 P. M.
35 Local Freight 3:53 P. M.

EAST BOUND.

No. 10 Express and Mail 2:08 P. M.
4 Morning Express 2:57 A. M.
21 Local Freight 8:00 A. M.

G. V. JAMES, AGENT.

SPENCERVILLE.

Arthur B. Olds spent Sunday with his parents.

Soloman Boger is visiting friends in Michigan.

M. C. Emanuel was at Mark Center last Tuesday on business.

Mrs. Carver has been visiting her son Henry at Blakeslee Ohio.

Mrs. Kagey and sons, of Ashland Ohio are visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Kagey.

Rev. Fryberger will deliver a series of lectures on the subject of "Theology and Science" at the Methodist Church.

Dr. L. S. Jones, of the University of Michigan, will deliver a lecture on "Theology and Science" at the Methodist Church.

W. D. H. Smith, of the University of Michigan, will deliver a lecture on "Theology and Science" at the Methodist Church.

Mrs. A. B. Smith, of the University of Michigan, will deliver a lecture on "Theology and Science" at the Methodist Church.

John B. Smith, formerly of this place, now of Hunkertown, had the misfortune last Wednesday to break his leg.

Mr. and Mrs. David Butler have been made happy by the arrival of a handsome girl baby in their pleasant home.

The commonwealth exercises last Thursday evening in the church were well attended and highly appreciated. The graduates were:

Miss Provins, Sarah Boger and Ivan Fryberger, and each performed their part in a creditable manner, and in fact all who participated did well and deserve to be commended for their perseverance and earnestness.

THEORY'S RETREAT.

Gypsy-stands are the latest craze. Fred Hill has returned from Sweden country.

A goodly number of our farmers are shearing sheep.

We boast of having the oldest settler in DeKalb Co. for a neighbor.

Clark Mathews is one of the many hucksters that infest these regions.

Mrs. S. Shilling, daughter and sons, went to Rehoboth to church last Sunday.

Nick Goldsmith is waiting for the cut-worms to die before he replants his corn.

We will put Mrs. Jennie Rudy's scare-crow up against Vils and let the editor decide which is the scariest.

Miss Emma Kline will embark in the dress-making business in Auburn this spring. Her friends and neighbors wish her success.

The Kendallville creamery man was contracting for cream through out our district the fore part of this week. Ye townsmen, engage your butter before it is too late.

---

J. EMANUEL & SONS,

— DEALERS IN —

DRUGS, PAINTS,

OILS, VARNISHES, BRUSHES,

Perfumes, Soaps, Toilet Articles,

CONFECTIONARY, CANNED GOODS &c.

THE CHOICEST AND FINEST

CIGARS AND TOBACCOS

THAT MONEY CAN BUY.

---

We invite the attention of the public to the fact, that we have added largely to our stock, and now carry a full and complete line of Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Brushes &c. Drugs and Druggists Sundries, the very latest and best Perfumes, Soaps, and Toilet Articles. The best Cigars and Tobaccos that money can buy. Also a good assortment of Canned Goods and Confectionary. Pure Wines and Liquors for MEDICINAL PURPOSES ONLY. Special attention given to filling prescriptions and recipes with accuracy and dispatch, at all hours of the day or night. We guarantee our GOODS TO BE OF THE BEST QUALITY and prices as low as the lowest. Give us a call.

J. Emanuel & Sons,

SPENCERVILLE, IND.

JUNE

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, JUNE 3, 1887.

NO. 19.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. RYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLIMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind., John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a speciality. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—The people of Republican Township, in the southern part of Jefferson County, are greatly excited over the prospect of finding gas and oil. Recently an explosion occurred in the bed of a small stream running through the farm of J. Henley, the report being heard for several miles, and frightened cattle until they ran about like wild. A large opening was made in the creek bottom, and the strong odor of gas permeated the air. The general supposition is that the explosion was caused by natural gas, as shale taken from the same spot several years since was found combustible, and it is thought gas and oil can be found.

—A singular incident is reported from Roann, Wabash County. A lady passenger bound for Detroit boarded a Wabash and Western passenger train, and, by mistake, went into the smoker and sat down. In a moment she jumped up exclaiming, "I am on fire," and the flames were seen enveloping her body. Several passengers rushed to the rescue and the fire was smothered, though the fair passenger was considerably injured. Investigation showed that her celluloid bustle had ignited from a burning cigar-stump which had been left on the seat.

—The Governor is about ready to proclaim the laws passed by the last Legislature to be in force, but the absence of the State's financial exhibit from the volume of laws, as published, has caused him to ask the Attorney General if that fact rendered the publication illegal. The Attorney General advised him that such failure did not have that effect, as the constitutional provision requiring the publication of the statement was only directory. The essence of the thing to be done was the publication and circulation of the laws.

—Patents have been issued to Indians as follows: Cline, George J., assignor of one-half to W. B. Lehman, Goshen, road-cart; Crossman, John A., and N. C. Buch, assignors to E. C. Atkins & Co., Indianapolis, saw-swaging machine; Hand, Townson, assignor of one-half to O. Hand, Shelbyville, washing-machine; Line, W. F., Andrews, fumigator; McGriff, John N., Anderson, corn-planter; McKinney, Wm. H., Evansville, non-conducting jacket; Wilcox, Charles D., Indianapolis, boiler-cleaner.

—A recent shipment of twenty tons of ore from Warrick County, sent to a Newport, Ky., smelter for test treatment, yielded $255 per ton of bullion in silver and gold. The average assays of the twenty-ton lot run 9.7 ounces in silver per ton; 3 ounces gold; 7 per cent. lead; 70 per cent. silicate; 8 per cent. iron and manganese; 12 per cent. lime; value, $12 per ton. It carries almost its own fluxing, and is a desirable smelting ore.

—Near Danville, Hendricks County, the 14-year-old son of Thomas Hewlitt, while attempting to mount a mare hitched to a harrow, for the purpose of riding, fell beside the animal and got entangled in the harness. The horse became frightened and dragged the boy a distance of a hundred yards, continually kicking him until he was dead.

—The State Homoeopathic Society in session at Indianapolis, elected the following officers: President, Dr. T. D. Lewis, Evansville; First Vice President, Dr. J. T. Boyd, Indianapolis; Second Vice President, Dr. J. A. Thompson, New Castle; Treasurer, Dr. J. S. Martin, Muncie; Secretary, Dr. William B. Clark, Indianapolis.

—The Treasurer of State asked the Attorney General if a County Treasurer could levy on notes and money to satisfy a claim for delinquent taxes. The Attorney General's opinion is that no exemption pertains to this class of personal property, and that a levy for the purpose named can be made on them.

MECHANICAL.

A BELGIAN glass blower, at Meadville, Pa., accomplished the feat of driving a locomotive and train of cars with gas manufactured from crude oil. The device, which occupies a small space on the tender and is connected with the furnace, is very simple.

Ash is, perhaps, the most difficult of all the woods to clean, as the grain is of an open and straight nature, varied with a frequently recurring, tough cross spot. After sand-papering, rough spots are seen by white blotches, and they can be easily scraped out as before.

A RELIABLE cement, one that will resist the action of water and acids, especially acetic acid, is: Finely powdered litharge, fine dry white sand and plaster of Paris, each three quarts by measure, finely pulverized resin one part. Mix and make into a paste with boiled linseed oil, to which a little drier has been added, and let it stand for four or five hours before using. After fifteen hours' standing it loses strength. The cement is said to have been successfully used in the Zoological Gardens, London.

NATURAL cement is made by burning in an ordinary draw kiln hydraulic limestone or cement rock, at a moderate heat, and grinding the calcined product to powder. The result is a product depending for its uniformity upon the uniformity of the rock out of which it is made, and in which the elements of alumina, silica, and lime existing in laminae or in crystals are not all brought in close enough contact to form active combining elements when exposed to fire, and in which, moreover, the low heat of its burning is not sufficient to form aluminates of lime.

LARGE suction pipes make easy pumping and durable pumps. The old-fashioned pump log had great advantages, because the suction pipe was of the same diameter as the "sucker." Old sailors, who have manned ship-pumps and worked for their lives, hour after hour and day after day, assert that no pump has ever been made which will throw water as fast or as easily as those of wood. Theory shows that they are correct in their conclusion. In setting a pump in a difficult position, give a large suction pipe, and easy work and abundance of water will be the result.

THE question of running heavy machinery by artesian well power is by no means purely experimental; it is done in many locations in France already, and the experience of the French show that the deeper the well the greater the pressure and the higher the temperature. At Grenelle, France, for instance, a well sunk to the depth of 1,802 feet, and flowing daily 500,000 gallons, has a pressure of sixty pounds to the square inch, just double that of the 600-foot well at Jacksonville, and the water from this Grenelle well is so hot that it is used for heating the hospitals in the vicinity.

In these days of staining and veneering, and other varied styles of finishing woods, even those who count themselves experts are easily deceived. I was talking with a Cleveland hard-wood expert a few days ago, and with a self-complacent air he told me an incident of how he had unnerved a neighbor by telling him that the lovely chair about which he was prating was not mahogany as he thought, but bay wood. It is doubtful if this gentleman could tell the difference between mahogany and bay-wood, for on investigation by the use of a pen-knife the chair proved to be made of elm.—The Timberman.

THE value of cut glass is in proportion to its purity of color and the brilliancy of the "metal" or glass; and it is a matter in the experience of every glass-maker that a pressed article cut over is not as brilliant as the same piece not cut, and having the fire polish, or reheated surface intact. Hence, though it is cheaper to press a piece first, and then cut over the pattern, such goods are so inferior that they would not bring as much as the merely-pressed and fire-polished article. It can be considered a rule that the less pressure there is put on the glass while bringing it into shape, the more brilliant the final cutting will appear.

A Confident Professor.

Prof. Gadsing, a gentleman who has furnished many new ideas to the great magazines, is a peculiar man. He has made many discoveries in science, and from his superior height of intellectuality he has noticed many phenomena that were lost to the ordinary man. Some time ago the Professor discovered the fact that he could think and write best while his feet were immersed in cold-water. He caught the idea from the professors at Heidelberg and he knew that it was correct; so, of late years, whenever he has written anything, he has sat with his feet in cold water. Every one about the house became acquainted with his peculiarities, and, consequently, when the Professor rang his bell, every one knew what to do. It is really painful, even to one whose duty it is to tell the unclouded truth, to relate an accident which recently occurred, but a devotion to fact enforces such a duty.

Several days ago it became necessary to discharge a servant who for a long time has been in the family. The newly employed servant said that he knew all about the workings of a household, and begged that no one might humiliate him by delivering profuse instructions. "Now, Nathan," said the Professor, "I think that I will be seized with inspiration early in the morning. Have you received perfect instructions?"

"Yes, sah.
"Know exactly what to do?"
"Dat's whut I does."
"All right, I will depend upon you." Early the next morning the Professor sprang out of bed and prepared himself for the intellectual ordeal. He had on hand a subject of great importance and it was necessary that he should drive all his inactive blood to an active brain. Just as the Professor prepared himself by seating himself at the table, Simon appeared with a large foot-tub of water. The Professor, after having the tub placed in the proper position, took up his pen and said:

"All right, is it?"
"Yas, sah, I reckons so." He rolled up his pantaloons and soused his feet into the water. Then he jumped up and uttered a loud exclamation. The misguided servant had thought that the water should be boiling hot. The great man now walks on crutches.—Arkansaw Traveler.

It Brought Him Back.

"Henry!" shouted a Duluth avenue woman to her husband as he started down town, "aren't you going to get me that water before you go?"

"Not this morning—in an awful hurry—big day's work to do," and he tore along down to the gate.

"But I want you to fix the cellar door so the children won't fall down and break their necks."

"Oh, watch 'em; watch 'em, I haven't time, must be down to the office in five minutes."

"Did you see the scandal in this morning's paper?"

"Hey?" he replied as he paused at the corner.

"It's about Col. Bilk and some woman from Sioux City."

"Is that so? Well, I must read it," and he came back taking long steps. "I've rather been expecting something of the kind for quite a while."—Dakota Bell.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

ROYALTY.

BY THOMAS S. COLLIER.

Out from the dust of ages,
Out from the wreck of years,
Fronting the work of ages,
Fronting the waste of tears,
Radiant, swift, immortal,
Earth flings the soul of man,
And shuts the radiant portal
That hides creation's plan.

Here, with the gate behind him,
Here in the narrow path,
Fronting the sun that blind him,
Fronting the winds of wrath,
Man, with his head uplifted,
Man, with his hair outblown,
Virile, and strong, and gifted,
Builds for himself a throne.

Say that the grave is waiting,
Say that the shroud is white,
Say that the strength of hating
Owneth no victor's might;
Earth, from the cycles golden,
Holds for the life complete
Blossoms and sunlight golden,
Red lips and kisses sweet.

Whose are the chains that fetter?
Whose are the swords that bite?
Masters, and yet no better
Than men who brave the fight,
Earth hath no royal races;
Crowns, yea, and swords must break
When in the hidden faces
Death finds the hearts that quake.

Why fear the pain that passes?
Lo! birds will always sing;
Yea, and the vernal grasses
Wake with each waking spring;
And from the silent sleeping
Strong grow the weary eyes,
For comes the upward sweeping
Far through the distant skies.

Fronting the years that lengthen
Like some recurring chain,
Souls in life's combat strengthen,
Conquering death and pain;
Battling in God-like fashion
Through ways that none have trod,
Like they, by noble passion,
Up to the heights of God.

Oceand Monthly.

HAND-ORGAN GIRL.

BY MATHEWS TRACEY.

"Come on, Lenore; it will not earn us any pennies to stand here and shiver."

Lenore picked up her tambourine, drew her thin shawl closer about her slight figure, and followed Luigi, until they came to a broad, fine street, and saw at a great, shining, plate-glass window two curly heads.

Lenore forgot that she was cold and hungry as she saw the sweet, childish faces smiling down upon her, and she sang in a way that even surprised herself.

"Come in, little misses," said the trim nurse, who had followed her charges in their impetuous rush to the door. "You will take your deaths of cold standing in the draught."

"Wait a minute, Ann, till I give the poor little girl my pennies," said Stellara down the steps, handed Lenore the money which had been intended for the purchase of candy, and said: "Come again to-morrow, for my auntie and my new uncle are coming, and I want them to hear you sing."

"Thank you, miss; we'll come," said Luigi, answering in place of his companion, who seemed to have been struck suddenly dumb, as she stood with her great, sad, dark eyes fixed on the sunny, childish face of the little speaker. "Come now, Lenore; we must be off."

Slowly Lenore followed Luigi, a strange feeling of sorrow tagging at her heart.

Luigi was no relation to the child; but in his boyish way he tried to help her in her tasks, and to shield her if possible from drawing down upon herself the padrone's anger.

It was several hours before the pair had finished their wearisome tramp, and again turned their steps toward what they called home. As they passed an apple-woman's stand a young girl pulled Lenore's dress to attract her attention.

"Here is an apple for you and one for the boy. Granny told me to give them to you, and tell you not to make the padrone angry with you to-night, as he is in a dreadful way with the drink, and something's gone wrong to make him mad."

Lenore shivered as she listened, and said to Luigi, "Let's run away."

"But he'd find us, and then, when he brought us back, we'd be worse off than ever," said Luigi.

"I wish he'd kill me at once!" burst out Lenore. "Then it would be one hurt, and I'd never feel another."

"It is dreadful to die," said Luigi, "and I don't want you to talk that way. It makes shivers run over me."

By this time they were in front of the door of the tumble-down tenement where the padrone lived. The sound of his voice could be distinctly heard, and as the children listened to his drunken ravings their eyes met wistfully, as though each was hoping to gain courage from the sight of the other's face.

"I can't go in. He is in one of his most savage moods. Come, Luigi, and I'll ask Bridget Mahone's old granny to give us shelter for the night."

Lenore waited not to hear Luigi's answer. She started off upon a run, and the boy could only follow her reluctantly, well knowing what the daring act of disobedience would bring to them in the future.

Granny Mahone gave them shelter cheerfully. Her kind old heart ached for the hapless waifs, and she was glad to share her supper with them, and to let them stay under her roof to escape the fury of their tyrant. But she shook her head sagely at Bridget after they had fallen asleep, worn out by the day's experience of cold, fatigue, and hunger.

"The ould ne'er-do-weel 'll make the childer smart when he gets over the drink," she said.

"And sure, granny, we'll call in the perlice," answered Bridget, belligerently.

"But the ould scoundrel has the law on his side!" was the old woman's reply. "Sure what can the perlice do thin?"

Morning came as bright and unclouded as though no sorrow dwelt upon the earth.

Granny Mahone gave the children their breakfast, and started them out at an early hour, with the caution not to tell the padrone where they had spent the night, emphasizing her words with, "If yez do, honeys, he'll sure come down on me and make me suffer for it, and then yez can niver come to me again."

At a snitable hour the young musicians again stationed themselves before the mansion which held the beautiful children—Stella and May.

At the first sound of the hand-organ their curly heads came in sight at the window for an instant. Then, in response to something Stella said, a lady and gentleman came and looked out, and Lenore commenced to sing. Just at that moment an interruption came. The padrone had come out in search of the children; and as he was still suffering from the effects of the liquor he had drunk the previous night, he was not sufficiently master of himself to restrain his anger. He caught Lenore roughly by the arm, and commenced to question her in a savage tone as to her whereabouts since he had seen her. In his excitement he had paid no heed to the fact that the gentleman had left the window; and before he knew it, a hand was laid upon his arm, and he turned to confront a surprised and accusing pair of eyes whose glances overwhelmed him with sudden panic and confusion.

"At last, Giacomo, I have found you!" said a stern voice. "I have searched far and wide for you; but you'll not elude me any more. Here," he said, motioning to a policeman, "this man is an offender against the laws of his country, and I wish you to take charge of him. I have the papers in my possession which will prove my assertion, and will produce them at the proper time."

Turning, he saw Lenore, who had seemed strangely moved at the sound of his voice. Their eyes met. A look of amazement gradually took the place of the first merely pitying gaze which the gentleman had fixed upon her; and when, after an effort to recall the ideas his voice had evolved from out the misty past, Lenore at last said, hesitatingly, "Don't you know Lenore, your own little Lenore, Uncle Giulio?"

He put out his arms and caught her, rags and all, to his breast, and carried her up the broad stone steps to where his newly-made wife, Stella's auntie, stood.

"It is my brother's long-lost child, Mary," he said, in a voice choked with emotion. "Who would have thought that this great joy would have come to me just at this time? Truly God is good!"

It was true. Lenore had been stolen from her home by Giacomo, her father's valet. He had concealed his whereabouts so cleverly that until now he had escaped discovery.

You may at the present day see an anomaly in Italy; a fine old residence, whose lodge at the entrance gates is occupied by a ruddy-faced Irishwoman. A bright-looking maid-servant often takes an opportunity to run down from her young mistress's employment to see Granny Mahone, who is thus reaping the interest of her good deed in sheltering and feeding the two helpless waifs on that distant night.

Giulio has taken Luigi under his especial protection, and when his education is completed he is to marry Lenore, for the childish love which had become rooted in their young hearts has grown into strength with each passing year, until at last it has blossomed into that deathless plant whose amarantine bloom has its root in this world, its fruition in the heavenly garden.

It Would Knock Her Out.

The Empress of Germany gives a golden cross to every servant in the empire who remains forty years in one situation. If her majesty would come to America and make that offer to every girl who had forty places in one year, she could go into total bankruptcy with no assets in one week.—Bob Burdette.

THE mind hath not reason to remember that passions ought to be her vassals, not her masters.—Sir Walter Raleigh.

GIVE your tongue more holiday than your hands or eyes.

Secrets of Beauty.

Girls, if your skin be dark, be satisfied to be in the category of the nut-brown maidens, if for no other reason than that "the leopard cannot change his spots." Let the sun kiss the dusky cheek and add to it the ruddy glow that belongs to the dark skin, and which the rouge-pot cannot supply.

Of course, you can't change your features. But you needn't trouble yourself much on that score. Some person has said that if "our Mary" could put some of her beauty of feature into real every-day prettiness she would be loved where she is now admired.

The towering-nosed maiden among the proud daughters of the Nile was the beauty of Solomon's day, as was the woman with no nose at all in the time of Tamerlane. In the "land of the free" there is no standard of beauty on the nose question. The American nose is a type all to itself. But at all events your nose is a foregone conclusion, and all the sleeping in clothespins to pinch down the too prominent nostrils, or stroking with the lead-pencil to subdue the obnoxious bump, is so much labor thrown away.

But when it comes to the month the would-be beauty has a more promising subject to deal with. Although the shape of the feature cannot be altered, if the lips be kept fresh and the teeth in perfect condition, very much is gained. If the spot where love seals its vows be of an exaggerated size, don't be constantly on the grin, as that keeps the muscles on the stretch. Cultivate a classic repose of feature. Keep the mouth shut when asleep for more reasons than one. (Don't snore.) Never bite the lips to make them red, or for any other reason. Bathe them occasionally in water, with a little dissolved alum or borax, and apply glycerine and tincture of benzoin. This will keep the lips fresh-looking. The only harmless way to keep them red is by contrast with the teeth, which should be milk-white.

A good tooth-beautifier is powdered sulphur, which is also an excellent tooth-preserver. This may be used daily. For occasional use, say once a week, the following is a good recipe: Pumice-stone, one ounce; bicarbonate of soda, one-half ounce; powdered talc, one-half ounce.

Fresh-looking lips, clean, white teeth and a breath like "sweet frankincense; aloe and myrrh," will make up for many a deficiency in feature.

If the ear be big and obtrusive, a loose arrangement of the hair or a few curled locks brushed carelessly back will help the objectionable organ wonderfully. Never comb the hair tight back from an ugly ear.

As for the eyes, better leave them alone. Trimmed lashes often refuse to grow again. Dark eyebrows and lashes are a great promoter of beauty, and if yours happen to be lighter than your hair, especially if that is red, I think you might just touch them lightly with a sponge dipped in black walnut bark boiled in water with a little alum, or apply simple walnut juice. The eyebrow may be given a slight arch and the fine line so much sought by simply pinching the hairs together, between the fingers several times a day.

But it is through the complexion that you have the greatest scope for beautifying. If every pore in your skin is stuffed full of "lily white" you must expect those dreadful pimples and horrid black specks. To the girl with the ugly skin I say, you must take a two or three-mile walk every day; you must wear shoes big enough for perfect comfort, and, if the skin be thick and oily, you must eschew fats and pastry.

In the spring it would be well to try the sulphur remedy, and at the same time you may rub sulphur in a little glycerine on the face at night, washing it off in warm water and a few drops of ammonia in the morning.

A little camphor in the water will remove all "shine." And remember, girls, all face powders are snares and delusions.—Virginia, in St. Louis Chronicle.

Getting Rid of a Runaway Horse.

The horseback rider who should strap himself to his beast so that he could not dismount in case of the horse's falling or rolling or other accident would be considered foolhardy, but men and women will sit in a "hide" which is securely hitched to a horse, and, if the animal runs away, remain in it in the hope of controlling it until it is dangerous to jump and dangerous to remain. In such a case a simple apparatus, which can easily be imagined, for detaching the shafts or pole from a carriage and freeing the vehicle, would remove all danger to human life and limb and allow the fractious animal to continue its mad career without imperiling its human passengers.—Norwich Bulletin.

What Savages Will Not Eat.

Among some of the Pacific islanders hens' eggs are saved to sell to ships, but are never eaten by the natives. Strawberries and raspberries are found, but they are never eaten.

The Esquimaux generally dislike all the preparations of vegetables that the explorers bring among them. They think it is a perverted appetite that craves anything but meat.

The natives of New Guinea cook a few cereals in their own fashion, but they made very dry faces when they attempted to eat some fresh baked biscuits that the missionaries gave them. They finally wrapped their biscuits up in paper, intending to keep them as curiosities.

On some of the islands of the Malay Archipelago there are hundreds of natives whose only industry is to collect the edible birds' nests that are esteemed a great dainty by the Chinese. They wouldn't dream of eating them themselves, and they think the Chinese must be very peculiar people to use that sort of food.

There are a number of tribes in Africa whose chief riches are their herds of cattle, but who never drank a drop of cow's milk in their lives. They think the milk of their herds is for calves and not for human beings, and they are disgusted at the idea that anybody should consider it a proper article of food. A few tribes near the great lakes think that it is a spectacle worth seeing to look at the missionaries milking cows and drinking the milk.

The Esquimaux near Littleton Island once discovered a supply of bread and salt pork that Dr. Kane had cached, and they proceeded to enjoy a feast at the white men's expense. They liked the salt pork and did not leave a morsel of it. This was probably the first chance they had ever had to vary the monotony of their meat diet. They nibbled the bread a little, promptly pronounced it a failure, and told Dr. Kane afterward that they would as soon swallow so much sand.

A tribe living not far from Port Moresby, New Guinea, that think boiled snakes are to be preferred to roast pig, draw the line at sugar. When they saw Dr. Chalmers, their first white visitor, sweetening his tea one morning they asked him for some of his salt. Dr. Chalmers told them that it was not salt, but they were incredulous, and so he gave some sugar to one of the natives. "He began eating it," says Dr. Chalmers, "and the look of disgust on his face was worth seeing. He rose up, went out, spat out what he had in his mouth, and threw the remainder away." Then he told the crowd what horrible stuff it was, and they were satisfied to take his word for it without trying it themselves.

Washed His Hands in Champagne.

In a leading restaurant in St. Petersburg, six officers of the imperial horse guards sat drinking champagne. Not far from them sat an insignificant little man, with a shabby coat and an unkempt beard; and a glass of liquor in front of him. It was not long before he became aware that he was being ridiculed by the officers aforesaid. By and by, as they became more offensive in their remarks on his personal appearance, the cheapness of what he was drinking, etc., he called for the waiter and said: "Bring me six bottles of your best champagne." The waiter hesitated. "Did you not hear what I said?" asked the little man. The waiter brought the wine and six glasses. "Take these glasses away and fetch a basin—one as large as you can find." The waiter again hesitated, but obeyed instantly at the peremptory repetition of the order. "A piece of soap," was the next order. "It was brought. A towel." The waiter handed him one. "Now open the bottles." The waiter did so. The little man now filled the basin with the contents of the six bottles, rolled up his sleeves, washed himself in the costly fluid, wiped his hands, laid £10 on the table, and casting a look of withering contempt upon the officers, strutted out of the room.—London Standard.

According to the Memphis Advertiser: "Every well-regulated city should have an equestrian statue."

INVENTOR OF THE BOWIE-KNIFE.

Desperate Adventures of James Bowie in Texas and Elsewhere.

Bowie now sold his land, and, in company with his brothers, engaged in slave-trading with the notorious Lafitte, the celebrated pirate of the gulf, says the Omaha Bee in an account of the adventures of the inventor of the bowie-knife. Under the laws of the United States at that time slaves were not allowed to be imported into the country, but the brothers Bowie easily evaded that difficulty. Their plan of operations was to go to Galveston and purchase from Lafitte a number of negroes, for which they paid at the rate of $1 a pound, or about $140 for each negro. These they would bring into the limits of the United States and then go to the custom-house officer and become informers against themselves. The law gave the informer half the value of the negroes, who were put up and sold by the United States Marshal. At the Marshal's sale they would themselves become the purchasers, would receive half the purchase money back and a certificate of sale, which entitled them to dispose of the negroes in the United States; Bowie followed this business until he made some $60,000, most of which he soon spent in riotous living in New Orleans.

It was during those expeditions to Galveston that his genius evolved the hunting knife with which his name will always be associated. It was made for him by a blacksmith after a design of his own. It was made with a heavy back, so that it could be used in chopping as well as thrusting, thus fulfilling the purpose of a hatchet, for which he used it in his woodsman life.

In the exciting political contests that grew out of Jackson's advent as a candidate Bowie took an active part. In 1826 he was residing at Alexandria, on Red River, and during a political campaign he got into an altercation with Norris Wright, Sheriff of Rapides Parish. Bowie was unarmed, and Wright drew a pistol and shot him through the body, but even then, if Wright had not been rescued by his friends, Bowie would have killed him with his fists. The attack so enraged him that he determined thereafter never to go without his knife, and he had a scabbard made for it, and said he would wear it as long as he lived. A year later this feud with Sheriff Wright culminated in a terrible encounter at Natchez. In September, 1827, two very respectable citizens of Louisiana, Dr. Maddox and Samuel Wells, having a difference to settle, agreed to meet on a sand-bar in the Mississippi River opposite Natchez, with a few friends, where their differences could be reconciled according to the custom among gentlemen. They met, exchanged shots, and became friends.

When retiring from the ground Wells invited Maddox and his second, Col. Crane, to the woods adjoining, where some others of his friends, excluded from the field, were to take refreshments. Crane objected on the ground that there were certain men there he could not meet. Wells then assented to go where Maddox's friends, who had also been excluded from the field, were. When on the way the party was met by the friends of Wells, who were James Bowie, Gen. Curry, and another person. Crane and Gen. Curry were mortal enemies, and immediately drew their pistols. Crane had a pistol in each hand, and shot Bowie first and then Curry, the latter being instantly killed. At this the friends of Maddox hurried to the scene, and among them was the Sheriff Wright who had the encounter with Bowie a year before. Wright also fired at Bowie and he fell. A general firing ensued and several others were killed. Wright seeing Bowie lying apparently dead approached and bent over him, when Bowie suddenly drew his knife and stabbed Wright to the heart. He then arose, though severely wounded, and stabbed another of the party with his knife, and the battle then terminated.

When he recovered from his wounds he determined to leave the United States and take up his residence in Texas. There he went in the year 1830 and engaged actively on the side of the Revolutionists, his valor and daring soon gaining him a distinguished name in that country. He married a daughter of one of the ex-Governors of the province and was appointed Colonel of one of the Texas regiments. During the next few years he was engaged in many fights with the Indians and with the Mexicans, in one of which he and nine or ten men succeeded in defending themselves against 150 Indians, with a loss of only one killed and two wounded.

His career was finally ended at the bloody battle of Alamo. He had been ordered to that place to take command, but a few days after he reached there he was taken down with pneumonia, and during the siege was confined to his bed. As is well known, Santa Anna, commanding 3,600 Mexicans, besieged the fort in the early days of March, 1836. It had only about one hundred and fifty defenders. After some days attack the place was stormed and every Texan was put to the sword. No one escaped. Bowie, sick in bed, is said to have shot down with his pistols and killed with his knife a number of his assailants before he yielded up his life. Whether this is true or not it is safe to assume that if he had strength and consciousness enough to do it it was done. The celebrated Col. David Crockett was also a victim of this massacre.

The Women of Mexico.

In point of amiability, warmth of manner, and affectionate temperament no women in the world can compare with those of Mexico. Beside them all other appear cold and stiff, and whatever advantages these gentle creatures may derive from their intercourse with foreigners it is sincerely to be hoped they may never lose the graceful cordiality which forms so agreeable a contrast to American and English frigidity. In the eyes of strangers this, together with their sweet voices, is an unfailing charm. In fact a foreigner—especially if he be an American or an Englishman, accustomed to the coldness of his fair countrywomen—need live here no longer than to acquire some smattering of the language and become accustomed to the peculiar style of Mexican beauty to find these senioritas perfectly irresistible. And they in turn are always fascinated by the tall, blonde, and active Anglo-Saxon who is so great a contrast to their own countrymen.

But when a foreigner marries a Mexican woman he ought invariably to settle here, for it is very rare that his wife can live anywhere else. They miss the beautiful climate, and pine for that universal cordiality and warmth of manner by which they have been surrounded in Mexico; they yearn for the lassies—all and absence of all etiquette in habits, toilets, etc. In other countries they find themselves surrounded by women so differently educated as to be doubly strangers. A very few instances have been recorded of Mexican girls who have been married and taken to Europe when very young, who have acquired European ways of thinking and even prefer the land of adoption to their own; but these cases are so rare as scarcely to form exceptions. They are true patriots, for the visible horizon bounds all their wishes. In France, Spain, or Italy they might manage to exist, but in the United States or England they would be as much out of their natural element as fish out of water. An icy climate, not colder than the manners of the people, a harsh language almost impossible to acquire, a religion which they consider heretical, etiquette carried to excess, and insupportable order in the toilet—rebosos unknown, cigars considered barbarous—they feel like exiles from paradise and live only in hopes of return.

If a Mexican girl is ignorant she seldom betrays it. Generally they have the greatest tact, never by any chance wandering beyond their depth or indicating by word or sign that they are not perfectly well informed on the subject under discussion. Though seldom graceful on foot they are never awkward, and always self-possessed. They have plenty of natural talent, and where it has been cultivated no women can surpass them. Of what is called literary society of course there is none. There are, however, a few families of the old school, descendants of titled Spaniards, who are rich without ostentation and highly educated. These select few mingle little in general society, being scarcely known at all to foreigners; and you may be sure they keep their daughters closely at home that they may not be contaminated by bad examples.—City of Mexico letter.

GAIN little knowledge every day; one fact in a day. How small a thing is one fact—one! Ten years pass by. Three thousand six hundred and fifty facts are not a small thing.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bileous Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficent influence of

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health. It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young. As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

WARREN'S FEATHERBONE. It is a standard remedy for all rheumatic and other ailments of the joints, and is sold everywhere. Try it. WARREN'S FEATHERBONE COMPANY, Three Oaks, Mich.

HARTER'S IRON TONIC

Will purify the BLOOD, regulate the LIVER and KIDNEYS and Restore the HEALTH and VIGOR of YOUTH. Dyspepsia, Want of Appetite, Indigestion, Lack of Strength and Tired Feeling absolutely cured. Bones, muscles and nerves receive new force. Enlivens the mind and supplies Brain Power. Suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex will find in Dr. HARTER'S IRON TONIC a safe, speedy cure. Gives a clear, healthy complexion. All attempts at counterfeiting only add to its popularity. Do not experiment—get ORIGINAL AND BEST. (Cure Constipation, Liver Complaint and Sick Headache. Sample Dose and Dream Book mailed on receipt of two cents in postage.) THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH PENNYROYAL PILLS

The Original and Only Genuine. Safe and always Reliable. Beware of worthless imitations. Ladies, ask your Druggist for "Chichester's English" and take no other, or notice to change it. For particulars in letter by return mail. Send for 25¢. CHICHESTER CHEMICAL CO., 3513 Madison Square, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Ask for "Chichester's English" Pennyroyal Pills. Price 25¢.

VALUABLE RECEIPTS 25¢ each, 3 for 50¢. Cure for Dropsy. Cure for Serpentina, cure for Kidney Complaints. Found in Diary of an Eminent Kidney Doctor, now deceased. Address: ADMINISTRATOR, Box 10, Springfield, Ohio.

A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RY

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest—is the only true middle-link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Onkaloo, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unequalled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

ALL EXPRESS TRAINS between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE PARLOR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and—between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kankakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.

All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employees of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly attention.

For Tickets, Maps, Folders—obtainable at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada—or any desired information, address,

R. R. CABLE, Pres't & Gen'l M'g'r, Chicago. E. ST. JOHN, Asst Gen'l M'g'r, Chicago. E. A. HOLBROOK, Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Agt., Chicago.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times."

Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year, in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months ..... 50
Three Months ..... 25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe as second-class matter.

FRIDAY JUNE 3, 1887.

Wool is bringing a good round price.

Walt Cheeseman was in town Tuesday.

We shall publish the new time card next week.

The potato bug crop seems to be a little short this year.

Cash Lounsbury is expected home on a visit in a couple of weeks.

Sure enough, that wedding that we spoke of is coming off along about the 4th of July.

Mrs. David Grosh of Leo, is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Charley Widney this week.

The St. Joe Cornet Band will have an ice cream and strawberry festival in the old orchard in a couple of weeks.

Quite a number turned out last Friday and cleaned the orchard up in good shape. There is still some work to be done before it is in apple pie order.

Two ladies had a narrow escape from being struck by the fast train last Monday morning. They were coming to St. Joe in a buggy, and were within three feet of the track when the train went crashing by.

The Avilla News has changed hands, and it has also changed its appearance wonderfully. Harry L. Askew is the new editor and proprietor, and it looks as if he knew how to get up a newsy paper. We are glad to see our little sister get on a new dress and be somebody.

The Spencerville Owl has been enlarged and otherwise improved until it is quite a newsy little sheet. We have an eagle at the head of our columns, and it is generally considered the king of all birds, but if John's Owl keeps on growing he will soon be able to whollop our eagle.

Mrs. David Grill died at her home in this place, Tuesday evening, May 31st, at 10 o'clock. She has had very poor health for a number of years, but died rather suddenly. Her funeral occurred Thursday in the Lutheran church at Spencerville. A more extended notice will appear next week.

The cadets of the Michigan Military Academy, of which John Leighty is lieutenant, were awarded the first prize of one thousand dollars at the national drill in Washington last week, for being the best drilled company of cadets on the ground. St. Joe has a right to a share of this victory, as we furnished one of the boys that done the business.

Trustee Dermott is putting forth an effort to have a normal school at this place this fall. There is no better location in this part of the county for such a school than right here. St. Joe is a beautiful little village, centrally located, and with good morals, good society, and a good school building, and a normal school here could not help but prove a success and be a credit to the town. Let us have a normal school by all means.

THE OLD SETTLERS

The old settlers of De Kalb county will meet at St. Joe, on Thursday June 16th, 1887, to celebrate the 54th anniversary of the settlement of the county. The meeting will be held in an old orchard grove, near the banks of the St. Joe river, where about 10 years ago, Felt Lyberger, one of the early pioneers, now deceased, built a log cabin, and made for himself and family a home in what was then a wilderness of woods, through which the whoop of the Indian and the howl of the wolf was often heard. After 10 years or more, the old log cabin still stands, although in a dilapidated condition, and at the coming meeting it will serve as a landmark to remind the early pioneers of by-gone days, when the country was new and log cabins were considered a luxury. The people of St. Joe and vicinity are making a special effort to provide every convenience possible for the comfort and enjoyment of those who attend, and a cordial invitation is extended to every old settler in the county, as well as everybody else, to be present on this occasion. The following is the order of exercises for the day: The procession will form at 10 o'clock, and march to the grove, headed by the St. Joe and Jackson Cornet Bands. Meeting called to order by the president. Song by the St. Joe choir. Prayer by Rev. J. M. Langley. Music by bands, Hail Columbia. Song by the Coburntown choir. Address by Rev. N. Crary of Hicksville, Ohio. Recess until 1 o'clock. Music by the St. Joe Cornet Band. Song by the old settlers. Report of officers. Election of officers. Short speeches by old settlers. Song by the St. Joe choir. Doxology and benediction. At 3 o'clock there will be a tub race on the river for which a prize of two dollars will be given to the winner. Following this will be base ball matches, fantastic parades, foot races and many other amusements.

Thursday, June 16th.

Remember the day and date.

Come and bring the whole family with you.

There will be plenty of music in attendance.

The tub races on the river will be quite an attraction.

A number of old settlers from adjoining counties will be present.

There is good fishing on the river, but the catching isn't so very good.

Tell you neighbors and everybody else to come to the old settler's meeting at St. Joe.

The Auburn and Cornma base ball clubs talk of playing two games of ball here on that day.

If the old settler's don't have a good time this year it won't be the fault of the people of St. Joe.

The shade trees and orchard that surround the old log cabin will afford ample shade for everybody.

Persons coming from Waterloo and Auburn can make close connection with the B. & O. at Auburn Junction, as the 9:58 Lake Shore train from the north arrives there a few minutes before the departure of the east bound B. & O. train. Returning the connections are equally as good.

Those from Auburn, Garrett and the western part of the county, who desire to attend the old settler's meeting, and expect to come on the train, will find ample train accommodations. The local arrives here at about 8 o'clock, and the passenger at 10:28. Returning there is a train at 4:30, or if persons desire they can return on the night train, which leaves at 10:45.

WANTED 50 CUSTOMERS

To Buy Our Carpet Samples.

We have a large line of Tapestry, Walton and Body Brussels, Ingrain, and Hemp Carpet Samples which we are closing out for Rugs. We also carry a full line of E. P. Reed & Co's and Godey & Sons' Ladies, Misses and Children's Fine Shoes. Secure a pair of those 75 cent Fine Slippers before they are all gone.

J. D. Leighty, St. Joe Ind.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

PLEASANT HILL.

Willis Baker and wife was over to Auburn Saturday on business.

Wool buyers and dry weather is the order of the day in this section.

Jerry Elm and wife were the guests of Andrew Jackson and family last Sunday.

Gus Hull has been very poorly for a couple of weeks, but is some better at this writing.

Joseph Saylor purchased a corn plow last week; the Saylor farm certainly will produce corn this year.

There will be preaching at the school house next Sunday afternoon at half past two o'clock, by Rev. Langley.

Byron Widley bought a new binder to do his harvesting with. Byron believes in having every thing convenient in the way of farming tools.

CONCORD.

Mrs. M. E. Baker entertained friends last Sunday.

Charley Koch escorted his best girl to church to St. Joe last Sunday evening.

The Sunday school is preparing for Children's day, to be held June 12th, 1887.

Mrs. N. Wasson and Mrs. E. Baker visited with the family of Joseph Koch last Saturday.

Although the morning was stormy, there was quite a number at the Jenken's Cemetery Decoration day.

Lyman Knight started to Chicago last Monday. After his return he expects to attend school in Angola.

The young people of the Christian Endeavor Society, contemplate giving a strawberry social in the near future.

The ladies have purchased the carpet and curtains for the church, and sincerely thank those who so generously donated.

Rev. J. M. Langley, wife and daughter Maude were the guests of F. Buchanan last Tuesday afternoon. Also Richard Ervin and mother last Wednesday, and Misses Ida Koch and Arvilla Draggoo.

Barcus! Barcus! Lend me your ears. Would you believe it? F. B. Chaney shot two crows, all in one day, and at the first shot. (It is sent a owl likely that he hit them, the probably was skart to death, or died of old age.)

We have laid awake of nights and lost our appetite thinking about the item, and cannot tell what there is incomprehensive about it. But of course, the editor of the News cannot. Perhaps grandma Buchanan can make it plain for you.

The insulting and disgraceful conduct of some of the boys around the church when any thing is going on is too contemptible, and there ought to be a stop put to it. Some persons cannot drive up to the house and hear some fine old hymns and ed for them to hear. There is no reason for that of something being done.

Subscribe for the St. Joe News

There are eight passenger trains running over the B. & O. railroad now, every day.

The Y. P. T. L. A. will meet at the residence of Alex. Filley, on Monday evening, June 6th. A good program has been arranged.

We understand that Hank Reynolds has gone into the butchering business at Bellevue, Ohio. Hank will make a cracking good meat slicer and sausage grinder.

Every lady will be interested in the June number of DEMOCRAT'S MONTHLY, as it is an exceedingly interesting one. We know of no magazine better deserving to be called a Family Magazine, and it ought to be found in every household. Published by W. JENNINGS, BIRMINGHAM, 15 East 14th Street, New York.

WOOL WANTED!

100,000 Pounds of Wool Wanted, for which we will pay the highest market value. Also all kinds of country produce wanted. Call and see us.

S. & F. BARNEY.

Miss S. A. Bartlett,

—DEALER IN FINE—

MILLINERY

HATS, BONNETS,

Flowers,
Ribbons,
Feathers,

ORNAMENTS &c.

I invite the attention of the ladies of St. Joe and vicinity to my new stock of Spring and Summer Millinery Goods, comprising the newest and latest styles and shapes. I am constantly receiving new goods, and therefore can please everybody. Give me your patronage. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see my line before making your purchases. Rooms over Dr. Bowman's office, St. Joe, Ind.

MISS S. A. BARTLETT.

—FOR SALE OR TRADE—

One third interest in the Spencer-ville Tile and Saw Mill. Will sell, or trade for a farm or other property. Inquire of, or address W. L. Hollabaugh, St. Joe, Ind.

—LOCALS—

Mr. and Mrs. A. Evans are visiting in Garrett.

The fantastic parade on old settler's day will be immense.

Nels Thomas has been building a barn for Curt Washler.

Several kids from Hicksville were taking in the town yesterday.

Strawberries with good rich cream won't go bad. Yum, yum.

Simon Wineland received two car loads of logs by rail yesterday.

We were compelled to issue another supplement this week. Read it.

S. & F. Barney sacked a car load of wool at Maysville yesterday.

Read what J. Emanuel & Son's of Spencer-ville, have to say in the supplement.

Shutt & White are agents for the Champion Binder, and they are selling lots of them.

If you are needing any thing in way of Clocks, Watches or Jewelry, call at the drug store.

Wm. Volmer has added several improvements to his residence until it looks like a new place.

The Jackson Cornet Band will give a festival at Boot's grove on Saturday evening June 11th, 1887.

The St. Joe band plays well, considering the many changes that have been made in it, in the last few months.

Rev. E. Cray, the speaker on old settler's day is said to be a good talker and will no doubt deliver an interesting address.

The new passenger trains are quite an accommodation to the traveling public. If we just had one going west in the morning; that would strike us, exactly.

The band gave a street parade last Saturday evening.

Subscribe for the News. Only 25 cents for three months.

Miss Bartlett is constantly receiving new millinery goods.

S. & F. Barney shipped their first car of wool last week.

Rev. Fryberger delivered the memorial address at Butler last Monday.

Mrs. Zern has the finest collection of flowers we have seen this spring.

John Davis is hauling in quite a lot of piling for the B. & O. rail road.

There were a good many people in town last Saturday, and our merchants kept busy.

Garrett and Auburn dated together in the observance of Decoration day. That was neighborly.

Quite a number of our people attended the memorial service at Spencer-ville last Sunday afternoon.

Large stock of dress goods and trimmings at Case & Olds. Get your dresses ready for the old settler's meeting.

Jake Dermott was out on the lakes near Elkhart fishing the fore part of the week. Jake says he caught about forty pounds.

The next thing upon the program for St. Joe will be the old settler's meeting, and let everybody take hold of it and make things hum.

Of course you will want a new dress before the old settler's meeting, and the place to get it is at Case & Olds. They carry the largest stock.

Now that school is out the small boy will have nothing to do but to go in swimming, and come home with his shirt on wrong side out.

One of our citizens thought he heard it thunder the other evening but came to find out it was O. H. Widney indulging in one of his hearty laughs.

Down they go! Moquette Velvet Polish Lounges, trimmed in old gold for $8.50. Screen Doors for $1.50 to $2.50, at Kinsey's Furniture Store St. Joe, Ind.

Free Zeigler made a handsome set of dog harness for S. S. Widney last week. Vester's old dog "Fam" will feel "kinder stuck up" when she gets on her new harness.

Geo. Ables is canvassing this neighborhood for Dr. Chase's latest receipt book. This is a good work and we are glad to know that George is meeting with success in the sale of the book.

Chris Curie has had five children attending school this winter, and during the seven months, not one of them were either absent or tardy except one day. Who can beat that?

The children in the primary department of our schools had a picnic dinner on the last day of school and had a very pleasant time as children always do on such occasions. The little ones spoke some very cute pieces.

Some one was telling us that Ad Chubb had been putting some shingles on one of his out buildings, and he got them all on with the butt ends of the shingles up. Adam must be getting a little loony.

The De Kalb County Sunday School Convention will be held at Waterloo, on the 14th and 15th of this month. A good program has been prepared, and it is desired that as many of the Sunday school workers as possible be present. The people of Waterloo are preparing to entertain those who attend in a royal manner.

STUBBORN FACTS.

The Champion is sold under the strongest warranty to be the well, with ease to the driver and the team, to be well made of the quality of material, to be more durable and less liable to get out of pair than any other binder made. Since its first introduction the Champion has been the most successful of all harvesting machines. To the well-to-do farmer, who is willing to pay a fair price on fair terms of credit for first-class implement, we offer the Champion Binder as the best and cheapest machine in the market. For prices, terms &c. call on

SHUTT & WHITE.

A Clock or a Watch Given Away

to draw trade is not legitimate business, and we do not intend to make such an offer, but if you will call at the Drugstore, we will show you a nice line of Clocks, Watches, the latest and very handsomest styles of Lace Rings, Necklaces, Seal Rings, Cuff and Collar Buttons, Chains, Chains Chains, at prices that cannot help but please.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining, Glazing Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. E. A. WOODCOX. Call and see me, or leave orders at the St. Joe Drugstore.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencer-ville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

ST. JOE MARKETS.

CORRECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat	81 cts.
Oats	29 cts.
Corn	40 cts.
Butter	10 cts.
Eggs	10 cts.
Tallow	31 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	60 cts.
Smoked Hams	10 cts.
Shoulders and Side Meat	8 cts.

GARD OF THANKS.

We desire to return our sincere thanks to the citizens of St. Joe, who so kindly aided us in the sickness and death of our nephew, Joseph Barr, and especially to Dr. Bowman, S. Barney, J. D. Leighty, A. Kinsey, P. P. Shuler and William Leighty. May the blessing of God be with you all through life is the prayer of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Bodey.

Rev. Fryberger went to Kendall-ville Tuesday.

The county commissioners were in town Tuesday. They better establish a branch office over here, as they seem to be over in this part of the county quite often of late.

Report of school district No. 3, in Concord township, for the month ending May 28th, 1887. Number of pupils enrolled during the month 23; average daily attendance 24. Names of those neither absent nor tardy during the month: Charley Gibford, John Uhn, Hattie Ricketts, Roy Gibford, Belle Melton, Orange Draggoo, Nealie Gibford, Cecil Shilling, Charley Ricketts, John Draggoo, Mary Layman and Walter Uhn. Addie Widney, Teacher.

STAR WIND ENGINE

TAKES THE LEAD

E. A. WANENAKER, NEWVILLE, IND., Has the agency for this county. Send him, or write for prices on Wind Mills, Pumps, Pipe &c. A special feature of the Star Wind Engine is Regulator. See it before you buy.

Commissioner Holdovar O. H. Widney is grandfather. Let the people rejoice and let the manufacturers safely pins be glad. Toosday morning we noticed the "News" Widney was dodging around town in an unusual manner, but we didn't think anything of it until about noon when we saw the honorable commissioner himself coming up street carrying a wood headed cane, an holding his head to count the spots on the sun. Then we began to see thru it. Its a boy, and the awl doing well, especshally Grandfather Widney. Barcus Q. Hippenhammer

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

BY BEN: PENLEY POORE.

The winter before the inauguration of Gen. Harrison as President, Gen. and Mrs. Gaines delivered a joint lecture in several of the Atlantic cities. The General, who spoke first, explained his system of national defense, which he illustrated by means of maps and diagrams. The plan consisted of two distinct propositions: First, to connect the Central and Western States with the seaboard and frontiers by a chain of railroads, which he proposed should be constructed by the army of the United States. These would afford means for the rapid transportation, in time of war, of men, munitions, military stores, and all the material required for attack and defense, both by land and water; and would also serve, in times of peace, for the promotion of internal commerce, by the interchange of the products of different sections of the Union. If its former commercial prosperity shall return to our country, we may reasonably anticipate that this portion of the General's system will be supplied by individual enterprise, and the means at the disposal of the different States.

His second proposition was to construct, in each of our important seaports, a number of floating batteries, to be moved, by steam towboats, and thus turned and shifted at will to meet an attacking foe at all points. By batteries of sufficient capacity, and yet not so large as to be unmanageable, he estimated that two broadsides might be fired in the space of three minutes, or 1,800 shots discharged in six minutes! He urged with great earnestness that it was the art of wisdom and sound policy to endeavor to keep pace with the advanced spirit of the age; and that it was necessary to our national security that we should avail ourselves of the improved agencies of steam navigation as a means of national resistance and defense. Gen. Gaines spoke for about an hour and a quarter, and was listened to with marked attention.

Mrs. Gaines then ascended the platform and commenced her address, reading from a paper she held in her hand. She began with a vindication of her position from the charges of what might seem to be a departure from the appropriate sphere of her sex, whose chief duties are properly considered to lie in the domestic circle.

She pleaded as her excuse the higher obligation of obedience to her "liege lord" in whose presence she stood, and declared with confidence that if a jury of her own sex were to be selected from the audience to try her for the offence, their unanimous verdict would be "acquitted." Mrs. Gaines then proceeded to descant upon her chosen theme, and drew from the pages of the world's history a vivid picture of "the horrors of war." The dreadful destruction of human life at different periods, in battles and sieges, marches and retreats, was exhibited in a concise and rapid sketch, the terrors of the carnage, the scene presented after a battle, the heaps of the slain, the dying and the wounded. "Rider and horse, friend, foe in one red burial blend," and all the accidental horrors of war were depicted with all the warmth of a glowing and cultivated fancy, with all the intensity of a woman's feeling. "We can weep," she indignantly exclaimed, "over a tale of imaginary sorrow, concocted by some hungry, starving novel writer, and yet we have no sigh to breathe, no tear to shed, at the recital of heart-rending calamities and miseries which we know to be real."

Before Daniel Webster purchased his estate at Marshfield he used to go there every summer with a small party of friends, and "rough it" in a rude shanty, erected for the accommodation of duck shooters and fishermen. There, before the door of the hut, might have been seen, about the hour of sunset, a stout-looking, dark-visaged, hard-featured man, with a shaggy roundabout upon his back, and a coarse tarpaulin hat, that looked rather the worse for wear, upon his head, squatted upon a stone, and with a handful of sand scouring out an old chowder pot, which the last user had been so careless as to leave a little less cleanly than it should have been. Shortly after the same hand was seen to be sprinkling pepper and salt upon the fruits of that day's expedition, as they simmered in the pot over the crackling fire. He was evidently the prominent man of the party; and after the savory viands had been despatched and the clothless board, with the keen appetite and smacking relish that hunters only can appreciate, his were the apt fingers that wiped the platters fastest; and as they sat around the comfortable blaze of the snapping brushwood, from his prolific lips flowed the countless stories at which they stared hardest and laughed loudest. Not about tariffs and banks and such matters of State, which in those times of political excitement men were most apt to talk about; had the story-teller prattled; his anecdotes were of matters of less importance, perhaps, but infinitely more entertaining to the hard-fisted, fun-loving fishermen, and farmers who were his companions. And when "nature's sweet restorer" called them to their beds, he was the first, if not the loudest, to snore; and at daylight he was the foremost to make ready the morning repast, by scraping in the sand, outside the hut, the knives which the evening past had furnished. His name was Daniel Webster; his station, Secretary of the United States of America; his home, wherever he chanced to be, in a fisherman's hut or a King's palace, among his cattle or at the Capitol.

The Washington correspondents were greatly troubled, during the war, by the censorship, and they studied diligently how to circumvent it. Just before the capture of Fort Fisher, and when the news of its fall would naturally have had an effect upon the stock market, one of the correspondents went to New York in order to be on hand when the opportunity came to buy or to sell. A friend at Washington was to telegraph him when Fort Fisher fell that "The child is very sick," and, to make doubly sure, the dispatch was to be signed "Mary." This neat little arrangement completely deceived the censor when Fort Fisher was captured, and the dispatch was promptly sent.

The censor boarded at Willard's Hotel. There, also, boarded the wife and three children of the enterprising journalist. The censor was personally acquainted with the journalist and his family, and on the day that he had passed the dispatch, he approached the lady and asked, "How is the child?" "What child? all my children are well," replied she. "All well?" said the censor. "Perfectly well." "Excuse me, madam," asked the censor, "but is your name Mary?" "No, sir, it is not, and why do you ask?" The censor gave a low whistle, and replied: "Oh, for no reason in particular." "But you must have a reason for such a question."

Driven to the wall, and suspecting all sorts of naughty things, with the deceived woman before him, what could he do? He had to do something, and he made a clean breast of it. He told the lady that somebody, named "Mary," had that day telegraphed to her husband in New York that the child was very sick, and supposing, of course, the telegram could only have been sent by her, he ventured to ask as to the condition of the young invalid.

Here was a pretty kettle of fish. Who was "Mary," and where was she? Had the wicked journalist another wife and some children hidden away? Evidently so. The wicked journalist, meanwhile, head and ears in stock operations at New York, received another dispatch. It was not this time a cipher, but, on the contrary, exceedingly plain, and from his better-half. He returned to Washington by the next train, and by the help of the genuine "Mary" succeeded, after some difficulty, in convincing the partner of all his woes and joys that he had not been faithless to his marriage vows.

DR. WOOSTER BEACH, writing of the death penalty and the proper mode of carrying it out with a view of causing painless death, concludes that if we wish to take life by hanging in the most speedy, certain and, painless manner, we must adopt the plan of putting the rope around the neck of the man and slowly drawing him up; instead of the "drop" method now in use; but in this slow suspension method "it is important that the noose be carefully placed, so that on tightening it shall constrict the parts necessary to entirely cut off respiration; that it is just above the larynx." Chloroform, prussic acid poisoning, fatal electric shocks, and other methods have been proposed as substitutes for hanging, but until the death penalty shall have been abolished, or some other method than hanging adopted, it is well to study and make known the most "scientific" way of doing it. Bungling the operation is unnecessary brutality.—Dr. Foote's Health Monthly.

BONES OF FRANCISCO PIZARRO.

They Lie on a Moldy Shelf Under a Fine Old Cathedral in Lima.

The interior of this cathedral is divided lengthwise into seven spaces or aisles—those next either wall being railed off as chapels, about thirteen in all, wherein are the altars, the shrines, the pictures, and the statuary, says a correspondent of the Argonaut, writing of an old cathedral in Lima, Peru. The roof is supported by a series of arches resting against the side walls and upon the columns. The choir is partitioned off by itself in the middle building, containing the singers, the instruments, and the wonderful organ. Beyond the choir is the glittering chancel, with its jewels and pictures and burning candles; with its costly hangings of silken and velvet draperies, their folds fastened to the roof—175 feet above—while their gaudy fringe brushes the adobe floor; and with the lecterns, the seats for the priests, and the bishop's throne. Midway between the chancel and the choir, set against a massive column, about fifteen feet from the floor, and reached by a narrow stairway, is the richly carved pulpit—supported by a solid pillar of pure silver five inches in diameter. When it is further considered that the other interior details are worked out with minute elaboration and delicacy—witness the wonderful carving in rich woods, in marble, and in bronze; the windows of rare stained glass, and the walls and ceiling most beautifully frescoed with scenes depicting memorable events in scripture—possibly a strong imagination may boldly forth something of this great cathedral.

A celebrated painting by Monteros, representing "The Obsequies of Atahualpa," held a place of honor here for many years, being esteemed by Limeños as something sacred. It was stolen by the Chilians and sent to Santiago. There is little left now of the beautiful sculpture and statuary from the hands of the noted Ayacucho sculptor, Medina, whose works excited so much admiration during the exposition, all of them having been sent to Chili. Before the late war this cathedral was one of the richest in gold and silver decorations and ornaments in the world. Built in the sixteenth century—Pizarro's old cathedral having been razed to the ground—it was enlarged, enriched, and adorned during the subsequent centuries until the fatal year of 1879, when Peru became involved in the disastrous conflict with Chili. It was literally a massive store-house of precious metals and gems—a second Temple of the Sun, and a magnificent prize for the needy Chilians. Upon the occupation of Lima in 1881 it was the first place levied upon, being stripped entirely of its richest treasures, the silver pillar supporting the pulpit excepted, that object of cupidity being so firmly fixed as to defy all attempt at removal, and accordingly it was reluctantly suffered to remain. Another act of these marauders was to despoil the greater portion of Lima's famous National library—the building is situated one square to the eastward of the cathedral—which contained many thousands of rare old volumes and manuscripts. This was a most dastardly proceeding, and is only paralleled by the destruction of the Alexandrine library by the fanatical followers of Mahomet many centuries ago.

In the catacombs beneath are the embalmed remains of the great Francisco Pizarro, transferred from the old cathedral in the year 1607. They lie on a moldy shelf beside the body of the good Viceroy Mendoza. His bones are fast crumbling to dust, and the few remaining pieces of skin which yet cling to them, dry and withered as they are, are fast disappearing under the inroads of those lunatics-at-large—relic-hunters.

The Type-writer Girl.

No man is a hero to his type-writer girl. The nature of the unflattering information which she finds out about him may differ quite from that which men's valets used to find out, in the time when men had valets, but it is just as fatal to an ideal. The ever-present amanuensis's watchful eye, her ear that no syllable escapes, take in all his little weaknesses and jot them down indelibly in a mental notebook. She sees his mind, which the world takes to be brilliantly and swiftly constructive, struggling in its paltry workshop, and she knows where he goes to borrow a good many of his tools; she listens to his faltering tongue while it painfully evolves utterances afterward to be bartered to the world under the glittering label extempore; she knows his procrastinations and his petty cowardices in dealing with his correspondence, and has seen him shy away again and again, under pretexts too hollow to deceive her, from some matter which he could easily face if he chose to; she has been the victim, now and then, of his little impatiences. In short, she sees through the mask of pretense that deceives the world, and her knowledge is destructive to any aureole of greatness that her imagination may have formed about him before she had the opportunity to study him at short range.—Boston Transcript.

Cigarette-Smoking New York Girls.

Cigarette smoking is almost as prevalent among the girls as among the youths of New York. A certain popular actress is such an incessant smoker that her fingers are almost stained black from the burning tobacco and rice paper. She smokes cigars when cigarettes are not handy. She is positively addicted to the weed, so much so that she always smokes at the dinner-table. For a long time I noticed little spots of fire late in the evening in the windows on the opposite side of the street in which I lived. At last I saw the two spots of fire close together in one of the windows, and ripples of female laughter reached me from that particular window. I strained my eyes and saw that the two spots of fire as well as the laughter were produced by two girls. The spots, I may explain, were the lighted ends of cigarettes. I was not long in finding out that the other spots in the block indicated the presence of girls smoking cigarettes. They were taking their puffs on the quiet. They had put out the lights so that they could not be seen, and stuck their heads out of the windows so that the fumes would be carried away. Not all the girl smokers buy their cigarettes ready-made. Many have become so adroit in making them that they buy tobacco and rice paper and roll them themselves. They smoke the mild, aromatic Turkish tobacco, and there are a dozen places where they can step in and buy either cigarettes made up, or tobacco and paper. Some make no bones that the purchases are for themselves, while others, who have not grown blase, say they want them for their brothers, in the innocent belief that they fool the clerks. Several kinds of cigarettes are made with mouth-pieces, largely for the purpose of catching female trade. Rice paper sticks to the lips. The mouth-pieces, which are made of heavily calendered paper, do not. The manufacture of cigarettes is increasing, but only because the demand is increasing. Three or four huge factories have recently been put up in New York.

Family Quarrels.

I have no respect for the woman who runs around among her neighbors and friends talking about her husband's shortcomings and the various points of difference between him and herself. And I have great contempt for the man who is giving to airing his matrimonial grievances abroad. No third party can adjust the differences that may exist between a man and his wife. If he and she cannot settle their own affairs they must go unsettled. There is nothing more destructive to the peace and happiness of a home than the daily little bickerings and bits of fault-finding in which so many husbands and wives indulge. Of course there are the "blue Monday" sort of days, when nothing goes right, and a spirit of evil seems to have taken possession of the entire household.

Such days come to best regulated families. It is human nature. It is an out-cropping of our innate tendency to go wrong at times. Sometimes I am glad that such days come to our house, for we are all so happy after we have "kissed, and made up" all round. I never say anything when I hear husbands and wives declare that in all the ten, fifteen, or twenty years of their married lives they never had "a single cross word." I keep mum because I hate to tell them I don't believe what they say, and I just don't believe it. We are not angels, and only angels could live that way. But, whatever our differences, do let us keep them to ourselves. Disaster follows in the wake of the man or woman who tells to the world his or her quarrels with John or Mary. Mum is the word.—Good Housekeeping.

Traps for Americans.

An American gentleman who for many years past has been established in business in Paris, received one day a call from a handsomely-dressed female in whom he recognized a notorious American member of the demi-monde of Paris, says a writer in the Philadelphia Telegraph. She came, she said to propose to him a lucrative business transaction. She had in her possession a list of sundry highborn and titled gentlemen who wished to marry rich American girls, and she displayed such a list inscribed with some of the proud names of the French aristocracy. If my countryman would inform her of the arrival in Paris of any healthy American ladies, and of the presumed amount of their fortunes, she would, on the accomplishment of a marriage between any one of these and one of her clients, at once pay over to him half of her stipulated percentage on the dowry, which in her case was to amount to 10 per cent. It is needless to say that the woman's offer was refused. But the very fact of its being made showed how widespread is the system of the matrimonial agency in Paris and how extensive and elaborate must be its arrangements for obtaining information.

There is an Austrian gentleman moving in the best society of Paris whom I strongly suspect of being one of the secret and accredited agents of one of these establishments. He tried hard, but in vain, some years ago, to bring about a match between the daughter and only child of a wealthy American gentleman, then visiting this city, and a French duke of ancient family. The duke turned out finally to be an impostor, and was forced to take flight from Paris. Employees of the agencies are also to be found at the principal hotels here. They are usually women, generally bear high-sounding titles, and are pleasant of manner and affable of bearing. Their business is to make acquaintance with rich Americans who have daughters, so that the daughters aforesaid may be presented to impetuous adventurers on the lookout to repair their fortunes by marriage. The matter is very adroitly managed, an opera or a theater party, or a little dance being gotten up by the amiable French lady to amuse her sweet, new, young friend, the luckless damsel whose dollars, real or rumored, have caused her to be selected as a fitting victim. At the dance or at the theater the introduction takes place and the fascinations of the gentleman are supposed to do the rest. Very often, indeed, the promoter of the whole series of maneuvers is not connected with any agency whatever, but is acting on her own account.

The Cowardice of Animals.

Not long since the writer saw Mr. Thompson, a dealer in live animals, open a box containing an anaconda, take the reptile by the throat, and calmly examine its mouth, opened though it was in rage, to look for cancerous tumors. Then from adjoining shelves he took python after python, each about ten feet long, and examined them in like manner. Only last week at the place of another dealer—Reiche—a big, powerful Syrian bear, a type known for its ferocity, was subdued without the firing of a shot. The bear broke through iron bars half an inch thick, and, standing up with his back against a cage of monkeys, thrust his terrible paw threateningly toward three keepers gathered about him. He didn't have a chance to use them, however, for he was belabored with clubs until glad to get back again into his cage.

On a pedestal near the gate of the Cincinnati zoological gardens there recently stood the stuffed figure of a donkey which, when alive, stood the attack of a lion and beat him off. The lion, it seems, had broken out of his cage and escaped to a wood near by. On a grassy hillock adjoining, a donkey lay stretched in placid slumber—a slumber that was rudely disturbed by the lion, who, in a few bounds was upon him. When the donkey felt the great mass of flesh descend upon him as if from the clouds, he was stunned and indignant, but not frightened, perhaps because he had never read any of the wonderful stories about the lion. He quickly recovered from the blow, and, rising, shot out both hind feet at the same time and caught the lion squarely in the forehead. Badly hurt, the lion skulked off and later the donkey died of the wound he received at the onset. —Scientific American.

Disease and Death

Force their way into many a household that might be protected from their inroads, by the simple precaution of keeping in the house that benign family medicine and safeguard of health, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Particularly where there are children, should it be kept on hand, as a prompt remedy for infantile complaints, in their outset easily conquerable, but which, if allowed to engraft themselves on the delicate childish organism, are not easily dislodged, and speedily work grievous mischief. Irregularity of the bowels, indigestion and biliousness, are ailments of common occurrence in the household. Children living in malarious regions are more liable to be attacked with chills and fever than adults, and the ravages of that fell disease in their system are speedier and more serious. In remote localities, far from professional aid, it is especially desirable.

Primitive Currency.

Schweinfurth has mentioned that toy hose are used as money by the Niam-Niams, of Africa. Tippoo Tip now describes a remarkable tribe of skilled copper-workers on the Congo, among whom copper spears form the standard of value. Enormous spear-heads, some six feet in length, serve as "currency." Like bank notes with us, these spears are given a conventional value, the large ones, though of small intrinsic worth, being reckoned at one thousand dollars in the purchase of ivory.

What the Doctor Said.

Patient—Well, doctor, how's my pulse?

Doctor (counting)—One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, king, queen, jack.

Patient—What, doctor, what of you doing?

Doctor—Beg pardon. Sixteen, seventeen, eighteen—a very bad case, sir.

Patient—Yes, I should think so. Er—how long have you been affected this way?—Judge.

"The Blood Is the Life."

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution will be established.

Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch or eruption, to the worst scrofula or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing salt-rheum or tetter, fever-sores, hip-joint disease, scrofulous sores and swellings, enlarged glands, and eating ulcers.

Golden Medical Discovery cures consumption (which is scrofula of the lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating, and nutritive properties. For weak lungs, spitting of blood, shortness of breath, bronchitis, severe coughs, asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. It promptly cures the severest coughs.

For torpid liver, biliousness, or "Liver Complaint," dyspepsia, and indigestion, it is an unequalled remedy. Sold by druggists.

A GLASGOW physician reports a curious experience of a patient of his who was troubled seriously with foul eructations from the stomach. Early one morning he lighted a match to see the time and in blowing out the match his breath caught fire, burning his lips and giving him terrible surprise. Probably the gases formed in his stomach were chemically analogous to the inflammable gases formed in coal pits.—Dr. Foote's Health Monthly.

TAKE all the sorrows out of life, and you take away all richness, and depth, and tenderness. Sorrow is the furnace that melts selfish hearts together in love.

Delicate diseases of either sex radically cured. Send 10 cents in stamps for book. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

WORKING for bare life—Making clothes for a new baby.

WE would be pleased to know of a man or woman who has never had headache or been subject to constipation. As these seem to be universal troubles a little advice may be in order. Why should persons crani their stomachs with nauseating purgative pills, etc., which sicken and debilitate when such a pleasant and sterling remedy as Peck's Ash Bitters will act mildly and effectively on the liver, kidney, stomach, and bowels, and at the same time tone and strengthen the whole system, causing headache, constipation and all such distressing evils to quickly disappear.

A LAWN party is pleasant enough until it begins to rain. Then it becomes a forlorn party.

PURE Cod Liver Oil made from selected livers, on the seashore, by Hazard, Hazard & Co., New York. It is absolutely pure and sweet. Patients who have once taken it prefer it to all others. Physicians have decided it superior to any of the other oils in market.

STAY of good breeding—Getting the prize at a dog show.

A 5-column Newspaper outfit for $25 spot cash. The greatest bargain ever offered in printing material. Address, Box 221, Fort Wayne, Ind.

A VETERAN, Mr. George McKona, Ashburnham, Mass., writes: "While suffering with chronic rheumatism (result of Andersonville), I used St. Jacobs Oil which gave immediate relief." Sold by Druggists and Dealers.

HOW OFTEN you see a country tavern with the sign hanging outside on the inn side.

CARLOTTA SCHOENRICH, Captain Oriole Yacht Club, Baltimore, Md., writes: "The Club, during practice cruise, used St. Jacobs Oil and it cured several cases of sprains and bruises." Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere.

A Wise Child.

Mother—Tommy, how are you coming on at school?

Tommy—First-rate, ma.

"Mention the names of some of the domestic animals."

"The horse, the dog, the pig."

"Mention some more, Tommy."

"The goose, the hen, and the duck."

"Yes, I was thinking of four-legged animals. What animal is that which lives mostly in the house, but which often makes a dreadful noise so that people cannot sleep?"

"Four-legged animal?"

"Yes."

"Don't let people sleep?"

"Yes."

Tommy, triumphantly—The piano.—Texas Siftings.

SICK and bilious headache, and all derangements of stomach and bowels, cured by Dr. Pierce's "Pillules"—or anti-bilious granules. 25 cents a vial. No cheap boxes to allow waste of virtue. By druggists.

"GOOD-BY, sweet tart, good-by!" sang the baker's apprentice when his master discharged him.

She Is the Idol of My Heart.

Well, then, why don't you do something to bring back the roses to her cheeks and the light to her eyes? Don't you see she is suffering from nervous debility, the result of female weakness?

A bottle of Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic will brighten those pale cheeks and send new life through that wasted form. If you love her, take heed.

Locate

In a Live Town. Cash bonus paid to all kinds of manufacturing enterprises. Live men in all kinds of businesses wanted. Address BANK OR VALLEY, Valley, Douglas Co., Nebraska.

NO OPIMUM in Piso's Cure for Consumption. Cures where other remedies fail. 25c.

It Is Economy

To buy Hood's Sarsaparilla, for in it you get more real value for the money than in any other medicine. A bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla contains 100 Doses and lasts a month, while others will average to last not over a week, and the superior curative powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are also well known. Hence for economy, purity, strength and health buy Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"All I ask of any one is to try one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and see its quick effect. It takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." Mrs. C. A. M. HUBBARD, North Chitt. N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1.00 per bottle. Prepared by C. L. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

JONES
PAYS THE FREIGHT
5 Ton Wagon Scales,
Iron Bolts, Steel Rebar, Brass
Tare Beam and Beam Box for $60.
Where else Scale. For free price list send this paper and address
JONES OF BINGHAMTON
BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use
in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

Miss B. Stevenor's
PENSIONS. Metropolitan Block,
Chicago, Ill.
DETECTIVES

Wanted in every County. Shrewd men to act under our instructions in our Secret Service. Experience not necessary. Send stamp for particulars. GRANNAN DETECTIVE BUREAU, 41 Arcade, Cincinnati, O.

PILES
Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is a sure cure for blind, bleeding or itching piles. Cure guaranteed. Price 50c and $1. At druggists or mailed by Wabbling, Kinnun & Martin, Wholesale Agents, Toledo, Ohio.

RUPTURE
If you want relief and cure at your home, send for Dr. J. A. Sherman's circular of instructions. 291 Broadway, New York.

FRECKLES PIMPLES, TAN, TETTER, etc., all removed and complexion made beautiful by our CHAMPION CHEMICAL COMPOUND. Sent by mail for 50 cents. Address C. C. CHEMICAL CO., SPONGFIELD, OHIO.

PATENTS R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Inventions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 17 years' experience.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $150. FREE. Time not under the horse's foot. Address Brewster's Safety Rein Holder, Holly, Mich.

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females, at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in nicely adapting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of woman's peculiar maladies.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful remedy ever devised for the relief and cure of suffering women. It is not recommended as a "Secret," but as a most perfect Specific for woman's peculiar ailments.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and to the womb and its appendages in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. For morning sickness, or nausea, from whatever cause arising, weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia and kindred symptoms, its use, in small doses, will prove very beneficial.

"Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhoea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

As a regulator and promoter of functional action, at that critical period of change from girlhood to womanhood, "Favorite Prescription" is a perfectly safe remedial agent, and can produce only good results. It is equally efficacious and valuable in its effects when taken for those disorders and derangements incident to that later and most critical period, known as "The Change of Life."

"Favorite Prescription" is when taken in connection with the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and small laxative doses of Dr. Pierce's Purgative Pills (Little Liver Pills), cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder diseases. Their combined use also removes blood taints, and abolishes cancerous and scrofulous humors from the system.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Large bottles (100 doses) $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

For large, illustrated Treatise on Diseases of Women (160 pages, paper-covered), send ten cents in stamps. Address.

World's Dispensary Medical Association,

663 Main St., BUFFALO, N. Y.

Import Station CHICAGO, ILL. Winner of Sweepstakes Premium at the Great Percheron Show at the Ill. State Fair, held in Chicago Sept. 1885. Property of

W. L. ELLWOOD,

IMPORTER AND BREEDER OF

PERCHERON HORSES.

The Largest Breeding Establishment of Pure Blood Percherons in the United States. Five hundred head of Pure Blood and Grades now on hand, a large number of which were imported in July, 1885, and another large importation of from 150 to 200 head will arrive about the middle of October. Visitors always welcome, come and see them. I handle nothing but the best, and take pride in showing stock.

Location, DE KALB, ILL.

15 miles west of Chicago, on Omaha Div. C. & N. W. Ry. Send for Catalogue.

Or others, who wish to examine on advertising space when in Chicago, will find it at

45 to 49 Randolph St.,

the Advertising Agency of

LORD & THOMAS.

PENSIONS COLLECTED and increased by Fitzgerald & Powell, Indianapolis, Ind. Offices everywhere. Send for copy of Laws, free.

N. U. F. W. No. 23-87.

When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

SMILES TO THE FRONT.

Contrive to Look Happy, Regardless of Your Individual Feelings.
(Boston Globe.)

Among army people an order is obeyed implicitly and unquestionably. If the commanding officer orders "sappers and miners to the front," or women and baggage to the rear," "theirs not to reason why, theirs but to do or die," and in this way victories are won and good order maintained. What a delightful thing it would be if some cheerful commander should cry out with stentorian voice, "frowns to the rear," "smiles to the front," upon our streets and highways and byways.

There is a good bit of Christian science, or philosophy, in looking happy, regardless of your individual feelings. Why should we draw down our faces and purse up our lips, or render others uncomfortable because we chance to be? It is wonderful to watch the effect of one bright spirit, even in a horse-car. Every one is solemn. The banker, who is one of the most agreeable men in the world in his own house, is meditating, with a frown on his handsome face. Some stock is booming and he is thinking seriously of his next move. The lawyer, with his bag, gives a sharp look about the car, produces his nickel, and proceeds to bite his mustache, looking judicially grave. The woman opposite scans her neighbor and settles herself down with hard lines on her face. There is no one there she knows. Why should she care? And so it is in all the cars. People look like victims going to the dentist, or mourners at a funeral, where they must go, but do so under protest. Now let a bright man enter with a smile on his face, a cheery word on his lips as he gives the conductor his fare, and a show of amiability which touches every one; what happens? Faces begin to shorten, smiles peep out like shy snowdrops after a hard winter, and every one, no one knows quite why, feels happier. Cheerfulness is contagious, and as the world wags on and we each have our pilgrim's pack, seen or unseen, upon our backs, why not smile and make the best of things?

A school of expression for the human countenance might benefit all mankind, and react upon the physical condition of prosperity. As a devout believer in cheerfulness and hopefulness, the Globe invites all its readers to cast aside the Puritan grimness born of hardship, fear, and necessity, and in its place cultivate the presence which attracts, the amiability which endures, and the goodness of heart which finds something to be grateful for every day and something worth living for. In short, let us have cheerful faces to the front.

MORGANATIC MARRIAGES.

For centuries past the rule rigidly enforced by successive crowned heads of Europe has been that members of their families shall not marry out of a certain boundary, that is, shall always marry members of their own or a few other royal families. If ever a prince or princess, yielding to the natural influence of affection, should marry out of this select circle, such a union is not recognized by any of the exclusively "illustrious" persons who belong to it. The marriage may have been solemnized in the most regular manner by a duly-qualified clergyman, but the etiquette of royalty declares that it is null and void from first to last, and that its fruits shall be illegitimate. So much recognized is this exclusive and unnatural restriction that all such marriages are called morganatic, a Germanized term, derived from morgen, morning, and gift, a gift, alluding to a dowry which used to be paid the morning after a marriage, when this dowry was given and received in lieu of all other dowry, and also of rights of inheritance that might fall to the issue of such marriages. Sometimes it is called a left-handed marriage, probably because it was believed that the royal personage contracting it gave the golden ring to the bride with the left hand, and not, as in all other cases, with the right. Any person not of blood-royal, who contracts such a marriage, knows, beforehand, that he or she is not to be publicly recognized as husband and wife, and that the children from such a marriage can neither enjoy the rank nor inherit the possessions of the superior party.—Boston Cultivator.

WORK OF NATURE'S SCULPTOR.

We are accustomed to associate such gigantic water-carvings as the Colorado canon and the Niagara gorge with almost inconceivable periods of time, yet instances are numerous of the wearing from the solid rock of gorges hundreds of feet deep by two or three centuries only of work. Lyell mentions the case of the Simeto, in Sicily, which had been dammed by lavas in 1503. In two and a half centuries it had excavated a channel fifty to several hundred feet deep, and in some parts forty to fifty feet wide, although the rock is a hard basalt. He also describes a gorge in decomposed rock, near Milledgeville, Ga., that was at first a mud-crack a yard deep, but which, in twenty-years, was 300 yards long, twenty to 180 feet wide, and fifty-five feet deep; and Liais describes a similar gorge, of twice the length, in Brazil, made in forty years. But it is in the low lands bordering rivers that the flood-artist finds the plastic material that may be molded with each passing season. With high water, the streams rapidly wear into earthly banks, commencing new bends or cutting off old ones, and even opening new channels for discharge. The great and turbulent Hoang-Ho is noted for its devastations, says Dana. In 1850 it emptied into the Yellow Sea; now the mouth is dry, and it has a new channel opening to the Gulf of Pechele, nearly 300 miles north of its former outlet, and it departed from the old channel more than this distance from the coast. This is the last of many changes, back and forth, recorded by the Chinese during the past 3,000 years.

SHOWN BY THE LAST CENSUS.

The total population of the union, as given in round numbers, is, males, 25,518,000; females, 24,036,000.

Of the blind there were 26,000 males and 22,000 females. In proportion there should have been 24,000 blind women.

There were of idiots 45,000 males and 31,000 females. In proportion there should have been 36,000 female idiots.

In almshouses there were 35,000 men and 31,000 women. In proportion there should have been 33,000 pauper women.

Of the deaf mutes there were 18,000 males and 15,000 females. In proportion there should have been 17,000 deaf-mute women.

In prisons there were 54,000 men and 5,000 women. To maintain the proportion there should have been 50,000 women in prison, or ten times as many as were.

The total annual deaths were, males, 391,000; females, 364,000. In proportion to the population 368,000 women should have died to maintain the same relative mortality with the men.

The only place where the weakness of women was shown was in the matter of insanity, the statistics of which give 44,000 men and 47,000 women in public asylums. To maintain the relation there should have been only 41,000 insane women. When, however, it is considered how much cause for female dementia is contributed by the men the small number of crazy women is notable.

In France persons are said to have been put into a hypnotic sleep by telephone. A newspaper editor was hypnotized within two or three minutes after placing the telephone to his ear, the operator being a mile distant.

J. H. CONRAD,

DEALER IN

ROOFING AND SPOUTING

GUTTERING, HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.

Cutlery, Nails, Paints, Woodenware &c.

MAIN STREET,

ST. JOE IND.

All work and goods guaranteed to give satisfaction! Give me a call.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

St. Joe Meat Market,

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

M. TUSTISON,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES,

EARTHEN POTS FOR HOUSE PLANTS

PROVISIONS, OYSTERS, LEMONS.

ORANGES, CANDIES, CIGARS &c.

MAIN ST. - - ST. JOE, IND.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

R. G. COBURN,

AGENT FOR THE

ALBION SPRING Cultivator

AND FIELD HARROW,

AND DAISY RAKE.

Farmers will save money by seeing me before buying. I will call on you with a sample in a few days. R. G. Coburn, St. Joe, Ind.

Take Notice!

Having returned from Tennessee, I will assist again in

Raising & Moving Buildings,

in short all kinds of Rope, Tackle and Jack-screw Work. Having had 15 years experience, and improved machinery, I feel safe in guaranteeing satisfaction. Heavy and difficult work a specialty. Correspondence solicited. Direct all communications to H. or M. Milliman, St. Joe Station, Ind., or A. Monroe, Hicksville, Ohio.

A. KINSEY

Undertaker and Embalmer. Keeps on hand constantly, a stock of Undertaking Supplies, Coffins, Caskets, Burial Robes &c. I can supply as fine goods as can be furnished. Will attend to making all arrangements for funerals. Calls responded to at all hours of the night. Office on corner of Main and Second Streets; residence on corner of Main and Fourth Streets, St. Joe, Ind.

Arthur James,

DEALER IN

Watches, Clocks,

AND JEWELRY.

Repairing done promptly and all work warranted. Call and see me at Bair & Son's store, Spencerville, Ind.

M. T. BISHOP,

DEALER IN

LUMBER

OF ALL KINDS,

Shingles, Lime, Lath, MOULDINGS &c.

Large Stock and Prices Low. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

Supplement to the St. Joe News.

FRIDAY, JUNE 3, 1887.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

COBURN TOWN.

Wheat is heading out.

Strawberries are putting on blushing faces.

W. Beaber killed and wounded 7 hawks last week.

Mr. Campbell of Butler, was here this week, making out insurance papers for property losses.

R. G. Coburn will return from Kansas this week, and bring his son with him, if he is able to come.

J. M. Milliman has one of the best plows in the neighborhood. It plows all the fence corners and around all trees.

Arthur Wilmot and son Allen, are making the briar-swamp patch look pretty well. Arthur hopes to get through by the 4th of July.

J. E. Dermott's little boy, hitched his express wagon to a colt's neck with a string, and prepared to take a ride, when the colt started double quick down the hill, breaking the string and leaving the little fellow behind.

The services at the cemetery here on Decoration Day were well attended, considering the condition of the weather; and the exercises, which were held in the school house, were fitting to the occasion. Bro. Thomas delivered an interesting address.

PIGEON'S RETREAT.

Will Rudy keeps a one-horse barber shop.

School closed at this place on last Friday.

What has become of that Coburn-town scribe?

Miss Alice Kline is still in a very helpless condition.

Charley Koch spent Saturday night with his brother Will.

Grandfather Kline has been seriously ill but is better at this writing.

The rats killed twelve young turkeys for Mr. Timmerman on Friday night.

Mr. Wasson has quite a curiosity in the shape of a brood of web-footed turkeys.

A small cyclone in the shape of two young ladies in a buggy, struck Billy Farmer's buggy, last Sunday evening while returning from church, and demofished one of the wheels. There must have been mutual attraction in this incident for our public roads are wide enough for teams to pass. Billy you should have given them all the road.

Jack Moody's team ran away the other day in St. Joe, and tore up things in a lively manner. Jack got things together as best he could and went home, but strange to say he forgot his wife who had accompanied him to town. She was lucky enough to get to ride to Spencerville with J. W. Dills, and on finding that her husband had gone before she reached that place, she gathered up her butter pails, egg baskets, groceries and other articles too numerous to mention and when last seen by our informer had started for home which no doubt she reached, foot-sore and weary, a couple of hours later than her forgetful husband.

J. EMANUEL & SONS,

— DEALERS IN —

DRUGS, PAINTS,

OILS, VARNISHES, BRUSHES,

Perfumes, Soaps, Toilet Articles,

CONFECTIONERY, CANNED GOODS &c.

THE CHOICEST AND FINEST

CIGARS AND TOBACCOS

THAT MONEY CAN BUY.

We invite the attention of the public to the fact, that we have added largely to our stock, and now carry a full and complete line of Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Brushes &c. Drugs and Druggists Sundries, the very latest and best Perfumes, Soaps, and Toilet Articles. The best Cigars and Tobaccos that money can buy. Also a good assortment of Canned Goods and Confectionery. Pure Wines and Liquors for MEDICINAL PURPOSES ONLY. Special attention given to filling prescriptions and recipes with accuracy and dispatch, at all hours of the day or night. We guarantee our GOODS TO BE OF THE BEST QUALITY and prices as low as the lowest. Give us a call.

J. Emanuel & Sons,

SPENCERVILLE, IND.

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, JUNE 10, 1887.

NO. 20.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening, on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind., Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind., John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a specialty. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—The body of a dead boy was found near Jackville recently. The facts in the case seem to be about as follows: Mrs. Livingstone, a widow, and her son Pless, aged about 19 years, went to the home of Columbus Young, a brother-in-law, who also has a son, aged 16 years. The boys went fishing, and in the evening the Young boy came home, and said that Pless had gone off with some strange boys. His statement was believed at first, but when the missing boy did not arrive, even after dark, a search was commenced. No traces of the lad were found that night. The next day the creek was dragged, but to no purpose. In the evening the dead body of the boy was found, near the creek, with a bullet in his brain. Then Young, who told the above story, said they and two other boys were shooting fish, and he pointed the pistol at Pless, thinking all the cartridges were fired, and said, "I'm going to shoot you." The boy fell dead and his companions fled. The other boys, who witnessed the affair, tell the same story.

—Edward Daniels, a brakeman on the Chicago and Atlantic Railway, was discharged for drunkenness. He received his money at Hammond, drank heavily, and climbed on a freight train to steal a ride to Chicago. The train just commenced to move when he fell off, striking the rail the full length of his body. A wheel caught his foot and mashed the leg clear up to the hip. Twenty cars passed over him. When the last car was over, he raised himself three times, gasped his name, "Edward Daniels," and died. It is not known where his relatives live.

—Patents have been issued to the following named Indiana inventors: William E. Clayton, of Huntington, pipe wrench and cutter; Joseph S. Locke, of Spartanburg, machine for making wire and slate fences; Benjamin A. Nye, of Indianapolis, vehicle top; John J. Ralyn, of Anderson, saw; Henry Richards, of Decker, key-board attachment for musical instruments; William H. Roberts, of Indianapolis, portable fire escape; David D. Weissell, of Fort Wayne, artificial tooth.

—Auditor of State Carr has sent a circular to all County Auditors regarding the State House tax. It reads that as no provision was made "by the late General Assembly for the continuance of a tax levy for the new State House fund, the tax levy of 2 cents upon each $100 worth of taxable property in this State for said purpose is discontinued, and therefore no tax levy for that purpose should be placed on the tax duplicate for 1887."

—Bent Jones, a life-time convict from Orange County, confined in the southern prison, has been granted a patent on a folding table. The invention is considered to be very valuable, and is gotten up on an entire new principle from others heretofore made. The patent on the iron castings alone is supposed to be worth at least $100,000, if the inventor was out of confinement to properly dispose of them.

—The Crawford County Regulators crossed over into Orange County a few nights ago and disciplined, in the customary effective manner, Benjamin and Joseph Carroll. After the switching seance had been concluded the knights of the switch rode around the neighborhood and notified the people, at the same time requesting that a doctor be summoned to care for the sufferers.

—August Geist, for thirty years a faithful and trusted employe of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad at La Porte, was instantly killed by being run over by a freight train while attending to his duties in the railroad yard. He was greatly respected by the officers of the road. He leaves a large family.

—The body of a man aged about fifty-five was found in the river, ten miles above Madison. The body was poorly clad, and was evidently that of a laborer or fisherman. Decomposition had set in, and the coroner, after viewing the remains, ordered them buried.

—John Worth, of Centerville, purchased a can of salmon, and, with his wife and daughter, ate it for supper. About midnight they were all taken dangerously ill, and it required the services of every physician in the city to save their lives. They are very low yet from the lead-poisoning.

—An alarming and fatal epidemic has broken out at Oxford, Benton County. It attacks young children, principally, and in most cases terminates in death in a few days. The sickness is severe from the start, and the afflicted child soon goes into spasms, which ends in death.

—On a farm of G. H. McKinney, near Pleasantville, Pike County, William, the son of the farmer mentioned, was killed by lightning during a storm while taking shelter under a tree. His brother was also so severely shocked that his recovery is doubtful.

William Straightman, an employe of the Lafayette car works, died from the effects of injuries received recently. While assisting in removing a large bar of iron from the steam hammer he was struck in the abdomen, the injuries terminating in death.

The large barn of Elihu Knight, living five miles southwest of Winchester, was burned. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin. The loss will be fully $1,000, with $400 insurance in the Continental, of New York.

—The citizens of Fort Wayne are jubilant over the fact that they have finally struck gas in abundance. Gas well No. 3 was shot recently, and proves to be a gusher.

—James, Huntzinger, aged 15, was drowned while bathing in White River at Anderson. His body was recovered. It is thought his mother will die from the shock.

The widow of Joel Sylvester, who resides in Jeffersonville, has been notified that she will, in a few days, be paid $3,000 on a policy in the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, taken out shortly before her husband's death.

—Ross, aged 4 years, son of Fremont Freeman, of Liberty, was caught under an elevator in his father's livery stable and fatally injured. His head was crushed, a leg broken, and he was injured internally.

—Charles Mowse and Joseph Biehler were drowned at Indianapolis by the capsizing of a boat.

—In the case of the State, in relation to Peter Wright vs. Casius Herron, charged with forging Wright's name to a $225 note, on trial at Richmond, the defendant was acquitted, and in retaliation will bring suit for damages.

—Edward Cole, aged 8 years, living at Crawfordsville, had his leg broken, and was otherwise bruised, while hanging on the back end of a milk-wagon, his leg getting between the spokes of the wheel.

—The price of liquor license at Evansville has been raised by the City Council from $25 to $75 per year, against the strong protests of saloon-keepers.

—The 4-year-old son of John Woods, living near Logansport, was strangled to death by having his neck caught between the bows of a fallen top buggy, in which he was playing.

—The Rev. J. H. Edwards, of Shelbyville, who has lately returned from a trip around the world, has received and accepted a call to the Christian Church in New Castle.

—Attempts have been made to blow up the residence of Mrs. Richey, in Vincennes, with dynamite. Mrs. R. lives alone with her 17-year-old son.

—Frederick Upmeyer was killed by falling through a hatchway at Fort Wayne.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

In a letter from a German physician, who is a resident of Brazil, it is stated that permanganate of potash is as fallible an antidote for snake bites as that country as in India, and that every farmer keeps some of it in his dwelling.

—OWING to the increased electrical intensity of the atmosphere, which is induced by the continual evolution of steam and smoke, Dr. Andries estimates that the danger from lightning is from three to five times greater than it was fifty years ago.

The ingredients of many of the fire extinguishers now before the public are said to be eight pounds carbonate of soda, four pounds alum, three pounds borax, one pound carbonate of potash, and twenty-four pounds silicate of soda solution, these being of course, mixed together; one and one-half pounds of this mixture are added to each gallon of water when required for use, the timeliness of application constituting the important feature in the matter of efficiency.

Wood oil is made on a large scale in Sweden from the refuse of timber cuttings and forest clearings, and from stumps and roots; and, although it cannot well be burned in common lamps on account of the heavy proportion of carbon it contains, it furnishes a satisfactory light in lamps especially made for it, and in its natural state is said to be the cheapest of illuminating oils. Thirty factories produce about 40,000 liters of the oil daily; turpentine, creosote, acetic acid, charcoal, coal tar oils, and other useful substances are also obtained from the same materials.

TAKE it as a rule, the most violent poisons, and the substances that produce the most deleterious effects on the human system, are from the vegetable kingdom. The mineral drugs which may cause harm are few in number, and, if we except arsenic, are not especially violent poisons. There is a considerable amount of poisoning from lead, but not through its medicinal uses; and the same may be said at the present time of mercury. In fine, it is the purely vegetable drugs which are the most dangerous, because it is these which stimulate the brain or benumb the senses, induce morbid habits, and eventually establish physical degeneration. We wish that the public could be made to understand this, when it is confronted with alluring notices of the perfect safety and harmlessness of "purely vegetable" drugs.

A Mania for Betting.

As an illustration of the mania for betting during the reign of George III., Walpole has a good story of a man, who, coming into White's club the morning of the earthquake in London, Feb. 8, 1750, was horrified to hear bets laid as to whether the shock was caused by an earthquake or the blowing up of the Hounslow powder mills. This member rushed out of the club declaring it was his opinion of the impious set present: "If the last trumpet was to sound they would back puppet show against judgment."

One of the Blakes, of Galway, about the same time bet £1,500 that he would get a man who would live twelve hours under water, hired a desperate fellow and sank him in a boat by way of experiment. Neither man nor boat was ever heard of again. A few of the bets made then were rather comical. For instance, Lords Alvanley and De Ross made a wager over night in the patridge season as to who would make the biggest bag on the morrow, it being part of the bet that each should carry what the other shot. Alvanley, at the close of the day, finding that he had no chance of winning, shot a donkey; but how Lord De Ross got out of it is not on record.—St. Louis Republican.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS,

PUBLISHERS.

O MARY, QUEEN OF MERCY.

BY JAMES CLARENCE MANGEN.

There lived a knight, long years ago,
Proud, chivalrous, valiant, devotionless;
Of God above, or hell below,
He took no thought, but undismayed,
Pursued his course of wickedness.
His heart was rook, he never prayed
To be forgiven for all his treasons;
He only said, at certain seasons,
"O Mary, Queen of Mercy!"

Years rolled and found him still the same,
Still draining pleasure's poison bowl;
Yet felt he now and then some shame;
The torment of the undying worm
At which he woke in his trembling soul;
And then, though powerless to reform,
Would he, in hope to appease that sternest
Avenger cry, and more in earnest,
"O Mary, Queen of Mercy!"

At last Youth's riotous time was gone,
And Loathing now came after Sin,
With locks yet brown he felt as one
Grown gray at heart, and oft, with tears,
He tried, but all in vain, to win
From the dark desert of his years
One flower of hope; yet, morn and evening
He still cried, but with deeper meaning,
"O Mary, Queen of Mercy!"

A happier mind, a holier mood,
A purer spirit ruled him now;
No more in thrall to flesh and blood,
He took a pilgrim-staff in hand,
And, under a religious vow,
Traveled his way to Pomerland;
There entered he an humble cloister,
Exclaiming, while his eyes grew moister,
"O Mary, Queen of Mercy!"

Here, shorn and cowl'd, he laid his cares
Aside, and wrought for God alone,
Albeit he sang no choral prayers,
Nor matin hymn nor laud could learn,
He mortified his flesh to stone;
For him no penance was too stern;
And often pray'd he on his lonely
Cell-couch at night, but still said only,
"O Mary, Queen of Mercy!"

They buried him with mass and song
Aneath a little knoll so green;
But, lo! a wonder-sight!—Ere long
Roses, blooming from that verdant mound,
The fairest lily ever seen;
And, on its petals—edges round,
Relieving their translucent whiteness,
Did shine these words, in gold-hued brightness
"O Mary, Queen of Mercy!"

And, would God's angels give thee power,
Thou, dearest reader, mightest behold
The fibres of this holy flower
Upspringing from the dead man's heart,
In tremulous threads of light and gold;
Then wouldst thou choose the better part,
And thenceforth flee Sin's foul suggestions,
Thy sole resource to mocking questions,
"O Mary, Queen of Mercy!"

HER TWO LOVERS.

"Janet, darling, I wish you would smile more kindly upon Bertram Wyland and less upon Mr. March. Not but what I like the one quite as well as the other; but while Bertram is independently wealthy, and in the first society, no one knows much about Mr. March."

The speaker is a motherly-looking lady whose genial smile contradicts the worldly spirits her word would seem to reveal. Her niece, whom she calls Janet, is sitting by the window, her bright head bent over the gay crevices that cover her lap. At her aunt's words she looks up, an expression of extreme surprise visible in her long-lashed, violet eyes.

"Why, auntie, never before did I think you had a mercenary idea! Is it really you who are talking about wealth, and first society, and all that?"

A little flush rises to the elder lady's face, as she replies, deprecatingly, "I am not mercenary; Janet; but I want to see you settled advantageously, for you know that by the terms of your uncle's will I can make no bequests, and I have often thought, my darling, if I should die, what would become of you, brought up as you have been with every luxury; how could you breast the world alone?"

Janet's soft hand upon her lips checks her.

"Do not—do not talk of dying, auntie dear? Why, you are still a young woman; and never trouble yourself about me again, for I have youth and health, and I would not be ashamed to work should it be necessary for me to do so."

"But, Janet, you like Bertram, do you not?"

"Yes, auntie, I like him very much."

And with this answer Mrs. Elmer was obliged to be content.

Ever since Janet Alcott and her aunt came to the watering-place in which our story opens, Janet has taken her position as the acknowledged belle of every gathering, but among the many adorers who have sighed at her shrine, two only of the number have elicited any response from her. They are Bertram Wyland—her aunt's favorite—and John March—the young man "no one knows."

They are different in appearance as their names are in sound; for while Bertram is handsome—a very Adonis—and his graceful manners show the habitus of society, Mr. March is grave and thoughtful, but with a steadfast look in his brown eyes that suggests a more than ordinary character. To tell the truth, in her own mind Janet has not yet determined which of her two admirers she likes best, though—as her aunt has already suspected—the balance is wavering in Mr. March's favor, when chance suddenly turns it the other way.

Of all things, Janet dearly loves and admires heroism—a courage that would face undaunted any peril for a good cause—and something which her friend Agnes Fleming tells her soon after the conversation with her aunt which we have recorded, causes her delicate lips to curve with sudden scorn.

A child, while bathing in the sea, had ventured beyond her depth, and of two gentlemen who were standing within view, one only, Mr. Wyland, had rushed to her assistance; the other, Mr. March, turning and walking composedly back to the hotel, not even pausing to ascertain whether his comrade needed his aid or not.

"I never would have believed it of him never!" Janet cries.

"How serious you are over it, Janet," laughs Agnes. "I shall begin to think that you care for this Mr. March a good deal, or you'd certainly not take it so much to heart."

But Janet did not respond to her badinage.

"I shall never respect him again," she said, vehemently. "Any one who could act in such a cold-blooded way is not worthy of respect."

As Janet went back to the hotel, on her way she passed Mr. March, and caused that young man's heart to sink to zero by the cold hauteur of the nod which was all she vouchsafed him.

Janet, Mr. Wyland was here this morning while you were out walking with Agnes," Mrs. Elmer said later, coming into her niece's room. "Can you not imagine what his errand was?"

Janet blushed, and her pretty head dropped a little.

So it has come at last—the time when she must decide whether she will take Bertram Wyland for her husband, or by rejecting him lose him out of her life entirely—even as a friend.

He has been a very agreeable companion, and she has enjoyed the hours spent in his society; then, too, her kind aunt looks upon him with such favor.

But yet, into Janet's mind comes a memory of a pair of earnest brown eyes, which have long told her silently, though eloquently, how dear she is to their owner. But she drives the thought away. John March can never be anything to her.

"He is coming to-morrow for his answer, dear," said her aunt's voice. "What is it to be?"

"Auntie," Janet said, "do you suppose Bertram thinks I am rich—that I am your heiress? Agnes tells me it is the general belief."

"Why, child, what difference could it possibly make to one so wealthy as he?"

When Mrs. Elmer leaves her niece it is with a face beaming with gratification, for she imagines her pet plan is on the eve of prosperity.

That evening, too restless to sleep, Janet steps out of her bedroom window upon the balcony, and seating herself by the railing, she leans her head upon her hand, and while her eyes wander over the moonlit sea, she gives herself up to the thoughts which crowd thickly into her mind, and of which the foremost is, "Shall I please my aunt by saying 'yes' to Bertram to-morrow? Do I care for him enough to marry him, or is it only as a friend his society is so pleasant to me?"

Suddenly the wind wafts upward to her ears some words spoken in a voice she recognizes.

"Congratulate me, Rollins, old fellow; I've played my game almost to the winning point. To-morrow I have good reason to think the heiress will be mine—and it's lucky, for I've nearly got through all my money. Though, to tell the truth, I'm fortunate in more ways than one, for, besides the additional attraction, the girl's a dear, tender-hearted little thing."

As Janet bends forward she sees, walking slowly along, their backs to the balcony, Bertram Wyland and an intimate friend. Her eyes have not deceived her—it is unmistakably he who has just spoken.

Every vestige of color leaves the girl's face as she re-enters her room. Is there no truth in the world? Are all men either cowardly or mercenary?

Hot tears rise to the young eyes as Janet kneels down to give thanks for the providence that has opened her eyes before her feet were allowed to wander into a path the termination of which would have been her life's wreck. She does not fall asleep at once, not until dawn does "fired Nature's sweet restorer" visit her couch. Her eyes have been closed, it seems to her, but a very few moments, though it is in reality an hour, when she is suddenly awakened by a suffocating sensation and the appalling cry of "Fire!"

Springing to her feet, with trembling hands she wraps herself in her dressing-robe, which is near upon a chair, and rushes to the door, and opens it only to be driven back by the volume of flame and smoke.

"Janet! where are you?" some one calls, and just as she is falling, terrified, into unconsciousness by the dire peril which menaces her, a strong arm catches her. But the fire has gained such rapid headway that the halls are impassable, and darting to the window, John March raises it and calls for aid to the crowd below. A ladder is quickly brought, and he descends in safety and lays his precious burden in her aunt's arms.

The inmates of the burning building are speedily made comfortable in a neighboring hotel, and there, the following morning, Janet had two callers.

She is a trifle pale, but never has she looked so beautiful in Bertram Wyland's eyes as, in a few cold words, she refuses his suit, and he realizes that she is lost to him forever. A few hours later Mr. March enters the room his rival but so lately left.

He comes to bid Janet good-bye, as he intends to leave for the city that afternoon. He talks a while, and then rises to go.

"Good-bye, Miss Alcott," he says, taking her hand and looking down upon her with a yearning expression on his strong, noble face. "I would like to think that though we may never meet again, you will sometimes give a friendly thought to me."

A soft color flits over Janet's face as she answers, "I shall never forget, Mr. March, that it is to you I owe my life."

The touch of her warm, soft hand sent a thrill through all the young man's frame, and his resolution to go without bringing upon himself the pain of a refusal melted away.

"Janet," he exclaimed, "I had meant to be silent, but I can hide from you no longer that I love you! Sometimes I have dared to hope you cherished a feeling for me which time might deepen to something warmer, but of late you have been so cold my heart has failed me."

As she hears, and looks up into his earnest face, Janet feels that what she heard could never be—and without pausing to think she frankly tells him all. A glow of indignation overspreads his face as he exclaims: "And that base act was laid at my door! Why, it was I myself who saved the child! Your informer has deceived you. Ah, how much harm a few words can do! So that is the explanation of your indifference? Janet," he said, coming closer to her side, and striving to read the expression of the sweet, averted face, "you say that you owe to me your life. May I not have your life's love for my reward?"

She draws herself a little away as she says: "Before I give you your answer I want to tell you something. It is this: that I am not rich, as every one seems to suppose, for my aunt could not will her property to me if she wished to do so. It is to go upon her death to —"

"A nephew of her husband, whom she has never seen, and who she thinks is even now in his country home," puts in John. "Am I not right?" he says, answering Janet's look of surprise.

"Yes. But how did you know?"

"As I am John March Elmer, that veritable nephew himself, I hardly see how I can help knowing. I came here, three months ago, direct to your aunt's home, but found her gone; and upon inquiry, learning her destination, I immediately followed, thinking to amuse myself by making her acquaintance incognito. Now, Cousin Janet, I am waiting for my answer."

When Mrs. Elmer learns the true state of affairs her feeling of relief at the disappointment of her own plan is almost too great to put into words.

Janet had never regretted her choice, for in her husband's protecting love her days glide by in one sweet idyl of delight and content.

Healed by Our Lady of Knock.

The redemptionist fathers were giving a mission in York, England. A Protestant, Mrs. Bellwood, of that city, was in a dying state and in great agony. She was visited by her neighbor, who was a native of Ireland, and, witnessing the sad state of Mrs. Bellwood, she said to her, as all other remedies had failed to give her relief, would she consent to use the Knock cement. She replied that she would use anything that would give her relief, and accordingly the cement was sent for and used by Mrs. Bellwood. She was at once perfectly cured and relieved of all her intense pains. She, at her restoration to her family and the preservation of her life, expressed an earnest desire to become a Catholic. She was instructed, baptized, and received into the church, together with her children.

Another conversion wrought through the use of the Knock cement was that of a Mrs. Fowler, of Cheltenham, who was during life a staunch and rather stern and bigoted Protestant. She became so seriously ill that her recovery was pronounced hopeless by her own husband, who was a physician, as well as by other doctors who were called in to attend her; and when writhing in pain one of her daughters asked her, as the husband and the rest of the family were Catholics, would she use the Knock cement. She said yes. She used the cement and immediately was cured. She then became a Catholic, and edified her family and friends by the piety of her life. One of her daughters is a nun in the convent of Notre Dame, Sheffield. — Dublin Nation.

The only disease that is transmitted by kissing, the theories of medical experts to the contrary notwithstanding, is affection of the heart.

PITH AND POINT.

A BUSINESS that is looking up—The astronomer's.

HOW TO MAKE a Maltese cross—By stepping on his tail.

DON'T be mulish. Never kick simply because people talk behind your back.

WHEN a man attains the age of ninety years he may be termed XC-dingly old.

It is the man approaching sixty who says to the young man: "As we grow old, me boy."

"Be cheerful," cries the philosopher. "Laugh at misery." So we do at some other fellow's.

TO ONE who is opposed to a standing army there is something rasing in a file of soldiers. — Texas Siftings.

THE variety actress is more honored in the breeches than in the observance of a prudish style of costume. — Boston Courier.

"EMERSON, does de good book say dat we are made of de dust?" "Yes, Augustus, yes, sah. And dat we must return to de dust." "Yah! yah! yah! is dat so? Well, den, I guess it must be coal dust."

THE mayor of a Wisconsin city has become a Knight of Labor. This kind of a knight mayor is not, however, likely to disturb any one's sleep, for he is a conservator of law and order. — Boston Courier.

FIRST BROKER—It's pretty bad for me—that last break in Ontario. I'm blue as a jay. Second Broker—Cheer up, old fellow. Here, try one of my cigars. First Broker—O, it isn't as bad as that. I wasn't contemplating suicide. — The Judge.

"MAMMA," said a little girl, what is that man doing over there on Mr. Thompson's porch? He has been sitting on the steps for two hours, and hasn't moved. "That, my child, is a house-painter. He is painting Mr. Thompson's house by the day."

APPLICANT—Is this the place to apply for a pension? I'm an old soldier, sir, and up to the present time I have not asked the Government to give me a cent. Now I want assistance. Pension Agent—You want a back pension? Applicant—Certainly; that's where I was shot.

BRAKEMAN—But don't you think that $1.50 a day is rather small pay for eighteen hours' work on the top of a freight-car? Superintendent—But you forget that we charge nothing for traveling. Let's see; you ride something like 200 miles daily, and it doesn't cost you a cent. — Boston Transcript.

SHE was admiring a big Newfoundland at the dog show, and, throwing her arms around his neck, said: "You dear old fellow, I love you!" A youth who heard her remarked: "How I wish I was a dog." The answer came from the same sweet lips: "Never mind, dear; you'll grow." — The Judge.

BREVITY produces some very remarkable specimens of what the philosophers call nominalism. One of our correspondents had occasion to go into a store to inquire for Dr. Abercrombie's works. "The Intellectual Faculties" and "The Philosophy of the Moral Feelings." When he asked for them the bookseller solemnly replied: "I know I haven't any moral feelings, and I doubt whether I have any intellectual faculties!" — Christian Advocate.

HE WAS NOT A TENDERFOOT.

I wanted tell a circumstance I witnessed t'other night.

What shows you can't just always tell a tenderfoot by sight?

It happened down at Sandy Flat and were curious, I swear.

And learnt the boys ter hev respect for the missionary thar!

He's a rath'er slim young feller what never hollers loud.

The boys hev n'ays gone ter church ter sorter swell the crowd;

This time we 'lowed we'd all stay out behind an' hey some fun.

And git two dogs a-fightin' when the services begun!

We takes my bulldog Jack, and Ike's, as he calls 'em—

Dang'rous Dick.

A pair o' reg'lar fighters from the head iv Roarin' Creek;

An' we leads 'em out behind the church an' lets 'em tear-an' fight.

An' watches fer the worshipers ter come an' see the sight!

Them dogs begun ter claw an' elaw an' growl an' howl an' yelp.

An' we heered the congregation startin' out ter come and help;

An' we tho't o' that air preacher when the crowd begun ter dust.

An' we doubt'ed up an' haried till we rath'er tho't we'd buet!

But a secon' after a feather u'd knocked us on the ground.

Before the rest o' them showed up that preacher come around!

An' he were shoutin' mighty loud, "I've got a v' ter bet.

That that air 'umpy-tailed, spotted dog will lick the brindle yet!

— Dakota Bell.

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

BY HENRY J. MOORE.

Clark Mills, the sculptor who produced the equestrian statue of Gen. Jackson in bronze, opposite the White House, was a native of New York, who went when a lad to Charleston, S. C., where he learned the house plasterer's trade and worked at it as a journeyman. He began to make plaster busts of his friends, and then made one of John C. Calhoun in marble, which was an admirable likeness.

He then, in his thirty-second year, undertook to make an equestrian bronze statue of Gen. Jackson. Mr. Mills was then a man in whose personal appearance there was nothing to strike an ordinary observer as remarkable; plain in his manners and dress, and exceedingly modest, never advancing in conversation, but retiring, except with familiar friends, and on the subject of the statue and of arts; then he would be free, communicative, and instructive, for though he had never seen any works of art, he had, in his leisure hours, read much, and had studied anatomy. He had an ardent mind and temperament, controlled by a sound judgment, and a thorough practical knowledge of men and business. This, with a well-balanced mind, so uncommon in artists, he had acquired in the school of poverty and the struggle of every-day life. His mind was characterized by a ready and just perception, especially of forms, and for great firmness of purpose. He was passionate, but ready to forgive. In personal appearance he presented the figure of a man about five feet ten inches in height, well and strongly made, not stout, with a quick and energetic step. He had a searching light gray eye and gray hair, turned gray during the period of his labor and anxiety over his great work.

He commenced his work on a vacant lot of Government ground near the President's house, where he erected a small frame building for a workshop and a residence. He bought a horse in Virginia, known in the Turf Register as Olympus. This he trained to present the attitude he wanted. This horse was well known in Washington as the "model horse." He dissected horses. He studied the breed and character of different kinds of horses. He selected the various points of beauty and strength from them all, to produce the splendid bronze one he made. As the various points of female beauty, never found in any one female, yet all perfectly natural, are found in the Venus de Medici, so he resolved to make his horse; yet it is a perfect war-horse. He studied the character of Jackson, and the best likenesses that could be found, so as to give a faithful representation of him. He took from the military dress of Gen. Jackson, deposited in the Patent Office, the model by which he clothed the hero. The very sword he wore, and every minutie of the saddle, holsters, bridle, and even buckles, is faithful to history. Yet there is nothing stiff or awkward in the entire group, all is true, natural, and easy.

He modeled his colossal group in plaster. He was not quite two years doing this. The model was exhibited to the public; all admired its beauty, but critics, artists, and scientific men declared it could never stand. The statue stood on its hind feet alone. This had never been done before. All the celebrated equestrian statues represented as rampant, with the fore feet in the air, had been supported by some additional and extraneous means; generally by some prop or by fastening the tail to the pedestal, giving an unnatural attitude, and destroying the life-like expression of the animal. People could not realize the fact that the first equestrian statue in America (executed by an untaught American artist) could be superior in this respect to all the art of the Old World. Mills, however, following the dictates of his own genius and nature, had discovered that a natural horse, to get into such a position, must throw the center of gravity through the rider to his hind feet. He staked his reputation on that principle, and, contrary to the predictions of the learned and scientific, triumphed.

The model finished, the next thing to be done was casting the statue. Mills had no foundry. He sent to different large foundries in Pennsylvania and other places, and was told that such a work could not be cast in their foundries, but that one could be built for the purpose for $20,000. This would not do. His contract for the whole work was only $12,000, and he, consequently, could not afford such a sum for the casting. What was he to do? Founders and artists had said there was no place in America where such a colossal statue could be cast. His means—his contract—would not enable him to go to Europe. Full of resources, believing, as Mirabeau said to his secretary, "that nothing was impossible," and as the Marseillaise said to Kossuth, "that nothing was impossible to he who wills," Mr. Mills built a foundry himself. With limited means, and in a small, miserable shanty, he built a foundry upon a new principle, without a chimney, smokestack or draught of any kind, an invention of his own, and cast his colossal statue. What is not the human mind equal to when conscious of its power and pressed by difficulties?

During the progress of the work, and especially while he was making unsuccessful castings, Mr. Mills had to encounter the scepticism of the world. Who can appreciate his difficulties and mental sufferings? "I have been ready," he said, "to throw myself into the Potomac." None but a man of unconquerable will and perseverance could have overcome such obstacles. He had spent all his means, the $12,000 of his contract, and had not finished casting the statue. The world said he never would do it. Where could he borrow money under such circumstances? There was one man, a member of the committee, who sympathized with him, John W. Maury, afterwards Mayor of Washington, advanced him money from time to time as he needed, in all over $4,000.

On the 8th of January, 1853, the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans, the statue was inaugurated. The day was bright and beautiful, suitable to the occasion. In the presence of the President of the United States, the Commander-in-chief, both houses of Congress, many of the personal friends and companion-in-arms of the Old Hero and 20,000 people, the artist had the satisfaction of seeing the end of his labor and the idol of his soul received with applauding admiration. The Hon. S. A. Douglas was the orator chosen to deliver the inaugural address. That address and the whole proceedings have been published. What a proud day for Mills. After the oration he was introduced to the assembled thousands; he raised his hand to the statue for the curtain which covered it to fall, as his speech in response to the enthusiastic plaudits. It was the moment of his life; then, again, he saw that genius which had inspired him to action holding the laurel crown over his head. He had "followed nature" as it directed him, and had acquired fame.

Mexican Jewelers' Wonderful Work.

The gayest of zepes and the finest of rebosos are also manufactured hereabouts; also paper and printed calico. The filigree work of the Guadalupean jewelers is simply wonderful, and may be seen any day in every stage of progress, because in all tropical countries, as in the far East, the majority of workmen follow their vocations in the open air. The gold and silver-smiths ply their intricate trade outside their little shops, on the street corners, anywhere, undisturbed by the dust and confusion around them. They make exquisite bits of ornamentation of the gold known in commerce as "etruscan," meaning the dark, rich, reddish-yellow variety. These works are much more popular in Europe than on this continent, and across the Atlantic no collection of jewels or ornaments is considered complete without a set of Mexican filigree work. It is not at all like the Florentine or Venetian, and is made after an entirely different plan. The threads of precious metal are beaten to infinitesimal fineness, twelve wires of gold twisted together making a thread no thicker than No. 24 spool cotton. The wires are all carefully traced on sketches or patterns, and the delicate manner in which each wire is soldered to the other is one of the marvels of human skill. From earliest days the Mexicans have been adepts in this kind of workmanship, but so behind the times are latter-day artificers that in improvident Mexico human labor counts for next to nothing, and a skilled workman will toil for weeks over a delicate toy which sells for a few shillings.—Letter from Mexico.

A PROFESSORSHIP in sanitary engineering—the only chair of the kind in any college—has been established in the Imperial Institute, at Tokio, by the Government of Japan.

It Won't Bake Bread

In other words, we do not claim that Hood's Sarsaparilla will do impossibilities. We tell you plainly what it has done, and submit proofs from sources of unquestioned reliability, and ask you frankly, if you are suffering from any disease or affection caused or promoted by impure blood or low state of the system, to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Our experience warrants us in assuring you that you will not be disappointed in the result.

"My wife thinks there is nothing like Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we are never without it in the house." F. H. LATIMER, Syracuse, N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists, $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50. FREE. (Does not under the horse's feet. Address Brewster's Safety Rein Holder, Holly, Mich.)

This represents a healthy life. Throughout its various scenes.

Just such a life as they enjoy Who use the Smith's Bile Beans.

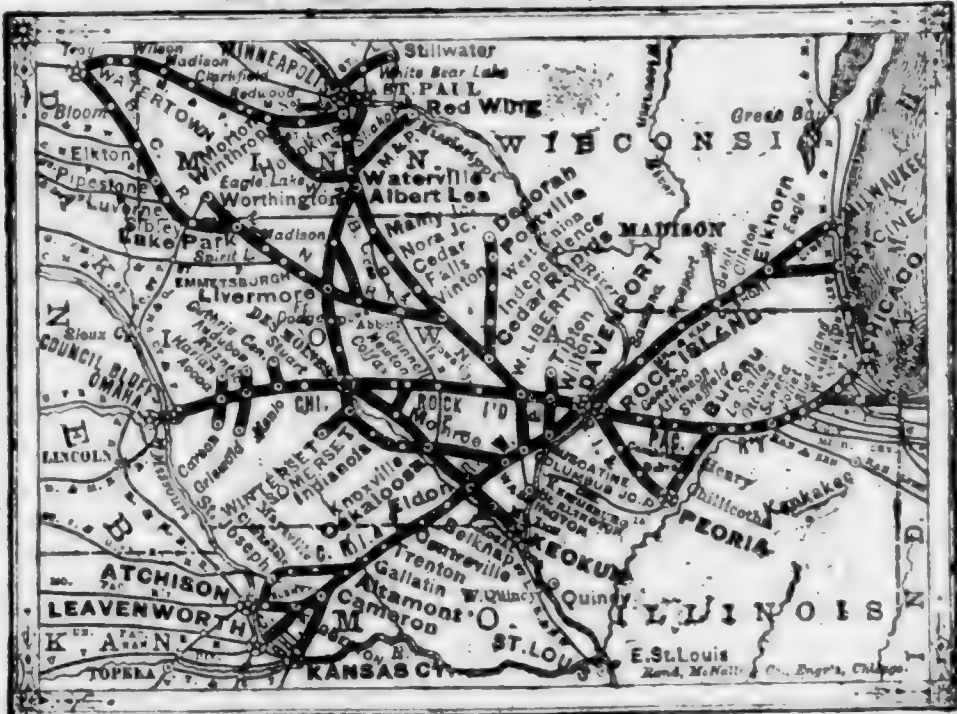

Smith's BILE BEANS purify the blood, by acting directly and promptly on the Liver, Skin and Kidneys. They consist of a vegetable combination that has no equal in medical science. They cure Constipation, Malaria, and Dyspepsia, and are a safeguard against all forms of fevers, chills and fever, gall stones, and Bright's disease. Send 4 cents postage for a sample package and test the TRUTH of what we say. Price, 25 cents per bottle, mailed to any address, postpaid. DOSE ONE BEAN. Sold by druggists.

J. F. SMITH & CO., PROPRIETORS, ST. LOUIS, MO.

A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC R.R.

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest—is the only true middle-link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unequalled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

ALL EXPRESS TRAINS between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE PARLOR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and—between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown.

A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kanabos, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.

All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employees of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly attention.

For Tickets, Maps, Folders—obtainable at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada—or any desired information, address,

R. R. CABLE. E. ST. JOHN. E. A. HOLBROOK.
Pres't & Gen'l M'gr, Chicago. Ass't Gen'l M'gr, Chicago. Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Agt., Chicago.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times."

Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year, in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months ..... 50
Three Months ..... 25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe as second-class matter.

FRIDAY, JUNE 10, 1887.

One of the saddest accidents in the history of St. Joe, was that which occurred last Tuesday morning, and which resulted in the death of Clarence, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hollabaugh. The facts are as follows: Clarence had accompanied his older brother in taking the cows to pasture, and on their return, as they neared the railroad crossing, a local freight was approaching, and in order to make a running switch, they had cut the train into three pieces, and after the engine had gone by, little Clarence supposing that was all of the train, boy like, run down on to the track to watch it, not noticing the balance of the train that was following close behind. His older brother some distance away, called to him, but it all happened so quick, that before any thing could be done, the car had struck the little fellow, and thrown him perhaps fifteen feet. Several persons in the neighborhood were witnesses of the distressing scene, and Mrs. Shuler was the first to reach the boy, and picked him up and carried him to her home near-by. His parents and a doctor was hurriedly called, but it was seen that it was an utter impossibility for the child to live; his body was badly bruised, several bones were broken and the brain was oozing out of his head, strange as it may seem, he lived in that condition for thirty minutes after the accident. Clarence was a bright little fellow of about six years old, and the family have the sympathy of the entire community in this sad affliction. The funeral occurred Wednesday afternoon, in the Lutheran church and was largely attended.

It is rumored that there are over 20 applicants for the schools at this place.

Joe Metcalf had a mess of new potatoes Tuesday. That knocks out Mell Bishop's time.

E. J. Coder was in town a short time Tuesday evening. E. J. is now mail agent on the Nickle Plate.

Coroner Casebeer drove over Tuesday evening and held an inquest on the body of Clarence Hollabaugh.

C. M. Merica was again elected county superintendent last Monday. Mr. Merica has given the best of satisfaction over this way.

It is desired that every man in this town and vicinity will turn out next Monday morning at 9 o'clock, and assist in building a platform and seats for the old settler's meeting. Many hands make light work.

Some time ago the Garrett Clipper called St. Joe a two by four town; this week it says that St. Joe is one of the prettiest and most lively villages in the county. Glad you changed your mind, neighbor.

Mr. W. A. Price, a graduate of the Ada (Ohio) University, is arranging to open a normal school here about the first of August. Mr. Price comes well recommended and we hope our citizens will give him a liberal support.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

PLEASANT HILL.

Henry Maxwell lost a good horse last week.

Bill Malone visited with his parents over Sunday.

Charley Jackson and wife visited with her parents last Sunday.

Jennie Widney is working for Mrs. Warren Webster this summer.

Mellie Showalter is working for Kasper's this summer, near the Reed church.

Some of our farmers are following their ground for wheat, as it is a splendid time.

There wasn't a very large crowd to listen to the sermon delivered by Rev. Langley last Sunday. There was an appointment left for two weeks at which time he proposes to drop this place if the people do not attend better.

COBURN TOWN.

R. G. Coburn and son are expected home this week.

Mr. Joe Brownlee was making a call on old friends, after an absence of 34 years.

Strawberries are now in their prime and the late rains have swelled them immensely.

Charley Tustison's have vacated the east street and moved in the house owned by Joe Scholes.

Joe Scholes and family have decided to move to Fort Wayne, as his brother Frank has got him work at that place.

J. E. Dermott was around with a paper this week to see who wanted the preacher another year. He met with good success as nearly every young man and woman was willing to help.

SPENCERVILLE.

Trade is picking up.

Emanuel's store has a new awning.

Marquis Barney and family have moved to Auburn.

Mrs. Thomas Fales has returned from Michigan.

Grandma Bittinger is visiting with her son in Fort Wayne.

Will Tindall and Mrs. Allen were at Fort Wayne last Tuesday.

Children's day will be observed at the M. E. church next Sunday evening.

Mrs. E. M. Bishop, of Van Wert, is visiting friends and relatives in this vicinity.

Dr. Houghton and daughter Mamie of Hometown, were in town a couple of days this week.

Ben Zimmerman is taking some very fine photographs, and is having quite a run of business.

Misses Virgie Langley and Addie Widney were the guests of Miss Mabel Murray last Sunday.

The funeral sermon of Mrs. Shappach will be preached at the Lutheran church next Sunday morning.

Miss Maud Murray returned from Hometown last Monday where she has been spending a few days.

There will be a grand festival at Boot's grove to-morrow evening. Two silver cornet bands will be in attendance.

Messrs Schappach, Getz and their brother-in-law from Iowa, made a flying visit to Tiffin, O., last Saturday, returning Monday.

1st Lady: "What elegant perfume you have." 2nd Lady: "Yes, it is the very latest and most fragrant; I bought it at Emanuel's drugstore."

The Lutheran church festival was a success, and netted about $21. It is fair to assume that a much larger crowd would have been present had it not been for the rainy weather.

WANTED 50 CUSTOMERS

To Buy Our Carpet Samples.

We have a large line of Tapestry, Walton and Body Brussels, Ingrain, and Hemp Carpet Samples which we are closing out for Rugs. We also carry a full line of E. P. Reed & Co's and Gokey & Son's Ladies' Misses and Children's Fine Shoes. Secure a pair of those 75 cent Fine Slippers before they are all gone.

J. D. Leighty, St. Joe Ind.

NOTICE.

We hereby notify those who are indebted to us that we are obliged to raise some money by the 18th of June, and all who can help us will please call on J. M. Lounsberry, Filley, Lounsberry & Shuler.

The following additional committees have been appointed for old settler's day:

President, pro tem, R. G. Coburn. For marshal of the day, David Andrews. Assistant marshal, John Davis.

Committed on Amusements, Frank Barney, M. E. Olds, J. H. Conrad, Dan Baker, Nelson Thomas, Wm. Curie and Harry Meek.

For constables: Josh Lounsberry, Dan Baker, Wm. Blecks, Wm. Hart, J. I. White, Aaron Thomas, Ben Leighty, Mahlon Baker, Russ Copp and Wilson Sanders.

Mrs. Al Weirick's parents visited with them over last Sabbath.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. T. Kagey and sons are visiting with friends in town.

Seersucker Coats and Vests made to order at Case & Ohls's. A good fit guaranteed, and better goods, better made, for less money.

The Garrett, Clipper says that Wm. Curie of St. Joe, is talked of as candidate for congress. This will no doubt be news to William.

The Y. P. T. L. A. will meet at the residence of Miss Addie Widney, on Monday evening, June 13th. The following program has been prepared. Select Reading, by Clarence Widney; Impersonation, by George Shuler; Declamation, by Frank Hart; Instrumental music, Leona Tustison; Select Reading, Prudie Lounsberry; Declamation, Hugh Wineland; Quartette, Frank Hart, Bert Hull, Nina Filley and Mattie White; Select Reading, Ella Sanders; Dialogue by Hattie Langley, Nina Filley and Ella Sanders; Reading, Cora Dilley.

STAR WIND ENGINE

TAKES THE LEAD.

E. A. WANEMAKER
NEWVILLE, IND.

Has the agency for this county. See him, or write for prices on Wind Mills, Tanks, Pumps, Pipe &c. A special feature of the Star Wind Engine is the Regulator. See it before you buy.

IMPORTANT TO BUSINESS MEN.

To those contemplating buying a Self Binder this season, we wish to say that we will have on exhibition in St. Joe, on old settler's day, June 16th, one of the old reliable, never failing McCormick Self Binders. Don't fail to see us and get our prices before buying, and we will do you good.

Brown & Culbertson
Auburn, Ind.

Grand Exhibition!

Prof. G. W. Howard, the champion king of the air will give an exhibition of his wonderful skill on a wire stretched across the St. Joe river at an elevation of thirty feet, on old settler's day, June 16th. To see him alone, will be well worth your visit. He is the champion of Ohio in his mid-air performances. This exhibition will take place immediately after the tub race.

WOOL WANTED!

100,000 Pounds of Wool Wanted, for which we will pay the highest market value. Also all kinds of country produce wanted. Call and see us.

S. & F. BARNEY.

Miss S. A. Bartlett,

—DEALER IN FINE—

MILLINERY

HATS, BONNETS,

Flowers,
Ribbons,
Feathers,

—ORNAMENTS &C.—

I invite the attention of the ladies of St. Joe and vicinity to my new stock of Spring and Summer Millinery Goods, comprising the newest and latest styles and shapes. I am constantly receiving new goods, and therefore can please everybody. Give me your patronage. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see my line before making your purchases. Rooms over Dr. Bowman's office, St. Joe, Ind.

MISS S. A. BARTLETT.

—FOR SALE OR TRADE—

One third interest in the Spencer-ville Tile and Saw Mill. Will sell or trade for a farm or other property. Inquire of, or address: W. L. Hollabaugh, St. Joe, Ind.

—LOCALS—

Sam White is at home after several week's absence.

Concord correspondence came in too late for this issue.

Geo. Wilson has rented one of the Hicksville grist mills.

Case & Olds are receiving some new Seed-suckers to-day.

Do all you can to make the old settler's meeting a success.

Joseph Wingard of Mt. Hope made us a pleasant call Wednesday.

Singing school at the Methodist church to-night. All are invited.

Ten special constables are to be sworn in to keep order on old settler's day.

Clean the rubbish off of the street and mow the grass, before the old settler's meeting.

Peck's Sunders walks with a crutch and carries one of his feet done up in a rag. Too much ax.

People who complained because it was too dry will now have occasion to grumble on account of it being too wet.

The Corona and Auburn base ball clubs write that they expect to play a match game of ball here on old settler's day.

All who will take part in the fantastic parade are requested to meet at Kinsey's furniture store Monday evening, June 13th, at 8 o'clock.

In order to give us ample time to get over the effects of the old settler's meeting, we shall not issue the News next week until Saturday, making it one day late.

The B. & O. will sell round trip excursion tickets from Garrett, Auburn and Auburn Junction to St. Joe on old settler's day, June 16th, for two cents per mile each way.

Commission's court has been in session this week.

Trim up your buildings with flags on old settler's day.

Charlie Meek made us a pleasant call last Friday. Charlie looks thin.

From all reports we can expect an immense crowd here on old settler's day.

Curt Washler is gathering cream through this section for the Kendallville creamery.

The many friends of Mahlon Baker will be glad to know that he has at last received his pension.

Eggs keep up to a pretty good price. Usually this time of the year they go down to 6 and 8 cents.

Ad Chubb says that he has the best prospect for crops this season that he has had for many a year.

The sad death of little Clarence Hollabaugh ought to be a warning to boys, to keep off of the railroad.

Burt Patterson of Hicksville was in town Tuesday. Burt thinks there are some pretty nice girls in St. Joe.

Wm. Hart is making valuable improvements to his residence, and when completed it will make a neat and tasty home.

The June-bug disappears in June, the lightning-bug in May, the bed bug takes his bonnet off and says "I've come to stay."

Hugh Culbertson, of Auburn was in town Tuesday. There is no use of Auburn boring for gas as long as Hugh keeps in good health.

Frank and Jake Seebler, Mervin Widney, Sell Gee and Vester Widney went to Hamilton Lake, Tuesday to try their luck at fishing.

Miss Bartlett's millinery rooms were crowded with customers again last Saturday. Her large trade is evidence that she has the goods that please people.

The stand privileges of the orchard on old settler's day have been sold to the Methodist society for thirty dollars. They control the exclusive right of the ground.

Little Miss May Leighty was six years old last Tuesday, and in the afternoon quite a number of her little friends were invited in and enjoyed the time together.

Don't forget the St. Joe band festival in Leighty's Orchard, on Saturday evening, June 18th. The boys are going to have a good time and it is right that our citizens should patronize them.

Some of our young people attended the festival at Spencer-ville last Saturday evening. The heavy rain drove them into the church, but they report having a good time all the same.

John Bishop of Spencer-ville was in town Monday, carrying a big ledger under his arm. We didn't quite understand whether he was taking subscriptions for the Owl, or collecting old store accounts.

We understand that the railroad company has offered to stop the local at Concord, when there are any goods to be unloaded, providing they will build a platform suitable for such a purpose. This will be quite a convenience for Henry Baker, and he will no doubt proceed at once to put up the required platform.

We clip the following item from the Independent News, published at Shelby, Ohio: "We are responsibly informed that Dr. Ferrell, the Indian Root and Herb doctor, diagnosed thirty-three cases and treated seventeen, nearly all being from a distance or neighboring towns, on reunion day." This is our own "Jim" and he seems to be working up quite a practice out among the buckeyes.

STUBBORN FACTS.

The Champion is sold under the strongest warranty to do the work well, with ease to the driver and the team, to be well made of the first quality of material, to be more durable and less liable to get out of repair than any other binder made. Since its first introduction the Champion has been the most successful of all harvesting machines. To the well-to-do farmer, who is willing to pay a fair price on fair terms of credit for a first-class implement, we offer the Champion Binder as the best and cheapest machine in the market. For prices, terms &c. call on

SHUTT & WHITE.

A Clock or a Watch Given Away

to draw trade is not a legitimate business, and we do not intend to make such an offer, but if you will call at the Drugstore, we will show you a nice line of Clocks, Watches, the latest and very handsomest styles of Lace Pins, Necklaces, Scarf Rings, Cuff and Collar Buttons, Chains, Chains, Chains, at prices that cannot help but please.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining, Glazing Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcox. Call and see me, or leave orders at the St. Joe Drugstore.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencer-ville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

—ST. JOE MARKETS—

CORRECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat	85 cts.
Oats	29 cts.
Corn	40 cts.
Butter	10 cts.
Eggs	10 cts.
Hallow	34 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	60 cts.
Smoked Hams	10 cts.
Shoulders and Side Meat	8 cts.

—OBITUARY—

Mrs. Harriet Grill was born April 22nd, 1822, in Lancaster county, Pa., died in St. Joe on May 31st, 1887, aged 65 years, 1 month and 9 days. She was married 45 years and 9 months; was the mother of eight children, of whom four are dead, and four living to mourn her loss. She was confirmed in the German Reformed church in Summit county, Ohio, in the year 1844, and united with the Lutheran church of Spencer-ville on the 21st. of February, 1860, of which she was a faithful member in faith until death.

Coffees are still on the boom.

Henry Hamm is working in Garrett. Best of family White Fish at Case & Olds.

Ben Leighty was at home over Sunday. Ben is getting to be quite a railroad man.

Next Thursday will be the biggest day that St. Joe has ever had, if it don't rain. "If" is always in the way.

The roof on Dr. Bowman's office has proven a failure, and J. H. Conrad has been putting on an iron roof this week.

The doctor stood upon the rail. When ahl but two had died: He cried aloud, say! mister, say! Please pass a rope up, this way. Saint Jo calm purty neer loosing one ov her doctores one da this week. The rail on Dock Bowman's office was looking badly, an Dock and to othar fellers went up on to it to see what tha could do to remedy it. When Dock got up on the rail he got kind o' lite headed; he wassent used to being up so hi. When tha got redy to cum down Dock was afraid to get on to the ladder; tha tried to coax him, but the moor tha coaxed him the weaker in the knees he got. I gues he thoht he was going to dyc, an he began to think over his past life, and the many bitter doses of medicine he had' bished out to the people ov this naborhood. He thoht perhaps he was hier then than he wood ever be again. Bi this tyme quite a crowd had gathered on the street, an ewer redy to weep a fuc teers an extend the hand ov sympathy to the bereaved family. Nothing wood induce the Doc to cum down; he said he wood stay ther fur eyar be four he wood climb over the edg ov the building and cum down the ladder. It was seen that sumthing had to be done and that rite awa; so tha got a rope an tied it securly around the Docktor's body, an then tha told him to shut his eyes, and tha swan him off in mid-air; and ther he hung; it was an awfool moment for those who wer loking on; tha expected to see him fall an purhaps smash the side walk awl to peaces, but no! the Doctor clung to the ladder and the boys abov hung on to the rope and tha finally landed him safely on the ground. Dock says he neval wants to go that bi agin.

Bareus Q. Hippenhammer.

BILL NEE AND BIG HATS.

He Adds His Anathema to the General Chorus in the Back Row—Seeing Hamlet Under Difficulties.

Bill Nee, in the New York World.

The late William Shakespeare once wrote in an autograph album these words:

All the world's a stage,
Sincerely your friend,
W. M. SHAKESPEARE.

Perhaps he meant that there were lies on it—but we will not undertake to enter this field of thought. However, to speak, in a serious vein and treating the subject in a more dignified way, I will state that after a number of years' scrutiny of the world I am convinced that the great bard used this expression in a figurative sense only. Could he pick up his pen to-day he would either erase the above line or add to it so that it would read:

All the world's a stage, and nobody—but the woman in the high hat can see what is going on upon it.
Yours bitterly,
BILL.

It is not a new field, perhaps, this discussion of the tall hat, but I desire in my poor, weak way to add my testimony to the testimony of those who have sat down on said hat. I feel of a truth, occasionally—that this high hat is making an old man of me and drawing lines of care here and there over my fair young face. Here, at a time of life when I ought to be in the full flush and pride of manhood, I find myself no longer able to build the fire in the morning, and my breath, which was once as robust as that of the upas tree, now comes in short pants.

The tall hat with a wad of timothy or a five-pound pompon at the apex thereof has brought this about. How would a man look who might sit in the bald-headed row wearing a joint of stove-pipe on his head rimmed with tray? Has it not been the custom for years to place bald-headed men on the front row because they offered no obstruction to the vision?

And now, what do we see?

We do not see anything!

I will leave it to any disinterested person to say whether I love and admire woman, whether aggregated or segregated, but she does do some things which as her friend and admirer I deeply regret.

Not long ago I had the pleasure of attending one of Mr. Booth's performances in which he took the part of Hamlet with great credit to himself, as I afterward learned from a member of the orchestra who saw the whole performance.

If I had not promised a former wife of mine that I would never touch liquor I would have been amply justified that evening in saturating myself with bay rum or some other seductive beverage.

I paid a large price a week before hand for a seat at the Hamlet performance, because I had met Mr. Booth once in the Rocky Mountains and had made a deep impression on him. I had also told him that if he ever happened to be in a town where I was lecturing I would dismiss my audience to come and hear him, and he might do as he thought best about shutting up on the following night to come and hear me.

Well, I noticed at first, when I went in, that the row before me was unoccupied, and I gathered myself up in a strong, manly embrace, and hugged myself with joy. The curtain humped itself, and the first act was about in the act of producing itself, when a meek little gentleman, with an air of conscious guilt, came down the aisle in advance of a woman's excursion, consisting of four female members of his family, I judged. He looked about over the house, timidly took off his coat, and seemed to be preparing himself for the vigilance committee. Then he sat down to see whether executive clemency could do anything for him.

The first woman of the four was probably over 40, and yet with her almost beardless face she looked scarcely 38. She wore a tall, erect hat, with a sort of plume to it, made by pulling the paint-brush out of an iron-gray mule and drying it a deep crimson.

She wore other clothing, but that did not incense me so much as this hat, which I had to examine critically all the evening.

She moved her head also, and kept time with the music, and breathed hard in places, and shuddered once or twice. She also spoke to the miserable man who brought her. Her voice was a rich barytone, with a low xylophone action, and she breathed like the passionate exhaust of an over-worked freight-engine. When she spoke to her escort I noticed that he shortened up about four inches and seemed to wish he had never entered society.

The other three women had broad hats with domes to them, and the one who sat on my right also sat on her foot. This gave her a fine opportunity to look through the skylight of the opera house now and then. The next one to her wore a deceased Plymouth Rock rooster in her hat. The fourth one sat in front of an oldish gentleman who went out between the acts and came in with a pickled olive in his mouth each time. He could not see anything on the stage, but he crawled up under the brim of this woman's hat, with his nose in the meshes of her hair, and his hot, local-option breath in her neck, patiently trying to see whether the slender legs in long, black hose, belonged to Mr. Booth, Appollinarus or the ballet.

If you will continue in your excellent paper to sit down on the tall hats, I will get you quite a number of subscribers here.

A Spanish Dinner.

Our bill of fare created a sensation. The landlord and all the waiters came in turns to look at the extraordinary Englishmen who had such gigantic appetites. Here is the exact menu. We began with olives and pickled pimientos and guindillas and chilis. These were the hors d'oeuvres. Then cigarettes. Then we had an ordinary thin soup, followed by cigarettes; and then came the great national dish, called cocido. If you have a good dish of cocido (pronounced cothido, because of the Spanish lisp given to the e before certain vowels) you have a good deal for your dinner. It is a savory stew of chicken, potatoes, sausage, bacon and white beans, all boiled up with pieces of beef.

The foreigner who is suddenly confronted with a huge dish of cocido is in some difficulty. He takes a spoonful at hazard. The waiter still stands at his elbow. "The señor has only taken beans." Again you make a dash with the spoon and secure something else. The waiter stares, but does not move away. "The señor has only taken sausage." The señor, confused, requests the waiter to assist him; and then the process, though slow, is interesting. A spoonful of beans on the plate; then, selected with the greatest care, a piece of chicken; then a patient search for a slice of sausage, buried under a mound of cabbage; then the cabbage itself; then a minute devoted to a voyage of discovery in search of the nicest piece of beef; then an exploration in search of a succulent morsel of bacon; then a spoonful of potatoes, and then, over all, an extra spoonful of the beautiful gravy. I timed my waiter, and he took six minutes and a half to help me to cocido. When the dish passes down a table d'hôte it takes about an hour to go round. It is for this reason that the Spaniards help themselves all together at the same time from the common dish.

The next item after cigarettes was a Spanish salad. This salad is prepared in a peculiar way and spread out upon bread into which the oil and vinegar have been allowed to soak. This, too, was excellent. Then more cigarettes, then a cheese made of honey and cream and several other ingredients which require to be taken on trust, and then, after more cigarettes, some "angel's hair," which is really a preparation of orange rind very thinly shredded.

The wines with this feast were Val-depenas—a red wine made from grapes grown on the rocky plains around Madrid—and Jerez, which, of course, is sherry.

To finish the evening in a real Spanish way, after going to a rather low Spanish cafe to see the real Spanish dancing, we had before retiring to rest "Dos chocolates con pica tostes," and that, if you please, is two cups of thick chocolate with square fingers of bread beautifully fried in olive oil. And we weren't ill.—George R. Simms.

Children Half Price.

An Austin gentleman, who had lost one of his children, was presented with a bill by the doctor.

"I see by your bill that you charge $20 for ten visits while you were treating my child," he remarked.

"Certainly, $2 is the regular price for a visit," responded the doctor.

"Yes, but man alive, the child was under ten years of age. I could have got her into a circus for half price!"—Texas Sittings.

The Old-Fashioned Fire.

The direct rays of the sun are first among invigorating and health-giving agencies; nothing can quicken vital forces and strengthen dormant faculties like the sun bath. The sun's most efficient representative is the wood fire on the hearth. This supplies general warmth; its cheerful glow is a household delight, nevertheless it is nearly banished by coal stoves, furnaces, steam, and sundry other devices—greatly to the injury of the health of the people. Medical experts attribute the growing tendency to pneumonia, consumption, and other pulmonary diseases to modern methods of warming houses. This must be so if bad air breeds consumption and pure air cures it. There is a pressing necessity in our houses for good ventilation. The air of rooms is contaminated by poisonous exhalations from living bodies and in many other ways. A lamp with a large burner will consume one-third of the oxygen of seventy cubic feet of air in an hour. The air we have breathed has lost its vital principle and should be passed away immediately; there is no other so good way of doing it as by the open fireplace and the wood fire, though coal in an open grate does very well. With light, dry, fine wood much heat goes up the chimney with the blaze. Maple, hickory, and other solid woods send the heat more into the room. With thick walls, double windows and no excess of cracks we can sufficiently heat houses with the open fire.

The air should be admitted at the top of the room, so it will descend and take the impure air to the fire and not to the floor to cool our feet. The open fire does no damage to the air of the room, but purifies it by securing the best possible ventilation. Stoves and furnaces warm us mainly by first warming the air, but heat radiated from the open fire falls directly on bodies exposed to its influence, warming them as the sun warms the pavement, which is several degrees warmer than the air just above it. This method of warming us without raising the temperature of the room very high is very advantageous. Fatal consequences follow from going from hot rooms to the cold air outside. Speaking of this, an eminent writer says: "At a step, literally in a breath, the temperature of the air has for us dropped 50 or 70 degrees. We may put on an extra coat or shawl and shield the outside of the body and chest, but we cannot shield the delicate linings and membranes of the air passages, the bronchial tubes, the lung cells." This writer insists that "open fires, warming the body directly by radiant heat," without raising the temperature of the room very high, are greatly to be preferred. Coal stoves and furnaces save money and sacrifice life and health; such economy is deplorable waste! The trees needed to moderate the climate if properly cared for could furnish abundant fuel for the fires.—Hugh T. Brooks.

Funerals in Egypt.

Behind them comes the funeral car, or rather a sort of bier, bearing a great red shawl in which the body is deposited, says the Brooklyn Magazine, describing a funeral in Egypt. At the extremity of the bier on a perch is placed the turban or the tarboucho of the defunct. Two men carry this bier. They follow with such high spirits the movements of the head of the cortege that the corpse, rocked in every direction, seems to jump under the shawl that shrouds it. The women bring up the rear, some on asses, some on foot. The first row is formed of weepers, or rather screamers, who send forth toward heaven at each step the shrillest notes. The weepers hold in their hand a handkerchief, with which they are not solicitous of wiping their eyes perfectly dry, but which they pull by the two ends behind their head with a gesture that would be desperate if it were not droll. On arrival at the cemetery, they take the corpse from the bier to cast it, such as it is, into the grave. The grand funerals, however, take place with much more solemnity. An important personage is hardly dead in Egypt before his friends and acquaintances hurry to the house; during one or two days they eat and drink at the expense of the dead, or rather his heirs, indulging in the noisiest demonstrations. When the hour of the interment arrives a scene of the wildest character is produced. The slaves and women of the household throw themselves on the corpse and feign a determination to hinder it from passing the threshold. This lugubrious tragedy is played conscientiously; they snivel away the coffin; they delay each other with blows, and the most violent and frightful clamor is heard. At last the procession leaves the house and repairs to the cemetery, preceded by camels loaded with victuals, which are distributed to the poor hurrying in crowds along the road. All along the road the mourners and friends of the family fight for the honor of bearing the bier for an instant, and thus it passes or rather bounds from hand to hand amid the most frightful disorder.

About the Bee.

There is the bee's eye, with its hundreds of facets, each presenting the same image—this is proved by separating the many-sided cornea and looking through it with a microscope at a candle flame. The bee, moreover, besides its pair of faceted eyes, carries on the top of its head three simple eyes, very convex, for short distance vision. Then there are its antennae, whereby it feels its way in the dark hive and, which give it moreover its exquisite power of smell. Bees can hear, too, though Sir John Lubbock thinks not. They seem deaf because, like wise people, they only attend to such sounds as concern them, their own laws. "Roar" the stragglers can hear a very long way off, and Mr. Cheshire thinks that the old key and warming-pan music at swarming time is by no means exploded. Their impassiveness under many kinds of sound he compares with that of most human beings in a thunder-storm; we are as if we heard not, whereas, if a child cries for help, we wake into activity. Bees clearly are not given to waste emotion or nerve force. They have a nervous system, with ganglions—i. e., knots or lumps where the nerve threads meet. A bee's brain is a bigger ganglion placed in its head, divided—like ours—into two lobes. In queens and drones the brain is small. The worker has proportionally twice as much as the aunt, and more than twenty times as much as the cockchafer. Intelligent though it is, we need not suppose it to be a high-class mathematician because its cells are hexagonal. Mr. Cheshire says that if you put a soap bubble on a bit of slate one side gets flattened. Put another to it and the contiguous walls become quite flat, owing to the equal tension on the two sides. Now add five more bubbles, so that the first occupies the center; a cross section of this central bubble will now be perfectly hexagonal, all the contiguous walls of the seven bubbles being flat, the free ones curved. This is the case in the hive, the free walls of the comb always running in a sweep, the hexagonality being simply due to the pressure of one bee against another as they are working.—All the Year Round.

Gorgeous Head-Coverings of Mexican Women.

When the men persist in wearing such extremely large hats it seems a little queer that the ladies wear no hats at all, and one cannot but feel impressed with the idea that if they could be persuaded to "split the difference" and average up their head-gear fashions the result would be more comfortable for both sexes. The most ordinary sombrero costs not less than $15, while the more universally popular ones—those profusely garnished with bullion—range in price from $30 to $200. Of late years the upper strata of society cover their heads exactly as do gentlemen in London, Paris, or New York; but a genuine Mexican of the middle class still invests all his surplus capital in his hat. A serving man whose wages are not more than $12 per month patriotically puts a year's income into the expensive national sombrero, though he economizes to make up for it in the matter of shoes, wearing oxide sandals of his own manufacture. An American gentleman tells me that, after being absent three months, he paid his footman $42 back wages, and before night the fellow had invested $35 of it in a new hat and devoted the remaining $7 to the wants of his numerous and needy family. While many a thoroughbred Mexican sports a sombrero whose value is away up in the hundreds, the ragged boy who blacks your boots is the proud possessor of one which cost him at least 150 "shines."—Letter from Mexico.

A lady horticulturist of Sanford, Fla., has a garden full of roses. There are over one hundred varieties.

An Indolent Organ.

When the liver is indolent, as it must necessarily be when it fails to secrete the bile in sufficient quantities to meet the requirements of digestion and evacuation, it should be set at work with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The healthful stimulus to activity imparted by this incomparable alterative, speedily convinces itself in a departure of the uncomfortable sensations in the right side; the nausea; the fullness upon the tongue; indigestion, and sick headache consequent upon inactivity of the liver and the diversion of the bile from its proper channel. Irregularity of the bowels is always and painlessly reformed by the corrective indicated, which is infinitely to be preferred both because it is safe and more efficacious than blue pill, calomel and drastic purgatives of every class. It cures and prevents fever and ague, and rheumatism.

One at a Time.

In his account of "The Pioneer Quakers," Richard P. Halliwell tells this anecdote of Charles II. It shows the "Merry Monarch," as he was called, at his best. The wit is ready, the humor good, and the implied reproach is not beneath the dignity of the king.

On one occasion when Charles II. granted an audience to William Penn, the courtly Quaker, in accordance with the habit of the Quakers, entered the royal presence with his hat upon his head. The King, without comment, quietly laid aside his own hat.

Thereupon Penn said, "Friend Charles, why dost thou remove thy hat?"

Charles, whose love of humor was one of his few redeeming characteristics, responded promptly, "It is the custom of this place for one person only to remain covered."—Exchange.

A BALTIMORE Police Officer, 30 years on the force, Mr. Henry H. Durkee, says: "I suffered with poisoned oak for more than a year. I tried St. Jacobs Oil; after the second application all the sores dried up and I was cured. I think it invaluable."

A BOY'S upper lip is like Banquo's ghost when it will not down.

MR. JOHN GUTMAN, Sherman, Ky., writes: "I have used St. Jacobs Oil for ten years. It always cured the toothache in about ten minutes." Sold by Druggists and Dealers.

HE KNEW HIS NAME.

"Did you ever learn the name of that roundel who is going to marry Miss Pearl?" asked a detective of a young man with whom he had been holding conversation as they traveled together on a railroad train.

"O yes, yes; we will be married to-night. That is why I am going to the house now, come around, old man, and see her sacrificed, and I'll make it pleasant for you," replied the young man, as he gathered up his grip and bundles and left the Pinkerton man with his mouth wide agape.

Marvelous Little Moxie.

The Moxie craze is the latest, and it bids fair to last, as the physicians say it takes the place of stimulants and tonics, leaving no reaction. Consequently, its place cannot be filled. The medical world, it is said, have been waiting for some one to discover its like, as stimulants are only a temporary relief, and are eventually as destructive to nerve force as overwork and exhaustion. Stimulants and medicines never cure nervousness or nervous exhaustion. It is said the Moxie does at once. Stops the appetite for liquors as well, satisfies the nervous system as well, at once, leaving only the best results.

PEOPLE should be careful how they accept the prescriptions found in the daily papers. A sure cure for diphtheria published by some of the papers prescribed a tablespoonful of turpentine for adults and a teaspoonful for children, frequently repeated—an excessive or poisonous dose of a substance which must in any case be administered with great caution.—Dr. Foote's Health Journal.

THERE are never too many flowers in this world, and not one kind word too many has ever yet been spoken.

A Wonderful Freak of Nature

Is sometimes exhibited in our public exhibitions. When we gaze upon some of the peculiar freaks of Nature occasionally indulged in, our minds revert back to the creation of man, "who is so fearfully and wonderfully made." The mysteries of his nature have been unraveled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, and through his knowledge of those mysteries he has been able to prepare his "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a specific for all blood taints, poisons, and humors, such as scrofula, pimples, blotches, eruptions, swellings, tumors, ulcers, and kindred affections. By druggists.

If you want to buy a thermometer, we advise you to wait until next winter. They will be lower then.

CHAPPED hands, face, pimples, and rough skin cured by using Juniper Tar Soap, made by Hazard, Hazard & Co., New York.

THE man who keeps his footing on a toboggan chute generally becomes a backslider.

$500 Not Called For.

It seems strange that it is necessary to persuade men that you can cure their diseases by offering a premium to the man who fails to receive benefit. And yet Dr. Sage undoubtedly cured thousands of cases of obstinate catarrh with his "Catarrh Remedy," who would never have applied to him if it had not been for his offer of the above sum for an incurable case. Who is the next bidder for cure or cash?

M. CHEVREUIL recently celebrated the centennial anniversary of his birth. A Paris letter tells us that he is receiving hundreds of letters from all parts of the continent inquiring after the secret of his strength and longevity. To these inquiries he says that the secret of his long life consists in two words, "good health." For this gift he says he is indebted to his parents.—Dr. Foote's Health Journal.

Throw the Powder Overboard.

Were thrilling words, spoken at a time of great danger. The lives of all on the vessel depended upon prompt action. Your life may be blessed and prolonged by the prompt use of Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic for that blood trouble.

25c. buys a pair of Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners, which makes a boot or shoe last twice as long.

A Bonanza Mine

Of health is to be found in Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," to the merits of which, as a remedy for female weakness and kindred affections, thousands testify.

SPEAKING of animals, what does the cat amount to?

If afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it 25c.

3 MONTHS' treatment for 50c. Piso's Remedy for Catarrh. Sold by druggists.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for

TANSILL'S PUNCH

Your last infatuation of "Tansill's Punch" began in yesterday. I was out of them for half a day, and had to call on the doctor for a company of militia to prevent a riot. Have already retailed over 30,000. H. C. MANTON, Lincoln, Neb.

Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

WARREN'S FINEST STAY-ON-THE-TOE, unbreakable Standard quality, 15 cents per pair. Cloth-covered, 20 cents. Satin-covered, 25 cents. For sale everywhere. Try it. WARREN FEATHERBONE COMPANY, Three Oaks, Mich.

PENSIONS COLLECTED and Increased by Fitzgerald & Powell, Indianapolis, Ind. Old cases renewed. Send for copy of laws free.

Will purify the BLOOD, regulate the LIVER and KIDNEYS and restore the HEALTH and VIGOR of YOUTH. Dyspepsia, Weakness of Appetite, Indigestion, Lack of Strength and Tired Feeling absolutely cured. Bones, muscles and nerves receive new force. Enriches the mind and supplies Brain Power. Suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex will find in DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, a safe, speedy cure. Gives a clear, healthy complexion. All ailments at counterfeiting only add to its popularity. Do not experiment. Get ORIGINAL and BEST. DR. HARTER'S LIVER PILLS. (Cure Constipation, Liver Complaint and Sick Headache. Sample Dose and Dream Book mailed on receipt of two cents in postage.) THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

$350 Will buy a complete Newspaper outfit, suitable for publishing a weekly paper in a town of 1000 or over, including Address, EDITORIAL, and NEWS. PAPER UNION, Fort Wayne, Ind.

LIVER, BLOOD AND LUNG DISEASES.

LIVER DISEASE AND HEART TROUBLE.

Mrs. MARY A. McCLURE, Columbus, Kans., writes: "I addressed you in November, 1884, in regard to my health, being afflicted with liver disease, heart trouble, and female weakness. I was advised to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Favorite Prescription and Pellets. I used one bottle of the 'Prescription,' five of the 'Discovery,' and four of the 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' My health began to improve under the use of your medicine, and my strength came back. My difficulties have all disappeared. I can work hard all day, or walk four or five miles a day, and stand it well; and when I began using the medicine I could scarcely walk across the room, most of the time, and I did not think I could ever feel well again. I have a little baby girl eight months old. Although she is a little delicate in size and appearance, she is healthy. I give your remedies all the credit for curing me, as I took no other treatment after beginning their use. I am very grateful for your kindness, and thank God and thank you that I am as well as I am after years of suffering."

Mrs. I. V. WEBBER, of Yorkshire, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., writes: "I wish to say a few words in praise of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' For five years previous to taking them I was a great sufferer; I had a severe pain in my right side continually; was unable to do my own work. I am happy to say I am now well and strong, thanks to your medicines."

Chronic Diarrhea Cured.—D. LAZARRE, Esq., 275 and 277 Decatur Street, New Orleans, La., writes: "I used three bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and it has cured me of chronic diarrhea. My bowels are now regular."

GENERAL DEBILITY.

Mrs. PAMELIA BRUNDAGE, of 181 Lock Street, Lockport, N. Y., writes: "I was troubled with chills, nervous and general debility, with frequent sore throat, and my mouth was badly cankered. My liver was inactive, and I suffered much from dyspepsia. I am pleased to say that your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets' have cured me of all these ailments and I cannot say enough in their praise. I must also say a word in reference to your 'Favorite Prescription,' as it has proven itself a most excellent medicine for weak females. It has been used in my family with excellent results."

Dyspepsia.—JAMES L. COLBY, Esq., of Yucatan, Houston Co., Minn., writes: "I was troubled with indigestion, and would eat heartily and grow poor at the same time. I experienced heartburn, sour stomach, and many other disagreeable symptoms common to that disorder. I commenced taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' and I am now entirely free from the dyspepsia, and am, in fact, healthier than I have been for five years. I weigh one hundred and seventy-one and one-half pounds, and have done as much work the past summer as I have ever done in the same length of time in my life. I never took a medicine that seemed to tone up the muscles and invigorate the whole system equal to your 'Discovery' and 'Pellets.'"

Dyspepsia.—THERESA A. CARR, of Springfield, Mo., writes: "I was troubled one year with liver complaint, dyspepsia, and sleeplessness, but your 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me."

Chills and Fever.—REV. H. E. MOSLEY, Montmorency, S. O., writes: "Last August I thought I would die with chills and fever. I took your 'Discovery' and it stopped them in a very short time."

"THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, and bodily health and vigor will be established.

Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the worst Scrofula, or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing Salt-rheum or Tetter, Fever-sores, Hip-joint Disease, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Enlarged Glands, and Eating Ulcers.

INDIGESTION, BOILS, BLOTCHES.

REV. F. ASBURY HOWELL, Pastor of the M. E. Church, of Silverton, N. J., says: "I was afflicted with catarrh and indigestion. Boils and blotches began to arise on the surface of the skin, and I experienced a tired feeling and dullness. I began the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as directed by him for such complaints, and in one week's time I began to feel like a new man, and am now sound and well. The 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets' are the best remedy for bilious or sick headache, or tightness about the chest, and bad taste in the mouth, that I have ever used. My wife could not walk across the floor when she began to take your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' Now she can walk quite a little ways, and do some light work."

Mrs. IDA M. STRONG, of Atascadero, Ind., writes: "My little boy had been troubled with hip-joint disease for two years. When he commenced the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' he was confined to his bed, and could not be moved without suffering great pain. But now, thanks to your 'Discovery,' he is able to be up all the time."

HIP-JOINT DISEASE.

and can walk with the help of crutches. He does not suffer any pain, and can eat and sleep as well as any one. It has only been about three months since he commenced using your medicine. I cannot find words with which to express my gratitude for the benefit he has received through you."

A TERRIBLE AFFLICTION.

Skin Disease.—The "Democrat and News," of Cambridge, Maryland, says: "Mrs. ELIZA ANN POOLE, wife of Leonard Poole, of Williamsburg, Dorchester Co., Md., has been cured of a bad case of Eczema by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The disease appeared first in her feet, extended to the knees, covering the whole of the lower limbs from feet to knees, then attacked the elbows and became so severe as to prostrate her. After being treated by several physicians for a year or two she commenced the use of the medicine named above. She soon began to mend and is now well and hearty. Mrs. Poole thinks the medicine has saved her life and prolonged her days." Mr. T. A. AYRES, of East New Market, Dorchester County, Md., vouches for the above facts.

CONSUMPTION, WEAK LUNGS, SPITTING OF BLOOD.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. While it promptly cures the severest Coughs it strengthens the system and purifies the blood.

It rapidly builds up the system, and increases the flesh and weight of those reduced below the usual standard of health by "wasting diseases."

Consumption.—Mrs. EDWARD NEWTON, of Harrowsmith, Ont., writes: "You will ever be praised by me for the remarkable cure in my case. I was so reduced that my friends had all given me up, and I had also been given up by two doctors. I then went to the best doctor in these parts. He told me that medicine was only a punishment in my case, and would not undertake to treat me. He said I might try Cod liver oil if I liked, as that was the only thing that could possibly have any curative power over consumption so far advanced. I tried the Cod liver oil as a last treatment, but I was so weak I could not keep it on my stomach. My husband, not feeling satisfied to give me up yet, though he had bought for me everything he saw advertised for my complaint, procured a quantity of your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I took only four bottles, and, to the surprise of everybody, am to-day doing my own work, and am entirely free from that terrible cough which harassed me night and day. I have been afflicted with rheumatism for a number of years, and now feel so much better that I believe, with a continuation of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I will be restored to perfect health. I would say to those who are falling a prey to that terrible disease consumption, do not do as I did, take everything else first; but take the 'Golden Medical Discovery' in the early stages of the disease, and thereby save a great deal of suffering and be restored to health at once. Any person who is still in doubt, need but write me, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply, when the foregoing statement will be fully substantiated by me."

Ulcer Cured.—ISAAC E. DOWNS, Esq., of Spring Valley, Rockland Co., N. Y. (P. O. Box 23), writes: "The 'Golden Medical Discovery' has cured my daughter of a very bad ulcer located on the thigh. After trying almost everything without success, we procured three bottles of your 'Discovery,' which healed it up perfectly." Mr. Downs continues:

Consumption and Heart Disease.—"I also wish to thank you for the remarkable cure you have effected in my case. For three years I had suffered from that terrible disease, consumption, and heart disease. Before consulting you I had wasted away to a skeleton; could not sleep nor rest, and many times wished to die to be out of my misery. I then consulted you, and you told me you had hopes of curing me, but it would take time. I took five months' treatment in all. The first two months I was almost discouraged; could not perceive any favorable symptoms, but the third month I began to pick up in flesh and strength. I cannot now recite how, step by step, the signs and realities of returning health gradually but surely developed themselves. To-day I tip the scales at one hundred and sixty, and am well and strong." Our principal reliance in curing Mr. Downs' terrible disease was the "Golden Medical Discovery."

BLEEDING FROM LUNGS. JOSEPH F. McFARLAND, Esq., Athens, La., writes: "My wife had frequent bleeding from the lungs before she commenced using your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She has not had any since its use. For some six months she has been feeling so well that she has discontinued it."

Golden Medical Discovery is Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00 per Bottle, or Six Bottles for $5.00.

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors,

NO. 663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.
CATARRH
Sold by druggists or sent by mail.
50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

PENSIONS, Officer's pay, bounty procured; disabilities relieved. 21 years' practice. Success of no fee. Write for circulars. A. W. McFARLAND & SONS, Washington, D. C., & Cincinnati, O.
PATENTS R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Instructions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 12 1/2 years' experience.

VALUABLE RECEIPTS 25c. each, 3 for 50c. Cure for Dropsy, Cure for Scrofula, Cure for Kidney Complaints. Found in Diary of an Eminent Erit Doctor, now deceased. Address, ADMINISTRATOR, Box D, Springfield, Ohio.
N. U. F. W. No. 24-87
When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

BY BEN: PERLEY POORE.

Senator Willard Saulsbury, of Delaware, (who was succeeded by his brother, Eli Saulsbury,) gave the last specimen of what was known as "plantation manners" in the United States Senate. The dignified decorum of that body had not been disturbed during a debate by belligerent demonstrations since Senator Foote levelled a pistol at Senator Benton, and the expunger tore open his garments to theatrically bare his breast, shouting, "Let the assassin fire!" Senator Saulsbury's home was at Georgetown, a pleasant little place in lower Delaware, which was at one time one of the stations in the underground railroad into Dixie. Mr. Lovett, one of the telegraphic censors, made a hurried visit there, and seized the telegrams on file at the office. Some of them, it was hinted, rather implicated the most distinguished resident of the place. Whether this was so or not, Senator Saulsbury had some fears of being arrested, and had some hard words with a secret-service agent in front of the President's house, accusing him with acting the part of a "shadow," and drawing a sword-cane. After that he became defiant in his manners in the Senate chamber, and had passed much of the time during debate in stalking to and fro, like a caged but enraged bison, his black hair hanging in masses about his face, his eyes gleaming with ill-concealed rage, and his whole manner defiant. When speaking he chose to patter after Thersites, and many had predicted that some day he would overstep the bounds of prudence, within which it was evident that he restrained himself with difficulty. One evening, after he had been called to order for saying that the Republicans were making a god of Sambo, Mr. Saulsbury began to defame the President, declaring as he proceeded that "if he wanted to paint a despot, he would paint the hideous form of Abraham Lincoln." This could not be tolerated, and by direction of the Vice President the assistant sergeant-at-arms, Mr. Bassett, was ordered to take Mr. Saulsbury in custody. After some parleying Mr. Saulsbury left the floor, and took a seat on one of the sofas with Mr. Bassett, but all the while had a revolver openly displayed, and told Mr. Bassett that if he laid a finger on him he would kill him. Presently Mr. Saulsbury went down to one of the Senator's desks and made several attempts to speak, until at last Senator Clark (who had taken the chair) ordered him to be taken into custody. Meanwhile Mr. Brown, the sergeant-at-arms, had arrived, but wishing to avoid a scene, he persuaded the irate Senator to leave the hall. Again did he return, again did he attempt to speak, again was the sergeant-at-arms ordered to remove him, and again, after using profane language and offensive epithets, did he leave the Senate chamber. The next morning a resolution of inquiry was offered, and Mr. Saulsbury only escaped expulsion out of regard to his estimable wife. The resolution was held in terrorem over him during the remainder of his senatorial term. He was a well-educated gentleman, kind and courteous, until an enemy would enter his mouth and steal away his brains, when he became, as he was on this occasion, perfectly unmanageable.

Senator Christiancy, of Michigan, who had defeated Zach Chandler's re-election as United States Senator from that State, was married at Washington on the 9th of February, 1876, to Miss Lillie Lugenbeel, of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing of the Treasury Department. The marriage took place at the boarding-place of the young lady, where the Senator resided, and was a very quiet affair, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Dr. Sunderland and witnessed by very few persons.

Senator Ferry, who was the only Senator present, officiated as groomsmen, with Miss Belle Linthicum as bride-maid. After the wedding the couple took the cars for New York, where they passed the first halcyon days of the honeymoon. The Senator, who had reached the age of 64, lost his wife about nine months previous. He was the father of six children. His bride was a blonde, quite pretty, and about 20 years of age. Their courtship was quite brief, lasting but a few weeks, the Senator having met his fate only a short time previous. When the name of Mr. Christiancy was read, in calling the roll of the Senate that afternoon, Mr. Ferry, President pro tem., said, with a sly twinkle: "I desire to state that my colleague is paired," a remark which created general laughter all over the chamber. That the uninitiated may appreciate the joke, it may be stated that it is customary in the Senate when a member wishes to be absent when a vote is taken, to pair off with some member on the opposite side who will not vote, so that his side may not lose by his absence.

Bishop Haven used to tell some good stories, including one at his own expense, about his personal friend, Dr. Newhall, at one time President of a college at Newark, Del. The Doctor was at one time very ill, and for some days he thought himself immortal, and refused to take any food. The Bishop visited him and tried to prevail upon him to take some nourishment. "No, I do not want anything," said he. "I am immortal! I am in heaven. This is heaven." Then pausing for a moment and looking at his visitor with a troubled air, he said: "But heaven, how in the world did you get here?"

When Daniel Webster was told at Washington, in June, 1852, that the Whig National Convention at Baltimore had nominated Scott and Graham, he paused a moment, and then, without moving a muscle, beyond showing a playful smile upon his face, exclaimed: "Graham and Scott! Scott and Graham!! Tar and Feathers!!" Mr. Graham was remembered as coming from the great Tar State, old North Carolina, and Scott was remembered for his military chapeau and tall plume. The sarcasm was not intended for Mr. Webster's colleague in the Cabinet, Mr. Graham, for he esteemed him highly, and gave very palpable evidence of his respect for, and confidence in, the Secretary of the Navy. Nor did Mr. Webster entertain any but kindly feelings towards Gen. Scott. One of the most eloquent speeches made in the United States Senate was in commendation of Gen. Scott's brilliant and humane campaign in Mexico.

IN TRAINING.

"Ha, Yellowly, how do you do?"
"Only middling, Brownly."
"Only middling! You look worse than middling. Why, you are thin as a lath."
"Yes."
"Been ill?"
"No. The fact is, I conceived the idea some time ago of trying to make some money so that I might buy a farm and settle down for the remainder of my days. I thought of various plans and at last came to the conclusion that I would become a 'freak' in a dime museum."
"A freak?"
"Yes; and I went into training to become a living skeleton."
"A living skeleton?"
"Yes; and so I looked around me for something to do where I would have plenty of hard work and very little food to eat. I found the position I desired and am now in training. I will be ready for the museum, I expect in the course of a week or two."
"How are you training? What are you doing?"
"I am running a newspaper."—Boston Courier.

J. H. CONRAD,

DEALER IN

ROOFING AND SPOUTING

GUTTERING, HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,

Cutlery, Nails, Paints, Woodenware &c.

MAIN STREET,

ST. JOE IND.

All work and goods guaranteed to give satisfaction. Give me a call.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

St. Joe Meat Market,

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

M. TUSTISON,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES,

ARTHEX POTS FOR HOUSE PLANTS

PROVISIONS, OYSTERS, LEMONS,

ORANGES, CANDIES, CIGARS &c.

MAIN ST. — — ST. JOE, IND.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

R. G. COBURN,

AGENT FOR THE

ALBION SPRING Cultivator

AND FIELD HARROW,

AND DAISY RAKE.

Farmers will save money by seeing me before buying. I will call on you with a sample in a few days. R. G. Coburn, St. Joe, Ind.

Take Notice!

Having returned from Tennessee, I will assist again in

Raising & Moving Buildings,

in short all kinds of Rope, Tackle and Jack-screw Work. Having had 15 years experience, and improved machinery, I feel safe in guaranteeing satisfaction. Heavy and difficult work a specialty. Correspondence solicited. Direct all communications to H. or M. Milliman, St. Joe Station, Ind., or A. Monroe, Hicksville, Ohio.

Undertaker and Embalmer. Keeps on hand constantly a stock of Undertaking Supplies, Coffins, Caskets, Burial Robes &c. I can supply as fine goods as can be furnished. Will attend to making all arrangements for funerals. Can respond to at all hours of the night. Office on corner of Main and Second Streets; residence on corner of Main and Fourth Streets, St. Joe, Ind.

Arthur James,

DEALER IN

Watches, Clocks,

AND JEWELRY.

Repairing done promptly and all work warranted. Call and see me at Bair & Son's store, Spencerville, Ind.

M. T. BISHOP,

DEALER IN

LUMBER

OF ALL KINDS,

Shingles, Lime, Lath,

MOULDINGS &c.

Large Stock and Prices Low. Yard Near Depot. St. Joe, Ind.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNESS

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, JUNE 17, 1887.

NO. 21.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Geo, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind, John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a speciality. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

The following changes in Indiana star-route schedules have been ordered by the postoffice authorities to go into effect July 1. Edinburg to Shelbyville, increase service to six times a week. Crawfordsville to Alamo, embrace Yountsville, without change of distance, curtail route to begin at Yountsville, omitting Crawfordsville, decreasing distance to five miles; increase service to six times a week. Reese's Mill to Lebanon, increase service to six times a week; make schedule daily, except Sundays. Rensselaer to Culp's Farm, end at Pleasant Grove, omitting Culp, decreasing distance three miles. Warren to Billman, increase service to three times a week; make schedule Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays. Hartford City to Priam, increase service to three times a week; change schedule to Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays. Fort Wayne to St. Joe Station, increase service between Spencer and St. Joe Station, three miles, to six times a week. Logansport to McCameron, increase service to three times a week; change schedule to Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays. Epsom to Washington, curtail route to omit Washington and end at Cornettsville, decreasing distance nine miles, and extend from Epsom to and begin at Plainville, increasing distance five miles; increase service to six times a week. Mauckport to Corydon, increase to three times a week; make schedule Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays. New Amsterdam to Corydon, increase to three times a week; make schedule Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays. Alpha to Deputy, extend from Alpha to begin at Oard Spring, increasing distance three and five-tenths miles. Salem to Delaney's Creek, increase to three times a week; make schedule Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Salem to New Philadelphia, embrace Sebula, between Canton and New Philadelphia, increasing distance four miles. Elkinsville to Brownstown, increase service to six times a week; make schedule daily, except Sundays.

A case of death by poison has occurred at Valpen, a station west of Huntingburg, on the Louisville, Evansville and St. Louis Railroad, the victim being a child of Mr. Henry Hallenberg, a wealthy merchant of that place. The mother had given the child a tightly-corked bottle containing what she supposed to be whisky, but after the child had gone off to play she was startled by the screams of the little fellow, and on responding found the child in terrible convulsions. The bottle was uncorked and the contents, which afterwards proved to be oil of tansy, found missing. The child lived but a short time in excruciating agony.

The following patents have been issued to Indiana inventors: Henry W. Alshouse, ester, Warsaw; John W. Boyd, assignor of one-half to M. W. Walden, Vevay, churn; Wm. A. Cochran, Edinburg, assignor of two-thirds to H. G. Solomon, Hope, J. W. Wingate, Huntington, apparatus for making fences; Martin A. Eisenbour, Plymouth, cultivator; Thomas E. Hampton, Wabash, school desk and seat; Wm. McTyre, Madison, coffee and tea-pot; Wm. C. Whitehead and A. L. Testor, said Testor assignor to J. H. Latshaw, Indianapolis, sand molding machine.

The women in and for eight or ten miles around Anderson are just boiling over with wrath, because the terrible roaring of the immense gas well at that village has been more disastrous to the egg crop than the loudest thunder ever heard. Not an egg will hatch, and even the old hens refuse to lay, the noise being so great that the biddies become so bewildered that they cannot return to their nests, and even forget to put a shell on the eggs.

The New Albany District Conference of the Methodist Church are contemplating ing the purchase of 160 acres of land in Orange County, near West Baden Springs. Should the land be purchased, suitable buildings will be erected, similar to those at Chautauqua, giving to the membership of that denomination a pleasant place in which to hold camp-meetings and other assemblies of like character.

Mr. George Conrad, a wealthy farmer, living about three miles southwest of Thorntown, accidentally shot and killed himself. The entire load of shot passed through his heart. The supposition is that he went to get the gun to shoot a hawk, and, in picking it up, the hammer caught and the gun was discharged.

Mrs. Frost, an aged lady residing in Harrison Township, Miami County, arose in the night and, walking to the bank of Deer Creek, near her home, jumped into the water. She was not missed until next morning, when the body was found in the stream. Mrs. Frost's mind is believed to have been impaired.

A Polish Jew, named Leopold, employed in the Star Woolen Mills, at Wabash, fell into a vat of boiling water. From his middle down he was horribly scalded, and when exposed to the air the skin came off in flakes. His recovery is doubtful.

A young married man living near Corydon, was whipped by the Regulators, and is now confined to his bed. He offered resistance and was given seventy-five lashes. He is a desperate character, and is charged with many misdemeanors.

Lightning struck the residence of Thomas Gilbert, at Center Square, Switzerland County, instantly killing Mrs. Gilbert and Mrs. John March, and severely burning Gilbert's young daughter and Township Trustee Jacob Shaddy.

A. J. Ford, of Donaldsonville, while returning home from prayer-meeting, was struck by a Vandallia train and killed. He was a widower, fifty-five years old, but left a family of grown children.

John Wennings and Edward Wennings, of Palmira, are in jail at Paoli for having cheated a farmer of Debois County, whom they gave a five-dollar bill having a "9" attached for a fifty-dollar bill. They had purchased cattle of the farmer.

Gold has been found on some knob land near Bennettsville, Clark County, belonging to Mrs. Emily Hannens. Specimens of ore were taken out and found to contain $35 in gold to the ton. Excitement over the find is high.

Harry Weaver was drowned in the St. Marys River, at Fort Wayne.

John Smith, a well-known Terre Haute character, committed suicide by taking Rough on Rats. Smith was a day laborer, and went by the name of "John Smith, the well-digger." He had quarreled with his wife.

The State officers have appointed Geo. W. Johnson, of Indianapolis, and D. C. McCallum, of Laporte, members of the Soldiers' Monument Committee to succeed Gen. Lew Wallace and Hugh Dougherty, resigned.

Negotiations are on foot for the building of a railroad from Fort Wayne to St. Louis, parallel to the Wabash.

It has been decided to hold the next annual picnic of the White-water Valley Bar Association in Richmond, July 22, and L. D. Stubbs, John L. Rupe, Lee Yaryan, E. A. Richey, and J. F. Robbins were appointed to perfect arrangements.

Ellsworth Webster, whose home is at Shelbyville, shot himself by accident, while at Morristown. The wound, although not fatal, is a serious one.

George Viberg has been elected by the Commissioners of Allen County, Sheriff, vice Degroff Nelson, deceased.

A 4-year-old son of Wm. Woolsey, of Vincennes, was scalded to death by falling into a tub of hot water.

PITH AND POINT.

The first thing in a boot is the last. The main spring of time March, April, and May.

Why should not ducks be allowed of doctors' promises? Because they make such personal remarks.

Amid all the mutations of time it has never yet been discovered why a lawyer calls any legal document a brief.

"Riches have wings," and it's no use to invent a flying machine for poor people, as they couldn't buy it. —Norman Independent.

"What's the trouble here, Mickey? 'Don't you know? 'There's a street car tie-up.' 'O, I see. That's why so many people are standing around in knots' —Philadelphia Call.

An Austin man sent one dollar in answer to an advertisement which promised for that amount to tell "Why I became a Mason," and he received the reply, "Because I didn't want to be a shoemaker." —Texas Siftings.

A BAPTIST minister was once asked how it was that he consented to the marriage of his daughter to a Presbyterian. "Well my dear friend," he replied, "as far as I have been able to discover, Cupid never studied theology."

"Say, my friend, where did you get that black eye?" "Fell against a hitch post." "Ah, my dear sir, I'm afraid that your black eye is the trademark of a drunkard." "No, sir, taint trademark—nothing but a post-mark."

"What is a good test of a diamond?" asks a correspondent. About as good a test as any is to ask the jeweler you buy it of what he will take it back for. If he will offer half as much as it costs it is apt to be a genuine stone. —N. Y. Graphic.

A FRANKLIN COUNTY fellow has won a bet by eating sixteen pies in twenty minutes. There are some men that find glory in a performance in which every little pig is their equal and every big hog their superior. —Pittsburgh Bulletin.

WIFE of a rich rural Californian at her first grand dinner. The Colonel offers his arm: "I am to have the pleasure of taking you out to dinner, Mrs. A." Rich rural wife: "Go 'long with you; my husband is here; take your own wife!" —Puck.

HUSBAND (looking round impatiently for his boots)—My dear, will you be so kind and condescending as to inform me where in thunder my boots have been put? Wife (with bitter sarcasm)—You will find them just where you left them when you came in at 2 o'clock this morning—at the foot of the stairs.

"A DEAD GIVE-AWAY." He was a bridegroom newly made—a wedding tourist he. His bride sat in the waiting-room, as sweet as sweet could be; Yet one would think that he had been a husband half his life. As on the register he wrote: "J. Percy Newe and wife." But as he raised his shiny hat, that showed no mark of age, A shower of rice fell from within upon the open page. "Enough!" the jeweled clerk exclaimed, and brushed away the rice. "John, bridal chamber No. 4 (we charge him double price)." —Life.

"My friends," said a clergyman in a Dakota town which is enjoying a boom, as he arose in the pulpit, "we will dispense with the services this morning and give our attention to a work of greater importance. As you are probably all aware, a party of eastern capitalists arrived in the city last night with a view to investing in real estate, and we will now consider ourselves dismissed and go down to the hotel and work them. We want to hustle right along too, before some of those revivalists from Plugetown get hold of them and shove off some of their swamp lands onto them." —Dakota Bell.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORTA WIFE, OLDS. PUBLISHED.

TWO PICTURES.

BY EVELYN KIMBALL JOHNSON.

They sat beneath a perfumed shade,
While fragrant blossoms drifted down,
Fell lights on a fair-haired maiden,
And wreathed her lover's locks of brown.

The drowsy bees hummed in the boughs,
Extracting honey cool and sweet,
And breezes soft, that fanned their brows,
Shook snow-white petals at their feet.

The sky burned crimson in the west,
And tinted the maiden's cheek rose-blush;
While in her lover's throbbing breast
There glowed a deeper, warmer flush.

And on her rose-red lips he pressed
A thrilling and entrancing kiss,
And drew her head upon his breast,
He fondly told a tale like this:

To-morrow eve we will be wed;
And as you stand in white array,
These blossoms sweet shall crown your head
A coronet from smiling May!

But she made answer: "Quently June
Will come with roses in her arms,
To sing a more enchanting tune,
And woo us with a thousand charms."

These apple blossoms are passing sweet,
As on us they are drifting down,
Cool, soft, and fragrant at our feet;
But give to me June's rose-leaf crown."

Thus while they sit these lovers fond—
Well turn another scene to sight;
An apple orchard, just beyond,
Where falls the sunset's crimson light.

An old man sits beneath the tree,
And soft, sweet blossoms drifting down,
On whitened locks are falling free,
Those locks in bygone days so brown!

He sits alone to-night and sighs,
While tears his faded eyes bedim;
You sunset, with its thousand dyes,
Holds in its glow faint light for him!

With trembling voice he calls a name
That now, as always, he holds dear;
Although unknown to earthly fame,
It gave to him life's sweetest cheer!

From out a volume worn with age,
He lifts a lock of golden hair;
A falling blossom kisses the page,
That years had held the treasure fair.

TRIALS OF WEDLOCK.

BY CECIL STERNE.

Lizzie Docks was seated one morning with her maiden aunt at the breakfast table.

"Well, my dear," said auntie, in her shrill voice, "I do admire your spirit. I don't respect any woman who will live with a man who drinks. You just stay with me, and if he don't come to terms pretty soon, you get a judicial separation. You will be well off."

But Lizzie was not happy, notwithstanding her aunt's reasoning. Two weeks passed, and she had not heard a word from her husband. She was wretched.

Poor Dave! How all his goodness, all his kind little deeds, were summed up in her heart! How she missed the merry laugh, and the brown eyes beaming smiles upon her! She knew he would never send for her; he was too obstinate; yet she would not retract. He had come home from market so often drunk, that she was determined he should give up drink forever. All the fectotal lectures said it was the right way.

Lizzie visited a school friend, several years older than herself. Lizzie thought her the happiest woman on earth. She had been married ten years, and her husband did not drink, and seemed to have no bad habits.

"Lizzie, you are down-hearted; there is something the matter with you," said her friend, Mrs. Jackson, after tea was over, and they were left by themselves.

The tears welled in Lizzie's pretty blue eyes, and when she felt a hand laid gently in hers, the long pent-up feeling gave way, and hiding her head in her friend's bosom, she sobbed, "Oh, Marian, I am wretched—wretched!"

Then she told the story of all her woes. When she had finished, Mrs. Jackson looked very grave.

"You have pursued a wrong course, Lizzie," she said gently. "You will go back to him, won't you?"

Lizzie did not answer. She felt it was a very hard thing to do. Mrs. Jackson watched her closely, and seemed to realize the struggle through which she was passing.

"Lizzie, I will tell you something which I have confided to no one, but perhaps it will do you good to know how I won my husband back to me."

"You?" exclaimed Lizzie, in amazement. "I thought your life was one of unclouded happiness."

"Yes," said Mrs. Jackson, calmly. "I am glad you think I was always happy, for I consider it so wrong to give people cause to talk about the most intimate affairs of husband and wife. If we have any secret things pining our flesh, is it not our duty to bear the wound in silence, rather than vulgarly betray our feelings by word or look? My story I tell you only because you may see your own troubles in the true light."

Then she continued, softly, "It is now about three years ago that a young woman, a distant relative of mine, came to see us. She was in humble circumstances. We pitied the frail, beautiful thing, and invited her to make her home with us. I noticed at once that my husband admired her greatly, but not until he became peevish and unreasonable with me, and full of little cares and attentions for her, was I aware that she had stolen his affections away from me. You know, Lizzie, what a jealous creature I used to be at school, and for a time it seemed to me that I could not bear the burden; but I knew that anger and quarrels would only alienate him further from me, so I tried to treat him as nicely as ever; but I told the girl she had better look out for a situation. I did not give her my reasons, but she seemed to understand, and left two days after for Chicago. Then came the hardest battle I ever fought in my life, Lizzie, but I was determined to win him back. He often stayed a couple of days in Chicago, and returned with all kinds of stories on account of the delay. I listened with an air of unbelief I could not control, but I said nothing. After many months his manner changed. He was less abstracted, less cool, and when he fell ill with the fever I nursed him, I believe, more tenderly than I could have done before my trial. When he was delirious he called for me all the time, and accused himself bitterly for his neglect. Oh, Lizzie! never shall I forget the evening when the doctor pronounced my husband better. He opened his eyes, took my hand, then folded me in his arms, saying: 'Dear, dear wife! will a life of sacrifice ever repay you for your devotion?' There were tears in his eyes, and I asked: 'Where is she?' 'She has gone to London with a rich man.' Not another word in regard to this matter has ever been mentioned between us; but I know that if I had followed any other course than I did pursue, I would have been just as wretched as you are to-day."

Lizzie held Marian's hand gently pressed in her own.

"How wrong I did!" she murmured. "Oh, I see now there are things harder to bear in a husband than drinking."

She thought how faithful Dave had ever been; full of little attentions which women love, and which so seldom go beyond the honeymoon. She had been so sure of his great love, and was yet. How different she could have made it for them both! Surely she would have had less patience with him had he acted like Marian's husband.

A rap at the front door. "A telegram for you, Lizzie," said Mrs. Jackson. "Auntie sent it."

Lizzie became pale when she read—
"Come home at once. Docks has got with an accident."

"Oh, Marian, I may be too late! It is all over with Dave if he took Sam, our new horse, to town, for he don't know how to drive when he's drunk. Oh, why did I not tell you before?"

Marian took the sorrowful wife under her care. Mr. Jackson was called in, and he suggested that Marian go with Lizzie to her home, and see if she could be of any use.

"If you can get ready," he added, "I can see you off by the 10 o'clock train."

They caught the train, and reached home the next morning very early. Two doctors' carriages were at the door, and the well-known face of Jim, the laborer, peered anxiously in the carriage window.

"Oh, ma'am, so glad you came!"

"How did it happen, Jim?"

"Oh, it was all through that there wild horse," said Jim, trying to put as little blame as possible on his master. "He had, perhaps, a little too much, but the horse was unmanageable, and threw him out of the trap and broke his leg in two places. Inflammation has set in, and the doctors say—"

Lizzie did not hear any more. She rushed up the steps, and in a moment stood by her husband's bedside. Her arms were around his neck, and the doctor who stood by said softly, "You are just in time, madam; perhaps he will recognize you."

Then he softly left the room.

"Dave, do you know me?" said Lizzie, stroking his flushed face; but the patient did not stir. "Dave, if you die without forgiving me I shall never know an hour's peace! Oh, it was my fault! If I had not left you, you would not have driven Sam to town without me. It is my harshness which drove you to do this!"

Softly she kissed his closed eyes, his flushed cheeks, his mute lips.

She raised his head gently, while the burning tears dropped slowly on the sheets. Suddenly he stirred, and his eyes were resting on her! A smile lit up his good-natured, handsome face.

"Sis!"

A world of love was contained in this favorite pet word.

"Dave, I am so sorry! I shall reproach myself all my life that I am the cause of your death! But oh, Dave, you must not die! I am here to take care of you. I shall be kinder and better, and help you in a different way. Dave, you must not go," said Lizzie, sobbing and blushing, and clinging closer to him, "for I have a secret to tell you."

Again he smiled, a faint, happy smile.

"There will be plenty for two, sis. If it is a boy, let him be a farmer. Don't reproach yourself, sis, for—"

"Oh, but I do!" sobbed Lizzie, passionately. "You gave me everything! I could not find one single fault; you were the kindest and truest of men, only why did I wish for perfection? Why was I so cross? Oh, Dave, say you forgive me for leaving you! I love you, and always shall! Why was I so foolish?"

The arms that were once so strong were for the last time stretched out toward her. "Sis, of course I forgive you." Then he paused as if too exhausted to speak. "I was too stubborn, but somehow, when you left me, all the good seemed to have gone with you. I was drunk all the time, and I did not care."

He closed his eyes, then he murmured, almost inaudibly, "Stay by me, sis, very close, to the last. You know I never loved any woman but you. Don't have vain regrets. Remember, it is my last wish that you shall take care of yourself. Will you, sis?"

These were his last words; his breathing became more rapid, and his face became gradually pale. Marian and some friends came into the room, and found Dave dead, and his wife, still holding his hands, kneeling by his bedside.

The faithful Marian remained till the funeral was over, and Dave was laid to rest. Then she took Lizzie home with her.

"I must not stay long, Marian," said the sorrow-stricken wife, "but I will go for a while, because I must keep my promise and take care of myself, as poor Dave wished me to do. I have a great deal to do now, and everything to manage alone."

She did manage splendidly, with the aid of Jim, the laborer, and when her baby was born, she seemed to revive and have a new tie to life.

"He must be a farmer, as his father wanted him to be," thought Lizzie.

But she had no cares in that direction, for young Dave's aspirations never went beyond the farm, made alive by a herd of beautiful, soft-eyed cows, the buzz of the busy bees, and the contented cackle of the hens. Dogs, cats, and all had a place in his heart, and attached him to the pretty house, with its grand trees, and its flowers that his mother tended, that sweet old mother of his, who had been to him a friend, a sister, a mother in one, and who by sad experience had learned that—

"Kindness has no selfish claims,
All things else but worldly moves;
Finest labor is to share
And clip the wings of flying love."

Young Men and Single Life.

It is undoubtedly true that a single life is not without its advantages for some. There are hundreds of young men, as there are a like number of young women, to whom a married life would be unsuitable and unwise. It is an inexcusable sin for any young man of hereditary ill-health or deformity to assume marriage, and to such a one single life has advantages, even though it holds out few pleasures. But that young man who is possessed with every bodily and mental equipment, and marries not, fails in one of the most palpable duties of life. He deprives himself of life's most refined and exalted pleasures, of some of its strongest incentives to virtue and activity, and sets an example unworthy of imitation. Nothing has, or should have, a greater refining or moralizing influence to a young man than marriage. If he remains unmarried, he lays himself open to alluring vices that have no place in his eye or mind when his attentions and affections are centered upon a devoted wife. Marriage changes the current of a man's feelings, and gives him a center for his thoughts, his affections, and his acts. It renders him more virtuous, more wise, and is an incentive to put forth his best exertions to attain position in commercial and social circles. It is conceded that marriage will increase the cares of a young man which he would not encounter if he remained single, but it must be granted, on the other hand that it heightens the pleasures of life. If marriage, in some instances within our knowledge, has seemed to be but a hindrance to certain success, the countless instances must not be forgotten where it has proved to be the incentive which has called forth the best part of man's nature, roused him from selfish apathy, and inspired in him those generous principles and high resolves which have helped to develop him into a character known, loved, and honored by all within the sphere of its influence. Matrimony, it is true, is chargeable with numberless solicitudes and responsibilities, and this all young men should fully understand before entering upon it, but it is also full of joy and happiness that is unknown to the bachelor.—Brooklyn Magazine.

LIBERTY is the right to do what the laws allow; and if a citizen could do what they forbid it would be no longer liberty, because others would have the same power.—Montesquieu.

Education and Industry.

Education of the modern mind does not diminish industry, and does not, except for a very short period, break the habit of assiduity at work. No one it diminishes the readiness to do manual labor in those who can do it, though it does diminish their interest in the "fanciful jobs" as their mothers call them, who, if left uneducated, would have gone on in the groove of their fathers, taking, by a species of natural selection, to the lighter tasks. The regular work as before, though unduly not in old, machine-like way. They spare themselves more, they more quickly to avoid unnecessary toil, and, as a result, as a large proportion are and must be selfish men in numberless instances, they "scamp" their work in ways the unintelligent never think of. That scamping, together with the eagerness for more money produced by new wants, and a certain inactivity or independence, combine to produce an unfavorable impression as to industry which is not justified, or rather is due to other causes than aversion to work.

English must wait a little for full information, the boys who have passed through school not being 30 yet; but they do not despair of seeing plenty of Hugh Millers among their workmen. That is, men who are educated, yet have a genuine love for and pride in exceedingly hard and monotonous manual toil. Miller set up stone walls for eight hours a day, a real back-breaking occupation, but he had learned more than most boys. It would be well if half time could be made general, and it is nearly convinced it would increase learning, by allowing school time to last longer, and would not displace any scheme for keeping up the habit of manual labor, which will be destroyed by the great majority while the world goes round, and which is, in fact, the permanent gymnasium of the human race; but there is little fear even if the present system continues. The changes which may come will not be caused by laziness, but by a longing for higher wages and the comforts they bring, which some industries, agriculture especially, in closely-populated countries, may find it difficult to satisfy. It will be satisfied, however, in one way or another, for education opens wide the grand safety-valve, the power of wandering over the earth in search of the opportunity to toil. For what we know, the human race may be destined some day to perish like mites in a cress, through their own multiplication; but at present there is ample space for all of our race, who may for the next century, at a cost only of experience, have their twenty acres apiece to work on. Germans, Englishmen, Indians, are swarming out in thousands daily, but still there is no chance of their being driven, like 11 million, to that end. Work for bare existence under such other virtues than industry are apt to perish. Another Europe could live and prosper on the unpopulated river basins of South America. Education helps to disperse mankind; and we certainly do not find that emigrants, who are rarely of the know-nothing class, are at all reluctant to undertake severe toil. Is there not in the whole discussion a defect caused by tradition, an impression that as brain workers avoid hard labor, knowing well that they cannot do both up to their full power, those whose brains have been developed will never do it? Fortunately, or unfortunately, they will specially feel the great discipline force of the world, the strong conscription of hunger, which constrains us all. If all the world were Newtons, nobody would get a mouthful of bread without somebody facing all weathers to plow and sow and reap.—Science.

One Dose Was Enough.

A prominent physician, who has since died, once wrote a prescription for a powerful liniment. He was noted among the druggists for his chirography. He had a large practice, and often wrote in such haste that it was difficult to read his prescriptions. The directions written upon the above-mentioned "recipe" were, "Apply locally as directed." The clerk read it, "Take a teaspoonful three times daily." The patient took only one dose.—Harper's Magazine.

AGE is not to be feared; the older a good and healthy person grows, the greater becomes his capacity to enjoy the deeper, sweeter and more noble kinds of happiness which the world affords.

BLOODTHIRSTY ALBION.

Fifteen Foreign Wars During Queen Victoria's Reign.

John Bright has been telling the truth about England's foreign wars, and the puncture to her self-righteousness ought to be big enough to let considerable conceit out. At a recent meeting of the Peace Society he said: "With regard to this question of peace, we are really as far off as our forefathers were, and nearly as savage and barbarous." A French statesman, a member of the French Chamber, said, speaking of England and its foreign policy, that "we were in a State of peace, soothed by occasional acts of rapine." That phrase, to a large extent, describes the condition in which our country has been during the whole reign of the Queen.

"Now, how many wars have we had during the Queen's reign? We have had a war in New Zealand, and one of the officers engaged in that war was obliged to admit that the New Zealanders were entirely right and we entirely wrong. We have had three wars in China. We had a Zulu war not long ago, made absolutely by a man without any orders from this country, a man who professed to be really influenced by the Christian faith and religion. That cost us a great many English lives, and we destroyed the Zulu nation, at the same time bringing confusion into South Africa. We have had a Soudan war, in which one of the Napiers was concerned, a war for which he had not the slightest justification or instruction from this country. Then there was the great Gikh war, by which the Punjab was annexed to the English Dominion in India. There were also two Afghan wars, for which there was not a particle of justification, in one of which a whole English army was destroyed. Then we have had three Burmese wars, the second of which, I recollect, was got upon pretenses absolutely fraudulent and scandalous. Then we came to the Crimean war, the really big war of our time, though it did not last very long. But as to its severity, and the mortality caused by it, no man is able to make an accurate computation.

A book written by a French general who recently visited the Crimea, in connection with the cemeteries there, estimated that the bodies of 250,000 men are there. I believe the Russians alone buried more than 100,000 on the north side of Sebastopol. Kinglake, in his history, estimates that 1,000,000 men lost their lives in that struggle, a number about equal to every adult man in the vast city of London.

And what were all these lives sacrificed for? Absolutely nothing whatever, because the only apparent result was a slight limitation put upon the Russian Government with regard to its future fleet in the Black Sea, and that was surrendered the moment the Franco-German war broke out. It was not war, because war was never declared, but we made war, notwithstanding, on a country with which we were notoriously and professedly at peace. The bombardment of Alexandria is a sort of peace which the public of this country have not been enthusiastic about. Then followed the war in the Soudan, during which, at the lowest calculation, from 40,000 to 50,000 lives were lost.

I once proposed that the foreign office should be burned down, and it would be a very good thing if all its treaties burned with it. Conceive the cost of the wars that have occurred during the reign of the Queen. Go back further to the beginning of what we call our parliamentary and constitutional system in the reign of William III., and you will find that without one single exception they were absolutely unnecessary, and that the only result they have produced is an enormous national debt, which from that time to this has been extracted from the labor and the sweat of millions of men in this country, but which should have remained with them for the sustenance and comfort of themselves and their families.

Fifteen wars in a fifty-years' reign of a professedly "peace-loving" and tender-hearted queen are hardly among the blessings for which jubilee thanks will be returned.

A Small Blunder.

A lady, on the lookout for a steady nurse-girl to take charge of the children, entered a servants' registry, where her eyes fell on a respectable young woman from Normandy, who looked the very picture of health. "I like your appearance," said madame, "but tell me why you left your former situation."

"A simple oversight, ma'am. One day as I was nursing Mrs. L.'s baby I looked out of a window to listen to a man who was singing in the yard. Mrs. L. gave me twopenny to throw down to him, but alas! instead of the money I dropped the child out of the window!"

—Le Girelot.

Distribution of the Megalith.

Nothing in the ancient history of man is of more considerable interest than are those monuments, at once rudely grand and mysteriously simple, which have been designated megalithic. They may be simply raised stones, isolated menhirs, cromlechs arranged in a circle, or artificial caves formed by placing flat flags horizontally on standing supports. Dolmens or covered passages were usually buried under masses of earth or stones, so as to form veritable tumuli; but they always present the common character of being constructed in rough blocks, virgin of all human labor.

Megaliths are important on account of their number and their dispersion. They are to be found, with a likeness running through them all, in places most remote from one another, on different continents. At Carnac and at Kergrist are immense rows of stones, of which the megaliths of the Khasias of India appear like exact copies. Similar dolmens are standing in Palestine, Ireland, and Hindostan. Megaliths can be found in Peru, and among the aboriginal monuments of North America, in Spain and Denmark, in the Orades and the islands of the Mediterranean, on the shores of the Dead Sea and of the Baltic, at the foot of Mount Sinai, and in Iceland, at the edge of the eternal glaciers. The dolmens raised upon the top of a tumulus in Algeria may be compared with those standing in the department of the Aveyron or with those in Kintyre, Scotland, and Roskilde in Scandinavia; the cromlech of Mavura, in Iceland, with that at Halskov, in Denmark; the circle at Peshawur, in Afghanistan, with the circle of Stennis, in one of the Orades; the tombs of the Neolithic with the chondels that are found in Africa; the cromlechs of Algeria, with those of Aschenrade, on the Dvina; the triliths of Stonehenge with those of Tripoli, or those mentioned by Palgrave as in Arabia. Even a superficial study will disclose the relations that exist between the covered passages of Provence and the megaliths of Brittany, and between these and analogous constructions in Spain and Algeria. A common thought, and an identical funeral rite, are revealed.—Popular Science Monthly.

Hunting Geese in a Snowstorm.

Here at Linden Bend it was, but under another generation of trees, that Natty Fairthorne had a strange wild-geese chase. It was in November, 1791. Natty had been all day looking for ducks, and found none. An hour before sundown, keenly disappointed, and somewhat unsteady, he sculled up part of the creek, near which he lived. When at Watson's Ford, half a mile below, it began to snow, and, before he had reached the lindens, the air was thick. At length, above the moaning of the wind in the old trees Natty thought he heard the "honking" of bewildered geese. At once he was a new man and on the alert. The supposed cries of the geese were incessant, and surely came from the bend of the linden woods. Sniffing with all his strength in that direction, he peered into the outer darkness, and finally felt sure that he saw the geese. A long dark line close to the water was moving steadily up the creek, and above the roar of the wind could be heard their wild "honking." Natty steadied his boat, took deliberate aim and fired. Luckily the powder flashed in the pan. Immediately the voices of several men rang through the air, and a belated surveying party, some of whom had seen the flash, demanded who was attacking them.

The truth was soon known, and Natty promised never again to shoot geese in a snowstorm. The surveyor's singing had deceived him, and he always insisted, when twitted about his goose-chase, that men "who couldn't sing better than they did deserved to run a risk."—Waste-Land Wanderings.

The Czar of Russia is hard at work preparing his diaries for publication.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficial influence of

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health. It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young. As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

PILES

Is a sure cure for Piles, Hemorrhoids, and all other diseases of the rectum. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

OPIUM

MORPHINE AND TOBACCO HABITS CURED AT HOME.

No Pain, Nervousness, Loss of Sleep, or Interference with Business. Directions simply. Terms: CASH. Trial sent free on trial, and NO PAY asked until you are benefited.

A TESTIMONIAL.

Dear, Crutcher & Co., Ann., Oct. 10, 1888. The Humane Remedy Co., Lafayette, Ind. Gentlemen: Your cure for the opium habit is all that I could desire. My wife, Mrs. M. J. Wilson, was cured in 36 days, she was using the Humane Remedy every 24 hours when she commenced your medicine. She is now in better health, and has not taken any medicine for 24 days. Published in the Harrisburg, Pa. paper, and will publish it in the Jonesboro, Ga. paper in a few days. You are at liberty to use my name publicly, and I will affirm the above statement in any court, and will recommend your medicine to any and all opium eaters. Yours for humanity, Jno. B. Wilson.

Dear, Crutcher & Co., Ann. The above is an exact copy of the original letter as published in the Home and Farm, Louisville, Ky., Dec. 1st, 1888. Confidential correspondence solicited with all honest interest.

THE HUMANE REMEDY CO., 35 and 37 Perry St., Lafayette, Indiana.

MENTION THIS PAPER WHEN ORDERING.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH PENNYROYAL PILLS

The Original and Only Genuine.

Safe and always reliable. Beware of cheap imitations. English and French. For the cure of all diseases of the female system. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Price 25 cents a box.

A MAN

WHO IS ACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RY

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago, and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest—is the only true middle-link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific. The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Okauchee, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unequalled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

ALL EXPRESS TRAINS between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent FULLMAN PALACE PARLOR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kanabakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.

All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employees of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and friendly attention.

For Tickets, Maps, Folders—obtainable at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada—or any desired information, address,

R. R. CABLE, E. ST. JOHN, E. A. HOLBROOK, Pres't & Gen'l Mgr, Chicago. Asst. Gen'l Mgr, Chicago. Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Agt., Chicago.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times."

Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
One Year, in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months ..... 50
Three Months ..... 25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe
as second-class matter.

FRIDAY JUNE 17, 1887.

CONTRACTOR'S NOTICE.

I will receive sealed proposals at the bridge just south of James Dragoon's, on Saturday, June 25th, at 3 o'clock, P. M., for the building of a bridge across the county drain at that place. I reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

J. E. Dermott,

Trustee Concord Township.

The old settlers have come and gone and whether they had a good time or not we are not able to say, but one thing sure, there was a big rowl and the weather was hot; the people were hot and everybody was hot. At an early hour the people began to roll in, tumble in, any way to get it, and at 10 o'clock the town was one vast sea of sweltering humanity, facing the rays of a red hot sun, endeavoring to keep cool by the use of palm leaf fans, and mopping their faces with bandanas. The procession formed at the depot upon the arrival of the train from the west and marched to the grove headed by the St. Joe and Jackson Bands; at the grove the exercises were opened with music by the bands, after which R. G. Colburn in a few appropriate words welcomed the old settlers to St. Joe, and introduced Mr. Henry Willis of Waterloo, president of the association, who took charge of the meeting. The choir then sang an anthem, followed by prayer by J. M. Langley, after which a recess until 1 o'clock was taken. In the afternoon Rev. Gary of Hicksville delivered a very interesting address, but the crowd kept moving around so, that it was impossible for a great many to hear what was said. Following this came short speeches by old settlers, election of officers &c., and the exercises at the stand were over. Then came a scramble for the river to see the tub race and wire walking. The fantastic parade was the winding up feature of the occasion, and it might be said of it, that it was short and sweet, especially some of the girls that rode in the procession. With a few exceptions the meeting was as successful as it was possible to make it with such a large crowd, and we are glad also to note the fact that there was very little drunkenness, considering the large number present.

Billy Leighty won the tub race and got the two dollars.

The Methodist people took in $165.00 at their stand.

Uncle Sam Wasson was on hand, and was the oldest settler on the ground.

The total expense of the meeting was about forty dollars. It has all been paid.

It is estimated that there were between three and four thousand people in town.

We endeavored to get the names of the old settlers who were here on Thursday, for publication, but there were so many young settlers, that it was a difficult matter to find the old ones.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

SPENCERVILLE.

W. C. Tindall is still seriously ill. Dr. T. J. Dills visited his brother last Saturday.

The foundation for the new church will soon be finished.

Spencerville has been a measley town for the past few weeks.

After July 1st, Spencerville will have a daily mail. This is official.

George Baltz will move to Auburn and engage in the livery business.

Miss Hattie Dills has been quite sick with the measles, but is getting better.

Quite a number of our people attended the old settler's meeting at St. Joe.

Daniel Metcalf and wife, of Norris Chapel, visited with friends at this last Friday.

David Butler has the finest patch of strawberries around here, and is doing a good business in that line.

O. W. Rummell resigned the superintendency of the Methodist Sunday school and Ben Zimmerman was elected to take his place.

CONCORD.

Lestie Knight visited at home last Sunday.

Will some one ask C. O. Jenken's how a sixteenth note is formed?

The St. Joe folks were out in full force at the Children's meeting last Sunday.

Lately Alice has become financially poor, being but partly the possessor of one shilling.

Jacob Baker and wife attended the festival held in Boot's grove last Saturday evening.

Quite a number from Rebooth attended the Children's Day exercises at this place last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henning, and daughter Stella, of Waterloo, were the guests of Frank Herrick and wife last Sunday.

The singing school has closed, and it is just as well, for no one was learning anything. The teacher called us a set of heathens without religion, and such pet names, as we highly appreciated.

Several of the young people went from here to Spencerville last Sunday evening to attend the Children's meeting, but were disappointed. Instead they heard a very excellent sermon delivered by the M. E. Pastor.

The social committee of the Young People's Christian Endeavor, will entertain a social, Saturday evening June 25th, in the orchard of P. A. Shurts. Ice cream and cake will be served. Mito ten cents. Come one, come all and have a good time.

Wonder if the Pigeon Retreat correspondent knows that Charlie Koch spent the greater part of that Saturday night over to that house where the morning glory vines are trained around the front porch? Strange how the music of certain Bell(es) charm some people.

Children's day was a grand success in every particular. The house was beautifully decorated with evergreen, birds, flowers and pictures. The addresses, recitations, dialogues and songs were well rendered. The house was crowded and a large number were outside at the doors and windows, giving good attention. We would like to mention the names of some who performed their parts so well, especially the little folks who did so well, but fear we would take up too much space in the News.

WANTED 50 CUSTOMERS

To Buy Our Carpet Samples.

We have a large line of Tapestry, Walrus and Body Brussels and Hemp Carpet Samples which we are closing out for cash. We carry a full line of E. P. Reed & Co's and G. & S. Sons' Ladies' Men's and Children's Fine Shoes. Examine a pair of those 75 cent Fine Shoes before they are all gone.

J. D. Leighty, St. Joe Ind.

Don't forget the band festival in the orchard to-night.

Hicksville has a new railroad. It runs in from Consumptionville.

The next county Sunday school convention will be held at Newville.

Mrs. Ollie Stewart, of Ohio, is visiting with her sister, Mrs. Frank Barney.

Mrs. Metzcar, Mrs. Filley and children, of Fort Wayne, are visiting with Mrs. J. D. Leighty.

The wire walker took a tumble into the river, but climbed up and went at it again.

Dr. Majors and wife, of Cherubusco, were in town Thursday, the guests of Mrs. J. D. Leighty.

Auburn will not celebrate the 4th of July. They want to rest that day from all their labor.

James Ables found a shawl on Thursday which the owner can have by calling at his residence.

General Blair, of Waterloo, made a short speech to the old settlers. This is the General's old stamping ground.

The News says that "A proposed horse race" is the only move Hicksville has as yet made toward celebrating the 4th of July.

Auburn people turned out grandly to the old settler's meeting. We will return the complement when an opportunity is offered.

Case & Olds offer a bargain this week in a Grenadene Dress Goods at 12 1/2 cents; former price 25 cents. Just the thing for 4th of July dresses. Drop in and see it.

Uncle Mose Perry presented the News with a quart of the largest strawberries the other day that we have ever seen. Mose says he got the plants from his brother in Egypt. We don't know how that is but we do know that the berries were extra good.

To the Honorable Board of Commissioners of De Kalb County, Ga.

Gentlemen: Your committee appointed for the purpose of examining the county home to report as to the management, sanitary condition & would respectfully submit the following report: Your committee found in the management of the home affairs excellent system and order about all the work of the home the grounds and out buildings in good condition, the inmates were well cared for and kindly treated, beds and clothing all clean and new. We found the food well cooked and plenty of it. The bathroom excellent and provision well kept for. We would respectfully recommend Mr. and Mrs. Glazier to the people of De Kalb county as worthy of their confidence. Your committee would suggest that a suitable building be erected for the purpose of washing the clothing of the inmates; also sound protection against fire, and that the name of the place be changed to "County Home."

Mrs. Lizzie Jones,

Mrs. Kate A. Leighty,

Mrs. Sarah A. Chamberlain.

Auburn gas well is down over 100 feet.

Newville people are talking of a picnic.

Frank Johnson, of Tappan, is at home on a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Self Bowen are here visiting with her parents.

Lost, on Thursday, one month piece and brass stem for a horn. The order will please leave at this office.

The fantastic parade was pretty good, what there was of it. Everybody relishes a little tomfoolery once in a while.

There will be a Strawberry and Ice Cream Festival at Newville on Wednesday, June 22nd, 1887. A good time is expected, and let everybody come.

WOOL WANTED!

100,000 Pounds of Wool Wanted, for which we will pay the highest market value. Also all kinds of country produce wanted. Call and see us.

S. & F. BARNEY.

Miss S. A. Bartlett,

DEALER IN FINE—

MILLINERY

HATS, BONNETS,

Flowers,

Ribbons,

Feathers,

TRIMMINGS, ETC.

I invite the attention of the ladies of St. Joe and vicinity to my new stock of Spring and Summer Millinery Goods, comprising the newest and latest styles and shapes. I am constantly receiving new goods, and at your patronage. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see my line before making your purchases. Rooms over Dr. Bowman's office, St. Joe, Ind.

MISS S. A. BARTLETT.

FOR SALE—

One good Champion Reaper will sell at a bargain. Call on Rollin Betress at the old Robinson farm.

FOR SALE BY FRANKLIN

One third interest in the Spencer-ville Tile and Saw Mill. Will sell on trade for a farm or other property. Inquire of, or address W. L. Hollabaugh, St. Joe, Ind.

—LOCALS—

The price of coffee has dropped two cents.

Eggs are now bringing 12 cents per dozen.

John Lehigh arrived home Friday morning.

M. T. Bishop shipped 35 thousand singles to Hicksville yesterday.

Get your bills printed at this office and get a notice in the paper free.

G. J. Boyle sang an old fashioned song that took well with the old folks.

One hundred and twenty-five persons attended at Heighy's hotel on Thursday.

Alex. Donaldson and family were shaking hands with their many friends here Thursday.

Frank Walker has been appointed constable in the place of Sam White who resigned.

The Auburn Dispatch wants to sell out. How will you swap brother Robinson? Of course we will want some boot money.

A negro happened to be in town Thursday evening and he was heard to remark that he guessed he had better get out of here, as every body eyed him as if they had never seen a black man before.

The following are a few of the oldest pioneers who were present Thursday: Samuel Wyatt, Henry Shull, John Butt, Samuel Wasson, Henry Robertson, James Cosper, John Bratton, John Leas, Solomon Simons.

Fred Davis of Auburn has gone to Europe.

Chris Chrie had business at Butler Wednesday.

Shutt & White made a delivery of Champion machinery at this place this week.

Workmen are engaged in making some needed repairs on the elevator at this place.

A remonstrance was filed against the F. P. Hart ditch and a new view was appointed.

J. E. Dermott was elected superintendent of the Coburntown Sunday school last Sunday.

Miss Josie Smith returned from Plymouth Ohio, last Monday, where she has been visiting friends.

We have added several new subscribers to our list since last week, and yet there's room for more.

Uncle Dave Grill had the misfortune last week to have a cow fall on him, and injure him quite severely.

H. W. Sirock and son Artie, of Mansfield, Ohio, was in town Monday. Artie seems to be a chip off of the old block.

Cash Lounsberry arrived home Tuesday. Cash looks as if the west agreed with him. He will return in about ten days.

St. Joe now boasts of having a real live milk wagon. Henry Hathaway is the proprietor and he seems to be doing a thriving business.

An exchange remarks: Just so long as a good pitcher of a base ball club gets $2,000 a year and a preacher a scant $800, just so long will there be good pitching and poor preaching.

Miss Ella Crim of Galion, Ohio, visited with her grandmother, Mrs. Robert Davis, a couple of days last week. She presented Grandma Davis with a very handsome pair of gold rimmed spectacles.

The people of St. Joe are talking up the importance of a normal school, and will probably soon engage in the enterprise. St. Joe seems to be slinging on an abundance of air since she established a newspaper. Garrett Clipper.

The Y. P. T. L. A. will meet at the residence of P. A. Shurts, on Monday evening, June 20th. The following program has been prepared. Essay by Nina Filley; Declamation by Hugh Wineland; Impersonation by Anna Merrill; Quartette by Mattie White, Nina Filley, Burt Hull and Frank Hart; Select Reading by Will Olds; Impersonation by Virginia Langley; Declamation by Leo Shuler; Instrumental music by Leona Tustison; Select Reading by Mattie Langley; Declamation by Clarence Hull.

The County Sunday School Convention held at Waterloo on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, was one among the most largely attended and enthusiastic conventions that has ever been held. In fact the conventions seem to grow better each year. The people of Waterloo have got big hearts and they opened their homes, and entertained those in attendance in a way that made everybody feel right at home. So far as eatables were concerned, as Frank Willis said, their tables were fairly groaning under their weight of good things. We regret very much that on account of the old settler's meeting at this place, quite a number of our people were prevented from being present, who would have otherwise been in attendance. We should be pleased to give a more extended notice of the convention but space will not permit.

STUBBORN FACTS.

The Champion is sold under the strongest warranty to do the work well, with ease to the driver and the team, to be well made of the best quality of material, to be more durable and less liable to get out of repair than any other binder made. Since its first introduction the Champion has been the most successful of all harvesting machines. To the well-to-do farmer, who is willing to pay a fair price on fair terms of credit for a first-class implement, we offer the Champion Binder as the best and cheapest machine in the market. For prices, terms &c. call on

SHUTT & WHITE.

A Clock or a Watch Given Away

to draw trade is not legitimate business, and we do not intend to make such an offer, but if you will call at the Drugstore, we will show you a nice line of Clocks, Watches, the latest and very handsomest styles of Lace Pins, Necklaces, Scarf Pins, Rings, Cuff and Collar Buttons, Chains, Chains Chains, at prices that cannot help but please.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining,

Glazing Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcox. Call and see me, or leave orders, at the St. Joe Drugstore.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencer-ville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

ST. JOE MARKETS.

CORRECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat	78 cts.
Oats	29 cts.
Corn	40 cts.
Butter	69 cts.
Eggs	12 cts.
Tallow	3 1/2 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	60 cts.
Smoked Hams	10 cts.
Shoulders and Side Meat	8 cts.

—GARD OF THANKS—

To our friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us in our recent bereavement, in the sudden and awful death of our son Clarence, we would tender our most sincere and heartfelt thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hollabaugh.

Best of family White Fish at Case & Olds.

Farmers are busy plowing corn hoeing potatoes.

When you want neat job printing done call at this office.

Several new streets have been opened up in the west end of town. St. Joe is spreading out.

Butler not being satisfied with boring for gas, claims to have discovered a nugget of gold near town last week. What next?

Frank Walker will occupy the new addition to his harness shop this week. He will use the new part for displaying goods in. Frank now has things very conveniently arranged.

The boys who went up to Hamilton Lake fishing last week did not meet with much success in catching fish, but they had a good time. Art Woodcox ate too much bologna, and got sick.

STAR WIND ENGINE

TAKES THE LEAD.

E. A. WANEMAKER, NEWVILLE, IND.

Has the agency for this county. See him, or write for prices on Wind Mills, Tanks, Pumps, Pipe &c. A special feature of the Star Wind Engine is the Regulator. See it before you buy.

I got a letter from a friend of mine last week asking what a kicker was? It used to be when I was a boy, before I was married an old lady around me, that the mule was considered the greatest kicker on earth. But things have changed wonderfully since then. Now there are people that can kick a mule site harder than a mule-kan, if things don't just happen to suit their own peculiar noshuns. Sum fokes kick becaws it dont rane, an sum kick becaws it rane to mach. Sum fokes kick becaws its to hot an others kick becaws tha cant hav evena thing jist ther own wa. Sum fokes kick becaws sumbody slited them or sum or ther relashun, an then agin tha kick becaws tha wassant slited. It seams to be a sekond nature fur sum fokes to kick, an I hav awlways noticed that the kickers generly kick themls the worst in the long run.

Barcus Q. Hippenhammer.

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

BY BEN: PERLEY POORE.

Senator Benton always asserted that he had a right to state what he did and said in executive session. When, after the Mexican war, he had resisted the nomination of Brigadier-General Kearney as Major General by brevet, because of his treatment of Col. Fremont, Mr. Benton gave to a reporter some resolutions which he had prepared, denouncing Gen. Kearney, saying: "Take those, if you please, sir, and print them. I give them to you in the presence of these witnesses. I desire that they be promulgated to the country." The resolutions were taken by the correspondent and duly printed.

A few days afterwards, Mr. Butler made a motion that the galleries be cleared and the doors closed, for the purpose of enabling him to make a motion concerning the violation of certain executive proceedings. Every one knew that Mr. Benton had avowed the publication of his resolutions against Gen. Kearney, avowed it and gloried in it, and defied all objections to it. An altercation of an hour followed, with excited remarks made under the cover of discussing the question of order, the repeated sneers and jeers of Mr. Butler, and a most interjectional exclamation of his: "I am going to make a declaration that he threw upon Mr. Butler the burden of what he did, that he was ready to meet the Senator from anywhere. Mr. Benton, although his defiance was thus accented, refused to assert that the man who had done him wrong was a liar in his throat. One of the violence and defiance which he threw into his manner, is emphasis and gesticulations. Never did he better merit his sobriquet 'The Mad Bull of the Plains.'"

John Taliaferro, who represented a Virginia district in Congress from 1801 to 1833, with two brief intervals, was during the last year of his term the same man that he was when he was the confidential adviser of Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, the same man that he was when he opposed the administration of the elder Adams. Col. Taliaferro had always lived liberally, and had enjoyed, as much as any man that ever lived, social pleasures in all their approved forms. At a supper party he was asked what his secret was. He replied that he had never known disease, that he had never made but one meal a day, that if he took supper he did not dine, that he had risen early, had always used exercise, and never on horseback when he could go on foot; and that under all circumstances, he had preserved an equality of temper. His rule was never to suffer that which was past to prey upon his mind, to enjoy what Providence sent him, and to trust to the future. He finally served as librarian of the Treasury Department, and died in 1853, aged 85.

The battle of Bull Run was the real commencement of the war, as it showed that the time for compromise was past. This was what the abolitionists had longed for, as they had feared that some amicable adjustment of the national troubles would have been made at the Peace Congress, and their organs shouted, "On to Richmond!" although military men were unanimous in their opposition to a forward movement. At last Gen. McDowell reluctantly consented to advance, and having found that the enemy's works commanding the fords could not be carried by assault without a great loss, concentrated his forces at Centreville, and advanced by the flank around the fords to attack the Confederates at Manassas. The advancing columns of Union soldiers, with glistening bayonets, gay flags and bands performing patriotic airs, moved through the primeval forests of the Old Dominion. They were accompanied by a crowd of spectators, who had driven out from Washington to witness the fight, as they would have gone to witness a horse-race or a game of base-ball. The Union officers, smarting under the insinuations of politicians that they dared not fight, gallantly led their undisciplined commands into the range of the enemy's guns, where they fought like veterans. At first it was thought that victory had perched on the Union flag, but the decimated Confederates received fresh courage from the arrival of reinforcements, and the tide of battle was turned in their favor. A retreat was ordered, which soon became a disgraceful rout, and it was impossible to control men who had lost all presence of mind and only longed for absence of body.

The Confederates were in no condition to follow up the victory which they had gained and to press on to Washington, and the defeat secured the support of every loyal man in the Northern States for the Union cause, whatever his previous political convictions might have been. Practical issues were presented, and there was no time for hesitation or indecision. To use the words of Stephen A. Douglas in his last public speech: "The conspiracy is now known, armies have been raised, war is levied to accomplish it. There are only two sides to the question. Every man must be for the United States or against it. There can be no neutrals in this war: only republicans or traitors."

Clark Mills, the sculptor, used to narrate how Mr. Brower, a New York sculptor, attempted to take a cast in plaster of the head of Thomas Jefferson. The family of the ex-President were opposed to it, but he finally consented, saying that he could not find it in his heart to refuse a man so trifling a favor who had come so far. He was placed on his back on a sofa, one of his hands grasping a chair which stood in front. Not dreaming of any danger, his family could not bear to see him with the plaster over his face, and therefore were not present; and his faithful Burwell was the only person beside the artist in the room. There was some defect in the arrangements made to permit his breathing, and Mr. Jefferson came near suffocating. He was too weak to rise or relieve himself, and his feeble struggles were unnoticed or unheeded by his Marshalls. The sufferer finally bethought himself of the chair on which his hand rested. He raised it as far as he was able and struck it on the floor. Burwell became conscious of his situation and sprang furiously forward. The artist shattered his cast in an instant. The family now reached the room, and Brower looked as if he thought their arrival most opportune, for though Burwell was supporting his master in his arms, the fierce glare of the African eye boded danger. Brower was permitted to pick up his fragments of plaster and carry them off, but whether he ever put them together to represent features enlivened with age and debility, and writhing in suffocation, Mills did not know.

John Quincy Adams, in the closing years of his life, attended the Sunday-morning services at the Second Presbyterian Church when he was at Washington, when his health permitted. No distance, no storm, prevented; he was an all-day hearer. The great snow-storm of February, 1846, which closed nearly all the churches in the country, did not keep Mr. Adams from the house of God. He was one of thirteen persons present in the Second Presbyterian Church at Washington, and returned home through the deep snow on foot at the close of the service.

Mr. Adams said to the pastor of this church, Rev. M. H. Smith, "I hold in great distrust all my early opinions on religion. As I advance in life I feel more and more distrust of all self-formed opinions. I throw myself back upon the simple word of God. I receive what that teaches. I go where that leads. I should not, I suppose, be considered fully orthodox, according to the standard of the Presbyterian Church. I am edified by its ministry."

Henry Clay, when he visited New York the last time, expressed a wish to renew his acquaintance with Albert Gallatin, which had been broken off after a debate in which harsh words were used. A venerable age was admonishing both of them that their time on earth was not for many years. Mr. Clay, with the generous enthusiasm inherent in his very nature, resolved, it seemed, so soon as he arrived in the city, to discharge, as one of his earliest and most pleasing duties, that of an apology to Mr. Gallatin for the severity of his remarks provoked during the unguarded heat of a warm debate. The imagination can easily draw the picture of two renowned statesmen thus coming together, the one frankly to confess and to ask pardon for an error. It was indeed a spectacle worthy of the gods, and no man can describe, even if imagination can picture it.

ALL experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed.—Jefferson.

Gov. BEAVER gives his pension of $45 a month to charity.

ADUEL WITHOUT FIGHTING.

A Last Century Doctor's Revenge on a First-Century.

In "Duelling Days, in the Army," recently published in London, is this story of the way in which a clever man evaded a duel and yet punished the person who had insulted him. While Dr. Young, an officer belonging to the Woolwich garrison, was escorting some ladies up the river to Vauxhall, about the year 1720, he played them some tunes on a flute. Behind them was a boat, in which was several young officers, rowing for the same goal, and as these soon came alongside the one the doctor and his party were in, he ceased playing. One of the officers immediately asked why he did so. "For the same reason I began," answered Dr. Young, "to please myself." The reply to this was an order to continue playing, ending with a threat that if he did not do so he (the officer) would toss the doctor into the Thames. Dr. Young complied with the insolent demand, and played all the way up the river to Vauxhall. During the evening, however, the doctor observed the officer who had been so musically inclined, himself in one of the walks, and went up to him and with great confidence said: "It was, sir, to avoid interrupting the harmony of either my company or yours that I complied with your arrogant demand, but that you may have that courage is to be found under a black coat as well as under a red one. I expect you will meet me to-morrow morning at a certain place without any second, the quarrel being entirely between our lives." The doctor further covenanted that the affair should be decided by swords, to all of which conditions the officer readily agreed. The parties met the following morning, as had been arranged, but the moment the officer had taken his ground and drawn his sword the doctor pulled out a horse-pistol and presented it at him. "What?" exclaimed the officer in a fright, "do you mean to assassinate me?" "No," replied the doctor, "I shall instantly put up your sword and dance a minuet, otherwise you are a dead man. The other at this began to sweat at his opponent, as well as to vow he would do nothing of the kind; but the doctor was resolute, giving the officer clearly to understand that if he did not begin to dance before he (Young) counted thirty, the threat would be carried into effect. In slow time the doctor began to count "one, two, three," and by the time he had got up to "ten" the sword was returned into its sheath and before he had counted "twenty" the officer was going through a minuet as stately as a man could do that had a loaded pistol leveled within a few feet of his head. After a quarter of an hour's practice the puzzle of the pistol was lowered, the holder of it saying, as it fell: "That will do, sir; we are now quits. You forced me to play against my will, and I have compelled you to dance against yours. Being now on a level I will give you whatever satisfaction you require. The next affair will, of course, be with seconds. You know where to find me. Good-morning." The doctor, however, heard no more of the matter.

Mary Stuart's Amusements.

Our sketch of Mary Stuart would not be complete if we limited ourselves to the more serious side of her character merely. If she did not deserve the reputation for utter thoughtlessness and frivolity which some of her puritanical contemporaries have given her, she was undoubtedly fond of amusements, says a writer in the Gentleman's Magazine for March. "The memoirs and correspondence of the time often show her seeking recreation in popular sports and pastimes; indeed, Randolph describes life at the Scottish court for the first two years after her return from France as one continual round of 'feasts, banqueting, masking, running at the ring, and such like.' It was to Mary, as Knox testifies, that the introduction into Scotland of those primitive dramatic performances known as masques or triumphs was due. They soon became so popular that they formed the chief entertainment at every festival. The Queen herself and her attendants, particularly the four Maries, often took part in them, either acting in mere dumb show, or reciting the verses which the elegant pen of Buchanan supplied, and singing the songs which Rizzio composed, and of which the melodies may very possibly be those which, wedded to more modern verse, are still popular among the Scottish peasantry. Not only were these masques performed in the large halls of the feudal castles, but in the open air also, near the little lake at the foot of Arthur's Seat. It may cause some astonishment at the present day to find not only the maids of honor, but the Queen herself assuming the dress of the other sex in these masquerades. Yet the Journal of Occurrences records, without expressing either indignation or even astonishment at the fact, that "the Queen's grace and all her Maries and ladies were all clad in men's apparel" at the "maskery or mumschance" given one Sunday evening in honor of the French Ambassador.

Temperature of Dwelling-Rooms.

Dr. D. Benjamin, of Camden, N. J., has made some observations regarding the subject of the varying temperature of our dwelling-rooms which will be found of much practical importance.

Every one knows in a general way that the air of rooms is colder near the floor and near the windows; but the very exact differences of temperature as obtained by Dr. Benjamin are very striking. For example, in a room ten feet high, twenty feet wide, and twenty feet long, with a good stove and steady fire, the temperature in the center was found to be 78 degrees Fahrenheit; four feet from the window it was 70 degrees.

Four feet from the window it was 70 degrees. At the window 10 degrees. At the height of the head the temperature was 75 degrees; at the floor 50 degrees. A difference of 25 degrees. At the ceiling the temperature was 90 degrees. At the height of the head was 80 degrees.

The fact that the temperature of dwelling-rooms varies so widely explains, no doubt, the frequency with which young children, and even adults, take cold in the house. A child sitting on a nurse's lap in a temperature of 70 degrees gets down and plays on the floor in a temperature 10 or more degrees lower, or runs to the window, a change of 20 or 30 degrees. The habit which ladies have of wearing slippers or foot slides in the house is the cause of many troubles for these same ladies.

The temperature of a room should be about 70 degrees Fahrenheit. The hot, furnace-heated houses of our city cause a vast deal of nervous and respiratory trouble. The thermometer should be hung at about the height of the person's head, and, of course, not near the window or the stove.—Medical Record.

Dutch Care of Birds.

The worthy Dutchmen who settled on the banks of the Hudson were more hospitable to birds than their descendants have shown themselves to be. They not only let the birds be, but encouraged them to build their nests about the house. These wise settlers knew that the birds would pay for their protection by feeding on the insects that swarm in a new country.

Each large Dutch house had a portico, floored like a room, open at the sides with seats all around. Above was a slight roof, painted like an awning, or a covering of lattice-work, over which a transplanted wild grapevine spread its luxuriant leaves.

Here hundreds of little birds domesticated, occupying a small shelf built round the portico, where they were as sacred as the household gods of the Romans. Children and slaves were taught to regard them as the good genii of the family, who were to be cherished but not disturbed.

In clearing the ground for a house a tree was always left in the middle of the back yard for the use of the birds. The negroes, quick to imitate their masters, used old hats to form asylums for their little feathered friends. The deal fences were also utilized by the negroes to furnish homes for the birds. On the stakes to which the deals were nailed were stuck the skeleton heads of horses and cattle, the jaws being fixed in the poles so that the skulls should be uppermost.—Youth's Companion.

A GERMAN inventor has recently introduced improvements in the treatment of wood, to render this material less liable to the influence of moisture. His system is of special value for wood pavements. The blocks are first treated with a solution of water glass, and then impregnated with a mixture of fluosilicic acid and some bituminous compounds.

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

BY BEN PERLEY POORE.

Paper credits made the Union armies appear much larger than they really were, and will sadly puzzle the future historians of the war for the suppression of the rebellion. In 1864, when Abraham Lincoln made his last call for 500,000 more, there was great trouble and commotion in nearly every part of the land. Volunteering was no more carried on with a storm of enthusiasm; the patriotic feeling which had inspired the three months' men to hasten to the defense of Washington, at great personal sacrifice, had died away. Every county, and town, and city ward was looking to its credits, to see how much it could offset by old credits against the new draughts. The act of Congress, and the proclamation by the President, by oversights, had provided in loose terms for such offsets.

At last some one bethought himself that the old veterans, who had gone out at the first call and stayed out, were largely not credited at all, neither to town, nor county, nor State. Even after the first calls had been once loosely apportioned, it was found that there were regiments and companies and single men never credited at all. Straightway brokers, representing the several towns and counties of different States, were sent to the front to buy up these uncredited men, and thus fill their quotas. Some of these agents paid as high as $500 each to the men, and received from $700 to $800 from the counties and towns. The most profitable work, however, was among the contrabands, who had sought protection within the Union lines of Alexandria, where they had been employed in the Quartermaster's Department and the large workshops, and had also been organized and armed for the defense of the place in case of an attack. Hundreds of these men sold themselves for five new one-dollar bills, each bearing a portrait of Secretary Chase, making their mark before a witness, on blank forms provided. As these were sold at from $700 to $800 each, the profits were enormous, and some of Gov. Seward's friends realized fortunes thereby.

These paper credits saved many towns and cities from the draught, but it also saved the Union army from reinforcement. It was a practical nullification of the draught, although it was clearly within a strict interpretation of the conscription act. Secretary Stanton, finally, was forced to issue an order to the provost marshals generally, instructing the provost marshals, all the country over, to accept nothing but men, actual volunteers, no more paper credits. The order went forth by telegraph, and was promptly obeyed. It was not strictly legal, and would not have stood the scrutiny of the courts, but it answered the emergency and put a stop to paper credits.

Large sums of money were realized by several newspaper men and others at Washington, who speculated in these paper credits. It was thought that when the war was over there would be an overhauling of the whole affair, and that the gross fraud practiced would be exposed, but it was not, and many prominent persons all over the country have enjoyed their profit on paper credits.

Charles Sumner's biographer will find it a difficult and disagreeable task to record the three last years of the great Senator's eventful life. His marriage has been infelicitous, and he found himself at war with some of those with whom he had stood shoulder to shoulder in the great battle for equality before the law, while corrupt men were wearing the uniform of the Republican party that they might plunder the military chest. But he never complained, although he must have acquired a vast and not very pleasant experience in what is called political psychology. This was, especially the case in 1872, when many of those Republicans, who had urged him to oppose the re-election of Gen. Grant to the presidential chair, suddenly wheeled backward into their party lines. To quote his own written words: "Alas, for the heartlessness and falsehood of men! Have I not reason to say this?" It was manifestly painful to his true heart to see the pure and patriotic instincts which had originally guided the Republican party gradually yielding to the blandishments of power and the seductions of salary, and, what troubled him more, to hear rumors that economical reform had degenerated into downright corruption. A Republican Senate deposed him from his position as Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, with the approval of a Republican President; and the Republican Legislature of his own State, instigated by designing politicians, undertook to rebuke him; but the people of Massachusetts, apologizing for their temporary desertion, rallied again to the support of their senior Senator, who had so honestly and so heroically represented them.

Mr. Sumner passed the closing years of his laborious career in carefully editing a collection of his speeches, haunted by the sad presentiment that his days were numbered. "Let me but finish this work," he would say to friends, "and death will be welcome," and, as he spoke, his sonorous voice would falter and his eyes would fill with tears. The last morning that he visited the Senate Chamber, he replied to an inquiry as to his health, "I am tired, tired!" That night, on his dying-bed, he repeatedly murmured, "Oh! so tired! Oh! so weary!" It was the old story of unrequited hopes and unpaid public service, which is never trite because it is sadly true. Weary, and unsoothed by woman's tender love, Sumner's heroic soul departed from earth and its troubles. Lincoln, Seward, Chase, Fessenden, Stevens, Hale, and other stalwart departed captains of freedom's hosts, were speedily followed hence by the Commander of their Vanguard, Charles Sumner.

Thurloew Weed used to tell about a man from the western part of the State of New York, with a most resplendent and fiery proboscis, who went to Albany for the purpose of asking an office of Gov. Bouck. Being cautioned not to appear before the Governor (who was a strong temperance man) in that nose, he, by the advice of a waggish physician, applied a flax-seed poultice to it before going to bed the night previous to the intended call on the Governor. The next morning he appeared at the breakfast-table of the hotel, with his nose bleached and parboiled, looking for all the world like a washer-woman's thumb. The doctor was himself an applicant for the office, living in the same hotel, and had advised the poultice only in joke; but when he found the man had actually applied it, he let the cat out of the bag. The boarders were accordingly on the lookout for the patient in the morning, and when the nose appeared there was such a roar of laughter at the table that the poor fellow had to change his lodgings before calling upon the temperance Governor.

WORSE THAN WORTHLESS.

Judge (to prisoner)—It's disgraceful, Rastus, that there are such men as you to prey upon the community. Did it ever occur to you that you are worse than worthless?

Prisoner (mildly)—Ef 'twuzzent fo' sech men as me, yo' honah, yo' wuddent be drawin' er big sal'ry ebberry yeah. — New York Sun.

LITTLE Willie when he first saw his new baby cousin gazed on the tiny thing for a moment in awed silence and then whispered: "Mama, is he a her?" — Wide Awake.

J. H. CONRAD,

DEALER IN

ROOFING AND SPOUTING

GUTTERING, HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.

Cutlery, Nails, Paints, Woodenware &c.

MAIN STREET,

ST. JOE IND.

All work and goods guaranteed to give satisfaction. Give me a call.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

St. Joe Meat Market,

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

M. TUSTISON,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES,

EARTHEN POTS FOR HOUSE PLANTS

PROVISIONS, OYSTERS, LEMONS,

ORANGES, CANDIES, CIGARS &c.

MAIN ST. ST. JOE, IND.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

R. G. COBURN,

AGENT FOR THE

ALBION SPRING Cultivator

AND FIELD HARROW.

AND DAISY RAKE.

Farmers will save money by seeing me before buying. I will call on you with a sample in a few days. R. G. Coburn, St. Joe, Ind.

Take Notice!

Having returned from Tennessee, I will assist again in

Raising & Moving Buildings,

in short all kinds of Rope, Tackle and Jack-screw Work. Having had 15 years experience, and improved machinery, I feel safe in guaranteeing satisfaction. Heavy and difficult work a specialty. Correspondence solicited. Direct all communications to H. or M. Milliman, St. Joe Station, Ind., or A. Monroe, Hicksville, Ohio.

A. KINSEY,

Undertaker and Embalmer. Keeps on hand constantly, a stock of Undertaking Supplies, Coffins, Caskets, Burial Robes &c. I can supply as fine goods as can be furnished. Will attend to making all arrangements for funerals. Calls responded to at all hours of the night. Office on corner of Main and Second Streets; residence on corner of Main and Fourth Streets, St. Joe, Ind.

Arthur James,

DEALER IN—

Watches, Clocks,

AND JEWELRY.

Repairing done promptly and all work warranted. Call and see me at Bair & Son's store, Spencerville, Ind.

M. T. BISHOP,

DEALER IN—

LUMBER

OF ALL KINDS,

Shingles, Lime, Lath,

MOULDINGS &c.

Large Stock and Prices Low. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNESS

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, JUNE 24, 1887.

NO. 22.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLIMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind., Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind., John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a specialty. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—A meteoric stone fell near St. Joseph. It was heralded by a sharp sound and a slight jar, which was at once regarded as an earthquake. It was soon ascertained that an enormous projectile had pierced the atmosphere and hurled itself with great force against the earth. It was found to have imbedded itself in the earth to a depth of fifteen feet, and in descending had struck a large tree which was shattered into fragments. Several pieces of the stone were found about the cavity where it had entered the earth. These, upon examination, were found to be composed largely of obsidian and are extremely hard. They also had a very strong sulphurous smell. The imbedded stone will require considerable labor to reach.

—Patents have been granted the following Indiana inventors: John B. Deeds, assignor of one-half to P. J. Kaufman, Terre Haute, hydro-carbon burner for steam boiler; Robert C. Hart, Andrews, hog trap; Matthew R. Moore, Indianapolis, sand-molding machine; Belle D. Pennington, Evansville, portable awning; Peter Shellenback, Richmond, lather; John P. Potter, Crawfordsville, wagon-bed hoist; Wm. Strong, assignor of one-half to C. Aneshansel, Indianapolis, street washer.

—In the year 1871 the citizens of Brown, Scott, Walnut, and Clark Townships, Montgomery County, voted a tax levy of 2 per cent. to the Midland Railway. One per cent. was paid, and as the road was not completed the other 1 per cent. was taken off the tax duplicate. The Board of Commissioners of the above-named county have been petitioned to place the unpaid 1 per cent. back upon the duplicate and have granted the same. This 1 per cent. will amount to near $40,000.

—While taking part in the funeral procession of his brother, Robert Short, of Posey County, stopped his buggy on a bridge and jumped into the creek below. He arose, and, drawing a large knife, plunged it deep into his throat, but seeing the men from the procession coming he took to the woods. He was captured and brought to Mount Vernon. He is supposed to have been temporarily insane. He is badly bruised and has a deep gash in his throat, but will recover.

—Joseph Duffy, a farmer residing near Greer, Warrick County, while returning home from Elberfeld, with his wife, met with a serious accident. His team, a spirited pair of horses, became frightened and ran away, throwing Mr. and Mrs. Duffy out of the wagon. He was seriously injured, while his wife was fatally hurt by being thrown against a tree. Her back was broken and she died soon after.

—Albert Moore, the foreman of a saw-mill a few miles west of Rochester, was engaged in sawing logs, when his right foot slipped from the carriage and coming in contact with the circular saw the member was severed at the ankle, then just below the knee, and again above the knee, throwing the limb thirty feet away. The unfortunate fellow died in a few minutes thereafter.

—A band reunion was held at Fort Wayne last week, which was participated in by the following bands: LaPorte, Rochester, Ossian, Bourbon, Nappanee, Peru, South Whitley, Pierceton, LaGrange, Ligonier, Corunna, Ind., and West Unity and Bryan, Ohio, with parts of organizations from Warsaw, Decatur, and Elkhart, Ind., and Van Wert and Germantown, Ohio.

—John Williams, a farmer residing south of Indianapolis, met with a terrible accident recently. He had purchased a bottle of acid and had it setting on his lap as he rode home. Suddenly the cork was forced out and the acid covered his face, putting out both eyes and burning his face, breast, and arms in a terrible manner. It is thought he will die.

The History of Mirrors.

Just at the entrance of the catacombs of ancient Rome, mirrors have been found which appear to be made of a mixture of bronze and lead or tin, while others are of a peculiar kind of stone supposed to be vitrified lava. Pliny mentions the rage for silver mirrors as an evidence of Roman extravagance, and says every Roman girl wanted one. Plutarch says that Demosthenes had a looking glass—probably of silver and sufficiently large to reflect his entire person—before which he was accustomed to rehearse his orations and arrange his gestures.

There were two serious objections to metallic mirrors—their weight and the fact that they were liable to distort the features of those looking into them. This was, of course, offensive to ancient beaux and belles, and led to the substitution for metal of obsidian, a black stone, "sometimes transparent"—to quote again from Pliny—"but of so dull a transparency that, as a mirror, it renders the shadow rather than the image of an object."

As the ancients were familiar with glass, it seems strange that they were not acquainted with mirrors made therefrom. True, Aristotle, some four hundred years before Christ, wrote: "Glass and crystal must be lined with a sheet of metal in order to give back the image presented to them." But most authors regard glass mirrors as a modern invention.

The first mention of glass mirrors—after their present form—is in a work of optics written by an English monk, Johannes Peckham, in 1279. In it he speaks of "glass mirrors, covered on the back with lead, that reflects no image if the lead is scraped off." And another careful investigator thinks the invention cannot date from a period earlier than the middle of the thirteenth century, because, in France, during the fourteenth century, glass mirrors were scarce, while those of metal were abundant.

The crusades, which did so much to acquaint western with the industries and civilization of eastern Europe, was the direct cause of the introduction of the manufacture of glass into Venice. For a long time this was the only place where glass was manufactured, and thither every other country desiring glass was compelled to go or send. Venetian glass rapidly became famous, and its sale the source of an immense revenue to the public. At Murano, glass mirrors were first made after the manner suggested by Aristotle. The experiment did not prove satisfactory, and metal mirrors remained in vogue till the beginning of the sixteenth century, when two glass makers of Murano discovered the method of making mirrors which had for several years prevailed in Germany.

The German process was as follows: Melted lead or tin was blown with a pipe into a hollow ball of glass, while hot, thereby entirely coating its interior. When the glass had cooled, it was cut into small, round mirrors. The two Muranese improved on this method by substituting an amalgam of tin and quicksilver in place of the metals used by the Germans. Wonderful success attended the enterprise, and when the twenty years had expired, hundreds engaged in it. Indeed, so numerous were the mirror-makers the Venetian Government separated them from the other glass-makers, and established a distinct company for their benefit.

In 1688, a son of Lucas de Nehou discovered that glass, like metal, could be cast into plates larger than could be obtained by blowing and rolling—the only method previously known for obtaining glass plates—and the discovery marked an era in the manufacture of mirrors.

There has been and are various processes for coating mirrors with quicksilver, but they are so similar to one another that an idea of the general principle is easily gained from a description of either. On a plane surface of tin, that has been carefully cleaned, quicksilver is poured. Having been smoothed with the hand or a brush, the "silvered" surface is covered with paper. The "glass" is then placed on the paper, and the paper is withdrawn. Heavy weights press the excess of the quicksilver from beneath the glass, and are allowed to remain till the "foil" has become thoroughly fixed to the glass.

A process invented by Mr. Petitpeau, in 1855, of silvering with ammonia, tartaric acid, and nitrate of silver, does away with the injurious effects resulting to the workmen where quicksilver is used. But glass treated by his method becomes spotted. It is believed, though, that this objection will soon be overcome.

Starting a Church Fund.

A gentleman from Dakota tells us how the fund was started for building the first Methodist church erected in Bismarek. The town was young and practically in possession of the gamblers. Faro banks and all sorts of gambling schemes were run openly and without fear. One large gambling establishment was situated in a large tent near the center of the town, and thither went the Rev. Mr. Bull, who had come to Bismarek to establish a Methodist church. Mounting a poker table in the middle of the thickly crowded tent, Mr. Bull proceeded to speak for Christ. At once the busy gamblers laid down their chips and turned to jeering the preacher, some of them even pelting at him with whatever came easiest to hand.

Presently the slender form of Dennis Hannifan, the boss gambler and feather-weight champion of the place, arose and moved toward the preacher.

"Hold on, boys," said Dennis; "this is no way to treat a stranger. I know a thing worth two o' this." At this Dennis took off his hat and passed it around among the gamblers, who each put in a chip. And taking this strange collection Dennis walked up to the table, dumped the hatful of chips upon it, and said:

"There you are, stranger; that's for you."

"But," said the clergyman, "what am I to do with it?"

"Well," replied Dennis, "it's yours, and you can do what you please with it. You can cash it or buck, just as you like."

"Buck it?" said the holy man; "what is that?"

"Why, play it in, you know; bet it on one of the games."

Mr. Bull preferred to "cash the chips in," so he went to the proprietor of the place, got $47 for the chips, and with that sum began the fund which finally built the Methodist church in which a flourishing society now worships.—Chicago News.

The Practical and the Impractical.

Practical Man—Why dear, what's the matter with dinner?

Impractical Wife—There isn't anything in the house to eat. We'll have to go to the hotel for dinner. Thank fortune the drug store down street now has a telephone, so you won't have to go far to summon a cab.

"I gave you plenty of money for provisions this morning."

"Yes, but I spent a part of it for a set of the latest French cook-books—the French are such wonderful cooks you know."

"I didn't know you could read French."

"I can't, but I have engaged a French teacher, and that took all the money I had."—Omaha World.

Of ten persons spoken ill of, the speaker knows nothing whatever of nine.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

OLD SAWS IN RHYME.

BY H. C. DODGE.

A good name is better than riches or gold;
If you do not ask questions no lies you'll be told.

You cannot with chaff catch a very old bird,
And children should only be seen and not heard.

All coming events cast their shadows before;
In times of sweet peace get all ready for war.

In love and in war all is fair—so they say;
Take the bull by the horns; turn about is fair play.

One good turn deserveth another, you know;
From very small acorns the biggest oaks grow.

The early bird catches the worm, as we learn,
And even a worm that is trod on will turn.

The proof of the pudding is found in the eating,
And history ever itself is repeating.

If nothing you venture, 'tis nothing you gain;
On the just and unjust falls the very same rain.

Till you are out of the woods do not halloo too loud;
Two is good company—three is a crowd.

This beautiful world wasn't made in a day;
Least said soonest mended; who breaks has to pay.

One may as well die for a sheep as a lamb;
Fair exchange is no robbery; don't be a clam.

How we apply do swim; catch a wasel asleep;
A new broom sweeps clean, and still waters run deep.

'Tis a step to ridiculous from the sublime;
Procrastination the thief of time.

Necessity knoweth no law; love is blind;
Absence of body beats presence of mind.

Self-preservation is heaven's first law;
The camel's back breaks from the very last straw.

Call things by their right names; aim high when you shoot;
Marriage is a lottery; a tree's known by its fruit.

All's well that ends well; robbing Peter to pay Paul;
Better late is than never; time surely cures all.

In accord with his folly we answer a fool;
There's always exceptions to every rule.

Nip and tuck; do or die; make or break; hit or miss;
Wisdom is folly when ignorance is bliss.

Dead men tell no tales; every Jack has his Jill;
You cannot make water go running up hill.

Fingers all thumbs; hide and seek; extremes meet;
Bread is the staff of life; sweets to the sweet.

Look on the bright side; don't run in a rut;
Keep your ears open and keep your mouth shut.

—Detroit Free Press.

LENORE'S LOVER.

BY PAUL M. MOORE.

"Let Lenore come to the sea-shore with me," said Aunt Prunella to her sister. "She needs a change."

Pretty Mabel's eyes opened to their full extent as she glanced up from her book, and listened with all her might. Aunt Prunella little knew what a favor she was asking, for around Lenore all the family machinery revolved.

"Oh, why not ask Mabel? Lenore is so useful, I don't see how I can spare her. Baby's so fretful, and she knows how to quiet her."

The little mother said this with a weary sigh, looking up at her rich, widowed sister, who did not know what it was to attend to four small children.

Aunt Prunella sprang up in her quick way, and taking the baby, put it in Mabel's lap, at the same time drawing Lenore's tiny figure to her side.

"She must come, sister! See her big eyes and her thin face—she needs a holiday. Let Mabel take care of baby. Now, no more about it—never mind fretting about clothes; I am going to have my own way and take Lenore with me."

The little mother always yielded in the end to her decided sister, and soon Lenore's big, brown eyes glowed with delight as she heard consent given to her aunt's proposition. Mabel had always, when a child, been the favorite; but since Aunt Prunella had come back from her four years' residence in Italy, she seemed to have fallen in love with quiet, useful Lenore, and this was the result.

A wail wet up from the little Aleotts as the carriage rolled away which carried their sister to the station, while to Lenore it seemed as if she were entering into fairyland. Such a holiday had never come before into her busy life, and as she sat in the swiftly-flying train by Aunt Prunella's side, her face fairly beamed at the thought of all the pleasure that lay before her.

She was such a quiet little thing that Mabel had always carried off the palm for beauty; but anyone seeing the expressive face now, with its lustrous brown eyes and with the unusual rosy color in the fair cheeks, would have surely looked again. So thought, at any rate, a gentleman who was seated near.

"What a good, happy face!" he whispered to the young lady by his side, who had noticed the direction in which his eyes had been wandering for the last hour. "Do you not think so, Miss Marcelle?"

"Oh!"—rather pettishly—"you clergymen are always looking at 'good' faces; I must confess that I like pretty ones. That girl cannot be called beautiful."

"Tastes differ," Mr. Graham replied, somewhat tersely.

"I'm glad we're here at last, Lenore," held my bag while I see to the luggage."

Some one passing caught the name. "Lenore—graceful and gentle like the owner," he thought; but the fashionable young woman by his side, with her multitudinous parcels, engrossed his attention so completely that he soon lost sight of the young girl who had so interested him.

But it was not long before he saw her again; and this time he had the pleasure of winning a glance from those soulful eyes which had so taken his fancy, as Lenore shyly bowed in answer to a friend's introduction.

"I like that new friend of yours, Lenore," said her Aunt Prunella. "He's worth a hundred of the affected youths one meets at places like this."

This was some time after they had first met Mr. Graham, and at her aunt's mention of his name the young girl's shy eyes drooped and hid their brown light under their lids, while a faint wave of color stole into the cheeks the healthy sea air had already rounded a little.

Miss Marcelle, the young lady whom Mr. Graham had escorted from the city to her parents' sea-side cottage, seemed to take a great fancy to Lenore. They formed a striking contrast when together, Miss Marcelle's tall, fashionably-robed figure, and the slender, simply-clad maiden, to whom this gay life was as a page right out of a fascinating book.

Lenore scarcely fancied her new friends but she could not repulse her advance, without being rude, and so she seldom went far in her walks upon the sands before she would be joined by her.

As the days passed life seemed more and more to Lenore like a fair dream, for something in her heart told her that the expression which filled Mr. Graham's earnest eyes whenever they met her own, meant that, to him, she was growing to be the one nearest and dearest of all; and she was obliged to acknowledge herself that she, too, had for him a feeling warmer than mere friendship, though as yet no words had been spoken.

Aunt Prunella looked on well pleased. She had often heard of the worthy, talented young clergyman, and knew that he was one of those who "practice what they preach."

The time glided pleasantly by, until one day a yacht excursion was arranged, and Lenore and Miss Marcelle went under Mr. Graham's care. The enjoyment was at its height, the dainty noon-day banquet had been partaken of, and they were speeding gaily along, when suddenly a dark cloud appeared on the horizon. No one noticed it at first; but as the moments went on it grew larger and denser, and it was evident that a storm would soon be upon them.

The vessel was turned homeward, and most of the ladies, with white, alarmed faces, went below. A few of the braver ones staid on deck. As Lenore sat by the rail watching, with fascinated eyes, the approaching storm, someone came beside her. "I see you are not much frightened, Miss Aleott," said Mr. Graham.

"Yes, I am a little," candidly replied Lenore.

Looking up, she met such an expression of love and longing in his dark eyes that her own drooped.

Seeing her confusion, he left her; while Lenore vainly tried to still the beating of her heart, which all the time was joyfully crying, "He does love me!"

The hour of suspense passed, and they were soon safe upon the shore again.

"So you enjoyed yourself for all your fright?" said Aunt Prunella, seeing her niece's happy face.

The next day Miss Marcelle called to see Lenore.

"I've a great secret to tell you," she said, "and I know you will be interested. Yesterday, as he saw me home, after he had left you, Mr. Graham asked me something—what it was I'll leave for you to guess. You know he has been attentive to me for a long while."

With a white face, Lenore listened. There could only be one meaning to what Miss Marcelle was saying.

Half an hour later, kneeling by her aunt's side, she begged to be taken home.

As Aunt Prunella smoothed back the brown hair, she saw that her niece was in serious earnest; but surmising it to be some lovers' misunderstanding, she asked no questions, promising it should be as she wished.

The next day Mr. Graham, coming to ask for Lenore, was met with the answer that both her aunt and herself had gone that morning. Not until they were on their way to Lenore's home did Aunt Prunella ask and learn the cause of her niece's sudden distress. With a brave effort to be calm, Lenore told her what Miss Marcelle had confided to her.

"Well, well, things now-a-days are strange! In my time a young man did not show by every act his fondness for one, and they became engaged to a mother!"

"Please say no more about it, dear aunt," pleaded Lenore. "It was my own mistake."

So Lenore, much to her mother's surprise and delight, came home a full week before she was expected, and Miss Marcelle was left at the sea-shore as she had shrewdly expected she would be, with the game in her own hands; for now that Lenore was gone, she thought, Mr. Graham could surely not withstand her fascinations.

Mabel clasped her sister in her young arms.

"We've missed you so much, Lenore! Home has not been quite the same without you."

Her loving words brought tears to Lenore's eyes.

She was glad to be home, after all, even though she knew she was not the same Lenore of a couple of months ago.

But none would have suspected, to see the sweet girl moving tirelessly about the little home, that she was suffering. Aunt Prunella, who had decided to remain with her sister during the winter, thought to herself, "What a brave little thing it is! and what a mistake that young man has made!"

Three weeks went by, and one afternoon a year-old Robbie came from school with a shining silver piece tightly clasped in his chubby hand.

"Why, Robbie, who gave it to you?" inquired his mother, anxious to learn where he had obtained it.

"Oh, a gentleman—I don't know his name. I met him near the station, and he asked me to tell him where to find a lodging-house, so I walked along and showed him where Mrs. Merrill lives. Then he asked me my name, and when I told him he started and asked me if I had any sisters. I told him I had three—one pretty one—that's Mabel, and Lenore and a baby. Then he asked me if Lenore wasn't pretty too, and I said I thought she would be if she didn't cry so much. Then he gave me the money."

"Oh, Robbie!" exclaimed Lenore, "how could you?"

"But it's true," sturdily persisted Robbie. "Haven't I often seen you crying in your room?"

By this time her mother and Mabel were both regarding her with looks of anxious surprise. Their Lenore unhappy? What could be the matter?

Just then the bell rang, and Lenore escaped to her own room, little dreaming of the summons which was soon to come to her.

"Mr. Graham wants to see you in the drawing-room, Lenore," said Aunt Prunella, a little later.

Then as she helped the girl's trembling fingers arrange her soft brown locks, she said, softly, "Darling, he is not engaged to Miss Marcelle at all. I have seen him, and he has confided to me that—but go to him, my dear child, and hear his story from his own lips."

Ah, happy moments of explanation in the little drawing-room! How easy it was to forget all the doubt and the pain of the past, with hand clasped in hand is the blissful present.

A Judge's Insight.

In Washington County, Arkansas, an old fellow, who had been summoned to serve as a jurymen, but who did not appear at the appointed time, was brought in by a deputy Sheriff.

"You have treated this Court with contempt," said the Judge, "and unless you can give a good reason for your failure to appear I shall take great pleasure in punishing you. Do you not know, sir, that when we insist that you shall be a jurymen we pay you a high compliment?"

"I know that, Judge, but I never did like er compliment, bein' allus afeard that somebody wuz tryin' ter flatter me."

"None of your foolishness. Why did you fail to appear?"

"Jedge, I jest couldn't come."

"Family sick?"

"Wasn't that."

"You don't say so. Why, what could have been the matter?"

"Kaint yer guess, Jedge?"

"Let me see," said the jurist, scratching his head reflectively. "Hold on a minute. Worse than sickness in the family. You must have had a sick horse!" the Judge exclaimed, with a burst of inspiration.

"Yer struck it, Jedge; yer struck it square."

"Mr. Sheriff," said the Judge, in the wavering tones of suppressed excitement, "adjourn court and we'll all go out and look at his hoss."—Arkansas Traveler.

On the day, in 519, that King Arthur won a great victory over the Saxons, Dewi, or David, afterward archbishop of St. David's, ordered the Welsh soldiers to place a leek in their caps. It is to this circumstance that the leek's selection as the emblem of Wales is described.

"It is the little things that tell," says an old adage. Yes, especially the little brothers.—New Haven News.

PITH AND POINT.

A FAT POSITION—the grease collector's.

A SAD REFRAIN—a toper's refusal to take a drink.

CURIOUS FACT—stout people are very soon fatigued.

WHY is a whisper forbidden in polite society? Because it isn't aloud.

"The lobby must go. Yes, but it will go for the corporation that commands the most money."—Texas Siftings.

"SAY, bub!" said a Newmarket man. "Your pants are too short." "Well," replied the little fellow, "I dess dey'll grow."—Newmarket Independent.

MISSISSIPPI (to new servant)—We have breakfast generally about 8 o'clock. Now servant—Well, mung, if I get down to it don't wait.—Harper's Bazar.

ON a day which later grew to rain, And recreation ends success. —Texas Siftings.

A woman, by the way of experiment, recently tied a pedometer to her chin, and discovered that she stalked thirty-three miles between breakfast and lunch.

"I HEAR that your husband is very ill," said Mrs. Philpot. "Yes, poor fellow," replied Mrs. Snooper, "he leads such a sedentary life that his health is shattered."

AN exchange has an article on "The Rise and Fall of the Poet." One important point, however, is omitted, and that is the length of the stairs.—Burlington Free Press.

THE official title of the Governor of Rhode Island is Captain-General of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations. The title runs out of the state into deep water.—San Francisco Alta.

"DOR Abram Levi he opens a store next to mine. It was mean in him." "But didn't you say last summer, Mr. Dopenheimer, that competition is the life of trade?" "Yes, but I wasn't in no business last summer."—Harper's Bazar.

"CAN hogs be taught tricks?" asks a children's paper. Yes they can. They have learned the trick all by themselves of taking their local paper for years, and then sending it back marked "refused," and they could be taught all sorts of other tricks—except paying if anybody was a mind to try.—Dakota Bell.

"My friend," said a solemn passenger to the driver of a Third Avenue street car, "do you know that you'll never get to heaven if you swear at your horses like that?" "If I didn't swear at them horses," replied the driver, "I'd never get to Harlem, and that's the point I'm headed for now."—New York Sun.

"I AIN'T much in a city like New York," said Col. Blood, who had been drinking all the evening at Dumbley's expense, "but down in the blue grass region I'm a pretty big gun." "Yes, Colonel," asserted Dumbley, as he paid for another round, "you are a big gun, and it costs money to load you up."—New York Sun.

"WILL you trust me for a cent's worth of gum?" asked the small boy, the top of whose head was on a level with the counter. "Why, yes, I'll trust you. You look like an honest boy." "O, yes, I'm honest, but you'd better give me the cent and let me buy some candy next door. I prefer candy to gum."—Detroit Free Press.

A DIPLOMAT made a funny blunder when he approached Mrs. Hornsby to take leave of her at her "tea." The lady said to him: "Are you going so soon?" And he answered: "I always do at your house." He thought she had used the stereotyped expression: "I hope you have enjoyed yourself," and he got off the usual answer to this query.—The Argonaut.

THE ECONOMICAL GIRL.

She's a dashing little student Of economy, and prudent, In a most painstaking fashion, I would really have you know. And she looked with eyes upglaucing, Most bewitchingly entrancing, And my thoughts flew back to courtship, Many happy years ago. Soon her gaze grew fond and fonder, And I then began to ponder Some sweet words I'd whisper to her Of a liberty I'd take; But she smiled a smile phonic As she said in words ironic: "What a splendid lot of carpet rags Your overcoat would make!"—San Francisco Post.

JUDGE no men because the disposition of his mind is not like your own.

GATHERING INDIA RUBBER.

How the Natives of Costa Rica Take It to Market—Great Injury to the Trees.

The chief industry in eastern Costa Rica is the collection of the caoutchouc (pronounced keechhook, with the accent strong on the first syllable), as the native Indians call that substance to us known as India rubber. Not many years ago, says the Providence Journal, more than 100,000 pounds of it were shipped every month from Graytown alone, but at present the average export per month is only about 62,000 pounds. This considerable falling off is due to the fact that no legal or other surveillance is exercised over the gathering of the gum, and with the customary improvidence of these people many of the valuable trees which yield it have been ruined. The Yularoes or rubber-hunters are the most ignorant and irresponsible creatures, whose first object when out in a hunt is to secure as much caoutchouc as possible and next to damage the prospects of other Yularoes, regardless of the future.

A thrifty tree, at its first cutting, ought to yield not less than fifty pounds of rubber, but the hunters of to-day find few so profitable—unless they penetrate far into the virgin forests and are lucky enough to discover an entirely new district. In those sections already worked most of the trees have been tapped several times, and many of them were spoiled at the outset by having been cut too young—its greedy discoverer fearing that if the prize were left to attain perfection another might find and secure it. Were the matter regulated by judicious laws, so that only mature trees might be tapped, and those not to an extent to cause death, the production of caoutchouc would be greatly increased. Recently the Costa Rican Government has offered extensive grants of land to any who will devote them to the culture of rubber trees, but so far few have availed themselves of the opportunity.

Many attempts have been made to import the juice of the tree in its natural state, but so far none of these efforts has succeeded. While in liquid form it may be fashioned into any shape by means of molds, but no process has yet been discovered to prevent its solidifying. There is always a good deal of partially hardened caoutchouc adhering to the bark of the tree, which is torn off in long, stringy masses, called bernucha. Of course, this is not nearly so valuable as the solid cakes, and is more especially the product of those trees that have been cut several times, and therefore cannot yield a copious flow of sap; but it is wrapped up in bundles and exported for various purposes. Commercially speaking, the caoutchouc of Paris is considered best, and commands the highest price in market, while that from the west coast of Africa is least desirable, being only slightly elastic, and (like its collectors) extremely offensive in odor. Great quantities are also brought from British India, Mauritius, and the Indian Archipelago.

The milky juice, which plays now so important a part among the earth's productions, was first used by those Central American Indians. Their caoutchouc was made known to the world as elastic gum, and was long afterward given the name of rubber the discovery of its usefulness in rubbing out the marks of black lead pencils. For the latter purpose it began to be imported into Great Britain toward the close of the last century, and being much valued by artists was sold at a high price. Early in 1530 the Spanish conquistadores in Mexico had learned to make caoutchouc into shoes and also used it for waxing their canvas cloaks to make them resist water—something as the clothing of the modern Yularo is coated. That, no doubt, was the origin of the idea of its manufacture into water-proof cloth, which first gave it great commercial importance. Not until 1820 did its employment begin to extend much beyond the erasing of pencil marks, though the quantity imported had considerably increased.

The following is a proclamation made at the Market cross of Inverary, Scotland, less than a hundred years ago. "a hoy! Te tither a hoy! Ta hoy three times!!! an' to hoy—Whis! By command of His Majesty, King George, and Her Grace to Duke o' Argyll: If anybody is found fishing about te loch, or below te loch, afore te loch, or ahint te loch, in te loch, or on te loch, aroun' te loch, or about te loch, she's to be prosecutit wi' three persecutions; first, she's to be burnt, syne she's to be drowat, and then she's to be hangt—an if ever she comes back she's to be persecutit wi' a far waur death. God save te King and Her Grace, te Duke o' Argyll."

The Mascottes.

There is a family living in the interior of Pennsylvania who, for generations, have been set apart from the rest of the community. There is a popular idea that they are destined to good fortune. Their neighbors talk of the unfailing luck of the P—s; it is suspected that they are all "mascottes."

The women are invariably the center of the social circle to which they belong; as children or old women they are surrounded with friends; the men are sought as business partners, as counsel, as physicians, or pastors. Whatever may be his trade or occupation, the world always finds a nice place ready for one of the P—s. Yet they do not as a race possess exceptional intellectual strength or great fortune. The one quality which distinguishes them from others is a capacity for seeing the best of every incident of life and of making the best of that. This gives them a fine high courage in little or great ills, and an imperturbably sweet, sunny temper. It was one of this family who, upon losing both legs at the battle of Chancellorsville, exclaimed: "What luck that it wasn't my arms!"

Another member of the family accompanied one of the expeditions in search of Sir John Franklin. When the crew was reduced to starvation diet, "P— declared," says the record, "that the pemmican was the finest flavored pemmican he had ever known. Only his jokes and hopefulness kept us from despair."

The P—s are heirs to a great inheritance. Many other legacies come to men from their ancestors; money, honorable position, keen wit, refined tastes, a genius for authorship, for executive work, for music, art, or oratory. Some of these things no effort or labor will give to us if we are born without them. But the resolute persistence in looking at the bright side of life, the sunny, kindly temper, are within the reach of the most morose and bilious man.—Youth's Companion.

To Grow Cork Trees.

Some enterprising Americans have recently conceived the idea to grow cork trees in this country. They believe they can be successfully grown in the climate of California, and steps have been taken toward making the experiment. The average annual importation of cork wood into this country, entirely at the port of New York, is 70,000 bales a year. A bale weighs 160 pounds, and is worth on this side of the water $20, making a total value of the yearly importation $1,400,000. It comes in duty free. It is nearly all brought over by one firm, which has a branch office in New York, the main offices being in London and Lisbon. The firm owns vast forests of corkwood in Portugal and Spain, and may be said to control the business. With the exception of an inferior kind of corkwood grown in Algeria to a limited extent, all the corkwood of commerce comes from the Spanish Peninsula, where the trees abound not only in cultivated forests, but also grow wild on the mountains. The tree is like an American oak, with leaves similar to the oak and acorns. It takes ten years for the bark to become of proper thickness to be manufactured into bottle stoppers, life-preservers and seine corks. When stripped from the tree it is boiled two hours, cured in the sun for a week and pressed into flat pieces for baling and shipping. The denuded trunk, like a hen robbed of her eggs, does not sulk and quit the business, but throws out fresh covering for a fresh spoliation. One tree has been known to yield a half ton of corkwood. One pound of cork can be manufactured into 144 champagne corks. The baled cork bark is sold to cork manufacturers in the cities. The most extensive manufactory in America is at Pittsburgh. Besides the ordinary demands for corkwood a good supply of the buoyant material, after being burned to make it still lighter than the original bark, is shipped to Canada and New England, where it is made into seine corks.

EVERY person who uses profane language ought to be compelled to wear his words printed in large type, so all could see and read his character.

ALL Associations of Base Ball Players use St. Jacobs Oil for sprains, bruises, pains, and aches. Indeed, all athletic clubs and individual members use it for the same.

JUDGING from the tightness of the article, it isn't every girl who can laugh in her sleeve nowadays.

MR. JOHN ROLE, Champion Bicyclist of the world, living at Sydney, Australia, says: "After riding 1,000 miles against time, St. Jacobs Oil removed all fatigue and pains."

The Conscientious Fireman.

Young Wife—"I know very well, mother, that my husband no longer loves me."

Mother—"How do you know it, my daughter?"

"You know he belongs to a fire company?"

"Yes."

"Well, before we were married, when we were courting and the fire-bell rang, he never went to the fire. He said that he would rather pay the fine."

"Well, what does he do now?"

"Why, now, at the very first sound of the bell, he says duty calls him, and he is off and away in three shakes of a sheep's tail."—Texas Siftings.

Professional Etiquette

Prevents some doctors from advertising their skill, but we are bound by no such conventional rules, and think that if we make a discovery that is of benefit to our fellows we ought to spread the fact to the whole land. Therefore we cause to be published throughout the land the fact that Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is the best known remedy for consumption (scrophula of the lungs) and kindred diseases. Send 10 cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's complete treatise, on consumption, with unsurpassed means of self-treatment. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, 261 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y.

MOST of the time in hot water—the washerwoman.

We would be pleased to know of a man or woman who has never had headache or been subject to constipation. As these seem to be universal troubles a little advice may be in order. Why should persons cram their stomachs with nauseating purgative pills, etc., which sicken and debilitate when such a pleasant and sterling remedy as Prickly Ash Bitters will act mildly and effectively on the liver, kidney, stomach, and bowels, and at the same time tone and strengthen the whole system, causing headache, constipation and all such distressing evils to quickly disappear.

A MECHANIC'S wife rarely wears a tulla bonnet, and yet her bonnet is usually the result of the use of the tool.

INDIGESTION, dyspepsia, nervous prostration and all forms of general debility relieved by taking MEN'SMAN'S PEPTONIZED BEEF TONIC, the only preparation of beef containing its entire nutritious properties. It contains blood-making, force-generating and life-sustaining properties; is invaluable in all feeble conditions, whether the result of exhaustion, nervous prostration, overwork, or acute disease, particularly if resulting from pulmonary complaints. Hazard, Hazard & Co., proprietors, New York.

WANTED, the name of the goldsmith who made the welkin ring.

It Is a Pleasure.

Writes Mrs. Eliza Ann Smith, of Vermillion, Erie Co., Ohio, to tell the ladies everywhere that nothing surpasses Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic for all irregularities. "It cured me when the physicians and all other remedies failed."

LYON'S Patent Metallic Stiffeners prevent boots and shoes from running over, ripping in the seams or wearing unevenly on the heels.

A 5-column Newspaper Outfit for $25 spot cash. The greatest bargain ever offered in printing material. Address box 121, Fort Wayne, Ind.

What Everybody Says

Must be true. And the unanimous praise which people who have used it give Hood's Sarsaparilla, should convince those who have never tried this medicine of its great curative powers. If you suffer from impure blood, that tired feeling, depressed spirits, dyspepsia, or kidney and liver complaints, give Hood's Sarsaparilla a fair trial and you will be greatly benefited.

"My wife has had very poor health for a long time, suffering from indigestion, poor appetite, and constant headache. She found no relief till she tried Hood's Sarsaparilla. She is now taking the third bottle, and never felt better in her life." G. SOMMERVILLE, Moreland, Cook Co., Ill.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

WARRANTED. DRESS STATE. No. 1. Pliable and absolutely unbreakable standard quality. 15 cents per yard; cloth-covered, 20 cents; satin-covered, 25 cents. For sale everywhere. Try A. WARREN FEATHERBONE COMPANY, Three Oaks, Mich.

BEST ROOFING. Any one can apply it. Catalogue and samples free. ESTAB. 1866. W. H. FAY & CO. Camden, N. J. Also 91 LOUIS. MINNEAPOLIS. OMAHA. MO.

PENSIONS. Officer's pay, bounty procured; deserters relieved. 21 years' practice. Success or no fee. Write for circulars and new laws. L. W. MCCORMICK & SON, Washington, D. C. & Cincinnati, O.

$350 Will buy a complete Newspaper Outfit, suitable for publishing a weekly paper in a town of 1000 or over, inhabitants. Address FORT WAYNE NEWS-PAPER UNION, Fort Wayne, Ind.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficent influence of

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health. It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young. As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

300 PANTS

300 SHOES

HANDSOME, STYLISH PANTS

OUR FULL SEAMLESS SHOES

made to order in first-class style. Perfect fit guaranteed or money refunded.

For samples of cloth and 4 foot tape measure (worth 10c.) send 3 2c. stamps. Circulars Free.

Established 1877.

THE HUNTER CINCINNATI, O. MFG CO.

beat the world. Made in sizes and styles to please. Perfect fit guaranteed. We refer to any Bank, Express Co., or leading business house in this city.

OAKLAWN The Great Nursery of PERCHERON HORSES. 200 Imported Brood Mares Of Choicest Families. LARGE NUMBERS, All Ages, both Sexes, IN STOCK.

300 to 400 IMPORTED ANNUALLY from France, all recorded with extended pedigrees in the Percheron Stud Books. The Percheron is the only draft breed of France possessing a stud book that has the support and endorsement of the French Government. Send for 120-page Catalogue, illustrations by Ross Bonheur. M. W. DUNHAM, Wayne, DuPage Co., Illinois.

HARTER'S

THE ONLY TRUE

IRON TONIC

Will purify the BLOOD, regulate the LIVER and KIDNEYS and Restore the HEALTH and VIGOR OF YOUTH. Dyspepsia, Want of Appetite, Indigestion, Lack of Strength and Tired Feeling absolutely cured. Bones, muscles and nerves receive new force. Enlivens the mind and supplies Brain Power.

Suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex will find in DR. HARTE'S IRON TONIC safe, speedy cure. Gives a clear, healthy complexion. All attempts at counterfeiting only add to its popularity. Do not experiment—get ORIGINAL and Best.

DR. HARTE'S LIVER PILLS (Cure Constipation, Liver Complaint and Sick Headache. Sample Dose and Dream Book mailed on receipt of two cents in postage.)

THE DR. HARTE MEDICINE CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

LADIES

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

TO AGENTS. 2,000 POLITE, INTELLIGENT LADIES and GENTS wanted to introduce our NEW TOILET ARTICLE for both sexes; at home or to travel, salary or commission. Especially Wanted, about 300 ACTIVE PERSONS. (either sex, as General Agents to personally appoint local agents for us in territory assigned them. Address with stamp, P. O. Box D, Springfield, Ohio.

ADVERTISERS or others, who wish to examine this paper, or obtain estimates on advertising space when in Chicago, will find it on file at 45 to 49 Randolph St., the Advertising Agency of LORD & THOMAS.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year, in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months' ..... 50
Three Months' ..... 25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe as second-class matter.

FRIDAY JUNE 21, 1887.

CONTRACTOR'S NOTICE.

I will receive sealed proposals at the bridge just south of James Druggists, on Saturday, June 25th, at 3 o'clock, P. M., for the building of a bridge across the county ditch at that place. I reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

J. E. Dermott,
Trustee, Concord Township.

Hicksville will celebrate the 4th of July with a temperance picnic, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U.

In the last twelve months the U. S. States has received 4,000,000 emigrants from the old country. Is that about enough?

We received an article for publication this week, but there was no name signed to it. We pay no attention to such communications.

Marshall Hadsell and Miss Aubrey Woodcox left last Tuesday for Fort Wayne, to attend a term of normal school at the Methodist college.

Prof. Hookman of Deliance, will assist Mr. Price in his normal school at this place if he succeeds in getting out his. We are anxious to see him succeed.

Before marriage the question a girl asks her lover most often is: "Do you really love me?" After marriage the query becomes: "Is my hat on straight?"

Several persons from this place attended the festival at Newville Wednesday evening. It was a cool evening for ice cream, but then perhaps they warmed it before serving.

A very pleasant number is DEMOREST'S MONTHLY for July. The beautifully illustrated trip on "The Lower St. Lawrence River" makes us wish we were of the jolly party. The articles on flowers are full of information, as are all the other departments, for which this wonderful magazine is noted. Every lady should take it. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, N. Y.

Vester Widney had his dog "Fan" hitched up last Wednesday morning, and started to go up to his father's farm. Just as he got opposite the residence of George Hamm, he met Ed Craft driving into town. Mr. Craft had a dog with him, which ran up to Vester's dog, and as "Fan" was not in a very good humor she snapped at him, and he started to run and she after him, which overturned the rig and threw Vester out in such a manner as to break his right leg near the knee. He was picked up and taken to his home. The doctors happened to be all out of town at that time, but Dr. Shaffer was finally found, and set the fractured limb. Although the pain was very severe Vester bore up under it bravely, and it is hoped that if nothing else sets in he will be able to be out before many days. We hope so at least, for we shall miss his accustomed visits.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

CONCORD.

Jerry Rickett is lying dangerously ill at the residence of his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Darling are made happy over the advent of a little son.

Mr. David Wasson, of Missouri, visited the Sunday school last Sunday.

C. A. Jenkins and wife were the guests of Henry Baker and wife last Sunday.

Miss Ollie Hursh, of Hursttown, was the guest of Mrs. James Smith last Sunday.

Mrs. Ollie Roberts, of near Hicksville, has been the guest of Arvilla Wade for a few days.

Grandpa Wyatt's health does not seem to improve, but she seems to gradually grow more feeble.

The corn crop looks quite promising. Hay making has begun, and the wheat harvest is near at hand.

Messrs Green Brown and James Baker with their wives visited with W. H. Shanton and family last Sunday.

Josephus Shilling and family went last Sunday to see his sister, Mrs. Mary Kester, who is very sick. Her recovery is very doubtful.

Clyde Woodcox and wife, of St. Joe, and J. Baker and wife, spent last Sunday in Jackson Township visiting with Mrs. Province.

SPENCERVILLE.

Miss Alva Shutt is seriously ill. S. S. Shutt was at Auburn last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. T. Raggy went to Auburn last Wednesday.

Mrs. J. A. Province has been visiting at Waydoo during the past week.

S. J. Zimmerman and wife, returned to their home at Auburn last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stinger, of Antwerp, were the guests of Dr. Emanuel and wife last Sunday.

Rev. Hollopeter delivered a very interesting sermon at the M. E. church last Sabbath evening.

The photograph gallery has a new awning, and it is quite an improvement. Ben don't intend to take a back seat.

The exhibition at the school house on last Tuesday evening was very good, but there was not very many in attendance.

Children's day exercises will take place at the M. E. church next Sunday morning. Everybody is invited to come and hear the children.

Spencerville has a new paper called The Eagle's Scream, published by J. Emanuel & Sons. It is full of good news to the public, so let her scream.

The Missionary Society of the Lutheran church, will be entertained by Mrs. Abe Furnish, Thursday afternoon June 30th. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Mrs. W. C. Patterson and daughter Bessie, drove to Hicksville Wednesday.

Monday the weather was extremely hot, while on Wednesday morning it was so cool that a fire was not at all uncomfortable.

The Y. P. T. L. A. will meet at the residence of P. A. Shurts, on Monday evening, June 27th. The same program will be used that was prepared for last Monday evening.

LEIGHTY'S

is the place where Gossim's, Bantings, and Suspenders were marked down 25 per cent. only a few left. Examine them before buying. Don't forget that we carry the celebrated Regal Shoes.

Do cats ever dye? No, I have never seen one. The only shure way to dye them is to tie a mill stone around their neck and throw them in the river, and then the sun dyes them to life again.

We heard of a fellow some time ago who tried to starve a cat to death. The first week it didn't seem to fair weather it had and thing to eat or not.

The second week the cat began to realize what it was in by an empty stomach; and while it felt pretty well, yet at the same time for some unknown cause it seem to grow thin.

The third week came on and so did the cat, and while perhaps there was some inconveniences connected with it, yet the cat sat down and took things remarkably cool, considering the fact that it hadn't had a single refreshment for nearly a month.

The fourth week the cat was able to bear and as a cat, but last week in the next and it was a sort of half-way and it was its tale to get dry and to dry up.

After five weeks of total abstinence from food of any kind the cat still lives. Its mental faculties are as bright and brilliant as that was the day it was born, but physically it is somewhat wrecked. It has a kind of a woe-begon look, as if it didn't care much whether it had anything to eat or not. Its tale is still drying up.

Finally after six weeks the cat didn't dye; not by a long shot. Altho there was nothing remained of its body but the frame, yet the cat's head was as clear as mud, and remained so up to the time of its death. Just how long the cat would have lived if it hadn't dyed, we are not able to say, but one thing shure its a mighty hard matter to kill a cat dead.

Bareus Q. Hippenhammer.

WOOL WANTED!

100,000 Pounds of Wool Wanted, for which we will pay the highest market value. Also all kinds of country produce wanted. Call and see us.

S. & F. BARNEY.

Miss S. A. Bartlett,

DEALER IN FINE

MILLINERY

HATS, BONNETS,

Flowers,

Ribbons,

Feathers,

ORNAMENTS, ETC.

I invite the attention of the ladies of St. Joe and vicinity to my new stock of Spring and Summer Millinery Goods, comprising the newest and latest styles and shapes. I am constantly receiving new goods, and therefore can please everybody. Give me your patronage. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see my line before making your purchases. Rooms over Dr. Bowman's office, St. Joe, Ind.

FOR SALE

One good Champion Reaper will sell at a bargain. Call on Rollin Peters, at the old Robinson farm.

SALE OF TRADER

One third interest in the Spencer-ville Tile and Saw Mill. Will sell or trade for a farm or other property. Inquire of, or address, W. L. Hollabaugh, St. Joe, Ind.

WHEELS

Wash Hart is burning a kiln of brick.

We publish the B. & O. time card this week.

Fresh oranges and lemons at Tustison's grocery.

Case & Olds received some new dress robes this week.

There will be a concert at Newville next Sunday evening.

The W. C. T. U. met at Mrs. Nancy Lewis yesterday afternoon.

The rain Monday caught a good many farmers with their hay down.

J. D. Leighty and Al Bishop went to Cedar Beach yesterday on a fishing expedition.

Geo. Kimes of Spencer-ville came in Thursday and paid his subscription to the News.

We done quite a large job of printing for J. Emanuel & Sons, of Spencer-ville, this week.

The B. & O. will sell excursion tickets on the 4th of July, over the Chicago division, at half fare.

If you want any thing new in the way of millinery for the 4th of July, call on Miss Bartlett, St. Joe.

St. Joe ought to celebrate the 4th in some way, if it isn't any more than to have a social in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Widney attended the wedding of his sister Cora, at Auburn, on Wednesday.

Three car load of stone have been shipped in from White House, Ohio, for use in the foundation of the new church at Spencer-ville.

One week from next Monday is the 4th of July.

Don't forget the social to-morrow night at P. A. Shurt's. A good time is in store for all who attend.

We did not have enough papers to supply the demand last week. We shall have plenty this week.

Case & Olds offer a special bargain this week in Fine Parasols. They bought them cheap and will sell them cheaper.

Mr. E. S. Philley and Harry Meisler of Fort Wayne drove up Saturday evening and spent the Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Leighty.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lounsberry accompanied by their son Cash and daughter Fannie, visited with friends in Steuben county over last Sabbath.

Rev. McPhail of Maysville will preach at the Methodist church to-night. The collection is low, and all are invited to attend.

We had the pleasure of helping to can a big watermelon last Sunday. It might be well enough for us to state that we didn't raise it in our garden; it was shipped in from the south.

S. E. Daniels and Geo. Wilson have erected the Hicksville Flouring Mills. Read their card in another column, and wish if you go to Hicksville to get your flour give them a call.

Prof. Howard is not only a good singer as you. At the festival Saturday night he sang several selections, and the remarkable feature of them was, that he sang them all to one tune.

Married, at the U. B. parsonage at Newville, on Saturday evening, July 18, 1887, by Rev. Lowman, Mr. Aaron Thomas of St. Joe to Miss Sarah Lett of Egberton, Ohio. The News wishes Mr. and Mrs. Thomas a long and happy life.

We cannot refrain from offering a word of praise in regard to the excellent music furnished by the St. Joe band at the festival Saturday evening. They rendered some difficult music in a splendid manner. The boys are endeavoring to raise money to procure uniforms, and if they succeed, and get uniformed up in good style, St. Joe can boast of having as good a band as there is in the county. Give them a boost when ever an opportunity is offered.

Al Blair, formerly a resident of this place, but now baggage-master at Tiffin, Ohio, arrived here Monday, and will spend ten days in visiting friends and relatives in this vicinity. Al is the patentee of a new railroad lantern that is bound to be a success. It has an arrangement underneath by which it can be changed to a red or green light, in an instant, making three different signal lights all combined in one lantern. It looks practical and will no doubt make Al some money if properly managed.

It was feared that on account of the old settler's meeting being so near, and there also being another festival at Hursh's the same evening, that the St. Joe band would have a very slim crowd Saturday evening, but it proved to be a mistake. Our citizens turned out splendidly, and there was a large number in from the country. The fact of it is there was a big crowd, and all were well repaid for going, as the boys gave a good entertainment, and their refreshments were served in the best of style. We are glad that our citizens patronized the boys so liberally, as they certainly deserve it.

STUBBORN FACTS.

The Champion is sold under the strongest warranty to do the work well, with ease to the driver and the team, to be well made of the best quality of material, to be more durable and less liable to get out of repair than any other binder made. Since its first introduction the Champion has been the most successful of all harvest- ing machines. To the well-to-do farmer, who is willing to pay a fair price on fair terms of credit for a first-class implement, we offer the Champion Binder as the best and cheapest machine in the market. For prices, terms, etc. call on—

SHUTT & WHITE.

A Clock or a Watch Given Away

to draw trade is not legitimate business, and we do not intend to make such an offer, but if you will call at the Drugstore, we will show you a nice line of Clocks, W. the latest and very handsomest styles of Face Pins, Needles, Sewing Regs., Collar and Collar Buttons, Chains, etc. in Chains, at prices that cannot help but please.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining, Glazing, Paper Hanging and Oil and Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcox, Call and see me, or leave orders, at Market, J. C. Druggists.

G. E. ETANIEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencer-ville, Ind. Office in J. E. Hammett & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

ST. JOE MARKETS

CORRECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat	71 cts.
Oats	37 cts.
Corn	40 cts.
Butter	60 cts.
Eggs	12 cts.
Fallow	3 1/2 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	60 cts.
Smoked Hams	10 cts.
Shoulders and Side Meat	8 cts.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

Trains leave St. Joe as follows:

WESTBOUND.
No. 9 Mail and Express	11:05 A. M.
17 Accommodation	4:18 P. M.
3 Chicago Express	10:42 P. M.
35 Local Freight	3:42 P. M.

EAST BOUND.
No. 10 Express and Mail	2:08 P. M.
16 Accommodation	10:28 A. M.
4 Morning Express	4:55 A. M.
34 Local Freight	7:59 A. M.

G. V. JAMES, AGENT.

This has been a poor week for making hay.

B. F. Blair of Newville was in town Wednesday.

Will Gee will occupy Miss Alice Draggoo's residence.

Base ball is all the go in most of our neighboring towns.

Most of the wheat will be cut this season before the 4th of July.

The pay car deposited the usual amount of cash here Wednesday.

LaGrange will shoot up two hundred dollars worth of fire works on the fourth of July.

STAR WIND ENGINE

TAKES THE LEAD

E. A. WANKMAKER
NEWVILLE, IND.

Has the agency for this county. See him, or write for prices on Wind Mills, Tanks, Pumps, Pipe &c. A special feature of the Star Wind Engine is the Regulator. See it before you buy.

NOTICE TO FARMERS

S. E. Daniels, formerly head miller in the Anchor Mills, and C. B. Wilson, a practical miller of Iowa, and formerly of Spencer-ville, having rented the Hicksville Flouring Mill, would most respectfully solicit the patronage of the citizens of Hicksville and the surrounding country. We guarantee perfect satisfaction. Bring us your wheat.
Daniels & Wilson.

The following is what the secretary of the Pioneer Association of DeKalb county has to say in regard to the meeting held at this place last Thursday. Making it all in all, the meeting and reunion of 1887, was a decided success. All admitted the attendance to have been greater than at any previous meeting. The day was all that could have been asked. Providence seemed to have smiled upon us that day in giving such delightful weather, and in blessing the old people with health and vigor, and to the younger folks a feeling of decorum and a desire on their part to make the day pleasant and agreeable to their old friends. Too much praise cannot be given to the committee of arrangements for the manner in which this re-union was conducted. It was perfect in every detail, and the hospitalities of the citizens of St. Joe will long be remembered.

DOMESTIC ECONOMY.

Topics of Interest Relating to Farm and Household Management

Information for the Plowman, Stockman, Poulterer, Nurseryman, and Housewife.

THE FARMER.

The Roots of Corn.

We think the time is near at hand, writes a correspondent of the Western Rural, when farmers will be engaged in cultivating this cereal; and as not a few pursue a course injurious to the best development of the crop, I have concluded to give your readers a few ideas, the result of my research and observation. The corn is furnished with two sets of roots. The lower is for the development and sustenance of the stalk, and at an early period in the age of the cereal is probably out of reach of the plow, and not in danger of being injured by deep plowing. The upper set of roots exercise the function of developing and perfecting the ear. Deep plowing is liable to sever them and thus retard the development of the ear and thus lessen the chances of its being what might have been by judicious cultivation a full crop. Corn land should be frequently stirred from the time it is a few inches high until it is time to lay it by in order to keep the weeds down, and especially in dry seasons, to heap earth around the hills, but this should be done with implements that do not penetrate deeply enough to interfere with the corn developing roots. We have not infrequently heard the remark made that deep plowing in the cultivation of corn was important in order to break the roots, as they draw a great part of their nourishment from the stalk. A little reflection will satisfy any one that this theory is advocated through ignorance of the botanical structure of the plant, and that this practice is calculated to defeat the object aimed at—viz., the best possible returns for the labor bestowed.

How to Use a Hoe.

The hoe serves other purposes than merely that of chopping up weeds. This is important, because the soil produces a crop of weeds naturally, and that in spite of the old tradition that it does so because a curse rests upon it. The earth is a bounteous mother to man, producing a very large part of his most wholesome food, and is therefore very much more of a blessing to him than a curse. Tillage is of the first importance; the better the soil is tilled the more generous are the crops, and one of the most important details of tillage is hoeing. But, in addition to chopping down weeds, the hoe loosens the surface of the soil, when by reason of heavy rains it has run together on the surface and become baked by the sun. As Glenny puts it, the pores of the soil become closed up and the hoe remedies this. And this observant gardener remarks, in using the hoe, "work straight before you, slicing the earth, as it were, by drawing the instrument to you with a pressure toward the ground, thereby cutting off everything that comes in its way; and if you wish to stir the earth a little deeper, turn the corner of the implement a little, when the same pressure makes it penetrate deeper. You put the hoe to the ground a foot or so before your advancing foot, and draw it close to you. This is the operation, too, for thinning turnips, carrots, parsnips, spinach, and any other produce that is sown too thick. You cut up all but sufficient to grow, and those you leave at proper distances." As a matter of course, the hoe has to be applied with care in the case of young crops not long through the soil. As yet the young plants have but a slight hold upon the soil, and care must be taken not to disturb them, or they will be in danger of being burnt up by the sun. A careful hoeer works by common-sense rules, and avoids mistakes of this kind. Among young fruit trees, roses, etc., the soil may be stirred deeply without fear of harm, because the crop is well established.

THE DAIRYMAN.

Frozen Butter.

We are asked by a correspondent if it injures butter to let it freeze. Certainly. It will not take anybody very long to determine that fact. It sometimes happens that butter will freeze on the edges and not in the center of the package. In such case there will be a marked difference in the quality of that which has been frozen and that which has not. Butter ought not to be subjected to great variations of temperature. Neither butter nor cream ought to be badly frozen. If butter is permitted to freeze and is used immediately the difference is not so great as when it is kept a long time after being frozen, or a considerable time.

Comparative Profit in Dairying.

Milk made into ordinary butter and cheese does not average to the producer more than 1½ cents per quart. At this price it is as milk an exceedingly cheap food; but it cannot be delivered in cities at twice this figure, even under the most favorable circumstances. In winter milk always advances in price for the good reason that with cold weather and a considerable portion of dry feed it is impossible to keep up as large a flow as the cow under better conditions will give in summer. Milk spoils or wastes rapidly, and it also requires considerable labor to care for it properly. It is this reason more than the cost of producing milk which makes it dear to city buyers at all seasons of the year. In summer, when it is produced most cheaply, it cannot easily be kept sweet for many hours. There are comparatively few places where milk can be bought in cities. Grocers find the demand very uncertain. Sometimes they will have not half enough, and within a day or two the same amount will leave a surplus to go to waste. For this reason, as well as the unpleasant labor of cleaning vessels that have contained milk, it is not in much favor with grocery dealers. It is unfortunate for all parties that milk and its products are not more generally used for human food.

Why We Churn.

The object to be attained in churning milk or cream is, by agitation and oxygenation, to separate the solid fat from the other solids and fluids of the cream or milk. The whole milk, properly soured, may be churned and the product will be butter, but the separation is more difficult with sweet milk than with properly ripened cream. In churning, the fatty globules are first broken up, and thus set at liberty. They are gathered together first in the form of granules, and if the churning is still further carried the whole is gathered into a solid mass. The agents are friction, heat, and air. The proper temperature for churning is about sixty degrees Fahrenheit. Too violent churning produces excessive friction. The butter is produced more speedily, but at the expense of color and flavor. If the temperature is too low the expansion of the fat globules is not perfect, and increased friction is required. Here again deficient flavor is the result, and the butter is soft, and will not keep. The action of the air upon the cream in churning is to oxidize the coats of the fat globules and thus assist friction in the separation. It makes no difference what kind of a churn is used so long as air can be admitted. Speed in churning is easily controlled. It should be such as to produce butter from well-ripened cream in from twenty-five to thirty minutes.

THE FORESTER.

Evergreens.

The family of plants known as the Coniferae, or cone-bearers, is peculiar in possessing leaves of remarkable shapes and of wonderful duration. The members of the family which grow naturally in northern countries bear scale-like or needle-shaped leaves, as familiarly seen in the pines, spruces, and the arbor vitae. In countries within the tropics the leaves of the conifers are usually wonderfully different from those with which we are acquainted. The leaves of the Chinese ginkho are almost exactly fan-shaped. With this diversity of form is also a great diversity in the duration of leaves. The ginkho sheds its leaves every autumn the same as do the maples and elms. So does our common larch or tamarack. Most of the pines and spruces hold their leaves for more than one year, however, and they are therefore "evergreen." Very few people know when evergreens shed their leaves, or even if they shed them at all. It is always desirable to know the habits of the objects which we admire. We can readily understand that if the pines and spruces bore but the leaves of one year's growth at a time, they would make a sorry appearance; the leaves are so very narrow that the tree would present a very thin and bald appearance. But nature, as if to remedy the poor effect of the slender leaves, has clothed the branches with the leaves of several or many seasons. And here is another striking fact: the spruces, which have much smaller leaves than the pines hold their leaves much longer.

Every spring new shoots grow on the ends of all the branches of pines and spruces, and leaves are formed as fast as the shoot grows. In the early autumn these shoots with their leaves have attained their full growth. There will never be any more leaves formed on these young branches. Next year other shoots will push out from their ends and form leaves, but the leaves in these branches will remain the same, until, after some years, they die and fall. We can readily tell by the looks of the branches of the pine or spruce where the growth of each succeeding year has ended then it will be an easy matter to count back the years on any long branch and see how old the leaves must be. Let us begin on a young, common white pine, in fall, winter, or spring, when the young shoots are all matured. The last growth of a foot or two on the ends of the branches will represent one year, the year's growth back of that the second year, the growth back of the second will represent the third year, and that still back of the third will be the four-year-old wood; but on this four-year-old wood there are no leaves. Then we have proved that the leaves endure for three years. If now we should closely watch the tree in the summer we should see the leaves on the oldest wood drop off while fresh leaves were forming on fresh growing shoots.

Some pines hold their leaves but one year, some two and some three. The Norway spruce often holds its leaves for nine years, and so also does the black spruce. The spruces do not shed their leaves so regularly as do the pines.—Chas. R. Albany Cultivator.

THE POULTERER.

A New Point in Feeding.

In feeding for eggs, we should remember that the egg is a highly nitrogenous compound. The white of the egg, which we call the albumen, contains 16 per cent. of nitrogen. Hence if we wish to force a large production of eggs, we must give the birds plenty of nitrogenous food, in connection with the lime and phosphates used in making the shell. This explains the most excellent results which have followed the use of gluten meal as a food for hens. This meal contains three times as much nitrogen as common corn meal, and only about the same amount of starch. It is therefore especially adapted to egg production, but must be fed carefully and in connection with other foods. For the same reason linseed meal or cottonseed meal are also valuable egg producers. This matter of feeding poultry to supply their wants has not been enough studied. We also know that the yolk of the egg is quite rich in sulphur, and most of the foods given to poultry are deficient in sulphur. This suggests the idea of experimenting with different quantities of sulphur in the food.

A Good Hen House.

To make a hen house frost proof seems like a big job to the average farmer, and it is costly at any time. For six years I have been breeding brown Leghorns, says Miller Purvis, in the Stockman and Farmer, and have tried various plans whereby I could save combs and wattles intact, but all of these plans failed in some respect. I could set corn fodder around the house and save them, but it looked untidy and made shifty, and other plans were as faulty, and I had finally concluded to put in artificial heat, when a happy thought struck me. Last fall I had occasion to rebuild all my poultry quarters, and I put said thought into practice, and it has proved successful in every particular.

Now for the plan: When it is warm the fowls sleep in any room they please, but when the nights grow cold they are driven into fewer rooms, and on very cold nights as many as fifty are put in one room. Yes, fifty fowls on 36 feet of floor space, and glad to be crowded, for they sleep comfortably, and sing the day through; and more than that, they lay; and, yet more, I never had a healthier lot of fowls in my whole experience. Of course the house is kept clean, and the room is ventilated, and they have the whole house to run in even the coldest days. They get all sorts of nice messes cooked up for them, such as butchers' scraps boiled with beans, parched corn, cabbage in the head, and boiled with beef, pig's heads and turnips cooked bigger Indian style, wheat, corn, oats, mash, and tallow, sea shells and other things that obtain among aristocratic fowls. Some trouble certainly—but what else can one do with the wind blowing and the thermometer begging for an overcoat? By the way, if you will take the trouble to grease the combs and wattles of Leghorns with tallow once in a while they will stand getting wet when it is very cold without freezing. Give me Leghorns, or give me something as good.

Poultry Notes.

FOWLS will eat a great deal of granulated charcoal. As a preventive of disease it is invaluable.

LAYING ducks kept in yards or on upland need and will consume large quantities of oyster shell and grass and vegetable refuse.

POWDERED charcoal and sulphur mixed occasionally with the feed with the poultry, is healthful whether the birds are young or old.

If you will confine the mother hen in a proper coop, and allow the young chicks and ducklings the free run of the garden, they will exterminate all insect pests. Young ducks are preferable of the two.

NEST egg gourds are now grown. They very much resemble the genuine eggs, and being light in weight there is less liability of breakage of the eggs laid, as is sometimes the case when they roll against glass eggs. Stale eggs should never be used as nest eggs.

THE STOCK-BREEDER.

Salting Cows Regularly.

All kinds of stock need salt, but it is especially necessary for milch cows, and it is important that it be given regularly. If left where they can get it under shelter, they will only eat what they need, a little almost daily to supply the small percentage of salt found in milk. As long as a calf gets milk as even part of its diet, it has no craving for salt, and probably does not need any. Regularity in salting cows increases the flow of milk, but if obliged to eat more than they need by having salt mixed with food, there will be at first an increase in milk production followed quickly by a decrease and often serious injury to the cow.

Fossil and Modern Horses.

At the London Institute Prof. Flower, in recent lectures on horses past and present, dwelt upon the remarkable modifications which have taken place in an animal about the size of a sheep, whose remains, including a complete skeleton, have been found in the eocene deposits of the Rocky Mountains. Students of natural history now accept it as the common ancestor of two notable groups of animals, the first of which include the rhinoceros, the tapir, and the horse family; while the second group takes in cattle, sheep, goats, antelopes, camels, and pigs. By means of diagrams and bones of the modern horse Prof. Flower was able to convey a great deal of interesting information as to the course of the differentiation which has occurred through intermediate races of animals, all now extinct, whose remains have been found principally in America within the last fifteen years. The peculiarities of the dental economy of the horse were explained in detail, the rudimentary teeth and the bones of the leg being shown, as all that now remains of a period when the animal would hardly have been recognized as the potential ancestor of the friend and companion that now plays so important a part in human civilization.

THE HOUSEKEEPER.

Happiness for Housekeeping.

1. Every woman needs to take regular exercise in the open air every day; and that exercise should not be in the nature of work, but of recreation.

2. As a rule, housekeepers need to eat more of simple food. If the food is simpler less time will be needed in its preparation, and what it lacks in unwholesome richness and unnecessary variety, it will gain in nutriment and digestibility. The result will be an improvement in the health of all the family, and will injure no one but the doctor.

3. Less time ought to be given to the routine work of housekeeping and more to relaxation and recreation. All that "the best of wives" did not do, and for the lack of which she became the inmate of an insane asylum, the housekeeper ought to do. The woman who "always stays at home," who "never goes out of the house, even on Sundays," and who is "always doing something for her family," not only will "have no ideas outside of her home," but will soon come to have none even there.

The short of the matter is, that women if they desire good health must not be confined so closely to the cares of the household. I know that many will look upon this advice as absurd, and will say:

"It is all very easy for you to preach, but quite another thing for us to practice. A woman's duties involve a multitude of little things, the importance of which a man never realizes, until they are omitted, and then he is the first to find fault. These things must be done. I cannot stop, I cannot find time to take out-of-door exercise and visit my neighbors. The work must be done, and I must do it."

Nevertheless, the fact remains, that when serious illness comes to the mistress of the house, the wheels of the treadmill cease to revolve, at least for her. Then the work either stops entirely, or goes on under other hands, and is cared for by other heads. The question is a pertinent one, would it not be better to do less work while in health, and thus avoid the sickness? And even hired help is less expensive than medical attendance. The old maxims, "A stitch in time saves nine," and "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," are worthy of consideration in this connection.—Good Housekeeping.

Hints to Housekeepers.

THE juice of half a lemon in a glass of water, without sugar, will frequently cure a sick headache.

EQUAL parts of olive oil and oil of wintergreen, mixed together, is a good remedy for inflamed joints.

A GOOD penwiper for steel pens is a piece of raw potato. It removes the ink crust and causes a smooth flow of ink.

IN using cloves for pickles or preserves, the blossom end should be removed, as this darkens the liquid with which it is cooked.

PEACH leaves pounded to a pulp and applied to a bruise or wound from a rusty nail or a simple cut will give immediate relief.

STAINS from tea or coffee will come out at once if they are taken immediately and held over a pail, while boiling water is turned over them.

PUT tea and coffee away in air-tight receptacles as soon as they are brought to the house. They lose much of their flavor by standing uncovered.

TO REMOVE tar rub thoroughly with clean lard, and then wash with soap and warm water. This may be applied to either the hands or the clothing.

CUT jewels should never be wiped after washing. Wash carefully with brush and castile soap-suds. Rinse, and lay, face down, deep into fine sawdust until dry; boxwood dust is best.

POISON by ivy may be relieved by applying the following: Dissolve a tablespoonful of copperas in two-thirds of a teacup of boiling water, and when cold apply with a cloth to the parts affected.

DO NOT place raw meat directly on ice, for the juices are apt to be withdrawn. They should never be left in the wrapping paper. Put them in an uncovered earthen dish and then set them on the ice.

A Multitude of Ailments.

The ailments which afflict the kidneys and bladder are so numerous that merely to name them would fill a space far outrunning the limits of this article. Suffice it to say that they are both obstinate and dangerous. To their prevention Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is well adapted. The stimulus which it lends to the action of the kidneys when they are lethargic, serves to counteract a tendency in them to lapse, first, into a state of pernicious inactivity, and afterwards into one of positive organic disease, which soon destroys their delicate interments, poisons the blood, and causes death. A double purpose is served by this potent. It promotes activity of the kidneys, and expels impurities from the blood which have no natural channel of outlet except these organs. Constipation, biliousness, fever and ague, rheumatism, and dyspepsia are also remedied by this medicine of thorough action and wide reach.

It is strange how few people know what their normal pulse is, said a physician to a St. Louis Globe reporter. They know that the average pulse is about 70, and imagine that they are well or otherwise as their pulse approaches or departs from this standard. It is true that an average of all pulses would give a result of about 70 beats, but in no other physical peculiarity is there such wide individual variation. I had two students in my office at the same time, both very strong and remarkably healthy young men. The normal pulse of one was 47 and the other 93. This difference is unusual, few pulses falling below 60 or rising above 80 in a healthy subject, but an unusually slow or rapid pulse is no indication whatever of disease, as is popularly supposed to be the case. Most people overestimate their pulse, as they often count its beats when talking about the matter, and it is a fact well known to physicians that the excitement of conversation will quicken the pulse from 5 to 20 beats. The best time to arrive at the true normal is shortly after waking in the morning, when the nerves are unexcited.

Good for Hard Workers.

It is fully claimed and pretty well sustained that hard workers can accomplish almost twice as much and save themselves from illness and loss of time if they take eight cents' worth per day of the extract of the Moxie Nerve Food Plant, now creating so much discussion. The dealers say its sale is the largest ever known. If a nervous woman gets hold of a bottle she gets the whole neighborhood talking about it, and a woman's curiosity has to be gratified if it costs the price of a bonnet.

At a meeting of the Physiological Society of Berlin it was given as a fact that when the bee has filled his cell and has completed the lid a drop of formic acid, obtained from the poison bag connected with the sting, is added to the honey by perforating the lid with the sting. This formic acid preserves honey and every other sugar solution from fermentation. Most of the insects that have a stinging apparatus similar to that of the bee are collectors and storers of honey, so the sting has a double function—it is a weapon and a pickle.—Dr. Foote's Health Monthly.

Woman and Her Diseases

Is the title of a large illustrated treatise, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., sent to any address for ten cents in stamps. It teaches successful self-treatment.

It is kindness that makes life's capabilities blossom, and paints them with their cheering hues, and endows them with their invigorating fragrance. Whether it waits on its superiors, or ministers to its inferiors, or disports itself with its equals, its work is marked with a prodigality which the strictest discretion can not blame.

It often happens that the coat of a swell bears a buttonhole, while that of a tramp has nary a button.

UNLIKE other cathartics, Dr. Pierce's "Pellets" do not render the bowels costive after operation, but, on the contrary, establish a permanently healthy action. Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. By druggists.

The earliest mention of neck-wear is that of Job's three comforters.

If a cough disturbs your sleep, take Piso's Cure for Consumption, and rest well.

MR. BRAIDWOOD, Superintendent of the London fire-engine establishments, stated before a committee of the House of Lords that, by exposure to heat not much exceeding that of boiling water, timber is brought into such a condition that something like spontaneous combustion takes place; and that it may take eight years for the heat from pipes charged with or used to convey steam, hot water, or heated air, laid among the joists of the floor, or in the heart of a partition, or elsewhere in a building, incased in timber, to induce the condition necessary to the actual ignition of the timber.

This represents a healthy life. Throughout its various scenes.

Just such a life as they enjoy. Who use the Smith's Bile Beans.

Smith's BILE BEANS purify the blood, by acting directly and promptly on the Liver, Skin and Kidneys. They consist of a vegetable combination that has no equal in medical science. They cure Constipation, Malaria, and Dyspepsia, and are a safeguard against all forms of fevers, chills and fever, gall stones, and Bright's disease. Send 4 cents postage for a sample package and test the TRUTH of what we say. Price, 25 cents per bottle, mailed to any address, postpaid. BONE ONE BEAN. Sold by druggists.

J. F. SMITH & CO., PROPRIETORS, ST. LOUIS, MO.

PATENTS

R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Inventors of new and improved machines for the manufacture of paper. 17 years' experience.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES

Price 25c. Cure for Asthma. Sold by druggists.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for

TANSILL'S PUNCH

Your "Tansill's Punch" will give better satisfaction to your customers than any other brand of cigars I have handled. I sell more of them than of all other brands put together. They are pronounced equal to the "bit" cigar sold here.

CHAR. A. CHASE, Distributor, San Diego, Cal. Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Boston, Mass. THE LARGEST and BEST EQUIPPED in the WORLD—100 instructors last year. Thorough instruction in Vocal and Instrumental Music, Piano and Organ, and in the Arts, Grammar, Literature, French, German, and Italian Languages, English Penmanship, Bookkeeping, etc. Tuition, $25 per year; board and room, $10 per week. Full Term begins Sept. 1, 1897. For Illustrated Catalogue, with full information, address L. T. TOWNE, Jr., Franklin Sq., BOSTON, Mass.

FEELINGS COLLECTED and increased by the use of this medicine. Sold by druggists.

The following words, in praise of Dr. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION as a remedy for those delicate diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women, must be of interest to every sufferer from such maladies. They are fair samples of the spontaneous expressions with which thousands give utterance to their sense of gratitude for the inestimable boon of health which has been restored to them by the use of this world-famed medicine.

$100 THROWN AWAY.

JOHN E. SEGAR, of Millenbeck, Va., writes: "My wife had been suffering for two or three years with female weakness, and had paid out one hundred dollars to physicians without relief. She took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it did her more good than all the medicine given to her by the physicians during the three years they had been practicing upon her."

THE GREATEST EARTHLY BOON.

Mrs. GEORGE HERGER, of Westfield, N. Y., writes: "I was a great sufferer from leucorrhea, bearing-down pains, and pain continually across my back. Three bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' restored me to perfect health. I treated with Dr. — for nine months, without receiving any benefit. The 'Favorite Prescription' is the greatest earthly boon to us poor suffering women."

THREW AWAY HER SUPPORTER.

Mrs. SOPHIA F. BOSWELL, White Cottage, O., writes: "I took eleven bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and one bottle of your 'Pellets.' I am doing my work, and have been for some time. I have had to employ help for about sixteen years before I commenced taking your medicine. I have had to wear a supporter most of the time; this I have laid aside, and feel as well as I ever did."

IT WORKS WONDERS.

Mrs. MAY GLEASON, of Nunda, Ottawa Co., Mich., writes: "Your 'Favorite Prescription' has worked wonders in my case. Again, she writes: 'Having taken several bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I have regained my health wonderfully, to the astonishment of myself and friends. I can now be on my feet all day, attending to the duties of my household.'

TREATING THE WRONG DISEASE.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here or there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent, or over-busy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some womb disorder. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages his practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine, like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

3 PHYSICIANS FAILED.

Mrs. E. F. MORGAN, of No. 11 Lexington St., East Boston, Mass., says: "Five years ago I was a dreadful sufferer from uterine troubles. Having exhausted the skill of three physicians, I was completely discouraged, and so weak I could with difficulty cross the room alone. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and using the local treatment recommended in his 'Common Sense Medical Adviser.' I commenced to improve at once. In three months I was perfectly cured, and have had no trouble since. I wrote a letter to my family paper, briefly mentioning how my health had been restored, and offering to send the full particulars to any one writing me for them, and enclosing a stamped-envelope for reply. I have received over four hundred letters. In reply, I have described my case and the treatment used, and have earnestly advised them to 'do likewise.' From a great many I have received second letters of thanks, stating that they had commenced the use of 'Favorite Prescription,' had sent the $1.50 required for the 'Medical Adviser,' and had applied the local treatment so fully and plainly laid down therein, and were much better already."

JEALOUS DOCTORS.

A Marvelous Cure.—Mrs. G. E. SPRAGUE, of Crystal, Mich., writes: "I was troubled with female weakness, leucorrhea and falling of the womb for seven years, so I had to keep my bed for a good part of the time. I doctored with an army of different physicians, and spent large sums of money, but received no lasting benefit. At last my husband persuaded me to try your medicines, which I was loath to do, because I was prejudiced against them, and the doctors said they would do me no good. I finally told my husband that if he would get me some of your medicines, I would try them against the advice of my physician. He got me six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription,' also six bottles of the 'Discovery,' for ten dollars. I took three bottles of 'Discovery' and four of 'Favorite Prescription,' and I have been a sound woman for four years. I then gave the balance of the medicine to my sister, who was troubled in the same way, and she cured herself in a short time. I have not had to take any medicine now for almost four years."

THE OUTGROWTH OF A VAST EXPERIENCE.

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females, at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in wisely adapting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of woman's peculiar maladies.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful remedy ever devised for the relief and cure of suffering women. It is not recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect Specific for woman's peculiar ailments.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and to the uterus, or womb and its appendages, in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic. It promotes digestion and assimilation of food, cures nausea, weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating and cruetations of gas.

As a soothing and strengthening nerve, "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system.

"Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhea, or "whites," excessive flowing at monthly periods, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

In pregnancy, "Favorite Prescription" is a "mother's cordial," relieving nausea, weakness of stomach and other distressing symptoms common to that condition. If its use is kept up in the latter months of gestation, it so prepares the system for delivery as to greatly lessen, and many times almost entirely do away with the sufferings of that trying ordeal.

"Favorite Prescription," when taken in connection with the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and small laxative doses of Dr. Pierce's Purgative Pellets (Little Liver Pills), cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder diseases. Their combined use also removes blood taints, and abolishes cancerous and scrofulous humors from the system.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years. Large bottles (100 doses) $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's large, illustrated Treatise (100 pages) on Diseases of Women.

Address, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, No. 663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH PENNYROYAL PILLS

The Original and Only Genuine. Safe and always reliable. Beware of worthless imitations. Ladies, ask your Druggist for "Chichester's English" and take no other, or money will be refunded. For particulars in letter by return mail, send SASE PAPER. CHICHESTER CHEMICAL CO., 2515 Madison Square, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Ask for "Chichester's English" Pennyroyal Pills. 10c. per box.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $150 FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Address: Brewster's Safety Razor Holder, Holly, Mich. N. U. F. W. No. 20-27. When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times." Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

A WONDERFUL SPEECH.

History of Lincoln's Famous Gettysburg Oration.

"I saw one of the most splendid of compositions in the English tongue written," said ex-Congressman Edward McPherson, while chatting about some of his recollections of Lincoln. "I believe that it is admitted now by scholars that for sublimity of thought, simplicity and yet elegance of expression, lucidity and purity of diction, Mr. Lincoln's brief oration at the dedication of the national cemetery at Gettysburg takes place with the loftiest specimens of oratory. Many regard it as the one oration of this country, that will be preserved with the English tongue. Yet Mr. Lincoln wrote it on his knee in a railroad car. It was practically an extemporaneous composition; that is, in the sense that it was wholly unpremeditated. He simply committed to paper the thought that was uppermost in his mind, and he had no idea whatever that he had written anything more than a passing thought in the event that he was to assist in commemorating."

"I represented the Gettysburg district in Congress at the time of the battle, and at the time of the dedication of the cemetery Mr. Lincoln was my guest. He was not sure that he could be present when he was first asked, but said that he should go to Gettysburg if possible. I think he was not prepared to say positively that he would go until a very few hours before the time set for leaving Washington. So he could not have given any thought to the oration before. I was his seat-mate in the car, and though he talked pleasantly, and spoke of the country through which we were passing, yet I thought he was laboring with one of those spells of profound melancholy with which he was at times afflicted. He spoke of Mr. Everett, who was to deliver the chief oration, and said that Everett ought to be at his best. I knew that Mr. Everett had given even more than his usual care in preparing this oration and looked upon his work as a masterpiece, and I believe that I told Mr. Lincoln so, and he said that the theme was great enough to inspire such an orator as Everett to his best. Mr. Lincoln, I think, had not thought of saying anything himself, but I told him that he would be expected to make a few remarks, for it would not be permitted him to be silent. He sat for some moments absorbed in thought, and at last began to feel in his pockets as if for loose paper. I asked him if he wanted paper and pencil, and he said, "Yes, a scrap of paper," and I opened my valise and gave him two or three sheets of note paper. He drew up his long knees, and, putting a book on them, wrote, jotting down, as I supposed, a few heads or suggestions. He wrote right along, without hesitation or erasure, and filled one page and part of another. Then he folded it up and put it in his pocket, simply saying that he had set down a few lines that had occurred to him today."

"At the cemetery, at the proper time, he arose, put on his spectacles and drew these sheets from his pocket. I do not think he had looked at them again after writing them in the cars, and in a low voice, which could be heard but a few feet away from the stage, he read these splendid lines. The few who heard him were most profoundly impressed, but upon the vast throng who saw him the oration made no impression whatever, because few heard it. No proper report of the oration was made, and Mr. Lincoln crumpled the manuscript up and would very likely have thrown it away if I had not asked him for it. It was not until it had been printed in a newspaper and when widely copied that its wonderful beauty, both in thought and literary workmanship, was recognized, and Mr. Lincoln was surprised to learn that scholars were quoting it as the best model of pure English and true eloquence the language had furnished, at least in America."

HORSES AS GOOD SOLDIERS.

"I was only a young subaltern when the war broke out, but I was a thorough artillery tactician. My highest ambition was to have a light battery of my own, and I had no difficulty in securing a light battery of New York volunteer artillery. It was splendidly equipped. There were six ten-pound Parrot guns and twelve as fine horses for guns and caissons as ever went into the field. The men were so green that they did not know the muzzle of a piece from the breech, and the horses were fresh from the farms, many of them not even broken to the harness. I at once commenced drilling my new command and in an incredibly short time it was pronounced ready by the chief of artillery for active service in the field. That battery became my pride, and its proficiency in maneuvering I do not believe was ever excelled. I believed then, and still think, that there is not a prettier military command than a light artillery."

"It was the first battery that I had ever drilled from its inception. I soon found that the horses learned sooner than the men. This was especially the case respecting the bugle-calls. Just as with the men, too, some of the horses learned faster than others. Some of them had better ears for music, too; and, while there was those who would obey any bugle-call after executing the maneuver a few times, others, just like the men, would never learn the meaning of the notes. The most proficient horses were always placed in the lead. More than once I have dismounted the men, and then with the bugle put the battery through the most intricate maneuvers, such as counter-marching at close intervals at a gallop without a rider on the horses. I had also taught the two lead teams something not contained in the tactics, that was to lie down in the traces at a certain bugle-call. This little trick saved my guns at the battle of Fair Oaks on the 31st day of May, 1862. The lead teams had been ordered to lie down as soon as the firing began. The enemy's fire was high, but not far enough above them to save the pole teams. They were struck down, but when we were forced to leave the field there were enough of lead horses to pull the guns off. All through that terrible sheet of flame and lead those horses lay down, not very quietly of course, and when the bugle-call sounded close to their ears, so as to be heard above the din of battle, they sprang up to their feet, and, many of them riderless, executed the order to limber up and retreat."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HAD NOTHING TO SAY.

Mme. Aubernon gives literary dinners in Paris and rules them like a strict parliamentarian. She has a silver bell at her side to ring for order, and she gives each guest his turn to speak. One evening M. Renan was talking, when one of the lesser lights tried to say something in an undertone. She peremptorily silenced him, and a few moments later, when M. Renan had finished his monologue, she tapped the bell and said to the unfortunate, "Now, Monsieur, you may speak." "But, mon Dieu, Madame," he exclaimed, "I only wanted to ask for some more spinach."

THREE KINDS.

The Toronto Times pithily observes: "There are three classes of people in the world. The first learn from their own experience—these are the wise; the second learn from the experience of others—these are the happy; the third neither learn from their own experience nor the experience of others—these are the fools."

INDIANA has a post called Buffalo Miller.

J. H. CONRAD,

DEALER IN

ROOFING AND SPOUTING

GUTTERING, HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,

Cutlery, Nails, Paints, Woodenware &c.

MAIN STREET,

ST. JOE IND.

All work and goods guaranteed to give satisfaction. Give me a call.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

St. Joe Meat Market,

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

M. TUSTISON,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES,

EARTHEN POTS FOR HOUSE PLANTS

PROVISIONS, OYSTERS, LEMONS,

ORANGES, CANDIES, CIGARS &c.

MAIN ST. — ST. JOE, IND.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

R. G. COBURN,

AGENT FOR THE

A L BION SPRING Cultivator TOOTH

AND FIELD HARROW,

AND DAISY RAKE.

Farmers will save money by seeing me before buying. I will call on you with a sample in a few days. R. G. Coburn, St. Joe, Ind.

Take Notice!

Having returned from Tennessee, I will assist again in

Raising & Moving Buildings,

in short all kinds of Rope, Tackle and Jack-screw Work. Having had 15 years experience, and improved machinery, I feel safe in guaranteeing satisfaction. Heavy and difficult work a specialty. Correspondence solicited. Direct all communications to H. or M. Milliman, St. Joe Station, Ind., or A. Monroe, Hicksville, Ohio.

—A. KINSEY—

Undertaker and Embalmer. Keeps on hand constantly, a stock of Undertaking Supplies, Coffins, Caskets, Burial Robes &c. I can supply as fine goods as can be furnished. Will attend to making all arrangements for funerals. Calls responded to at all hours of the night. Office on corner of Main and Second Streets; residence on corner of Main and Fourth Streets, St. Joe, Ind.

Arthur James,

—DEALER IN—

Watches, Clocks, AND JEWELRY.

Repairing done promptly and all work warranted. Call and see me at Bair & Son's store, Spencerville, Ind.

M. T. BISHOP,

—DEALER IN—

LUMBER

OF ALL KINDS,

Shingles, Lime, Lath,

MOULDINGS &c.

Large Stock and Prices Low. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNESS

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

JULY

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, JULY 1, 1887.

NO. 23.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLIMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind., John Hall, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a speciality. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—At Bird's-eye, a station east of Huntingburg on the Louisville, Evansville and St. Louis Railway, James and Thomas Kendall, two brothers, were stricken down by a stroke of lightning and instantly killed. They were seated upon a shaving horse, under a tree, during a severe thunder storm, at work making ax handles, when the lightning struck a tree some fifteen yards distant and was transmitted to the tree under which they were seated by a metallic clothes line. It is supposed that the line, fully charged with electricity, struck them, setting their clothes on fire. Their aged mother, who was standing near, was stricken senseless, and but little hope is entertained for her recovery. The Kendall brothers were well known throughout the county as good honest citizens.

—A well-authenticated case of faith cure has occurred at Huntington. Mrs. B. F. Howe had been an invalid for over three years, most of the time being confined to her bed, unable to walk or move. Recently, a band of half a dozen ladies has been meeting with her and uniting in prayer for the recovery of her health. One day, after prayers, she rose from her bed, walked about the house, and ate supper in the evening with her family. She arose the next morning, got the family breakfast, and is now able to look after her household duties for the first time in over three years. The case excites considerable interest, and is one of the most complete evidences of faith cure which have yet been made public.

—A trio of drovers—Joseph Levi, of Marion, D. M. Clark, of Johnson's Station, and Isaac Longnecker, of Lynn,—had a perilous midnight ride into Richmond that unaccountably did not prove a ride to death. They were en route to Cincinnati, asleep in a caboose, which, with half a dozen cars, broke loose from the train, and ran back down a grade, gaining speed constantly, into Richmond, where it collided with an out-going Panhandle engine. The occupants of the caboose jumped, but the caboose passengers went into the wreck and out with but temporary injuries, despite the fact that the caboose, which telescoped on the engine, completely stripping it, was literally mashed to splinters.

—The subject of co-education has been brought up for several years in the meetings of the Trustees of Wabash College, and this year the subject was pressed more strongly than ever, but to no definite results, though the subject is being thoroughly investigated. It seems that a majority of the faculty are opposed to co-education, and this has a tendency to keep the Trustees from acting. This year the Princeton plan was urged upon the college authorities, and it is understood that this is being more favorably talked about. There is no doubt but that Wabash could have double the number of students that she now has if young ladies were admitted.

—Jarrett Ingram, a farmer residing in the vicinity of Somerville, Gibson County, was found dead recently, a few miles from his home. It is supposed he committed suicide by shooting, although no cause is assigned for the deed. He left home last week to hunt squirrels, and was not seen again until discovered dead. His body was in an advanced state of decomposition. Some of Ingram's friends entertain the belief that he was murdered.

—A freight train ran into a funeral procession crossing the railroad track near Brownsville, Union County, causing a stampede among the horses, resulting in a number of runaways, and tumbling buggies and occupants down a hill into a barbed-wire fence. A number of women and children were badly cut and crippled by the fence, and several horses ruined, while the wrecks of half a dozen buggies lay piled along the road.

ALASKA.

A Poor Man's Country—What Gov. Swineford Says of It.

Alaska is a poor man's country. His gun will furnish him more game than he can eat. He can dig more clams in a day than he can eat in a week. If he is too lazy to get those he can have fish for the taking. There is no demand for labor with us now, but the poor man is not dependent upon wages in Alaska. He is as independent as the millionaire and may hunt, trap, or prospect for the precious metals as he pleases.

There are no opportunities for agricultural immigrants in Alaska now because of the lack of any land laws whereby title to realty can be had. Indeed, the development of the territory in every respect is precluded for that reason. We have now absolutely no law. A settler cannot even acquire a "preference right" to the land he improves. The Secretary of the Interior has decided that it would be illegal for the President to issue a proclamation declaring a town site in Alaska. So far as I understand it, the opposition to an extension of the land laws come from the Alaska Commercial Company, although its officers disclaim it. I have noticed that whenever any proposition is brought before Congress looking to the development of the Territory some agent of the company always appears to oppose it. The fact is that the Territory has been persistently misrepresented and lied about by those who wanted it kept as a kind of a game preserve for their own emolument.

It is a mistaken idea that titles can be obtained under Russian grants. There are only about thirty titles in the territory derived from the Russian Government. These are chiefly to small lots in one or two villages. I only know of one Russian grant that covers as much as 160 acres. We must have some legislation to bring capital before it would be right to encourage agricultural immigration. While we have a good soil and a very considerable proportion of arable land, there will not be anything done for ten years or so in the way of agriculture beyond what is necessary for home consumption. The proportion of tillable lands in the southeastern part of Alaska is about the same as in New England. The soil is rich. Everything grows luxuriantly and everything can be raised there that will grow in Illinois except corn. The trouble is that the growth is too rank. In no part of the union is vegetation more luxuriant. I have seen timothy, redtop, and other grasses six and seven feet high. The above is also true of the Aleutian Islands, I am reliably informed.

Our mines will one day be the wonder of the world. There is practically but one developed quartz mine now, and it astonishes every miner who has ever seen it. With the most perfectly constructed and equipped mill of 120 stamps, it would be impossible to work the ore in sight in 100 years. The rock at the surface yielded $8 per ton, and is now yielding $14 to $15 per ton, and is mined and milled at a cost of $1.23 per ton. The rock in sight is above the working level, which is 210 feet below the outcrop. The level is 250 feet above drainage. The vein has been located for 3,000 feet, and is at its narrowest point 164 feet between walls. We have the benefit of the general mining laws. Claims can be recorded, but when a patent is applied for there is no one to receive the money. This obstacle is probably only temporary. I shall confess myself mistaken if there are not more stamp mills at work in Alaska in ten years than in all the rest of the union. Gold is found from the extreme south to Behring Straits.

Our timber resources are enormous, but they will hardly be available until the forests of Oregon and Washington Territory are exhausted. We have also vast wealth in fur, ivory, salmon, halibut, and cod. The cod fisheries are worth many times what Secretary Seward paid for all of Alaska. The banks are ten times as large as those of the Atlantic coast, the waters are safer, and the cod better.

THE CONGRESSMAN'S WIFE.

I never saw the wife of a newly-elected Congressman come here without a feeling of pity for her. At her home she was a worthy woman, who did much to secure her husband's election by her popular manners and her good heart. To her it was a great thing to become the wife of a member of Congress, but on arriving here she found that she has only taken the first step toward social distinction. It was not long before a change commenced. From a modest lady, in a plain black silk and smooth brown locks, she burst into an ornamental gown of light satin, loaded with beads, which was not high enough in the neck by three inches, and her head had in front a mass of frizzes, which hid her broad brow and made her look like an idiot or a Shetland pony. Before her diamond-decked fingers had been out of the domestic dish-water long enough for their knuckles to recover from their greasy odor of parboiling, she rode about in her hired coupe, and gave her orders to the coachman in a fault-finding tone. Her days became a round of ceaseless, meaningless tondism, proclaimed by the women writers as fashionable, and her nights were wild revels, with champagne, oysters, flowers, punch, lost temper and bitter disappointments. Now, her husband has not been re-elected. She must return to her little village, to mope and pine, and make herself generally disagreeable, but as she drops out of life here, not a ripple on the tide of fashionable society will show where she has gone down. The wheels of folly roll round forever, and the wife of the new member will, in her turn, take the place of the one that has gone. —Perley, in Boston Budget.

OF COURSE.

Unhappy Mamma—What do you suppose your clothes are done up for, you horrid child?

Shockingly dirty, but happy Willie—Why for me to soil, of course; ain't they mamma.

ACCORDING to a recently published book parsley was the only vegetable eaten in the time of Queen Elizabeth. The favorite game was pigeons, trout, chicken, venison, and rabbits.

SUSAN COOLIDGE has a parrot which is said to quote passages from her novels.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS,

PUBLISHERS.

WHEN SHE DIED.

BY H. S. KNEEDLER.

It was when the day was done,
At the setting of the sun,
That she died;
And the day that stole apart
Left its shadows in my heart,
When she died.

I remember how her breath
Fluttered as the wings of Death
Trembled near;
But the soul that sought the skies,
Through the love-light of her eyes,
Knew no fear!

And I know that on her face
Smote the glory of that place
Where love lives;
Nor could wreck and shock of years
Blunt the hope born of my tears
That it gives.

Oh the night stole down apace
On the still and sacred place
Where she lay!
Yet I listened there apart,
Heard the silence of her heart,
To me say.

"You knew not the way was long,
— You but heard the triumph song,
On my lips!
Yet the tempest beat on me
As the salt winds of the sea
On white ships;

"Sometimes it was dark to me,
Yet I clung to thee,
In the gloom;
And for thee I faced the light
Even though my soul like night
Sought the tomb!

"In thy darkest hours of doubt
I have wrapped thee all about
With my love;
And I led thee to the peaks
Where the silence of God speaks Of His love!

"Lay thy head again at rest
On my still and pulseless breast
But awhile;
For I look not farry long,
Soon the grave shall still the song,
And the smile.

"Put my cold arms round thee now,
Let my dead hands press thy brow,
As of old;
I will feel my love again—
For through passion and through pain
It was told!

"Ah! the life-line breaks and slips,
For I cannot feel thy lips
As of yore;
There is darkness in the place
And I may not see thy face
Any more!

Then my heart made piteous moan,
And I left my dead alone
With the night!
And the shadows gathering there
Left their deeper darkness where

THE YOUNG SOLICITOR

BY AGNES DAVENPORT.

Though, above all things, I would avoid wearying my reader, I must take you up one, two, three flights of stairs. Here we are brought face to face with the modest announcement that "Robert S. Daggett" is a "Solicitor at Law."

Let us open the door, just to make his heart leap with the delusion that it's a client. But then, alas! the old, old pulsation will return, slower and slower each day, it seems, under its growing burden of disappointed hopes and bitter cynicism.

Of course we shall find Robert Daggett a young solicitor. It is only young solicitors without old clients who have to take third-story chambers where new clients never come. For this is what glorious fortune has established as a law, taking from him who has not, and giving unto him who has.

Our first impressions are that Robert Daggett does not take exercise enough. Else he would have more blood in his face, his animal nature would have asserted itself more strongly, and his functions of hope—if you will permit the expression—would have been better developed and active.

He has kept himself too closely to his books to wield the sword he has forged; and even this moment was rising from a leading case to ask himself if he should ever be able to sell his accumulating stores of legal knowledge for pounds, shillings, and pence.

I am satisfied that if the world should suddenly condescend to look around for those perfect heroes that certain romances have credited her with owning, that she would return weary and disgusted from the fruitless search.

Heroes may grow into perfection in the spirit land, but as long as they carry the flesh of this world they are often destined to forget the dignity of their creation and being.

In his struggles with "the world, the flesh, and the devil," Robert Daggett began to think that he was too sorely pressed.

I cannot defend such thoughts; but I can sympathize with him. Who has not his moments of bitterness? If there be such, then they have a perfect right to thank their stars that in this respect they are not as other men.

Robert Daggett had come to Lockwood two years ago. During all this time he had been as active and aggressive as his sense of professional propriety permitted, and had made—fifty pounds. He had known shop-keepers, book-keepers, and insurance clerks to average twelve pounds a month, and he firmly believed that the bootblacks along the streets were outstripping him in the race for wealth—for a home. Wherefore time and again he had asked himself if the faith within him was well-grounded, and each day he was less satisfied with the answer.

"I don't know," he slowly soliloquized, as he shut a half dozen opened volumes, and arranged them in their places in his meager library—"I don't know just how far the contempt of riches should be carried, but I am each day learning what the want of them expressly involves. It means that I must take meat once a day, and no oftener, or visions of bankrupt acts rise to haunt me; it means that I must wear each and every one of my boots threadbare; it means that I must ask Miss A. to church, whilst Mr. B. takes her to the opera."

He had put the last book away, and turning on his heel, began to pace back and forth amid the gathering shadows of the October evening.

"I wonder what the outside world thinks of such a race? What its practical men and fair women say? But Heaven forgive the meanness of that inquiry!"

And the thin lip curled as he turned the key in the door and buttoned up his coat.

If riches constitute happiness, Jessie Tupper was the happiest girl in town. Or, if, peradventure, an admirable face, warm impulses, and popular ways, are all needed, the possibility of enjoying the divinest of blessings was still hers.

But she did not look altogether happy. Now it is just barely possible that the novel she tossed to the table had not concluded to the eternal fitness of things, and I am given to understand that events of this kind have no little influence upon the current of life down which some young ladies glide.

The drawing-room door opened, and the tall, erect form of a middle-aged man entered.

"Ah, Jessie!" as he picked up the book and scanned the title, "A Woman's Wrongs, involving, of course, 'A Woman's Rights.'"

"And, now, uncle, for my lecture." And Jessie Tupper arranged herself for the ordeal with a mock solemnity.

"Of course you deserve one!" he grimly smiled. "Lecture first: A book ought to instruct, or it ought to inspire, or it ought to be burnt; and, this, doubtless, is guilty unto death."

"I am disappointed in it, and in most novels," answered Jessie, with a growing earnestness. "I find so few rules that seem practical."

Her uncle lifted his shaggy eyebrows with mock astonishment.

"And do you read novels in search of practical rules for better living and better thinking? Then let me recommend the rule of three as altogether more practical than the rule of two, which, doubtless, runs all through these pages."

"I am ready for just such discourse!" laughed Jessie. "But really, uncle, I read with a good purpose, if with poor results. I want to find a correct measurement of just such people as I meet. I want to find answers to the questions that each day suggest themselves; but I rarely succeed."

"Of course you don't. Dickens knew that the anonymous sketches by George Eliot were written by a woman, because the portraits of the women in them were more powerfully drawn than those of the men; and who has drawn both, save Shakespeare?"

"Ergo," smiled his pretty niece, with the least of blushing, "I must dedicate myself to the novels of men."

"Oh, ho!" drawled Capt. Norwood, humorously; "then you're seeking to better understand men—me, for instance? But why, Jessie," and his voice lost its bantering strain, "should not all young ladies dedicate themselves to such a science above all others? The bank manager wants every mystery of the life, nature, morals, and purposes of his cashier made brighter than day; but you—are some day to give your heart and honor to a man's keeping!"

"No, no!" Jessie exclaimed, with a rebuking look and smile. "I shall die an old maid."

"You might better perhaps, if you fail to solve the problem. But come, give me some examples to work on."

"Indeed, uncle, you're more practical than usual; I can't have any particular man in view."

"Of course not—of course not! But get one in view; we must have an example."

Jessie Tupper hesitated.

"No names, no names—a description will answer."

"I might give you a dozen."

"One will do better."

"How, then, would so practical a man as yourself explain the wherefore of a young solicitor of apparently social nature, easy manners, and good conversational powers, absolutely shunning society?"

"Easy enough! Easy enough!" answered the Captain, as he stroked his whiskers with an air of a man of profound convictions. "In the first place, he can't afford society, and in the second place he can't afford to fall in love."

"Can't afford to fall in love?"

"Of course not. The true lover crucifies his love, if he believes it will not bless its object. He does not care to link her bright fate to his dark one."

"Well, indeed, that's romantic!" laughed Jessie. "I'm much afraid, uncle, you've been brought up on novels."

"But all that I say is as true as gospel, and I can prove it."

"How?"

"When would you expect this brilliant young solicitor to come into your presence again, supposing him like unto other men?"

"I didn't say he was brilliant."

"But I did. You see you have converted me already."

"He ought to be at the volunteer ball on Monday; but he won't."

"Yes, he will."

His manner was even more emphatic than his words, so that Jessie Tupper looked up with a stare of mingled surprise and droilery into her uncle's face.

"Now I don't endorse wager by battle, or otherwise, but I will wager you a silk dress against a pair of slippers that he will be there, and I shall in no wise have the matter suggested to him—isn't that fair?"

Jessie could only laugh at her uncle's earnestness, and the absurdity of his proposition, but she accepted the wager.

"Give me his address."

"Why, he's only an illustration, uncle!" And there were threatenings of the return of her embarrassment.

"Of course—of course, Jessie!"

"Robert S. Daggett—Bank Buildings—that's all I know about it," tapping her little slipper uneasily against the fender.

"But it is up three stories—but one wager at a time—and I will look it."

Whereupon, in the most matter-of-fact way, Capt. Norwood took down the address, and wrote underneath it the wager.

"Robert S. Daggett:—Please write me in fifteen minutes, and one hundred words, the difference between 'Trespass on the Case,' and 'Trespass et armis.' You may answer this or not, just as you please. The boy waits your decision."

Robert Daggett read it twice, and then looked at the boy who had brought it. It was all in vain.

"Very strange and summary way for seeking out legal advice," he soliloquized; "but I cannot afford to deal out charity my legal treasures."

And, so thinking, he seized a pen and dashed down:—

"Trespass et armis has two elements. First, unlawful commission; second, force continuing in motion from the plaintiff's hands until it reaches and injures defendant. If either one is present without the other, it constitutes Trespass on the Case."

"Now that's what I call clever," reasoned Capt. Norwood, half aloud, as he read the above answer to his letter. "Very clever, and clear as sunshine. Campbell knew it all, but he could not put it to me so that I could see it, and that I do not like. When our road runs over a man I want to know just what we've done, and why the action is Trespass on the Case. This tells me, and I shall see Campbell to-day, and write Daggett to-morrow. So clear a head cannot hurt the case, and I want to give him a chance to breathe, and to go into society, and I want to win those slippers and solve a greater problem than some novelists ever have."

It was the Tuesday morning after the ball.

"And now, Jessie, for the committee's report. Was Robert Daggett there?"

"Yes, uncle, but—"

"But nothing!" he shouted out with his old imperious humor. "Only have those slippers ready by Christmas."

And then the Captain bent his head, and said something in so low a tone that your author could not catch it; but Jessie Tupper must have heard every word, for she crimsoned splendidly, as she exclaimed in pathetic remonstrance, "Now, uncle!"

Statistics Furnished by the Editor of a Weekly Paper.

Average number of MSS. received per day...	125
Average number of MSS. declined per day...	120
Number of cherries made per day...	120
Number of reproducible and abusive letters received per month from would-be contributors, who a work I have refused...	2,050
Number who cheerfully accept my judgment...	00
Number of contributors who have sought to work upon my sympathies, and by the receipt of pathetic tales of poverty and distress induce me to accept their MSS.	451
Number who have succeeded...	3
Number of times I have been sorry I yielded...	3
Number of my relatives living...	33
Number of those who think themselves competent to write on my paper...	33
Number who have tried to do it...	33
Number who have failed...	33
Number of suggestions as to the proper manner of "trimming" my paper received per week, from friends...	65
Number of those suggestions utilized...	00
Number of my contributors who are thoroughly satisfied with my treatment of them...	00
Number of persons among my acquaintances who do not think they could conduct the paper better than I do...	00
Number of times I have wished that I were dead...	5,220

—The Editor.

In the early days of England men were too humane to hang women, but they crowned them.

PITH AND POINT.

A DRIVING club—the ballplayer's bat.

A PEN picture—an engraving of a piggery.

KEEP a cool head and avoid heated argument.

AN early spring—a sudden leap from bed before daylight.

WHY is a recruiting sergeant like the wind? Because he blows where he listeth.

WHEN a man goes double is it evidence that his glasses are too strong for him?

"LOVE laughs at locksmiths," and yet there isn't anything very funny about a locksmith.

WHAT is that which lives in winter, dies in summer, and grows with its roots upwards? An icicle.

GEN. ANDREW JACKSON was a man of undaunted courage. He married one woman twice.—C. F. Walls, in Newman Independent.

MEN will spend a dollar at the bar while declaiming against the outrage of charging 25 cents admission to a temperance lecture.—Texas Siftings.

"It is but a step from the sublime to the ridiculous; and the Sunday-night young man is apt to take it when her father comes in impetuously at 11:30 o'clock.—Journal of Education.

DR. LYMAN BEECHER once replied to an inquiry of Dr. Hawes, "How are you getting on?" "First-rate! first-rate! first-rate! ever since I stopped trying to run this world."—Living Church.

We bend the knee, but not the elbow," enthusiastically exclaimed an orator at a temperance meeting. "That's so," said an unrepentant sinner on a back seat. "It's the only way you can get your mouth to the bung-hole."

"Yes," said the lady lecturer, "women have been wronged for ages. They have suffered in thousands of ways." "There's one way they never suffered in," said a hen-pecked man, rising. "What's that?" demanded the lecturer. "They have never suffered in silence."

AN IDYL OF THE RACES.
His hopes were high, his eye was bright,
As toward the track his way he took;
His manly step was very light—
Heavy his pocketbook.
But this same man was seen again,
As day was kissing night;
His step was very heavy then—
His pocketbook was light.
—Washington Critic.

APPEARANCES are very deceiving. A little boy at the opera, who noticed the gentlemen looking through their opera-glasses at the ballet dancers, was of the opinion that the opera-glasses were for an entirely different purpose. He said: "Mamma, buy me one of those things, so I can cover up my eyes with it when those women come on the stage."

Bishop Thompson, of Mississippi, tells this joke at his own expense: He says that as he stepped off the curb one day at Jackson, Miss., he was approached by an enterprising dusky drummer for a local hotel and informed that "all gemman stop at the Larence House." Another darkey standing near by said: "Dis no gemman; dis Bishop Tomsen."

"That brindle dog of yours has killed three more of my chickens this morning," said the wife of a Dakota settler to her husband, "and if you don't shoot him I'm going to give him a dose of strychnine." "Hold on now, Sary, hold on, I've got a plan." "Oh, bother your plan—you can't never break him of the trick, and the best thing you can do is to kill him." "No 'taint Sary, nowhere near the best we can do. Just wait till you hear my plan." "Well, what is yer remarkable plan?" "Why, I'll tie him up now and sell him for a bird dog to the first Chicago hunter that comes along. I'll get $50 for that dog yet, if you'll just lemme be."—Dakota Bell.

The Wars of Europe.

The wars of Europe since the sixteenth century presents the following table:

Wars undertaken for the acquisition of territory...	11
For the levy of tributes...	22
For reprisals...	22
To decide questions of honor or prepotency...	24
From claims relative to the possession of territory...	6
From claims to crowns...	11
From pretensions of assistance to an ally...	60
From rivalry in influence...	23
From commercial quarrels...	51
Civil wars...	55
Religious wars...	55
Total...	280

COLLATERAL. China claims a population of 82,000.

A REBEL SPY IN WASHINGTON.

How He Conveyed Important News from the Capital to Richmond.

I had become so emboldened by frequent and successful scouts into Washington City; my nerves had become so trained by frequent contact with federal officers and soldiers; my manner made imperturbable by sudden shocks and unexpected surprises; my soldier life so habituated to this environment—that I had well-nigh concluded I was ready to shake hands with Stanton or dine with Gen. Grant, says Thomas N. Conrad, an ex-Confederate spy, in the Philadelphia Times. Meeting a friend who was a clerk in the War Department, I was informed that an important paper would be in his office in a few days—a tabulated statement which would be an interesting document to the Confederate War Department. He would make a copy of it and leave it upon his desk at "lunch hour," if I could devise any way to secure it. I told him I would walk into his office myself and get it if he would guarantee it to be on his desk at a specified hour. This was done, and as the crowd of clerks was passing in and out during "lunch hour" I walked into the War Department of Washington to the room of my friend, winked at him as I passed him in the throng, got the paper, and walked out as composedly as Stanton's private secretary could have done, and before "lunch hour" of next day that tabulated statement was in the War Department of Richmond.

Finding that I would be constantly detailed upon these trips, I called upon the Confederate Secretary of War and advised establishing a reliable line of communication between Richmond and Washington. He indorsed the proposition, and requested me to establish it at once. A signal station, under the charge of a lieutenant, had been in successful operation upon the Potomac for some time, and had proved very useful. But the War Department needed a direct line of its own, subject to its order, and reliable at all times. To establish this I rode from the front door of the War Department of Richmond to the Potomac River, crossed the river and rode to the front door of the War Department of Washington, and established the line throughout. Having selected a high cliff near Boyd's Hole on the Potomac as the site for my shanty and men, I wrote to the Secretary of War for an outfit.

Upon receiving boat and equipment I selected two Irishmen who were expert oarsmen, and a courier, and had them detailed for the post. The negro man, who had been with my regiment since 1861, and had been the body servant of the Lieutenant Colonel, and after his death served me, made the five who composed the detail. So with four men, three horses, a good boat, a fine field-glass, a pocket-compass, and "quarters" upon a high cliff of the Potomac, I was ready for operations. I crossed the river and selected three practicing physicians, who could ride at any hour of the night without being suspected or arrested by federal troops, being known as neighborhood doctors, and who were heart and soul in sympathy with us. Whenever I was in Washington and wished to send a dispatch to Richmond I called upon the physician living near the navy-yard and gave him the dispatch. He would ride over the navy-yard bridge, which was always under guard, in his doctor's buggy and give the dispatch to physician No. 2. He would mount his horse and ride to the house of physician No. 3 and deliver it, and he would ride to a certain point on the river and place the dispatch under a ledge of rocks. That night the boat would come over from my camp, get the dispatch, take it to camp, give it to the courier, who would at once ride to the telegraph office and have it telegraphed to Richmond. Thus in less than twelve hours I could send a dispatch from Washington City to Richmond. This line existed until Lee surrendered at Appomattox, and rendered invaluable service to the Confederacy.

At Sea.

At the Hygeia—"I say, Jule, do you know that Mr. Brown thought you were a married woman until this evening?"

"Well, he must have thought I was a nice kind of a married woman, flirting around this way!"

"Oh, he thought you were a naval officer's wife."—Town Topics.

CHICAGO is a great sheep market. It abounds in "crooks," and people are "fleeced" there every day.—Free Press.

"So Horrid."

He was an anomaly among his kind—a modest reporter. He had dropped into the Elite Club ball-room to write a ten-line notice of the affair.

Suddenly he found himself confronted by a bejeweled and bedecked lady, who said, sweetly:

"Ah, I know you; you're one of those horrid reporters, aren't you?"

"I am a reporter, madam!"

"I knew it. And you've come to write all sorts of horrid things about us poor ladies, who can't help ourselves!"

"Indeed, madam, I—"

"O, yes, you will! I just think you reporters are too horrid for anything!"

"I am not—"

"You go and put all sorts of things in the paper about us. It's just dreadful! I get real cross about it!"

"I assure you, madam, that—"

"O, well, I suppose it's your business to be so horridly awful! I suppose now you have come to write up all the costumes in your horrid way; and you'll have all our names in the paper, too!"

"No, madam; I—"

"O, I know you will! You always say you won't, and then you do! You're just so dreadful! I do think it's too provoking in you! We poor ladies can't do a thing that you don't put it in the paper!"

"I intend writing nothing but a brief notice of this ball!"

"O, well, I suppose you'll put in some names; so here is my card, so that the name won't be spelled wrong, as it was in your account of Mrs. De White's party! And there's a good description of my costume on the back of the card! Don't forget to write 'diamond ornaments!' I think I'm real good to take so much trouble for you, when you are so perfectly horrid as to go and put it all in the papers. O, you wicked, naughty, horrid man! It makes me cross to look at you! Good-by! Be sure you get my name right this time! You'll be more horrid than ever if you don't!"—Z. D., in Puck.

Safety from Malaria.

The most vigorous constitution, and the strongest physique, are not proof against a disease, the germs of which impregnate the air we breathe and the water we drink. The true prophylactic, the surest defense, is to fortify the system with a medicine which possesses specific virtues as a safeguard and remedy. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is precisely this article—proved by conclusive tests to be so. Not only on this continent, wherever miasma gives birth to the malarial infection, but in the tropics, where fever and ague assumes its most malignant types, this incomparable, popular, and deserving medicine has, for over a third of a century, shown its efficacy. Chills and fever, dumb ague, bilious remittent, alike yield to its influence and are prevented by it. The word "fail" has no place in the lexicon of possibilities when this peerless article is used. It tones the stomach, arouses the liver when sluggish, and promotes healthful activity of the kidneys and bladder.

The Hyacinth Trade.

The hyacinth trade is an important branch of horticultural commerce. For at least 300 years it has been cultivated, and as early as 1597 Gerard mentions six varieties as grown in England. Less than a century later the six had multiplied into many single and double forms, and in the middle of the last century the famous Dutch growers of this bloom, supreme among the flowers of spring, offered for sale fifty single-flowered and nearly 100 double-flowered varieties.

One of them, known as "La Reine des Femmes," a single white, is said to have produced from thirty-four to thirty-eight flowers on a spike, and on its first appearance to have sold for more than £4 a bulb, while the "Conqueror," a double blue, brought fully double that amount, the "Gloria Mundi" between £20 and £30, and the "King Solomon" an even higher price. The original of all these plants is not as many people suppose, the wild hyacinth of our woods, but a scarcely less insignificant oriental form, bearing on a single spike only a few narrow-lobed "washed blue flowers." The improvements in it are all due to the skill of the gardener, who selects his breeding forms with all the care which the grazier bestows on his Durhams and Ayrshires.—London Standard.

$500 Reward.

The former proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy for years made a standing, public offer in all American newspapers of $500 reward for a case of catarrh that he could not cure. The present proprietors have renewed this offer. All the druggists sell this Remedy, together with the "Donchic" and all other appliances advised to be used in connection with it. No catarrh patient is longer able to say "I cannot be cured." You get $500 in case of failure.

COL. E. C. WALKER, Trotting Editor of the "Spirit of the Times," N. Y., and Gen. Rufus Ingalls, Quartermaster General, U. S. A., both recommend St. Jacobs Oil as "without equal as a horse remedy." Price 50 cents.

THERE are plenty of recipes for making lobster salad, but we don't know of any for preventing it from giving you the nightmare.—Texas Siftings.

THE Champion Oarsman of America, John Teemer, writes: "I have found St. Jacobs Oil of inestimable value." All Champion Oarsmen use it. Sold by Druggists and Dealers.

A Florida Health Officer.

A prominent gentleman, from Lake Worth arrived in the city yesterday. Before leaving here he supplied himself with the proper certificates of health. He said to a gentleman here yesterday, that before reaching Enterprise the train was stopped and a negro stalked through demanding the health certificates; that he purposely held his certificate out upside down, when the negro took a glance at it and pronounced it all right. He was evidently too ignorant to know whether it was being held upside down or not.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

Brown's Little Joke.

"Why, Brown, how short your coat is," said Jones one day to his friend Brown, who wittily replied, "Yes; but it will be long enough before I get another." Some men spend so much for medicines that neither heal nor help them, that new clothes is with them like angels' visits—few and far between. Internal fevers, weakness of the lungs, shortness of breath, and lingering coughs soon yield to the magic influence of that royal remedy, Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery."

Exemplifying a Proverb.

"Did you ever go to war, boss?" inquired a tramp of a farmer.

"No, sir, I did not. I have enough to do looking after my hogs."

"Thank heaven!" fervently ejaculated the tramp.

"What for?" asked the astonished stranger.

"Because I have at last met the man who really believes that 'the pen is mightier than the sword.'"—Texas Siftings.

VIRGINIA has very stringent medical laws and a Board of Examiners that "tests" with a "high standard" all those who desire to practice medicine in that State. Yet one of its officials, a coroner, recently testified in court that morphia and alcoholics were antagonistic in their action on the human body, a statement precisely opposite to that of text-books by the best authorities. Even common experience should have taught the coroner better. Men cannot be made either intelligent or moral by law.—Dr. Foote's Health Monthly.

FUNCTIONAL derangement of the female system is quickly cured by the use of Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription." It removes pain and restores health and strength. By all druggists.

FOLLY is the quality exhibited by a man who is jealous of a cross-eyed wife.—New Haven News.

We would be pleased to know of a man or woman who has never had headache or been subject to constipation. As these seem to be universal troubles a little advice may be in order. Why should persons cram their stomachs with nauseating purgative pills, etc., which sicken and debilitate when such a pleasant and refreshing remedy as Prickly Ash Bitters will act mildly and effectively on the liver, kidney, stomach, and bowels, and at the same time tone and strengthen the whole system, causing headache, constipation and all such distressing evils to quickly disappear.

AN auctioneer does as he is bid, a postman as he is directed.

For dyspepsia, indigestion, depression of spirits, and general debility, in their various forms, also as a preventive against fever and ague and other intermittent fevers, the "Ferro-Phosphated Elixir of Calisaya," made by Hazard, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic; and for patients recovering from fever or other sickness it has no equal.

THE woman who neglects her husband's shirt front is no longer the wife of his bosom.

Ladies of the White House

Have found that their sometimes excessive duties produce a low, weak, tired and tremulous state of the system, and that iron restores richness and color to the blood, calisaya bark a natural healthful tone to the digestive organs, and phosphorus mildly stimulates the brain, all combined in Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic.

BRONCHITIS is cured by frequent small doses of Piso's Cure for Consumption.

$350

Will buy a complete Newspaper Outfit, suitable for publishing a weekly paper in a town of 1000 or over, including all the necessary machinery, and a full set of type. Address FORT WAYNE NEWS-PAPER UNION, Fort Wayne, Ind.

$5

Line not under the house. Write Brewster Safety Razor Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficial influence of

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health. It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young. As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

HARTER'S IRON TONIC

THE ONLY TRUE

Will purify the BLOOD, regulate the LIVER and KIDNEYS and restore the HEALTH and VIGOR of YOUTH. Dyspepsia, Want of Appetite, Indigestion, Lack of Strength and Tired Feeling absolutely cured. Bones, muscles and nerves receive new force. Enlivens the mind and supplies Brain Power. Suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex will find in DR. HARTE'S IRON TONIC a safe, speedy cure. Gives a clear, healthy complexion. All attempts at counterfeiting only adds to its popularity. Do not experiment—get GUTHRIE'S LAND BROTHER'S.

DR. HARTE'S LIVER PILLS (Cure Constipation, Liver Complaint and Sick Headache. Sample Dose and Dream Book mailed on receipt of two cents in postage.)

THE DR. HARTE MEDICINE CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for

JONES

PAYS THE FREIGHT

5 Ton Wagon Scales, Iron Ladders, Steel Bearings, Brass Tail Beam and Beam Box for $60.

Every size Scale, for free price list, mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

Wanted in every County. Shrewd men to act under our instructions in our Secret Service. Experience not necessary. Send stamp for particulars. CHANNAN DETECTIVE BUREAU, 44 Arcade, Cincinnati, O.

Miles B. Stevens & Co. PENSIONS. Metropolitan Block, Chicago, Ill.

LADY AGENTS can secure permanent employment at $5 to $100 per month selling Queen City Supporters. Sample outfit free. Address: Cincinnati Suspender Co., 11 E. Ninth St., Cincinnati, O.

ADVERTISERS or others who wish to examine this paper, or obtain estimates on advertising space when in Chicago, will find it on file at 45 to 49 Randolph St., the Advertising Agency of

LORD & THOMAS.

WARREN'S IRON TONIC. It purifies and absolutely restores the blood, and is a standard quality. 1 cent per yard; cloth-covered, 20 cents; bottle-covered, 25 cents. For sale everywhere. The T. WARREN FEATHERBONE COMPANY, Three Oaks, Mich.

KROGER'S PASTILLES for Asthma. Price 50 cents. Sold by mail. Stowell & Co., Charlestown, Mass.

PATENTS R. E. & A. P. LACY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Instructions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 17 years' experience.

ENGSTROM'S COLLECTED and increased by Engstrom & Powell, Indianapolis, Ind. Send for copy of Laws, free.

N. U. F. W. No. 27-87. When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
One Year, in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months ..... 50
Three Months ..... 25

Entered at the Post-Office at St. Joe
as second-class matter.

FRIDAY JULY 1, 1887.

Speak a good word for the Normal school.

Miss Anna Merrill is visiting with friends at Waterloo.

A. B. Coburn had another attack of hemorrhage this week.

A good many farmers will celebrate the 1th in the wheat field.

Mr. and Mrs. Sol Barney visited friends at Edgerton the fore part of the week.

Buy a Parasol for the Fourth. Case & Olds have a few left which they offer at a bargain.

Mrs. Al Weirick and children have gone to her parents near Waterloo, to spend several weeks.

Mell Bishop is going up to the lakes fishing next week. Leave orders for fish at the lumber yard.

Findlay, Ohio, has had an increase of 31 factories and 5000 people during the past year. Gas done it.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ackley of Hicksville, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lounsberry last Friday.

Rev. Fryberger has been in attendance at the Synodical Sunday school convention at Antioch, this week.

Copp & Ferguson are getting in the stone this week for the foundation for the addition to the school house.

Fifteen of our best looking girls attended the social at Shurt's last Saturday evening. They went by rail via the B. & O.

J. A. Millman of Freemont, Mich., visited among friends here last week. He was on his way home from a western trip.

Miss Audie Widney closed her first term of school last Saturday. We understand that she has taught a successful school.

J. H. Conrad spouted the depot at this place last week. Cooney generally gets there when it is anything in his line.

Quite a change in the mail route takes place to-day. Nowville and Spencerville will have daily mails from this place. The Fort Wayne hack will only come to St. Joe, and then return again to Fort Wayne.

Someone who came by Wm. St. manion's the other day reports that he saw something stretched out, hanging between two trees that looked like a jumbo elephant, but upon closer observation he found it to be Bill, himself, taking a swing in a new hammock he had just put up. He must have had a hammock made to order to have got one stout enough to hold up his avoirdupois.

The St. Joe Normal is now an assured fact, and from present indications there will be a large attendance. Professors Price and Hootman are men of practical experience, with the best of morals, active, stirring, with their hearts in the work, and we feel confident that they will teach a successful school. Our citizens are to be congratulated upon securing two such able instructors to conduct a normal at this place.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS

SPENCERVILLE

Mrs. Fryberger is on the sick list. Mrs. S. N. Olds visited at Edgerton last Tuesday.

Murray Bros. shipped a car load of handles this week.

Mrs. John Beams is visiting her parents at Republic, O.

Thomas Murray is building an addition to his residence.

Prof. Herrod is teaching a class in penmanship at this place.

The funeral of William Watson took place last Monday afternoon.

Mr. G. P. Robinson of La Grange was the guest of S. N. Olds and family last week.

Mrs. Wilson has moved her household goods to Hicksville, and will make that place her future home.

PLEASANT HILL

Liman Lockwood and Davis Karnth was in the neighborhood on business last week.

William Krise and wife were the guests of Willis Baker and wife last Sunday.

Mrs. J. W. Dills and children called on Mrs. Charles Jackson Sunday afternoon.

Mart Tustison and wife visited with Andrew Jackson and wife last Sunday.

Silas Reasoner bought a new self-binder. They are getting to be a common thing in this neighborhood.

Quite a number of our young ladies and gentlemen talk of attending the normal at St. Joe this summer.

Grandma Jenkins spent a few weeks in visiting with her children of this vicinity. She returned to her home north of Waterloo last week.

CONCORD

Mrs. Jessie Shilling is on the sick list.

James McKinney is building a new barn.

James Baker has a new wind pump.

Henry, Milton is re-roofing his house.

Dick Monroe visited with his parents last Sunday.

There were twenty-one scholars in the infant class last Sunday.

Miss Alice Draggoo has been visiting in Fort Wayne for a few days.

Bertha Hennessy has been sick for a few days, but at present is much better.

The social was well attended. The committee took in over thirty-two dollars.

Bertha Meese has been quite sick for the past week, but is again able to be around.

Belle Hilderbrandt has gone to see her sister, Mrs. Mell Davis, of Jackson township. She expects to be away for some time.

Mrs. Mary Kester, daughter of Solomon Shilling, after a long and serious illness, is convalescent with fair prospects of complete recovery.

F. Buchanan took his class of young ladies to Rehoboth last Sunday. They took their dinners with them and picnicked in the woods near the Bear Creek school house.

Last Tuesday evening the young people met at the church to practice in their new singing books, and after they got through they began to visit a while. All at once the house was in total darkness. The sexton got tired waiting for them to go and arranged for every light to go out at once. Then the exclamations, "Where are my rubbers?" "Where are my gloves?" "Where is my hat?" was heard all over the house. But the worst of all, the girls were afraid they would get the wrong fellow.

LEIGHTY'S

is the place where Gossomers.
Bustings and Suspenders were marked down 25 per cent; only a few left. Examine them before buying. Don't forget that we do carry the celebrated Reed shoes.

ST. JOE NORMAL

We anticipate a large attendance to our Summer Normal to begin on July 18, 1887, and continue eight weeks. The work will consist of a thorough review of all the eight common branches, also classes in Algebra, Book-Keeping and American Literature will be formed, if desired. Special attention will be given to the science and art of penmanship, which will be taught by Prof. G. W. Hootman, manager of the Business Department, and instructor in Science of Accounts and Penmanship in the Defiance Normal College. Prof. W. A. Price is favorably known as a thorough, competent instructor, and a fine disciplinarian in graded school work. To those who are preparing to teach, or even to have a thorough knowledge of the common branches, and such other branches as may be taught we would say that this school offers the best of advantages. Special attention will be given to the most improved methods of teaching. The village of St. Joe is well adapted for such a school, being centrally located, and a town of good morals. Boarding can be had in private families, and rooms can be had for self boarding, at reasonable rates. It might be well to remember a quotation by Prof. Payne: "Those who would prepare for the ordinary work of the school room, will continue to attend the Normal School." For further information address J. E. Dermott, St. Joe, Ind., or W. A. Price, Hicksville, Ohio.

The W. C. T. U. will meet at the residence of Mrs. S. A. Davis, on July 7th, 1887. The following program has been prepared. Scripture Reading by Mrs. W. Hart; Prayer; Select Reading by Mrs. E. Walker; Song by Mrs. M. T. Bishop and Mrs. W. Hart; Select Reading by Mrs. J. D. Leighty; Closing song by the society.

Good Stock Farm

On account of ill health I wish to sell or trade my farm of 160 acres, situated twenty-five miles northeast of Moberly, Mo., for anything good in or near St. Joe. Said farm is all under fence, has house and barn, twelve acres of thrifty young oak timber, a large spring of never-failing water, about 90 acres under cultivation, and is all under-laid with coal and lies within two and a half miles of a railroad station.

A. B. Coburn,
St. Joe Station, Ind.

NOTICE TO FARMERS

S. E. Fields, formerly head miller in the Anchor Mills, and G. B. Wilson, a successful miller of Iowa and formerly of Spencerville, having rented the Hicksville Flouring Mill would most respectfully solicit the patronage of the citizens of Hicksville and the surrounding country. We guarantee perfect satisfaction. Bring us your grain.

Daniel & Wilson.

The corner-stone of the new church at Spencerville, will be laid with appropriate service, on Saturday afternoon, July 2, at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Thever of Auburn, will preach the sermon.

The Island Park Assembly opens July 26th.

The Garrett Clipper says the Corona ax-handle factory will move to St. Joe.

Half fares are being offered by all the railroads on the 4th of July. Go and see your friends.

WOOL WANTED!

100,000 Pounds of Wool Wanted, for which we will pay the highest market value. Also all kinds of country produce wanted. Call and see us.

S. & F. BARNEY.

Millinery at Cost

Having enjoyed a large trade during the past few weeks, for which I am truly thankful, I now offer my entire stock at cost to close them out. Call and see me if you want a bargain. Miss S. A. Barlett, St. Joe, over Bowman's office.

Millinery at Cost

LOCALS

This is July the first time. New cabbage are in the market. The saloons of Hicksville have all been closed up. Shutt & White keep plenty of binder twine on hand. Josh Lounsberry was at Fort Wayne Wednesday. Miss Bartlett is offering some bargains in millinery goods. The old hack made its last trip to Newville and Butler yesterday. Arthur James, the jeweler of Spencerville, was in town yesterday. Mrs. Gehlman of Garrett is visiting her mother, Mrs. Evans, of this place. For the best Tea go to Case & Olds every time. They make a specialty of fine Teas. Wort Langley, son of Rev. Langley, arrived here Tuesday. This is his first visit to St. Joe. Miss Mattie White has been quite sick the past week, but is slowly recovering her usual health. And now the Cornua Head Light calls Oliver Widney a "mugwump." O. H. has enough handles to his name to make him feel like a big man. Vester Widney is getting along as well as could be expected. His limb being broken at the knee, and in the condition he is, the process of uniting and healing is very slow. He suffers considerable. The Y. P. T. L. A. will meet at the residence of Mrs. J. D. Leighty, on Wednesday evening, July 6th, '87. The following program has been prepared. Select Reading by Emma Tustison; Declamation by Clarence Hull; Essay by Nina Filley; Impersonation by Leona Tustison; Select Reading by Will Olds; Declamation by George Shuler; Select Reading by Prudie Lounsberry; Impersonation by Addie Widney; Declamation by Frank Hart.

The Auburn bath rooms are now in running order.

Hicksville will go to Paulding to celebrate the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. Sell Bowen returned to Ohio last Saturday.

Festival at Spencerville to-morrow evening. You are invited.

Case & Olds are selling a number one Hammock for $1.00.

G. V. James and wife visited friends at Butler Sunday afternoon.

All the county papers speak of the old settler's meeting as being a success.

Mrs. E. Zimmerman visited in town over last Sunday the guest of Mrs. M. E. Olds.

The corner stone for the new church at Spencerville will be laid to-morrow afternoon.

George P. Robinson of La Grange visited friends in this place the latter part of last week.

There was a social at Ella Wilmot's last Friday evening. The St. Joe band furnished the music.

Quite a number of the ladies of the W. C. T. U. of this place will attend the temperance picnic at Maysville, on the 4th of July.

John Leighty is selling the "Life of Gen. Logan." It is a fine book and will no doubt sell well, especially among the G. A. R's.

Mrs. W. B. McClaran after spending several weeks with friends here and Spencerville returned to North Baltimore, Ohio, last Saturday.

After ten days of pleasure among home and friends, Cash Lounsberry returned to his work at St. Paul, Minn. last Thursday night.

Leo will celebrate the 1th with a tub and sack race and the grandest display of fire works ever seen. Two sky rockets and one spinning wheel.

James Ables Esq., had some trouble in capturing a run-a-way hive of bees one day last week. James says he will kill all the bees he has in the fall.

John Leighty and Stanley Van Fleit went to Auburn last Friday on particular business, they said. We are inclined to think there were some girls in the case.

So far as we have heard there is not to be a celebration in the county on the 4th of July. What's the matter with old De Kalb? Has she lost all of her patriotism?

Just the time of year for lawn dresses. Case & Olds have a nice assortment of lawns, both in blacks, creams and whites, figured and plain. Call and look them over.

Last week's Hicksville News contained a cut of the editor of that paper out riding on a bicycle; at least we took it to be him. From appearances we would suppose that he is quite an expert at the business.

The Dispatch pitches into our "Holdover" again last week roughshod. "Holdover" says he would like to know who that man is that done a two dollar job of grading for ten dollars. He wants to pay him his money.

Dan Baker pretends to be a sort of a prohibitionist, but while at the elevator the other day we noticed a jug and long-necked bottle stored away nicely behind a wheat bin. Dan said it was oil for oiling up the machinery. Yes, I expose so.

The bills for the festival at Spencerville Saturday evening say "come and mingle shy glances and moonlight rambles with ice cream and lemonade." That may suit some folks, but we don't want any shy glances and moonlight rambles mixed up with our ice cream and lemonade. We want it straight.

STUBBORN FACTS.

The Champion is sold under the strongest warranty to do the work well, with ease to the driver and the team, to be well made of the first quality of material, to be more durable and less liable to get out of repair than any other binder made. Since its first introduction the Champion has been the most successful of all harvesting machines. To the well-to-do farmer, who is willing to pay a fair price on fair terms of credit for a first-class implement, we offer the Champion Binder as the best and cheapest machine in the market. For prices, terms &c. call on

SHUTT & WHITE.

A Clock or a Watch Given Away

to draw trade is not legitimate business, and we do not intend to make such an offer, but if you will call at the Drugstore, we will show you a nice line of Clocks. Watch the latest and very handsomest styles of Lace Pins, Necklaces, Scarf Pins, Rings, Cuff and Collar Buttons, Chains, Chains, Chains, at prices that cannot help but please.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencerville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining, Glazing, Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcox. Call and see me, or leave orders at the St. Joe Drugstore.

ST. JOE MARKETS.

COLLECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat	74 cts.
Oats	27 cts.
Corn	40 cts.
Butter	69 cts.
Eggs	12 cts.
Tallow	34 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	60 cts.
Smoked Hams	10 cts.
Shoulders and Side Meat	8 cts.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

Trains Leave St. Joe as follows:

WESTBOUND.
No. 9 Mail and Express	11:05 A. M.
17 Accommodation	4:18 P. M.
3 Chicago Express	10:42 P. M.
35 Local Freight	3:42 P. M.
EAST BOUND.
No. 10 Express and Mail	2:08 P. M.
16 Accommodation	10:28 A. M.
4 Morning Express	4:55 A. M.
34 Local Freight	7:50 A. M.
G. V. JAMES, AGENT.

Dr. Murphy was in town one day last week.

Frank Meek made us a pleasant call Tuesday.

Nelson Scholes is giving his house a coat of slate.

Get your machine oil at Patterson's Drugstore.

If you want any painting done call on Barney Woodcox.

Call at M. Tustison's grocery for full cream cheese. Prices low.

Geo. Hamm cut the first wheat in this section on the 23rd of June. How is that for early?

STAR WIND ENGINE

TAKES THE LEAD

H. A. WISMAKER, NEWVILLE, IND. Has the agency for this county. Call on him, or write for prices on Wind Mills, Pumps, Engines, &c. A good Regulator. See it before you buy.

The glorious old Fourth of July has cum round agin, hasn't it? It seems to git hear once a year party reglar, and altho it iz now on its 111th annual tower, the peopel ov the United States make jist az much fuss over it az tha did wen it was but an infant in its mother's arms. The Forth is the tyme wen men git full ov patriotism. In earlier days patriotism used to konsist of love for one's kountry, but in these moor modern tynes it often cumms put up in pint, half pint and quart bottles. Tu the smol boy the Forth ov Juli has mana charmes; tu him it iz a day ov noise an racket, an the moor racket ho kan make the happier he iz. And tu the young-fello who iz jist on the verge ov blushing manhood, who's appar lip iz jist beginning tu down ovar with it's furst fuzz, tu him it is the one grate brite spot in the hole year. The fact iz evera body enjoys the excitement with the Forth ov Juli awlways brings.

Barcus Q. Hippenhammer.

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

BY BEN: PERLEY POORE.

Prof. Morse having by many experiments proved that information could be transmitted between distant points by means of electricity, went to Washington, and in February of 1838 exhibited his machine to the President, his Cabinet and a large assembly of the members of both Houses. The subject was soon after brought before Congress, and an appropriation asked for to construct a telegraph line between Washington and Baltimore. Thirty thousand dollars, it was said, would be sufficient for the purpose, and as the amount was so small it was supposed it would be granted at once; but like many other great measures of public utility, it was nearly killed by delay. Large bodies, it was said, move slowly, and never was the axiom more forcibly illustrated than in this case. The Committee on Commerce, to which the subject had been referred, reported promptly and favorably, recommending that an appropriation of $30,000, the required amount, be granted for the construction of the proposed line. Week after week passed without any notice being taken of the report, month succeeded month, and still Congress took no action on it. Prof. Morse, however, was not easily discouraged. He worked with untiring energy in his studio at the University, for the means to support himself in Washington during the sessions of Congress, and in the midst of the greatest difficulties, the false promises of politicians, the indifference of pretended friends and the delays and vexations of tedious legislation, labored with the most determined perseverance to secure the passage of the bill reported by the committee.

The first year passed, the second was near its close, and still there appeared to be no prospect that it would be acted upon. Prof. Morse, during the interval between the sessions, went to England, having secured his invention here, and endeavored to obtain a patent from the British Government, but he was unsuccessful there and in France. Returning to the United States, he proceeded immediately to Washington, where he renewed his endeavors to procure the passage of the bill granting the appropriation of $30,000. Toward the close of the session of 1841, the House of Representatives took it up and passed it by a large majority, and it only remained for the action of the Senate. Its progress through this House, as might be supposed, was watched with the most intense anxiety by Prof. Morse. There were only two days before the close of the session, and it was found on examination of the calendar that 143 bills had precedence of it. Prof. Morse had nearly reached the bottom of his purse, his hard-earned savings were almost spent, and although he had struggled on with undying hope for many years, it is hardly to be wondered at if he felt disheartened now. On the last night of the session he remained till 9 o'clock, and then left without the slightest hope that the bill would be passed. He returned to his hotel, counted his money, and found that after paying his expenses to New York he would have 75 cents left. That night he went to bed sad, but not without hope for the future. The next morning, as he was going to breakfast, a waiter informed him that a young lady was in the parlor waiting to see him. He went immediately, and found that the young lady was Miss Ellsworth, daughter of the Commissioner of Patents, who had been his most steadfast friend, while in Washington.

"I come," said she, "to congratulate you."

"For what?" said Prof. Morse.

"On the passage of your bill," she replied.

"Oh, no, you must be mistaken," said he. "I remained in the Senate until a late hour last night, and there was no prospect of its being reached."

"Am I the first, then," she exclaimed joyfully, "to tell you?"

"Yes, if it is really so."

"Well," she continued, "father remained until the adjournment, and heard it passed, and I asked him if I might run over and tell you."

"Annie," said the professor, his emotion almost choking his utterance, "Annie, the first message that is sent from Washington to Baltimore shall be sent from you."

"Well," she replied, "I will keep you to your word."

While the line was in process of completion, Prof. Morse was in New York, and upon receiving intelligence that it was in working order, he wrote to those in charge, telling them not to transmit any message over it till his arrival. He then set out for Washington, and on reaching that city sent a note to Miss Ellsworth, informing her that he was now ready to fulfill his promise, and asked her what message he should send.

To this he received the following reply: "What has God wrought!" words that ought to be written in characters of living light. The message was twice repeated, and each time with the greatest success. As soon as the result of the experiment was made known, Gov. Seymour, of Connecticut, who was afterward United States Minister to St. Petersburg, called upon Prof. Morse and claimed the first message for his State, on the ground that Miss Ellsworth was a native of Hartford. I need scarcely add that his claim was admitted, and, engraved in letters of gold, it was displayed conspicuously in the archives of the Historical Society of Connecticut.

Numerous claimants have arisen since then to contest the right of Prof. Morse to the invention of electric telegraph; but the whole scientific world now recognizes our distinguished countryman as the first to prove the practicability of transmitting intelligence between distant points through the agency of the electric current.

Prof. Henry undertook, before his death, to set up a claim to the discovery, and Prof. Jackson, of Boston, who also endeavored to rob Dr. Morton of the honor of having discovered the anesthetic properties of ether, undertook to assert that he was the discoverer of the electric telegraph. England presented rival claimants, but finally admitted, to use the words of one of her ablest scientists, "That the merit of inventing the modern telegraph, and applying it on a grand scale to the public use, is, beyond all controversy, due to Prof. Morse of the United States."

Mrs. Hayes used to devote Sabbath evenings at the White House to song. The editor of a reliable newspaper, who was invited to join one of these domestic sacred concerts, met the President and Mrs. Hayes, their nieces, Misses Platt and Foote, their son Webb, the Vice President, Gen. Sherman and daughter, Secretary Schurz, Attorney General Devens, Senator Ferry, Gen. Hastings, Congressman McKinley, Assistant Surgeon General Woodward and wife and Mr. Dickinson, private secretary of the Vice President. Mrs. Woodward took the piano, and the first hymn sung was "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," followed by "Majestic Sweetness Sits Enthroned," "Jesus, Let Thy Pitying Eye," "Pass Me not, O Gentle Saviour," "My Days Are Gliding Swiftly By," "Nearer My God to Thee," "Tell Me the Old, Old Story." The singing of such hymns filled up the hour, closing with

Bless be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love.

A season of genial conversation, and the company broke up. No cant, no assumed solemnity, marred the hour. It was a time of Christian cheerfulness.

A Chinese Sell.

I was specially requested not to give it away. Please don't repeat it. But the late flower show, you know, where they sold bouquets of choice roses at 75 cents for one night, and made the men pay $2 for a buttonhole all the rest of the time. Shrewd; indeed, it was. One night there was a great stir. A very swell Chinaman walked in in gorgeous robes. He came up to the bon-bon stand and smiled on the ladies. He put down his money and bought something with Oriental dignity. The ladies whispered to one another, "The Chinese Consul," and he paraded around followed by an admiring crowd of girls until he reached the flower stand, and one of the ladies said: "Ah, Let's come down to see the show?"

It was the cook of her elegant establishment in the Western Addition.—San Francisco Chronicle.

She Could Distinguish Them.

"Speaking of Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Jones," remarked Fangle, "they resemble each other very much."

"Yes, they look a great deal alike," assented Mrs. Fangle.

"In fact, I can't tell them apart; but I suppose you can, my dear?"

"Well, I should just think I could. Why, Mrs. Jones' bonnets costs four times as much as Mrs. Robinson's.—Oil City Derrick.

THE GOSPEL OF DOGS.

An Affecting Conversation Which Nearly Led to Manslaughter.

As we sailed down from Syracuse I fell asleep, but the old gentleman sitting beside me grew so restless and fidgety that he roused me; says Bob Burdette, in the Brooklyn Eagle. In the seat in front of us a lady and gentleman were carrying on one of those intellectual conversations that are evidently intended for the whole car, and tend to make travel such a rare pleasure to a man who has just escaped from the asylum. I lost the opening chapters of the dialogue, but it was evident that the lady wanted to buy a "dawg," and the gentleman knew all about "dawgs." She wanted a setter.

"Red or liver-colored?" he asked.

"Oh," she didn't care; just so it was a handsome setter. "I do so love a beautiful setter. And I never had one, and I just long for one."

"Well," he said, "they are beautiful dogs. I couldn't live without dogs. There's something so loving about a dog."

"So human," she said, "so more than human. There is nothing in all this world so devoted as a dog's affection."

"That's so. A dog's love is perfectly unselfish. If you feed him he loves you; if you beat him he still loves you."

"Oh," she cried, "how can any one beat a dog? I hate a man who can be cruel to a dog!"

"So do I. I'd shoot a man in a minute if I saw him kick one of my dogs."

"Oh, how happy you must be!"

"Yes, and there isn't a room in my house too good for those dogs, and they know it, too. You know my big black Newfoundland, St. Augustine Le Claire. I paid $100 for him. Well, he sleeps in my room, and often he climbs right up on the bed and sleeps there."

"Oh, isn't that too cunning for anything?"

"Yes, my dogs live all over the house. Then my wife has three dogs of her own, that makes ten altogether. It seems like a good many."

"But yet you couldn't spare one."

"Oh, no. The house would seem lonely without them. They always welcome me when I come home; they're always glad to see me. Last spring when my Siberian bloodhound, Charlemagne, died, I thought my wife would go wild. She cried herself into hysteria, and went to bed, gave up society, put on mourning, and locked the piano. I couldn't eat anything myself for days. I felt as though I had lost a son."

"You have children, haven't you, Mr. Kennellthorpe?"

"Oh, yes; I have three—two boys and a girl—no, two girls—no, no; what am I thinking of? They're all girls."

Here the old gentleman collared me and dragged me furiously into the smoking car, where he backed me up against the wood box and held me fiercely by the collar.

"That's the cause of my hydrophobia," he howled. "That's the kind of stuff that makes a man mad! The bite of a mad dog is healing balm after such rot as that. One hundred dollars for a dog! Buy all the curs that ever yelped. I can buy 100 dogs for $1, and then I'd only keep one, and I'd kill him! Am I right?"

I feebly said "Amén!"

"You are saved," he said, relaxing his hold; and now let us sit down and smoke one of the train-boy's non-combustible cigars, for I must nerve myself to a deed of awful justice."

"What is it you'll do?"

"I am going to kill that man when he gets off the train, and at the same time you will kill the woman, or I shall kill you."

But when we got to Utica they rushed the old gentleman off and took him to the asylum. And I was the only man on the train who knew what drove him mad.

No.

How differently people can pronounce that simple monosyllable "No." One says it so offensively that it tingles in the ear like an insult, or strikes you like a blow in the face; another gives it so gentle an intonation that it is relieved of all severity and almost sounds like an assent. That is characteristic of a woman's "No" frequently, and lovers have often translated it so with but feeble opposition. Some men pride themselves upon the firmness with which they can say "No." Firmness is commendable when necessity demands it, but "No" need not be pronounced at all times with the weight and severity of a steam-hammer. Offensive, many times, to his business associates, the man who thunders "No!" on all occasions is the terror of wife and children at home. They dread to ask a favor of him, knowing well that if he refuse it will come like a thunder-clap. —Texas Siftings.

Mental Training in Childhood.

Modern biologists have found little difficulty in tracing the first mental processes of early childhood to that faculty of imitation which is the common possession of all highly organized animals. For a considerable period of time beyond infancy, indeed, the mental development of a child may be entirely the result of example and imitation. Yet it seems clearly evident that this sort of training is not only unsatisfactory and dangerous in its results and tendencies but it tends directly to develop unpleasant personal characteristics or abnormal intellectual processes. A rational and coherent system of education and mental discipline is as necessary to the symmetrical intellectual growth of a child of tender years as a proper diet is to the development of its muscular system. Nobody at least no parent—would dream of denying this; yet comparatively few are found who steadily apply the principle in practice. Fairy stories of one sort or another are the heritage of all the children, while in many families the value of mental discipline as applied to very young children is a thing unrecognized and unknown. The child whose smart sayings and unexpected movements betoken an intellect more than ordinarily active is encouraged as an amusement and exhibited to visitors as a prodigy, and too frequently its infantile eccentricities are given so free a rein that general discomfort to the household is the result. The rational and legitimate supervision which should be exercised by the head of the family is usually relaxed in favor of the bright child, who, more than the others, should in truth be an object of constant solicitude. The parental idea of watchfulness over the developing mind may easily include and involve errors that result in confusion, as is seen when a child's babbling passes, by some quick transition of word to deed, into an act of wrong-doing whose consequences may be disastrous and irreparable. Experience through many generations has shown that the plastic and impressionable brain of childhood may retain a distinct perception of the methods of evil, while the mischief, the folly, and sin involved are ideas which the dawning intelligence may fail to grasp. The wisest course of training, therefore, should exclude all possibility of the introduction into the awakening mind of strange suggestions which may be interpreted by the child in a manner not to be foreseen by those in whom the intellectual powers have been ripened and rendered stable by the experience of years.—Philadelphia Record.

Railways in China.

Engineers and capitalists have for some time past regarded the Celestial Empire as offering one of the most promising fields for railway enterprises that still remains unoccupied. They have manifested, consequently, a very strong desire to possess it. A dense population and large natural resources give undoubted assurance of success, could the officials who guard the imperial conservatism once be propitiated. But this is an obstacle which the most importunate diplomacy has not succeeded in overcoming. If one glances at the late history of China, however, her unwillingness to entertain any foreign propositions, without very careful consideration indeed, can easily be understood. The assertion is constantly being made that the empire is about to throw off her orientalism, and to become in effect an annex to Europe, as far as the adoption of western civilization and methods can produce such a transformation. But the change, has not come, and those familiar with her modes of thought do not regard it as possible until some years have passed. Her contact with western methods has not shown them to be altogether alluring. From experience, the Chinese officials have come to have a positive dread of the promoters of foreign enterprises.

Censure.

Censure is most effectual when mixed with praise; so when a fault is discovered it is well to look up a virtue to go in company with it.

NO WONDER IT COMES HIGH.

The Manufacture of Cut-Glass. The Reason Why It Costs So Much.

Symonds Standard.

Cut glass comes high, and it is no wonder. Down at Corning the other day I saw them making it, and though the half-gilded village of the southern tier is a very difficult place to reach from Syracuse, I felt repaid for the hardship of travel in what I had the privilege of seeing. Corning, N. Y., is getting bold advertisements the world over from this industry. Until the manufacture of cut glass was begun there several years ago by James Hore, it was thought to be as much a secret of foreign art as the making of hair springs for watches. Thomas Webb, of London, was the master of crystal cutting, and on the tables of half the monarchs of the old world his wares have an honorable place. Nowadays connoisseurs in these things concede that as fine cutting is done at Corning as abroad. The imitation of glass in this form has ceased almost entirely. Corning happened to have a glass works where a prime article in transparency was made. "That's what took me so far out of the world," said Mr. Hore, as he stood in the midst of his treasures, clad in a frowsy working blouse, with his sleeves rolled up. It is the greatest pride of the celebrated cutter that no man in his establishment can do so good a job as he can himself. All his riches will not take him out of the realm of buzzing wheels where the glass is going through the cutting process. There are seven of these, all of which require skilled labor of a high order, and at none of which can hurry be indulged. The prismatic intricacies of the ware are completed on a variety of wheels, supplied with sea-sand and dripping water. The most delicate colors are produced by the employment of wheels of various sizes. While I stood by, an artisan was cutting in relief the crest of the Prince of Wales on a set of goblets ordered by a wealthy Anglomane. The three wavy plumes in this heraldic sign were brought out with all the effectiveness of a cameo under the dainty touch of the workmen. Mr. Hore told me that the lead glass used for cutting costs him 60 cents a pound. There is a loss of over 50 per cent. in weight in producing the finished piece from the uncut vessel. The manufacture of this glass is in itself very interesting. The establishment is entirely distinct. All the bulbs used in the millions of electric lamps of the Edison plants throughout the world are made at these works. A small army of men were filling orders of this kind the day I walked through. At the Corning works the crucibles in which the glass is melted are now being made. For years it was thought necessary to import them, and as it is, their manufacture is a trade of itself. Talk about the mud-pies of our childhood, here is where you see the identical pranks of the gutter applied to a valuable industry. The wet clay is kneaded and mixed in troughs by men in bare feet, who give it the required consistency by repetitions of the process carried on for whole days. Then the clay is rolled into strips about the diameter of a bologna sausage and in the hands of modelers built little by little in the desired form. Each crucible represents a labor worth over $100. They are left to dry in a store-room for eighteen months before put to the fearful test in the furnaces.

Narcissus.

The fabulous story of Narcissus, as related by Ovid, is that he was the son of Cepheus, one of the Grecian River gods, and the nymph Liriope. He was uncommonly beautiful and fell so violently in love with himself on beholding his image in a fountain, that he wasted away with desire, until he was changed into the flower of the same name. He was beloved by the nymph Echo. In various ways this story has been wrought in verse; this by Gay:

"Here young Narcissus o'er the fountain stood,
And viewed his image in the crystal flood;
The crystal flood reflects his lovely charms,
And the pleased image strives to meet his arms.
No nymph his inexperienced breast subdued,
Echo, in vain, the flying boy pursued.
Himself alone, the foolish youth adores,
And with fond look the smiling shade desires:
O'er the smooth lake with fruitless tears he grieves;
His spreading fingers shoot in variant leaves;
Through his pale veins green sap now gently flows,
And in a short-lived flower his beauty flows."

The Narcissus is one of the most popular of bulbs for forcing. Large quantities of it are raised for florists' use. The varieties most in demand for this purpose are Paper White and the Double Roman Narcissus; the Jonquillare, also, largely used in this way. Amateurs will find all the varieties of Polyanthus Narcissus exceedingly interesting and easily raised as pot plants. The pure colors and the fragrance of these flowers are highly attractive and pleasing. The varieties of the Single and Double Narcissus are quite hardy, but the Polyanthus varieties are tender in this region in the open ground, and require to be well protected when planted out. They should be set in the open border in the same manner as Tulip bulbs. In potting them, place one bulb in a five or six-inch pot, and keep the neck of the bulb even with the surface of the soil, and otherwise treat the same as Hyacinths. Narcissus bulbs can also be bloomed in water.—Pick's Magazine.

Riding on Turtles.

At Smithfield, N. C., monster green turtles, weighing as much as fifteen hundred pounds each, frequent the beach all the way down to Fort Caswell, four miles below the town. People eat their eggs, but do not eat the turtles. Beach parties of young folks go down there, gathering beautiful shells, have dances on the hard sand in the moonlight, roast oysters, and have fun with the turtles. When a female turtle wishes to lay her eggs she crawls up the sandy beach to a place that suits her fancy, digs with her flippers a big hole in the sand, and then lays in the hole two hundred or three hundred eggs. The eggs are not dumped in a pile, but laid out smoothly and neatly in rows. When she commences laying it makes no odds to her how large a beach party stands around superintending the process. She attends strictly to business, and even if the eggs are taken from the hole as fast as she lays them, it does not at all discourage or frighten her. When she gets through she scrapes the sand back into the hole, whether the eggs are there or not, and starts back to the water. That is the time for the beach party to have fun with her. As many of them as can mount her big dome-like back do so, and she carries them down to the water's edge, where they jump off and she goes on. She does not seem to mind their weight or show any disposition to resent their good-natured familiarity. Sometimes they turn her over on her back, but after she has helplessly pawed the air for a little while they right her again and she waddles off.—New York Times.

Welsh Wisdom.

Three things of short continuance—a lady's love, a chip fire, and a brook flood.

Three miseries of a man's house—a smoky chimney, a dripping roof, and a scolding wife.

Three things that ought never to be from home—the cat, the chimney, and the house-wife.

Three essentials to a false storyteller—a good memory, a bold face, and fools for an audience.

Three things that are as good as the best—brown bread in famine, well-water in thirst, and a gray coat in cold.

Three things that are seen in a peacock—the garb of an angel, the walk of a thief, and the voice of the devil.

Three things it is unwise to boast of—the flavor of thy ale, the beauty of thy wife, and the contents of thy purse.

Three warnings from the grave—"Thou knowest what I was; thou seest what I am; remember what thou art to be."

Three things that never become rusty—the money of the benevolent, the shoes of the butcher's horse, and a woman's tongue.

Three things not easily done—to allay thirst with fire, to dry wet with water, and to please all in everything that is done.

Three things as good as their better—dirty water to extinguish the fire, an ugly wife to a blind man, and a wooden sword to a coward.

An Old German Bible.

John Conrad, Preston, Ills., has in his possession a German bible which was printed in the fifteenth century, being 365 years old. It is 16 inches long, 10 inches deep, 6½ inches thick and weighs from fourteen to sixteen pounds. It also has a register of the Conrad family for 200 years. Its binding is made of suble leather, and lined with hard wood and bolted together. It is in a remarkably good state of preservation.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Good Health

You cannot have without pure blood; therefore, to keep well, purify the blood by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine is peculiarly designed to act upon the blood, and through that upon all the organs and tissues of the body. It has a specific action, also, upon the secretions and excretions, and assists nature to expel from the system all humors, impure particles, and effete matter through the lungs, liver, bowels, kidneys, and skin. It effectually aids weak, impaired, and debilitated organs, invigorates the nervous system, tones the digestion, and imparts new life and energy.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. Price six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

BIRDSELL THE NEW CLOVER HULLER

DOES ITS WORK FASTER AND BETTER THAN ANY OTHER

OUR NEW RE-CLEANER

READY FOR MARKET

SEND FOR OUR CHALLENGE AND LATEST CATALOGUE

BIRDSELL MY CO. CO. 3500 N. W. 10TH AVE. MINN.

TO AGENTS, 2,000 POLITE, INTELLIGENT LADIES AND GENTS wanted to introduce our NEW TOILET ARTICLE for both sexes; at home or to travel, salary of commission. Especially Wanted, about 200 ACTIVE PERSONS, either sex, as General Agents to personally appoint local agents for us in territory assigned them. Address with stamp, P. O. Box D, Springfield, Ohio.

AGENTS WANTED FOR EARTH, SEA & SKY or marvels of the Universe. Shows in one. Agents selling 30 to 50 a week. For terms address National Publishing Co., Lakeside Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

OAK LAWN The Great Nursery of PERCHERON HORSES.

200 Imported Brood Mares Of Choicest Families. LARGE NUMBERS, All Ages, both Sexes, IN STOCK.

300 to 400 IMPORTED ANNUALLY from France, all recorded with extended pedigrees in the Percheron Stud Books. The Percheron is the only draft breed of France possessing a stud book that has the support and endorsement of the French Government. Send for 120-page Catalogue, illustrations by Ross Bonheur. M. W. DUNHAM, Wayne, DuPage Co., Illinois.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH PENNYROYAL PILLS

The Original and Only Genuine.

Safe and always reliable. Beware of worthless imitations. Ladies, ask your Druggist for "Chichester's English" and take no other, or inclose to stamps for us for particulars in letter by return mail. Name paper. CHICHESTER CHEMICAL CO., 2513 Madison Square, Philada., Pa. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Ask for "Chichester's English" Pennyroyal Pills. Take no other.

PILES Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is a sure cure for blind, bleeding or itching piles. Cure guaranteed. Price 50c and $1. At druggists or mailed by Walling, Kinnear & Marvin, Wholesale Agents, Toledo, Ohio.

A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RY

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest—is the only true middle-link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unequalled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

ALL EXPRESS TRAINS between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE PARLOR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kanabek, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.

All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employees of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly attention.

For Tickets, Maps, Folders—obtainable at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada—or any desired information, address,

R. R. CABLE, E. ST. JOHN, E. A. HOLBROOK,
Pres't & Gen'l Mgr., Chicago. Asst' Gen'l Mgr., Chicago. Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Agt., Chicago.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times." Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

SEEN IN A HOSPITAL.

Some Remarkable Work Done with Surgeons' Knives.

[New York-Mail and Express.]

A woman who was a private patient for several weeks in a leading hospital in this city consented to tell a reporter some interesting facts in regard to the operations performed. They are remarkable instances of medical and surgical skill. The lady was never in a hospital, and was quite curious to observe the actions of patients, nurses, and surgeons. She had an interesting experience with her next-door neighbor, who was suffering from dementia. The second night of her stay he jumped out of bed and shouted "Murder!" and "Police!" until half the hospital was aroused and nurses and attendants, orderlies and doctors came rushing to the scene. As that weird cry of murder rang and echoed through the long halls and corridors the effect was remarkable. An engineer in one of the private rooms, with crushed head and almost senseless, ceased his low moans of pain and listened. He had been brought to the hospital two days before after falling down an elevator shaft and striking on his head, sustaining an injury which, upon examination, proved to be a compound fracture of the skull. A very skillful operation was performed by the attending surgeons. His brains were entirely removed and broken pieces of the skull extracted, and the uninjured portions of the brain returned to their place. Even the little 3-months-old babe brought there with club feet, now straightened with brace and bandage, ceased its wailings of pain and listened too. A little 3-year-old boy with a broken leg, who had been moaning all day and calling for his mother, hushed his cries, and, clutching the bedclothes, lay with wide-open eyes the remainder of the night. In the woman's ward was a poor creature who had fallen from a fourth-story window, breaking both legs, three ribs, and sustaining internal injuries. The sound of the alarm below partially aroused her from her lethargy, and she began calling for the little children who were playing on the floor of her tenement room when she fell. Although everything was done for her at the hospital, the poor woman died the next day. The old man was finally coaxed back to his room, and the door locked this time to prevent another escapade.

"It is astonishing," said the lady, "to witness what is accomplished in difficult surgery at the hospitals, even in these days of scientific discoveries and achievements. If I should tell one-half of what I saw and heard during the three weeks of my stay I would scarcely be believed. After almost cutting people in pieces and putting them together again, and keeping them in bed a couple of weeks they turn them out cured. And it is done so easily. The simplest remedies possible, and system and regularity in every detail are strictly observed. The service is admirable. Only trained and experienced nurses, male and female, are employed, and then the conveniences and paraphernalia are so perfect. The ambulance comes and goes, and brings patient after patient. If their injuries are slight the wounds are dressed, and they are sent away; if serious they are immediately taken to the operating-room, and from thence to the wards. No questions are asked, no gossiping is allowed, and one of the nurses said to me, when she thought I was too inquisitive: 'We are here to work and not to talk.'

"One day I noticed unusual excitement among the orderlies, and my nurse informed me she would have to leave me for a couple of hours in charge of the nurse from the next ward. A middle-aged gentleman suffering from a cancer on his tongue had entered the hospital to be operated upon. The seriousness of the case caused the flutter of excitement among the nurses. The scent of ether was in the air, and we knew the new patient was being conveyed to the operating-room. Two hours passed and he did not return. Another hour and the orderlies bore him to his room. The operation had been entirely successful. Some of the teeth were extracted and the under jaw had to be sawed apart in sections and turned down over the neck, while about two-thirds of the tongue and roots were removed; then the separated jaw was reunited, the head and face bandaged, and two hours after he was sleeping like a babe.

"The service in a first-class hospital, it seems to me, is the best medical and surgical skill that science can command. The great benevolence and self-denial with which the physicians work in such institutions are to be greatly admired. I want to say to all who are afflicted that to be conveyed to a hospital is by no means to be conveyed to the grave."

THE HIGHLAND CROFTERS.

The crofters are a class of people living in the highlands of Scotland and in the islands north and west of that country. They are tenants or holders of small portions of land called crofts, land which lies in a valley or glen closely inclosed by hills. The crofts are small—at most but a few acres. Simple cottages—often rude and inconvenient—are built; the crofters cultivate their bit of land, own a few cows and sheep, and live in a certain kind of comfort; at least, they did a hundred years ago, and some of them continue to do so yet.

The houses of the crofters are usually divided into three rooms, a kitchen, a bed-room, and a room for the cattle, all being sheltered under the same roof. If some cottages of the better-kind have more extended accommodations, others are far less commodious, there often being no separating line between the family and the cattle. The land in Scotland requires much cultivation, and the crofters work hard for a living. If crops are scanty any year, they are forced to sell some of their cows or sheep to buy food. In connection with the crofts there are usually mountain pasture-lands, which are used in common as grazing-places for sheep and cattle. The women make their clothing from the wool, and oatmeal and milk are the chief articles of food.

Very simple are the crofters in their mode of life; they are able to obtain little education, and the struggle for bread is too continuous to allow much recreation, except what may be found in social intercourse when the hard day's work is done. But the highland crofter is brave, kind, courteous, and honest by nature, and his attachment to his native land is strong as life itself. He loves his wild, barren, heath-covered fells; he loves his sheltered glen, his lowly cottage. It is home—has been, perhaps, the home of his ancestors for generations—and no motives of gain or hope of bettering his condition would tempt him to leave his native land, or the special spot which has long been home, unless absolute lack of bread compelled.

Many times during the present century the crofters have been treated with great severity, and even cruelty, by the owners of the land on which they live or by their managing "factors," or agents. So that in many parts of the highlands and adjacent islands they are now reduced to a most deplorable condition, and their grievances have attracted much attention, not only in Great Britain, but in this and other countries. — Illustrated Christian Weekly.

HENRY J. RAYMOND once said: "There are very few things in this world worth getting angry about, and they are precisely the things which anger does not help."

J. H. CONRAD,

DEALER IN

ROOFING AND SPOUTING

GUTTERING, HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.

Cutlery, Nails, Paints, Woodenware &c.

MAIN STREET, ST. JOE IND.

All work and goods guaranteed to give satisfaction. Give me a call.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

St. Joe Meat Market,

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

M. TUSTISON,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES,

EARTHEN POTS FOR HOUSE PLANTS

PROVISIONS, OYSTERS, LEMONS.

ORANGES, CANDIES, CIGARS &c.

MAIN ST. ST. JOE, IND.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

R. G. COBURN,

AGENT FOR THE

A LBION SPRING Cultivator

AND FIELD HARROW,

AND DAISY RAKE.

Farmers will save money by seeing me before buying. I will call on you with a sample in a few days. R. G. Coburn, St. Joe, Ind.

Take Notice!

Having returned from Tennessee, I will assist again in

Raising & Moving Buildings,

in short all kinds of Rope, Tackle and Jack-screw Work. Having had 15 years experience, and improved machinery, I feel safe in guaranteeing satisfaction. Heavy and difficult work a specialty. Correspondence solicited. Direct all communications to H. or M. Milliman, St. Joe Station, Ind., or A. Monroe, Hicksville, Ohio.

W. A. KINSEY,

Undertaker and Embalmer. Keeps on hand constantly, a stock of Undertaking Supplies, Coffins, Caskets, Burial Robes &c. I can supply as fine goods as can be furnished. Will attend to making all arrangements for funerals. Call responded to at all hours of the night. Office on corner of Main and Second Streets; residence on corner of Main and Fourth Streets, St. Joe, Ind.

Arthur James,

DEALER IN

Watches, Clocks,

AND JEWELRY.

Repairing done promptly and all work warranted. Call and see me at Bair & Son's store, Spencerville, Ind.

M. T. BISHOP,

DEALER IN

LUMBER

OF ALL KINDS,

Shingles, Lime, Lath,

MOULDINGS &c.

Large Stock and Prices Low. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, JULY 8, 1887.

NO. 24.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.
J. M. MILLIMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind., Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind., John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a specialty. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

A most distressing case of poverty was revealed at Indianapolis. A deaf mute, Hiram Mobley, who has a wife and three children, was recently turned out of a house on Washington street, on the other side of the river, and the family have been unable since to provide themselves with permanent shelter. The youngest child, about three months old, became ill, and the father took the sick child to the room which he formerly occupied, where the poverty-stricken family watched it die. It was a distressing sight to witness their grief, which the mother and father could only make known by signs. The coroner was notified, and after holding an inquest, reached the conclusion that death resulted from starvation.

The following patents have been granted to Indiana inventors: James Boyd and W. F. Goldenburg, Vevay, gate; Francis A. Coffin, assignor to Indianapolis Cabinet Company, letter file; James N. Crabb, Richmond, horse collar; Henry B. Lowe, Kokomo, tax duplicate and receipt; Frank Prox, Terre Haute, sectional steam boiler; Franz P. H. Prox, Terre Haute, radiator; Harvey J. Schrock, Goschen, automatic gate; Mark A. Smith and J. Nurte, Evansville, washboard; Clarence C. Sprinkle, Majenica, barn-door fastening; Rudolph Stackwisch, Cory, combined harrow and cultivator; William Thom, Indianapolis, lock-seam elbow machine.

At Ireland, Huntington County, Ollie, the 7-year-old son of Isaac Alexander, of that place, was driving a team and wagon on his father's farm, when the horses became frightened and started to run, the sudden lurch throwing the boy out of the wagon. The wheels passed over his abdomen, crushing him horribly, from the effects of which he died in about an hour.

The other day, James, son of Russell Nicholson, of Washington Township, Green County, was thrown from a horse and his neck broken. He was riding sideways upon the horse, which was harnessed. The horse jumped and threw him off, one foot catching in the harness. The horse ran and broke his neck. He was about seventeen years old.

The reunion of Wilder's Brigade will occur this year at Greencastle, on Sept. 7 and 8. This brigade was known during the war on the Union side as "The Lightning Brigade," and among the rebels as "Wilder's Hellions." It was composed of brave men who never knew defeat, and who are bound together with a bond never to be broken.

A fatal accident occurred at Roger's lumber-yard, Jeffersonville. Clarence Vaughan, the 6-year-old son of Lemmon Vaughan, was playing on a lumber-pile, when it suddenly fell over, burying the boy under the heavy boards. His skull was frightfully crushed and internal injuries were sustained. There is no hope of his recovery.

John D. Turley, a prominent merchant at Galveston, has been arrested on the charge of sending a claim out of this State for the purpose of garnishment. The case will be watched with interest by Indiana merchants, who are in the habit of sending claims against railroad employees to Chicago and St. Louis for collection every month.

The women of Indianapolis are trying to purify the city. They have secured a large number of indictments against owners and keepers of disorderly houses. It has been decided in some States that the owner of a building let to a person who maintains it for immoral purposes, is himself legally the keeper of the house.

The Shelbyville School Board has elected Prof. J. C. Eagle, of Edinburg, to succeed Prof. W. H. Fertich as Superintendent of the public schools. Prof. Eagle has been Superintendent of the Edinburg schools for the past eight years. His salary here will be $1,350. Prof. Fertich goes to Larned, Kansas.

Patrick Crady, an Irishman living near Roachdale, and who is said to be 125 years of age, recently walked from Greencastle to his home, a distance of about eighteen miles. His wife is living, and is said to be 110 years of age. They live on a small farm which lies along side the above-named place.

The State Board of Health has appointed Dr. Edward J. Church, of LaPorte, as a member of the State Board of Dental Examiners. The board is now complete, the other member being Drs. Kirk, of Kokomo, Hunt of Indianapolis, Chapel of Knightstown, and Van Valzah of Terre Haute.

While William Barnhouse, of Muncie, was handling a double-barreled shotgun it was accidentally discharged and the contents of both barrels, one of which was heavily loaded, lodged in the head of the 5-year-old son of William Moffat, tearing his head almost from his body.

George McGregor, a man about 50 years of age, was killed near Oakland City, while at work in a field. He was kicked to death by a mule. Some neighbors witnessed the accident, and went to his assistance, but it was too late, as he was dead when reached.

In Harrison County James McKinney disguised himself as a tramp, and stealing Miss Katie Hardin from her adopted parents walked with her twenty-four miles, to Corydon, where they were married. It was the second attempt the couple had made.

The purchasing committee of the Nickel Plate Railroad will at once reorganize the company by filing articles of incorporation in the States through which the road passes. The incorporation for Indiana has been filed with the Secretary of State.

David Radv, a young man living at Ladoga, bursted a blood vessel while turning handspikes, and died instantly.

Jeff Sparrow, a yard switchman of the L. N. A. & C. Railroad at Monon, was killed by the cars while attempting to unloose a switch-rop from a moving car, the rope catching and drawing him under the car before it could be uncoupled.

While riding on a road-wagon, Philip Burch was sunstruck, from which he died instantly. In falling the vehicle ran over him. He lived in Greene County.

Richmond has passed an ordinance prohibiting music on the streets without a permit from the Mayor, the object being to suppress the Salvation Army.

William Denny, a carpenter, of Shoals, while at work on a new hotel at Montgomery fell from a scaffold, striking his head on the ground, and received fatal injuries. He is a married man.

At Marion an emery wheel burst in Butler's carriage shop, and M. S. Barrett was fatally injured, a flying fragment fracturing his skull. Barrett recently removed to Marion from Knightstown.

The New Albany Woolen Mills Company now has 700 employees on the payroll, and is compelled to run one of the mills night and day in order to keep up with their orders.

William Stewart, aged 16 years, son of John Stewart, living three miles northwest of Bloomfield, was kicked in the abdomen by a horse, and killed.

Mrs. Noah Ham, of Anderson, for three years a cripple, is alleged to have been cured by the faith process, at the "Woodworth revival."

James R. Henry, of Gosport, has been appointed State Bank Examiner.

A colt born near Lodis, recently, weighed 200 pounds at birth.

"A GOOD wife is the guide-post of life," says Tid-Bits. That's so; and the guide-post she uses on a refractory husband is the rolling-pin.—Boston Courier.

THE interesting discussion now going on as to the identity of the P. S. Ney, who taught schools in the Carolinas and Virginia half a century ago with the celebrated Marshal Ney, of France, who according to history, was executed in Luxembourg Garden, December 7, 1815, revives recollections of the pleasant fiction which ran through the pages of Putnam's Monthly some thirty years ago or more, in which it was sought to identify the Rev. Eleazer Williams with the lost Bourbon, Louis XVII. The discussion was an ingenious one, but hardly more so that the present effort to make it appear that Marshal Ney, instead of being shot, escaped to this country and became a Southern pedagogue. Right at this point, however, there is a missing link of vital consequence. History tells us that Marshal Ney was an illiterate man. At best he received only a scanty education, which ended when he was 17 years of age. At 18 he entered the army and began the career of a soldier, which was only terminated by death. He had no opportunities to study any lessons except the stern ones of battle. Even if the statement be correct, that he came to this country in 1816, the year after history says he was shot, he had no time to perfect his education, for according to the new history he was teaching Latin, Greek, and the higher mathematics after he arrived here. Men at the age of 50, without any previous acquaintance with dead languages and mathematics, do not acquire them in a year or two; and especially with such proficiency as to teach them. There can be no question that Marshal Ney was an uneducated man, that all the instruction he received—which was of a very crude kind—dates back of his 17th year, and that from his 17th to his 40th year he was in continuous active military service, with no opportunity to study. It will now be necessary to show that Marshal Ney was a finely educated man prior to the time he is alleged to have come to this country, or that in some mysterious way he was educated after he arrived here. If that can be shown an important link will be supplied in the question of identity; but even then it will be difficult to convince any one that the Marshal Ney, who was shot by his Bourbon enemies, pronounced dead by Bourbon surgeons, buried in Pere la Chaise, and whose memoirs were published by his own widow and children, escaped the penalty of death by his own shrewdness, fled from France, and lived many years as a school-teacher in the Carolinas.

A BUFFALO man has invented a device to prevent the spread of fire from floor to floor by way of the elevator shaft. He proposes to erect a stand-pipe in one corner of the shaft with branches of perforated pipes of smaller size surrounding the well at each floor. The water can be turned into each of these perforated pipe simultaneously by pulling a lever at a point remote from the elevator, thus filling the shaft with a shower of spray, which he claims will check any upward progress of the flames at that point.

"WELL, how did you get along?" inquired a country landlord, one rainy morning, of a guest whom he had put in a top-floor room, under a leaky roof. "Oh, swimmingly," was the reply.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS,

PUBLISHERS.

SHARING THE BURDEN.

BY MATHIE DEAN KIMBALL.

The whomin-folks says I'm a Blue Beard—
Hein't orter got married ag'in
But that sort o' cackle don't worry,
Cause I know it's a their natur to chin.
Spect it war jest a little mite hasty,
But I reckon this kentry is free,
And people what talks 'bout their naybers
Don't cut enny finger with me.

They can't talk to me about sorer,
For I reckon I've had a good share,
And it shoots through my heart like a bullet
When I think up the angel up there.
But I wouldn't hev Jane hear me say it
For enny thing under the sun—
Might hatch up the least mite of my envy
Or jealousy to ards Number One.

You see, ez one day I was plowin'
That little patch down by the creek,
Th' ol' ox he kinder get shaky—
Dropped off 'fore th' end of th' week.
So I harnessed the high up single—
Thought I'd try the ole critter alone—
But I might hev jee-hawed him till doomsday,
Thet plowin' would never bin done.

He balked like that mule in the circus,
He snorted and bellered by turns,
Then over the field he cavorted,
A-plowin' it up with his horns.
Kinder settled his dander a little
When I goes down to Allen's shed night,
And trades off my favor-ite, say
For a sorrel ox speckled 'th white.

Ole Allen he drives a duse barg'in—
He's th' suggest man over I see—
And, reckonin' only on critters,
Spect he did git the best, some, of me.
But while he was sizin' up Jersey,
Which I had left tied in the lane,
I swapped a few words 'bout th' weather
Ecter'ry with his darter Jane.

Didn't fool away much time a spoonin'—
Popped the question the next Sunday night;
Guy the pursin' a shiny gold fiver
For tyin' the knot good and tight.
Ole Allen he opened his peepers
When we ast his consent, me and Jane—
Kinder bruk him all up, but he gav it,
And added a solemn Amen!

Don't care if they do call me Blue Beard,
Cause I ast Deacon Jones' advice;
He giv it a good 'nuff 'r'ial thinkin'
And told me "by all means" to splice.
But one thing I'm willin' to stand by,
Whinther oxen or men, I don't care,
Thet a yoke upon one pair of shoulders
Ez a mighty hard burden to bear.

Kinder worried me some about Heaven—
Hein't there with Marlin and Jane—
How ter do the squar thing by two angels
Don't seem so feetotally plain;
But I've read about Solomon's family,
And made up my mind wot to do;
Ef Solomon's there 'th three hundred,
I ain't going to worry 'bout two.

—Current.

A BEAUTY'S CHOICE.

BY MARTHA DALZELL.

"A Queen of Hearts." Such was the name the admirers of Estelle Glyndon had given to her, and, petted and praised for her grace and beauty as she had always been, it was hardly to be wondered at that the girl had come to the age of 18 with a conviction that not for her were the trials of life.

Deep down in the girlish heart slumbered many noble impulses; but on the surface the rank plant of wordly pride had taken root.

As she stands now, beneath the shade of the old oak which guards her favorite seat, the most casual observer could not help but pronounce her rarely beautiful. The breeze is lifting gently the dark locks from the blue-veined temples, and its rude caresses have called up to the rounded cheek a delicate peach-bloom. But the lovely mouth is marred by a haughty expression, as with averted head she listens coldly to the young man by her side.

It is Douglas Macdonald, and in earnest tones he is speaking thus: "Oh, Estelle, can it be that I have deceived myself in thinking that you cared for me? And all this summer, in which I have been so foolishly happy, have you only been playing with me? It cannot be true; you cannot be so heartless! I have been told that Foster Severne is the favored suitor who has superseded me; but I said that until you confirmed it with your own lips I would not believe it. Oh, my darling, whom I love more than life, do not be so cold! Look up, Estelle, and tell me it is false!"

He had been growing more impassioned as he went on, and now he seized her hand.

At his touch a strange thrill shot through Estelle's heart, and suddenly a mask seemed to fall before her eyes. In that moment she knew that she loved this man thus pleading before her.

Estelle hesitated. Only the previous day another had laid his heart at her feet, and with it the richest fortune in all the country round.

She had not given her answer; but in her young heart pride was very strong, and she felt that to be mistress of The Elms would be an enviable position.

Then she thought she had swiftly through her mind of what her father would say if she should tell him that, for the sake of one who, though noble and respected, was poor, she had refused another who could keep her in the atmosphere of luxury in which she had been born.

Douglas, eagerly watching her expressive features, conceived her thoughts.

"I see!" he exclaimed; "it was true—the report I heard. You intend to marry Foster Severne—dissipated man of the world though he be—simply because he is rich in this world's goods!"

The delicate hue on Estelle's countenance changed to a burning red.

"You have no right, Mr. Macdonald, to speak thus to me!"

"No right!" he exclaimed; "when I love you, Estelle, and see you dooming yourself to life-long unhappiness? Listen," he went on, as she was about to speak. "I came to-day to ask you a question upon which a great deal depended. Two openings are before me—one to settle in an honorable position in my native town; the other to go abroad, far away to the distant land of China. You do not love me—my choice is made. This will be my last farewell. To-morrow will see me on my way to a foreign shore."

He grasped her hand, wrung it; then, without waiting for answering words, turned and left her. She watched his tall form till it passed from her sight. Then suddenly, with a lightning flash, the knowledge of what she had done came to her, and she realized that in rejecting Douglas Macdonald's love she had wrecked beyond retrieval the happiness of her life.

That evening we see her in the midst of a fashionable throng. Though the heart bleed, it must not be worn on the sleeve for "daws to peck at," and Estelle is outwardly calm, though one knowing her well would wonder at her strange looks. Her roseate satin robes sweep in rich, flowing folds about her graceful figure, rendering even more exquisitely white the dimpled neck and arms upon which priceless diamonds gleam and glisten.

As he looks down at the woman on his arm, Foster Severne's heart leaps triumphantly as he thinks how proud he will be when he can call her his own. As if by accident, he leads her to the conservatory, where, amid the splash of fountains and the fragrance of flowers, he can speak undisturbedly. There once more he offers her his hand and his heart—all there is left of it—and, never doubting what it will be, awaits his answer.

Not for a moment does Estelle waver. Her reply is uncompromising: "Mr. Severne, I cannot become your wife."

An angry flush springs to the young man's face.

"Miss Glyndon! you cannot mean what you say! Think a little longer! You surely do not mean to refuse such a position as I can give you?"

If Estelle has been fearful that she will cause him pain, all such idea is swept away by his words, and she cannot help comparing him to the lover whom in her false pride she had rejected.

Ah! no more will pride's baneful influence overshadow Estelle Glyndon's young heart.

She sees it in its true aspect at last. When she reaches home Estelle is called upon to bear another trial. Truly, the day has been a hard one for the girl upon whom hitherto the winds have not been suffered to blow too roughly.

"So you have refused Foster Severne, when you knew it was the dearest wish of my heart that you should become his wife? Then let me tell you that in doing as you have done you have doomed both your father and yourself to penury. I am a ruined man! For a year past I have seen the crash approaching, and it is even now at hand. Estelle, there is yet time—retract your refusal, become Mr. Severne's wife, and all will be saved."

Estelle trembled as her father's words, first angry and then imploring, fell upon her ears.

"Father, I cannot! It would be a sin were I to marry him, for—I love another."

With an angry gesture Mr. Glyndon made a step forward; then, with an exclamation, he raised his hand to his head, staggered, and fell to the floor.

Poor Estelle! Jitter were the days that followed! On the very eve of his failure her father was stricken with paralysis, and before long the girl found herself homeless and almost penniless.

After the first shock had passed, then the noble nature that had slumbered quiescent so long in Estelle Glyndon's soul sprang to the surface. Steadily refusing all offers of assistance, she set herself unflinchingly amid the ranks of the world's workers. It was easier to obtain employment in the neighboring city than in her own small town, and to the city Estelle went.

After three years had glided by, Estelle was called to her dying parent; and as she knelt by the bed where he lay calm and still, she felt that she was, indeed, alone.

But still she never once regretted the decision she had made when, at a word, wealth and position would have been hers for life.

Better to be as she was, poor and hard-worked, than the mistress of The Elms, Foster Severne.

It was evening, a few months later. The streets were wet with the fast-falling rain. Claspings a large parcel in her arms, a girlish figure essays to cross a crowded thoroughfare. A carriage swiftly passes. There is a cry in a woman's voice. They, amid a babel of voices, "How sad! What is she?" How did it happen? A slight form is borne upon men's arms into the nearest house. There is no clue by which to tell who the unconscious girl is.

"It does not matter who or what she is," says the kind minister into whose house the stranger has been carried. "We will care for her." And so, instead of being sent to the hospital, the sufferer remained at Dr. Stewart's home.

Time went by, and, at length, after the most unwearying care, Estelle Glyndon—for it was she—came back to reason and life.

As the weeks went by, her strength began to slowly return. Then, one day, with a voice whose trembling pathos showed how deeply their kindness had touched her heart, Estelle told her beneficent friends that very soon she must leave their hospitable roof and go once more out into the world to care for herself. Old Mrs. Stewart took the girl's thin fingers in her motherly clasp.

"Wait a little longer, my dear," she said, "before you think of running away from us. You must promise that you will not speak of it for at least another month. Then we will see."

Estelle looked up gratefully into the speaker's face. She had never known a mother's love, and in this short time the old lady, who in early life had lost her only child, and the girl thrown so strangely into her care had grown very dear to each other.

Another week went by, and one morning, with a beaming face, old Dr. Stewart, came into the room where his wife and Estelle were sitting.

"What do you think, wife?—our boy is coming home! He will be here this week. Isn't that news?"

Tears of joy sprang to the old lady's eyes.

"My dear boy! how glad I shall be to see him!"

When her husband had left the room, Mrs. Stewart explained to Estelle that it was her dead brother's son, who was as dearly loved by her husband and herself as though he had been their own, who was thus eagerly expected.

"It was a sad blow to us when he went so far away," she concluded; "and what made it sadder still was that the noble lad carried with him a heart full of pain. Some fashionable beauty had bewitched him, and then had deliberately crushed out his happiness. But I hope and trust he will return cured of his heart-wound."

Estelle winced as she listened. From the past came back the voice exclaiming, "All this summer, in which I have been so foolishly happy, have you only been playing with me?"

The days passed until the one came in which the expected guest was to arrive.

"I am anxious for you to meet and know my boy" (so the old lady always called her nephew), "for you cannot help but like him," said Mrs. Stewart to Estelle.

Clad in a simple dress of white, Estelle was reclining upon the library sofa when the carriage wheels sounded upon the gravel.

She heard the eager tones of welcome; and then the voices approached the room in which she was. The door opened, and there, older and graver than she remembered him, but still the same, stood Douglas Macdonald! For a moment he remained as if in a trance, his eyes resting incredulously upon the waste figure of the girl who, with a face whiter than her dress, returned his gaze.

Then, with a hasty bound, he was across the room; forgetting entirely the years that had passed, the way in which they had parted, and everything save that he once more beheld her to whose image his faithful heart had ever clung.

"Estelle!" he cried, "my darling! I came to seek you, and I have found you already! Oh, tell me that I am welcome—that you are glad to see me!"

With wondering faces, old Doctor Stewart and his wife stood quiet spectators of the strange scene before them.

As Estelle looked up into the noble face bent over her, she felt that the love which she had once rejected was still hers. It was easy to read the joy which filled her heart to overflowing; and Douglas was not blind.

"Estelle," he exclaimed, "I only lately heard of your refusing Mr. Severne and of your misfortunes. Then in my heart a faint hope sprang into existence, and I determined to return and seek you and try once more my fate. Can it indeed be that my hope is not to prove in vain?"

Estelle lifted her eyes to his, and in their luminous depths Douglas read his answer. Later, everything was explained to Douglas; how it was that he had so unexpectedly found Estelle in his uncle's house, and all that had occurred since they had parted.

"My dear friend, you little thought who was the fashionable, heartless girl who had refused your love's true heart," said Estelle, softly, to old Mrs. Stewart, as the happy group of four were drawn together about the lamp that evening; "but you will forgive her, I am sure, when she promises that henceforth that boy's happiness shall be her foremost care, and that she will try to the utmost of her power to repay him for the pain which, through her foolish, wicked pride, she once caused him to suffer."

If friends ask you to discover their faults beware, for you will discover you have no friends.

PITH AND POINT.

It takes a sober man to walk a tight rope.

Church-going people often meet by chance.

A party question: What time do you think they will have supper?

It's a wise child that resembles its richest relative.—Danville Breeze.

The car-builder makes a bad brake when he makes one that will not stop a car.

Those who wish to paint New York red on Sundays must use water-colors.—Life.

The called bonds are bound to come. They are no longer of interest to the holders.

The flower known as the bachelor's button must be one that does not stay on long.

Two HABEAS-CORPUS judges are equal to a pair of suspenders.—New Orleans Picayune.

The other half of the embezzler's double life is generally a woman.—Philadelphia Times.

Parrots and the dudes have much in common. They have a plentiful lack of brains and talk in polly-syllables.—Boston Gazette.

Brown (soliloquizing at 2 a. m.): I wish all words in the English language wusspelt with an "sh" it'sshssshomuch easier to shay.—Tid-Bits.

A widow may not be much of a gardener, but she always has an idea that she can raise orange blossoms from weeds.—Fall River Advertiser.

UNDER THE CHESTNUT TREE.

This is my only farrow, it's true—

So glad to 've met you I am sure—

Come any day, we dine at six;

That little note of mine I'll fix

I've gone clear out of politics—

Ding-dong.

—Burdette.

"That makes the third time you've trod on my foot," said a man in a crowded hall, speaking to a fellow who stood just in front of him. "Are you certain it's three times?" replied the fellow, looking around. "Yes, I am."

"Well," said the aggressor, "you seem to be better in arithmetic than I am, and I reckon you'd better keep on with the count."—Arkansas Traveler.

FIRST OMAHA MAN.—No, sir, I'm going to send my boy to college. No public school system for him. Look at Jink's boy! Second Omaha man.—Jink's boy has just graduated from the public schools and is a young man of thorough culture. "Yes, and half dead with consumption, and has had brain fever three times. Now look at Wink's eldest son!" "Is he a college man?" "Regular graduate, strong as a horse, healthy as a mule, and makes $5,000 a year in a base-ball team."—Omaha World.

BOY WITH THE BIG HEAD.

Yes, if his pa would give him rope He'd give suggestions to the Pope. He thinks that nature gave him birth To twirl the axis of the earth. And when he walks along the street He spins the world round with his feet— But still we like the little dunce. We used to be just like him once. We know how 'tis oneself a most dread. And little boy with the big head! He gives advice with generous hand And sows up broadcast o'er the land; He tans up like a sapling shoot. The broader knowledge by the root. He's never in the dark of doubt, Like Moses when the light went out. He volunteers, though no money call To show mankind he knows it all. When he dies, then is wisdom dead— The little boy with the big head! —Tid-Bits.

THERE was a little occurrence in Washington last spring which so far has kept out of the papers. It happened like this: There was a certain Senator who sitteth in the high places, led up of the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil. And the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain and showed him great wealth and the fullness thereof below. And he pointed to many sacks filled with pieces of silver and much stock, yea railroad stock, and steamship stock, and Pan-American telephone stock, and likewise fat jobs for his family and friends and all the glory of them all. And saith unto him, "All these things will I give thee, if thou wilt vote aright on my Little Measure." And the Senator answered and said unto him, "For heaven's sake do not get behind me, Satan. And just watch I'll vote to-morrow and see if it isn't all right!" —Dakota Bell.

Politicians.

The thorough-mixed politician must laugh at the narrow-mindedness of his conscience, and read another lecture.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
One Year, in advance .....	$0.75
Six Months .....	50
Three Months .....	25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe as second-class matter.

FRIDAY JULY 8, 1887.

HOW SOME OF OUR PEOPLE SPENT THE FOURTH.

J. H. Conrad visited his mother at Paris, Ohio.

Mrs. Everett visited with friends at Waterloo.

The St. Joe band furnished the music at Maysville.

Bert Milliman enjoyed the day at home with his parents.

Mad Meek and wife spent the day in this place, the guests of his brother Harry.

Mrs. Joseph Metcalf visited with her son George at Garrett on the fourth.

The heavy rain about noon laid the dust, and it also took the starch out of white dresses.

Ben Leighty took a lay-off that day from railroading, and spent the time with his family.

John Leighty Jr. Fourth-of-Julyed at Chertabasco. We've forgotten the ladies name he went to see.

O. H. Widney and 'Squire' Ables got at home and attended to business just the same as usual.

The small boys indulged in a sack race in the morning, much to the amusement of some of the older heads.

Mrs. Dr. Bowman, Mrs. William Leighty, Mrs. Sol Barney and Miss Sake Bartlett took in the sights at Deliance.

Some of our young people went to Maysville to the picnic, some to Bryan to see the oil well, and some to Hillsdale in the evening to see Fiddle's Pond.

Dr. Bowman hung pretty close to his office all day, thinking perhaps that somebody would get blowed up with a fire cracker, and he would get a fall, but nobody got hurt.

J. D. Leighty and Henry Maxwell battered each other for a foot race, but neither one of them had the required amount of sand, and consequently the lookers on were cheated out of some first-class sport.

The W. C. T. U. ladies from this place who attended the picnic at Maysville, report having a very enjoyable time. The ladies are great on cold water, but they got a little more than they wanted along about noon.

In company with M. Bishop, Alex. Filley and Charley B. Lett we went to Cedar Beach on the 4th, to try our luck at fishing, and in the language of the small boy, we got there, in good shape. We succeeded in capturing about - oh well, say from seventy-five to one hundred fish; we don't want to get it any higher than it really was. Of course we don't say how large the fish was, but that we caught that many, there is not the least possible doubt; in our minds at least. There are some funny incidents connected with this trip which we might relate to the readers of the News, but space will not permit; besides we are so mixed up with the affair, that it would seem like telling a story on ourselves.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

PLEASANT HILL.

Willis Baker has purchased a new self binder.

Mrs. Maggie Fales is working at Auburn this week.

Mrs. Samuel Lawhead is working for Erve Lockwood.

Viola and Otto Widney visited there uncle last Sunday.

Daniel Baker and family visited with his brother Willis last Sunday.

Mrs. Andrew Jackson visited with Mrs. Jerry Ulm last Saturday afternoon.

Alfred Reasoner and wife visited with her parents, Isaac Lawhead's last Sunday.

CONCORD.

Joseph Koch and family entertained friends last Sunday.

Lyman Knight visited at home last Saturday and Sunday.

B. B. White is having his new house painted and getting it ready for occupancy.

Miss Mary Morr has gone to Garrett to visit a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. Olinger.

N. Tustison and Green Brown with their wives were the guests of James Baker and family last Sunday.

The people of this place have been entertained with Phonological lectures for a few evenings during the past week.

Joseph Koch's young folks went to St. Joe last Sunday afternoon to assist in the practice of singing for Children's day.

The band saw mill men of Auburn are trying to purchase the church and grounds at the corners and place a saw mill thereon. There is considerable excitement over the matter.

Grandma Jenkins, who has been visiting with her children through out the neighborhood for a few weeks, has again returned home. She was very sick while visiting in the family of Joseph Koch.

COBURN TOWN.

A. B. Coburn is visiting friends at St. Joe this week.

Many thanks to the kind friend who furnished the Coburntown items during my absence.

A. B. Coburn's condition is about the same as it was when he came home. We hope he may fully regain his health.

There was a surprise party in Coburntown, Tuesday, July 5th, but it would surprise most any one over this way to tell where it was.

The band boys say they made pretty near enough to defray their expenses at the celebration at Maysville, on the glorious Fourth.

Mrs. Robert from Ohio, is expected to arrive here to-day, (Wednesday) on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Milliman; also Miss Anna Alton of Fremont, Mich., a niece of Mrs. Milliman.

Al Coburn says he don't mind being married; in fact he thinks he would rather enjoy it, but would like to have them wait until he gets there, before they tie the knot, as he wants to be around and see that it is done up right.

To relieve the anxiety of your readers who are making frequent enquiries, as to the whereabouts of your Coburntown correspondent, permit me to say, that he is right side up with care, and will endeavor to fill his little niche in the News again.

Ben Hamilton has hived 9 swarms of bees from three old ones, which he wintered through, making twelve hives in all. Who can beat that? Speaking of bees, reminds me that they must have a new kind of a hive, as I saw by the News last week that 'Squire' Ables chased one all over town, that was running off with his bees. I'll bet he got in a few cuss words before he caught it.

SPENCERVILLE.

Jason Keys, of Leo, visited in town this week.

A number of our people celebrated at Deliance.

Harry Keys was at Fort Wayne on the fourth.

Miss Maud Murray is visiting friends in Leo.

Mrs. P. Bishop is visiting in Van Wert this week.

Prof. Harrod closed his writing school last Friday evening.

Z. T. Kagey and family returned to their home in Ashland this week.

Dr. G. E. Fennel, William Tindall and others went to Maysville to celebrate.

Miss Edith Oberholzer has gone to St. Joe to live with her grandparents.

Geo. Smith, Willis Carey and Miss Louis Rummel are attending the Normal at Auburn.

Professors Price and Hootman visited Spencerville in the interest of the Normal school at St. Joe.

The Lutheran festival was a complete success as was also the supper at the parsonage. Proceeds over $30.

We notice a short visit from John Leighty, who has returned from the Military school.

In the history of the organization of the Lutheran church at this place, was it not a mistake to leave out the name of Asa Fletcher? It is true, that he was not connected with the church at its beginning, but in its after history he was certainly an important factor in the growth and prosperity of the organization, and at his death he left $200., the interest of which is to be paid annually to the support of the church. Honor to whom honor is due.

LEIGHTY'S

is the place where Gossie Bunting and Suspenders were marked down 25 per cent; only a few left. Examine them before buying. Don't forget that we carry the celebrated Reed Shoes.

Good Stock Farm

FOR SALE OR TRADE.

On account of ill health I wish to sell or trade my farm of 100 acres situated twenty-five miles north-east of Moberly, Mo. for anything good in or near St. Joe. Said farm is under fence, has house and twelve acres of thrifty young timber, a large spring of never failing water, about 20 acres in cultivation, and is all under good coal and lies within two and a half miles of a railroad station.

A. B. Coburn, St. Joe Station, Ind.

NOTICE TO FARMERS.

S. H. Daniels, formerly head of the St. Joe Flouring Mill, and G. J. Wilson, a partner in the mill, and formerly of Spencerville, having rented the Hicksville Flouring Mill, would most respectfully solicit the patronage of the citizens of Hicksville and the surrounding country. We guarantee perfect satisfaction. Bring us your wheat.

Daniels & Wilson.

Last week was a good one for harvesting wheat and hay.

The out-look for a good crop of corn never was much better at this season of the year.

Why don't the St. Joe band give us an open air concert once in a while during the summer months?

St. Joe is now quite a desirable point for mail. Mail is received and sent out over four different routes from this place every day.

T. G. Dowell, editor of the Hicksville News, was in town Friday and made this office a call. T. G. is a very pleasant gentleman, and we hope he will come again.

This Space
Belongs to S. & F. Barney.

Millinery at Cost

Having enjoyed a large trade during the past few weeks, for which I am truly thankful, I now offer my entire stock at cost, to close them out. Call and see me if you want a bargain. Miss S. A. Barlett, St. Joe, over Bowman's office.

Millinery at Cost

CORNER STONE LAYING.

Last Saturday the Lutheran congregation of Spencer ville, laid the corner stone of their new church with the ceremonies usual on such occasions. The time was not appropriate, being right in the busiest time of harvest, yet a very good congregation assembled to hear the sermon, and witness the ceremonies. Rev. Trover of Auburn, preached the sermon, which was, to say the least, a grand, masterly and appropriate discourse. Rev. Galt of the U. B. church, assisted in the service at the church, at the close of which, the congregation, proceeded by the ministers, the council and the choir, marched to the foundation of the new church, and as they passed the corner stone, deposited therein their offerings. They then sang together "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," after which the pastor, Rev. Fryberger read the beautiful Libretto for the General Synod, and deposited in the vault, the customary articles, consisting of a bible, a Lutheran Catechism, a copy each of the "Lutheran Observer," "Lutheran Herald," "Missionary Journal," "Dispatch," "Courier," "St. Joe News," "Owl," a history of the organization, and a list of the names of the former pastors, council, building committee, trustees and members. Prayer was offered by Rev. Trover of Maysville, the stone was set, and the congregation dismissed. The church to be erected, is to be a substantial brick structure, large enough, to accommodate the congregation and Sabbath school, and will be a credit to the community. The building committee have made every effort to make it a convenient, and substantial church, one that will stand for generations to come. They have avoided every thing of the nature of mere "show," and have only aimed to build a house, that when completed, will serve every purpose for which it is intended. So far it certainly cannot fail to meet the hearty approbation of the whole community, and every citizen who desires to see the village prosper, rejoices in the success of the enterprise.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Evans visited in town this week.

Talk up the Normal school which begins here on the 18th of July.

John Widney killed a rattle-snake Tuesday which had five rattles.

Dan Baker has shaved off his moustache and he look like the—our devil.

A brother of G. V. James from Newark, Ohio, visited him last Saturday.

Case & Olds have a nobby line of Gent's Summer Neck-ties for 5 and 10 cents.

Joe Loveland, of the Corunna Head Light was in town one day last week.

Communion services next Sunday morning in the Lutheran church. All are invited.

The Lutheran Sunday School have supplied themselves with fifty new singing school.

Mrs. P. P. Shuler is visiting her parents in Ohio. She will be absent a couple of weeks.

Miss Ida Scholes will attend a course of lessons at the Fort Wayne Conservatory of Music.

"Jerry Andrews' horse "Jerry A" won the running race at the Montpelier, Ohio, races last week.

Several of our citizens took advantage of the low rates on the railroad and went to see their friends.

The Auburn papers had a good deal of gas in them last week, but it has probably all blown out before this time.

Those who think of attending a normal school, should by all means come to St. Joe, as it offers the best of advantages.

It is an offence against the laws of Indiana to hunt or fish or to engage in common labor on Sunday. Any person of the age of fourteen years or upwards, offending in this respect, may be fined $10.

The circle of plastering over one of the chandeliers in the Methodist church loosened and fell one day the fore part of the week. No damage was done other than the breaking of the lamp shades.

Howard Northup presented the News with a quart of fine strawberries this week. It is a little late in the season for strawberries, but we didn't find any trouble in getting away with them. Thanks.

Mrs. J. D. Leighty entertained the Young People's Temperance Society on Wednesday evening. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake and berries were served, and a very enjoyable time was had.

Some one was wondering what made the water in the St. Joe river so dirty last Friday, but when it was known that about a dozen fellows from Garrett had been down taking a bath, the matter was easily explained.

It is reported that they have struck a valuable vein of coal near Maysville, and in consequence the town is trying to work up a boom. Corner lots have doubled in price, and everything is on the raise; even the thermometer, went way up into the nineties last week, and people got so excited that it was impossible to keep cool.

The Y. P. T. U. A. will meet at the residence of Miss Georgio Van Fleit, on Wednesday evening, July 13th, 1887. The following program has been prepared. Declamation by Hugh Wineland; Select Reading by Clarence Widney; Essay by Anna Merrill; Impersonation by Bert Hull; Select Reading by Sake Wineland; Declamation by Frank Hart; Select Reading by Leo Shuler; Declamation by Ella Sanders; Declamation by Virginia Langley.

STUBBORN FACTS.

The Champion is sold under the strongest warranty to do the work well, with ease to the driver and the team, to be well made of the first quality of material, to be more durable and less liable to get out of repair than any other binder made. Since its first introduction, the Champion has been the most successful of all harvesting machines. To the well-to-do farmer, who is willing to pay a fair price on fair terms of credit for a first-class implement, we offer the Champion Binder as the best and cheapest machine in the market. For prices, terms &c. call on

SHUTT & WHITE.

A Clock or a Watch Given Away

to draw trade is not legitimate business, and we do not intend to make such an offer, but if you will call at the Drugstore, we will show you a nice line of Clocks, Watches, the latest and very handsomest styles of Lace Pins, Necklaces, Scarf Pins, Rings, Cuff and Collar Buttons, Chains, Chains, at prices that help, but please.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencerville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

HOUSE PAINTING, Glazing, Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcock. Call and see me, or leave orders at the St. Joe Drugstore.

ST. JOE MARKETS.

CORRECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat	71 cts.
Oats	37 cts.
Corn	40 cts.
Batter	60 cts.
Eggs	12 cts.
Tallow	34 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	60 cts.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

Trains Leave St. Joe as follows:

WESTBOUND
No. 9 Mail and Express	11:05	A. M.
17 Accommodation	4:18	P. M.
3 Chicago Express	10:42	P. M.
35 Local Freight	3:42	P. M.
EAST BOUND
No. 10 Express and Mail	2:08	P. M.
16 Accommodation	10:28	A. M.
4 Morning Express	4:55	A. M.
34 Local Freight	7:59	A. M.

G. V. JAMES, AGENT.

Miss Cora Dilley was taken quite suddenly ill last Tuesday.

Jerry Andrews has traded for the Slaughter property in this place.

Mrs. John Hull and children visited friends at Hicksville, over last Sunday.

A farmer down in the south part of the state, cut his wheat by gas light. "How do world do move."

Mrs. Nathan Matthews died at her home west of here, on Tuesday, and was buried on Wednesday at Newville.

Uncle Sam Lawhead has added much to the appearance of his residence by giving it a coat of paint. Sam White done the work.

STAR WIND ENGINE

TAKES THE LEAD.

E. A. WANEMAKER, NEWVILLE, IND., Has the agency for this county. See him, or write for prices on Wind Mills, Tanks, Pumps, Pipe &c. A special feature of the Star Wind Engine is the Regulator. See it before you buy.

Dear Readers of the News: I send myself to inform you that a grate calamity has befallen me, and the dearest kind of trouble has crawled into the back door of our usually quiet and peaceful mansion. I am sad, and as I pen these few lines I can not keep back the grate big wet tears, an if you see any spots or stains on this paper, you will know that the wet caws bi an ova-do ov eye-water. The trouble was brot about something like this: Mrs. Hippenhammer and myself were having a family talk together on the kurrent toppicks of the da, wen the subject turned on the forth ov Juli, an we got into a discussshun as to wat the forth ov Juli was the annaversary ov, an why the celebratid it evera yeer. I claimed that it was the annaversary ov the landing ov the pilgrim fathers, but she sed we celebrated it becaus jist 111 years ago Cristophir Colum bus discovered Amerka. I sed it wasnt so; she sed it was, an one word led on to another until finally I told her she diddnt know much az a yeerling skule boy, an then she got mad and sed she'd leave me, and shure enuf she did, and that's why I am so sad.

Barcus Q. Hippenhammer.

Breaking Down and Building Up.
When a man breaks down in the matter of physical strength, the question of its recovery depends in great measure upon the length of time he allows to elapse before adopting medicinal means to recuperate it. A tonic which gives a speedy and powerful impulse to the processes of digestion and assimilation is the best auxiliary he can employ, and he should resort to it promptly. The most reliable dependence of the feeble, the aged, and the nervous has ever proved to be Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, an invigorant of national reputation and proven worth, commended by medical men of distinction, not only for building up a broken-down system, but as a remedy for dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, fever and ague, and kidney trouble. While not claimed to be a panacea, it is a most useful and comprehensive household remedy. It is, moreover, eminently safe as well as effective.

Improvement in Machinery.
The wonderful improvement in labor saving appliances in this age of invention is no where more apparent than in wood-working machinery. The additional power given to man by replacing the old sickle with the self-binding reaper, and the flail by the steam thrasher is scarcely equal to the improvement on the saw-pit and the hand plane which our fathers depended on.

The Pennington Machine Works, manufacturing over 100 different wood-cutting machines, lately established in Fort Wayne, Ind., would seem to have about reached perfection in wood-working tools, in simplicity of construction, in range of work, and in rapidity of action, surpassing all other makers. As one art helps another, so the improvement in one line of manufacturing enables a different kind to better their work. The Pennington works having tools of latest design, embodying all modern improvements, can do far more exact work and turn it out far more rapidly than older factories, making it, therefore, at once better and cheaper. With a new shop, fitted for the work to be done, with entirely new machinery specially designed with new patterns combining all recent improvements, and with, with years of experience, the Pennington Machine Works is a striking example of the progress of the nineteenth century. As the United States is the timber producer and lumber manufacturer of the world, the establishment of such a factory in the very center of the wood-working industries is an event worthy of notice. All who are interested in first-class wood working machinery of every name and nature should investigate the merits of the Pennington Machine Works, of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Would Need Prayers.

Knock-kneed Sam, the colored evangelist, was preaching an ardent sermon, when someone who had just entered the church approached the pulpit, and in a low tone communicated something to the preacher. "Bredren," said Sam, when the messenger had sat down, "jes' now I wuz on de pint o' axin' de Lawd ter do suthin' dat he ain't done, but now, bredren an' sisters, I wishes dat yer' would jine me in er pra'r o' thankfulness for suthin' what hab already been 'complished."

"Tell us what it is?" someone asked. "Wall, bredren an' sisters, I want yer all ter jine in er pra'r o' thankfulness wid me, fur de Lawd hab dis day seed fitten ter let my wife Becky run er way wid er yaller scoun'el whut owes me $10. Hole on er minit, bruders. De yalter scoun'el doan owe me but $10, an' he oughten' be 'tirely skluded frum sympathy. So let us pray fur him jis' er little, fur, ef dar eber wuz er po' fool dat needed pra'rs, he gwine ter be de one."—Arkansas Traveler.

CIVILITY: An ancient form of behavior, popular in feudal times, but unsuited to the exigencies of modern civilization.

COL. R. S. WITHERS, Fair Lawn Stock Farm, Ky., and Joseph Cairne Simpson, Esq., Secretary Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association, commend St. Jacobs Oil for all horse complaints. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

The guilty wretch who pleads not guilty, hoping to escape going to the penitentiary, may find it is not a go-as-you-please affair.

SIR ROGER TICHBORNE, of England, was cured of rheumatism by the use of St. Jacobs Oil and recommends it highly. Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere.

Cost of Our Fences.

The cost of all fences in the United States amounts to $1,747,549,931, or nearly equal to the interest-bearing debt, and about the same as the estimated value of all the farm animals, so that for every dollar invested in live stock another dollar is required for constructing protection against their ravages upon crops. The annual repairs, together with interest on the amount invested in the existing fences, amounted to nearly $200,000,000, and the amount of wood needed must have been not far from five billion feet.

Sick and bilious headache cured by Dr. Pierce's "Pellets."

In prohibition States liquor seems to be a drug.—Washington Post.

Life is burdensome, alike to the sufferer and all around him, while dyspepsia and its attending evils hold sway. Complaints of this nature can be speedily cured by taking Prickly Ash Bitters regularly. Thousands once thus afflicted now bear cheerful testimony as to its merits.

A CYCLOPE is like three school-girls walking abreast—it doesn't turn out for anything.—Waterloo Observer.

To Be Absolutely Certain

Of most things is difficult, but if the limited testimony of people in every walk of life, for more than a quarter of a century, be good evidence, then dyspepsia, loss of appetite, headache, wakefulness and debilitation, from whatever cause, may be cured by Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic.

*** A disease of so delicate a nature as stricture of the urethra should only be entrusted to those of large experience and skill. By our improved methods we have been enabled to speedily and permanently cure hundreds of the worst cases. Pamphlets, references and terms, 10 cents in stamps. World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

The man who paints the town red frequently gets some of the paint on his nose.—Railway Advocate.

PURE Cod Liver Oil made from selected livers, on the seashore, by Hazard, Hazard & Co., New York. It is absolutely pure and sweet. Patients who have once taken it prefer it to all others. Physicians have decided it superior to any of the other oils in market.

A POLITICIAN is honest when all other means have failed.—Washington Critic.

ONE pair of boots can be saved every year by using Lyon's Patent Metallic Heel Sufferers.

$350 Will buy a complete Newspaper Outfit, suitable for publishing a weekly paper in a town of 100, or over, inhabitants. Address FORT WAYNE NEWS-PAPER UNION, Fort Wayne, Ind.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Sure relief for ASTHMA. Price 25c. Sold by mail. Stoughton & Co., 100 North Main Street, Lowell, Mass.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50, FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Write Brewer Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

PENSIONS COLLECTED and increased by F. J. Rogers and J. Powell, Indianapolis, Ind. Address Rogers and Powell, Indianapolis, Ind. Send for copy of Laws, free.

LIVER, BLOOD AND LUNG DISEASES.

LIVER DISEASE AND HEART TROUBLE.

Mrs. MARY A. McCLURE, Columbus, Kans., writes: "I addressed you in November, 1884, in regard to my health, being afflicted with liver disease, heart trouble, and female weakness. I was advised to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Favorite Prescription and Pellets. I used one bottle of the 'Prescription,' five of the 'Discovery' and four of the 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' My health began to improve under the use of your medicine, and my strength came back. My difficulties have all disappeared. I can work hard all day, or walk four or five miles a day, and stand it well; and when I began using the medicine I could scarcely walk across the room, most of the time, and I did not think I could ever feel well again. I have a little baby girl eight months old. Although she is a little delicate in size and appearance, she is healthy. I give your remedies all the credit for curing me, as I took no other treatment after beginning their use. I am very grateful for your kindness, and thank God and thank you that I am as well as I am after years of suffering."

LIVER DISEASE.

Mrs. I. V. WEBBER, of Yorkshire, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., writes: "I wish to say a few words in praise of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' For five years previous to taking them I was a great sufferer. I had a severe pain in my right side continually; was unable to do my own work. I am happy to say I am now well and strong, thanks to your medicines."

Chronic Diarrhea Cured.—D. LAZARRE, Esq., 275 and 277 Decatur Street, New Orleans, La., writes: "I used three bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and it has cured me of chronic diarrhea. My bowels are now regular."

GENERAL DEBILITY.

Mrs. PARMELIA BRUNDAGE, of 181 Lock Street, Lockport, N. Y., writes: "I was troubled with chills, nervous and general debility, with frequent sore throat, and my mouth was badly cankered. My liver was inactive, and I suffered much from dyspepsia. I am pleased to say that your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets' have cured me of all those ailments and I cannot say enough in their praise. I must also say a word in reference to your 'Favorite Prescription,' as it has proven itself a most excellent medicine for weak females. It has been used in my family with excellent results."

Dyspepsia.—JAMES L. COLBY, Esq., of Yucatan, Houston Co., Minn., writes: "I was troubled with indigestion, and would eat heartily and grow poor at the same time. I experienced heartburn, sour stomach, and many other disagreeable symptoms common to that disorder. I commenced taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' and I am now entirely free from the dyspepsia, and am, in fact, healthier than I have been for five years. I weigh one hundred and seventy-one and one-half pounds, and have done a much work the past summer as I have ever done in the same length of time in my life. I never took a medicine that seemed to tone up the muscles and invigorate the whole system equal to your 'Discovery' and 'Pellets.'"

INVIGORATES THE SYSTEM.

Dyspepsia.—THERESA A. CASS, of Springfield, Mo., writes: "I was troubled one year with liver complaint, dyspepsia, and sleeplessness, but your 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me."

Chills and Fever.—Rev. H. E. MOSLEY, Montmorency, S. C., writes: "Last August I thought I would die with chills and fever. I took your 'Discovery' and it stopped them in a very short time."

"THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, and bodily health and vigor will be established. Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the worst Scrofula, or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing Salt-rheum or Tetter, Fever-sores, Hip-joint Disease, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Enlarged Glands, and Eating Ulcers.

INDIGESTION BOILS, BLOTCHES.

Rev. F. ASBURY HOWELL, Pastor of the M. E. Church, of Silvertown, N. J., says: "I was afflicted with catarrh and indigestion. Boils and blotches began to arise on the surface of the skin, and I experienced a tired feeling and dullness. I began the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as directed by him for such complaints, and in one week's time I began to feel like a new man, and am now sound and well. The 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets' are the best remedy for bilious or sick headache, or tightness about the chest, and bad taste in the mouth, that I have ever used. My wife could not walk across the floor when she began to take your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' Now she can walk quite a little ways, and do some light work."

HIP-JOINT DISEASE.

Mrs. IDA M. STRONG, of Attnsworth, Ind., writes: "My little boy had been troubled with hip-joint disease for two years. When he commenced the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' he was confined to his bed, and could not be moved without suffering great pain. But now, thanks to your 'Discovery,' he is able to be up all the time."

and can walk with the help of crutches. He does not suffer any pain, and can eat and sleep as well as any one. It has only been about three months since he commenced using your medicine. I cannot find words with which to express my gratitude for the benefit he has received through you."

A TERRIBLE AFFLICTION. Skin Disease.—The "Democrat and News," of Cambridge, Maryland, says: "Mrs. ELIZA ANN POOLE, wife of Leonard Poole, of Williamsburg, Dorchester Co., Md., has been cured of a bad case of Eczema by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The disease appeared first in her feet, extended to the knees, covering the whole of the lower limbs from feet to knees, then attacked the elbows and became so severe as to prostrate her. After being treated by several physicians for a year or two she commenced the use of the medicine named above. She soon began to mend and is now well and hearty. Mrs. Poole thinks the medicine has saved her life and prolonged her days."

Mr. T. A. AYRES, of East New Market, Dorchester County, Md., vouches for the above facts.

CONSUMPTION, WEAK LUNGS, SPITTING OF BLOOD.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. While it promptly cures the severest Coughs it strengthens the system and rapidly builds up the system, and increases the flesh and weight of those reduced below the usual standard of health by "wasting diseases."

Consumption.—Mrs. EDWARD NEWTON, of Harrowsmith, Ont., writes: "You will ever be praised by me for the remarkable cure in my case. I was so reduced that my friends had all given me up, and I had also been given up by two doctors. I then went to the best doctor in these parts. He told me that medicine was only a punishment in my case, and would not undertake to treat me. He said I might try Cod liver oil if I liked, as that was the only thing that could possibly have any curative power over consumption so far advanced. I tried the Cod liver oil as a last treatment, but I was so weak I could not keep it on my stomach. My husband, not feeling satisfied to give me up yet, though he had bought for me everything he saw advertised for my complaint, procured a quantity of your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I took only four bottles, and, to the surprise of everybody, am to-day doing my own work, and am entirely free from that terrible cough which harassed me night and day. I have been afflicted with rheumatism for a number of years, and now feel so much better that I believe, with a continuation of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I will be restored to perfect health. I would say to those who are falling a prey to that terrible disease consumption, do not do as I did, take every-thing else first; but take the 'Golden Medical Discovery' in the early stages of the disease, and thereby save a great deal of suffering and be restored to health at once. Any person who is still in doubt, need but write me, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply, when the foregoing statement will be fully substantiated by me."

GIVEN UP TO DIE.

Ulcer Cured.—ISAAC E. DOWNS, Esq., of Spring Valley, Rockland Co., N. Y. (P. O. Box 28), writes: "The 'Golden Medical Discovery' has cured my ulcer." Golden Medical Discovery is Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00 per Bottle, or Six Bottles for $5.00.

cal Discovery' has cured my daughter of a very bad ulcer located on the thigh. After trying almost everything without success, we procured three bottles of your 'Discovery,' which healed it up perfectly." Mr. Downs continues:

Consumption and Heart Disease.—"I also wish to thank you for the remarkable cure you have effected in my case. For three years I had suffered from that terrible disease, consumption, and heart disease. Before consulting you I had wasted away to a skeleton; could not sleep nor rest, and many times wished to die to be out of my misery. I then consulted you, and you told me you had hopes of curing me, but it would take time. I took five months' treatment in all. The first two months I was almost discouraged; could not perceive any favorable symptoms, but the third month I began to pick up in flesh and strength. I cannot now recite how, step by step, the signs and realities of returning health gradually but surely developed themselves. To-day I tip the scales at one hundred and sixty, and am well and strong."

Our principal reliance in curing Mr. Downs' terrible disease was the "Golden Medical Discovery."

BLEEDING FROM LUNGS. JOSEPH F. McFARLAND, Esq., Athens, La., writes: "My wife had frequent bleeding from the lungs before she commenced using your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She has not had any since its use. For some six months she has been feeling so well that she has discontinued it."

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors,
No. 663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times." Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

PONIES. Sheffield Mountain Ponies; America's most valuable breed. Largest herd in America. Now wanted to sell them. Sample FREE. Also opportunity for business. Packed stamped self-addressed envelope. BYRON VAN RAN B. BOERNE, Kendall Co., Texas.

N. U. F. W. No. 18-87. When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

The Elder Booth.

Booth, accompanied by his wife, arrived at Norfolk, Va., from the Island of Madeira in a vessel, unheralded and unknown. He made his first appearance in Richmond, Va., and presented himself to Mr. Gilfertt, the manager, and said that he wished to perform. He had no letters of introduction, and his identity was very much doubted, while at the rehearsal, which he merely "walked through," the actors looked upon him as a fraud. But at night he dispelled all doubts of his identity in the performance of "Richard." Now, the question has always arisen why he arrived from the old country in such a mysterious manner. I think I can throw some light upon the matter.

Just before Booth left England he was playing in Bath. Business was dull, for he did not draw. A celebrated gymnast was performing at the same time at an opposition theater. His name was Signior Antonio, or the "Little Devil." He drew the crowd by his wonderful performances on the slack rope. Booth, after his performance, went around to the other show and commenced shouting.

"Mountebank! Mountebank!! Humbug!!! A desecration of the temple of art!"

Of course he was ejected by the police, but returned after the performance and met Antonio. A few angry words followed, and they came to blows; next day they again met and a reconciliation took place. They then had a supper, at which wine was freely partaken of. They parted late that night. Antonio, going home, while passing through a park, heard a pistol snap behind him (a flint lock.) It missed fire. Antonio then turned and saw that it was Booth, who fired a second shot. The ball struck him in the cheek and lodged in the back of his head. He fell stunned, but was found shortly afterward and taken to his hotel. Booth fled from England to the continent, and this is why Booth came to this country in such a mysterious manner. Antonio recovered and came to the United States, where he played at the leading theaters with much success, and finally fixed his home in St. Louis, where he died a few years ago, respected and loved by all who came in contact with him. In his old age he became insane. The cause of his insanity was supposed to be the shot fired by the hand of the elder Booth. Booth and Antonio met in St. Louis and became firm friends, and his son, Alfonso, now has in his possession a watch seal which was presented by Booth with the letter "B" engraved upon an amethyst on the seal, which he keeps in remembrance of the drunken freak which occurred in his father's younger days.

Booth's ancestor's were from Spain. They were of Hebrew stock, and their family name was Cabana, which, in the Hebrew language, means Booth. They fled to England to escape persecution. His literary tastes and abilities were of high order. He was a linguist, as he spoke and wrote the French, German, and Hebrew languages fluently. He was a grand admirer of the Koran and familiar with the Taband.

One day I asked him: "Are you not a Jew in religion, Mr. Booth?"

"No," said he, "I am not. I was born a Jew, but if one be borne in a stable, it is no reason that he should be a horse. I am a Mohammedan."

I knew he was a frequenter of synagogues, but he had the highest respect for all places of religious worship, and never passed one without bowing his head. His charity was shown by deeds of philanthropy and humanity, not talk. "He did good by stealth, and blushed to find it fame."—St. Louis Republican.

On the Bob-Tail Car.

Eastern visitor (in Omaha street car)—Why, these cars have no conductors! The company must have a good deal of faith in human nature.

Omaha man—Yes, Omaha folks are so honest that the company knows the fares will be left in that box.

"But who takes charge of the passengers?"

"There are generally people on board willing to ring the bell and act as guards without charging the company anything for it."

"How noble! What sort of people are they?"

"Pickpockets, mostly."—Omaha World.

"THE use we make of happiness gives us an eternal sentiment of satisfaction or repentance."—Rousseau.

Aping English Customs.

Nearly every true American who daily perambulates the streets of our large cities is at times puzzled to know whether or not he has been suddenly transported to some English city. The conglomerated mass of humanity that surrounds him is confusing. Here, there, and everywhere can be seen all colors and classes of nationalities. At the corner he meets the Italian, the fruit monopolizer; in every avocation of life can be seen the Irishman; within the red-fronted store reigns the reticent Chinaman; on all sides his ears are besieged with mongrel Dutch, the more classic German, the hearty Southern intonation of the negro, and the insinuating oily phrases of the Frenchman.

After partially recovering from his bewilderment, the true American looks around him for a few of his kind. He finds three classes of Americans; the true American, clad in neat business suit, demonstrating that the wearer is more anxious to cultivate his brain than cater to public opinion as to what he should eat, drink, or wear.

Coming down the street can be seen American No. 2. He is a picture—and such a picture! Shoes, sharp at the toes as a toothpick (heels very apt to be run over), but highly polished—thanks to some friend's blacking and brush—skin-tight pantaloons, kid gloves, eye glass, a three-button cutaway, somebody's second-hand fall overcoat, cut down to the present wearer's size, a Central Park sycamore tree for a cane, a polished brass watch-chain running from either of the lower vest pockets to the end of which are keys; an often-brushed and time-honored plug hat, held together by the application of mucilage upon the inside. The back part of the head of the American No. 2 is closely cropped, a la Sing Sing style; on the top front is a slightly tufted dais, and a few strands of hair are brushed over either ear. No matter how cold the day, his cut-down fall overcoat is conspicuous—not by its absence, but by its presence. When importuned by his more sensible friends as to why he does not put on a warmer top-coat, he exclaims: "Cawn't do it, yer know; my flannels are so heavy, my dear fellow, that a heavy coat would be uncomfortable." At that very moment the summer flannel shirt is pitifully sighing for an envelopment beneath a warmer outside garment; the very bones sympathize one with the other in their chilled sockets; the watery blood is running at low tide, and the interrogated is shivering so perceptibly at the time he says "Cawn't do it, yer know," that the very words seem to be broken particles of ice. Who can wear a heavy coat if he hasn't got one, or can't beg, borrow, or steal one? This picture is the American dude. He dresses this way because "It's English, you know."

Here comes the third American-Englishman or English-American, just as you will have it. Always in a great hurry. He, too, carries a cane, or rather a small tree. Look at his shoes. Size No. 13, five inches wide, and soles at least an inch-thick. These shoes are called "Waukenphasts"—an English term. Every time a shoe strikes the pavement, the bricks groan and the unlucky insect that is in the path of the coming destroyer at once commence to pray, for he knows that the day for winding up earthly accounts has arrived. The Ulster of America, No. 3, would cover twelve dudes of average size and weight, and the majority of dudes are of feather weight and nominal size. But the prominent feature of No. 3 is the pantaloons. They are very apt to consist of large white and black blocks that look like a series of checkerboards sewed together.—The Earth.

NEAR the sea the shifting of sand by the winds is a familiar sight, and the drifts are often known to encroach on cultivated fields, forests and villages. Striking examples are found on Lake Michigan, where the withered tops of a forest are visible above a sand-drift, and in Norfolk, England, where farms and houses have been covered. The same phenomenon occurs in deserts, the great sandhills being not only carried about by the wind, but even forced beyond the proper limits of the sandy wastes. The extensive Registan Desert in central Afghanistan is reported as being steadily pushed north-eastwardly, and calculations have shown that its present rate of progress will cause it to overwhelm some of the most fertile and prosperous districts of the country in a few thousand years.

J. H. CONRAD,

DEALER IN

ROOFING AND SPOUTING

GUTTERING, HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,

Cutlery, Nails, Paints, Woodenware &c.

MAIN STREET, ST. JOE IND.

All work and goods guaranteed to give satisfaction: Give me a call.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

St. Joe Meat Market,

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

M. TUSTISON,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES,

EARTHEN POTS FOR HOUSE PLANTS

PROVISIONS, OYSTERS, LEMONS.

ORANGES, CANDIES, CIGARS &c.

MAIN ST. ST. JOE, IND.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

R. G. COBURN,

AGENT FOR THE

ALBION Cultivator

AND FIELD HARROW,

AND DAISY RAKE.

—ooo—

Farmers will save money by seeing me before buying. I will call on you with a sample in a few days. R. G. Coburn, St. Joe, Ind.

Take Notice!

Having returned from Tennessee, I will assist again in

Raising & Moving Buildings,

in short all kinds of Rope, Tackle and Jack-screw Work. Having had 15 years experience, and improved machinery, I feel safe in guaranteeing satisfaction. Heavy and difficult work a specialty. Correspondence solicited. Direct all communications to H. or M. Millman, St. Joe Station, Ind., or A. Monroe, Hicksville, Ohio.

W. A. KINSEY,

Undertaker and Embalmer. Keeps on hand constantly a stock of Undertaking Supplies, Coffins, Caskets, Burial Robes &c. I can supply as fine goods as can be furnished. Will attend to making all arrangements for funerals. Calls responded to at all hours of the night. Office on corner of Main and Second Streets; residence on corner of Main and Fourth Streets, St. Joe, Ind.

Arthur James,

—DEALER IN—

Watches, Clocks,

AND JEWELRY.

Repairing done promptly and all work warranted. Call and see me at Bair & Son's store, Spencerville, Ind.

M. T. BISHOP,

—DEALER IN—

LUMBER

OF ALL KINDS,

Shingles, Lime, Lath, MOULDINGS &c.

Large Stock and Prices Low. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

FLY Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

ISSUE

MISSING

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, JULY 22, 1887.

NO. 26.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLIMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind., John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a specialty. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—A terrible tragedy occurred near Logansport, recently. Several months ago William Goerner received a large pension. Unscrupulous neighbors tried to borrow the money, and failing in doing so, made threats against Goerner and his family. In the past two years his house has been burned, two horses have been poisoned, and cattle and hogs turned into his growing crops. On this account, Goerner has lived in fear of assassination for some time, past, and has always retired with a gun and revolver within reach. Shortly after midnight, recently, he was awakened by a noise at his door. He seized his gun and commanded the supposed burglar to halt. The order was not heeded, and Goerner fired. Upon lighting a lamp, Goerner discovered that he had killed his wife, the load of shot entering the mouth and tearing out the entire right side of her throat. Goerner gave himself up, but was released after the coroner's inquest.

—The following patents have been issued to Indiana inventors: Alonzo Collon, Oaktown, gate; Peter Dion, assignor of one-half to L. Dion, South Bend, wheel; Albert M. Grimman, assignor of one-half to Wagner, Indianapolis, elevator gate, also barrel skid; Miller Kehoe and A. Zilker, New Albany, brick kiln; Llewellyn G. Kenton, Monticello, monument; Anson L. Massey, Rainsville, hame tug loop; Baker S. Ruddick, Columbus, harmonica holder; Chas. E. Wintrobe and E. L. Griffith, Washington, folding feed box for wagons. —At Evansville, Mrs. Helen McClure and daughter, colored, were cleared of the charge of the murder of John McClure, the husband and father, who died of arsenical poison. Several hundred colored people were in the court-room when the verdict was announced. They shouted and rushed forward to congratulate the defendants. Several old women hugged the Judge and the defendants' attorneys before the latter were aware of what was occurring. It was a ludicrous scene.

—The South Bend Common Council, by unanimous vote, ordered the Central Union Bell Telephone Company to remove its poles and wires from the city by the 10th of next month. A franchise will be given D. C. Boley & Co., of Chicago, to put in an exchange of the American Cushman telephone. This action is taken because the Bell people are trying to force their patrons to adopt the toll system as against the legal $3 rate.

—John C. Ebert, a young patternmaker, residing with his parents at 572 North Pennsylvania avenue, Indianapolis, fell out of a fifth-story window of the Talbot Block, and was dead when picked up. Ebert had attended the meeting of Koerner Lodge, K. of P., and retired to a window in the corridor to cool off. The air was close, and it is supposed that the accident occurred while Ebert was sleeping.

—At Poseyville, Mr. Lavan W. Spellman, in company with a friend, was shooting at some crows, when his companion's gun was discharged in some manner, the shot taking effect in Spellman's thigh. The wound was not thought dangerous until recently when he was attacked with lock-jaw, which gradually grew worse, and resulted in his death.

—Andrew Walters, moving with his family in a wagon from Missouri to Indianapolis, met with a probably fatal accident near Evansville. He was in a state of intoxication, and let his team run away. Walters was thrown from the wagon, and both wagon wheels passed over his body, inflicting internal injuries. The family escaped unhurt.

—Joseph Mayer, a tramp from New York, stealing a ride to Chicago, attempted to board a freight train west on the Nickel Plate to ride to Fort Wayne, fell into a trestle work and was run over and both legs cut off. He was picked up and brought to the St. Joseph Hospital at Fort Wayne, where he died.

—Lizzie Batson, aged about eighteen years, a resident of Lewisville, jumped off a car while the train was nearing the depot at Cambridge City. She was thrown violently to the ground and her collar-bone broken. Severe internal injuries will confine her to her bed for some time.

—While William Brown was threshing James Sharp's wheat, in the neighborhood of Conatsville, sparks from the engine ignited the wheat stacks, and the flames spread rapidly, consuming the thresher and about four hundred bushels of wheat. Loss, about $1,000.

—The annual meeting of the Indiana Trotting and Pacing Horse-breeders' Association will be held at Terre Haute on August 2, 3, and 4. The entries already show a promising lot of speed horses, and the races give promise of being as good as any held in Indiana.

—The exhaustion of the Insane Hospital's funds has made it necessary for the managers to discharge thirty of the employees, of whom thirteen are sewing women. In consequence, insane women will be required to do much of the work of repairing clothing.

—David Harris, a wealthy farmer east of Montpelier, was found wandering about his barn-yard with a broken jaw and badly bruised. The peculiar feature of the case is that he doesn't know who struck him. There is much comment here over the occurrence.

—John Robinson murdered his neighbor, Samuel Hay, at Charleston Landing, by shooting him while he was waiting with his sister for the Louisville packet. He rested the gun on the shoulder of Hay's sister in order to take aim. An old feud.

—William Naylor, proprietor of the Brookville Hotel, aged about forty-five years, dropped dead, after performing a day's work. Heart disease is the supposed cause. He leaves a family.

—Two first-class passenger engines built at the Pennsylvania Company's shops in Fort Wayne, were turned out last week. It is said that in their construction they equal the best ever made at any of the leading locomotive works.

—Robert McGuire and Joseph Anderson, aged about twelve and thirteen years, respectively, were drowned in White River, near Hazleton, fifteen miles south of Vincennes.

—Benjamin Peebles, an old pioneer of Montgomery County, died at his home near Garfield, aged 80 years.

—The third annual reunion of the 130th Indiana Volunteer Infantry will be held at Wabash on August 6. All members of this organization are requested to be present.

—The annual old settlers' meeting of the counties of Montgomery, Fountain, and Tippecanoe will be held at Meharry's grove on Thursday, August 25.

—The State K. of P. encampment will be held at Crawfordsville, on August 26, 27, 28, and 29.

—The new Methodist Church at Jamestown was struck by lightning and burned to the ground.

—A number of the Salvation Army were arrested at Lafayette for disturbing the peace.

—Fred M. Hour, of Terre Haute, aged 15 years, was drowned in the Wabash River.

—The gas well at Peru has been abandoned, mineral water having been struck.

—A meeting of old settlers will be held at Russellville on the 4th of August.

THE lack of money may, but the lack of brains never, prevent a person from getting into what is called "society."—Boston Courier.

MOTTO for persons who preserve fruit—They can who think they can.

PUZZLED.

Gilbert Stuart, one of America's great portrait painters, was a humorist and delighted in harmless jokes, such as excited a laugh but aroused no bitterness. Once while he was traveling in a crowded stage-coach, in England, his companions, curious to know the business of the man who amused them by his witty remarks, questioned him closely. In those days gentlemen wore powdered hair tied in queues, and ladies built up on their heads pomaded top-knots. Stuart gravely replied to his first questioner, "I sometimes dress ladies' and gentlemen's hair."

"You are a hair-dresser, then?" said one of the company.

"What! do you take me for a barber?" exclaimed Stuart, in a serious tone.

"I beg pardon, but I inferred as much from what you said; may I ask what then you are?"

"Why, I sometimes brush a gentleman's coat or hat, or adjust cravats."

"Oh, you are a valet to some nobleman."

"Indeed, I am not! I am not a servant—though, to be sure, I make coats and waistcoats for gentlemen."

"Oh, you are a tailor."

"Tailor! do I look like one? I assure you that I never handled a 'goose' that was not roasted."

"What are you then?" asked half-a-dozen voices, for by this time all were laughing uproariously.

"I'll tell you, said Stuart. 'What I have said is literally true. I dress hair, brush hats and coats, adjust a cravat, and make coats, waistcoats, and breeches, and brush also boots and shoes.'

"Ha! ha! a boot and shoemaker, after all!"

"Guess again, gentlemen! I never handled boot or shoe save for my own feet; yet all I have said is true."

"We may as well give up guessing," said one of the company; he's too much for all of us."

"Now, gentlemen," said Stuart, taking a pinch of snuff, "I will not play the fool with you any longer. Upon my word of honor, I get my bread by making faces," and he then so screwed his countenance, that the stage-coach shook with laughter.

"There, just as I thought!" exclaimed one, "the gentleman is a comedian."

"I never was on the stage, and seldom see the inside of a play-house," answered Stuart.

The mystified company looked at each other with astonishment. Just then the stage-coach stopped at the place where Stuart was to get off.

"Gentlemen," said he, "you will find that all I have said of my various employments is included in these few words—I am a portrait painter. If you will call at my studio in London, I shall be ready to brush you a coat or hat, dress your hair, supply you with a wig of any fashion; accommodate you with coats or shoes, give you ruffles or cravats, and make faces for you."

THERE is a kind of close relationship between all those who are suffering from some sorrow or other. If we are in mourning we feel somehow or other drawn to every black dress we meet.

The St. Joe News.

ST JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILLIAMS.

OUR SAINT.

BY CLINTON SCOLLARD.

The one I sang was born and bred Ere I and Queen Esther's whims had led
A single thread to vex her mind.

Her form was like a flower so fair,
Her hair like waves of golden hair,
Her voice was sweet - her favorite air
Was "Yankee Doodle."

She used to play an old spinnet,
The shades in existence yet,
And the dots and the crotchets set,
High in our hearts.

And oft the sun from dawn till gloom
In some quaint, low, beamed room,
She loved the fabric of her gown,
Nor seemed to wear it.

In stately minuet or reel,
With large-bowed hips, high of heel,
Here was the step that roused the zeal
In hearts of all sorts.

Folk high and lowly both to please,
To make bright moods and repartees,
To bawls, to brews, she hummed these
Among her tidbits.

When'd she passed in quilted gown
Along the highways of the town,
Small wonder that the swains bowed down
In admiration;

And when a handsome stranger bore
The fair one from her father's door,
Why marvel that the jealous swore
From sheer vexation?

A day more gay was seldom seen
Than her bright wedding-day. I ween;
And she, who bore her off a queen
In look and motion.

And when, with him she loved, she led
The wedding dance, more light her tread
Than any bride that ever sped
O'er wave or ocean.

The bridled bodice that she wore
While footing it along the floor
Has lain for fifty years or more
In some dark chest hid;

And how she spun around the steeple,
Sought while yet young the sturly goal,
A goal which she had, patient soul,
Long in her breast hid.

Her eyes are dim, her voice is faint,
And yet she never makes a complaint;
One more so near and like a saint
I have to yet see.

Than she who in the convent sits
And does, while she knits and knits,
Her little nephew a socks and mitts,
My great-aunt Betsy.

The Century.

HIS LOVE TESTED.

BY EUGENE DANKLEY.

Arthur Hill, Esquire, commonly called "Master Arthur," aged 23, was engaged to a girl

"Whose face he never had gazed upon."

About eight years before my tale opens, a dispute had arisen at out a certain estate in Waterford, to which Mr. Hill, Arthur's father, and a certain George Wilson, both laid claims. Litigation seemed inevitable, and the legal fraternity began to "be on the look-out," when one morning, Mr. Hill, senior, received a note from Wilson containing the following passage:

"My daughter, Emily, will inherit all my property at my death, with the exception of a small house, which goes to Jack's boy. Don't you think it would be a wise plan if you or boy, Arthur, were to marry Emily? Let the property pass for eight years, secure, then Emily will be eighteen, and Arthur three-and-twenty; if they take to marry then, well and good, if not, I shall decline to carry out the arrangement, let the property go to the boy."

Mr. Hill readily acquiesced in his correspondent's suggestion, and Arthur found himself an engaged man at 15. Shortly after, Mr. Hill was obliged, through ill-health, to leave Ireland; and for many years he resided entirely on the Continent. Thus it happened that Arthur and his future bride never met.

Later, the fact of his being engaged had been a great deal in his mind, and the obligation began to seem irksome. He distorted everything that the last heir (or her, as) formed at last a most unfavorable portrait, over which he would brood, until at last he hated the very name of Wilson.

About a month before the date fixed for his decision, Arthur took himself to a small inn in the village of Portlaw, near Waterford, nominally to fish, and, as it were, to find time for a little reflection on so important a matter. One day, as he lay lazily smoking a cigar by the silver fireplace, a tribune of the Suir, something fell from a high bunk above him, and dropped lightly on the water at his feet, while a sweet musical voice exclaimed, "Gracious me! My hat!"

Arthur looked, and saw a very neat little hat sailing rapidly with the stream.

"Lather the owner!" exclaimed he. "I suppose she'll expect me to go and play the water-dog, and fetch it to her."

As he rose, he looked up to the spot from which the voice had proceeded, and saw there a girl whose beauty surprised him.

There she stood, Venus like, her head bare, gazing sorrowfully after her fast disappearing hat, and Arthur had a good opportunity to examine her critically, from the little head with its crisp brown hair, disordered by the wind, to the tiny ankles, which her position exposed to Arthur's view as she stood over him.

Running some paces down the bank, he stepped out on an old willow which protruded itself over the stream, and waited in the hope that the current would bring the hat near enough for him to stay its course.

He was not disappointed, and in a few moments more he was again out of the firm with his prize.

After a few words had been exchanged, Arthur found the girl very charming; she seemed so delightfully free from all conventionalism without at all resembling his cousin, the "last girl."

All the next day he wandered by the river, but she came not. That day he was restless and ill-tempered with his hostess and everyone who approached him.

The day after, he was more fortunate. She was sitting in the old spot, and greeted him smilingly.

"You're just in time," she said. "Look at my tree; isn't it like those bright cauldrons you see in the pickle bottles?"

Arthur sat down, and set to work on the refractory tree, while she watched him.

"I say," she said, at last, "isn't this very improper? We've never been introduced, and I don't know who you are, or anything about you. Lady Henry would have a fit if she knew."

"I beg to introduce myself," said Arthur, laughing. "My name is Hill—Arthur Hill."

After a pause she said, slowly, "So you're Arthur Hill?"

"Yes," said he, looking up. "What do you know of me?"

"There is a young lady staying at Danan who is a particular friend of mine; she has told me all about you."

"Oh, indeed! And what's her name?"

"Miss Wilson; Emily Wilson."

One here now flushed, and in a low tone, exclaimed, "Emily Wilson?"

"Yes; Emily is my best and dearest friend, and she tells me everything," she replied, demurely.

Arthur began to paint viciously.

"I detest fast girls!" he said at last.

"How do you know Emily is fast? You never had the pleasure of seeing her."

"No, but I've heard of her," Arthur said, gloomily.

"What have you heard about her, pray?" his companion demanded, sharply.

"Why, there was Jack Heany—he met her a short time ago. She talked slang the whole time to him, and I wanted to—"

"What?"

"Smoke!"

Here the young girl burst into a violent fit of laughing, and after a long pause, exclaimed: "Oh, Jack's such a mule! He'd do that to frighten him. Well," continued his fair tormentor, "is that all you have to say against your bride?"

"He's not my bride."

"But she will be."

"No, never!"

"What will you buy your freedom with, Highfield and seven thousand a year?"

"Ay, and think it cheap, too."

"I assure you, Mr. Hill, that's very complimentary to Miss Wilson."

She watched him, softly averted; then her face lit up with mischief.

"You have not told me your name yet," Arthur said after a brief pause.

"My name, is it?" she repeated. "Oh, bother in name—never mind, Arthur—Mr. Hill, I mean; my name is, at present, of little importance."

"I must know your name. Won't you tell it to me?" Arthur persisted.

"Well, my name is Emily, too," she said, musingly.

"Then, please, shall I call on you, Emily?" he asked.

"Certainly not, sir," she coldly replied, and recommenced painting vigorously.

He was evidently getting on too fast.

"Well, won't you forgive me," he pleaded, after a while.

"Shall I?" she said, holding her sketch at arm's length to observe the effect.

"Yes, do, please, Em—Miss—oh, bother it!"

"Yes, I will, then," he laughed, and she gave him her hand.

Arthur felt sadly inclined to kiss it but refrained.

"Since when?"

He hesitated.

"Since when?" she again repeated, imperiously.

Arthur began to dig little holes with his stick.

"Well, within the last few days," he said at last.

If he had been looking at her, he might have seen the smile and blush of pleasure which lit up her face as he spoke.

"You see," he continued, "it's my father's marriage, not mine; and a man likes to choose his own wife. I dare say there's no real harm in the young girl. If she's your friend, it speaks well for her, but still—"

"But still what? You've never seen her; how can you tell whether you will like her or not?"

Arthur became more than ever absorbed in his excavations.

"Well, you see, the fact of the matter is," he blurted out between the digs, "I imagine that I have seen the only woman I'll ever ask to be my wife."

And he looked suddenly up at her.

She arose, confused, and began to consult her watch eagerly.

"Well, upon my word it's very late, and I really must go. Please give me my things. This is the park boundary, so I won't trouble you any more."

She sprang over the stile as she spoke, interposing it between them as they said adieu.

"When may I have the pleasure of seeing you again?" he asked, as he held out his hand at parting.

She allowed it to linger in his as she answered, "Well—soon—yes, very soon, perhaps sooner than you expect." And, gently returning the pressure of his hand, she walked quickly away toward the mansion, whose top appeared over the tallest of the great oak trees.

When the fair stranger had disappeared, Arthur seated himself on the stile and lit a cigar; for a few moments he puffed away silently, when suddenly he jumped up and exclaimed, "By jingo! I never got her name, after all!" and then he turned to go.

Immediately on arriving at his inn, he commenced a cross-examination of his hostess, by which he now learned two facts. First, that Danan was the property of Sir John Power; and second, that there were two young ladies staying there—Miss Wilson and Miss Morley.

Next day saw him speeding from Waterford in a fly to his father's house in Tramore, intent on destroying that worthy old gentleman's peace of mind by the announcement of his determination to give up Miss Wilson and Miss Morley.

"Is my father in, Washie?" he asked of the butler, when that functionary appeared to attend his young master.

"No, sir; Mr. Wilson was here, and the both of 'em are gone out."

"What! Mr. Wilson here?"

"Lor, yes, sir; him and Miss Wilson arrived this morning from Pangnan."

"Confound it!" exclaimed Arthur. "They seem to hunt me everywhere I go. And he retired precipitately into his own den. Bring me something to eat here, Murphy; and don't let Miss Wilson know that I am in the house."

By the time he had finished his lunch, his mind was made up. Selecting a huzely-crested sheet of note-paper, he sat down and wrote, resigning both the lady and Highfield.

"That will do, I think. I hope it won't smell of tobacco."

He then rang the bell, and Murphy appeared.

"Here, take this to Miss Wilson," he said, with his compliments.

Murphy was too well trained to show surprise at anything. He bowed and went. In ten minutes he returned.

"Miss Wilson's compliments, sir, and would you speak to her in the drawing-room."

"Oh, confound her!" exclaimed Arthur. But there was no escape. The drawing-room was darkened to exclude the afternoon sun, but our hero's covered a white figure at the far end which rose and bowed as he advanced.

"I am delighted, Miss Wilson," he began, "to have the pleasure of—Hu lo, Miss Morley! You here?"

"Miss Morley?" said the laughing voice of his Portlaw friend. "I am not Miss Morley."

"Then who, in the name of goodness, are you?" he demanded, eagerly.

"I'm that horrid Miss Wilson—a—Emily."

Arthur sat down and stared at her; presently he broke into a great laugh!

"Oh, it's all very well to laugh!" she said, in an undertone.

In a moment more he was on his knees before her, looking up into her eyes.

"Miss Wilson—Emily—I—I—"

"I told you not to call me Emily, yesterday," she said, sharply.

"Yes, dear, but yesterday is not to-day; we're engaged now."

"What do you mean, sir? Engaged! What after all this—"

"Oh, bother that letter! You know I love you to distraction. You are your own rival in love. You'll forgive me, Em, and marry me—won't you?"

"Certainly not, sir! You said I was vulgar, and fast—or go my hand—how dare you, sir? You said Highfield would be a cheap price to get rid of me. And then this letter! Let go my hand, I say—he quiet, Mr. Hill! Arthur, don't!"

But our hero was not to be put off in this manner; he knew how leaving all women are, and he meant to win his promised bride.

"Oh, darling, don't you know that I love you? Did I not prove my love for you by offering, nay, actually agreeing to give up Highfield in order that I might marry you. Was it not for you dear that I intended to sacrifice all?"

At last he conquered. Miss Wilson surrendered ignominiously.

"Arthur," she whispered, as her head rested on his shoulder, "do you really love me?"

"And you will even marry me, now, kisses and blushes," "Well, then, Arthur dear, I'm yours; and I hope you'll find in me a loving wife."

"Oh, joy!" and he danced about like a puppet. "Emily, I know that you were once going to vex your friend Arthur, but why didn't you tell me the day we first met by the river, who you were?"

"Ah, can you ask? Why, you silly fellow, since I never saw you before, was it not right that I should put your love to the test?"

And so the matter ended. They were married shortly after, and a happier couple could not be discovered within the bounds of Erin's lovely island.

The Modern French Estimate of Napoleon.

It has not been difficult of late years to collect contemporary prints of the First Napoleon. It may have been otherwise under the Second Empire—probably it was—but since the establishment of the Third Republic it has been easy enough. This history of Napoleon's prestige in France may be told in a few words.

Napoleon's personal force was so great, and he had so identified himself with France, that in spite of the reaction consequent on the Restoration of Louis XVIII, the French people, as a whole, accepted him and glorified him as the national hero. His fame, and the magical influence of his name, suffered little even from the recollections of Leipzig and Waterloo; his reputation, in fact, increased steadily all through the period of the rule of the returned Bourbons, and at no time was more potent than in the reign of Louis Philippe. In his day Napoleon's remains were brought back from St. Helena, and interred, with great pomp, in the Invalides. The shops of Paris were full of pictures of his battles, of portraits of him and of his marshals. Up to the Revolution of 1848, Napoleon's government and policy were always, in the popular mind, opposed to the policy and government of the Bourbons. He stood for the principle of the national will; they—the older branch, of course, more particularly—for the principle of divine right. After the deposition of Louis Philippe, the tremendous influence of Napoleon's name carried Prince Louis into the chair of the President of the new Republic by an overwhelming majority, in spite of everything that the Government could do to prevent it. But from that moment a new chapter began. Napoleon was now no longer, in the minds of the French people, placed in contrast with the Bourbon kings, but with the Republic. The coup d'etat of December 2, 1851, emboldened the Republicans against the uncle almost as much as against the nephew, for it was by the uncle's name that the nephew had won. Hence came a systematic effort to write down the First Napoleon, with the view of weakening the hold of the Third Napoleon upon the popular mind. Lanfrey's History is the best illustration of a work of this kind. The fall of the Second Empire, with all its mortifying incidents and terrible disasters, did much—however illogically—to lower the prestige of Napoleon the First; and since 1871 Republicans and Bonapartists have been always at swords' points. In France to-day, whatever may be in fact the strength of the veneration felt for the First Napoleon, one sees and hears little of him. There are, of course, many prints, busts, medals, statuettes of him to be found in the shops; but they are not so highly prized, I fancy, to-day as they were forty years ago. From "Some Illustrations of Napoleon and his Times," by John C. Rojes, in Scribner's Magazine.

It is not necessary or right that all men should enjoy art, nature, or music to make them useful or honorable. When we go a pleasuring at least let us be honest, and not pretend to a liking for white-bait when we hunger for a good meal of wholesome coarse bread and salt herring.

THE COTTAGE IN THE LANE.

BY WILLIAM C. MATHER.

Deserted it stands at the foot of the lane,
Down by the orchard, lonely and drear,
Shaken by winds, discolored by rain,
Falling to pieces, year after year.
Gone are the days when the little brown cot
Shelter gave those now dead and forgot.

Whispers the wind that sweeps 'neath the eaves,
Calling and sobbing when dark is the night,
Mourning and wailing, it seems that it grieves
Over the ones who are lost to our sight.
Resting in graves at the foot of the lane
Freed from the cares of this life and its pain.

Summers pass by, and winter snows fade,
Stands the old cottage in the dreary, bare Lane,
Lonely it looks in the sunshine or shade,
Sadly in pears in the soft fall moonlight;
Red is the sunlight of sunset that falls
Touching the windows and faded brown walls.

Long later moonbeams beam on the lawn,
Silently to gaze at the cottage, so vast,
Never a light from its windows, so vast,
Never a light from its windows, so vast,
Gone are the days when the little brown cot
Shelter gave those who are dead and forgot!

The Old Folks at Home.

Or else here, no, a time new and then to sustain them under rowing immunities. No safer or more thorough investment for age and the delicate state can be found than the stomach. Little is a sensation, often in those ailments, of commonest occurrence. Liver complaint, indigestion and constipation, a pure botanic safeguard against malaria, and a reliable means of correcting the rheumatism. To the elderly, it is a valuable aid in the recovery of strength and to the delicate, nervous invalid it yields to equal slumber and renewed appetites. Two prime factors in the restoration of vitality, it is free from those objectionable ingredients of many of the so-called "Bitters," on the contrary, it is rich in the medicinal fruit.

Mr. GLADSTONE relates that when he was a young and ardent Tory at Oxford, he ventured to expostulate with a Liberal workman who was taking part in the reform agitation. Mr. Gladstone urged him to beware of these revolutionary notions and besought him to take warning by the fate of France. The honest workman listened respectfully for a time and then broke out with a reply which Mr. Gladstone to this day admits was conclusive. "D—n your foreign notions!" said he. "What has that got to do with old England?" Mr. Gladstone thinks Englishmen to-day are too apt to assume just that attitude toward the foreign opinion on home rule.

Woman and Her Diseases.

Is the title of a book of this kind, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, Boston, N. Y., sent to you for a copy of the book.

Our Monster Metropolis.

New York is indeed a great city. Its assessed valuation for 1887 shows an increase in every ward, and a total increase in real and personal property of over $80,000,000. When we stop to think that this increase for a single year is $20,000,000 more than the aggregate assessed value of real and personal property in the city of Albany, we begin to comprehend how stupendous the growth of New York City in the past year has been.

How often is the light of the household extinguished by the fire of the hearth? How often is the life of the family threatened by the fire of the hearth? How often is the life of the family threatened by the fire of the hearth? How often is the life of the family threatened by the fire of the hearth?

If you wish to be rid of a bothersome peddler, don't threaten to throw him out. Offer to buy him out instead.

Boils and Pimples

And other affections arising from impure blood may appear at this season, when the blood is heated. Hood's Sarsaparilla removes the cause of these troubles by purifying, vitalizing, and enriching the blood, and at the same time it gives tone and strength to the whole system, and makes one feel "like a new man."

"I know Hood's Sarsaparilla to be good by the trial I gave it for eruptions on my face. I had a hard time to purify my blood, but succeeded at last with Hood's Sarsaparilla."—HARRY C. PARR, Champaign, Ill.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists, $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar.

PATENTS R. E. & A. P. LACEY, Patents Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Instructions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 17 years' experience.

PITH AND POINT.

ALWAYS seedy—The fig.
In a tight box—Sardines.
SLEEP is the brain's picnic.
A HARD time—The Iron Age.
A SEAL-SKIN—A notary public.
OUT of order—A non-union man.
A MATCHLESS story—One in which there are no weddings.
THE farmer who raises a glass too often isn't likely to raise much else.

Love in a cottage means simply a life-long course of plates for two and bread for one. Fuck.

WIFE—Will you take me to the opera to-night, dear? Husband—Yes, go and undress. London Courier.

COMMERCIAL travelers don't like to be called drummers now. Some of them never eat partridge because it drums.

In ancient times kissing a pretty girl was a cure for the toothache. Drat the dentist! why did they ever come into power?

"AW, ARE you fond of calves' brains, Miss Belle?" "No, not particularly; but I can listen to you for quite awhile."

A good quality of celluloid is now being made from potatoes. Soon bullets will be made from the railway handwheels.

A PAWNBROKER refused to advance anything on a second-hand glass optic, remarking, "There is no speculation in those eyes." Texas Sittings.

"I wish I could get a man to do my ideal stripped of dreamy guise; And not a man to be a man." That makes a man philosopher.

DE CAD—That little Miss Beach is a regular little fool! Bagley—Oh, no. DE CAD—Yes, she is. Any girl who will flirt is a fool. Bagley—Does she flirt? DE CAD—Why, she flirted with me all last evening. Bagley—Oh, well, then she is a fool.

The little 3-year-old son of a shoemaker who accidentally wandered into a dentist's office, while that individual was extracting a number of teeth for a patient, ran home, exclaiming: "Oh, papa! papa! Here's a man up stairs a-cuttin' pears out of a woman's mouth!" New York Tribune.

It was one of the genus traps. He knocked at the door of a house, and when a kindly-looking woman opened it he said: "Madam, I am very hungry. I have had nothing for a week back." "Why, you poor soul," said the good woman, "wait a moment and I'll find something for you." And she gave him a porous plaster and closed the door before he had finished thanking her. Carl Prentiss' Wit.

The Dakota Relief Association was recently organized in Plankinton. It announced that it was "for the purpose of rendering assistance in the time of necessity." This was telegraphed around and the next day the Secretary staggered into the office with a bushel basket full of letters. "What have you there?" asked the President. "Three hundred and twenty-five letters from the editors in Dakota, each saying that if we are rendering assistance in time of necessity, to just send him a check." Dakota Bel.

An old fellow from Piney Bayou was gravely inspecting a railroad engine, which he beheld for the first time, when the boiler exploded. "Wall, I'll be dinged!" he remarked as he scrambled to his feet. "I didn't know it was the natur' o' the critter to belch itself all to pieces an' short bilin' water all over a feller this er way. W'y, Bill, she's as sudden ez er sneeze. Wall, I'll be dinged if he ain't layin' thar with his head off. The old man told you to keep your head when you got to town, and you 'lowed that you would, but I'll be snatched if it peers like you've did it."—Arkansas Traveler.

Mrs. Cleveland Uses Dumb Bells. It has been remarked that Mrs. Cleveland possesses exceptionally strong wrists, and is consequently able to endure the prolonged handshaking of public receptions without over fatigue. Her strength of muscle is attributed to the persistent use of dumbbells. She is said to be quite a gymnast and owes much of her graceful carriage to the thorough command of her body given by calisthenic exercises.

FRENCH experiments have shown that nickel may be effectively rolled upon soft steel plates, which are thus made as valuable for lamp reflectors and other purposes as silvered copper.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

IT IS A PURELY VEGETABLE PREPARATION CONTAINING PRICKLY ASH BARK AND PRICKLY ASH BERRIES. SENNA-MANDRAKE-BUCHU AND OTHER EQUALLY EFFICIENT REMEDIES. It has stood the Test of Years, in Curing all Diseases of the BLOOD, LIVER, STOMACH, KIDNEYS, BOWELS, &c. It Purifies the Blood, Invigorates and Cleanses the System.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS
CURES ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER, KIDNEYS, STOMACH AND BOWELS.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.
PRICE 1 DOLLAR.

It is purely a Medicine as its cathartic properties forbid its use as a beverage. It is pleasant to the taste, and as easily taken by children as adults.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CO.
Sole Proprietors, ST. LOUIS, MO. KANSAS CITY.

MARLIN REPEATING RIFLE

Guaranteed perfectly accurate and absolutely safe. Made in all sizes for large or small game.

BALLARD
Gallery, Hunting and Target Rifles. Send for Illustrated Catalogue.

Marlin Fire Arms Co., New Haven, Conn.

ADVERTISERS of other papers who wish to examine this paper, or of two estimates on advertising space when in Chicago, will find it on file at 45 to 47 Randolph St.

THE ADVERTISING AGENCY, LORD & THOMAS.

$350 Will buy a complete Newspaper outfit, suitable for publishing a weekly paper in a town of 1000 or more. Includes hands, presses, type cases, and all the necessary machinery.

THE FORT WAYNE NEWSPAPER UNION are prepared to fill orders for rollers promptly.

A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THE COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC R.R.

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago and continuous line at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest, it is the only line connecting the East with the West by a continuous line. It is the only line connecting the East with the West by a continuous line. It is the only line connecting the East with the West by a continuous line.

The Rock Island line and branches include Chicago, Rock Island, La Salle, Peoria, Quincy, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Waterloo, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Earlham, Guthrie, Centerville, Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unequalled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

ALL EXPRESS TRAINS between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE PARLOR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and —between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kanabakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.

All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employees of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly attention.

For Tickets, Maps, Folders—obtainable at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada—or any desired information, address,

R. R. CABLE, Pres't & Gen'l M'gr, Chicago. E. ST. JOHN, Asst' Gen'l M'gr, Chicago. E. A. HOLBROOK, Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Agt., Chicago.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
One Year in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months ..... 50
Three Months ..... 25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe as second-class matter.

FRIDAY JULY 22, 1887.

St. Joe has the largest Normal school in the county.

The Jackson Cornet Band will be here to-morrow night at the band boys' festival.

Cole & Olds have a supply of Soft Sealing and Wax Fruit Jars on sale at lowest prices.

The W. C. T. U. of St. Joe will meet at the home of Mrs. Alex Filley on July 28th, at 3 o'clock. An invitation is extended to all.

The United States pays every year for cigars and cigarettes $18,000,000 and for tobacco $20,000,000.

The pipet of the...

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

One hundred and six in the shade; but we can stand it.

R. G. Coburn had the good luck to lose a night last Sunday night.

Can't some one get up a dog fight or start a monkey show, or add any thing to give us a bit of fun?

Mrs. Al Monroe spent Sunday under the parental roof. She brought over A. B. Coburn, who has been spending a few days in the city.

Jake Whitewash is sky-larking around in this neighborhood last Monday, seeking whom he might catch some body. Delinquent taxes he wanted.

If any one sees any thing outland in Howard Northrup, they need not be alarmed. It is an eleven pound boy will make most any man hold up his head and step high. All parties standing well.

Spry-Frailer.

Most Shuttles returned home from a vacation.

Will Thoburn and Mrs. A. C. Young last Sunday at 7 A. M.

Frank B. Price...

M. J. Price...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

2000 YARDS

Prints, reduced to...
Turkish Bath Towels, per pair...
Blankets, per pair...
Cotton and Wool Blankets...
Six Cakes of Toilet Soap in a neat wooden...
Twenty-five of each...

LEIGHTY'S, ST. JOE.

STILL AND EXAMINE THESE...

STAR WIND ENGINE Good Stock Farm

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

Positive Assertions! True as Gospel!

No matter what others may say, we give more value for the money than any house in the county.

...

...

...

...

GEN'L G. C. KNIFFEN, War Dept., Washington, D. C., after two years, says: "My wife has not had an attack for two years. I trust St. Jacobs Oil will reach the uttermost parts of the earth, and do as much good in every house as it has in mine."

Why should the letter "d" always be introduced into a family? Because it makes "kin" kind.

MR. FRANK L. COX, foreman Herold and Times, Gouverneur, N. Y., writes: "I sprained my ankle very badly and suffered intense pain. One bottle of St. Jacobs Oil cured the sprains and reduced the swelling."

How to Cook Snails.

This is the way to cook snails according to Jay Gould's formula: Boil them first in their shells; then submerge them in a highly-flavored sauce, and finally roast them. They are served in the shells, which by this time are thoroughly browned. When eaten, they are piled hot on a plate, after the manner of roasted clams, and the eater extracts them by holding a shell in his left hand, while with a fork in his right he gets the curious morsel out. The taste is pleasant, if one isn't squeamish, and a liking is easily acquired for the "escargots," as they are called in the restaurants where they have been this week suddenly introduced. Some of the snails eaten in New York are brought from France, but the bulk are gathered by boys in the outlying districts.

The Most Remarkable Business in the Country.

Our citizens have observed notices in the leading papers, from time to time, of a little harmless food plant called Moxie, found in South America last year. Its fine taste as a beverage, and ability to restore nervous, weakly women in a few days, and help overworked people of both sexes, to do two days' work in one with less fatigue, have made the demand so immense that 5,000,000 bottles have been sold in 17 months. What will be the sale in five years at this rate?

Loving Is a Curious Thing Sometimes.

A young man at Paris recently saved the life of a young woman who was about to drown and asked for her hand as a reward, only to learn that she was drowning herself for another man and could not love him. At last accounts the young man was trying to kill himself because she wouldn't have him; and the young woman was trying to kill herself again because the one she loved wouldn't have her. This "loving" business is a curious thing sometimes.

"Consumption Cure"

Would be a truthful name to give to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," the most efficacious medicine yet discovered for arresting the early development of pulmonary disease. But "consumption cure" would not sufficiently indicate the scope of its influence and usefulness. In all the many diseases which spring from a derangement of the liver and blood, the "Discovery" is a safe and sure specific. Of all druggists.

You can always distinguish the young lady who rules the household by her unusual air.

MEN'SMAN'S Peptonized Beef Tonic, the only preparation of beef containing its entire nutritive properties. It contains blood-making, force-generating and life-sustaining properties; invaluable for indigestion, dyspepsia, nervous prostration and all forms of general debility; also, in all feeble conditions, whether the work of exhaustion, nervous prostration, overwork or acute disease, particularly if resulting from pulmonary complaints. Hazard, Hazard & Co., proprietors, New York. Sold by druggists.

THE first thing planted in the garden of Eden—Adam's foot.

Life is burdensome, alike to the sufferer and all around him, while dyspepsia and its attending evils hold sway. Complaints of this nature can be speedily cured by taking Prickly Ash Bitters regularly. Thousands once afflicted now bear cheerful testimony as to its merits.

THE tight laced woman has always good staying power.—Boston Gazette.

THE Fraxer Aisle Grease is the very best. A trial will prove we are right.

BEST, easiest to use and cheapest. Pico's Remedy for Catarrh. By druggists. 50c.

A New Invention.

A Pittsburgh man is the inventor of a device which may completely revolutionize the weaving business. By it carpet can be made faster and wire woven into all conceivable shapes. In design it is not unlike the old-fashioned loom. The invention consists of a reversible shuttle. Two iron hooks perform the work now. Fifteen yards of carpet is the largest day's output accomplished by the old loom. The new one will turn out, so the inventor says, 500 yards. The chain was frequently broken by the old process. This is done away with by the new loom.

The following words, in praise of Dr. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION as a remedy for those delicate diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women, must be of interest to every sufferer from such maladies. They are fair samples of the spontaneous expressions with which thousands give utterance to their sense of gratitude for the incalculable boon of health which has been restored to them by the use of this world-famed medicine.

$100 THROWN AWAY. JOHN E. SEGAR, of Millenbeck, Pa., writes: "My wife had been suffering for two or three years with female weakness, and had paid out one hundred dollars to physicians without relief. She took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it did her more good than all the medicine given to her by the physicians during the three years they had been practicing upon her."

THE GREATEST EARTHLY BOON. MRS. GEORGE HENDER, of Westfield, N. Y., writes: "I was a great sufferer from leucorrhea, bearing-down pains, and pain continually across my back. Three bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' restored me to perfect health. I treated with Dr. — for nine months, without receiving any benefit. The 'Favorite Prescription' is the greatest earthly boon to us poor suffering women."

THREW AWAY HER SUPPORTER. MRS. SOPHIA E. BOSWELL, White Cottage, O., writes: "I took eleven bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and one bottle of your 'Vegetable' I am doing my work, and have been for some time. I have had to employ help for about six or seven months before I could stand taking your medicine. I have had to wear a supporter most of the time; this I have laid aside, and feel as well as I ever did."

IT WORKS WONDERS. MRS. MAY GLEASON, of Nunica, Ottawa Co., Mich., writes: "Your 'Favorite Prescription' has worked wonders in my case. Again she writes: 'Having taken several bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I have regained my health wonderfully, to the astonishment of myself and friends. I can now be on my feet all day, attending to the duties of my household.'

TREATING THE WRONG DISEASE.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here or there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent, or over-busy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some womb disorder. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages his practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine, like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

3 PHYSICIANS FAILED. MRS. E. F. MORGAN, of No. 21 Lexington St., East Boston, Mass., says: "Five years ago I was a dreadful sufferer from uterine troubles, having exhausted the skill of three physicians. I was completely discouraged, and so weak I could with difficulty cross the room alone. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and using the local treatment recommended in his 'Common Sense Medical Adviser.' I commenced to improve at once. In three months I was perfectly cured, and have had no trouble since. I wrote a letter to my family paper, briefly mentioning how my health had been restored, and offering to send the full particulars to any one writing me for them, and enclosing a stamped envelope for reply. I have received over four hundred letters. In reply, I have described my case and the treatment used, and have earnestly advised them to 'do likewise.' From a great many I have received second letters of thanks, stating that they had commenced the use of 'Favorite Prescription,' had sent the $1.50 required for the 'Medical Adviser,' and had applied the local treatment so fully and plainly laid down therein, and were much better already."

JEALOUS DOCTORS. A MARVELOUS CURE.—MRS. G. F. SPRAGUE, of Crystal, Mich., writes: "I was troubled with female weakness, leucorrhea and falling of the womb for seven years, so I had to keep my bed for a good part of the time. I doctored with an array of different physicians, and spent large sums of money, but received no lasting benefit. At last my husband persuaded me to try your medicines, which I was loath to do, because I was prejudiced against them, and the doctors said they would do me no good. I bought your 'Favorite Prescription,' also six bottles of the 'Discovery,' for ten dollars. I took three bottles of 'Discovery,' and four of 'Favorite Prescription,' and I have been a sound woman for four years. I then gave the balance of the medicine to my sister, who was troubled in the same way, and she cured herself in a short time. I have not had to take any medicine now for almost four years."

THE OUTGROWTH OF A VAST EXPERIENCE.

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females, at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in nicely adapting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of woman's peculiar maladies. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful remedy ever devised for the relief and cure of suffering women. It is not recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect specific for woman's peculiar ailments. As a powerful, invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and to the uterus, or womb and its appendages, in particular. For overworked, worn-out, "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic. It promotes digestion and assimilation of food, cures nausea, weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating and eructations of gas. As a soothing and strengthening nerve, "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. "Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhea, or "whites," excessive flowing at monthly periods, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

In pregnancy, "Favorite Prescription" is a "mother's friend," relieving nausea, weakness of stomach and other distressing symptoms common to that condition. If its use is kept up in the latter months of gestation, it so prepares the system for delivery as to greatly lessen, and many times almost entirely do away with, the sufferings of that trying ordeal. "Favorite Prescription," when taken in connection with the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and small laxative doses of Dr. Pierce's Purgative (Little Liver Pills), cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder diseases. Their combined use also removes blood taints, and abolishes cancers and scrofulous humors from the system. "Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years. Large bottles (100 doses) $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00. Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's Book, "Illustrated Treatise (100 pages) on Diseases of Women."

Address, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, No. 633 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

Smith's BILE BEANS purify the blood, by acting directly and promptly on the Liver, Skin and Kidneys. They consist of a vegetable combination that has no equal in medical science. They cure Constipation, Malaria, and Dyspepsia, and are a safeguard against all forms of fevers, chills and fever, gall stones, and Bright's disease. Send 4 cents postage for a sample package and test the TRUTH of what we say. Price, 25 cents per bottle, mailed to any address, postpaid. DOSE ONE BEAN. Sold by druggists. J. F. SMITH & CO., PROPRIETORS ST. LOUIS, MO.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for BIRDSELL'S CLOVER HULLER. Your business is to sell our Clover Huller. We will pay you $1.00 per dozen for every dozen you sell. We will also pay you $1.00 per dozen for every dozen you sell. We will also pay you $1.00 per dozen for every dozen you sell. Address: R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC Boston, Mass. THE LARGEST and BEST EQUIPPED in the WORLD—100 Instructors, 200 Students last year. Thorough instruction in Vocal and Instrumental Music, Piano and Organ Tuning, Fine Arts, Oratory, Literature, French, German, and Italian Language, English Branches, Gymnastics, etc. Tuition, $5 to $15; board and room with Steam Heat and Electric Light, $5.00 to $7.50 per week. Fall Term begins Sept. 4, 1897. For Illustrated Catalogue, with full information, address E. TOURJEL, Dir., Franklin Sq., BOSTON, Mass.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Price 50c. ASTHMA. Write by mail, Stowell & Co., Charlestown, Mass.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50, FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Write Brewster & Jety Rem Holder Co., Holly, Mich. N. U. F. W. No. 30-87. When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times." Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

OLD KATE.

A Story of Early Days in California.

In 1850, says the author of "Pioneer Times in California," Bill Liddle had a pack-train of eight large mules at work for a trader in one of the northern mines. One day he loaded his train heavily and started for a mining camp far in the interior. On this trip he was obliged to pass along a dangerous trail some two miles in length. It was cut into the side of a rugged cliff that overhung the river. It was just wide enough for a loaded mule or horse to walk on safely, with the cliff on one side and a fearful precipice on the other.

Bill started his train in on this pass with old "Kate," a heavy, square-built bay mule, as usual in the lead. Old Kate was an animal of rare intelligence.

He had not advanced far on the narrow trail when Kate gave a loud bray, and in a moment all the mules were standing still. Just ahead was an unloaded train of fifteen California mules approaching from the other direction on a jog-trot.

It was impossible for Bill to turn his mules around with their loads on, and there was no room to unload, nor was there room for the mules of the two trains to pass without almost sure destruction.

Bill raised himself in the saddle, and, in a furious tone, called on the other conductor to stop his train. This he did, but told Bill that he would not go back on the trail because it was two miles to the end of the cliff, and Bill would lose only a few hundred yards by going back. Bill explained the impossibility of turning his large American mules, or of unloading them on such a narrow trail.

All this while old Kate stood right in the center of the trail, her forelegs well apart, as if to brace herself, her nose lower than usual, and her long, heavy ears thrown forward as if aimed at the head mule of the other train, while her eyes seemed fixed on the animal's motions.

"Well," said the conductor of the California mules, surlily, "I don't care. I won't go back. It's your place to get out, and if I lose a mule you'll have to pay for it." Then, cracking his whip, he called to his head mule, "Get up, Sal!"

His mules seemed to know that there was danger. Sal, the leader, hugged close to the rocks, and made an excited rush forward to get inside of Kate.

Old Kate had not moved a muscle, and stood just in the center of the trail as at first. Bill feared for a moment that she did not see the danger of letting Sal get the inside, and again raising himself in the saddle, he called at the top of his voice: "Kate, go for them! Pitch 'em all overboard!"

Before Bill's order was out old Kate gave an unearthly bray as if in answer; at the same time she dropped on her knees, with her head stretched out close along the rocks, her neck and lower jaw rubbing the trail, and received Sal across her neck.

In a second more poor Sal was high in the air, and then dropped heavily into the river below. Kate, keeping her kneeling position, waited for the next mule, which she sent after Sal.

The California mules huddled close together in fear of the kneeling monster before them, but their driver, maddened by his loss, halloed and whipped them on. He was hoping that by a sudden and furious rush they could be made to leap and dash over Kate, and then he could dislodge the rest of the train and get even for his loss. But he did not know old Kate.

In a minute one, two, and three more of the mules went after Sal into the river. The remainder sat back sullenly and refused to move for shouting or whips.

Old Kate rose to her feet and stood as before, with her ears dropped forward as if nothing had happened. The discomfited conductor, seeing himself worsted, turned his mules, one by one, on the trail, and went back with five less than when he started.

The two conductors went to have the affair settled before an alcalde, who promptly gave a decision in favor of Bill, and, with the rough-and-ready justice meted out in those times, ordered the other driver to pay an ounce of gold as the costs of court.

SEASONING TIMBER.

Trees, immediately after they are felled, unless they have been previously killed, contain a great deal of moisture, and are unfit for use until they undergo a seasoning process. This is simply the evaporation of the water, which if allowed to remain in the tree would ferment and decay, and if dried out too rapidly would leave the timber brittle, because the gum and other matters in the wood would evaporate with the water, instead of assimilating with the fibers and tending to bind them together as is the case where the drying is properly conducted. How to accomplish this is the principal thing, and there are many means of doing so. Some people say placing timber in a running stream for a time before stacking helps seasoning and renders it less liable to decay. But it is not always convenient, nor is the timber as good as if seasoned other ways, for it carries off more matter than necessary. Some say leave timber in the bulk some time before cutting into planks. There is great danger in doing this, for if there are any cracks through the bark to allow the moisture to lodge in, decay is certain. The best way is to cut the timber into planks at once after felling, and place it in a store or shed with good ventilation, but no violent draughts of air and no moisture. The floor should be perfectly dry and the roof lofty. In stacking the timber it is well, when convenient, to stand the planks on end, the root end upward and well raised from the ground. In all cases each plank or board should be separated from the next one by laths to allow the air to circulate freely between them. After being in this position for four or five months it is well to reverse them and brush off with a hard brush any moisture or mildew that may appear. Timber seasoned in this manner proves the toughest and most durable. In seasoning, hard woods take about one year to the inch, and soft woods much less. Where it is possible, it is well to cut all timber into scantlings, and in panels or boards to plane them sometime before being used, as they are apt to shrink, no matter how long they are seasoning, for the wood which requires least seasoning is generally found to be the most durable; it then becomes an essential point that trees should be felled during the winter months, that being the season when the tree has least sap or vegetation within it.

THE TIES OF BLOOD.

There is a good deal of nonsense talked about the "ties of blood" between Great Britain and Canada, and the existence of these ties is spoken of as a reason why we should take an unfriendly attitude toward the United States. As a question of fact is the average native-born Canadian related more nearly to Great Britain than to the United States? Has not almost every Canadian a greater number of close relatives in the States than in Britain? Are there not nearly 1,100,000 native-born Canadians living in the States? And are there not an immense number of the stay-at-home Canadians descended from Americans?—Toronto Globe.

A DAKOTA Indian purchased a telephone last week and tried to grind coffee in it. He also tried to scalp the man that sold it to him.—C. F. Walls, in Newman Independent.

J. H. CONRAD,

DEALER IN

ROOFING AND SPOUTING

GUTTERING, HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,

Cutlery, Nails, Paints, Woodenware &c.

MAIN STREET, ST. JOE IND.

All work and goods guaranteed to give satisfaction. Give me a call.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

St. Joe Meat Market,

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

M. TUSTISON,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES,

EARTHEN POTS FOR HOUSE PLANTS

PROVISIONS, OYSTERS, LEMONS,

ORANGES, CANDIES, CIGARS &c.

MAIN ST, ST. JOE, IND.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

R. G. COBURN,

AGENT FOR THE

A LBION SPRING Cultivator

AND FIELD HARROW,

AND DAISY RAKE.

Farmers will save money by seeing me before buying. I will call on you with a sample in a few days. R. G. Coburn, St. Joe, Ind.

Take Notice!

Having returned from Tennessee, I will assist again in

Raising & Moving Buildings,

in short all kinds of Rope, Tackle and Jack-screw Work. Having had 15 years experience, and improved machinery, I feel safe in guaranteeing satisfaction. Heavy and difficult work a specialty. Correspondence solicited. Direct all communications to H. or M. Milliman, St. Joe Station, Ind., or A. Monroe, Hicksville, Ohio.

—A. KINSEY—

Undertaker and Embalmer. Keeps on hand constantly, a stock of Undertaking Supplies, Coffins, Caskets, Burial Robes &c. I can supply as fine goods as can be furnished. Will attend to making all arrangements for funerals. Calls responded to at all hours of the night. Office on corner of Main and Second Streets; residence on corner of Main and Fourth Streets, St. Joe, Ind.

Arthur James,

—DEALER IN—

Watches, Clocks,

AND JEWELRY.

Repairing done promptly and all work warranted. Call and see me at Bair & Son's store, Spencerville, Ind.

M. T. BISHOP,

—DEALER IN—

LUMBER

OF ALL KINDS,

Shingles, Lime, Lath, MOULDINGS &c.

Large Stock and Prices Low. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, JULY 29, 1887.

NO. 27.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. McLANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind. John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a speciality. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—The packing-house of L. F. Adams & Co., Indianapolis, furnishes a remarkable instance of the effect of the recent hot weather. Early in the month the firm received from Morland & Ross, of Russellville, a consignment of eggs, packed in boxes in the customary way. The eggs were stored away, and there was no occasion to open the boxes until recently. Upon removing the covering freshly-hatched chicks were found in some of the half broken shells, and within an hour fifteen pecked their way into the world. The same discovery was made upon opening other cases. The weather had actually been so hot as to have the effect upon the eggs of an incubator. The brood was placed in charge of a hen that showed a disposition to be a mother to the orphans.

—In reply to the State Board of Dentistry the Attorney General has given an opinion that a dentist who has practiced only two days of each month in one county of this State is not entitled to registration under the act of 1887. The act requires a five year's continuous practice in the State, but, although the dentist has visited the county as mentioned for that length of time, his practice has not been continuous in the meaning of the law. The Attorney General, in answer to Superintendent Fletcher, of the Indiana Hospital, is of the opinion that the Board of Trustees must purchase the clothing for the inmates. It is not his duty to do so. The Attorney General also holds that an employee at the hospital has no right to keep a cigar stand in the institution.

—Willis Bruce, who lives two and one-half miles south of Monrovia, has concluded that he has found gold on his farm. While digging a well he penetrated a stratum of sand and shining ore, at a depth of ten feet. The stratum was two feet in thickness, and the grains of sand are very thickly mingled with shining particles which glisten like gold. Two Californians, who were in the gold mines while in that State, have pronounced it gold. The mixture is much heavier than sand, and clings together more tenaciously. Some of the particles are as large as grains of wheat.

—There are 653 convicts in the prison north. There have been 151 convicts received there thus far during the year 1887. The heated term has not been so severe on the convicts as the people would naturally suppose, for if they will but stop and consider that the cell houses are constructed entirely of stone, and that the buildings are high and excellently ventilated, it will be seen that the place has been really quite cool. In the shops also the best of ventilation is afforded.

—While Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bratton were at the Water-works Park, Muncie, at which place there is a natural gas well, Mr. Bratton lighted a match, which instantly ignited the gas, causing a terrific explosion. They were both badly burned, Mrs. Bratton having her arms burned into a crisp, while her husband, in extinguishing the flames enveloping his wife, had his hands burned so badly as to cause the flesh to nearly drop off.

—Capt. David S. Holloway was found dead in a hay field adjoining his residence near Rushville. When found he was underneath a reaper he had been driving, and had evidently fallen off backwards and had pulled the horses, with the machine, back upon him. The deceased was Captain in Company D, Nineteenth Indiana Regiment, and was three years in active service.

—While a number of persons were returning from a funeral, near Fairbanks, Sullivan County, during a violent rain and wind storm, a large oak tree was blown across the road, crashing down on a buggy containing two brothers named Williams and a man named Welch. One of the Williams boys and Welch were killed outright, and the other brother will die.

—A report from Roann, Wabash County, states that the town was attacked by a cloud of insects, resembling millers, so dense that lights had to be lighted. The pests covered everything. Business was suspended for a time. Bonfires were built, which attracted the insects, and their bodies were soon piled up in great heaps around each fire.

—In the month of June last year there was shipped out of Richmond, over the Pennsylvania lines, 3,457,546 pounds of agricultural implements, on which the freight was $4,180.94. This year 4,299,516 pounds have been shipped, on which the freight was $5,508.88.

—While loading a load of hay Benjamin Ramsey, a young married man who lives five miles southeast of Morristown, was accidentally shot by a hunter. The ball entered his head near the corner of his eye, passing through. He is still living, but it is thought he will die.

—On Sept. 18, 20, and 21, the annual reunion of the Ninth District veterans will be held at Crawfordsville. The necessary committees have been appointed and will do all that can be done to make the reunion a success. A sham battle will take place on the 20th.

—The following are the officers of the new town of Englewood, a suburb of Crawfordsville: D. S. Enoch, W. T. Harlan, and L. C. Ambrose, Trustees; T. J. Lehr, Treasurer; E. W. Safford, Clerk.

—Thomas Ellis, who lives near Whitlock, Montgomery County, had both legs almost severed from his body, by being thrown from the seat of a reaper, by a limb of a tree, in front of the knives.

—The fish in the river at Pekin are dying by the wagon-load, and some means will have to be adopted to remove the dead fish from the shores. Low and poisonous water is said to be the cause.

—In the city of New Albany an engineer is not allowed to blow the whistle on his engine except when life is endangered, and the city ordinance on the matter is carried out to the letter.

—While Ezra Lonks, of Wakarusa, Elkhart County, was working around his horses, he was kicked in the side so severely by one of the animals that his death is expected.

—A few days ago John Borgstede, who lives a short distance south of Waymansville, was gored by a cow. Internal hemorrhage set in, which caused his death.

—During the absence of the owner the large farmhouse of Thomas Shughrue, several miles east of Wabash, was burned. None of the contents were saved.

—A brick-yard employee named John Wood was crushed under a bank of clay at South Bend. Life was extinct when the body was recovered.

—Albert Smith, a highly esteemed young man, aged 19 years, was drowned in Rattlesnake Creek, three miles west of Spencer, while bathing.

—Mr. Nicholas O. Williams, an old-time Madison merchant, has just died at Washington, D. C., aged 71.

—Mrs. Nancy Swope killed Sarah Dawson, colored, with a butcher-knife in a quarrel in the Cartwright Hotel, Summitville.

—Ben Smith was stabbed by Tom Congleton at Ashboro in a quarrel about a girl.

—William Walls, a traveler for a Cincinnati firm, cut his throat at Bainbridge.

—How OFTEN you see a country tavern with the sign hanging outside on the inn side.

—SIGN of good breeding—Getting the prize at a dog show.

—WORKING for bare life—Making clothes for a new baby.

A SPANISH DINNER.

The Spanish are a frugal and modest race. Two or three dishes and dessert—that is their dinner. There is no long bill of fare as among the French. The restaurant was a quiet room on the ground floor of a modest-looking house. There were one or two families and several gentlemen dining. The women wore handkerchiefs on their heads and shawls over their shoulders. People dropped in, had a soup and a dish of meat, an orange, some nuts, and went away satisfied. Our bill of fare was more extravagant, but it created a sensation. The landlord and all the waiters came in turns to look at the extraordinary Englishmen who had such gigantic appetites. Here is the exact menu: We began with olives and pickled pimientos and guindillas and chilis. These were the horra de d'oures. Then cigarettes. Then we had an ordinary thin soup, followed by cigarettes; and then came the great national dish, called cocido (pronounced cothido because of the Spanish lisp given to the c before certain vowels) you have a good deal for your dinner. It is a savory stew of chicken, potatoes, sauce, bacon, and white beans, all boiled up with pieces of beef. In most Spanish families this is the everyday dish. Of course the poorer classes have to leave out some of the ingredients, except on festive occasions. In Andalusia the peasants will sit around a huge panful of their version of this article. It is made according to their means, and often the vegetables are plentiful, but the pieces of meat few and far between, and each man ladles it out by spoonfuls into his mouth. Plates are dispensed with. The foreigner who is suddenly confronted with a huge dish of cocido and politely requested to help himself is in some difficulty. He takes a spoonful at hazard. The waiter still stands at his elbow. "The senior has only taken beans." Again you make a dash with the spoon and secure something else. The waiter stares, but does not move away. "The senior has only taken sausage." The senior, confused, requests the waiter to assist him; and then the process, though slow, is interesting. A spoonful of the beans on the plate; then, selected with the greatest care, a piece of chicken; then a patient search for a slice of sausage buried under a mound of cabbage; then the cabbage itself; then a minute devoted to a voyage of discovery in search of the nicest piece of beef; then an exploration in search of a succulent morsel of bacon; then a spoonful of the potatoes; and then over all an extra spoonful of the beautiful gravy. I timed my waiter, and he took six minutes and a half to help me to cocido. When the dish passes down the table d'hotel it takes about an hour to go round. It is for this reason that the Spaniards help themselves altogether at the same time from the common dish.—Letter from Spain.

A SOURCE of serious errors in analysis has been pointed out by a French chemist, who finds that filter-papers are often charged with chemicals that may be washed into the solutions filtered.

SILENCE is golden, but a woman is perfectly willing to take somebody else's word for it.—Danville Breeze.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS,

PUBLISHERS.

SOME OTHER TIME.

BY FREDERICK LANGBRIDGE.

If ever it should come about
That you and Tom seem falling out;
You feel your temper's got the slip;
And cutting words are on your lip;
Or if you finger, half excited,
To tell some story highly spiced,
About the doings, wrong and rash,
Of Mr. Blank and Mrs. Dash;
Why, here's a bit of homely rhyme
With counsel sage and true:
"Some other time, some other time—
No other time will do."

If you and Tom have had a tiff—
For Tom is hot and you are stiff—
And when you turn, and doubting stand,
And think "I ought to take his hand,"
Or if poor Jack, your neighbor there,
Has got a heavy load to bear,
And just a friendly word to Jack
Might make it lighter on his back;
Why, here's a bit of homely rhyme
With counsel sage and true:
"Oh, now's the time, the only time—
No other time will do."

If, walking in or out of town,
You meet with Jones, or Smith, or Brown;
And Jones remarks (that friendly chap)
"The crown has got a decent tap,"
But "Mary's gown," you think, "is old,
And Sammy's boots must soon be soled;
Yet all the same, a glass of beer
Is rather nice, and far from dear."
Why, here's a bit of homely rhyme
With counsel sage and true:
"Some other time, some other time—
Some other time will do."

If Green or Gray, who scorns to shirk,
Is out of luck and out of work,
And round his door, with savage growl,
The gaunt old wolf begins to howl;
And though (with eggs at twopence each)
The ends don't greatly overreach
You think, "I'll give a hand to Gray—
I really will—some other day."
Why, here's a bit of homely rhyme
With counsel sage and true:
"Oh, now's the time, the only time—
No other time will do."

One wrot of old, a sage and king,
"A time there is for everything;
For every work beneath the sun,
A season when 'tis wisely done;
For selfish folly, idle play,
The season is—some other day."
For loving aid and service true,
Oh, now's the time to be and do.
One word to close my homely rhyme—
An earnest word and true:
"There's little time, there's little time,
And lots of work to do."

Leisure Hours.

FORTUNE AND MISFORTUNE.

BY JONAS JUTTON.

Honest Farmer Dodson and his son Frank, who had just attained his majority, were in the great city of New York. The purpose of their visit was to purchase some improved harvesting machinery, and some other farming implements, which could not be procured at their village stores. Mr. Dodson was also to meet two gentlemen from Albany who wished to purchase some property which he owned in that city.

"Wall," remarked the old gentleman to his son, "we will take a turn around town to-day and see the sights, and to-morrow we will buy the machinery, and as you know more 'bout sech things than I do you can take 'em home and have 'em all put together ginst my return. I will have to stay here to see them dratted fellows from Albany 'bout that property. They wrote me word to be sure and meet 'em here day after to-morrow."

"And we will attend the theater to-night, won't we, father?" inquired Frank, who had never seen the inside of one of those popular houses of amusement.

He was conversant though with a great many plays for he was a constant reader, and Shakespeare and Byron were his greatest pleasure. In fact, Frank's intelligence and general information were above mediocrity, for his father, who was very illiterate, realized the advantages of education, and being wealthy, he had given his son every advantage which erudite private tutors could bestow.

"I don't know 'bout that, Frank," replied Mr. Dodson. "I have allus been aginst sech things. I don't think any good ever comes er going to 'em. They say none er them show folks air Christians, and ever goes to church or prar-meeting. What would Den-on Smith say if he knowed I had been to the theater? I don't reckon though 'twould hurt to go once jest to see how they do, and as you are so anxious to go I guess we will go. I tell you right now though I don't never want you to say a word 'bout it outside the family."

"All-right, father, I won't," laughingly replied Frank. "I know, though, you will be pleased with the performance. You are only prejudiced by what you have heard."

"Wall, I've heard enough to make me know there air not many show folks that air decent God-sarving Christians."

Knowing that it would be useless to try and convince his father of his error, Frank said nothing further on the subject. Frank had heard of the great spectacular drama of "Black Crook," and as it was being played that week at Niblo's Garden he and his father concluded to spend the evening there. As soon as they had hurriedly eaten supper they hired a hack and were driven to the garden. As they entered they were crowded and pressed so in getting to the ticket office that old man Dodson thought he would be suffocated, and he heartily wished he had not come. Once inside of the vast building, and occupying a cushioned seat he breathed freer; and with a red bandana he industriously wiped away the perspiration which flowed down his honest sun-burned cheeks. He was awed and astonished at his surroundings which, he thought, must equal in grandeur that of any theater in the world. Had Frank been perfectly familiar with the play they were to witness, and knowing his father's antipathy to the drama, he would have witnessed "Damon and Pythias," "Ten Nights in a Bar-room," or some similar play instead of the famous "Black Crook."

When the curtain rose upon the first act the old man who was unprepared for what he was to witness, was amazed and horror-struck; and as the play progressed he would turn every now and then to Frank and exclaimed in a whisper:

"Didn't I tell you 'twas no place for decent folks? Look at all them gals with their dresses 'bove their knives; don't you know no decent Christian people would dress like that? See how brazen that gal in the red and gold dress looks!"

It was unnecessary for the old gentleman to call Frank's attention to that flashily-attired figure, for he had seen but little else since her appearance upon the stage. He had seen a great many pretty women, but she was his ideal of beauty. He occupied a seat near the stage, and several times while he was rapturously feasting his eyes upon her beautiful countenance he caught her glances full upon his handsome face. He felt that he could remain in his seat, forever if he could only be rewarded by an occasional glimpse of the beautiful girl whom his father thought so brazen. The curtain fell upon the final act, and leaving the theater, Frank and his father entered a hack and were driven to their hotel.

"Wall," remarked the old man, as soon as they had gotten comfortably seated in the carriage, "it is fully as bad as I ever heard it was. I ain't got any better opinion of show-folks by a long shot. When we get home don't you ever breathe a word about my seeing the 'Black Crook,' for I would be eternally ruined with the church if 'twas known."

Frank was highly amused, but also a little vexed by his father's phlegmatic views, but he was too busy thinking of the fairy in red and gold to pay him much attention. The day after their visit to the theater the machinery was brought and shipped, and Frank returned home, leaving his father in the city. The day following Frank's departure the gentlemen from Albany arrived, and after Dodson had transacted his business with them entirely to his satisfaction he concluded to return home. Learning from the clerk that the depot was but a mile from the hotel, he concluded that, as nothing could be seen from a hack window, he would walk. He had covered half the distance, and was slowly wending his way down an unfrequented street, when suddenly turning to view an odd cigar sign, he slipped upon a banana peel and fell to the pavement with a cry of pain.

"Oh! sir, are you badly hurt?" feelingly exclaimed a young lady who was on the point of turning into a stairway near where he fell.

"I fear I am, Miss. Oh! I cannot move my leg!" he cried with a groan.

Three or four gentlemen who were passing had stopped, and to these the young lady said:

"Gentlemen, please carry him up stairs, and mother and I will see that he has attention, at least for the present. Come on. I will show you the way; then I will run and get a physician."

Gently picking him up they followed her up the stairs. A lady of thirty-five or forty was standing in a doorway, being attracted to the door by the unusual noise.

"Oh mamma!" exclaimed the young lady upon beholding her, "this gentleman has had a fall on the street near our door, and I fear he is badly injured. Arrange him comfortably, while I hurry after Dr. Brown."

As the Doctor's office was only around the corner, she soon returned with that important personage. After a careful examination of the suffering man the physician said:

"My man, you have had a pretty severe fall. Your left leg is broken just above the ankle, and it will be sometime before you can use it again."

Dodson did not hear the decision, for he had fainted from excruciating pain. After restoring him to consciousness the Doctor speedily set and splinted the broken limb and took his departure, with the admonition, that if the patient did not get along all right to let him know.

"My dear, kind ladies," said Dodson, addressing the two women who were standing beside his bed, "how can I ever repay you for your kindness to an old countryman? If I am not able to be carried home, I suppose I will have to go to the hospital. As I said before, I am a countryman, and not use to city ways, and I have always had a dread of the hospital; but it seems like I am to get there after all."

"Indeed, you need not go to the hospital unless you desire to," said the elder lady. "Until you are able to return home you are welcome to the poor accommodations which our house affords."

"Thank you, thank you," replied Dodson. "I want to pay you for your kindness and trouble. I am able and willing to pay you whatever you mind to charge me."

"We could not think of receiving pay for only doing a Christian's duty," replied the young lady, softly.

"Thank the Lord I am in a Christian's house!" said Dodson, reverently; "but I tell you, my kind friends, if you will not let me pay for my board I will have to leave here if I have to crawl to the steps and roll down."

"Oh, well, you can pay your board if you wish," said the elder lady; "but, remember it is not required of you."

"All right, I will stay then, but I expect I had better send for my old woman, for she will be powerful oneasy if I am not home by to-morrow. Miss—, I declare I have never larnt your names, nor have you larnt mine. My name is Eben Dodson."

"My name is Fanny DuPont, and this is my mother," said the young lady, sweetly.

"I was going to say, Miss Fanny, that I would be ever so much obleged to you if you would take a message to the telegraph office for me. And I would like for you to get a carriage and meet my wife at the depot."

"Certainly, Mr. Dodson; it will afford me pleasure to accommodate you."

So the message was written and carried to the office; and just before train time Fanny secured a hack and went to the depot after Mrs. Dodson, whom she recognized without any difficulty, as Mr. Dodson had accurately described her. The old lady was very much excited, but Fanny relieved her fears by assuring her that there was nothing serious the matter, and that Mr. Dodson would be up and about in a few weeks. The old lady and gentleman were as delighted to see each other as if they had been separated a month instead of only three days. Mrs. DuPont and Fanny did everything in their power to make the old couple comfortable and to feel at home. Fanny contributed greatly to the old man's happiness by her exquisite music on the guitar, and by reading to him occasionally. Mr. Dodson wondered why it was that Fanny never came into his room after supper. About a week after the accident to Dodson, as Fanny was in the act of setting a glass upon the table from which she had handed him some water, he said: "I don't like to be inquisitive, Miss Fanny, but several times I have heard you speak about going to rehearsal, and I would like to know what that is."

"Why, you see, Mr. Dodson, I have lately been playing on the stage, and I have to rehearse, or practice, in the evening what I am to play at night."

"You don't mean to say you play in the theater?" inquired Dodson, his eyes wide open with amazement.

"Certainly," replied Fanny, who, noticing his astonishment, continued: "I am sure you, Mr. Dodson, that necessity is what compelled me to go upon the stage. We never knew what poverty was until about four years ago. Father was very wealthy, and our every wish was gratified; but he lost everything speculating, and when he died we had to depend upon our own exertions for a living. Mamma soon grew too feeble to sew, and as I knew nothing about it I had to do something else. I have what some call a pretty face and form and a good voice, so I had no trouble in securing minor parts on the stage. I do not like the theater, but I could not bear to see mamma suffer; so I was truly glad to obtain that kind of employment, as I knew how to do nothing else. My wages are only eight dollars a week, but I am trying to save enough of that to take mamma to the country for a month or two this summer. Mr. Dodson, I saw you at the Garden the night before such a serious accident happened to you. Don't you remember a girl in a red and gold dress?"

"Well, I'll swan! Was that you, Miss Fanny?"

"Yes, sir, that was me."

"I mean no offence Miss Fanny, but when I seen you on the stage I thought you a worldly-minded, heartless girl; but I find you a true Christian, and one of the noblest young ladies in the world."

"You must not judge all actresses as bad, Mr. Dodson," said Fanny, "for there are hundreds of pure Christian women who earn their living by appearing nightly before the foot-lights."

"I won't never speak against an actress any more if I live a hundred years. And as for you and your mother going to the country, we would like for you to go home with us and stay all summer, or as long as you want to. Wouldn't we, old lady?" he said, addressing his wife who, with Mrs. DuPont, had been sitting near the window, quiet listeners to the above conversation.

"Of course we would, Eben! I will be delighted if Mrs. DuPont and Fanny will go home with us and spend the summer."

And so it was arranged that as soon as Mr. Dodson was able to travel that they would all go to the Dodson homestead; and three weeks later thither they went. With the first glance at her beautiful, childlike face Frank recognized in her the fairy who had so captivated him the night he witnessed the "Black Crook." Ere the summer waned he told her of his love, and how he had loved her from the moment he had first seen her when she flitted like a vision upon the stage at Niblo's Garden. She made him happy by the assurance that his love for her was no greater than her love for him, and that she had thought of him daily since the night he attended the theater. They were married in the early fall, and to-day, with Mrs. DuPont, they occupy a beautiful farm adjoining Mr. Dodson's, which was given them by that kind-hearted old gentleman.

Some Old Folks.

Emanuel Cross, of Stoddard County, Missouri, is nearly 105 years old. He draws pension for services in Indian wars.

Francis Rondo, the Wisconsin pioneer who died recently at Fond du Lac, aged more than 100 years, left 454 descendants in three generations.

The oldest woman in Indiana is Mrs. Magdalena Boggs, of Milton. She was born near Lancaster, Pa., December 22, 1783, and is therefore nearly 104 years old. Her health is good.

The famous old Mr. Parr, of London, died at 155 from a surfeit of eating. Coming down to the present there are many instances of passing the century limit. Chevreul, the famous French chemist, celebrated the 100th anniversary of his birth a short time ago.

When are we old? Prof. Faraday holds that the duration of life in man and animal is five times the period of growth; man's growth requires twenty years; he should, therefore, under ordinary circumstances, live to be 100; infancy extending to the 20th year; youth to the 50th, when the tissues become firm; virility to 75, and old age from 75 to 100.

Walter Murray Gibson, late Premier of the Hawaiian Kingdom, is a man over 70 years of age, but hale and vigorous. Miss Howard St. Clair, a handsome California book agent, claims that the Premier has failed to keep a promise of marriage, and that the sum of $100,000 will just about quiet the throbbings of her more or less broken heart. An effort at a compromise is being made.

Mrs. Ellen Rudden, the oldest woman in Newark, died recently at her home, 39 Stone street. She was 106 years old. She came to Newark over fifty years ago. Mrs. Rudden had eleven children, and three sons had one daughter are yet alive. The youngest is over 45 years old. She was always a hard-working woman. She walked to church until about three years ago.

Dr. Farr favors 100 years for the tenure of life, but makes these divisions: Boyhood, 10 to 15; youth, 15 to 25; manhood, 25 to 35; maturity, 35 to 45; ripeness, 45 to 55; and old age from 55 upward. Prof. J. R. Buchanan places the attainable limits of longevity at 140, and he cites the fourteen people of that age found in Italy by a census under one of the later Roman emperors.

Nine hundred and ninety persons in a thousand would say that a baby in the cradle would be likely to live longer than a man of 65, but statistics prove indisputably that 500 in every 1,000 infants die before the age of 5 years is recorded, while out of 1,000 healthy men aged 65 more than 500 of them will be alive in five, age, in ten years, or even a longer time. So it will be seen that a man of 65 may be considered younger than an infant as far as his chances of future life are concerned.

Mme. Candelaria, although 99 years old, is not only in full possession, but also the enjoyment, of all her faculties. She moves about her little house in Laredo street, San Antonio, as bright and as busy as a bee. She is held very dear by her townspeople on account of her romantic and heroic bearing during the siege of the Alamo in 1837 by the Mexicans, under Santa Anna. She nursed the wounded, and saw one and all of the noble defenders of the Alamo die. Col. Bowie died in her arms.

The Raising of Polecats.

A novel business is that which some men have gone into up in Crawford County, Pa.—the raising of polecats. They have started two ranches for the purpose, one at Little's Corners and another at Miller's Corners. The object is to secure the fur of the cats. It is not generally known that this fur forms the trimmings of costly cloaks for women. It is obtained now from the animal caught in their wild state, but a finer and better can be obtained by shutting the animals up and improving them by care. They are extremely prolific, and as the pelts are worth $1 apiece as they come from the animals, it is believed that the business can be made to pay well.—Pittsburgh Times.

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

LY BEN: PERLEY POORE.

Soon after the election of James K. Polk as President, over which the Whigs felt decidedly disgruntled, Mr. Clingman, of North Carolina, then a leading Whig, made a speech on the situation, in the House of Representatives. He gave, in the course of his remarks, a history of the recent political campaign, and accused the Democratic party of having resorted to the grossest frauds, especially in the States of New York, Pennsylvania, Louisiana and Georgia, and said very hard things, but in a playful manner, of his political opponents. The next day Mr. Yancey addressed the House on the Texas question, and took occasion in the commencement of his remarks, to depreciate the manner in which Mr. Clingman had spoken; and said that "in that portion of the country which he had the honor to represent, Mr. Clingman was everywhere viewed as the betrayer of his country. He was looked on by every one as a renegade, recreant to the principles and the interest of that portion of the Union. With this estimate of him beforehand even he (Mr. Yancey) was astonished when that gentleman got up to taunt his brothers of the South because their strenuous efforts and earnest and continued exertions had not been able to prevent the repeal of that rule of the House which prohibited the presentation of abolition petitions. The motives which he attributed to their conduct on that subject were such as could have been found only in the heart of him who, after betraying those who had trusted him and going over to the ranks of the enemy, turned and floated the colors of that enemy in the face of his own friends. Mr. Yancey knew that such had been the estimate entertained by nineteen-twentieths of the men of the South respecting this gentleman; and he must confess his surprise when he rose in this House, and bragged of what he termed the dishonesty and rascality of the State he had the honor to represent.

Mr. Clingman rose, and wished to explain, but Mr. Yancey said, "No sir, I want no explanations. Explanations elsewhere." And he proceeded with his remarks.

This was on Tuesday, and on the evening of that day, or on the morning ensuing, Mr. Clingman, through a friend, sent a note to Mr. Yancey asking him whether he meant his remarks as personal, or whether they were merely of a political character. Mr. Yancey replied by cutting from the Globe the report of his speech, and sending it to Mr. Clingman. Mr. Clingman deeming this an insult, invited Mr. Yancey out of the city to talk about the matter. Mr. Yancey did not hesitate, and left Washington in the cars on Wednesday evening, as it were, for Baltimore. Mr. Clingman took his departure the next morning. Mr. Hager, a son of the Senator, accompanied Mr. Yancey, and Mr. Clingman engaged the services of Dr. Carr, of Baltimore, late Consul to Tangier, who had the reputation of having killed three or four men in duels. The meeting took place near Bladensburg, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. On the first fire, Mr. Yancey's ball struck near Mr. Clingman's foot, and Mr. Clingman's ball passed near Mr. Yancey's head. The seconds then interfered, explanations were made, and the combatants cordially shook hands.

"Long John" Wentworth, who was six feet seven, and Stephen A. Douglas, the "Little Giant," who was five feet four, were members of the House of Representatives at the same time. One day when they stood conversing in the area before the Speaker's chair, Wentworth bending over and Douglas on tiptoe, John Quincy Adams said, "Illinois there presents us with the long and the short of its position on the bill before the House."

John Randolph was, in his day, the lion of the Capitol, and the following story is told of a new member from Kentucky who wished to be presented to him. A friend, Gen. Raymond, promised to present him, saying though, "you must be prepared for an odd reception, for if Randolph is in a bad humor, he will do anything, say anything; if he is in a good humor, you will see a most finished gentleman." They called. Mr. Randolph was stretched out on a sofa. "He seemed," said the member, "a skeleton, endowed with those flashing eyes which ghost stories give to the reanimated body when sent upon some earthly mission."

The Congressman was presented by his friend, the General, as a member of Congress from Kentucky. "Ah, from Kentucky, sir," exclaimed Randolph, in his shrill voice, as he rose to receive him; "from Kentucky, sir; well, sir, I consider your State the Botany Bay of Virginia." The Kentuckian thought that the next remark would be a quotation from Barrington's Botany Bay epilogue, applied by Randolph to the Virginia settlers of Kentucky:

True patriots we, for be it understood,
We left our country for our country's good.
But Randolph, after a pause, continued: "I do not make this remark, sir, in application to the morals or mode of settlement of Kentucky. No, sir, I mean to say that it is my opinion, sir, that the time approaches when Botany Bay will in all respects surpass England, and I fear it will soon be so with regard to your State and mine."

Daniel Webster was always sore when it was charged that he had opposed the war of 1812. Finally, on the 22d of March, 1838, he made a speech in which he defined his position, and showed what efforts had been made to create prejudices against him. "Sir," said he, "The journals of the House have all been pored over, and the reports ransacked, and scraps of paragraphs and half-sentences have been collected, put together in the falsest manner, and then made to flare out as if there had been some discovery. But all this failed. The next report was to supposed correspondence. My letters were sought for, to learn if, in the confidence of private friendship, I had never said anything which an enemy could make use of. With this view the vicinity of my former residence has been searched as with a lighted candle. New Hampshire has been explored from the mouth of the Merrimack to the White Hills. In one instance a gentleman had left the State, gone 500 miles off and died. His papers were examined, a letter was found, and I have understood it was brought to Washington; a conclave was held to consider it, and the result was, that if there was nothing else against Mr. Webster, the matter had better be left alone. Sir, I hope to make everybody of that opinion who brings against me a charge of want of patriotism. Errors of opinion can be found, doubtless, on many subjects; but as such conduct flows from the feelings which animate the heart, I know that no act of my life has had its origin in the want of ardent love of country."

Modern Jerusalem.

The alleys, for you cannot call them streets, especially in the Jewish quarter, are filthy, dirty, paved with mud and slime. Dogs are met on every hand, poor, miserable curs, ever ready to seize on anything in the shape of food, from a cast-off shoe to a stray bone. In the shops that line the narrow streets their keepers sit cross-legged with an assortment of souvenirs for travelers: pearls from the Red Sea, cut and polished at Bethlehem, shells from Acre, resurrection plant from Jericho, inlaid sandals, curved olive wood trinkets, souls of onyx, carnelian, jasper, or agate, with the Church of the Resurrection, the Mosque of Omar, the five crosses of the Franciscans the olive branch, star of Bethlehem, cut or painted in Hebrew, with Jerusalem "Mizpah" upon them, beautiful silver filigree from Damascus, olive or castile soap flavored with "spice of Arabi," paraffine candles, painted and ornamented in many colors, to be used in collecting and maintaining some of the "holy Greek fire" that will spring off the "holy sepulchre" the day before Easter. Last week the Mohammedans celebrated the feast of the ascension of the prophet, and annually many sons of Islam come here; many are still here to "look on with silent contempt the goings-on of the Christians." It is estimated that there are 75,000 strangers in the city—some for pleasure, but the greater number Christian pilgrims to participate in the Easter festival.—Rev. Ira Harris.

Worth a Dozen of Her.

"Go to the ant, thou sluggard," exclaimed King Solomon, wisely conjecturing that the sluggard was about to strike him for a grub stake. "I have been there," calmly replied the sluggard, "and have considered her ways and they are n. g. I can give you a pointer on my relatives; go to my uncle; he's worth a ten-acre lot of her." And pulling out the chain from which his gold watch used to depend, he remarked that he would just step around into the spice garden and see what time it was by the sun dial.—Burdette.

HOW A HOG WON A RACE.

It Beats a Fast Horse and Wins Its Shrawd Owner a Tidy Sum.

Several years ago some wealthy Englishmen who were buying horses and cattle in Holland provoked an old Dutch farmer by depreciating the stock he was showing them and praising their own at home in England.

The old farmer, says the Humane Journal, bore it all patiently until the Englishmen boastfully mentioned the great endurance and speed of the English horses. He then said, although he did not raise horses for racing purposes, that he had an old sow that he knew was a good racer; and was willing to wager £100 that she would outrun anything the Englishmen could produce.

Seeing that the Dutchman was in earnest, they asked to be shown the wonderful hog, and although they found the animal to be a long, lean, ravenous-looking creature, capable of accomplishing all that the Dutchman claimed, the challenge was so novel and ridiculous that the gentlemen accepted it, more for the sport than for the purpose of winning the money.

The terms agreed upon were that the Dutchman should be allowed two weeks' time to train the hog, and the Englishmen should produce a horse to contend with it in a three-mile race over the public road.

"People who heard of the singular match were wondering how the old Dutchman could train his hog to run a race with a horse, but he managed it in this way: About three miles from his home he had another small piece of land, and all of his animals were accustomed to go there for food. So the old sow was kept penned up at home without food; but regularly every morning, except the two last mornings before the race, she was driven out to the farm for her breakfast and then back again home. The first two mornings she was rather contrary about going away hungry, but after that she would start off on a keen run, followed by one of the farmer's sons on horseback, who, by the way, could not keep within gunshot of the hungry hog.

When the eventful morning came the scene around the old Hollander's home presented a lively appearance, for not only many of the people came from the country around, but the Englishmen came with a noted race-horse, and also brought many of their friends to witness the sport and learn how the Dutchman could get a hog to run a race with a horse.

When all was ready the hungry old sow was let loose and allowed a few rods start of the horse and rider. At first it looked as though the horse would pass the hog, but the half-starved creature, hearing the clatter of the horse's feet upon the road, seemed to think she was going to be headed off and turned back from her breakfast, and it only urged her on to a greater speed, and she out-distanced the horse by a number of rods in the three-mile race. The horse and rider came up puffing and panting followed by an excited crowd, while the poor famished hog was enjoying its meal, unmindful of the excitement and admiration it had caused among the more intelligent beings.

A Large City.

If any one were to walk one way through all the streets of London, he would be obliged to go a distance of two thousand six hundred miles, or as far as it is across the American continent from New York to San Francisco. This will give an idea of what would have to be done in order to see even the greater part of London.

In our approach to this city, as well as in our rambles through its streets, we shall not be struck so much by its splendid and imposing appearance as by its immensity. Go where we may, there seems to be no end to the town. It is fourteen miles one way, and eight miles the other, and contains a population of nearly four million people, which is greater, indeed, than that of Switzerland or the kingdom of Denmark and Greece combined. We are told on good authority that there are more Scotchmen in London than in Edinburgh, more Irishmen than in Dublin, and more Jews than in Palestine, with foreigners from all parts of the world, including a great number of Americans. Yet there are so many Englishmen in London, that one is not likely to notice the presence of these people of other nations.

This vast body of citizens, some so rich that they never can count their money, and some so poor that they never have any to count, eat every year four hundred thousand oxen, one and a half million sheep, eight million chickens and game birds, not to speak of calves, hogs, and different kinds of fish. They consume five hundred million oysters, which, although it seems like a large number, would only give, if equally divided among all the people, one oyster every third day to each person. There are three hundred thousand servants in London, enough people to make a large city; but as this gives only one servant to each dozen citizens, it is quite evident that a great many of the people must wait on themselves. Things are very unequally divided in London; and I have no doubt that instead of there being one servant to twelve persons, some of the rich lords and ladies have twelve servants apiece.—Frank R. Stockton.

Diamond Mines.

How did the South African diamonds ever get there? How much deeper are we going down? Are diamonds going to be found in as large quantities as at present?

There are various theories as to how these mines have been formed, but all agree in attributing them to volcanic action. They are funnel-shaped, the sides of the funnel being composed of a dense igneous rock, known in miners' parlance as "reos." It is of a soapy nature, easily acted upon by the atmosphere, consequently most dangerous, as large pieces, in some instances weighing hundreds of tons, yet detached. There are no means of shoring it up, and without warning these enormous slices will slide off into the working portion of the mine, burying the claims and sometimes killing the employees. The whole of this funnel is filled with this "blue" ground, the reef sloping at various angles, but on an average of one in fifteen. The theory is, that in time the sides of the reef will meet at some great depth, supposed by some to be 1,000 feet, by others more; and that then we shall arrive at the aperture forming the bottom of the funnel. Whether that hole will again expand into a further cavity, is, of course, matter of speculation. It should be remembered that the diamonds were not formed where they are now found.

The hot liquid containing the diamonds was forced by some great cataclysm of nature through the solid earth, the bulging in of the sides of the mines being very soft and shady, showing where the rock was not sufficiently hard to resist the enormous pressure. Now it has been observed that in Kimberley there must have been ten distinct upheavals; in Dutoitspan, twenty-five; in Bultfontein, three or five; and in De Beers, three; and this has been proved by the varying nature of the ground. If one upheaval only had taken place the center of the funnel would have contained only one particular kind of soil. As the miners go deeper a great alternation is noticed in the character of the soil. They have actually found pieces of the top reef at the depth of 400 feet. This shows that in the succeeding upheavals vacuums were formed, and the whole funnel became in a state of tumult, the upper layers of oxidized earth returning to their ancient depths to give place to the other carbonaceous matter which, by successive exposure to the atmosphere, became oxidized and assumed the yellow color seen so frequently in the heaps and embankments of rejected debris.—New York Mail.

A Much-Debated Question.

An old legend asserts that a scorpion, when placed within a ring of red-hot embers, will, after futile efforts to pass the fiery circle, deliberately commit suicide by stinging itself in the head. Eminent scientific men have often disagreed concerning the truthfulness of the assertion, and many chapters have been written on it. The subject has lately been thoroughly investigated by Prof. A. G. Bourne, of Madras, who finds that the greatest effect of scorpion poison upon a scorpion is a slight sluggishness, and that death within a firing must be due to heat. Sir Joseph Fayrer had already shown that the poison of the deadly cobra will not affect a cobra.

WHEN for a short time one is deprived of pleasure, one no longer feels the longing thereafter; and even if she does at length knock at our door, we open it with fear and trembling, dreading that it may be sorrow in disguise.

MORR & WILLIAMS, PUBLISHERS.
SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
One Year, in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months ..... 50
Three Months ..... 25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe as second-class matter.

FRIDAY JULY 29, 1887.

GARR'S SCHOOL HOUSE.

Editor of News: We've long been wanting to write some items for your interesting paper, but until recently nothing has occurred worthy of mention. But last Thursday something happened which we thought some of your readers would like to know, and we thought we would follow your advice; that if we knew any thing that you did not know, and would like to know so you could tell others that did not know, we should let you know so you could let it be generally known. This neighborhood was thrown into the wildest state of excitement by the advent of a new boy baby at Will Koch's. Grandmothers looked happy, neighbors came and went all day, and every thing went nicely, but we expect the out-come of it all will be a duel. For grandpa Timmerman is sure the baby has the angelical cast of features of his family, and grandpa Koch is equally sure it looks like him. We don't see how it can be settled unless they call the youngster Joseph Henry. But there is another difficulty, aunt Delta wants to name it some scripture name, like Ignatious Ephraim Abraham, and call it Abner. But aunt Nannie wants to call it something historical like Hippomenes Bellerophon, and she don't believe in nicknames. Will don't seem to care, it's papa's boy any way and he gave vent to his excitement by buying his boy a new set of ditching tools, and drawing all the baking powder and glass dishes Henry Baker had in his store.

ONE WHO KNOWS.

FOUR CORRESPONDENTS' CONCORD.

John Guysinger visited in Auburn last Sunday with his sick mother.
Mrs. Pervines and daughter Ollie, of Spencerville, attended church at Concord last Sunday.
Grandpa Koch is very much elated over the advent of a grandson in the family of his son, Will.
Miss Lily Jones, of near Farmer's Center, will visit for a few weeks with her sister Mrs. Fetters.
Green Brown and wife visited last Sunday with their son and family of Jackson township. His wife is very sick.
The Auburn mill men are putting in a side track at the corners, and are preparing to build a saw mill near by.
Mrs. G. Morr has gone to Garrett to attend upon her daughter, Mrs. Olinger who is very sick with typhoid fever.
Jim Wyatt's mule ran away last Saturday breaking the thill and otherwise damaging his buggy. Fortunately no one was hurt.
George Wade Sr. met with quite a serious accident a short time ago. He was on a load of hay, when the horses started very suddenly jerking him off, breaking two of his ribs and otherwise injuring him. He is recovering very slowly.

Wm. Hefty steps around as though he was monarch of all he surveys, and none his right would dare dispute, and all because a little boy has come to his house to stay.

Grandma Wyatt has sufficiently recovered as to be able to sit up a part of the time. It is hoped her recovery may be permanent and she may be spared to her family for years to come.

While visiting in the family of F. Buchanan last week, Mrs. Rigby fell and sprained her ankle quite severely. She has sufficiently recovered however, as to be able to return with her husband to Auburn, where they will remain a few days and they will go farther west to remain until late in the fall.

SPENCERVILLE.

Mrs. Luther Jones is on the sick list.
George Smith spent Sunday at home.
Will Baltz is the proud father of another girl.
Mrs. Baltz and Mrs. Bishop visited at Leo last Friday.
George Baltz moved his family to Auburn last Tuesday.
Henry Carnes and wife of Brakeslee, are visiting in town.
Mrs. Beery has been quite sick during the past few days.
W. C. Tindall and wife were at Fort Wayne last Wednesday.
The heavy weight bricklayer on the church job quit work this week.
Mark Barney and wife have been visiting under the parental roof this week.
Miss Mary Wilson, of Hicksville, was the guest of Minnie Province last Sunday.
Misses Minnie Zimmerman and Hattie Shearer, of Auburn, spent Sunday at this place.
One of the workmen on the new church was seriously injured by falling, one day last week.
Miss Nellie Steward entertained a number of her little friends at a birthday party last Wednesday.
The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will be entertained by Mrs. James Hart, Saturday afternoon, Aug. 6th, 1887. A cordial invitation is extended to all.
The ladies of the M. E. church will give a social at the residence of Mrs. Henry Murray, Saturday evening July 30th. Some of the attractions during the evening will be a grab-bag, soap bubble contest, &c. Lunch will be served.

PIGEON'S RETREAT.

Work hands are scarce as icicles in August.
Mrs. Minnie Shilling was quite sick last week.
Several of our farmers have thrashed their wheat.
Martin Kline "bushed" in the harvest field on Tuesday.
Oh Barons! We thought you had died of grief for your faithless better-half.
James Ryan, of St. Joe, will board at E. L. Dilley's while working on the Dilley ditch.
Al Harnish "took in" the festival at Spencerville and the way he Beamed on the pretty girls was enough to cast a professional dude in the shade.
A couple of belles from the Retreat received some rather left-handed compliments at the Hursttown festival. O Hark(ey) girls to the lesson taught.
Bab, still maintains that the Rose is the fairest flower that blows. (it's nose) but Miss Jones would no doubt rather possess £150 in shillings than a Shilling in 150 lbs.

LEIGHTY HAS A FEW OF THE
4 1/2
CENT PRINTS LEFT

Tell every body you see and those you don't see send word to, that they expect to have a nice time at the boys festival at Boot's grove, on Saturday evening.

Miss Ida Krist has had the good fortune to have the measles twice. She had them about two years ago, and week before last she took them again. Expect it will be all the style before long to have the measles once a year.

Girls, if you want to make a sensation and don't know exactly how to go about it, go some place to a festival for instance, and carry a cane. Carry it under your arm, not in your hand, for you know it isn't to walk with, only to put on style. You have no idea how much fun you'll have punching out people's eyes and knocking off their hats. People will notice you, and make remarks about you, but never mind, you have gained your point, viz: made a sensation.

S. E. Smith's, formerly of the Anchor Mill, Wilson, a practical and formerly of Spencerville, would most respectfully call on the village and the surrounding country. We guarantee perfect goods as you want.

Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Smith, D.D., has had, testified, and electric Bitters as a remedy. Every bottle gives relief in six bottles, and is a guarantee of 10 years. I have ever had thousands of people testify to their testimony. It is a guarantee that it cures all diseases of the liver, kidney or blood. Buy a bottle at W. C. R. Smith's.

STAR WIND ENGINE

TAKES THE LEAD.

E. A. WANEMAKER, NEWVILLE, IND.
Has the agency for this county. See him, or write for prices on Wind Mills, Tanks, Pumps, Pipe &c. A special feature of the Star Wind Engine is the Regulator. See it before you buy.

Blacksmith and Repair Shop.

Having secured the services of experienced workmen, I am prepared to do all kinds of smithing and repairing in a class manner. Special attention given to repairing machinery. Give me a call. Prices reasonable.
A. W. Hall, St. Joe.

Positive Assertions! True as Gospel!

No matter what others may say, we give more value for the money than any house in the county.

Sugars 5 & 6 cts.	Granulated 7 cts.	Salts ..... 5 cts.
Cheese ..... 10 cts.	Splendid Tea ..... 25 cts.	Sulphur ..... 5 cts.
Rosin ..... 5 cts.	Alum ..... 5 cts.	All Prints, to close ..... 5 cts.
		Lawns ..... 4 cts.
		Good Gingham ..... 6 cts.

All other goods in proportion. Highest market price paid for Wheat, Oats, and Seeds. Butter 10 cts, Eggs 12 cts.

S. & F. BARNEY, ST. JOE, IND.

Novelty Stationery Package.

Everybody uses more or less stationery, and of course they want a good quality, and they want to buy it as cheap as it can be bought. This can be obtained by buying the Novelty Stationery Package. Sold only by W. C. Patterson, St. Joe. Also a full line of Fancy Note Paper, Pass Books, Scratch Books &c.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Chcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chills, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. PRICE 25 cents per box. For sale by W. C. Patterson.

A Woman's Discovery.

Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady in this county. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Cuts. Thus writes W. C. Patterson & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Get a free trial bottle at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store.

LOCALS.

Wes Hart burned a kiln of brick last week.

John Hamilton of Butler was in town Tuesday.

Some correspondence was received too late this week.

Go to Rome City next Thursday and have a good time.

Bro. Holstington of the Dispatch called on us yesterday.

There will be a picnic at Newville on Saturday, August 6th.

Sweet corn, cucumbers, and other green things are in the market.

Fare for the round trip to Rome City on the 4th of August is only $1.00.

Frank Meek, Mrs. Charley Meek and Miss Aggie Meek, all of Avilla, visited in this place last Monday.

Mrs. Poulard and Mrs. W. G. Gallo-way, of Garrett, visited in town this week the guests of Mrs. Sanders.

Quarterly meeting at Concord next Saturday and Sunday. Quarterly conference on Saturday at 2 P. M.

The Y. P. T. U. will meet at the residence of Miss Prudie Lounsberry on Wednesday evening, Aug. 3rd.

We acknowledge the receipt of a copy of the Sharpsville (Penn.) Times, sent us by our former townsman, James Reed. Thanks.

A package of Gingham, Thread, Buttons, &c., was left at Kinsey's furniture store, about 10 days ago. The owner can have same by calling at the above place.

Dan Baker has bought of Charley Grubb the property where he now resides. This is a pretty sure indication that Daniel will settle down permanently in St. Joe.

If you want a first-class carriage or buggy, buy an Eckhart.

Miss Mattie Irwin went to Kansas last Monday to remain several months.

Dr. Gerry Emanuel had charge of Dr. Sheffer's patients during his absence.

Mr. Eli-Leigh of West Newton Penn., is visiting relatives in this vicinity.

There was six festivals within a radius of seven miles of St. Joe, on last Saturday evening.

Daniel Reason and wife of Auburn, visited with their children in this neighborhood, over last Sunday.

There will be preaching in the Methodist church next Sunday evening, by the pastor, Rev. Langley.

Dr. Sheffer and family were at Kendallville over last Sunday attending annual reunion of the Sheffer family.

The Avilla News got out of humor last week and called us a "phunny-man," just because we intimated that the population of Avilla was only about three hundred. Don't be so touchy.

Any person wishing to purchase a first class buggy at bed rock prices, inside of the next six weeks, can learn something greatly to their advantage by applying to Dick White, St. Joe, Ind.

Most of the county papers had an item last week telling their readers that it was dog-days. We want to keep our readers posted on all such important matters, but really, we forgot to mention it.

The mob at Auburn last week was a disgraceful affair, and it is said that the end is not yet. When people will bite at the bait of a patent medicine man, they ought not to squeal when they get caught.

John Hull has bought of M. T. Bishop the property were Mell now lives. Since John has been in St. Joe, he has attended closely to business and we are glad to see this evidence of his prosperity. John can now sleep under his own roof, and none dare molest or make him afraid, and better still, he will have no rent to pay.

The flies are so bad now, that there is not much comfort in sleeping in church. We noticed last Sunday morning that some of the good old brethren would try to sleep, and just about the time they got their head laid back in a comfortable position, Mr. fly would come waltzing down over their nose, and walk right into their mouth, and of course it was impossible to sleep under such circumstances.

Notwithstanding the fact that there was a festival in nearly every direction from St. Joe, yet the band boys had a liberal patronage on Saturday evening, and furnished a very good program. Twice the Jackson band has been billed to play at this place, but has failed to put in an appearance either time. The St. Joe band played for them at one of their festivals, and courtesy to one another would demand that they return the compliment. The question is, why don't they?

While at Auburn last week we were shown through the large carriage works of Charles Eckhart, located one half mile east of town. This manufactory was established in 1874 and since that time it has had a steady and permanent growth, until to-day it has the reputation of sending out the best and most durable work of any carriage factory in the country. Mr. Eckhart personally superintends the manufacture of all work, and as he uses the best of material and employs none but experienced workmen, people can always rely on getting the best; in fact every piece of work is warranted.

MOUNTED WITH THE HERBARD GEARING

ECKHART CARRIAGE WORKS.

AUBURN DE KALB CO., IND.

MANUFACTURERS

FIRST CLASS CARRIAGES.

CHARLES ECKHART, PROPRIETOR

Call on me when in need of a first class Carriage or Buggy, and I guarantee all work as represented.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencerville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining, Glazing, Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Wendenox, Call and see me, or leave orders at J. C. Joe Hardware.

ST. JOE MARKETS, CORRECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat	68 cts.
Oats	22 cts.
Corn	35 cts.
Butter	10 cts.
Eggs	12 cts.
Tallow	31 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	50 cts.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

Trains Leave St. Joe as follows:
WESTBOUND.
No. 9 Mail and Express 11:05 A. M.
37 Accommodation 1:15 P. M.
3 Chicago Express 10:42 P. M.
25 Local Freight 3:42 P. M.
EASTBOUND.
No. 10 Express and Mail 2:08 P. M.
16 Accommodation 10:25 A. M.
4 Morning Express 4:53 A. M.
34 Local Freight 7:59 A. M.
W. I. McKee, AGENT.

Oats will yield a big crop this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Grubb were in town Monday.

Buy Grain Sacks of Case & Olds and get them marked free of charge.

Case & Olds offer Lawns at 4 and 6 cents, to close them out. Good desirable patterns.

Edgerton claims to have struck a large vein of gas. Do like Auburn, send up a balloon.

It's almost too hot to live, and yet if a person should die they might get where it is hotter.

Rev. Langley was at Kendallville last Sunday, assisting Rev. Hussey in a quarterly meeting.

A nine months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Brooks died at Hicksville last week. Mrs. Brooks was formerly Miss Dot Reasoner of this place.

GRAND ARMY DAY

THURSDAY, AUG. 5.

The patrons of the Grand Army Day letter-days of will not be disappointed. The music for the occasion will be furnished by the Grand Army Band. The Stewart Club is preparing the Assembly Chorus. The direction of Prof. C. C. C. dresses will be by the Women of Ohio, and Hon. R. B. Midgley. Some of the noted and one of the best for such occasions. Mr. Horn, through the platform, has a debate on the floor of representatives in Washington won for him distinction. He is only strong and brilliant, but wily, and he will have a great pet a good deal.

Bunches are getting in the in our big bunch to us.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Colburn Newville, visited friends in town yesterday.

Prof. Colburn wants to hold a Conviction at this place, couple of weeks.

The band boys took in about twenty dollars at their festival Saturday evening.

Charley Sheppard of Hicksville was on our streets one day week. Charley says he is not doing any thing at present.

Miss Blanche Nichols of Spencerville, who is attending the Normal at this place, and boarding at Mrs. Bowman's, took quite sick last day and has been unable to leave since.

Another terrible wreck occurred the B. & O. just west of Alldon Tuesday evening, whereby four lives were lost. From some unknown source the switch had been left causing the east bound fast line to run into a west bound freight standing on the siding, demolishing both engines, and killing Engineer Kramer and his fireman, and a train who was stealing a ride under the baggage car. Engineer Devine of the freight train was badly hurt and has since died. The passengers escaped without injury.

TURKISH FUNERAL RITES.

Death and Burial in the Land of the Crescent.

If a Turk dies or look as if he were dead, no physician, no inspector comes to make sure that death has really taken place; but if it has not the fact will soon be established, thanks to a procedure more efficient than all the gentle and refined means in vogue in the West to make sure that the deceased is not hoaxing his heirs.

Scarcely has the last breath been taken when the corpse is lifted up violently by vigorous arms, says Emilie Julliard in the Cosmopolitan, the clothing snatched off, laid on the flagstones in the mortuary chamber or vestibule and sprinkled with hot water, which is thrown upon it by the imam, provided with a large pail. The sprinkling is repeated two or three times, so that the family runs little danger of seeing the deceased resuscitated.

Thus scalded as a preliminary step, the body is washed and dried. Then it is bepowdered with camphor, and, after being covered with a cloth embroidered with verses from the Koran, it is exposed for several hours in the courtyard. Afterward the imam returns and accompanies the corpse to its last resting place.

The flat, covered bier is usually carried on the shoulders of friends of the deceased, or upon those of hired pall-bearers. Sometimes strangers assume this duty gratuitously, looking upon it as a pious and meritorious act. The cortege is made up only of those that carry the coffin by turns, thus relieving one another without stopping. The coffin is made of cedar, and it is seldom varnished, but it is covered with a rug or shawl, and there is placed at the head a turban or a fez if the deceased is a male.

The procession always moves hastily, not for the purpose of getting rid of the dismal burden, but to hasten the moment when deceased shall enjoy eternal repose; for the Mussulman believes that the soul is restless and unhappy as long as the corpse is unburied. This is why three or four hours only elapse between death and burial.

On arriving at the cemetery the imam so places the bier that the face of the deceased is turned toward Mecca; he then approaches the brink of the grave and utters a very long prayer, the conclusion of which is as follows: "Draw near Mounkir and Nekir, angels of death and ministers of Allah. Great and blessed God, we humbly beseech Thee to make the earth light for Thy servant. May he find grace and mercy with Thee, Amen." A Christian's prayer does not say anything more nor any better.

According to the Koran the deceased is the owner of his grave in perpetuity, and the objectionable system of sepulture in rotation is unknown to the Mussulmans; and in Constantinople, in Eyoub and Scitari, the room occupied by cemeteries is almost as extensive as that covered by dwellings. Within recent years it has been found necessary, in order to open roads that have been much needed, to curtail and even suppress some of the cemeteries, but it required an express order from the Sultan, which made the ulmas utter the wail of ligots.

The cypress is pre-eminently the funeral tree. Each tomb has to have its own. And Turkish cemeteries become gloomy forests in time, which impart to certain Oriental landscapes an aspect singularly still and somber. It is upon the seashore that these funeral forests are found in the greatest abundance; the trees, being nourished by the soil fertilized by human remains, reach a prodigious size and height. The largest and most celebrated of these cemeteries is that of Scitari, upon the Asiatic coast of the Bosphorus; it extends over an area more than six miles square.

The tombstones are in the shape of an oval, wider at the top than the bottom, and surmounted with a turban or a fez, the form of which, varying greatly, indicates the rank of the deceased. A gilt inscription in Turkish characters cut in relief on a blue background gives the name and enumerates the virtues of deceased and implores divine mercy in his behalf. These stones are sometimes perpendicular, sometimes leaning very much. In the latter case a hole is dug at the base of the tomb, intended to catch rain for the little birds that come to quench their thirst.

The dead are not buried very deep, and it is strange that the custom does not cause more sickness than it does. A large proportion of the epidemics of dysentery and typhoid fever that invade the low quarters of Constantinople can be traced to this custom. The proximity of the cadavers to the top of the ground produces during the summer night, particularly in swampy and damp cemeteries, a myriad of phosphorescent lights, which dance and flit around the tombs, and those myriad sparks of fire, while inspiring the poets, also frighten children.

A Heroine of the War.

"She was a beautiful woman, and I have always wondered what mission she was on." The speaker was Mr. Reid, who was a scout in the war under Gen. Early.

"One morning in the valley," he continued, "I was ordered by Lieut. Atwood, who was chief scout, to report to Gen. Early for orders. I rode at once to headquarters, where I found a finely caparisoned steed with a lady's side-saddle on standing in front of the tent door. Gen. Early came out and simply said: 'You will go as escort to a lady; obey her orders.'

"Soon a beautiful woman tripped forth, and, leaping on the charger, set out in a gallop. I followed. We galloped full eleven miles. Not a word was exchanged. That evening, when within a mile or two of the Potomac, I saw a large white farm-house over to the left. Here the first word was spoken. Reining up she motioned me to halt, and said:

"I will dismount and go to that house. Take the horses and conceal them in the woods; feed and curry them, and come to the house for your supper." She went on to the house and I did as ordered. After we had supper she signaled me to leave, and I was soon out and had the horses ready and waiting in the bend of the road. She was promptly on hand, and as before set off on a gallop. We rode all night long, silently, swiftly. As day dawned we left the public roads and took across the country. About 9 a. m., while going across an old field, my fair companion halted beside a broad, deep ditch, and beckoned me to her.

"Place these horses in that ditch and get in yourself, and stay there until I come to you," said she. She dismounted, and I occupied the ditch as directed and saw her disappear through a thick skirt of woods that fringed the edge of the field. I judged we were in the locality of Boonsboro, Md. Tired and worn out, I soon fell asleep. It must have been late dinner-time when I was aroused by what seemed the very ground in a jar and rumble. I sprang from the ditch and crept to the woods, and discovered that a plank road ran just parallel and that a very large force of federals, artillery, wagons, etc., were passing down it. I soon got back to the ditch, dreading discovery by bummers or stragglers, but I was ready to take care of them if not more than one or two had come. But none appeared. There I laid full an hour, when a light step and the rustling of a dress caught my ear, and, looking up, there she stood.

"Quick, bring out the horses," she said. Which I did. Then, mounting her own, she handed me a message sealed up in tissue paper, and said: 'Give that to Gen. Early,' and away she went. That is the last of her I ever heard or knew. Sometimes it crosses me as a dream in fairyland, and I wonder who she was and where she is—but that is all. I took my time getting back and drew a long breath of relief when I struck the Virginia side. When I saluted and handed her message to Gen. Early he read it and said to his orderly: 'Give this man something to eat and have his horse fed.'

Coal Products.

There seems to be no end to the variety of new products from coal. It is but a short time since the discovery of a new saccharine substance was announced, excelling all others in the intensity of its sweetness, and now still another substance, which will be known as "pyrofuxin," which it is claimed may be economically used for tanning leather fuxin to the litre is announced. In its purified form it is a fine, non-triturable substance, without taste or smell, non-poisonous, and in appearance like catechu. Some Russian coals contain 18 per cent. pyrofuxin.

THE sweetest of all pleasures, and one that will never decay, is to cherish the heart that loves you.

BEWARE HOW YOU CALL NAMES.

The Sad Experience of a Man Down in Indiana.

Forty-seven years ago there was much talk of log cabins, hard cider, and coons. Gen. Harrison was running for the Presidency against Van Buren. The Democrats sneered at the Whig leader and his qualifications, and said he would be best employed sitting in a log cabin guzzling hard cider and skinning coons. The nickname for the Whigs was coons, and the chorus of one of the Van Buren songs ran:

"Big, big, big, we'll tear the husky raccoons down."

But the Whigs did not get angry. They took up the log cabin, the hard cider, and the coon, and made them the war cries of a triumphant campaign.

Since then there has been no use of "coon" as a nickname until of late years, when it has been applied contemptuously by some people to American citizens of color, having driven out "moke," which was used for quite a time. How this use of "coon" started is unknown. Whether it was based on the traditional affection of the colored man for that animal or has some other origin is at this moment veiled in darkness. But, whence-soever it comes, those to whom it is applied do not take as kindly to the word as the Whigs in 1840 did. It is indeed a fighting word, and it is well that people should learn the dangers of using it. Only a few days ago an Illinois editor was sued for libel for speaking of colored men as "coons." The case has not yet come to trial, and the Judge has not decided what meaning the word was meant to convey, and consequently whether it was libelous. So there will be no information from that quarter for some time. But without waiting for a decision others have taken the law into their own hands and have pounded those whom they believe to have insulted them.

One striking instance comes from Indiana. The colored porter of a chair-car on one of the railroads was rather curt in his answers to a man who got on the train. A little later the conductor passed through the car. The man said to him, "Why would not your coon answer my civil question?" Thereupon the colored man, who was standing near by, fell upon the questioner. This is what he did to him, according to the methodical statement of the victim, who appears to be of a legal turn of mind:

"Said assault was in manner and form as follows—viz:

"One blow from said assailant's fist on my lip.

"One on my nose.

"One under my right eye, which now shows bad discoloration and swelling.

"Also one or more kicks in the abdomen.

"Also a tirade of insults and abuse unmentionable.

"All this while I was down at full length on a reclining-chair on above train in the County and State aforesaid."

So it will be well for people to take care of their tongues, and not let slip words which may lead them into a scrape like that of the gentleman from Indiana.

The Cigarette.

Dr. Joseph Mulhall says: I am a cigarette smoker myself, and I am a defender of the habit, or, at least, an apologist for it. The charm of the smoking of cigarettes, by which I mean not the puff in and out of the mouth of the smoke, but its inhalation, is the quick and powerful stimulant it gives smoker. The cigar smoker says to the cigarette smoker, "What enjoyment can you get from smoking that tiny roll of paper with its little pinch of tobacco?" Why don't you use a cigar or a pipe?" To which the cigarette smoker can reply, if he wants to argue, "My cigarette is a more powerful stimulant than the cigar," and he can prove it if the other will submit to a test. The stimulation of tobacco is caused by the absorption of the nicotine by the system. The smoke of a cigar or pipe reaches only the mucous membrane of the mouth, because it is not inhaled. The cigarette smoker inhales the smoke of his cigarette, and it touches not only the mouth but also the throat, and the membranes all the way down absorb the stimulant. The cigarette smoker, too, cannot smoke a weak cigarette with enjoyment, for one-half the pleasure of the smoke is caused by the contact of the smoke with the membranes. It must grip the throat, so to speak, to produce the pleasure. As to the evil effects of cigarette smoking there is much exaggeration. The habit can be justly charged with only one injurious effect which is not produced by other kinds of smoking. That is an irritation of the throat, which is noticed by almost all confirmed cigarette smokers in themselves. The idea that the smoke penetrates the lungs is a vulgar and absurd one. It never gets beyond the tidal air, and that means that it never reaches the lungs. Cigarette-smoking causes irregularity of the heart beats, what is known as "tobacco heat," and dimness of the vision, but these effects are produced by the use of tobacco in other forms. Boys, of course, are often permanently injured by it, but for adults it is a superior smoke to a cigar, and no more harmful.

Does the Precocious Child Make the Distinguished Man?

The idea that genius reveals itself early in life does not at once recommend itself to common sense. Observation of Nature as a whole suggests, first of all, perhaps that her choicer and more costly gifts are the result of a long process of preparation. And, however this be, there is certainly more of moral suggestiveness in the thought that intellectual distinction is the reward of a strenuous adolescence and manhood than in the supposition that it can be reached by the stripling at a bound through sheer force of native talent. And it may not improbably have been a lively perception of this ethical significance which fostered in the classic mind so widespread a disbelief in early promises of great intellectual power. We find a typical expression of this sentiment in the saying of Quintilian: "Ilud ingeniorum velut praeconis genus non temere unquam pervenit ad frugem." That is to say, the early blossom of talent is rarely followed by the fruit of great achievement.

It is evident that this saying embodies something like a general theory of the relation between rank and talent, and rate of development. Where superior intellectual ability shows itself at an early date, it is of the sort that reaches its full stature early, and so never attains to the greatest height. On the other hand, genius of the finer order declares itself more slowly.

In order to estimate the soundness of this view, two lines of inquiry would be necessary. We should need to ask, first of all, what proportion of those who had shown marked precocity have afterward redeemed the promise of their youth; and, secondly, what number of those who have unquestionably obtained a place among the great were previously distinguished by precocity.

These two lines of investigation are, however, in a measure distinct. It may turn out that a large proportion of clever children never attain to anything but mediocrity in later life, and yet that the majority of great men have been remarkable as children. Hence, we may confine ourselves in the present essay to the second branch of the above inquiry, the retrogressive search for signs of precocity in the early life of those who have attained distinction, Popular Science Monthly.

A Worthy Example.

A writer in the Indianapolis Journal relates this of the late Hon. Washington C. De Pauw: "Some years ago the New Albany rolling mill shut down and 300 men were thrown out of employment. Mr. De Pauw owned half of the stock of the mill. He proposed to the other stockholders to let them run the mill and he would resign all profits due him if they would start up for the benefit of the unemployed men. They refused, and he then offered to do the same thing and they consented. At the end of the first month, when the statement came in, he looked at it and saw that he had lost $1,000. Handing it back to the book-keeper he said: 'It is $1,000 out of my pocket, but $1,000 in clothing and food for the poor of New Albany.' The mill lost him money for several months, but the latter part of the year it paid well, and at the close the balance-sheet was in his favor."

Liked a Cockade.

Barber—Bay rum?

Granger (whose shave has been supplemented by an application of the powder puff-ball)—No, I'm temp'rance; but, friend, 'f you'd jest's lieve pass that air cockade over my face agin you'd oblige me.—Tid Bits.

PLATO, hearing that some asserted he was a very bad man, said: "I shall take care so to live that nobody will believe them."—Guardian.

A PRETTY GOOD SPEECH.

How John C. Breckinridge Carried the Crowd with Him.

Gen. John C. Breckinridge used to tell a story of ante-bellum politics, which he enjoyed none the less because the joke was on himself. On one occasion during his second canvass for Congress, he had an appointment to speak in a certain county where the sentiment of the voters was pretty equally divided, and partisan prejudice against him very fairly set off the strong personal devotion which he could so generally inspire. He felt, therefore, an unusual interest in the event of this meeting, and determined to exert to the utmost the powers of oratory and persuasion which had so often served him. He was quartered on the previous night at the house of a Mr. C., an enthusiastic personal friend and "leading Democrat" of the county.

When they reached the ground Major Breckinridge did "mix," and to good purpose, if the earnest approbation accorded his remarks about the crops and live stock and the open-mouthed laughter which greeted his jests were any evidence thereof.

It was scarcely necessary to say that John C. Breckinridge, at that period, had no peer in Kentucky upon the stump.

On this occasion he surpassed himself, and seemed resolved to subject every auditor and conquer every prejudice. The crowd soon yielded to the spell of his eloquence, with one exception. A tall, burly, hard-featured, sarcastic-looking "cuss" had posted himself in the front rank of the closely-packed audience, and it became immediately apparent that he was not a "Breckinridge man," but very hostile to the Democratic candidate and orator.

Indeed, before the speaker had well-opened his argument, this individual had interrupted him half a dozen times in an exceedingly offensive manner. The crowd became indignant—Mr. C. arose, and in a voice almost inarticulate with wrath, threatened the noisy ruffian with expulsion and punishment if he did not desist. Major Breckinridge interfered. He deprecated the popular fury, and begged that the man might be allowed to remain, modestly announcing his belief that if he would only listen he would be converted. The crowd became pacified, the defiant disturber of the peace granted that he would be quiet and listen, but added, "You'll have a hell of a time a convertin' me," and the orator proceeded. The speech seemed now addressed particularly to this individual, who still maintained a conspicuous position. No longer noisy and boisterous, he was yet sufficiently demonstrative in the way of look and gesture, and intimated his dissent by derisive glances and half-muttered ejaculations of contempt. Gradually, however, his manner changed, as the voice, whose "mellifluous thunder" used to sway all hearts, poured on him in the full tide of its winning, resistless eloquence. The rigid terrors of his brow relaxed, the smile of scorn faded from his lip, he shifted from one foot to the other, as uneasy as a bear on hot plates, and turned once or twice as if seeking to escape, but the dense crowd held him in his place. Tears at length began to steal down his cheeks, and finally bursting into sobs, he exclaimed, "By hell, Brackinridge, you ken beat 'em all! I'm fur you agin' the worl'." The effect on the audience was electrical. All opposition vanished at once, and in one grand cheer the crowd declared itself unanimously "for Brackinridge."

As the Major and Mr. C. were riding home in the cool of the evening, the former, all aglow still with his triumph, alluded to the incident just described, with pardonable pride. "I must have been making a pretty good speech, C.," he said, "to affect that fellow as I did."

"You think you did it, do you?" said C., dryly, with a very quizzical glance out of the corner of his eye.

An indefinable dismay smote the Major, a dim feeling that some cherished conviction was about to be destroyed, that something on which he had relied was about to be proven delusive. "Why," he stammered, "what do you mean?"

"Well, I'll tell you. While you were 'mixing,' I caught sight of this fellow, who is the biggest bummer unhung, but as smart as an old coon. I knew the people here didn't know much about him, for he don't live in this precinct. Thinks I, I'll put Bill to work right off. I called him to one side, and says I, 'Bill, how do you stand in this race?'

Said he, 'I'm out of it; neither side ain't never showed cause yet.' 'Well,' I said, 'I'll give you $10 if you'll go to work for Breckinridge.' He reflected a moment. 'Jim C.," he said, 'if you'll make it twenty-five I'll act a piece afore that crowd to-day which'll fetch every dad burned son-of-a-gun in it; git 'em all. I'll jes' have 'em a-whoopin' fur Breckinridge.' With that he sketched the program you saw him carry out. Before he got half through I closed the bargain. I felt sure that you would show up well—do the magnanimous and all that, and I felt that we had the work done. Now don't you think I did pretty well, to put that fellow up."

Gen. Breckinridge always declared that for a moment he felt stunned, dazed—and then as it all dawned on him in its full significance, as he realized the dramatic perfection and histrionic success of the plot, he forgot all chagrin at finding that he had been deceived, in admiration of the rascal's ingenuity and cheek.

Destruction of Babylon.

The following is taken from the American Cyclopædia: The last successor of Nebuchadnezzar, Nabonadius, joined the league formed to check the threatening power of Persia. This brought upon him the invasion of Cyrus. Having associated with himself in the Government his son Belshazzar, Nabonadius, leaving him in command of Babylon, advanced to meet Cyrus. Being defeated in the field, he threw himself into Borsippa, while Cyrus advanced to the siege of Babylon. The city was provisioned for a long siege, and the strength of its walls defied direct assault. It was taken only by the stratagem of diverting the river from its course, and marching in through its dry bed. Herodotus relates that Cyrus turned the Euphrates into the great reservoir excavated by Nitocris. This appears incredible, for even assuming the existence of this reservoir, its waters must have been on a level with those of the river, and no cutting could have laid bare the river bed. Xenophon, a much better authority in this matter, says that Cyrus drained the bed by means of two cuttings of his own, from a point above the city to another below it. If we suppose that the river was not the Euphrates itself, but a bayou or side branch, shallower than the river, the whole operation becomes perfectly comprehensible. He had only to dam up the mouth of the bayou above the city, and deepen the channel below by which it re-entered the Euphrates. In an hour after cutting away the bulkhead below, the channel would be dry. This was done in the dead of night. It was a complete surprise. So confident were the besieged in the impregnability of their outer defenses that they neglected to close the water-gates which fronted the river at the foot of each street, and Belshazzar and his court passed the night in revelry. When morning dawned the inner defenses had all fallen into the hands of the besiegers (538). Cyrus, having dismantled Babylon, moved upon Borsippa, still held by Nabonadius, who surrendered and received kind treatment. Cyrus assigned him a residence and estate in Caramania, where the last king of Babylon ended his days in peace. For a time Babylon was a royal residence of the Persian kings. Two attempts were made to revolt, and each time Babylon stood a siege and was further dismantled. It ceased to be a royal city; its brick walls and palaces fell into decay; and when Alexander the Great took possession of it it was comparatively a ruin. He intended to restore the city and make it his Asiatic Capital, but his death prevented the execution of his scheme.

Insect Life.

It is an error to suppose that severe winters are destructive to insect life. According to Mr. McLachlan, an English entomologist, larvae may be frozen until as brittle as a rotten stick, in which condition they can scarcely be said to live, but on the return of warm weather they revive, quite uninjured by their freezing. It is a noteworthy fact that butterflies and bumblebees have been found almost as close to the North Pole as man has ever approached.

WHENEVER I find a great deal of gratitude in a poor man I take it for granted there would be as much generosity if he were a rich man.

THE more you murmur against your cross, the greater its burden will be.

Seeds That Germinate Quickly.

The human system is a fruitful soil, and among seeds that germinate most rapidly in it are those of rheumatism and neuralgia. A slight cold, brought on by sitting in a draught, wet feet or damp clothes, will develop either of these abominable, painful maladies with unpleasant rapidity. The proper preventive of this agonizing vegetation is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine which nullifies a tendency to either of the maladies named, and soothes the aches which they cause. Nor is it less effective as a remedy for rheumatism than as its preventive, a fact as amply attested as any other relating to its curative properties. Mariners, miners, frontiersmen, and others have ever found it a faithful preservative of health in unfavorable regions, and a benign remedy for malarial disorders, and stomach, liver and bowel complaints. It is a fine promoter of appetite and a capital tonic.

An Assessor's Arithmetic.

There is a certain Township Assessor who valued a tract of ten acres for taxation at $1,000. The valuation had not been changed for a score of years. At length one acre was sold to a stranger for $1,000. The following year the assessor valued the single acre at $1,000 and the nine acres which remained in the original holder's possession were valued at $900. The assessor then claimed that the one-acre plot, being then sold for $1,000, he was required to value it at that sum, but that the nine-acre plot having been diminished by one-tenth should be valued at one-tenth less. —Trenton Emporium.

A Total Eclipse

Of all other medicines by Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is approaching. Unrivalled in bilious disorders, impure blood, and consumption, which is serious disease of the lungs.

SO LOW were the funds in the Public Treasury of the United States at the close of 1789 that the Attorney General and several Congressmen were indebted to the private credit of Alexander Hamilton, then Secretary of State, to discharge their personal expenses. President Washington was obliged to pass a note to Tobias Lear, his private secretary, to meet his household expenses, the note being discounted at the rate of 2 per cent. a month, and members of Congress were paid in due bills.

VERY few men keep a diary now-a-days. It is not worth while. If a man does anything good or bad worth recording he will find it in the papers. —Omaha World.

THE announcement that our telephone service is to be improved will be gratefully received by those who are trying to live without swearing.

Delicate Diseases

Of either sex, however induced, promptly, thoroughly, and permanently cured. Send 10 cents in stamps for large illustrated treatise. World's Dispensary Medical Association, 633 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y.

It is only after she becomes a centenarian that a woman is willing to own up to her age. —Boston Post.

INDIGESTION, dyspepsia, nervous prostration and all forms of general debility relieved by taking MENSAN'S PEPTONIZED BEEF TONIC, the only preparation of beef containing its entire nutritious properties. It contains blood-making, force-generating and life-sustaining properties; is invaluable in all enfeebled conditions, whether the result of exhaustion, nervous prostration, overwork, or acute disease, particularly if resulting from pulmonary complaints. Hazard, Hazard & Co., proprietors, New York.

"HAVE you ever seen a ghost, Pogkins?" "No, Snippet," was the spirited reply, "and I never expecter."

Summer Excursions.

At all principal railroad ticket offices will be found on sale, at low rates, during the tourist season, round-trip tickets, via the Burlington Route, C. B. & Q. R. R., to Portland, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and all principal resorts in the Northwest; and also to Denver, Colorado Springs, and Pueblo, Col. In addition, the Burlington Route runs at frequent dates in each month excursions to San Francisco, Los Angeles, and San Diego. When ready to start, call on your nearest ticket agent, or address Paul Morton, General Passenger and Ticket Agent C. B. & Q. R. R., Chicago, Ill.

Zinc Collar Pads for Horses.

This is not an advertising paper, but for the good of horses we take pleasure in saying that, after many conversations with horse-men, and seeing many certificates of veterinary surgeons and others, we believe that for curing and preventing sores on horses there has been no better invention than the Boss zinc and leather collar pads, patented, manufactured, and sold by Dexter Curtis, of Madison, Wis., who was superintendent of the department of horses at the World's New Orleans Exposition. —From the Humane Society Journal, "Our Dumb Animals."

R. W. Tansill & Co., Chicago.

Our frequent orders during the past five years attest the merits of your "Tansill's Punch" 5-cent cigar. WINTER & CUSHING, Druggists, Princeton, Ill.

NO OPIUM in Piso's Cure for Consumption. Cures where other remedies fail. 25c.

Years Teach More Than Books.

Among other valuable lessons imparted by this teacher is the fact that for a very long time Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" has been the prince of liver correctives and blood purifiers, being the household physician of the poor man, and the able consulting physician to the rich patient, and praised by all for its magnificent service and efficiency in all diseases of a chronic nature, as malarial poisoning, ailments of the respiratory and digestive systems, liver disease and in all cases where the use of an alternative remedy is indicated.

A WAIF from home—the baby in the basket. —Cincinnati Telegram.

Warm Weather

Often causes extreme tired feeling and debility, and in the weakened condition of the system, diseases arising from impure blood are liable to appear. To gain strength, to overcome disease, and to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, take Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is peculiarly adapted to the needs of the body at this season.

"When I took Hood's Sarsaparilla that heaviness in my stomach left; the dullness in my head and the gloomy, dependent feeling disappeared. I began to get stronger, my blood gained better circulation, the coldness in my hands and feet left me, and my kidneys do not bother me as before." —G. W. HULL, Attorney-at-Law, Millersburg, O.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass. 100 Doses One Dollar.

BIRDSELL
MONITOR JUNIOR
BIRDSELL MFG CO
SOUTH HAVEN, CT

THE NEW CLOVER HULLER
DOES IT WORK FASTER AND BETTER THAN ANY OTHER QUARTER RE-CLEANER
READY FOR MARKET
SEND FOR OUR CHALLENGE
AND LATE CATALOGUE

BOSS COLLAR PAD.

Zinc is pressed into heavy sole leather on underside. Presents a smooth fine surface. Always cool. Never wrinkles. Dirt does not stick to it. Easy cleaned. If you had a raw sore how would you like a remedy, with kind, dirt proof leather, or a soft, healing pad on it? The BOSS PAD is for sale at all Harness shops and guaranteed to give satisfaction or money returned. —D. CURTIS, Madison, Wis.

JONES
PAYS THE FREIGHT
5 Ton Wagon Scales.
Iron, Brass, Steel, Brass
Tare Beam and Beam Box for $60.
Every size, with a large illustration of the same, and a list of
JONES OF BIRMINGHAM,
BIRMINGHAM, N. Y.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE.

Best in the World. Get the genuine. Every package has our Trade-mark and is marked Frazer's. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

NO CURE
NO PAY

HOLLINGSWORTH'S
"CELORE"
ONE PACKAGE.
Cures MALARIA, CHILLS and FEVER.
Send 30c in stamps for packing and mailing and $1 when cured. CELORE cur. $1. 10 days or NO PAY.
Address CELORE CO. 1303 Columbia ave. Phila.

25 CTS

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use
in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

25 CTS

DETECTIVES

Wanted in every County. Shrewd men to act under our instructions in our Secret Service. Experience not necessary. Send stamp for particulars. GHANNAN DETECTIVE BUREAU, 44 Arcade, Cincinnati, O.

Wm. B. Stevens & Co.
PENSIONS.
Metropolitan Block,
Chicago, Ill.

LADY AGENTS can secure permanent employment at $50 to $100 per month selling Queen City Supporters. Sample outfit free. Address Cincinnati Suspender Co., 11 E. Ninth St., Cincinnati, O.

PILES
Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is a sure cure for blind, bleeding or itching piles. Cure guaranteed. Price 50c and $1. At druggists or mailed by Wadsworth, Kinnear & Marvin, Wholesale Agents, Toledo, Ohio.

PATENTS
R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Inst. actions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 25-17 years' experience.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES Sure relief for ASTHMA. Price 50c. Sold by mail. Swell & Co., Cincinnati, O.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.

$5 to $5 a day. Samples worth $1.50. FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Write Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

PENSIONS COLLECTED and increased by Fitzgerald & Powell, Indianapolis, Ind. All claims as presented. Send for copy of Laws free.

N. U. F. W. No. 31-87

When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

"AN AGE OF HIS LIFE."

A Game of Poker Which Accounts for a Familiar Phrase.
(Cor. New York Clipper.)

"Several years ago I was traveling for a well-known house on commission only, although my expenses were paid. At the time I was almost desperate for the want of money. To add to my woes my wife was very sick, and the recent death of my mother had taken every cent I had saved to pay her funeral expenses. My last trip had been a wretched one, and I had sold only one little bill of goods. At the same time I had made large collections for the firm on old accounts.

"In my wallet I had a little over $1,000 belonging to the firm. Early in the evening I had taken several drinks to cheer me up, and when, a little later, a game of poker was proposed, I willingly made one of the party, recklessly feeling that if I lost my $25 I would not be much worse off. We started in at a dollar ante and $10 limit, and, having good luck, I soon ran my small stake up to $100. Meantime the game grew hotter and the limit had been raised to $50, while the ante grew proportionally. All the players except myself were men able to lose $1,000 and never wink even; but of course they did not know my own straitened circumstances.

"An hour after midnight we agreed to play a farewell jackpot and quit. Each man put up $50, which made the pot $250 to start with, as there were five of us. The cards were dealt several times and none of us had openers. At last the man ahead of me and next to the dealer opened the pot for a fifty-dollar note. I looked at my cards and found three aces, but simply stayed not wishing to drive the others out. The player on my left, richest man of the party, saw the opening bet and raised another fifty. The next two dropped out and the opener simply called the raise. Then it was my turn and I hesitated, for I was in a frightful quandary. My own funds were not sufficient to enable me to call, and until that moment I had never thought of using the firm's funds.

"From a dreadful mental struggle I was recalled to the fact that I must do something, by the dealer, saying, 'Come, come, X. Say something. I want to put up the cards and go to bed.' In a moment I formed a plan which either meant ruin or brighten hopes. I unbuttoned my coat, and drawing out the wallet with the firm's money in it, I laid $50 of my employers' money on the table. It was the supreme moment of my life; it was my first dishonest act—if boyish thefts on orchards don't count—yet I was as cool as I had ever been in my existence. The opener drew two cards, and, knowing I had him beat, I, too, took two. The third man took none. His standing pat made me shudder, for I was now looking dishonest in the face. The original opener scanned his cards carefully, and then, in a confident manner, bet $50. That he had filled I was morally certain; but, having gone too far to recede, I called him, mechanically, without even looking at my draw. 'Fifty dollars more than you,' said the player next to me. The opener hesitated, and then simply called the last raise. Hopelessly I looked at my draw. The first card was the two-spot of hearts, and with a feeling of despair I looked at the next. It was an ace of spades. I knew I had drawn to the ace of clubs and the two red aces. The revulsion of feeling made me faint, and I hastily gulped down a glass of seltzer near me. My knees knocked together under the table, but I managed to get out a $100-bill and announced that I raised the pot $50 more. The 'pat' man immediately raised me $50. The opener now laid down his hand, remarking that he had no further business in the deal. My single opponent looked me over carefully and said:

"You can bet me $250 if you want to, allowing me the privilege of a like raise.' I bet him the full $250, and he promptly raised me a like sum. I saw this bet and went $250 harder. My opponent hesitated and then said good-naturedly:

"Enough is as good as a feast, and I won't press you too hard, so I'll call."

"At the same time he laid down four queens and reached for the pot. When I showed my four aces he was the most surprised man you ever saw, but without a word he arose from the table and left the room. I never touched a card again, for I had determined to kill myself had I lost."—Cor. New York Clipper.

DANDRUFF.

Simple as the skin appears to be, it is very complicated, and plays an important part in the working of the physical system. Its glands secrete the oil that keeps the surface soft and supple. Another set of its glands pour out a fluid, the evaporation of which enables the body to maintain its proper heat amid the many and sudden changes of atmospheric temperature.

It is one of the eliminating organs for expelling from the system waste and poisonous matter. Its network of nerves is the source of sensations that recognize the presence and qualities of external objects, that is, of the sense of touch.

It consists of three parts. The innermost is the seat of color. The middle, a tough, elastic, and fibrous membrane, is the true skin, and is the seat of the nerves of touch. The outermost, a transparent and horny film, is itself wholly without sensation, and protects the sensitive skin below.

The human nail and the horse's hoof are merely modifications of this, which is called the epidermis.

So complicated an organ must be exposed to many ailments. There are nearly fifty, comprising hundreds of varieties, and among them is dandruff, or pitiriasis, from a Greek word signifying bran.

Says Sir Erasmus Wilson: "Pityriasis is a superficial, chronic inflammation of the skin, without exudation, or swelling, but especially characterized by disturbed nutrition of the epidermis, and its desquamation in minute scales. Essentially it is a mild manifestation of eczema, and must be regarded as one of the forms of dry eczema."

"It seems to be due to an enfeebled state of the skin, in many cases transmitted by heredity. It is a trivial affection, and yields readily to treatment; but constantly tends to return. The aim should be to improve the nutritive functions of the skin by the use of general tonics."

Besides this, rub the scalp every night with glycerine, containing a small quantity of carbolic acid, five grains of the acid to an ounce of the glycerine, and wash the head thoroughly in the morning with soap and water. Repeat till the scalp is clean.—Youth's Companion.

A BONANZA IN HONEY.

Prison Director Sonntag recently moved into the Orr residence at San Rafael. During the late hot weather he was surprised to find streams of honey dripping from the eaves of his house. Bees were seen to come and go from the kitchen roof, and on removing a board Mr. Sonntag discovered a bonanza of honey ten feet long by two feet thick. He managed to take out 100 pounds. Before the find could be utilized the bees had to be killed, but at last accounts there were enough left to make that particular part of the residence uncomfortable.—Alta California.

The man who is suspicious lives in a constant state of unhappiness. It would be better for his piece of mind to be too trustful than too guarded.

J. H. CONRAD,

DEALER IN

ROOFING AND SPOUTING

GUTTERING, HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.

Cutlery, Nails, Paints, Woodenware &c.

MAIN STREET,

ST. JOE IND.

All work and goods guaranteed to give satisfaction. Give me a call.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

St. Joe Meat Market,

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

M. TUSTISON,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES,

EARTHEN POTS FOR HOUSE PLANTS

PROVISIONS, OYSTERS, LEMONS.

ORANGES, CANDIES, CIGARS &c.

MAIN ST. — — — ST. JOE, IND.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

R. G. COBURN,

AGENT FOR THE

A LBION-SPRING Cultivator

AND FIELD HARROW,

AND DAISY RAKE.

—000—

Farmers will save money by seeing me before buying. I will call on you with a sample in a few days. R. G. Coburn, St. Joe, Ind.

Take Notice!

Having returned from Tennessee, I will assist again in

Raising & Moving Buildings,

in short all kinds of Rope, Tackle and Jack-screw Work. Having had 15 years experience, and improved machinery, I feel safe in guaranteeing satisfaction. Heavy and difficult work a specialty. Correspondence solicited. Direct all communications to H. or M. Milliman, St. Joe Station, Ind., or A. Monroe, Hicksville, Ohio.

Undertaker and Embalmer. Keeps on hand constantly a stock of Undertaking Supplies, Coffins, Caskets, Burial Robes &c. I can supply as fine goods as can be furnished. Will attend to making all arrangements for funerals. Calls responded to at all hours of the night. Office on corner of Main and Second Streets; residence on corner of Main and Fourth Streets, St. Joe, Ind.

Arthur James,

—DEALER IN—

Watches, Clocks,

AND JEWELRY.

Repairing done promptly and all work warranted. Call and see me at Bair & Son's store, Spencerville, Ind.

M. T. BISHOP,

—DEALER IN—

LUMBER

OF ALL KINDS,

Shingles, Lime, Lath,

MOULDINGS &c.

Large Stock and Prices Low. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

AUGUST

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, AUGUST 5, 1887.

NO. 28.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLIMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind, John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a specialty. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

EDUCATION AND INDUSTRY.

Does the First Diminish the Last?
(Science.)

Education of the modern kind does not diminish industry, and does not, except for a very short period, break the habit of assiduity at work. Nor does it diminish the readiness to do manual labor in those who can do it, though it does diminish their number—the "delicate lads" as their mothers call them, who, if left uneducated, would have gone on in the groove of their forefathers, taking, by a species of natural selection, to the higher tasks. The remainder work as before, though probably not in old, machine-like way. They spare themselves more, are more quick to avoid unnecessary toil, and, no doubt, as a large proportion are and must be selfish men, in numberless instances, they "scamp" their work in ways the unintelligent never think of. That scamping, together with the eagerness for more money produced by new wants, and a certain idiosyncrasy or independence, combine to produce an unfavorable impression as to industry which is not justified, or rather is due to other causes than aversion to work. The English must wait a little for full information, the boys who have passed through school not being 30 yet; but they do not despair of seeing plenty of Hugh Millers among their workmen—that is, men who are educated, yet have a definite love for and pride in exceedingly hard and monotonous manual toil. Miller set up stone walls for eight hours a day—a real back-breaking occupation—but he had learned more than most lads. It would be well if half time could be made general, as many are nearly convinced it would increase learning, by allowing school time to last longer, and would not discourage any scheme for keeping up the habit of manual labor, which will be the lot of the great majority while the world goes round, and which is, in fact, the permanent gymnasium of the human race; but there is little fear, even if the present system continues. The changes which may come will not be produced by laziness, but by a longing for larger wages and the comfort they bring, which some industries, agricultural especially, in closely populated countries, may find it difficult to satisfy. It will be satisfied, however, in one way or another, for education opens wide the grand safety valve, the power of wandering over earth in search of the opportunity to toil. For what we know, the human race may be destined some day to perish like mites on cheese, through their own multiplication; but at present there is ample space for all of our race, who may for the next century, at a cost only of expatriation, have their twenty acres apiece to work on. Germans, Englishmen, Italians, are swarming out in thousands daily; but there is no danger that they will perish for want of room, or be driven, like Chinamen, to that ceaseless work for bare existence under which other virtues than industry are apt to perish. Another Europe could live and prosper on the unpeopled river basins of South America. Education helps to disperse mankind, and we certainly do not find that emigrants, who are rarely of the know-nothing class, are at all reluctant to undertake severe toil. Is there not in the whole discussion a defect caused by tradition, an impression that as brain workers avoid hard labor, knowing well that they cannot do both up to their full power, those whose brains have never been developed will never do it? Fortunately or unfortunately they will specially feel the great discipline force of the world, the strong conscription of hunger which constrains us all. If all the world were Newtons, nobody would get a mouthful of bread without somebody facing all weathers to plow and sow and reap.

THE GOVERNORS HAD QUARRELED.

Carlyle draws a picture, at once ludicrous and sad, of a body of peaceful English peasants who are disciplined and drilled and dressed in red and sent away to Spain, and there placed opposite to an equal number of French peasants, also in uniform, and with guns in their hands. At the word of command, both parties fire, and thirty men on either side fall dead; "and in place of sixty brisk, useful craftsmen, the world has sixty dead carcasses, which it must bury and anew shed tears for. Had these men any quarrel? Busy as the devil is, not the smallest! They lived far enough apart, were the entirest strangers; nay, in so wide a universe there was even unconsciously by commerce some mutual helpfulness between them. How then? Simpleton! Their Governors had fallen out; and instead of shooting one another, had the cunning to make these poor blockheads shoot." Is not this, in a nutshell, the history of half the wars the world has seen? The Governors have quarreled, and the people have been made to believe the quarrel was their own; and is there not the strongest reason for supposing that as education spreads, as governments become more truly representative of the people whom they govern, and as the people come to understand more truly their real interests, wars of this kind, at least, into which kings lead their subjects blindfolded, will no more be heard of?

A RAT AND A SNAKE FIGHT.

One of our popular young farmers, noted for truthfulness as well as modesty, tells the following story of a fight between a rat and a snake. He was at his stable one morning, and after doing some chores around the lot he sat down and began to meditate—he is given to such things occasionally—and while sitting on the fence near his stable he saw a snake crawl out from under the crib in quite a hurry; presently a large rat followed and attacked the snake fiercely. It jumped upon its snakeship, and at once the reptile coiled and endeavored to strike the rat, but it was quick and escaped the bites, meanwhile plying its own teeth in a fearless manner. The rat and the snake clinched, rolled up in a wad, the snake trying to coil around the rat. Just at that moment the rat, securing a good chance, seized the snake by the tail and bit it terribly. In much pain and agony the serpent quickly gave up the fight and made off, the rat following a short distance, and then, returning, went back to the crib. Several times it came out and smelled along through the weeds, as if scenting the snake. It is supposed the snake had eaten the old rats' young, and it was determined to have revenge.—Lafayette Messenger

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

County and District Fairs.

—The County and District Fairs of the State will be held at the following times and places:

Blackford	Hartford City	Aug. 23-25
Boone	Lebanon	Aug. 15-19
Cass	Logansport	Aug. 20-Sept. 2
Clark	Charleston	Sept. 5-9
Clinton	Frankfort	Aug. 23-27
Daviess	Washington	Sept. 26-Oct. 7
Dearborn	Lawrenceburg	Aug. 23-27
Decatur	Greensburg	Aug. 30-Sept. 3
Dea. a. w.	Manoia	Aug. 16-20
Elkhart	Goshen	Sept. 20-24
Fulton	Rochester	Sept. 27-Oct. 1
Gibson	Princeton	Sept. 12-16
Grant	Marion City	Aug. 30-Sept. 3
Greene	Linton	Oct. 5-7
Hamilton	Noblesville	Aug. 22-26
Hancock	Greenfield	Aug. 23-27
Harrison	Corydon	Aug. 30-Sept. 3
Henry	New Castle	Aug. 9-13
Howard	Kokomo	Sept. 12-16
Huntington	Huntington	Sept. 27-Oct. 1
Jackson	Brownstown	Aug. 29-Sept. 2
Jasper	Rensselaer	Aug. 30-Sept. 3
Jay	Portland	Sept. 27-30
Jennings	No. Vernon	Aug. 9-12
Knox	Vincennes	Oct. 10-15
LaGrange	LaGrange	Sept. 27-30
Lake	Crown Point	Sept. 13-16
LaPorte	LaPorte	Sept. 27-30
Lawrence	Redford	Sept. 13-17
Mallison	Anderson	Sept. 5-9
Monroe	Bloomington	Sept. 27-30
Montgomery	Crawfordsville	Sept. 5-9
Newton	Morocco	Sept. 20-23
Noble	Ligonier	Oct. 11-14
Orange	Paoli	Sept. 7-10
Parke	Rockville	Aug. 15-20
Perry	Tell City	Sept. 13-17
Pike	Petersburg	Sept. 5-10
Porter	Valparaiso	Sept. 20-23
Posey	New Harmony	Sept. 19-23
Randolph	Winchester	Aug. 30-Sept. 3
Ripley	Osgood	Aug. 16-19
Rush	Rushville	Sept. 13-16
Shelby	Shelbyville	Sept. 7-10
Spencer	Chrisney	Oct. 3-6
Steuben	Angola	Oct. 11-14
Sullivan	Sullivan	Sept. 5-10
Tippacano	Lafayette	Aug. 29-Sept. 3
Tipton	Tipton	Aug. 15-19
Vermillion	Eugene	Aug. 22-27
Vigo	Terre Haute	Aug. 29-Sept. 2
Wabash	Wabash	Sept. 16-18
Warren	W. Lebanon	Aug. 16-19
Warrick	Boonville	Aug. 23-Sept. 3
Washington	Salmon	Aug. 23-27

DISTRICT, ETC.

Acton Fair Asso.	Acton	Aug. 30-Sept. 3
Arcadia Fair Asso.	Arcadia	Aug. 29-Sept. 3
Black Hawk	LaPorte	Aug. 30-Sept. 3
Bridgeton Union	Bridgeton	Aug. 22-27
East Ind. Agr'l.	Kendallville	Oct. 3-7
Fairmont Union	Fairmont	Sept. 13-16
Fountain, Warren & Vernon	Covington	Sept. 20-23
Francisville Agr'l.	Francisville	Sept. 27-30
Henry, Madison & Delaware	Middletown	Aug. 16-19
Inter-State	Fort Wayne	Sept. 7-10
Kingston Union	Kintstien	Aug. 30-Sept. 3
Lawrence Dist.	Lawrence	Sept. 12-15
Loogootee Dist.	Loogootee	Aug. 30-Sept. 3
Miami & Fulton	Macy	Sept. 21-24
New Ross Agr'l.	New Ross	Sept. 9-13
Northwestern Ind.	Waterloo	Sept. 26-30
North Manchester	Manchester	Oct. 4-7
Tri-Co.	No. Manchester	Oct. 4-7
No. Ind. So. Mich.	South Bend	Sept. 12-15
Orleans Agr'l.	Orleans	Sept. 30-31
Perry Co. Agr'l. and Meehan's Asso.		Oct. 3-6
Poplar Grove, A. H. & M. A.	Poplar Grove	Sept. 26-30
Seymour Fair Asso.	Seymour	Oct. 4-8
Switzer and Ohio	East Kenton	Sept. 13-16
Union City A. & M. A. Union City	Union City	Sept. 5-9
Urbansville Agr'l.	Urbansville	Oct. 6-8
Warren Trio-Co.	Warren	Sept. 21-24
Washington and Clark	Pekin	Sept. 6-10
Wayne, Henry and Randolph	Dalton	Sept. 6-9
Xenia Union	Xenia	Aug. 24-28

Minor State Items.

—The biggest job of ditching ever undertaken in Northern Indiana is progressing in the big swamp in the western part of Allen County. It is called the Little River ditch, and, with its branches, will be fifty miles long. Nine miles have been completed, and the contractors have until December, 1888, to finish the job. Between fifty and sixty feet are excavated daily. An immense tract of very fertile land in Allen and Huntington counties will be redeemed by this ditch, which will cost about $100,000.

—John Atkins, living in Floyd County, eight miles from New Albany, has a fish pond 150 feet long by eighty feet wide, which is stocked with German carp. Some of the fish are now two feet in length, although the pond has been in use only a comparative short time. The pond fairly teems with small carp, and unless something untoward occurs, Mr. Atkins will have next season a larger profit from his pond than on fifty times that area of ground devoted to any other purpose.

The St. Joe News.

ST JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS.

PUBLISHERS.

TRUE ECONOMY.

BY MISS GEORGE ARCHIBALD.

A thrifty and most economical dame, Owned a pair of fine fowls whose fair qualities came,
Through a line of fine fowls of an excellent fame.

And Madam, the hen, had a musical way,
Of daily announcing an egg every day,
While Sir Cockorum would join in the lay.

And once on a time in the cold of the year,
When eggs they were scarce and when eggs they were dear,
Still daily their cackle was truthful and clear.

And ere their commendable labors did cease
A bountiful basketful showed the increase,
All fresh and all fair and worth four cents apiece.

Since eggs they were scarce and since eggs they were high,
The thrifty old dame, with a natural sigh,
(For she liked a good egg), put the basketful by.

"In the list of my sins," with decision said she,
"The sin of extravagance never shall be,
Such eating is quite too expensive for me."

It chanced, when the far-away farmers had heard
The price of good eggs, that their spirits were stirred,
To send in by cartloads the fruit of the bird.

And long ere these efforts for profit did cease,
An over-topped market had felt the increase,
And eggs, they were selling for one cent apiece.

The thrifty old dame with a heart that was gay,
Brought forth her full basket without a delay,
From where she so lately had stowed it away.

"The price has come down while the eggs are yet a-see,"
She said, "which will give me a plenty to eat;
At twelve cents a dozen they're cheaper than meat."
—Good Housekeeping.

A WOMAN'S WOES.

BY MRS. H. E. BARRETT.

"Come with me, fair and false,
To our home; come home."

"To-morrow, Grace—to-morrow, all my own!"

They were parting in the laurel walk, half-way to the cottage from the garden-gate.

She lifted up her face to him, in the clear moonbeams—her face, with the soft love-light in it, tenderer than moonlight ever was. And yet there was a look of pain in the dark, shining eyes.

"If I had always been all your own, Norman! If I had always belonged to you as I do now!"

His arm tightened about her, and a little cloud came into his eyes, which he turned from her.

Always his own? What did he know of the twenty-five years that lay behind her?—this beautiful woman whom he had met for the first time six months ago, when she came to dwell with the staid old matron, her companion, in this little cottage of hers, half a mile across the cliffs from his park gates.

What did he know? Little enough, perhaps—only that she was the one woman in the world to him.

Further than that, she had told him, after their chance acquaintance had ripened into intimacy, that she had spent all her young life abroad—that she had no near relations surviving—no one, in fact, but this far-away widowed cousin, whom she had engaged to live with her when she came here to settle down at last in a quiet home of her own, and which she had not meant to leave, but for the narrower home, only a little quieter, of the grave.

And yet she was leaving it to-morrow for Wyndham Park, the great house of the neighborhood.

Norman Wyndham, like herself, had no near kindred, no one to consult, when he fell suddenly and violently in love—nothing to interfere with this passion of his, except that the beautiful stranger had been very hard to win.
But after a easily and coldly repulsing every attention from him for five weary months, she suddenly broke down with a complete surrender, which showed she had been secretly won long before.
She did not even remonstrate when he fixed the wedding-day only a month later; and she schooled herself to meet, with a certain stately graciousness, his many friends, who had not taken the smallest notice of her before, but who now flocked to make her acquaintance, as the neighborhood could not afford to be but on the best terms with Wyndham Park. And so to-morrow was the wedding-day.

But he cloud in her lover's eyes was not the shadow of a doubt of her, of whom he actually knew so little; it was rather of jealousy that there had been a time when she was not his own. It was gone almost as soon as come, however, for to-morrow was the wedding-day.

Grace had not seen the cloud at all.
She had lost her lovely color suddenly, and was looking down, pushing the gravel restlessly with her foot, her lips moving voicelessly, as if she tried to speak, but could not. And then suddenly and swiftly, she turned and hid her face upon his breast, as in a sure refuge.

"Norman! Oh, Norman! I am all your own! The past is only a dream—this is my life!"

"My darling—my darling!"
But she was still pale as death beneath his kisses; and presently she drew herself out of his arms, and held him off from her with her two hands.

"Tell me, Norman—answer me—could you be happy now without me?"
"Grace!"

It was answer enough for her—that one word in his thrilling voice. She bent her head, and the next instant her lips touched his hand. And before he could start out of his amazement, and stop her, the flying white figure was half-way to the porch.

"Until to-morrow—to-morrow, Norman!" was the good-night she flung back to him as she went.

And then she heard the click of the gate after him as she went up the porch-steps.

Up the porch-steps, into the vine-shadows, and brushed against a man who lounged with folded arms there in the doorway.

The woman started back; her lips parted as if to cry out at the strange intrusion.

But somehow, no cry came. A trembling seized on her; she shook from head to foot; for the man stepped forward from his place, into a ray of moonlight striking athwart, through the vines; and the ray fell upon his face—an evil face, full of a sullen triumph, as if he leered on her. A dark, haggard, dissipated face that matched well with the slouching, and yet bailying, figure, and the slovenly, yet flashy, style of dress. One would have thought she would have cried out all the more, the clearer view she had of him. And yet she uttered not a sound. She only reeled back a pace or two, and smote her hands together with a wild, despairing gesture.

At that he gave a low and guarded chuckle.

"So, my dear, you recognize me instantly? I might have known you could not forget me, though it's six long years since last we met: One does not easily forget one's husband, and one's first love, eh, my dear Grace?
I might have known you would have been faithful, dear."

She shuddered back, out of reach of his extended hands; she made no answer to his jeering speech. Only she said, hoarsely, after a moment, "You—alive! You were not lost on board the Petrol, then?"

"Obviously, not," he answered, carelessly.

"And you suffered me to believe you were all these years! You left me, little more than a child, to struggle or starve in the great city, where I was a stranger!"

"My dear, reflect a moment. Had you not yourself to thank for that? I married you, all in good faith, meaning to keep my part of the bargain just as long as you kept yours. Your part of the bargain was to obey me, you remember; that was what you vowed to do. But when you turned rusty on my hand—"

"That is," said she, bitterly, "when I did not prove the smooth, easily-handled tool you thought the inexperienced girl would be? When you found you could not use me as your decoy, your trap, whereby to snare the foolish young gamblers you would plunder, at all those places you took me to?"

"Exactly; I perceive you understand.
Well, as I have said, you turned rusty on my hands, and I found I could do nothing further with you, it seemed to me the best thing for us both that we should part. I never embarked on the Petrol, as you may suppose. I only took advantage of its wreck, with all hands lost, to write you that letter in a feigned hand, as if from one of your husband's friends; to tell you he had sailed on her, and so make you a widow. I thought you might be able to endure your weeds; though, Grace, you certainly did love me once."

"I deny it." The low voice was clear and steady now. "It was a girlish fancy, an ignorant belief that you were something very different from yourself. Love! I thought it was; but now I know better."

"Since you've taken up with this fine fellow from the Park, eh, Grace?"

She had no retort to this insult from him. She only lifted her eyes, haughtily, full on him. She could look full at him; for to this man, Ashford Bell, she had done no wrong. To Norman Wyndham—but she dare not think of him now.

"May I ask why, having lost sight of me these six years, you take the trouble to look me up now?"

"For two reasons, my dear. To be exact, I never have lost sight of you.
It was easy enough for me to keep on your track without your perceiving it."

"You knew, then, what a struggle I had at first to keep mere body and soul together?" she interrupted him, bitterly.

"You were a brave little woman, my dear; I knew you would come through it triumphantly. But, still, I confess I was very much relieved when your obliging old aunt betook herself to the other world, and you fell heir to her snug little property."

"I understand; it is that which has brought you here."

"Pardon me; I think I told you there were two things which have brought me to you. You have owned that snug little property these four years; and I have been aware of it all this time.
But I was doing excellently well then in my own line of business, and I saw no reason to interfere with you. Lately, however, I have had losses upon losses;
indeed, I see nothing for it but to throw up my hand: under which circumstances you may suppose I have felt a powerful attraction drawing me in this direction. So much for reason number one; for I have no doubt you will insist upon ranking this one first.
As for me, I gave the precedence to that which you will call number two—a certain objection to seeing my wife
the wife of another man."

There was a ring of truth in the last words, mockingly though they were spoken. Grace looked at him, and calmed herself.

"At least I owe you something for saying me from that," she said, quietly.
"The little fortune you spoke of is no much to pay that debt. No, stand aside; there is nothing more to be said to-night. To-morrow, everything shall be arranged between us."

She went past him, into the house, and up-stairs to her own room.

He understood her well enough; she was leaving him there as master of the house; only to-night, as she had told him, there was nothing more to be said between them.

Well, so let it be. He was content enough. He lit his cigar, which he had taken from his lips when Grace first came up, but had not ventured to light while its spark might have betrayed him to Wyndham loitering with Grace in the garden; and when he had smoked com placently awhile, he flung himself to sleep on the drawing-room sofa.

Everything was going well; he was quite at his ease. So much at his ease, so comfortably asleep, that when there was a light rustling through the shrubbery under those windows, it never roused him.

It was but an instant; a dark figure guined the gate, and sped on swiftly up the road.

In the morning they found her chamber empty, her bonnet and shawl gone, her purse and a small satchel filled from her open bureau-drawers, and two sealed notes upon her dressing-table. One was addressed to Ashford Bell, and it ran thus:—

"I told you I owed you something for saving me. Take, in repayment, my little property, which my aunt left me, and which I gave freely to you, trusting that this clears off all scores between you and

"GRACE BELL."

The other note was Norman Wyndham's:

"Forgive me if you can, when you read below, and see that I have deceived you—that seven years before I met you I had ceased to be Grace Lindsay. Forgive me—I tried to tell you of my past; when you see the man who is my husband you will understand how I shrink from the humiliation of the confession: I think I need not tell you I had full reason to believe him dead—dead and blotted out of my life six years ago. I might have known such a blot as that could not leave any after-page fair and clean. I did know—but I loved you—though I am

"GRACE BELL."

And that was all—the last page of her life that those two men ever read.

No man should so act as to take advantage of another's folly.—Cicero.

PITH AND POINT.

A BANG is a fore-tress.

THE "last" fraud—a cheap boot.

A SMOKE-STACK—a bunch of cigars.

A LONG weight—2200 pounds to the ton of coal.

A PILLOW maker ought to be pleased to have his watch run "down."

WE hear of a dress subdued in tone.
They should sell by the score.

At what age do men usually wish to retire from life? Hermit-age.

VIRTUE should be founded on principle; often principle is weak and virtue indeed "found dead."—Texas Siftings.

MOTHER—Janet, did William kiss you on the front steps last night? Daughter—About what part of the evening, ma?

A TRAMP says that he doesn't go in for this half-holiday movement. What he wants is half a day free from movement.

TORRIST (to Highland sentry on a cold, frosty morning)—Sentry, are you cold with the kilt? Sentry—No; but I'm near kilt wi' the cauld.

"Don't you find the people around here very sociable?" asked Cobwigger of a new neighbor. "Yes, indeed I do," was the hearty response. "Only a moment ago I met a beggar and he held out his hand to me."—Harper's Bazar.

THE late Prof. Conington could recite the works of Virgil and Homer from beginning to end. But his friends always went away and left him with charming unanimity whenever he started out to do it.—Somerville Journal.

A SENTIMENTAL writer asks: "Did you ever watch a dear baby waking in the morning?" Many times. It generally occurs about 5 o'clock, and enables the father to get up a splendid appetite for breakfast.—Dry-Goods Chronicle.

"Did you meet with success?" asked a neighbor of a man who had returned from prospecting for silver in New Mexico. "Oh, yes, I met with success, but success was going the other way.
If I could have overtaken success I would have been all right."—Texas Siftings.

"I WONDER that you never get married," said Mrs. Yeast to young Crim-sonbeak, a brakeman on the railroad.
"I don't see why you should wonder.
We railroad men never marry, you know." "How's that?" "Oh, we understand the danger that is attached to coupling, you know."

BETWEEN husbands—"Say, do you ever read the letters addressed to your wife?" (With indignation). "Never."
"What, you have absolute confidence in her?" "O, it is not that. I am afraid that I would find something in them that might be disagreeable for me to know, and I adore her!"—French Fun.

"AND is this to be the end of all?"
said O'Reilly De Vere, as he seized the girl's hand. "That is about the size of it," she replied, coldly. "You tell me that your employer has refused to raise your salary?" "Yes," cried the youth, eagerly; "but next year—"

"Excuse me," she interrupted with Arctic frigid-ity, "but I am not investing in futures—not this week."—Tit-Bits.

HE (trying to get out of it pleasantly)—"I'm awfully sorry that I must go to-night, Miss Be-sie. What an agreeable two weeks we've had of it. I will go and ask your father—" he was going to say "to harness the horse."
She—"Oh, William, I knew it would come, and I asked pa yesterday, so as to have no more trouble. He is more than willing."—Carl Prezel's Weekly.

HAMLET AND EGGLET.

Said the kiddet from his cockpit
To the Hamlet, on the stage:
"Good, my Hamlet, here's an egglet.
Though it doesn't suit your age,
For, dear Hamlet, you're aware that You're exceeding young and fresh,
While this egglet—hot a keg, that It's mature in it's profess."
Then the kiddet throws the egglet
He's the Hamlet in the cockpit,
And the kiddet in the front row
Cries to ring the curtain down.
Then the kiddet let, ah, I fear it Makes a bid, t for a bee-lee,
While the Hamlet, like a champion,
Wanders silent through the town
Like a dreamlet or a gleamlet
On the surface of a streamlet,
Searching for carbolic acid,
Goes he's sent through the town.
—Detroit Free Press.

A LARGE piece of meteoric iron has been found in a bed of tertiary lignite, Upper Austria. This is the first find of that sort in distinct geological periods, a proof that meteoric stones fell also in former periods of the earth's existence.

Java.

Java is regarded as the most fertile and prosperous tropical island on the globe. It is south of Borneo, and the fourth island of the Malayan archipelago in size, having an area of 50,260 square miles. It is a colonial possession of Holland. The surface of the island is mountainous, a range of lofty peaks running from one end of the island to the other, and another range skirting the south coast. All of these mountains are of volcanic formation, and there are on the island thirty-eight volcanoes, the most of them constantly active. Some of the most terrible eruptions on record have occurred on this island, among which may be mentioned the outbreaks of the volcano Papandayang in the year 1772, of Galunggung in 1822, and Krakatoa in 1833. Between the peaks of the mountains in the central part of the island are several plateaus which are very fertile, and have a delightful climate, owing to their elevation above the hot district of the shore. Along the north side of the island is a long, low, and very very fertile plain. All of the island is well watered. The seasons are two, the wet and the dry, and the temperature of the island is very equable. All tropical fruits, birds, and animals abound in the lowlands, and on the high plateaus all grains and fruits of temperate climates can be successfully raised. Java is one of the principal coffee-growing countries in the world; sugar is next in importance; then comes rice, of which two crops are annually raised; indigo, pepper, tea, and tobacco are also exported. The population of Java is estimated at over 17,500,000. About 30,000 Europeans reside on the island; there are also about 190,000 Chinese, and some 20,000 Arabs and other foreign orientals; the rest are natives. The Javanese are almost entirely occupied in agriculture, though they have some knowledge of the mechanic arts, and make bricks and tiles, build houses and boats, and work in metals with some skill. The women of the country also weave a stout cotton cloth, and make coarse silk cloth from raw silk imported from China. The ancestors of the present race of Javanese must have had considerable knowledge of architecture, judging from the remarkable specimens of ancient temples, most of them in ruins, to be seen throughout the island, but this knowledge has been entirely lost. The Javanese have made some progress in music, of which they are passionately fond, and they have both wind and stringed instruments. In religion the Javanese are Mohammedans, this faith having been established among them by the Arabs in the fifteenth century. The principal unit in Javanese politics is the village, whose officers are all elected by the people, and are charged with the collection of the taxes and the maintenance of public order. The native rulers are allowed by the Dutch to retain their rank and nominal power as regents; but the real power is in the Governor General appointed by the Netherlands Government, who is assisted by a vice president and a council of four, and has his orders directly from the King of Holland. —Inter-Ocean.

Forced War Loans.

When Gen. Martinez of Mexico was fighting against Maximilian he and his soldiers were in the habit of taking what they wanted from the people, even going so far as to levy on the treasures of the churches. One day the sacristan of a certain church found two of the soldiers from the army of Martinez on their knees before the altar of Our Lady of Guadalupe. The shrine was covered with coins and jewels, placed there by devotees on offering up prayers for the safety of the absent ones, or in gratitude for deliverance from some peril. And one of the "Macheteros" was praying like this: "My dear, holy lady! I'm a poor boy. I've been in the army a year, and I haven't made anything so far. I've a very poor family. They may be starving. I'm obliged to take some of these precious things. If I have good luck in robbing some other place I'll return these."

So saying he arose from his knees and coolly swept the shrine of its valuables. —New York Tribune.

A RECENT computation makes the velocity of the solar system in space only about 10,000,000 miles a year. By a different method another computer has determined the rate to be about 525,000,000 miles in a year.

A Perilous Postponement.

To postpone, when the duty for immediate action is clear, is always unwise. Especially is it so when increasing ill-health calls for a resort to medication. Diseases of the kidneys and bladder are of an of swift growth—always of fatal tendency if not combatted at the outset. We have all—even those of us who are not remarkably well instructed—heard something of the danger attending Bright's disease, diabetes, and other diseases of the kidneys or bladder. Let no one be foolhardy enough to procrastinate if he perceives the renal organs to be inactive. Hostetter's Stomach Bitter is peculiarly adapted to overcome this action, to sufficiently stimulate, without exciting, the kidneys and bladder. Infinitely is this diuretic to be preferred to the impure and fiery stimulants of commerce, which prove the bane of unwary persons with a tendency to renal troubles. They are likewise incomparable for dyspepsia, debility, fever and ague, and biliousness.

Circumstances Have Changed.

For centuries the Turks were most overbearing, but they have made considerable progress in diplomacy during the last 200 years. When the Ambassador of Louis XIV. announced to the Sultan that his master had gained a great victory over the Germans, the Grand Vizier replied through the interpreter:

"Know, unbeliever, that it is all the same to his Majesty, the Sultan, whether the dog eats the swine, or the swine the dog."

Nowadays the Sultan is much more polite. When he is informed by any foreign ambassador of any occurrence of national import, he replies in courteous and diplomatic language. —Texas Siftings.

The Poor Little Ones.

We often see children with red eruptions on face and hands, rough, scaly skin, and often sores on the head. These things indicate a depraved condition of the blood. In the growing period children have need of pure blood by which to build up strong and healthy bodies. If Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is given the blood is purged of its bad elements, and the child's development will be healthy, and as it should be. Scrofulous affections, rickets, fever sores, hip-joint disease, or other grave maladies and sufferings are sure to result from neglect and lack of proper attention to such cases.

It is very likely that Alfred Collier's comic opera "Dorothy," which has had upward of 150 performances in London, will be produced here during the coming season. Mr. Stephenson, of "Billie Taylor" fame, is the author of the book. Mr. Arthur Wallack represents the interests of the co-authors in this country.

Political Temperance Parties.

It would be the most remarkable thing in the history of the world if the little bar of the Nerve Food plant should substitute the use of stimulants, and take the wind out of the sails of the political temperance parties. There is the best of authority for the statement that the drinker is better satisfied with it, and the liquor dealer has to keep it or lose his custom. It is a powerful factor that they can make just as much money on it, and pay no license. Also, the women and churches back it to the utmost. At the dealers say its sale is enormous. The company putting it on the market offer the chemists $5,000 if they can find anything in it more deleterious than common bitter root and wintergreen. We thank God it can do so well without harm.

HERE joys that endure forever, fresh and in vigor, are opposed to satisfactions that are attended with satiety and surfeits, and flatter in the very tasting. —L'Estrange.

LOTTA's cottage at Lake Hopateong, N. J., is a pioneer palace in the woods, where the air is bracing, the water cold without icing, and the mosquito never comes.

MILD, soothing, and healing is Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

FOLLY is the quality exhibited by a man who is jealous of a cross-eyed wife. —New Haven News.

For dyspepsia, indigestion, depression of spirits, and general debility, in their various forms, also as a preventive against fever and ague, and other intermittent fevers, the "Ferro-Phosphated Elixir of Calisaya," made by Hazard, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic; and for patients recovering from fever or other sickness it has no equal.

THE burden of a song is the being obliged to a still and listen to it.

I. O. O. F. ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Transportation Committee of the Sovereign Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., to-day announces that the grand official route from Chicago to Denver and return in September will be Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Ry., Chicago to Kansas City, Union Pacific Ry., Kansas City to Denver, returning via Burlington Route, Denver to Chicago. Official train will leave Chicago for Denver at 3 p. m., Wednesday, September 14th.

GET Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners applied to your new boots and shoes before you wear them out.

3 MONTHS' treatment for 50c. Piso's Remedy for Catarrh. Sold by druggists.

USE Frazee Axle Grease, 'tis the best in the world—will wear twice as long as any other.

THE Agent of the German Baptist Publication Society, Cleveland, Ohio, Mr. H. Schulte, writes: "We keep St. Jacobs Oil on hand and consider it most valuable in case of burns, scalds, etc." Use according to directions.

If you want to make a friend, praise a dog in its owner's presence.

Mr. J. W. Mavis, 28 Rock Street, Lowell, Mass., writes: "I was taken with a crick in neck and suffered agony. St. Jacobs Oil cured me." For sale Druggists and Dealers.

Jubilee Orchid Bouquet.

Orchid amateurs must be wild with envy at the description of the jubilee orchid bouquet sent to the queen at Buckingham palace. It is five feet high, of globular shape, and is composed of the rarest of orchids and orchid leaves alone. Fifty spikes of each species are introduced, representing fifty years of the queen's reign; orange red blooms twine into the letters "V. R. L." while a golden variety forms a crown surmounting the whole bouquet. —Chicago News.

A Lovely Complexion.

"What a lovely complexion," we often hear persons say; "I wonder what she does for it?" In every case the purity and real loveliness of the complexion depends upon the blood. Those who have sallow, blotchy faces may make their skin smooth and healthy by taking enough of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" to drive out the humors lurking in the system.

THE author of the saying that "you must always take a man as you find him," was a policeman.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS is an unfailing cure for all diseases originating in biliary derangements caused by the malaria of miasmatic countries. No other medicine now on sale will so effectually remove the disturbing elements, and at the same time tone up the whole system. It is pure and safe in its action.

A COOK who prefers Burns to Browning shouldn't have anything to do with Bacon or Lamb.

Prof. Loissette's Memory Discovery.

No doubt can be entertained about the value and genuineness of Prof. Loissette's Memory System, as it is so strongly recommended by Mark Twain, Mr. Proctor, Hon. W. W. Astor, Judah P. Benjamin, Dr. Buckley, and others. For full details send for Prof. Loissette's prospectus at 257 Fifth Ave., New York. From it the system is taught by correspondence, quite as well as by personal instruction. Colleges near New York have secured his lectures. He has had 110 Columbia Law students, two classes of 200 each at Yale, 200 at Meriden, 200 at Norwich, 400 at Wellesley College, and 400 at University of Penn. We cannot conceive how a system could receive any higher endorsement.

If afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it 25c.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficial influence of

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health. It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young. As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

RUBBER STAMP OUTFIT FOR SALE CHEAP.

Vulcanizer, 16 fonts of Type, Cuts, and everything used in the business. Address E. H. 174 E. Berry St., Fort Wayne, Ind.

ADVERTISERS or others, who wish to examine this paper, or obtain estimates on advertising space when in Chicago, will find it on file at 45 to 49 Randolph St., the Advertising Agency of

LORD & THOMAS.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Price 50c. ASTHMA. Sure relief. Price 50c. by mail. Stowell & Co., Charlestown, Mass.

ENSIONS COLLECTED and Increased by Fitzgerald & Powell, Indianapolis, Ind. Old cases reopened. Send for copy of Laws, free.

OPIMUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.

$5 to $25 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Write Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

WHAT AILS YOU?

Do you feel dull, languid, low-spirited, lifeless, and indescribably miserable; both physically and mentally; experience a sense of fullness or bloating after eating, or of "goneness," or emptiness of stomach in the morning, tongue coated, bitter or bad taste in mouth, irregular appetite, dizziness, frequent headaches, blurred eyesight, "floating specks" before the eyes, nervous prostration or exhaustion, irritability of temper, hot flushes, "starting" with chilly sensations, sharp, biting, transient pains here and there, cold feet, drowsiness after meals, wakefulness, or disturbed and unrefreshing sleep, constant, indescribable feeling of dread, or of impending calamity?

If you have all, or any considerable number of these symptoms, you are suffering from that most common of American maladies—Bilious Dyspepsia, or Torpid Liver, associated with Dyspepsia, or Indigestion. The more complicated your disease has become, the greater the number and diversity of symptoms. No matter what stage it has reached, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will subdue it, if taken according to directions for a reasonable length of time. If not cured, complications multiply and Consumption of the Lungs, Skin Diseases, Heart Disease, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease, or other grave maladies are quite liable to set in and, sooner or later, induce a fatal termination.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery acts powerfully upon the Liver, and through that great blood-purifying organ, cleanses the system of all blood-taints and impurities, from whatever cause arising. It is equally efficacious in acting upon the Kidneys, and other excretory organs, cleansing, strengthening, and healing their diseases. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it promotes digestion and nutrition, thereby building up both flesh and strength. In malarial districts, this wonderful medicine has gained great celebrity in curing Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Dumb Ague, and kindred diseases.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

CURES ALL HUMORS,

from a common Blotch, or Eruption, to the worst Scrofula. "Salt-rheum," "Fever-sores," Sores or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine. Great Eating Ulcers rapidly heal under its benign influence. Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Hip-joint Disease, "White Swellings," Gout, or Thick Nails, and Enlarged Glands. Send ten cents in stamps for a large Treatise, with colored plates, on Skin Diseases, or the same amount for a Treatise on Scrofulous Affections.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE." Thoroughly cleanse it by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength and bodily health will be established.

CONSUMPTION,

which is Scrofula of the Lungs, is arrested and cured by this remedy. It taken in the earlier stages of the disease. From its marvelous power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now world-famed remedy to the public, Dr. Pierce thought seriously of calling it his "Consumption Cure," but abandoned that name as too restrictive for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alternative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is unequalled, not only as a remedy for Consumption, but for all Chronic Diseases of the

Liver, Blood, and Lungs.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Chronic Nasal Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Severe Coughs, and kindred affections, it is an efficient remedy.

Sold by Druggists, at $1.00, or Six Bottles for $5.00.

Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's book on Consumption. Address,

World's Dispensary Medical Association,

663 Main St., BUFFALO, N. Y.

NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY

OF MUSIC Boston, Mass.

THE LARGEST and BEST EQUIPPED in the WORLD—100 instructors, five studios last year. Thorough instruction in Vocal and Instrumental Music, Piano and Organ Tuning, Fine Arts, Oratory, Literature, French, German, and Italian Languages, English Branches, Gymnastics, etc. Tuition, $5 to $25 board and room with Steam Heat and Electric Light, $5.00 to $7.50 per week. Fall Term begins Sept. 8, 1897. For Illustrated Catalogue, with full information, address E. T. O'NEILL, Dir., Franklin Sq., BOSTON, Mass.

MARLIN REPEATING RIFLE

Guaranteed perfectly accurate and absolutely safe. Made in all sizes for large or small game.

BALLARD Gallery, Hunting and Target Rifles. Read for Illustrated Catalogue. Marlin Fire Arms Co., New Haven, Conn.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for

TANSILL'S PUNCH

Everybody wants "Tansill's Punch" so cigar now; they were always good, but of late they have improved. I heartily approve of your way of doing business; you are sure to build and increase your trade.

A. ARENS, Druggist, Chicago, Ill.

Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. R. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

N. U. P. W. No. 32-87 When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year, in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months ..... 50
Three Months ..... 25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe as second-class matter.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 5, 1887.

There has been a scarcity of binder twine this year. In some of the western states they have had to use the old reapers and cradles, because they could not get twine to run their binders. Even here it was difficult to get enough twine to do up the oats crop.

The St. Joe furniture man got a rig of Bill Leighty Tuesday evening, and went some where. Nothing strange about that, but Bill says the rig came home by itself about two o'clock the next morning. Will August please rise and explain why this was thusly.

The Presbyterian people of Auburn will run an excursion to Warsaw, on Thursday, August 18th, at a very low rate of fare. Warsaw as a pleasure resort is equal to, if not ahead of Rome City, and those who want to enjoy a day of real pleasure should take in this excursion.

The Spiritualists of Paulding, Delaware and adjoining counties will hold their annual grove meeting in Daniel Wentworth's grove, southwest of Hicksville, on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 13th and 14th. The speakers will be A. B. French, of Clyde, Ohio, and Mrs. Pearson of Michigan. Fine music will be rendered by the Misses Rose, of Van Wert. Everybody invited.

The devil is rustivating at Rome City this week. We mean the devil of this paper. Mell Bishop feels greatly relieved at his absence, as he says that he now gets a chance to sleep some at night. By the way, Mell claims that was one reason why he sold out, was because our devil was over in that neighborhood so much. He says he could put up with a little racket occasionally, but when it comes to six and eight nights in the week, he could not stand it.

The W. C. T. U. will meet at the residence of Mrs. Wes Hart, on Aug. 11th, at 2:30 o'clock. An invitation is extended to all. The following program has been arranged: Reading of the scriptures and prayer; Song; Roll call; Quotations from different Authors about women; Select reading by Mrs. B. Smith; Song by Mrs. M. J. Widney and Mrs. Langley; Scrap-book by Mrs. Irwin; Song by the Union; Essay by Mrs. Widney; Select reading by the president.

A country merchant who places a $10 advertisement in his local paper, and flatters himself that he is a liberal advertiser, will be surprised to learn that a yearly "ad" one column in length, in the New York Herald costs the advertiser $39,000. This is the lowest price, and for display on the first page the price is $48,000. The New York Tribune for its lowest, charges $28,754, and the Chicago Tribune $26,000, and those papers are never at loss for advertising to fill their columns. The fact is, merchants find that careful, liberal advertising pays.—Waterloo Press.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

SPENCERVILLE.

Rev. Fryberger will go to Ohio this week to spend a few days.

Mrs. George Baltz and children spent Sunday at this place.

Z. T. Kagey was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. P. Bishop last Sunday.

Several of our young people have been rustivating at Rome City this week.

John Fairfield fell from a scaffold on the new church Monday and was quite seriously hurt.

No preaching in the Lutheran church next Sunday, owing to the absence of the pastor, Rev. Fryberger.

The Lutherans will have a grand reunion picnic, in Baltz's grove, on Saturday, August 13th. The exercises of the day will close with a "pink" festival in the evening.

CONCORD.

Bertha Hennesey visited in Auburn last week.

Ayle Simanton and family visited in Auburn last Sunday.

Sadie Hilderbrandt visited under the parental roof last Sunday.

Mrs. Keeler of Auburn is visiting among relatives here this week.

Mr. McDowell of Auburn was the guest of Miss Emma Morr last Saturday.

Miss Ida Koch commenced a select school last Monday at Pigeon Retreat school house.

Mrs. G. Morr has returned from Garrett bringing her daughter with her, who is convalescent.

Misses Ada Hart and Lulu Ables of Coburntown, were the guests of Belle Hilderbrandt last Sunday.

Several of the girls have come home to enjoy a rest during this very, very warm weather. Among them we notice Misses Emma Morr, Belle Hilderbrandt and Ollie Morr.

Some one entered our house last Tuesday while we were away, and very carefully wrapped the organ in a comforter, and other-wise disarranged things in the sitting-room. We do not know as they would come under the head of burglars, for we have not missed anything yet.

The Quarterly meeting was largely attended Sabbath morning; nearly one hundred partook of the sacrament. Saturday afternoon the Quarterly Conference was well attended, and the business transacted harmoniously. The pastor was made happy in receiving the one thing needful to supply his temporal wants. Rev. J. M. Langley has received a unanimous call to remain on the pastorate of the St. Joe class for another year. J. R. Shilling was elected delegate to represent the church at the approaching annual conference.

COBURNTOWN.

Lorain Saylor and family are visiting with his parents.

Ezra Coburn has got back again to Coburntown after spending the winter in Michigan.

Coburntown Sunday school will picnic with the Newville school Aug. 6th, in Ashelman's grove.

Charley Tustison has been quite poorly for a week or two, caused he thinks by over work and heat; and his wife's health is also very poor.

I am glad our pigeon has come out of her retreat and got into the News again. I began to fear that she had spread her wings and flown to other parts.

Wilmot Coburn has had a sheet iron roof put on his barn which adds much to the looks of it. Wilmot is evidently getting ready for something. I think he will get there by and by.

THE BEST

UNLAUNDRIED SHIRT

ONLY 45
CENTS.

AT J. D. LEIGHTY'S.

John Swaidner and wife, of Springfield, in company with their daughter, in-law Mrs. Mell Monroe, of Kansas City, made us a pleasant call last Sunday.

As I failed to get my items in on time last week, I will try to be a little more prompt in the future, as it makes Mort look awful sour to hand in items after he has gone to press.

Exceptions were taken to Eld. Thomas' sermon last Sunday by some of the members of the church. Perhaps he could explain the matter to their satisfaction by giving them another discourse on the same subject.

Marion Dermott has bought the old cheese factory and will move it into his place and convert it into a barn. Wilson Countryman bought the land it stood on, and some parties from Auburn bought the boiler, so you see Cheeseville is busted.

Miss Rhett Milliman lost a tidy from the back of her chair while at the concert at St. Joe last Saturday evening, on the road home, and as it was a present to her from her blind aunt who knit it, she prized it highly. If any one has or should find it, they will confer a favor by leaving at the post office.

If this hot dry weather continues much longer, I shall go back on my prohibition principals, for in the language of the immortal P. H., give me water or give me beer. A good many wells are drying up, and some are driving their stock two and three miles to water. We don't have to boil our potatoes, as they are already cooked when we dig them.

Al and August Coburn are practicing now days: shooting at a mark with their revolvers. With a little more practice they will be a dead shot; in fact I don't think it safe to be around where they are now. I did object at first to them putting their target on my barn as I didn't want it shot full of holes, but after seeing them practice a while I withdrew my objection. The barn is perfectly safe.

NOTICE TO FARMERS.

S. E. Daniels, formerly head miller in the Anchor Mills, and G. B. Wilson, a practical miller of Iowa and formerly of Spencerville, having rented the Hicksville Flouring Mills, would most respectfully solicit the patronage of the citizens of Hicksville and the surrounding country. We guarantee perfect satisfaction. Bring us your wheat.

Daniels & Wilson

Blacksmith

AND

Repair Shop.

Having secured the services of an experienced workman, I am now prepared to do all kinds of Blacksmithing and Repairing in a first class manner. Special attention given to repairing machinery. Give me a call. Prices reasonable.

A. W. Hall, St. Joe.

THEIR BUSINESS BOOMING.

Probably no one thing has caused such a general revival of trade at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store as their giving away to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Their trade is simply enormous in this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, and all throat and lung diseases cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

Buy your grain sacks of us and have them marked free of charge.

A Disastrous Flood!

Heavy damages done by the over-throw of High Prices, and we will continue same. Good Brown Sugar 5 and 6 cts. Granulated 7 cts. Rosin 5 cts. Alum 5 cts. Salts 5 cts. Bird Seed 8 cts. Salt Peter 12 1/2 cts. Prunes 6 1/2 cts. Good Gingham 6 cts. Dress Goods at your own price. Grain Sacks 18 cts. All goods as cheap as the cheapest. Highest market price paid for Wheat, Oats and Seeds.

S. & F. Barney

STAR WIND ENGINE

TAKES THE LEAD.

E. A. WANEMAKER,
NEWVILLE, IND.

Has the agency for this county. See him, or write for prices on Wind Mills, Tanks, Pumps, Pipe &c. A special feature of the Star Wind Engine is the Regulator. See it before you buy.

Novelty Stationery Package.

Everybody uses more or less stationery, and of course they want a good quality, and they want to buy it as cheap as it can be bought. This can be obtained by buying the Novelty Stationery Package. Sold only by W. C. Patterson, St. Joe. Also a full line of Fancy Note Paper, Pass Books, Scratch Books &c.

LOCALS.

New wheat is bringing 68 cents.
Mrs. Shuler is expected home this week.
One hundred and five in the shade will do.
Sunday school Picnic at Newville Saturday.
Jake White's condition remains about the same.
A band of gypsies passed through town yesterday.
T. P. Keator lectures at Newville to-morrow night.
James Ables Esq., now wears a father-hubbard coat.
The county "dads" have been taking in St. Joe this week.
For once, the excursion train was right on time yesterday.
Geo. Metcalf has been visiting his parents a few days this week.
The Waterloo Fair will be held from the 26th to the 30th of Sept.
Miss Sake Bartlett and Miss Ida Scholes have been at Rome City part of this week.
The Methodist Sunday school will have a picnic here some time in the latter part of this month.
Emanuel Elm left Wednesday night for the west. Should he find a location to suit him he will buy a tract of land.
Ed White added two Eckhart buggies to his livery barn last week. The Eckhart buggy seems to be out selling all others in this part of the county.
There were 227 tickets sold at this place yesterday for Rome City. A great many more would have gone if the weather had not been so extremely hot and dry.
Ladies who are looking for the best Magazine, should by all means subscribe for Demorest's Monthly. Published by W. JENNINGS DEMOREST 15 E. 14th St., N. Y.

What can I use to clean carpets?
Use your husband.

Picnics are now taking the place of socials and festivals.

Mahlon Baker has the foundation laid for his new residence.

Considerable real estate has changed hands in this place in the past month.

Misses Addie Widney and Nina Filley attended the examination last Saturday.

Mell Bishop is putting up a new barn on the lot he recently purchased of Wash Woodcox.

There are 1,500 women in New York who receive salaries for singing in the church choirs.

Editor S. S. Sheffer of the Kendallville News made this office a pleasant call on Monday. He and his family spent the Sabbath in this place, the guests of his brother, Dr. Sheffer.

We noticed Al Weirick with a grip-sack in his hand headed for the depot, Tuesday, and we asked him where he was bound for, and he said he was going to Los Angeles, California. That's all we know about it.

A man by the name of Whirlledge has been awarded the privilege of selling beer on the Defiance fair grounds this fall, paying $365.00 for the right. If we had the letting of such a contract, we wouldn't let it, that's all, for we don't believe that beer ought to be sold on a fair ground, or any other place, for that matter.

Daniels & Wilson, of the Hicksville Flouring Mills, are having a large and constantly increasing run of business. Z. T. Kagey has taken an interest in the mill and will move to Hicksville. Zack is a practical miller and a jolly good fellow, and will make a valuable acquisition to the milling interests of our neighboring city.

They are having some trouble in regard to the post office at Newville. It seems that a petition, signed by a number of the citizens of the town and vicinity, was forwarded to Washington, asking for the removal of Postmaster Weeks, and the appointment of Milo Stafford in his stead. The matter was referred to ex-congressman Robert Lowery, and he, in turn wrote to B. F. Blair in regard to it. Mr. Blair after consulting several of the prominent citizens of Newville, wrote Mr. Lowery not to recommend a change, until he heard from him again. A remonstrance was then gotten up and sent to Washington. Thus the matter stands, and the end is probably not yet.

This is a great age for strikes. In almost every locality they are trying to strike something; if they can't get oil, why they are satisfied with gas. Over east of here a short time ago they claimed to have struck a valuable vein of coal, and now Newville comes to the front and claims to have struck a bonanza in the shape of a mine of mineral substance, such as has been found no where else in the country. It is located underneath a seven acre muck swamp belonging to A. Stepleton, who claims to have taken a sample of it to Fort Wayne, and had it analyzed, and found that it contains properties for scouring and polishing, far superior to any thing that has ever been discovered. It is said that a company has been formed at Fort Wayne for the purpose of getting it into the market. They offer to buy Stepleton's farm at a good round figure, but he wants twenty thousand dollars for it and won't take a cent less. If all reports are true somebody's going to get rich.

MOUNTED WITH THE HERBAND GEAR SYSTEM.

ECKHART CARRIAGE WORKS,

AUBURN, DE KALB CO., IND.

—MANUFACTURER OF—

FIRST CLASS CARRIAGES.

CHARLES ECKHART, PROPRIETOR.

Call on me when in need of a first-class Carriage or Buggy, and I will save you money. I guarantee all work as represented.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencerville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining, Glazing Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcox. Call and see me, or leave orders at the St. Joe Drugstore.

ST. JOE MARKETS.

CORRECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat	68 cts.
Oats	24 cts.
Corn	35 cts.
Butter	10 cts.
Eggs	12 cts.
Tallow	3 1/2 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	50 cts.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

Trains Leave St. Joe as follows:

WESTBOUND.
No. 9 Mail and Express	11:05 A. M.
17 Accommodation	4:18 P. M.
3 Chicago Express	10:42 P. M.
35 Local Freight	3:42 P. M.
EAST BOUND.
No. 10 Express and Mail	2:08 P. M.
16 Accommodation	10:28 A. M.
4 Morning Express	4:55 A. M.
34 Local Freight	7:59 A. M.
W. I. McKee, Agent.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. PRICE 25 cents per box. For sale by W. C. Patterson.

The B. & O. discharged 25 more men last week. Ben Leighty was among the number.

The Y. P. T. E. A. will meet at the residence of Miss Sake Bartlett, on Wednesday evening, Aug. 10th. A good program has been arranged.

Any person wishing to purchase a first class buggy at bed rock prices, inside of the next six weeks, can learn something greatly to their advantage by applying to Dick White, St. Joe, Ind.

Brace Up.

You are feeling depressed, your appetite is poor, you are bothered with Headache, you are fidgety, nervous, and generally out of sorts, and want to brace up. Brace up, but not with stimulants, spring medicines, or bitters, which have for their basis very cheap, bad whisky, and which stimulate you for an hour, and then leave you in worse condition than before. What you want is an alternative that will purify your blood, start healthy action of Liver and Kidneys, restore your vitality, and give renewed health and strength. Such a medicine you will find in Electric Bitters, and only 50 cents a bottle at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store.

Subscribe for the St. Joe News

Last week Jon Bishop and his mother, of Spencerville, went to Hixvill. Tha drove a young four year old colt, an on the wa over tha both expressed a desire to meet a thrashing engine. Tha wanted to see how the colt wood act up. Well, tha diddnt run across one going over, but shure enuff, on ther wa home tha met a thrashing out-fit. When tha saw tha was in fur it, Jon begin to git skared; he told his mother to git out ov the buggy an go down the rode an tel the men who was running the engine to slack up a littel, an not blo the wissel ana, an tu run jist az quiett az tha cood. In the meen tyme Jon had got the colt unhitched fram the buggy, an backed it into fence corner, then he take the colt off tu the othar side ov the rode and tied it tu the fence bi the legs while he braced himself and held onto its hed. Then he moshaned for the engine to cum on steady. Well, it cum an az it aproched the colt diddnt seemed tu mind it at awl, while Jon was trembling like a leaf, an was the worst skart ov the two. After the engine had got bi, tha hitched up and went home, fulli covinced that ther wassent much skare in that colt.

Barcus Q. Hippenhammer.

THE ELECTION OF THE FUTURE.

A Conversation of the Days of Female Suffrage—When They Come.

When the right of suffrage is finally given to women and they both vote and hold office, we may expect to hear candidates for office sized up in the following scathing manner by women at the polls:

"Who are you going to vote for, Bessie?"

"Oh, I really don't know. But don't you think it's just perfectly lovely for us to have the right to vote at all?"

"Oh, it's too awfully jolly for anything. But, do you know I was just worried to death for fear Madam Fittens wouldn't have my dress done in time for election day."

"But she did, I see; and it's just lovely. I was worried awfully over my election bonnet, but it came at the last moment or I wouldn't have come near the polls. Are you going to vote for Mamie Berkeley for City Treasurer?"

"No, I'm not; we've been 'out' for a long time, and I think she's just horrid."

"I think so too; she dresses away beyond her means, and there'd be no living in the same town with her if she was City Treasurer. What do you think of Mrs. St. John for Mayor?"

"Oh, I think she'd be lovely. She has such a queenly manner and dresses in such perfect taste; but most of the girls are voting for Howard Percy for Mayor; he's so handsome, you know."

"Oh, yes; but then he's so conceited, and such a dreadful flirt. He's engaged to half the girls in town just to secure their votes."

"The mean, horrid thing!"

"What do you think of Mrs. Ranter for Congress?"

"I think she'd better stay at home and look after her children. There's six or seven of them running around here now peddling out her tickets. Do tell me, Janie, are my frizzes all coming out?"

"No, they look nicely. How are mine?"

"Lovely! Your hair does frizz, so beautifully. Look at Mr. Meek electioneering for his wife for Representative. They say if she's elected she's going to leave her six-weeks-old baby at home with him while she goes to the capital for the legislative session."

"Think of it! And won't she dress, though. I'd vote for Hugh Mandeville, but they say he's engaged to Helen Smythe, and I can't endure her. She's around here some place trying to get the other girls to vote for Hugh."

"I call that cheeky. But I shan't vote for him. Margie Montague is my candidate. She's going to invite me to Washington if she's elected."

"How lovely that will be! I've half a mind to vote for Margie myself. Do you know, Belle Fielding and Libbie Lavelle have had an awful quarrel over the office of City Councilman?"

"No! How perfectly dreadful!"

"Isn't it? Libbie accused Belle of buying up votes with French bon-bons and boxes of kid gloves; and Belle told right out before everybody that eight of Libbie's upper teeth were false and that her lovely waves are not her own hair."

"How mean of Belle! If I was Libbie I'd never forgive her. I intended voting for Belle, but I shan't now. I cannot conscientiously vote for a girl who could deliberately give another girl away in that shameful manner. It's a mercy she didn't know all I know about Libbie, or the poor girl might have been mortified clear out of the campaign. I shall scratch Belle."

"I've scratched about everybody on my ticket."

"So have I. Most of the girls running for office are so horrid."

"So they are."

Breaking It to Him Gently.

The story is told that a husband was sitting in his store when a letter in a familiar handwriting was handed to him. It was from his wife, whom he had left at home that morning with every assurance of affection and devotion. But the very first sentence startled him, and as he read on the most horrible suspicion seized him: "I am forced to do something that I know will trouble you; but it is my duty to do so. I am determined you shall know it, let the result be what it may. I have known for a week that this trial was coming, but kept it to myself until to-day, when it has reached a crisis and I can keep it no longer. You must not censure me too harshly, for you must reap the reward as well as myself. I do hope it won't crush you. The flour is out. Please send me some this afternoon. I thought by this method you would not forget it." She was right. He didn't.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Acupuncture.

Shampooing, acupuncture, or piercing of the body with needles and the burning of moxas on the skin have from the earliest times formed the staple of Japanese surgical skill. The blind and dumb have always been educated in the first two, and have acquired extraordinary skill as shampooers in many muscular or intestinal complaints. They are allowed to combine music and money-lending with their main calling, and go about toward evening with a low whistle for a street cry. The best of the shampooers know all the superficial muscles, and their services are called in for headache, hysteria, and paralysis. Legrees, too, were conferred on them, with ceremonial robes and white wands surmounted by wooden balls. The medical school, established A. D. 639, had a professor of shampooing with ten pupils, and another of acupuncture with twenty. In 820 five acupuncturists were attached to the imperial palace, being paid by the month, and obliged to keep up their knowledge of their own subjects as well as of the pulse, surgery, botany, and prescribing by studying particular books. Acupuncture is not an invention of the Japanese, the first treatise upon it being attributed to a Chinese under the Sung dynasty, although the form of the needles used and the mode of their employment have been much improved upon by them: tubular needles, for instance, were invented in 1688. It should not be forgotten that Aesculapiades, in the first century of our era recommended needle-puncture for dysentery. The operation consists in driving fine gold, silver, or steel needles from one-half to three-quarters of an inch into the flesh. The needles are of various forms and have spirally-grooved handles for the better twirling of the instrument. The operator holds a needle lightly with the left hand, resting the point upon the skin of the patient. He then inserts it by a slight tap on the handle, given with a small wooden mallet held in the right hand. The needle is then gently pushed and twirled until it penetrates to the proper depth, and after a few seconds is slowly drawn in the same manner, the skin about the puncture being subsequently chafed for a few moments. The number of perforations made at one time varies from one to twenty, and they are oftenest made in the abdomen, to which, however, they are not confined; special treatises laying down the spots to be pierced in various diseases, and one division of study distinguishing on the back the so-called hollow spots (more than a hundred in number)—"where the end of the nerve-fibers are found"—for the application of the needle or the moxa. A faint effort was made to introduce the Japanese needles into England and France in 1825, but although combined with electricity, it came to nothing.—Westminster Review.

The Man on the Horse.

It is a fact that Gen. William H. Lytle had on when he fell at Chicamanga a pair of new black kid gloves. One of the Confederate officers who knew him well and saw him within a few minutes after his death related the fact to us. We refer to Capt. Williams, son of Dr. Williams, of College Hill. Dr. Williams was a very earnest anti-slavery man, but his son had Southern associations, and joined the Confederate army. Another incident of the death of Lytle is that he had a cigar in his mouth, one of a handful that had been given him by Major Bond of Rosecrans' staff. The gallant Lytle was in the thick of the storm and knew it, and handled his brigade with the greatest intelligence until his death. He had refused to dismount when struck by four balls—a whole platoon of Mississippians firing upon "the man on the horse" who was conspicuous above the hazel brush in which the deadly struggle took place.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

A LEAF of the giant water lily (Nelumbo regia) has been known to measure twenty-four feet 9½ inches in circumference, its weight being nearly fourteen pounds. One of the flowers was four feet two inches in circumference, with petals nine inches in length, and weighed 3½ pounds.

Ancient Mining Operations.

That mining operations were carried on in this country by the Romans during their occupation there is abundance of evidence, but nothing in this direction has equalled the discoveries recently made in connection with the St. Domingo mines of Spain. These were worked by the Romans in what may be termed a scientific manner, considering their appliances, for in some of them they actually excavated galleries for draining purposes nearly three miles in length, while in others the water was raised by means of wheels carrying it over rocks. Eight of these have recently been found by the miners who are employed in continuous workings in these old mines and all in a high state of preservation. They are made of wood, the wheels and axles, where the greatest strain would be, being of oak and the other parts of pine. It is estimated that the wheels are at least 1,500 years old, although the wood is in a perfect state of preservation, owing to the water being discharged with metallic salts, including those of copper and iron. It would appear that the wheels must have been worked by men on the tread-mill principle by standing upon one side of it, the water being raised by one wheel into a large basin, and then lifted on the other stage by a second one, and then in the same way by the others. Not the least interesting matter in connection with the discovery is the state in which the wood was found. When wood is placed in water, or near to it, the decay is rather rapid, but there are means by which it can be kept for ages in a good state of preservation, as shown in the case of the St. Domingo mines. Some metallic refuse is found even now efficient for the purpose. Leavening has long been in use for preventing fermentation and decay, which is done by steeping the timber in a corrosive sublimate, the perchloride of mercury. Creosote has also been found an excellent preservative of timber subjected to the action of water. It may also be said that while the Romans knew how to preserve timber underground, the Greeks also knew how to keep it in a good state in their buildings. This they did by charring the timber before placing it in position, so that we are told "the beams of the theater at Herulanum were converted into charcoal by the burning lava which overflowed the city, and after a lapse of more than 1,000 years were found as entire as if they had been formed but yesterday." The same property was known even before this; as the Temple of Ephesus was built on piles charred to prevent them from decay. The history of the past—even in mining it appears after a lapse of 1,000 years—may be of advantage to the miners of the present age.—London Mining Journal.

Scotch Cure for Whooping-Cough.

Old Scottish people, or those conversant with the superstitious and customs of the country, are well aware of the efficacy of the cure which the ass was supposed to have wrought in the case of the whooping-cough, and the following incidents will be read with interest: One afternoon recently a curious display of superstition occurred at Maryhill, within view of the police office. Measels and whooping-cough are prevalent among children in the burg at present, and a traveling candyman and rag gatherer, with a cart drawn by an ass, drew up in front of a row of houses known as "Pirrat's row," a little off of the highway. Two children living in the quarter are afflicted with whooping-cough. It has not transpired what compensation the proprietor of the ass received for the superstitious use of it, in the belief that it would cure the children of the cough, but after a short conversation the mothers of the children took up a position on each side of the ass. One woman then took up a position on each side of the ass. One woman then took one of the children and passed it through below the ass' belly to the other women, the child's face being toward the ground. The woman on the other side caught hold of the child, and giving it a gentle somersault, handed it back to the other woman over the ass, the child's head being turned toward the sky. The process having been repeated three times, the child was taken away to the house, and then the second child was similarly treated. While this was going on two other children were quickly brought to undergo the magical cure. In order that the operation may have its due effect the ass must not be forgotten, and at the close of the ceremony each mother must carry her child to the head of the animal and allow it to eat something, such as bread or biscuits, out of the child's lap. This proceeding having been performed in turn by the four mothers, the prescribed course was concluded. When it began there were not many people present, but before it was finished quite a crowd of spectators had gathered. From inquiries made afterward, it seems the mothers are thoroughly satisfied that their children are the better of the enchantment.—Greenock Telegraph.

The United States and Mexico.

The political relations of the United States with Mexico, whether the people of the government of the former wish it or not, are going to be intimate and complex in the future. The United States is geographically married to Mexico, and there can be no divorce between the parties. Inter-communication between the two countries, which a few years ago was very difficult, is now comparatively easy, and facilities for the same are rapidly increasing. And with the rapid increase of the population in the United States, and with increased facilities for travel, the number of people—restless, adventurous, speculative, or otherwise minded—who are certain to cross the borders into Mexico for all purposes, good and bad, is likely to rapidly increase in the near future. An extensive strip of territory within the Mexican frontier is already dominated, to a great extent, for the purposes of contraband trade by a class of men who acknowledge no allegiance to any government, and whom the Mexican authorities tacitly admit they cannot restrain. Out of such a condition of things, political complications between the two countries, at no distant day, are almost certain to arise. Again, in asserting the "Monroe doctrine," the United States virtually assumes a protectorate over Mexico. For, whatever else the Monroe doctrine may embody, it unmistakably says to Mexico, "You shall not change your form of government." "You shall not enter into any European alliance." "You shall not make concessions of territory, except as we the United States shall approve." and in return, "We will not allow any foreign power, ourselves excepted, to bully, invade, or subjugate you." It may be, and is, replied that the necessity of repelling from the outset any attempt at further aggrandizement of any European power on the North American continent, with its contingent menace to the maintenance of democratic institutions, sufficiently justifies the assertion of the Monroe doctrine, and is for the good of Mexico as well as the United States. But at the same time, if there was any power on the American continent which should arrogate to itself the right to dictate to or control the United States as the United States arrogates to itself the right to dictate or control Mexico, and had sufficiency of power to make its assumptions respectable, could there be any doubt that the people of the federal union would regard such pretensions as a justifiable occasion for hostile protest and defiance.—Popular Science Monthly.

Discharged the Prisoner.

A constable recently brought a man before a justice of the peace in a Dakota "no-license county charged with selling liquor.

"Well, Jim," said the justice, addressing the officer, "where's the licker he was selling?"

"They had just finished drinkin' the last of it, your honor."

"Hey?" thundered the court.

"I say it was all gone 'fore I got there."

"All gone before your got there! Great Scott, where was you all the time? Do you think I am goin' on with a case like this without some licker put in as evidence for the court to sample? Let the prisoner go, and mebbe he'll bring some more to town. And you see that you get around and make your arrest just before he begins to sell, and not after it's all been swallowed by a lot o' fellers that ain't half as dry as the court!"—Dakota Bell.

REAL friendship is a slow grower, and never thrives, unless engrafted upon a stock of known and reciprocal merit.—Chesterfield.

It is very much like striving for the unattainable to wear a pair of tight boots and try to feel good-natured

DUEL OF THE STORKS.

Bitter Combat Between Male Birds, Which Disposed of an Ancient Superstition.

(Pittsburgh Dispatch.)

The popular superstition, according to which storks, when deprived of their mates, are supposed to spend the remainder of their lives in solitary grief, mourning over the loss of their departed one, has just received a rude shock. According to the following account, of which the truth is vouched for, it would appear that the female stork is just as liable to err from the paths of virtue as the remainder of her sex. For several years past a couple of storks had been in the habit of spending the summer months in a comfortable nest, which they had laboriously constructed on the gable end of a barn which formed a part of a farm not far from Buda Pesth. They used to arrive in the early spring, hatch the regular number of eggs, and after spending the hot days of July and August in educating their young would all fly off to warmer climes on the approach of winter. Last summer they arrived as usual, and after a time began to devote all their energies to hatching the eggs. When the hen bird was not setting her husband would gravely take her place, carefully spreading himself in such a manner as to cover all the unborn olive branches of the family. One day, however, just about at the time when the little ones were about to make their entry into the world, a great noise was heard on the roof of the barn. Looking upward the farmer perceived that a new male stork of unusual size and beauty had made his arrival and was engaged in a warm discussion with the couple established in the nest. Clapper, clapper, clapper went the long bills, feathers began to be ruffled, and at length, aroused by some terribly insulting expression on the part of the stranger, the male bird issued forth from his nest and began a pitched battle in defense of his honor and home. The duel lasted for a long time, and the battle waxed fast and furious. Curiously enough, the hen bird did not attempt to take the slightest part in the combat. She showed some evidences of excitement, occasionally stood up in her nest and made some remarks with her bill and wings in stork language, and then sat down again upon her eggs. When the sun went down the strange stork flew away, both of the combatants covered with blood. The hen bird received her lord and master with all the signs of a most exaggerated affection, and appeared to congratulate him on his gallant conduct. The next morning, however, the stranger reappeared and recommenced the battle of the day before. Thoroughly exasperated against the intruder, the farmer got out his gun, and, forgetful of the superstition which exists against killing a stork, fired at the strange bird. Sad to relate, instead of killing the latter, the husband stork fell lifeless to the ground. Curiously enough, the sound of the gun did not appear to create the least impression on the remaining birds. The hen stork did not make the slightest attempt to continue the trouble or to take to flight. She remained quietly setting in her nest, the stranger standing at some distance off. Gradually he began to edge along the ridge of the roof toward the nest, and when he got quite close thereto the hen likewise arose and stood upright. For more than an hour they remained standing next to one another engaged in the most eager discussion. At length they seemed to have come to an understanding. After a moment's pause they suddenly hopped into the nest, and working like very furries they united their efforts in throwing the whole of the eggs out of it on to the ground below. As soon as they had completed this work of destruction they both appeared to be slightly overcome, and for about ten minutes remained standing perfectly still each on one leg, their bills resting on each other's shoulders. At length they simultaneously flew up into the air, and after circling round a few times disappeared out of sight. It may be only a coincidence, but within a few weeks of the above flight not only the barn, but a large portion of the farm, was destroyed by fire, entailing a heavy loss on the proprietor.

Trichiniasis in Italy.

Trichina has been discovered in a human body which was being prepared for anatomical demonstration at the University of Cambrino. The man had lived for many years in a neighboring commune and died without the presence of the trichina being suspected. Peculiar interest attaches to the case for the reason that it is said to be the first case of trichiniasis ever observed in Italy. —Chicago News.

Wrens and Bluebirds Fighting.

The bluebirds early took possession, and in June their first brood had flown. The wrens had been hanging around, evidently with an eye on the place—such little comedies may be witnessed anywhere—and now very naturally thought it was their turn. A day or two after the young bluebirds had flown I noticed some fine, dry grass clinging to the eave of the cavity, a circumstance which I understood a few moments later, when the wren rushed by me into the eave of a small Norway spruce, hotly pursued by the male bluebird. It was a brown streak and a blue streak pretty close together. The wren had gone to house cleaning, and the bluebird had returned to find his bed and bedding being pitched out of doors, and had thereupon given the wren to understand in the most emphatic manner that he had no intentions of vacating the premises so early in the season. Day after day, for more than two weeks, the male bluebird had to clear his premises of these intruders. It occupied much of his time and not a little of his strength, as I sat with a book in a summer-house near by, laughing at his pretty fury and spiteful onset. On two occasions the wren rushed under the chair in which I sat, and a streak of blue lightning almost flashed in my face. One day, just as I had passed the tree in which the cavity was placed, I heard the wren scream desperately; turning, I saw the little varabnd fall into the grass with the wretched bluebird fairly upon him. The latter had returned just in time to catch him, and was evidently bent on punishing him well. But in the squab in the grass the wren escaped and took refuge in the friendly evergreen. The bluebird paused for a moment with outstretched wings looking for the fugitive, then flew away. A score of times during the month of June did I see the wren taxing every energy to get away from the bluebird. He would dart into the store-wall, under the floor of the summer-house, into the weeds—anywhere to hide his diminished head. The bluebird with his bright coat looked like a policeman in uniform in pursuit of some wicked, rusty little street gammer. Generally the favorite house of refuge of the wren was a little spruce, into which their pursuer made no attempt to follow them. The female would sit concealed amid the branches, chattering in a scolding, fretful way, while the male, with his eye upon his tormentor, would perch on the topmost shoot and sing. Why he sang at such times—whether in triumph and derision, or to keep his courage up and reassure his mate—I could not make out. When his song was suddenly cut short, and I glanced to see him dart down into the spruce, my eye usually caught a twinkle of blue wings hovering near. The wrens finally gave up the fight, and their numbers reared their second brood in peace. —Cassell's Magazine.

A Volume in a Paragraph.

"What is the Object of Life?" is the question asked by Prof. G. J. Romanes in the Forum. A flippant paragrapher gives this answer: "One of the chief objects is to live poor and die rich, that those who come after you may live rich and die poor."

It is an ugly way of putting it, but the paragrapher made his cutting little sentence speak volumes.

One reason why Americans break down shortly after middle age is because they "live poor" in more ways than one. They may enjoy many of the luxuries of life, but their business is largely made up of hurry and worry.

It does not pay. Men should enjoy their full share of the sweets of existence as they go along. They are not bound to make themselves miserable on account of posterity. It is a commendable thing for a man to strive to leave a competency to his family, but an ambition to accumulate an immense fortune for his heirs is a very different matter. —Atlanta Constitution.

EVERY man who rises above the common level receives two educations. First, from his instructors; the second, the most personal and important, from himself.

The water in Philadelphia is so dirty that before being used it has to be washed. —Puck.

Tired Languid Dull

Expresses the condition of thousands of people at this season. The depressing effects of the warm weather and that tired feeling so quickly overcome by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It gives strength in place of weakness, gives tone to every organ, creates an appetite, and purifies the blood. Give it a trial now.

"I have been troubled for many years with violent headaches. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I feel like a new being. I earnestly recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all who suffer with headaches." Mrs. E. Satchell, Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists, $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar.

PATENTS R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Initial actions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 10-17 years' experience.

MARVELOUS MEMORY

Wholly unlike artificial systems. Any book learned in one reading. Recommended by Mark Twain, Richard Proctor, the Scientist, Hon. W. W. Astor, Judah P. Benjamin, Dr. Minor, etc. Class of 100 Columbia law students, two classes 300 each at Yale, 300 University of Penn., 300 at Wellesley College, etc. Prospectus sent free. PROCTER, LOISELLE & CO., 237 Fifth Ave., New York.

A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RY

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest, it is the only true middle-link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific. The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centro and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unequalled in the West—unsurpassed in the world. ALL EXPRESS TRAINS between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE PARLOR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kankakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.

All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employees of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly attention.

For Tickets, Maps, Folders—obtainable at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada—or any desired information, address,

R. R. CABLE, E. ST. JOHN, E. A. HOLDROCK, Pres't & Gen'l Mgr, Chicago, Asst Gen'l Mgr, Chicago, Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Agt., Chicago.

This represents a healthy life. Throughout its various scenes.

Just such a life as they enjoy Who use the Smith's Bile Beans.

Smith's BILE BEANS purify the blood, by acting directly and promptly on the Liver, Skin and Kidneys. They consist of a vegetable combination that has no equal in medical science. They cure Constipation, Malaria, and Dyspepsia, and are a safeguard against all forms of fevers, chills and fever, gall stones, and Bright's disease. Send 4 cents postage for a sample package and test the TRUTH of what we say. Price, 25 cents per bottle, mailed to any address, postpaid. DOSE ONE BEAN. Sold by druggists. J. F. SMITH & CO., PROPRIETORS ST. LOUIS, MO.

The original Photograph, panel size, of this picture sent on receipt of 10c. in stamps. Address: BILE BEANS, St. Louis, Mo.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times." Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

Tubs Do Not Exist in Houses and Every River Bank Becomes a Laundry.

The garments, after being washed, are spread upon the rocks and gravel-beds, and the bright sun, which shines here almost daily for eight month in the year, dries them before one has scarcely had time to turn around. This custom of river washing is necessitated by the scarcity of water. There is scarcely any part of the country in which either wells or cisterns are to be found. All the drinking water is brought in pipes tapping the river a few miles above the city, and is conducted to fountains or basins conveniently located in different sections of the town. To and from these reservoirs during all hours of the day, but more especially in the morning and evening, a constant stream of water carriers go and come. Two men with a barrel swung upon a pole, an end of the pole resting upon a shoulder of each; bits of boys with two buckets balanced on a stick in Japanese fashion; women and girls with allers (round earthen jars) of all sizes on their heads or shoulders, keep up an endless procession to and from the fountains. So it will be apparent to every one that, with this state of affairs existing, it is more convenient to take the laundry to the river than to carry the water to the house, and this will serve to show why it will be difficult to introduce the use of tub, wash-board, and clothes-lines.

A few feet from the margin of the river an occasional hole is dug and the water which filters therein through the sand is used by hundreds of families for all domestic purposes. There is so

THE SHIP DIARY.

"June 1—How cold and unfeeling language seems when I try to tell in this little book the wealth of bliss that floods my soul! Alone on the ocean—the boundless ocean—with Willie! I have taken out all the scent bottles, and my lovely toilet set, put up a few vases on the ledges, and made our precious Eden of a stateroom a perfect bower. Willie calls me to come and see the lightship. Dear little diary, I will confide to you my inmost heart, and return to you with fresh confidence very soon. June 2—Oh, dear! I have been on my knees an hour picking up the pieces of my beautiful toilet set. Everything got broken and made a beastly mess. Willie was far from kind, and called me a fool. June 3—I'm wretchedly ill, and Willie stops in the smoking-room. Told me I was a perfect fright. He had no idea I depended so much on dress. June 4—Oh! that I had never left my ma's brownstone front. This is the most dreadful experience. Willie plays poker all the time in the smoking—oh dear! those interruptions are dreadful. June 5—I'm not going to write any more in this dreadful book. Willie's conduct is awful. There isn't a court in the world that will refuse me a divorce, if I should write all that has happened, and put the book into evidence. June 6—Willie sleeps with the doctor."

This is Miss Millicent Melrose's diary: "June 1—We left the wharf in splendid spirits; lovely folks on board; know I'm going to have a just too lovely time. June 2—Passed a very quiet day; most every one sick; don't feel well myself; took a pill. June 3—Captain very attentive. June 4—Wish I could go ashore; captain persecutes me with his attentions; declares his affection in a frightful seafaring manner; asks me to give him a kiss. June 5—The captain is going on like anything; swears if I do not kiss him he will do something dreadful; if I continue obdurate he will scuttle the ship and drown the 700 souls on board. June 6—Seven hundred souls saved."—Texas Siftings.

'A CRUEL RULE,

LOVE is without prudence, and anger is without counsel.

DEALER IN

GUTTERING, HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.

MAIN STREET,

ST. JOE IND.

 All work and goods guaranteed to give satisfaction. Give me a call.

PROPRIETOR OF

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides,
Tallow &c. Give me a call.

DEALER IN

EARTHEN POTS FOR HOUSE PLANTS

PROVISIONS, OYSTERS, LEMONS.

ORANGES, CANDIES, CIGARS &c.

MAIN ST, — — — ST. JOE, IND.

MAKER AND DEALER IN

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

AGENT FOR THE

AND FIELD HARROW,

—000—

Farmers will save money by seeing me before buying. I will call on you with a sample in a few days.
R. G. Coburn, St. Joe, Ind.

Having returned from Tennessee,
I will assist again in

in short all kinds of Rope, Tackle and Jack-screw Work. Having had 15 years experience, and improved machinery, I feel safe in guaranteeing satisfaction. Heavy and difficult work a specialty. Correspondence solicited. Direct all communications to H. or M. Milliman, St. Joe Station, Ind., or A. Monroe, Hicksville, Ohio.

Undertaker and Embalmer. Keeps on hand constantly, a stock of Undertaking Supplies, Coffins, Caskets, Burial Robes &c. I can supply as fine goods as can be furnished. Will attend to making all arrangements for funerals. Calls responded to at all hours of the night. Office on corner of Main and Second Streets; residence on corner of Main and Fourth Streets, St. Joe, Ind.

—DEALER IN—

PRICES

AND JEWELRY.

Repairing done promptly and all work warranted. - Call and see me at Bair & Son's store, Spencerville, Ind.

—DEALER IN—

OF ALL KINDS,

Shingles, Lime, Lath,
MOULDINGS &c.

Large Stock and Prices Low. Yard
Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNES

COLLARS, WHIPS,

HARNES OIL &amp;C.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, AUGUST 12, 1887.

NO. 29.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.
J. M. MILLMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SIEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

MILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind. John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a specialty. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—The following patents have been issued to Indiana inventors: Conant, Ossian, A. C., Terre Haute, flour packer; Gustavel, Louis, G. W., Monticello, hamo tug; Harrod, Sanford H., Canton, and S. J. Lamb, assignors of one-third to W. W. Borden, New Albany, station indicator; Hartman, Charles R., Vincennes, spring hoe attachment for cultivators, seed drills, etc.; Hazen, David H. and D. H. Kirkpatrick, Francesville, fence machine; Jones, William A., Liberty, mail sack; Kelley, George W., Goshen, carpet sweeper; McCann, George, Goodland, power mechanism, for reciprocating plungers; Mendenhall, John C., Indianapolis, sweat-pad fastener; Parks, George W., and Z. C. Mathers, Scottsburg, railway cattle guard; Purcell, William C., assignor of one-half to J. H. Jones, Souersville, axle skein; Speicher, Joseph B. and D. L., Wabash, automatically-supplying watering trough.

—There is much excitement in Martin County, east of Washington, on account of a proposed new bridge over White River, at Hindostan, in that county. The Commissioners decided to build the bridge, but about half the county rebelled and took steps to prevent it, if possible. Attorneys on either side went to Washington, and proceedings were opened before Judge Hoffman to enjoin the Commissioners from contracting for the building of the bridge. The case was argued and the Court granted a restraining order, enjoining the Commissioners from letting the contract until the injunction suit is finally settled in the Martin Circuit Court, which will probably be in September. The bridge, if built, is to cost $10,000. The feeling in Martin is so intense over the matter that the inhabitants of the extreme western part of the county are making arrangements to be annexed to Davies County.

—The Sixty-eighth Indiana Infantry will hold a reunion Aug. 19, at Greensburg, that being twenty-five years from the date of the muster-in to the United States service. The regiment will form and march to the old rendezvous camp on the Cobb farm, when the survivors will again respond to the roll-call. The boys will march under the old silken flag that was presented by the ladies of Greensburg and was saved at the capture at Mumfordsville, Ky., by Col. King secreting it underneath his clothing. Rev. E. H. Wood, of Company K, is expected to deliver the address. All soldiers and citizens are invited to attend what promises to be one of the most pleasant reunions since the war. Every survivor of the regiment is urged to be present. The press will confer a favor by publishing this notice.

—The survivors of the late war, of both the Federal and Confederate armies, will meet in fraternal concourse at Evansville, September 20, 21, 22, and 23, 1887, under the direction of Farragut Post, No. 27, G. A. R., of that city. Among the specially interesting features of the reunion will be the following: Speeches by the most distinguished generals on both sides; infantry, cavalry and battery drills for prizes amounting to $3,100; grand sham battle with 1,000 participants, general "camp-fire" scenes and incidents.

—A peculiar case came up in the Mayor's Court at Vincennes. Charles Bohn had J. H. Bunch arrested for taking off his wife and living with her. Bunch is a blind pensioner, and had quite a sum of money. Mrs. Bohn had a strong liking for the blind Bunch, and she gave her husband the bounce, but it now appears that Bohn really sold his wife to Bunch for $300, and held Bunch's note therefor. The sale was a reality, but the note was never paid; hence the difficulty.

—The subject of water-works is being discussed at Huntington, and a proposition has been received by the Council from water-works contractors, S. P. Bullock & Co., to erect the same. The Council is investigating the different systems, and has committees appointed to visit Muncie, Anderson, Marion, Logansport, and Peru, and inspect the water-works there.

—William Burger, a farmer living near Freedom, Owen County, was found in an unconscious condition in a pasture near his residence. It is supposed that a horse which he was taking to pasture had kicked him, as blood was oozing from his mouth, eyes, and ears. He died in a short time after being removed to his house. He leaves a family.

—The section men on most of the Indianapolis railroads are now kept busy putting out fires which catch from sparks and burn up fences, and in some cases, fields of wheat. Unless there is rain soon, the running of trains will become almost impossible without setting fire to fields and destroying property.

In the northern part of Wabash County the drought is more severe than any known in years. Corn is drying up. No rain has fallen there for over a month. Eel River was never known to be so low before. It has been necessary to shut down mills which were supplied with motive power by this stream.

—While trying to throw a belt from a pulley in Davis Bros' mill at New Castle, John Murray was caught in the belt and thrown against the building with great force. He was rendered insensible for some time and received severe injuries, including sundry cuts and bruises.

—Scarlet fever has broken out in the southern part of Blackford County. The disease assumes first the form of scarlet rash, but directly changes into malignant scarlet fever. The very dry weather has caused the fever to spread with alarming rapidity.

A young man named Goodrich was fatally hurt by a powder explosion while making cartridges at Columbia City.

—At Fort Wayne, Henry Griffith, after coming down stairs at his boarding-house, fell on the floor and died in a few minutes. It is supposed to be a case of heart disease. The deceased was about 35 years old, a stonemason, and leaves a family.

—E. W. Good, a prominent traveling man of Evansville, died suddenly from the effects of a stroke of paralysis and the excessive heat. He was 66 years of age.

Rev. Aaron Wood, D. D., the oldest Methodist minister in the Northwestern Indiana Conference, is very ill at his home in Younsville, Montgomery County.

—The Attorney General has given his opinion to the State Auditor favorable to the claim of Lieutenant Governor Robertson to per diem salary and mileage during the session of the Legislature at which he was not allowed to preside.

—The Huntington Daily Herald published a list of over 120 new houses in process of erection there. The list includes several fine business houses, ranging in cost from $5,000 to $15,000.

—Dr. Lesher Trexler, one of the oldest and most prominent physicians of Fort Wayne, died. He leaves an estate valued at $200,000.

—The 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Boulenger, of Winchester, was fatally burned recently. She was playing with matches and ignited her clothing.

—Mrs. Eli Trost, living two miles north of Connersville, fell across a log, ruptured a blood vessel and died almost immediately.

—Fred Shultz was drowned while bathing near Delphi.

It is said that 600 Chinese in New York are now members of the Knights of Labor, and that many more are about to join the order.

NAMES OF SHIPS.

Ships have always been objects of more than common solicitude and affection both to their owners and to their masters. As one goes along the wharves of a great seaport, and reads the names of the craft lying at their piers, he cannot fail to understand the story which the names of these vessels tell.

From whatever part of the world the ships may have come, their names are, for the most part, feminine. They always have a homely look and a homely sound. The name of the ship most often reminds one of the wife or a daughter in a home where the craft is owned. Ships are christened in a spirit of chivalry and of loyalty. The "Sarah Jane" and the "Martha Ann" visit all climes, but who ever saw the "Patti" or the "Langtry" afloat?

It is also to be noticed that the name of the ships rarely assume the form of pet names. "Sarah Jane" does not become "Sadie," "Jennie," nor does "Martha Ann" appear as "Mattie" or "Annie." This is proof of the conservatism of shipbuilders. It helps to trace the genealogy of ships, for ships have a lineage.

There are successive generations, of them as there are of men and women. They are also grouped in families according to the service they follow.

The permanence of names of ships opens up many questions in history. The name "Mayflower" has reminded the world again and again during the past year of the ship that came into these waters more than two hundred and fifty years ago. But there was a "Mayflower" belonging to the Parliament fleet in 1651. It is pretty certain that she was originally intended for the merchant service, as that fleet was made up of such craft taken into commission on short notice. It would not be strange to find the staunch sea-going ship of 1620 fit for service in 1651. If this was not the "Mayflower" of Puritan fame, it was very probably her daughter.

The continuance of names among war-vessels and merchantmen is quite as noticeable as the permanence of family names. There is now in the British navy a well-known ship called the "Hector." There was a "Hector" in the Parliament fleet which cruised off Ireland in the summer of 1651. There was also a "Swiftsure" in that squadron, and there is a "Swiftsure" now. This permanence of names is good evidence of the affection with which ships are regarded by their owners and their crews.—Youth's Companion.

MORE POWERFUL THAN DYNAMITE.

Old Mr. Bentley—I see that one of these German cannon manufacturers has made a cannon of 46,453 horsepower.

Old Mrs. Bentley—My, but it must be a powerful gun.

Old Mr. Bentley—Yes, but that isn't a circumstance to what they're at work on.

Old Mrs. Bentley—What! something more powerful?

Old Mr. Bentley—Yes, they're perfecting a cannon of one mile power.—Tid-Bits.

PERHAPS you never thought of it, but the most touching thing in nature is a dog's nose.—The Colonel.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILLIAMS. PUBLISHERS.

MORTAL MAN AT REST.

BY RICHARD HALE.

[The following poem was found among the effects of Col. Richard Realf, of California, written the day before he committed suicide, November, 1878.]

"De mortuis nil nisi bonum." When
For me the end has come and I am dead,
And little volubly, chattering daws of men
Peek at me curiously, let it soon be said
By some one brave enough to speak the truth:
Here lies a great son, killed by cruel wrong.
Down all the balmy days of his fresh youth
To his bleak, desolate noon, with sword and
And speech that rushed up hotly from the heart,
He wrought for liberty; till his own wound
He had been stabbed; concealed with painful art.

Through wasting years, mastered him and he swooned.
And sank there where you see him lying now,
With the word "Failure" written on his brow.

But say that he succeeded. If he missed World's honors and world's plaudits and the wage
Of the world's deft lackeys, still his lips were kissed.

Daddy by those high angels who assuage
The thirstings of the poets—for he was Born unto singing—and a burden lay Mighty on him, and he moaned because
He could not rightly utter to this day
What God taught in the night. Sometimes, naïf-like,

Power fell upon him, and bright tongues of flames
And blessings reached him from poor souls in stress;

And benedictions from black pits of shame;
And little children's love; and old men's prayer
And a Great Hand that led him unawares

So he died rich. And if his eyes were blurred
With thick tears, silence he is in his grave.
Gave he his life for the world's good?
Yet broke his heart in the night for the Ker did I

The popular slogan of the age
But shade for her when God himself seemed
to

And all the cheering she could give
He was weary, but he fought the fight,
And stood for simple manhood, and was joyed

To see the anvil broadening of the light
And new earths heaving heavenward from the void.

He loved his fellow-men and for his love was sweet—
Plant daisies at his head and at his feet.

RAISED FROM THE SLUMS.

Adelaide Morrison was metaphysically inclined. She had as yet no specially fixed creed or dogged obstinacies, but at times she would so express herself that one could readily perceive a sort of mental agitation, and divine the uprising of embryo theories concerning much-debated questions. Had her profession been that of letters instead of art, it is quite possible these vague tendencies might have strengthened in time to absolute beliefs, and blossomed or fruited in verse or prose for the delectation of the world at large.

But she was not a writer. And brush and pencil afford one slight opportunity to define one's "isms."

She was not superstitious; yet she believed a good deal in dreams. She had some thoughts on evolution, but did not relinquish her Christian faith. She dearly loved to investigate; and many a psychological problem came to engross her as she toiled away in her sixth-story studio, day after day, far above the rush and clamor of the city, or strolled dreamily homeward when the sun went down.

It was something in this line that occupied her thoughts as she walked westward that pleasant afternoon. The setting sun was full in her face, yet so absorbed was she that she knew naught of it, nor of the noisy tangle of wagons and cabs and street-cars and promenaders, out of whose maze she had safely threaded her way. Instinct impelled her; her gaze was introspective, and her face relaxed into a tender expression, a rather poetic face, with dusky eyes and hair. As she passed away from the central hubbub and through a quieter street, some one touched her arm, and she stopped.

"In a dream as usual," said the blithe voice of a friend. "Been to the matinee?"

Adelaide answered slowly as one just awakened.

"No, I have come from the studio. I would have stopped at your house, Nina, but I did not notice when I passed it."

"Come back," said the other, a pretty little doll of a blonde.

Miss Morrison shook her head.

"No, I must go on home. But you—will you not come with me?" She put a slender, gray-gloved hand upon her friend's arm, and at that gentlest of touches the blonde seemed to melt into accordant motion. They walked at a moderate pace. Adelaide spoke first, looking straight ahead in an abstracted way, while her companion gazed up in her face.

"I cannot tell you what it is, but something is making me very restless to-day. It seems as if some one I have known were in trouble and calling for me—calling, calling in a great despair. If I could only know where to go and find him."

The little friend laughed.

"It is a he."

But Adelaide's somber eyes reflected no pleasure. She went on in the same serious way.

"It seems to me as if I must in some way discover where to go."

When she had said this, they walked along in silence until Nina remarked, suddenly.

"To-morrow is Sunday. Have you anything new to wear?"

The trifling question jarred upon Adelaide at the moment. She did not reply. They had reached her home by this time and they went in together.

Nina resumed upon the topic obviously dearest to her soul.

"My new costume," she said, as they entered the vestibule, "is a perfect poem."

Adelaide was fumbling for her key.

"Yes," she said, mechanically.

"A perfect symphony."

They were ascending the stairs. Adelaide, leading, to the topmost floor, where a sunny parlor made home for the young artist. On the first landing the symphony had been hastily sketched in four movements: bonnet, parasol, gloves, and dress. On the second a brief rhapsody had been audible concerning minor details, and on the third the young lady of fashion had combined a minimum of Christian charity with a preponderance of self-congratulation.

"My dressmaker is such a worthy woman," she said, and works so cheap! Indeed the poor thing has a hard time making ends meet. If you want an opportunity to interest yourself in any one, Adelaide, here it is. I will take you to see her."

Adelaide's parlor had two windows at which white curtains fluttered, for the day had been warm. Before each stood a rocking-chair. She motioned Nina to one and took the other. Then she spoke with an effort, reverting to that of which she had already made mention.

"One person has been in my mind all the afternoon. I had not thought of him before in a long time, and now I cannot help but remember."

Her friend's brightened from languid attitude to one of interest.

"You mean that man who acted so awfully last summer?" she asked.

Miss Morrison replied slowly. A sudden bright color glowed in her face and went away again. At the same moment she seemed to have felt a nervous closing of the throat.

"I mean the man who injured me."

"And you think he is in trouble, and you would go to him?"

Adelaide turned and gazed out of the window. In the street below a junk-cart's noisy bells were jangling. Adelaide's clear profile scarcely stirred.

"I should hope," she answered quickly, "I should hope that I would go to any one in trouble, any one whom I could help."

Nina grew animated.

"I wish," she said, clasping her hands about her knees and leaning forward, eagerly, "I wish you would tell me the whole affair from first to last. You never have done so, and I only know that he acted outrageously."

Adelaide started from her seat, crossed the room and returned.

"There is nothing much to tell. It was trust betrayed—treacherous actions. We were engaged to be married this summer. I had entrusted property to his management. He was thoughtless, criminally thoughtless. He tried to speculate, and lost, and involved me terribly, and finally resorted to falsehoods to screen himself. That is all. He was quite handsome—very fascinating—but he was weak. Please don't ask me any more."

"O Adelaide! It's so very—romantic!"

"It was very terrible," said Miss Morrison, "very terrible. But I never mind. I have tried to forget. Let it pass. It was bitterer injury than you could dream of."

She stood up and paced the room. "I wish you would take me to see your dressmaker," she said presently. "A widow with many children, no doubt."

"Widow? Yes; but only one child: a little lame boy. We'll go the first of the week."

"No," said Adelaide, impatiently, "now, let us not put it off."

"But, my dear, I will if you insist. We'll go this evening after dinner."

In the afterglow of the same sunset through which Adelaide Morrison had gone home, a man was staggering blindly across another section of the town. His face was toward the East, and his uncertain footsteps bore him through streets of sin and squalor. Sometimes he paused and tottered as if ready to sink to the ground; then again he seemed to pluck new strength from despair. His bloodshot eyes had the look of fever. His dishevelled hair had here and there a streak of gray. Yet he was not old, save with present misery. His face was unshaven, and he breathed with parched lips.

As the afterglow turned to purple haze he struggled at last into a neighborhood near the eastern edge of the great island—a neighborhood where only at intervals one saw a house that was not tenement; where children swarmed upon the pavement and shrieked aloud their pitiful emotions! The neighborhood of the slaves of the world. Into this neighborhood the man staggered to seek one door of many and to drag himself step by step up barren stairways to a garret yet more barren. Friendless, penniless, hopeless! Run to the end of his rope. "Only to die," he moaned, as he fell across his miserable bed. Where were his former trials, the gay, the careless? What would they do for him? Who would stretch out a hand to save him?

And then one word came huskily from his parched throat—the name of a woman—a soft, sweet name.

He lay there alone and unsuccored, in darkness closed around him. By and by, a long time after, some one pushed the door ajar, peered shyly into the gloom, and turned away, with light, irregular footfall. The little, lame child of a neighbor had been the only one to think or care.

Miss Morrison and her friend Nina were late in calling upon the dressmaker. The poor woman was eating her supper by lamplight in the swift and greedy fashion of her half-starved, overworked kind. Her child sat opposite her—a wan little elf with jetty hair and unearthly eyes. He gazed at Adelaide as though fascinated—the spoon dropped from his hand, his cup of tea remained untouched.

Miss Morrison spoke very gently:

"My dear, how old are you?"

"Eight," said the child. Then, in strange confusion, and quite as if the artist's dark, mild eye had wrested the confidence from him, "there's a man sick upstairs."

"A man that is sick, my dear?" Miss Morrison repeated.

"I heard him groan," said the child, pausing, as if to make sure of the word, "and I looked in, but I couldn't see—because it was—so—dark."

Miss Morrison glanced at the mother, who nodded assent.

"It's true," she said, wearily. "God knows us poor folks have our troubles. He ain't been long in the house, and looks as though he'd lived better. I met him on the stairs last night. He came up groaning and didn't see me. It's hard to be sick and without friends or money."

"I think," said Adelaide, slowly, "that I should like to go and see if I could do anything for him."

Her friend interposed.

"Oh, Adelaide, don't. It might be contagious!"

A faint shade of scorn came over Miss Morrison's face. She arose quickly.

"Little boy," she said, "will you show me the way?"

She borrowed a lamp of the dressmaker, and the lame little child went on before her. The door was still ajar. They pushed it wider and entered.

She set the lamp upon the table. She was cold from head to foot. She bade the child go down and finish his supper; and when he had gone she bent and touched the prostrate form, laying her cool hand upon one that burned with fever, and speaking quietly one word:

"Ronald!"

At the sound and the touch he stirred and moaned aloud:

"Adelaide, Adelaide, only forgive!"

Her swift glance swept the room and read its wretchedness. She could see his past since they had parted—the reckless, ruinous past that had stretched him here and left him to his death.

Evil companions and evil ways! Where had he been, to what had he fallen since that dark morning in the summer past? And how strangely had she been guided! Either! What might it all portend? A friend's friend, a woman who toiled with needle, a little lame child! And a voice crying all day long in her ears that Ronald Power was in distress!

He stirred again and moaned her name. Was he so very ill? Would he recover? It gave her a terrible pang to think that he might not. And all at once she felt hard soles arising in her throat.

Yet the darkest night leads to another dawn.

And when the summer Sabbath wrapped the earth in glory, and the splendor of the sunrise transfigured land and sea, and the twitter of a single bird was echoed by another and another until a million were alive on tree or house-top, Ronald Power awakened and beheld the sweet countenance he had thought to see no more.

"Adelaide!" he said, "O, Adelaide!" and covered his face.

But Adelaide had prayed for strength and was calm.

"By and by," she said when he pleaded for forgiveness, "let and by we will talk. I knew that you have sinned. You must be forgiven."

And then she stooped and kissed him and touched his forehead with her lips.

And from that hour it was a new life.

Workman on a ladder.

The writer, however, in the own living, and often in the family. In London, however, every day. Hundreds are employed in the post-office, in some of the insurance companies as cashiers and book-keepers, in trading engineers' plans, in typewriting, in telephone work and cigarette-making—all employment of comparatively recent date, for it is not so many years ago since the trial of female clerks in the clearing-house of the post-office was thought a wonderful innovation, and one which many wise heads predicted much evil of. There are besides, of course, the very large number of working women in the more ordinary sense—the dressmakers, milliners, and shop assistants. Among the latter, says the Brooklyn Magazine, perhaps it is truest that we know little of how they live. One thing is not half known about them, and that is, the large number of the girls and women employed in London at a rate of payment which is quite inadequate for them to live upon, however careful they may be. The rare generally dressmakers or milliners' assistants, sometimes attendants in second-rate shops. It is a common thing for these women to earn eight shillings a week or less. They think themselves well off when they earn nine shillings a week—and the work is not constant, because when the time are hard or the slack season hits in they are turned off. They will go day after day to some of the shops where their work is known and in the waiting-room on the chance of an odd hand being wanted. With savings is only a part of the hour she'd make it is well thought; the girls work pays the rent if it does not always keep her, and she is not without food or shelter during the time work fails. But it is wholly different with the young woman who has no home but what she pays for. If she is quiet and respectable she generally lodges with some fellow-worker older than herself who has furniture. She pays two shillings a week for a bed in the same room and for her share of the firing and light. She buys her own food and cooks it herself. Six shillings for a week is not very much, every one will allow; but when we show that the recipient is expected to dress well—that is, respectably—and find herself in boots, hat in going out in all weather her clothes wear out more quickly, no one need be surprised that her wages alone can not keep her and dress her.

A new theory of the final destruction of the earth is that the polar ice is penetrating the interior of the globe like a wedge, and that as soon as it reaches the furnace there will be an explosion that will split the world into pieces too small for trucks.

Painless Regulation.
It is no longer a question of doubt—although the contrary was once believed—that medicines which produce violent effects are unsuited to other than desperate emergencies. In other words, that super-potent remedies are calculated to weaken and injure the system rather than reform its irregularities. Among medicines of debilitating effect are cathartics and cholagogues which copiously and abruptly evacuate the bowels. Because it does not do this, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is preferable to the droning class of purgatives. Painless in its effects, it is sufficiently active to remedy chronic constipation. It relieves by invigorating the intestines, and enables, not to force, them to perform the duty imposed upon them by nature. Promoting the secretion of bile in normal quantities by its healthfully stimulating effect upon the liver, it is eminently conducive to digestion, and contributes in no small degree to keep the bowels regular.

Queer Freak of Insomnia.
To illustrate the alleged sleepiness of a certain college town the following story is told: A certain professor, who made the unusual complaint of insomnia, was advised to consult a New York physician. He did so, and the latter, after a most thorough examination of heart, lungs, and all the vital organs, pronounced the professor absolutely sound. "I am at a loss," the doctor said, "to account for it. You seem perfectly well. Perhaps something is prying upon your mind?" "O, no," said the professor, "nothing at all." "Perhaps you have some business cares?" "No; nothing of that sort." "And yet you say that you get no sleep at night?" "O, no! I never said that. I'm all right at night; but it's insomnia in the daytime that bothers me!"—New York Independent.

A LEADING physician has made the startling revelation that six thousand people, mostly children, die yearly in this country from the effects of cough mixtures containing morphia or opium. Red Star Cough Cure contains neither opiates nor poisons; purely vegetable.

AN unmixed evil—whisky straight.—Burlington Free Press.

MARCH, 1882. Rev. L. N. St. Onge, P. P. Indian Missionary, Glen Falls, N. Y., wrote: "A single application of St. Jacobs Oil relieved me of rheumatism." October 29, 1886, he writes again: "It cured me then."

A Pet Wild Cat.
An old German farmer, living about ten miles back of Sebawing, Mich., has a wild cat for a pet. It was caught when very young, but has now been the familiar friend of the farmer for eight years. It follows him like a dog and truly loyal, with but one exception, and that is that he dotes on chickens. This is slightly offset by the fact that he can kill more rats than 1,000 tame cats.—Chicago Herald.

Blowing Up Hell Gate.
Has been a laborious and costly work, but the end justifies the effort. Obstruction in any important channel means disaster. Obstructions in the organs of the human body bring inevitable disease. They must be cleared away, or physical wreck will follow. Keep the liver in order, and the pure blood courses through the body, conveying health, strength, and life; let it become disordered and the channels are clogged with impurities, which result in disease and death. No other medicine equals Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" for acting upon the liver and purifying the blood.

Preventing Cruelty.
Two boys walking down a suburban street, each with a collection of bird's eggs in his hat, were accosted by a young lady with:
"For shame, you little imps—you are both deserving sound punishment!"
"Aw, rats! If we didn't take the eggs some of the other boys'd stone the birds when they hatched! Anyhow, the bird crop around Detroit'll be light; 'less Bill an' me breaks our necks!"—Detroit Free Press.

No Trouble to Swallow
Dr. Pierce's "Pellets" (the original "little liver pills"), and no pain or griping. Cure sick or bilious headache, sour stomach, and cleanse the system and bowels. 25 cts. a vial.

A BOY'S upper lip is like Banquo's ghost when it will not down.

Pisó's Remedy for Catarrh is agreeable to use. It is not a liquid or a snuff. 50c.
PREVENT crooked boots and blistered heels by wearing Lavin's Patent Heel Supporters.

BOATMEN on the Seine receive 15 francs for each dead body they find in the river in the department of the Seine. In the two adjoining departments no reward is paid. It has now been discovered that all dead bodies found above or below the prescribed limits have been carefully towed down or up stream until they could be profitably passed over to the police.

Good Health
You cannot have without pure blood; therefore, to keep well, purify the blood by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine is peculiarly designed to act upon the blood, and through that upon all the organs and tissues of the body. It has a specific action, also, upon the secretions and excretions, and assists nature to expel from the system all humors, impure particles, and off to matter through the lungs, liver, bowels, kidneys, and skin. It effectually aids weak, impaired, and debilitated organs, invigorates the nervous system, and tones the digestion.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Sold by all druggists, $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.
100 Doses One Dollar.

PATENTS R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Just attorneys and opinions as to patentability FREE. 15-17 years' experience.

LIVER, BLOOD AND LUNG DISEASES.

LIVER DISEASE AND HEART TROUBLE.

Mrs. MARY A. McCLEURE, Columbus, Kans., writes: "I addressed you in November, 1884, in regard to my health, being afflicted with liver disease, heart trouble, and female weakness. I was advised to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Favorite Prescription and Pellets. I used one bottle of the 'Prescription,' five of the 'Discovery,' and four of the 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' My health began to improve under the use of your medicine, and my strength came back. My difficulties have all disappeared. I can work hard all day, or walk four or five miles a day, and stand it well; and when I began using the medicine I could scarcely walk across the room, most of the time, and I did not think I could ever feel well again. I have a little baby girl eight months old. Although she is a little delicate in size and appearance, she is healthy. I give your remedies all the credit for curing me, as I took no other treatment after beginning their use. I am very grateful for your kindness, and thank God and thank you that I am as well as I am after years of suffering."

LIVER DISEASE.

Mrs. I. V. WEBBER, of Yorkshire, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., writes: "I wish to say a few words in praise of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' For five years previous to taking them I was a great sufferer; I had a severe pain in my right side continually; was unable to do my own work. I am happy to say I am now well and strong, thanks to your medicines."

Chronic Diarrhea Cured.—D. LAZARRE, Esq., 575 and 577 Decatur Street, New Orleans, La., writes: "I used three bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and it has cured me of chronic diarrhea. My bowels are now regular."

"THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, and bodily health and vigor will be established. Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the worst Scrofula, or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing Salt-rheum or Tetter, Fever-sores, Hip-joint Disease, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Enlarged Glands, and Eating Ulcers.

INDIGESTION BOILS, BLOTCHES.

Rev. F. ASBURY HOWELL, Pastor of the M. E. Church, of Silverton, N. J., says: "I was afflicted with catarrh and indigestion. Boils and blotches began to arise on the surface of the skin, and I experienced a tired feeling and dullness. I began the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as directed by him for such complaints, and in one week's time I began to feel like a new man, and am now sound and well. The 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets' are the best remedy for bilious or sick headache, or tightness about the chest, and bad taste in the mouth, that I have ever used. My wife could not walk across the floor when she began to take your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' Now she can walk quite a little ways, and do some light work."

HIP-JOINT DISEASE.

Mrs. IDA M. STRONG, of Ansonia, Ind., writes: "My little boy had been troubled with hip-joint disease for two years. When he commenced the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' he was confined to his bed, and could not be moved without suffering great pain. But now, thanks to your 'Discovery,' he is able to be up all the time."

CONSUMPTION, WEAK LUNGS, SPITTING OF BLOOD.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. While it promptly cures the severest Coughs it strengthens the system and purifies the blood.

It rapidly builds up the system, and increases the flesh and weight of those reduced below the usual standard of health by "wasting disease."

Consumption.—Mrs. EDWARD NEWTON, of Harrowsmith, Ont., writes: "You will ever be praised by me for the remarkable cure in my case. I was so reduced that my friends had all given me up, and I had also been given up by two doctors. I then went to the best doctor in these parts. He told me that medicine was only a punishment in my case, and would not undertake to treat me. He said I might try Cod Liver oil if I liked, as that was the only thing that could possibly have any curative power over consumption so far advanced. I tried the Cod Liver oil as a last treatment, but I was so weak I could not keep it on my stomach. My husband, not feeling satisfied to give me up yet, though he had bought for me everything he saw advertised for my complaint, procured a quantity of your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I took only four bottles, and, to the surprise of everybody, am to-day doing my own work, and am entirely free from that terrible cough which harassed me night and day. I have been afflicted with rheumatism for a number of years, and now feel so much better that I believe, with a continuation of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I will be restored to perfect health. I would say to those who are failing a prey to that terrible disease consumption, do not do as I did, take everything else first; but take the 'Golden Medical Discovery' in the early stages of the disease, and thereby save a great deal of suffering and be restored to health at once. Any person who is still in doubt, need but write me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply, when the foregoing statement will be fully substantiated by me."

GIVEN UP TO DIE.

Ulcus Cured.—ISAAC E. DOWNS, Esq., of Spring Valley, Rockland Co., N. Y. (P. O. Box 28), writes: "The 'Golden Medical Discovery' has cured my daughter of a very bad ulcer located on the thigh. After trying almost everything without success, we procured three bottles of your 'Discovery,' which healed it up perfectly." Mr. Downs continues:
Consumption and Heart Disease.—I also wish to thank you for the remarkable cure you have effected in my case. For three years I had suffered from that terrible disease, consumption, and heart disease. Before consulting you I had wasted away to a skeleton; could not sleep nor rest, and many times wished to die to be out of my misery. I then consulted you, and you told me you had hopes of curing me, but it would take time. I took five months' treatment in all. The first two months I was almost discouraged; could not perceive any favorable symptoms, but the third month I began to pick up in flesh and strength. I cannot now recite how, step by step, the signs and realities of returning health gradually but surely developed themselves. Today I tip the scales at one hundred and sixty, and am well and strong.
Our principal reliance in curing Mr. Downs' terrible disease was the "Golden Medical Discovery."

Bleeding from Lungs. JOSEPH F. McFARLAND, Esq., Athens, La., writes: "My wife had frequent bleeding from the lungs before she commenced using your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She has not had any since its use. For some six months she has been feeling so well that she has discontinued it."

Golden Medical Discovery is Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00 per Bottle, or Six Bottles for $5.00.

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors, No. 663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times."
Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

FRAZER AXLE GREASE.
Best in the World. Get the genuine. Every package has our Trade-mark and is marked Frazer's. SOLD EVERYWHERE.
KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Sure relief. Price 35 cts. ASTHMA. Write for sample. Stowell & Co., Charlestown, Mass.

MARVELOUS MEMORY DISCOVERY.
Wholly unlike artificial systems. Any book learned in one reading. Recommended by Mark Twain, Richard Proctor, the scientist Hon. W. W. Astor, Judah P. Benjamin, Dr. Minor, etc. A class of 100 Columbia law students, two classes 200 each at Yale, and University of Penn., 300 at Wellesley College, etc. Prospectus post free. Price, 10c. L. S. L. 237 Fifth Ave., New York.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

PILES. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is a sure cure for blind, bleeding or itching piles. Cure guaranteed. Price 50c and $1. At drugists or mailed by Wm. B. Williams & Marvin, Who. Ohio, Agents, Toledo, Ohio.

CONSUMPTION, WEAK LUNGS, SPITTING OF BLOOD.

GENERAL DEBILITY. Mrs. PARMELIA BRUNDAGE, of 162 Lock Street, Lockport, N. Y., writes: "I was troubled with chills, nervous and general debility, with frequent sore throat, and my mouth was badly tattered. My liver was inactive, and I suffered much from dyspepsia. I am pleased to say that your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets' have cured me of all these ailments and I cannot say enough in their praise. I must also say a word in reference to your 'Favorite Prescription,' as it has proven itself a most excellent medicine for weak females. It has been used in my family with excellent results."

Dyspepsia.—JAMES L. COLBY, Esq., of Tuckton, Houston Co., Minn., writes: "I was troubled with indigestion, and would eat heartily and grow poor at the same time. I experienced heartburn, sour stomach, and many other disagreeable symptoms common to that disorder. I commenced taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' and I am now entirely free from the dyspepsia, and am, in fact, healthier than I have been for five years. I weigh one hundred and seventy-one and one-half pounds, and have done as much work the past summer as I have ever done in the same length of time in my life. I never took a medicine that seemed to tone up the muscles and invigorate the whole system equal to your 'Discovery' and 'Pellets.'"

Dyspepsia.—THERESA A. CASS, of Springfield, Mo., writes: "I was troubled one year with liver complaint, dyspepsia, and sleeplessness, but your 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me."

Chills and Fever.—Rev. H. E. MOSLEY, Montmorency, S. C., writes: "Last August I thought I would die with chills and fever. I took your 'Discovery' and it stopped them in a very short time."

"THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, and bodily health and vigor will be established. Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the worst Scrofula, or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing Salt-rheum or Tetter, Fever-sores, Hip-joint Disease, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Enlarged Glands, and Eating Ulcers.

and can walk with the help of crutches. He does not suffer any pain, and can eat as well as any one. It has only been about three months since he commenced using your medicine. I cannot find words with which to express my gratitude for the benefit he has received through you."

A TERRIBLE AFFLICTION. Skin Disease.—The "Democrat and News," of Cambridge, Maryland, says: "Mrs. ELIZA ANN POOLE, wife of Leonard Poole, of Williamsburg, Dorchester Co., Md., has been cured of a bad case of Eczema by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The disease appeared first in her feet, extended to the knees, covering the whole of the lower limbs from feet to knees, then attacked the elbows and became so severe as to prostrate her. After being treated by several physicians for a year or two she commenced the use of the medicine named above. She soon began to mend and is now well and hearty. Mrs. Poole thanks the medicine has saved her life and prolonged her days." Mr. T. A. AYRES, of East New Market, Dorchester County, Md., vouches for the above facts.

Mr. T. A. AYRES, of East New Market, Dorchester County, Md., vouches for the above facts.

CONSUMPTION, WEAK LUNGS, SPITTING OF BLOOD.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. While it promptly cures the severest Coughs it strengthens the system and purifies the blood.

It rapidly builds up the system, and increases the flesh and weight of those reduced below the usual standard of health by "wasting disease."

Consumption.—Mrs. EDWARD NEWTON, of Harrowsmith, Ont., writes: "You will ever be praised by me for the remarkable cure in my case. I was so reduced that my friends had all given me up, and I had also been given up by two doctors. I then went to the best doctor in these parts. He told me that medicine was only a punishment in my case, and would not undertake to treat me. He said I might try Cod Liver oil if I liked, as that was the only thing that could possibly have any curative power over consumption so far advanced. I tried the Cod Liver oil as a last treatment, but I was so weak I could not keep it on my stomach. My husband, not feeling satisfied to give me up yet, though he had bought for me everything he saw advertised for my complaint, procured a quantity of your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I took only four bottles, and, to the surprise of everybody, am to-day doing my own work, and am entirely free from that terrible cough which harassed me night and day. I have been afflicted with rheumatism for a number of years, and now feel so much better that I believe, with a continuation of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I will be restored to perfect health. I would say to those who are failing a prey to that terrible disease consumption, do not do as I did, take everything else first; but take the 'Golden Medical Discovery' in the early stages of the disease, and thereby save a great deal of suffering and be restored to health at once. Any person who is still in doubt, need but write me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply, when the foregoing statement will be fully substantiated by me."

GIVEN UP TO DIE.

Ulcus Cured.—ISAAC E. DOWNS, Esq., of Spring Valley, Rockland Co., N. Y. (P. O. Box 28), writes: "The 'Golden Medical Discovery' has cured my daughter of a very bad ulcer located on the thigh. After trying almost everything without success, we procured three bottles of your 'Discovery,' which healed it up perfectly." Mr. Downs continues:
Consumption and Heart Disease.—I also wish to thank you for the remarkable cure you have effected in my case. For three years I had suffered from that terrible disease, consumption, and heart disease. Before consulting you I had wasted away to a skeleton; could not sleep nor rest, and many times wished to die to be out of my misery. I then consulted you, and you told me you had hopes of curing me, but it would take time. I took five months' treatment in all. The first two months I was almost discouraged; could not perceive any favorable symptoms, but the third month I began to pick up in flesh and strength. I cannot now recite how, step by step, the signs and realities of returning health gradually but surely developed themselves. Today I tip the scales at one hundred and sixty, and am well and strong.
Our principal reliance in curing Mr. Downs' terrible disease was the "Golden Medical Discovery."

Bleeding from Lungs. JOSEPH F. McFARLAND, Esq., Athens, La., writes: "My wife had frequent bleeding from the lungs before she commenced using your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She has not had any since its use. For some six months she has been feeling so well that she has discontinued it."

Golden Medical Discovery is Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00 per Bottle, or Six Bottles for $5.00.

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors, No. 663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

Celebrated Eye Water.
The Oldest Medicine in the World is probably Dr. Isaac Thompson's. This article is a carefully prepared physician's prescription, and has been in constant use for nearly a century, and notwithstanding the many other preparations that have been introduced into the market, the use of this article is constantly increasing. If the directions are followed it will never fail. We particularly invite the attention of physicians to its merits. John L. Thompson, Sons & Co., Troy, N. Y.
PENSIONS COLLECTED AND INCREASED by Fitzgerald & Powell, Indianapolis, Ind. Old cases reviewed. Send for copy of laws, etc.
N. U. F. W. No. 33-87
When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

On the 20th of the month of August, 1904, at the extraordinary low rate of for the month of August.

The 20th of the month of August, 1904, at the extraordinary low rate of for the month of August.

The 20th of the month of August, 1904, at the extraordinary low rate of for the month of August.

The 20th of the month of August, 1904, at the extraordinary low rate of for the month of August.

The 20th of the month of August, 1904, at the extraordinary low rate of for the month of August.

The 20th of the month of August, 1904, at the extraordinary low rate of for the month of August.

The 20th of the month of August, 1904, at the extraordinary low rate of for the month of August.

The 20th of the month of August, 1904, at the extraordinary low rate of for the month of August.

The 20th of the month of August, 1904, at the extraordinary low rate of for the month of August.

The 20th of the month of August, 1904, at the extraordinary low rate of for the month of August.

The 20th of the month of August, 1904, at the extraordinary low rate of for the month of August.

The 20th of the month of August, 1904, at the extraordinary low rate of for the month of August.

The 20th of the month of August, 1904, at the extraordinary low rate of for the month of August.

Residents of the City of...

Residents of the City of...

Residents of the City of...

Residents of the City of...

Residents of the City of...

Residents of the City of...

Residents of the City of...

Residents of the City of...

Residents of the City of...

Residents of the City of...

Residents of the City of...

Residents of the City of...

Residents of the City of...

Residents of the City of...

Residents of the City of...

THE BEST

UNLAUNDRIED SHIRT

ONLY 45 CENTS

AT J. D. LEIGHTY

Mrs. Hennery has been quite ill for the past week, but at present is some better.

Harry Buchanan and Bert Pearson made a business trip to Auburn.

Mrs. M. J. Dawson, of North Creek, Mich., is the guest of her sister for a few weeks.

Mrs. J. Mangley and Mrs. S. Bailey were the guests of Mrs. F. H. H. on last Wednesday afternoon.

Joe Koch, who rents down Auburn, and James Baker, in the slams at Race City, on Friday day.

George Baker says there is no place for him just for now. He wants to stay a week or so.

Thelma Rickett has been getting on, but not feeling well all summer and does not seem to be getting any better.

Thelma and wife of P. H. C. were the guests of other friends at the Jenkins' last Saturday and Sunday.

A fine looking dog was run over by the cars and killed one of the corners one day this week. It is supposed to have been the property of John Taylor.

Nathan Wyatt is again in the middle and is in very feeble health, not being able to speak above a whisper. He is at present staying with his aunt, Mrs. Nancy Wyatt.

There was a sound of revelry in the night, for about fifty fair maidens and brave boys gathered at the hidden banquet residence last Wednesday evening to surprise Betty upon her twenty-first birthday. And it was a success, for she had not received a hint of it. She received a great many nice presents, among them was a beautiful gold ring. The refreshments were prepared and taken in by the girls, which the boys pronounced perfectly splendid. Now we do not know which the boys meant, the girls or the supper.

The days are getting shorter. Picnic at Spencerville to-morrow. Buy your grub sacks of us, and have them marked free of charge.

Several persons from this place attended the prohibition picnic at Hicksville, Monday.

A Disastrous Flood!

Heavy damages done by the over-throw of High Prices, and we will continue same. Good Brown Sugar 5 and 6 cts. Granulated 7 cts. Rosin 5 cts. Alum 5 cts. Salts 5 cts. Bird Seed 8 cts. Salt Peter 12 1/2 cts. Prunes 6 1/2 cts. Good Gingham 6 cts. Dress Goods at your own price. Grain Sacks 18 cts. All goods as cheap as the cheapest. Highest market price paid for Wheat, Oats and Seeds.

S. & F. Barney

Everybody uses more of these rationers, and of course they stand a good quality, and they value for their being cheap as if you had bought them. This can be obtained for a price in the Novels' Stationery Pack, and sold only by W. C. Patterson, St. Paul. Also a full description No. 1000. Press Locks, and the Books are.

There's a boy, like a new chip with a heart of gold.

Somebody coming out early in the light.

Seven poems and articles were crowded out of this issue. They will appear next week.

Prof. J. E. T. L. A. will meet at the residence of Rev. J. M. Langley, on Wednesday evening, Aug. 17th. A good program has been arranged.

A letter received this week, contains the joyful news that H. K. Reynolds is the proud father of a baby. We'll bet ten cents that Henry is not "stuck up" for anything.

Mrs. Hugh Nelson, mother of Mr. W. C. Patterson, of this place, died at her home in Hicksville, Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock. The funeral occurs to-day at half past ten o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson have the sympathy of the entire community in this sad affliction.

son William, wife, and son of ing to be visiting in town opposed the guest of Mr. J. H. er. A. LARSEN.

Some undisciplined fellows enter the Nova Theatre's indoor patch of asphalt each week and soke the benches with their "No's." Nels thinks he knows who the chaps were, and he will make it good—God better for them than the ax that has been for the past two weeks.

* The picnic at Newville last Saturday was one of those pleasant occasions that go to make life pleasant. The day was beautiful, and the place selected for holding the picnic could not have been more desirable. The exercises were all good, and the managers certainly have the gratification of knowing that everything proved a success.

The Spencerville correspondent of the Auburn Dispatch last week copied an article we published in the News some time ago in regard to the mail arrangements between here and Spencerville, and then he asked: "Does it hurt?" We suppose that he means to imply that St. Joe feels badly hurt because Spencerville has a daily mail. No indeed, Mr. correspondent, we don't feel the least bit hurt; in fact we're glad of it, and you remember rightly, most of our citizens signed the petition asking for this same daily mail. Hurt, what should it hurt, when it is a great accommodation to our citizens. It is often a difficult matter to reach these little towns off of the railroad, that only have a mail twice or three times a week, but by this arrangement we can get mail to Spencerville every day. No, it don't hurt.

Wheat	1.8 cts.
Oats	84 cts.
Corn	35 cts.
Butter	10 cts.
Eggs	1.29 cts.
Tallow	50 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	50 cts.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R. to be derived therefrom. Every teacher should be present. Notify Trains leave for Joe as follows:

WESTBOUND.
No. 9 Mail and Express	11:05 A. M.
17 Accommodation	1:18 P. M.
3 Chicago Express	10:42 P. M.
35 Local Freight	3:42 P. M.

EASTBOUND.

No. 10 Express and Mail	2:08 P. M.
16 Accommodation	10:28 A. M.
4 Morning Express	4:55 A. M.
34 Local Freight	7:59 A. M.

W. I. McKEE, AGENT.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.
THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Childbed Sores, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. PRICE 25 cents per box. For sale by W. C. Patterson.

J. D. Leighty is in Cleveland this week buying goods.

Dan Baker loaded one thousand bushels of oats into a car Tuesday.

Grant Burchfield is learning the harness trade with Frank Walker, Saturday, and while out on his rounds their six months old twin babies took very sick and died. Arrange-

John Hull and Frank Walker have decorated the fronts of their buildings with tasty signs.

The Lutheran Sunday school of this place will attend the picnic at Spencerville to-morrow.

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

THE PHILADELPHIA RECORD.

Senator La Fayette Foster, of Ohio, told a story about Gov. Trumbull of his State, who, on the occasion of a grand visit, ascended a block and attempted by a speech to quiet the people, when a random missile hitting him in the head felled him to the ground. He was badly hurt, and as his friends were carrying him into his house his wife met him at the door and exclaimed: "Why, my husband, they have knocked your brains out." "No, they haven't," said the Governor. "If I'd had any brains, I shouldn't have gone there."

When Senator Ben. Wade was a circuit judge in Ohio, one of his decisions was reversed by the Supreme Court of the State, and the case came back to him on mandate. He disregarded the mandate and followed his first decision. "But, your honor," exclaimed the beaten counsel, "the Supreme Court reversed your former judgment!" "Yes, so I have heard," was the reply. "I will give them a chance to get right." The decision was again reviewed, this time with Judge Wade's written opinion, and the court decided that he was right. A bill of costs had been before him for three terms, and had been dismissed at inordinate length. As he was about closing the third term, the attorney in the case reminded him that the matter had not been disposed of. "What is the amount in dispute?" asked Judge Wade. "Nine dollars and — cents." "I pay the blanked thing myself," said he, throwing a $10 bill to the clerk. "Enter the costs satisfied."

Mr. Blaine's friends claimed that, all things considered, he was the greatest leader of men in the Senate when he left it, possessing force, bravery, and audacity. Edmunds stated a proposition with more clear-cut distinctness than Blaine. It was a purely intellectual act, and no other element entered into it. His words were the coinage of the brain, and were void of personality save in the mental qualities they attested. Conkling spoke an imperious and imperial intellect. His speeches took wider range and were pitched upon higher keys of ideas and ornamentation than Blaine's. His speeches showed the fullest equipped brain in the Senate. But he spoke to illustrate himself, not to persuade others. Lamar was the man in the Senate most persuaded that it was possible to adjust Government to general principles. If administration were an affair of the schools he would have been a statesman. In the difficulty of devising a philosophy of legislation he was confused between his impulses and his incapacity to formulate them to his own apprehension or apply them to the conduct of public affairs. He was a partisan without confidence in partisanship. So great was his intellect his inability to think out his political philosophy to where it touched the springs of action put in uncertainty into his ideas and paralysis upon his will that put him at a great disadvantage in a contest with a man of clear-cut and practical partisan ideas and great force, like Mr. Blaine. Mr. Thurman was, like Mr. Blaine, a great practical political leader, and about the only difference between them intellectually and in traits in a contest was that, man for man, Blaine had the most force.

Gen. Jackson's deathbed at the Hermitage, one bright Sabbath morning in June, 1845, is described as a scene never to be forgotten. He bade them all adieu in the tenderest terms, and enjoined them, old and young, white and black, to meet him in Heaven. All were in tears, and when he had breathed his last the outburst of grief was irrepressible. The congregation at the little Presbyterian church on the plantation, which the General had built to gratify his deceased wife, the morning service over, came flocking to the mansion as his eyes were closing, and added their bewailment to the general sorrow. Shortly after this mournful event a lady friend of the family encountered an old servant in the kitchen, who was sobbing as though her heart would break. "Ole missus is gone," she brokenly said to the lady, "and how ole massa is gone; dey's all gone, and dey was our bes' friens. And ole massa, not satisfied with teachin' us how to live, has now taught us how to die." The poor, unlettered creature did not know that she was paraphrasing one of the most beautiful passages in Tilkell's elegy upon the "Death of Addison": "He taught us how to live, and oh, too high The price for knowledge, taught us how to die."

Daniel Webster used to relate an incident which occurred when he was visiting Ralph W. N. C. A gentleman proposing to call upon him, asked his son, a little lad, if he did not wish to go and see Mr. Webster. The boy answered, "Is it that Mr. Webster who made the spelling-book, and set me so many hard lessons? If that is the man, I never want to see him so long as I live." Mr. Webster, after telling this story once, when several Southern gentlemen were present, added, "I know, gentlemen, that my sentiments on some subjects are not altogether acceptable, I am sorry to say, to your section of the country, but I set no lessons, I make no spelling-books. If I spell out some parts of the Constitution of the United States in a manner different from that practiced by others, I readily concede, nevertheless, to all others a right to disclaim my spelling and adopt an orthography more suitable to their own opinions, leaving all to that general public judgment to which we must in the end all submit."

Gen. Hamilton of South Carolina narrated the following interesting account of the commencement of the Revolutionary struggle: "When," said he, "John Huger and Samuel and John Adams determined to resist the oppression of the Mother Country, they sent Josiah Quincy, Jr. to South Carolina, to obtain the support of that cavalier colony, the very pet of the British crown, to stand by them in the coming struggle. The first person on whom Mr. Quincy called was Thomas Lynch, Sr., who, with a princely fortune, had staked everything from the jump in the glorious contest. Mr. Quincy, coming by land from Boston, drove up to Mr. Lynch's residence on the South Santee River, now called Peach Tree. After communicating his message, which met with the warm concurrence of Mr. Lynch, he and Mr. Quincy started for Charleston, and in the house of Miles Burton, then an opulent and patriotic merchant, whose wealth greatly depended on peace with England, met John Rutledge, Christopher Gadsden and other South Carolina patriots. Then and there was concocted the great scheme of colonial resistance which was afterwards uttered in the war-shout at Bunker Hill, and re-echoed in the thunders from the palmetto fort at Charleston on the 28th of June following."

Mr. Travers, the New York millionaire, has left behind him lots of clever things which he said during his life. On one occasion he was sitting in a crowded street-car and held his boy Charlie in his lap. A handsome and elegantly-dressed lady got into the car, and for a minute or two nobody offered her a seat. Mr. Travers took in the situation, and said to his son, "Get up, Charlie, and give the lady your seat." There was a roar of laughter, and the blushing and smiling lady was offered a dozen seats at once. It was Mr. Travers who, at a dinner presided over by Mr. Stewart, the merchant prince, became a little noisy. At least, he made the people around him noisy by his witticisms. Mr. Stewart rapped on the table to call him to order. Immediately Travers called out in a feminine voice, "Ca-a-a-sh," and the howl of laughter that followed obliged Mr. Stewart to drop his frown and smile, though he did not like it a bit.

The Uses of a Friend.

Thackeray asks in one of his letters: "Why do I trouble you with all these perplexities? If I mayn't tell you of what I feel, what is the use of a friend?"

Certainly, Thackeray, old boy, you're right. What is the use of a friend if you can't tell him all about your ills—how you had the toothache Monday and suffered an attack of the rheumatism Tuesday, and was down with the plumbago Wednesday, and had an attack of the blues Thursday, and wasn't feeling very well the rest of the week. One wouldn't do this to an enemy, of course not. It would be a degree of cruelty that you would not think of employing in moments of direst animosity. But with a friend it is different. A man often pours into the ear of a patient friend a story of petty worries and perplexities that would make him shunned forever after by any one less devoted, and the patient friend often tries in vain to escape. Unless he has an accumulation of miseries of his own that he is waiting to unload, in his turn. "What's the use of a friend unless you can use him?" is a maxim that is lived up to in more ways than one.—Texas Siftings.

The Economic Statistics of Paris.

The annual return published by the prefecture of the Seine with regard to the population of Paris, the consumption of food, the circulation of vehicles and passengers by train, and other economic facts bearing upon life in the metropolis, is always full of interest, and from that relating to 1886, it will be gathered that the food supply of Paris comprised, in addition to 261,377 live oxen, 231,319 calves, 1,891,871 sheep, 247,105 pigs, 13,377 horses and 304 donkeys, 152,605 tons of butchers' meat, 24,152 tons of pork, 3,375 tons of horseflesh, 24,143 tons of poultry, 17,559 tons of butter, 5,412 tons of cheese, and 4,544 tons of turbot, salmon and red mullet. The quantity of other kinds of fish consumed is much larger, but as they are not subjected to octroi dues there are no statistics forthcoming. In addition to the above, Paris consumed last year over 400,000,000 eggs, while in the way of liquids the consumption was 87,560,000 gallons of wine, 3,217,000 gallons of spirits and liquors, 6,705,000 gallons of cider, and 6,120,000 gallons of beer. The gas company distributed during the year about 251,000,000 cubic meters of gas, of which about 25,000,000 meters were for the streets and public buildings, while the quantity of water supplied from various sources was about 150,000,000 cubic meters, there being 60,000 subscribers to the water-rate, but of about 82,000 householders living in streets and squares, avenues, etc., with a total length of just about 600 miles. Turning to the vital statistics, it will be found that the number of births during the year was 60,636, of whom over 17,000 were illegitimate, while the number of deaths was 57,027, of which over 10,000 were due to pulmonary complaints. The total number of patients in the hospitals during the year was 130,765, of whom 13,920 died. There were 20,604 marriages and 488 divorces. Circulation inside Paris was upon a larger scale than ever before, the omnibus company having carried over 191,000,000 passengers, while nearly 50,000,000 traveled by the two independent tramway lines. The boats on the Seine carried about 20,000,000 passengers, while between 17,000,000 and 18,000,000 used the circular railway. The analysts of the municipality ordered the destruction of 1,117 articles of food, and instituted over 4,000 prosecutions for adulteration; while the police arrested 35,894 men and 6,253 women, of whom 2,703 were foreigners, mostly for trifling offenses such as disorderly conduct or begging.—London Times.

Capitalists in Rags.

While thousands of deserving poor are daily dying of slow starvation, there are in Paris gangs of professional beggars, like the "gueux" referred to in Beranger's song, who are a happy race. Only a few days ago a chiffonier, who would not pay his rent in the Belleville quarter, was ejected from his premises by force, and as the hussier's men were hustling him out a sum of money, in gold and silver, amounting to nearly £80, rolled out of his rags. There is also an old story of a Parisian blind beggar who was stationed every day on one of the bridges, and to whom a passing Samaritan once gave a gold louis instead of a franc. Having discovered his mistake the almsgiver went back to the beggar, but found that he had left his post. After having made inquiries in the neighborhood, the person obtained the mendicant's address, whither he repaired in the evening. He found the blind man installed in a comfortable villa, the door of which was opened by a tidy servant, who said that her master was at dinner and could not be disturbed. The stranger, however, made known his errand, and the beggar sent down a message by his man, saying that it was quite possible that he had taken a louis for a franc, but that he had not yet made up his account for the day. Finally, the almsgiver was told to meet the blind man on the bridge next day, and the error, if any, would be rectified. Only recently a true narrative of the same sort, but with a slight variation, was told by M. Thivet before the tribunal of correctional police, where a man named Samuel was being tried for begging. Samuel is about 64 years old, and was in the habit of begging from house to house. When arrested he was found living in a comfortable apartment in the Rue Communes, for which he paid £5 a year as rent. An account-book was also found in his rooms, in which he entered his takings. These in some cases amounted to 20 francs or to stilling, in one day. M. Thivet, the prosecutor, said that in December last Samuel went to his house and represented himself as a commercial traveler temporarily out of employment, having a wife and family in destitution. He gave him two francs, but seeing him next day going into another house he watched him and found him begging. He then had him arrested as a professional mendicant, which was proved by the account-book found in his rooms. The tribunal ordered Samuel to be sent to jail for two months.—Paris Letter.

Freemont's Wooley Horse.

An old story is thus recalled by the Philadelphia Record: It seems that after Lieut. Fremont had first announced his discoveries in the great West, a Philadelphia showman of a speculative turn, undertook to exploit Fremont's discoveries, and at the same time make a little money for himself. So he came to Washington, and, hiring a shop on the avenue, proceeded to exhibit "Lieut. Fremont's wooley horse," captured by the red and blue plains in the very heart of the Rocky mountains at the risk of his life. Of course, it was only an ordinary, every-day horse, with patches of wool stuck on. But it took, and the showman began to make money on it. One fine day, Senator Benton, Fremont's father-in-law, heard of the humbug, and started out, vowing to drive it out of town before evening. Taking a brother senator with him he marched at once on the enemy's shop. The showman, who was standing outside the door, and who knew him perfectly well, had the impudence to go right on with his lecture. He even went so far as to say to the crowd: "Here is Lieut. Fremont's father-in-law, Senator Benton. Won't you walk in, Senator, and take your friend with you? It won't cost you a cent."

"Come inside," said Benton, sternly, handing him $1 and striding in with his friend, "where is the animal?"

"Here he is," said the showman, beginning at the beginning of his lecture again.

"Stop," said Benton, in a tone that had often made the Senate chamber ring. "If you don't take that fraud out of this town before dark I'll make you wish you had never been born."

The impudence of the man was frightened out of him by Benton's severity and earnestness.

"I'll go," he said, and went that evening.

Danger from Electric Lights.

While our knowledge of the phenomena caused in the human body by electricity is not inconsiderable, we know comparatively little regarding death from electric shock. We find that practical electricians recognize a marked difference in the susceptibility of the different persons to electricity, and only employ men to work upon the electric light who after trial are found to be not shocked by the ordinary manipulations which are deemed entirely safe. At the inquest upon a recent fatal case, a workman was brought before the jury who had served a circuit of forty-eight lamps, possessing an electric force of over 2,000 volts. Although made insensible by the shock and fastened by muscular spasm to the wire, he was rescued by his comrades. The length of time that he was subjected to this tremendous shock, which was not only the primary current but the current of reaction as well, was several minutes. He recovered consciousness very soon, and although his hands were severely burned he made a good recovery.—The Medical News.

A Sacred Usage.

"Young man," kindly said the city editor of a Dakota daily to the new reporter, "in this article of yours about the new railroad I notice you omit to say that 'the dirt will begin to fly soon,' so I slipped it in three or four places. It must always go in and it is to your own interest to remember it. If that article was printed without it the editor would rear, so in the morning that the doors on the safe would tremble, and you would lose your place. The dirt has flown, on paper, for ten years before it was built, on every road in Dakota, ever since the territory was organized, and it is no time now to rush in and attempt to change old established customs."—Dakota Bell.

CHICAGO's costly and beautiful "Auditorium" will hold 8,000 people.

THAMES MYSTERIES.

Strange Features That Mark the History of the Great English Water.

London Chronicle.

Although the dark arches leading to the river side, from the various small streets and courts abutting on the southern side of the Strand have long since passed away, and are not even available for fictional purposes such as the late Charles Dickens was wont to employ them for in his stirring realistic works, old Father Thames has still much to answer for in the way of unaccountable and mysterious disappearances, hardly a week passes without one or more inquests being held on the bodies of persons found drowned; but, as the jury phrase it in returning their verdict, "How or when they came into the water there is no evidence to determine."

Nervous individuals of a certain type have a morbid feeling ever before them that many murders are annually committed through the medium of the river, and it is, to say the least of it, worthy of note that many of the reclaimed bodies bear in the shape of marks and bruises presumptive evidence to denote that there has been foul play somewhere, although in such cases it is rarely that the crime (supposing that one has been committed) is ever satisfactorily brought home to any one.

Again, instances are by no means uncommon of a man or woman being seen for the last time, by some friend or acquaintance, at almost any hour of the day or night, apparently in the best of health and spirits, to be no more seen or heard of until some time afterwards, when the fact of a body having been found in the Thames, and lying for recognition in this or that mortuary, induces some friend or relative of the missing person to go and see if by any chance the body is that of the missing individual; should this turn out to be the case—and such a circumstance came under our immediate cognizance not very many years ago—a coroner's inquest is forthwith held, at which the evidence of the last person who saw the deceased alive and that of the finder of the body do little or nothing to clear up what has to be added to the already lengthy list of Thames mysteries. In the case to which we refer there was not the slightest mark of violence, money and valuables were all intact and the idea of suicide was scouted by those best qualified to form an opinion as too utterly preposterous to be entertained even for a single moment.

Turning from the somber side of the subject, what a vast field for speculation is opened up by considering the enormous amount of valuable property, watches, rings, coins, and a thousand and one other unconsidered tridles that must be imbedded deep down in the mud of the upper reaches of the river! Just below the landing stage above the bridge at Eton, it is computed that there must at one time or another have been lost beyond recovery (for although the water is of no very great depth there, the strong undercurrent renders diving operations out of the question) sufficient jewelry to set up a moderately sized jeweler's shop! And it is probable that at other equally frequented stages the loss must have been quite as great, if not greater. We ourselves have known a valuable watch lost in this way, and the owner being anxious to recover his property, had a special diver down from London to attempt its recovery, and in the end his fees (although sad to relate his best efforts were unavailing) amounted to more than the value of the watch itself!

Although dredging operations are continually being carried on in various parts of the river, it is rarely or never that anything of value is brought to light, and so the only natural supposition is that most of the things must get swept seaward when the heavy winter floods and subsequent spring tides reign supreme.

Apropos of these, mention must not be omitted of the unaccountable phenomenon which has now three times occurred; in 1658, 1682, and 1777—namely, the tidal part of the river ebbing and flowing twice and three times, in the two former years, within the space of three and four hours and on the last occasion twice in three hours again.

The recurrence from time to time of devastating floods caused by extra high tides can hardly be called mysterious, seeing that they can be satisfactorily accounted for by scientific reasoning; but the composition of the bed of the river in its various parts has at times given rise to no small amount of discussion, and to a certain extent still remains one of its principal mysteries.—London Chronicle.

Something About Corkscrews.

There seems to be nothing to say about a corkscrew. The corkscrew is ubiquitous and necessary, but who ever stops to think of anything about the history or character of the cork extractor? Yet there is really an interesting article to be written about the little instrument. There are makes of corkscrews made every year. Yes, and a good many millions. It isn't generally known that the corkscrew is made in the greatest quantities in Newark, Jersey's metropolis; yet such is the case. There is one firm in Newark that beats the world at making and selling corkscrews. I got my information about the little utensil from one of the firm. It is a startling tale he told, and if it wasn't that he had the figures to back what he said, I should have thought his story was as crooked as the wire on the cork extractor he makes. In round numbers there were 150,000,000 corkscrews made by this one Newark firm last year, or corkscrews enough for nearly every voter on the globe. If the corkscrews, which average three inches in length, that were made during the year 1886 could have been laid end to end, they would have reached from New York to San Francisco and then spanned the great Pacific and touched the shores of Japan. That will give some idea of the number. If all these screws could have been melted into one big or w. some Co. screw could have pulled the globe from the surface of the earth and set the gyres spinning and the volcanoes erupting from the interior of the globe. But this was only one firm, although the largest, it is true. Could all the corkscrews made last year be known there must have been enough manufactured to supply nearly every man, woman and child on this mundane sphere with one. To make the 150,000,000 of the Newark firm required seventy-five men simply for the twisting of the screws, to say nothing of the making of the wooden and other styles of handles. They worked steadily the year round at it.

One would hardly think that more than three or four varieties were required, but there are about forty varieties on the market.

The funniest of all the corkscrews is a left-handed one. The first one was made for a left-handed bar-keeper, and it suited so well that the Newark firm now keeps them constantly in stock. Another Newark firm makes 300,000 pocket corkscrews a year. The question naturally arises, what is done with them all? Lots of them are broken, of course. Large New York restaurants, like Delmonico's, the Brunswick, and the St. James, buy corkscrews direct from Newark, and get them by the hundreds at a time. It is no unusual thing for big hardware houses in Newark, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, and big western cities to buy 10,000 corkscrews at a time.

A Novel for Peddlers.

There was a man.
And he had a horse and wagon.
And he went about the streets selling strawberries.
And he yelled "Straw-burries! Straw-burries!" at the top of his voice.
The sick groaned in despair.
The well gritted their teeth with indignation.
And the police couldn't stop him.
But one day Providence picked him up with a congestive chill and sent him home to die, and he expired in agony.

He was buried in a cheap coffin, in a cheap lot, and six weeks later his widow was married to a tinker.

And there was another man, and he also sold strawberries. Instead of roaring "Strawburries!" from down in his boots, he drove about at a gentle pace, and knocked softly at every back door, and, as the girl appeared, he quietly remarked: "Please ask the lady of the house if she will buy fresh strawberries at eight cents a quart."

And his ways were taking, and his berries went as fast as he could load up, and a syndicate of millionaires took hold of him and made him president of a national bank, with a salary of $10,000 per year.—Detroit Free Press.

The skins of 7,000 goats and 20,000 sheep have been used for the covers of Gen. Grant's work, of which 312,000 sets have been sold.

The Proper Study of Mankind Is Man.

Says the illustrious Pope. If he had included woman in the list, he would have been nearer the truth, if not so poetical. Dr. R. V. Pierce has made them both a life study, especially woman, and the peculiar derangements to which her delicate system is liable. Many women in the land who are acquainted with Dr. Pierce only through his "Favorite Prescription," bless him with all their hearts, for he has brought them the panacea for all those chronic ailments peculiar to their sex; such as prostrations and other displacements, ulceration, "internal fever," bloating, tendency to uterine cancer, and other ailments. Price reduced to one dollar. By druggists.

A CYCLONE is like three school-girls walking abreast—it doesn't turn out for anything.—Washington Observer.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS is an unfailing cure for all diseases originating in biliary derangements caused by the malaria of malarial countries. No other medicine now on sale will so effectually remove the disturbing elements, and at the same time tone up the whole system. It is sure and safe in its action.

In prohibition States liquor seems to be a drug. Washington Post.

R. W. Tansill & Co., Chicago:
The "Tansill's Punch" cigars are booming. Never sold so many in so short a time. Will try and give you another order this month. P. & A. L. MILLARD, Ellensburg, N. Y.

NO CURE "CELORE" NO PAY!
HOLLINGSWORTH'S
ONE PACKAGE.
Cures MALARIA, CHILLS and FEVER.
Send 30¢ in stamps for package and mailing and 5¢ for each additional package. No PAY.
Address: E. LOOMIS, 1303 Columbia Ave., Phila.

ADVERTISERS or others who wish to examine this paper, or obtain estimates on advertising space when in Chicago, will find it on file at 45, 104-105 Randolph St., the Advertising Agency of
LORD & THOMAS.

OPPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured.
Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.
$5 to $25 a day. Samples worth $1.00. FREE. Lines sent under the postpaid list. Write Brewster Safety Linen Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

A MAN
WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RY
By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest—is the only true middle-link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.
The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE
Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unequalled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.
ALL EXPRESS TRAINS between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE PARLOR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and—between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE
Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kanabakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.
All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employees of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly attention.

For Tickets, Maps, Folders—obtainable at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada—or any desired information, address,
R. R. GABLE, E. ST. JOHN, E. A. HOLBROOK, Pres't & Gen'l Mgr, Chicago. Asst Gen'l Mgr, Chicago. Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Agt, Chicago.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the benedict influence of

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health. It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young. As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

JONES
PAYS THE FREIGHT
5 Ton Wagon Scales,
Pan Balance, Spring Scales,
Tare Boxes and all kinds of $60.
Free estimates and prices given by mail. Write to the
JONES OF BINGHAMTON,
BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

Miss A. Stevens & Co.
PENSIONS. Metropolitan Block, Chicago, Ills.

DETECTIVES
Wanted in every County. Shrewd men to act under any instructions in our Secret Service. Experience not necessary. Send stamp for particulars. GRANNAN DETECTIVE BUREAU, 44 Arcade, Cincinnati, O.

HARNEY ITEMS.

Following News Paragraphs from the Center of Semi-Civilization Recorded in Words That Burn.

[Estelline Bell.]

The following clippings are from the Harney Hooter, one of the most prized of the Bell's many exchanges:

There are cuts of the Chicago Anarchists on our inside this week.

The parties who threw the old rotten, bad-smelling turnip at us while we were returning to our home at a late hour last Tuesday night might have been in better business.

We give notice to the sickly and weak-winded boy who makes a drivelling attempt to run the disgusting opposition sheet, the Harney Hooter, that we have been very busy with job work this week. Our business men know where to get good work. How do you like it, sonny? We again want to place on record a prediction that the weak and wobbly career of the Hooter is almost ended.

Numerous inquiries were made concerning us last Saturday, and much speculation indulged in as to why we were not at our office or seen on the street. The cause was this: While at Jim Honck's popular place saloon, we learned from friends of a fiendish plot to blow up our office with dynamite. We instantly communicated the intelligence to the city authorities, and proceeded rapidly home, where we stayed till we learned that the vile plan had been frustrated. Thus another cowardly attempt to down us fails.

We are pained to announce that our greatly respected fellow-citizen, Captain Thomas H. Howard, died at his handsome residence on Coteau street early yesterday morning. He was universally liked. The coroner's jury had not returned a verdict up to the time of going to press. He was a kind husband and an indulgent father. He was an old subscriber to the Hooter and was paid eight months in advance. His family will continue to receive the paper regularly.

We deem a word of explanation due our readers in regard to an item published in last week's Hooter. It stated that our worthy fellow-citizen, Judge Ezra R. Fuller, had been arrested and bound over for getting drunk and riding up and down the street on a mule he had stolen from a neighbor and shooting right and left, and wounding several persons. There was a slight error in the item, as it should have read that "Baldy" Ford was the man that was arrested and our esteemed friend, Judge Fuller, the justice before whom he was arraigned. We cheerfully make the correction. In the hurry of getting the forms to press for a large paper like the Hooter small typographical errors like this will sometimes occur, and no one regrets them more deeply than ourselves.

The gallant Colonel Brayson of this city, took a slight offense at a little unintentional item that we inserted in the last issue of the Hooter, and fired two shots through our window. Fortunately for us neither took effect. The colonel comes of some of the best families of Virginia and is naturally spirited and quick to resent an insult. If the genial colonel desires it we would be pleased to print an apology, though we can assure him no insult was intended. As we both will continue to reside in Harney we hope to live on good terms with him.

It has come to our ears that Bill Arnold, a cowardly, cringing sneak who has hung around this city for some time, claimed to be dissatisfied with a statement made in our paper last week concerning him, and went around the streets Monday telling people that he didn't like it. We take this manner of notifying the sneaking, disreputable pup that he does not want to repeat the performance. If he don't like anything we have said about him, he can keep his mouth shut. We should have called him to account for his utterances before this, but he jumped the town the next day and has gone to his former home in Ohio to reside in the future. The dastardly cur had better remain there, for if he ever comes back here we shall make it warm for him.

THE SPANISH PASSION FOR DANCING.

I presume that those who have traveled in Spain hardly realize how thoroughly that country is given to the worship of St. Vitus. Says a recent writer: "The dance demon seizes on Spaniards at all times and under all circumstances—in the streets, on the public squares, under the porches of stately mansions. A peripatetic musician comes along, strumming his guitar, and in an instant the maid servants throw aside their brooms, the workwomen set down the pitchers they are carrying to the fountain, the muleteers leave their mules, the inn-keeper forgets your dinner, and all spring forward, arms akimbo and eyes sparkling. Their feet just touch the ground, they balance in unison with the music, and dance with their souls as well as with their bodies.

"Let a tourist visit Toledo and put up at the ancient hostelry De Lino, and let a guitar player station himself under the great sombre archway that Don Quixote himself would not have passed without a foreboding of evil. He will see with his own eyes how the natural order of things will be disarranged and everything thrown into confusion. A fandango will begin in the court, the kitchen, and the street, and amid such a hubbub that he will think he has taken leave of his senses.

"One day at St. Sebastian the regiment passed with a band at its head. A fandango was played.

"Even the children who had been industriously engaged in making dirt pies picked up their ears, caught each other by the waist, and tried to go through the steps. Their nurses joined in snapping their fingers. The passers by came to the assistance of the nurses. The soldiers themselves couldn't stand the temptation, but fell out of the ranks and mingled in the dance."

FRIGHTENED HARES ON A BATTLE-FIELD.

A singular incident of the battle of Wagram, between the French and the Austrians, is related by Capt. Blaze of the French Imperial guard. He says that besides being a great contest of arms the day was a great hare-hunt. There were 400,000 hunters, half Austrians and half French.

The plain was simply covered with hares, which the long advance of the two armies had gathered into that narrow space. Every ten steps we started up one of these animals. Frightened by our guns, they ran for their lives, and continued to run until they reached the Austrian lines. There they were none the less terrified, and came rushing back upon us.

The soldiers were greatly amused by the frantic movements of the hares, and could hardly be restrained from making after them.

Finally, there was a great Austrian cavalry charge, which, of course, took no account of the hares. The horses plunged in among them, and they rushed in dismay among the ranks of the French soldiers, who, confused by so strange an attack, began bayonetting the hares. Other soldiers, not immediately present by the onset of the enemy, caught up the trembling animals in their hands.

There was that day a great slaughter of men and of hares, and many a shot destined for the enemy struck one of these poor animals, who doubtless believed that both the great armies had come there expressly to hunt them, the hares, instead of to hunt each other. — Youth's Companion.

Do not expect uniformity of opinion in this world.

J. H. CONRAD,

DEALER IN

ROOFING AND SPOUTING

GUTTERING, HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,

Cutlery, Nails, Paints, Woodenware &c.

MAIN STREET, ST. JOE IND.

All work and goods guaranteed to give satisfaction. Give me a call.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

St. Joe Meat Market,

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

M. TUSTISON,

DEALER IN

GROCERIES,

EARTHEN POTS FOR HOUSE PLANTS

PROVISIONS, OYSTERS, LEMONS.

ORANGES, CANDIES, CIGARS &c.

MAIN ST. ST. JOE, IND.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

R. G. COBURN,

AGENT FOR THE

A LEBION SPRING Cultivator

AND FIELD HARROW.

AND DAISY RAKE.

—000—

Farmers will save money by seeing me before buying. I will call on you with a sample in a few days. R. G. Coburn, St. Joe, Ind.

Take Notice!

Having returned from Tennessee, I will assist again in

Raising & Moving Buildings,

in short all kinds of Rope, Tackle and Jack-screw Work. Having had 15 years experience, and improved machinery, I feel safe in guaranteeing satisfaction. Heavy and difficult work a specialty. Correspondence solicited. Direct all communications to H. or M. Milliman, St. Joe Station, Ind., or A. Monroe, Hicksville, Ohio.

SA. KINCEY

Undertaker and Embalmer. Keeps on hand constantly, a stock of Undertaking Supplies, Coffins, Caskets, Burial Robes &c. I can supply as fine goods as can be furnished. Will attend to making all arrangements for funerals. Calls responded to at all hours of the night. Office on corner of Main and Second Streets; residence on corner of Main and Fourth Streets, St. Joe, Ind.

Arthur James,

—DEALER IN—

Watches, Clocks,

AND JEWELRY.

Repairing done promptly and all work warranted. Call and see me at Bair & Son's store, Spencerville, Ind.

M. T. BISHOP,

—DEALER IN—

LUMBER

OF ALL KINDS,

Shingles, Lime, Lath,

MOULDINGS &c.

Large Stock and Prices Low. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNESS

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, AUGUST 19, 1887.

NO. 30.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLIMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind., John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a specialty. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—Joseph Carver, a prominent farmer and one of the best-known pioneers in Wabash County, met a frightful death recently. Mr. Carver and a helper named James Wiley started south with a threshing-machine outfit. Mr. Carver was steering the engine, which was drawing the water-tank and separator. In attempting to cross the bridge at Miami street, Wabash, over the Wabash and Erie Canal, the center support of the structure gave way under the five tons' weight and the floor dropped, letting the engine and water-tank down to the water. Wiley jumped and saved his life, though he was considerably bruised. Carver had no time to save himself, and was pinned in between the fire-box of the engine and the heavy water-tank, which had crashed down upon him. He was only heard to utter the word "help," and became insensible. Horses were attached to the tank and it was pulled aside sufficiently to release the unfortunate man, whose body was a sickening sight. Carver lived but a few minutes. He was 70 years old and a widower.

—The following patents have been issued to Indians: Anderson, Charles, assignor to South Bend Iron Works, South Bend, slip-noose attachment for plows; Broady, Marion T., Bartle, corn-planter; Brown, James L., Evansville, nose-bag; Carr, Millard T., Whitestown, sack tie; Carter, Alfred W., Cartersburg, sawing-machine; Cline, George J., assignor to L. H. and J. M. Noble, Goshen, brush-handle attachment; Grassmann, Peter, and M. B. Cheek, Aurora, feed-water heater; Grimble, George, Gilboa, divider; James, Charles H., assignor of two-thirds to F. H. Lowry, and G. W. Blair, Wabash, weather-strip; Louis, Spencer, Boundary, grindstone frame; McGahan, Fred L., Indianapolis, boiler-flue cleaner; Miller, William L., Van Buren, broadcast seed-sower; Pershing, Henry A., South Bend, combined pettit ledger and blotter; Roberts, Edward, Stileville, fence post.

—The Indiana Grand Lodge Knights and Ladies of Honor in session at Evansville, elected the following officers, to serve during the ensuing year: Grand Protector, G. H. Godfrey, New Albany, re-elected; Vice Grand Protector, James R. Robinson, North Vernon; Grand Secretary, A. S. Lane, Vincennes, re-elected; Grand Treasurer, J. T. H. Miller, Terre Haute, re-elected; Grand Chaplain, Mary E. Babbitt, Evansville; Grand Guide, Rebecca Hislap, Brazil.

—Augustus F. Ender, a prominent farmer of Sugar Creek Township, Shelby County, started to Boggs town for a physician for his wife, riding a fractious horse. When within a short distance of the village he was thrown from the animal and struck his head on the ground with great violence, killing him almost instantly. He was about 60 years old, and leaves a family. His wife is in a critical condition.

—During the recent hot spell Mr. Hazeltine, a Rushville house-painter, lay down in the shade in the Court-house yard and went to sleep, and the sun veering round on him he was soon in a bad shape. He has recovered sufficiently to be up, but has completely lost the use of his tongue, and cannot say a word. The physicians do not know whether or not he will ever recover his voice.

—The Indiana Farmer says that fine crops of wheat and hay have been grown and harvested. The paper admits that the outlook for corn is unfavorable, but cautions farmers against cutting corn at present for fodder. The editor insists that the ear is in good shape, and claims that there is yet a possibility that timely rains may result in saving the larger portion of the growing crop.

—A carpenter named John Henry, employed on the steeple of the new St. Mary's Catholic Church, Fort Wayne, lost his footing from some cause and fell about ninety feet. He struck upon a pile of bricks which fell with and upon him. His skull was fractured and his left shoulder crushed. The deceased was a single man and his home was at Avilla.

—David Armstrong, a Rome County farmer, was driving a clover-huller, when the team became frightened and ran away. Mr. Armstrong received injuries, which necessitated the amputation of one of his legs below the knee.

—John L. Casey, a brakeman, was badly crushed in the wreck of an extra freight train, five miles east of Greensburg. Seven cars were derailed by a stone, and the road was blocked for several hours. Casey's home is in Chicago.

—The general fund of the State is exhausted. A little money from time to time will come in through miscellaneous sources, principally from the insurance companies, but there will be none from the counties until December.

—Minnie, the 14-year-old daughter of William Hubbard, of Darlington, while walking a railroad trestle, fell to the ground, thirty feet below, breaking both arms and receiving other injuries, which will probably prove fatal.

—Hugh Fleming, of Wabash, a nephew of W. J. Fleming, was killed in a shocking manner. A horse which he was driving ran away, breaking the boy's legs, arms, and fracturing his skull. He died in great agony.

—A south-bound Evansville and Terre Haute passenger-train, running through Shelburn, struck and instantly killed Thomas Dawson, an aged resident of that town, who was crossing the track on foot at the time.

—A young man named Perry Bartlett, while returning home at night, fell a distance of about thirty feet from a railroad trestle north of Milroy, the fall breaking his leg at the thigh and bruising him considerably.

—The Clinton Gas and Mineral Company struck a vein of fine coal at that place. The vein is between seven and eight feet thick, and was found at a depth of one hundred and fifty feet.

—William Walker, who was bound over under $5,000 bond, as accessory to the murder of Luella Mabbitt, has been unable to give bail and still remains behind the bars in Delphi.

—Excitement prevails in Elkhart County owing to a disease which has developed itself among the cattle of that section. It is pronounced pleuro-pneumonia.

—Thomas Dawson, an aged citizen of Shelburn, was killed while crossing the tracks of the Evansville and Terre Haute Railroad by being struck by a passenger train.

—The farm residence of Thos. Higgenbotham, one and a half miles east of Thorntown, was destroyed by fire. Loss, $1,000; insured for $500.

—Mrs. Henry Brant, of Fort Wayne, while delirious from typhoid fever, jumped from a window and was killed.

—Madison will bore for gas. The City Council now owns over half the capital stock, which is all subscribed.

—President Fisher, of Hanover College, received the degree of Doctor of Laws from Wooster University, at its last commencement.

—Rev. Asbury Gardner, 77 years of age, for more than half a century a prominent minister of the Christian Church, died at Salem.

—Mrs. Thomas Watson, an aged lady, residing in Madison, dropped dead the other night.

—Mary Renner, aged 83, was drowned in a cistern at Madison. Suicide is suspected.

—The first thing planted in the garden of Eden—Adam's foot.

A FORT'S FATHER.

George Crabbe's early life was not happy. His father was feared but not respected, his fits of passion being recalled with horror by his son fifty years afterward. The death of his daughter in infancy is said to have affected him so much as to make him a torment rather than a stay to his family. When the poet was 20 his father took an active part in the contested election of 1774; from that time he preferred the tavern to his own fireside; when at home he gave way to furious outbursts of passion, throwing plates about the room if displeased with the fare put before him. Crabbe's mother was of a gentle and meek disposition, and he took after her. While admitting his father's faults, Crabbe was wont to add that he had little personal reason for complaint, and his father had always been "substantially kind" to him.

Before Crabbe's father acquired the bad habit of spending his evenings at a tavern he was accustomed to spend a part of each evening in reading aloud to his family. He often read passages from Young and Milton, and hearing him may have given his eldest son a bent toward poetry. His father was a subscriber to Martin's Philosophical Magazine, founded in 1766, which died for lack of public support after fourteen volumes had appeared. The magazine afforded a good picture of scientific work and progress at the time during which it was published. What chiefly pleased Crabbe's father were the mathematical problems, in which he took a keen interest. At the end of each number there were pages filled with "occasional poetry," which the elder Crabbe tore out when sending the numbers to be bound, but which the younger one treasured and perused till he knew their contents by heart. Naturally he began to imitate what he admired so much. —Temple Bar.

ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

Says the manager of the Oregon immigration bureau: "I never knew immigration to Washington Territory and Oregon to be as heavy as at the present time. The Pacific coast boom began in California, and is extending north to the international line. The class of people who are taking up land in the north are better than the average of past seasons. They all have money; not fortunes, but sufficient to keep them independent of the farm for two years or more. There are no pauper foreigners among them to make themselves a burden. Most of the people who go north engage in stock raising or dairy farming. Washington Territory is considered unapproachable as a dairy farming country, and the government and railroad lands are being taken up rapidly. The completion of the California and Oregon line will assist greatly in populating northern California and southern Oregon, and will institute a boom that will have no precedent." —New York Tribune.

A CROWDED horse-car. Enter Mrs. Mulcahey, with a jug. Mr. Mahoney, who is seated, facetiously—Wud I hould the whiskey for yez, Mistress Mulcahey? Mrs. M. (with withering sarcasm)—Thank yez, kindly, sor, but yo have all ye can hould now, I'm thinking. —Albany Argus.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

WHEN THE CIRCUS CUM TO TOWN.

You kin tell o' your're reuses nowadays,
Of your railroads shows and such,
An' the wonderful things the actors do,
An' the managers get in' rich;
For it takes a ten-lan' spot, an' sometimes
A tear starts tricklin' down,
As I think o' home, an' the village green,
When the circus cum to town.

I remember yet, how we'd scamper out,
Long afore the break of day,
An' low one'd collar a waterin' pail,
An' t'other a bunch o' hay;
An' with carryin' water, an' feedin' th' hay,
An' doin' odd jobs aroun',
We wer' always sure o' a tip pot seat,
When the circus cum to town.

An' I can't forgit how my heart'd thump,
At th' suddin turns they made,
As they druv them cages into line,
For the daily street parade;
I think how we'd fall in behind,
An' feller 'em all aroun',
Till my heart beat fast as it used to do,
When the circus cum to town.

I kin see them ring on the village green,
With the sawdust roun' inside,
An' th' house on top o' th' elephant's back,
Where the hammedans used to ride;
I kin hear th' crack o' the master's whip,
An' th' shriek o' th' striped clown,
As we sat on th' highest seat an' laff'd.

I'm growin' old, an' don't git roun'
As well as I used to do;
But I've had my share o' th' sweets o' life,
But I've had my share o' th' bitter too,
An' whenever I see 'em a peatin' up
Them posters all roun',
My heart beats just as it used to do,
When the circus cum to town.

There are some who contend that a circus would
Old Satan himself degrade;
But I've noticed they're all right on hand
For the daily street parade;
An' there's some a preachin' agin it now,
An' tryin' to run it down,
Who cried like sin, cause it rained all day,
When the circus cum to town.

UNITED IN DEATH.

BY P. SPANJAARDT.

They were both young, full of life and hopes for the future, but neither of them was wealthy, and lack of wealth is considered a great sin nowadays.

They had known each other for the past three months, and talked to each other almost every day of that time, and every hour of those days. Yet they did not know each other's features. They were both good looking. He was a young man of some ability, 21 years old, who, by a combination of circumstances, had been obliged to accept a position as telephone clerk in the office of one of our great dailies.

She was a girl 18 who for some time had held a place as operator in the central telephone office.

He was a young man of the world. He had been clerk in a store, book-keeper in a real estate office, editor, reporter, and various other things; and had sown most of his wild oats at a time when others only begin to find out that they have any to sow.

She was a good girl. At the present time this is more of an exception than a rule among working girls in large cities. She was a lady, also, thanks to the advice she had received at home, and to her own good sense. Still she was full of fun. But she took no risks, and that was the reason they had never met. They became acquainted on Decoration Day. They spoken to each other before that; but only in exchanging mutual courtesies. There was a drawing that day, at the telephone office, to decide which of the girls should go out and look at the parade, and she was unfortunate, and had to stay in.

She told him about it when he asked her the result of the drawing. He sympathized with her and that broke the ice. He had asked her time and again to tell him her name and address, but, kind as she was to him, she was too careful to do such a thing until she knew more about him.

After awhile she began to listen for the bell that would announce his arrival. He, on his part, began to arrive earlier than was his custom, so as to be near her. They began to like each other, perhaps they began to love; who can tell? Love, they say, does not depend on qualities of the body, but of the soul. Things, however, went too smooth to last that way.

One day, when he called her up as usual, she told him, in a joking manner, that she had already hoped that he had been discharged, so that he could not bother her any more. He thought she meant it in earnest, and felt offended, and hardly said a word. She was disappointed but would not show, it and tried to be cross. He, on his part, called up another girl and talked to her. That wounded her to the quick.

When they parted it was with angry words; but both were sorry at heart. That night when he went home he met a runaway. Courageous as he was, he grasped the bridle of one of the horses and tried to stop it. He did stop it; but when the excitement was over, they found that he had been horribly mangled by the carriage wheels.

Next day there was another voice at the phone. At first she was too proud to ask, but when the time to go home had arrived, she inquired what had become of him. The strange voice said he had met with an accident while trying to stop a runaway.

Her companions at the office were wondering why her face became so white in an instant, and they asked her the reason. She said the heat troubled her, and only her nearest friend, the one who had many a time laughed at his funny remarks and joyful talk, had a slight idea of what could have happened, but she discreetly refrained from asking any questions.

When she came home she tried to eat some supper but it was impossible for her to get anything down her throat. When it was over she immediately went up to her room and for some unaccountable reason wept. She remembered how they had separated in anger and thought that she perhaps never would hear him again. She remembered how she had first become acquainted with him; how she had given him a chance to display his wit in mystifying persons that she dropped on his line, and how she had taught him the peculiar "hello" which the girls were wont to use, and which he mastered so quickly and could imitate so naturally that she told him he only needed a nice little gingham frock to make a full-fledged telephone girl.

She remembered every kind word he had addressed to her, and it seemed that she knew what she had never known before—that she loved him. But what was the use? he was gone, perhaps dead; and she could not even see him; not even tell him that he was dearer to her than all else in the world.

She had forgotten her fears about his personal appearance, whether he was handsome or ugly; all she knew and all she cared was that she loved him.

She passed a miserable night. Next day she again asked the strange voice about him, but he did not know, or perhaps did not care to say anything. During the next week life actually was a burden to her. They professed to know nothing about his whereabouts, and she could do nothing but wait and hope. One night a friend asked her to accompany her to a certain hospital where a poor girl whom she knew and who was slowly dying with an incurable disease, was being cared for. The proposal exactly suited her frame of mind and she went. After they had visited the sick girl, the matron conducted them through several wards, and in one of them, called their attention to a young man who had been frightfully hurt in an accident. He had been there about a week, and during that time he had been partly unconscious, partly raving. He was good looking, and the deathly pallor which overspread his face made it look more interesting. When she looked at the unfortunate fellow, her heart began to beat faster, and it seemed to her as if something terrible was going to happen.

All at once he sat up in bed unconscious of anything around him, and raising his hand to his ear as if he wanted to catch a far-away sound, he uttered the peculiar "hello" which the telephone operators are so accustomed to use.

This he repeated till exhausted, and then fell back on his pillow. For a moment she stood as if she had been thunderstruck, and then she knelt near the bed, and, putting her soft, white arm around his neck, softly patted his pale face.

The women, astonished as they were, did not dare to utter a word. The patient seemed to experience great relief from her touch, and slowly fell asleep.

When he slept, she explained her action, and, women as they were, they did not have the heart to scold her.

She sent a message home explaining everything, and after some deliberation her parents, sensible people, decided to let her do as she pleased in the matter.

Though she attended regularly to her duties, she spent all her free time with her accepted lover. But even her loving care could not nurse him back to health, and he sank day after day. Most of the time he was in a comatose condition, but when in some of his lucid moments he recognized her and uttered faint words of love and gratitude, she forgot all her cares and sorrows and felt happy.

One morning when she left him to go to the office he was very low, and though the attending physician said that he could live yet for two or three days, she had arranged with the nurse to call her should a change for the worse occur.

The day was a perfect one, but about noon-time, somber, threatening clouds gathered over the city, and the joyous sunlight made place for gloom and darkness.

There was a ring at her bell, and she knew what the message would be. What happened immediately after that, no one exactly knew. But just as the manager was going to order lights, there was a sudden flash of lightning, followed by a frightful peal of thunder, and when the terrorized operators regained their senses the poor girl was found lying over her instrument, pale and dead. By one of those unaccountable whims of nature, the electric fluid, kept an unwilling captive in the clouds above, had found an escape along her wire and, passing through her body, had caused an instantaneous, painless death.

It was noticed that at the self-same hour, her sick lover had suddenly raised himself in bed as if touched by the poles of a galvanic battery, and after uttering the words, "I am through, ring off" had fallen back lifeless, while the bell of the telephone, which, during that time had been ringing furiously, suddenly stopped and the instrument itself fell to pieces on the floor.

It seems like a sad ending to a happy dream. But are we to pass judgment on the unfathomable decrees of nature? They were united in death, they might not have been in life.

When Sunstroke Is Imminent.

When, during the heated term, one who has been exposed to the sun's heated rays begins to suffer from headache, giddiness, nausea and disturbance of sight, accompanied with sudden and great prostration of the physical forces, sunstroke is probably imminent. If such a one will take time by the forelock and immediately retire to a cool place, making use of some simple restoratives, such as aromatic ammonia, etc., he may be spared further trouble, but if he persists with his business he will doubtless soon become very ill, which illness usually takes the form of heat exhaustion, heat apoplexy or genuine sunstroke, the thermic fever of some writers.

Those who are exhausted by the heat have a cool moist skin, a rapid, weak pulse and respiration movement and the pupil is dilated. In fact the symptoms are those of collapse. These patients will probably recover promptly, an event which may be hastened by the use of a tonic and restorative treatment.

Those who suffer from heat apoplexy frequently become unconscious at the outset. The heart and breathing apparatus is not markedly disturbed and the pupil may be normal, but the unconsciousness deepens and the case runs on to a fatal termination. An artery has been broken in the brain, and poured out blood pressing on the nerve centres brings about the fatal event. A treatment calculated to draw the blood from the brain to the extremities—hot foot baths, bleeding, etc., promises to be the most useful in such cases.

The thermic fever patient is unconscious and convulsed, and his body temperature may be 108 degrees or 110 degrees F., that is, 10 degrees above normal. The skin of this patient feels as though it would burn your hand when laid thereon. In this case the thorough and prompt application of cold is needed. Ice to the head and cold water to the body generally will be in order. Medical advice should be promptly had in either of the two cases last referred to. Complete recovery from sunstroke is rare, the brain being permanently crippled in many cases. Residence in a cold climate affords some hope for such patients.—Philadelphia Times.

When a resolution is once formed, half the difficulty is over.

FITH AND POINT.

HIGH ROLLERS—the planets.
SOME old masters—Yale professors.
MEN locked in jail are always in favor of a lock-out.

A CABLE dispatch—killing a man on the cable railroad.

If any animal on the farm earns his annual sty-penned it must be the hog.

CATTLE are demure, innocent looking creatures, but their language is "low."

Why is a drill-sergeant like several iron-clads? Because he makes a special run.

COOK books are evidently not of modern origin, for Bacon says: "Some books are to be tasted, some eaten, and some digested."

A MAN asks if he can join the Carpenter's Union, not being a member of that trade. No; but you can become a carpenter and joiner.—Texas Siftings.

AN exchange states that "William Sturgeon, the famous electrician, rose rapidly from a cobbler's bench." He probably sat on the sharp end of the awl.

TALMAGE says that "the man who can sing and won't sing should be sent to Sing Sing." That would be too severe. It is the man who can't sing and will sing who should be sent to Sing Sing.

"A VERY appropriate wedding took place in Boston the other day," remarked Staggerers. "A Cincinnati man married a Boston girl." What was there so appropriate about that? asked Scroggs. "A union of pork and beans, you see."

"NEXT Sunday," said Father Maguire to his congregation, "the funeral of A. B. will be held in this church. I shall preach a funeral sermon on the occasion, and the man himself will be there—the first time in twenty years."—Living Church.

THE girl who keeps a dairy faithfully wants to be mighty sure that she keeps it under lock and key. And if she doesn't want to bring her gray hairs in sorrow to the grave she must never read it over when she gets old.—Journal of Education.

"MY son," said the old man, "do you remember what Polonius said in his parting advice to Laertes—'Neither a borrower nor a lender be.' " "Yes, father," replied the young man, thoughtfully, "and I think Polonius was just about half right."

"You are kept pretty busy nowadays," remarked a stranger to Mrs. Simmons. "Yes, hardly got time to turn around. There is always something to keep one busy. If it ain't the cows, it's the sheep; if it ain't the sheep, it's the pigs, and if it ain't the pigs, it's the children."

PHILANTHROPIC Grocer—Did Dr. Blank leave the paper here? Grocer's Boy—Yes; he dropped it. It's a medical journal and it says pepper isn't healthy. "Well, I don't want the curses of widows and orphans. Take that coffee-mill and grind up a few more of those old coconut shells."—Omaha World.

MONISTROL, at the ball, had just taken a young lady back to her seat. But, instead of retiring after the usual courtesies, he remains planted before her, with a slightly embarrassed air. "You—er—wish—something, sir?" his partner asks him. "My hat, mademoiselle, which has the honor to—to be actually—er—on the same chair as you."

"AW, ETHEL," remarked Charley to his pretty cousin. "I believe—aw—I'll have the barba—aw—trim my whiskers this mawning—aw." "Do, Charley," said his pretty cousin. "And—aw—how would you suggest that I have them trimmed?" "Well," replied the pretty cousin, after sufficient consideration, "I think they would look very sweet trimmed with pink ribbon."

"MOTHER, why do they call a girl a 'bride' when she gets married?" "Because that's the right name for them, I suppose?" "I'll bet I know." "Well, why?" "Cause 'bride' is took from 'bridle,' and they call her that 'cause then is when she begins to put the bridle on her husband—or 'halter,' I dunno which. Mebbe she ought to be called a 'halt,' 'cause she puts a halter on him. Was it a bridle or halter you put on, pap?" "That'll do, sir."

WITH our present short period of existence, there is no time for indulging in the luxuries of mischief.—Arthur Helps.

CURIOUS ROYAL PROCLAMATIONS.

Power of the Edicts of English Rulers and for What They Were Issued.
London Tit Bits.

Royal edicts or proclamations have never yet in England been armed with the force of the law; indeed, the proclamation of a British monarch may even become an illegal act, if it be in opposition to the laws of the land. Several times during the course of English history—and notably during the reigns of Henry VIII. and James I.—attempts have been made to give to royal proclamations the force of acts of Parliament; but they have always failed, as being altogether opposed to the first principles of representative government. Had it been otherwise, the whole course of English history might have been changed, as will be seen from the following examples of the more curious and remarkable of these royal edicts:

King Henry VIII., toward the close of his reign, issued a proclamation to abolish the translations of the Scriptures and to prohibit the reading of the Bibles to the people. Another edict by the same monarch forbade the circulation in this country of English books and pamphlets printed abroad; the reason why such publications were "printed abroad" being that the press at home was gagged.

Queen Mary issued a proclamation which throws a curious light upon the antipathy which prevailed in England at that time against all foreigners of whatever kind or degree. The edict commands all the Queen's subjects to behave themselves peaceably toward the strangers coming with King Philip; that noblemen and gentlemen should warn their servants to refrain from "strife and contention, either by outward deeds, taunting words, unseemly countenance, by mimicking them, etc."

Queen Elizabeth issued a scathing proclamation against the excess and vanity of apparel, both among the men and women of her reign.

King James I. was a voluminous edict writer and their frequency considerably lessened their effect. More than one solemnly warned the people against "speaking too freely of matters above their reach" and prohibiting all "undutiful speeches."

King Charles I. by royal edict changed the seasons for his "sacred touch" (for the king's evil) from Whitson-tide to Michaelmas, "as more convenient for the temperature of the season." Another proclamation by the same monarch was directed to the "suppression of cursing and swearing."

It is amusing to notice the proclamations of Charles II., issued during the most licentious period of the Court of the "Merrie Monarch." One was against "vicious, debauched, and profane persons," who are thus described:—"A sort of men of whom we have heard much and are sufficiently ashamed; who spend their time in taverns and tipping houses; giving no other evidence of their affection to us but in drinking our health and inveighing against all others who are not of their own dissolute temper, and who, in truth, have more discredited our cause by the license of their manners and lives than they could ever advance it by their affection or courage."

The "Merrie Monarch" also issued a long and solemn proclamation for the due observance of Lent, alleging for it, among other reasons, "the good it produces in the employment of fishermen." In other proclamations he strongly denounced the excessive "gilding of coaches and chariots," the spreading of "false news," the "licentious talking of state and government," and against building in and about London and Westminster. On the last-named grievance the royal edict declares that "great inconveniences daily grow by the increase of new buildings, the people increasing in such great numbers that they are not well to be governed by the wanted officers." The King adds the hope that if houses are to be multiplied they should at any rate be built of brick or stone and not of timber, not only as a precaution against fire, but also as involving little if any more cost.

Our System of Voting.

The present system of voting, intended to give the voter a secret ballot, practically does nothing of the sort. By the exercise of a little adroitness on the part of the inspector of elections, who is the selected officer of the party, the voter's intention is easily ascertained and the vaunted inviolability of the ballot becomes a mockery. Our system is not advanced enough for the present day. We are a quarter of a century behind the age. More scientific methods are in use in younger communities, which give the elector absolute freedom of choice and the necessary secrecy, such as the very act of voting contemplates in a free community.—North American Review.

Marketing in Honduras.

Queer markets are these. In the shade, on two sides of the plazas, and on the edge of the veranda of the cabildo (or town hall,) squat the dames who sell the various articles of daily use, as they do also under the veranda of the government building and on the shady side of one or two blocks near by. Many have their wares in shallow basket; some have tables on which to display their goods; others array their stock on the side of upturned goods boxes, and there are yet others who have little stalls rented from the authorities. In these, on shelves and short boards that answer as a counter, are the stores of cheap stationary, school-books, threads, brass jewelry and the thousand and one things made by men who have more regard for their purses than they have for honesty or honor, for sale to guileless natives of foreign lands. When one buys rice or corn, frijole or cheese, manteca or meat, or anything that is sold by weight, a stone is put into one scale, and enough of the commodity sold into the other to balance. In the more pretentious stores regular scales and weights are used; but it does not appear that the native buyers are better satisfied with these than they are with the simpler weights, which have the advantage of serving at once as a gauge of the quantity of the goods transferred and of the conscience of the seller.

The meat markets are on the edge of the high and steep bank of the Rio Grande, just below the antique bridge of ten brick arches. In these markets hang the quarters of the bullocks slaughtered under an octagonal roof of tile on the lower bank of the river, at the foot of the paved hill. When a customer appears, she or he points out the part from which a piece is wanted, and the obliging dealer cuts out a chunk of the desired size. This he throws into one scale, and into the other puts the stone or other weight he uses, and receives his pay for the meat—if he does not instead receive a very plain and decided criticism of his honesty and liberality, or utter lack of both.—Good House Keeping.

Can't Judge from Appearances.

About all we know is that there is absolutely no infallible rule about anything. Some people may be madder than hatters and you wouldn't know it by any outward sign, and other people may rave and yell and shout and not be a bit mad all the time. I don't think the man with the constant smile and the merry laugh and the good nature and all that sort of thing is as happy as he is credited with being. I know a fellow who has the reputation for all that sort of thing; and he had plenty of friends, but that fellow is about as miserable a man as I ever knew. Few people have any idea of it, but he wants in his heart to be able to do things he can't do, what other far less popular people do, and he has ambitions that his very easy going disposition is antagonistic to. He has secret desires to have a reputation for a kind of cleverness; he is not capable of, and all his friends and all his popularity in his special line cannot compensate for his consciousness of his incapacity for his tastes. Yet he has sense enough to stick to what he can do, and knows well enough that if he didn't he couldn't make a living.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Would Seem So on First Thought.

Business Man—Glad to see you, Mr. Spotcash. You're from Grubville, I believe?
Spotcash—Yes, sir.
Business Man—Well, sir, I've had my eye on your town for some time. How do you regard it just now as a location for a live dry goods house?
Spotcash—A first-rate location, sir—first-rate! Grampney & Smith have just failed, Brown & Co. are on the eve of making an assignment, while the only remaining house is a one-horse concern scarcely paying expenses! —Detroit Free Press.

JUGGINS, the English plunger, recently lost $80,000 in two nights at cards.

A Healthy Stomach

Is a blessing for which thousands of our dyspeptic countrymen and women sigh in vain, and to obtain which swallow much medicine unavailingly. For no ailment—probably—are there so many alleged remedies as for dyspepsia. The man of humbug is constantly glutted with the dollars and dimes of those who resort to one nostrum after another in the vain hope of obtaining relief, at least, from this vexatious and obstinate malady. Experience indicates Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a means of eradicating dyspepsia, in which a firm reliance can be placed. No remedy has in three decades and over established such a reputation, none has received such unqualified professional sanction. It is an admirable invigorant, because it enriches the blood, and not only this, but it thoroughly regulates the bowels, kidneys and bladder. The nervous symptoms are usually relieved by the medicine.

Origin of the Umbrella.

Some writer has advanced the novel theory that the umbrella was invented, not to keep off the rain, but to shield one from the too prying glances of the sun, and that Persia was its birth-place. The Persians were very fond of the sun; in fact, they just worshipped it. But attributing to that orb a curiosity equal to its keen intelligence, and knowing that many of their actions would not bear very close inspection, they naturally desired to seclude themselves somewhat when they walked abroad. Hence the invention of the umbrella.

With an umbrella spread over them they could wear their old cloths without being ridiculed for it by the orb of day, while for a Persian who was in the habit of carrying a lively jug home to his family every day, the umbrella, like charity, covered a multitude of sins.—Texas Siftings.

—NOVEMBER, 1880, Thomas Torney, Scott Depot, Putnam Co., W. Va., wrote: "In bed with sciatica; am using St. Jacobs Oil." Oct. 25th, 1886, he writes: "Three rubbings with it got me out and cured me. No return."

"How to make a girl's room attractive—put the girl in it.—Cincinnati Telegram.

"We have used Red Star Cough Cure," writes the sisters of the Notre Dame, Gowanstown, Md., for the cure of coughs, oppression of the chest and sore throat." Price twenty-five cents a bottle.

Esmerelda's Precautions.

Laura to her friend—"Fanny, just look how Esmerelda Longcoffin is going on with that young man to whom she is engaged to be married."

Fanny—"She has to make a fuss over him, or he will go back on her. I've been engaged to him myself and I know all about him. As soon as I quit hugging him he went and engaged himself to another girl. You bet Esmerelda knows what she is about."—Texas Siftings.

The Queen.

If Moxie Nerve Food can take the place of drugging and stimulating, it has come to stay, and many of the doctors say it actually does. After thirteen or fourteen months on the market its sale is said to be the largest ever known. The large cities are talking Moxie; moreover, and every nervous woman or over-worked person thinks it is the last half of everything that has just been found. Poor little Moxie weed, it never dreamed before that it was soon to be queen of the medical world.

Probably Quite Fatigued.

"Good morning, Mr. Punkinfield. How did you and your daughter rest last night?" asked the key clerk of the Chinville Hotel.
"I feel pretty pert. My daughter Eliza seems ter be oversleepin'." Said she was tired when I blew out the gas for her last night."

ONE greasing with Frazer Axle Grease will last two weeks, all others two to three days. Try it.

The habit of running over boots or shoes corrected with Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners.

Weak and Weary

Describes the condition of many people debilitated by the warm weather, by disease, or overwork. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed to build up and strengthen the body, purify and quicken the sluggish blood, and restore the lost appetite. If you need a good medicine, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.
"During the summer I was feeling all run down, and, thinking I needed something to tone up my system, I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and felt much better. I had also been troubled with dyspepsia, and Hood's Sarsaparilla helped me more than anything else." JAMES R. DABROW, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists, $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar.

ADVERTISERS or others, who wish to examine this paper, or obtain estimates on advertising space when in Chicago, will find it on file at 45 to 49 Randolph St., the Advertising Agency of LORD & THOMAS.

PENSIONS COLLECTED and Increased by Fitzgerald & Powell, Indianapolis, Ind. Old cases reopened. Send for copy of Laws, free.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficent influence of

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health. It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young. As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

KIDDER'S

DIGESTYLIN

A SURE CURE FOR INDIGESTION AND DYSPEPSIA. Over 5,000 Physicians have sent us their approval of DIGESTYLIN, saying that it is the best preparation for indigestion that they have ever used. We have never heard of a case of Dyspepsia where DIGESTYLIN was taken that was not cured.

FOR CHOLERA INFANTUM.

IT WILL CURE THE MOST AGGRAVATED CASES. IT WILL STOP VOMITING IN PREGNANCY. IT WILL RELIEVE CONSTIPATION. For Summer Complaints and Chronic Diarrhea, which are the direct results of imperfect digestion, DIGESTYLIN will effect an immediate cure. Take DIGESTYLIN for all pains and disorders of the stomach; they all come from indigestion. Ask your druggist for DIGESTYLIN (price $1 per large bottle). If he does not have it, send one dollar to us and we will send a bottle to you, express prepaid. Do not hesitate to send your money. Our house is reliable. Established twenty-five years.

WM. F. KIDDER & CO., Manufacturing Chemists, 83 John St., N. Y.

PISO'S CURE FOR

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

CONSUMPTION

FOR HORSES.

UVILLA, W. Va., }
Nov. 17, 1886. }
Recently I bought a young horse. He was taken very ill with Pneumonia. I tried to think of something to relieve him. Concluded what was good for man would be good for the horse. So I got a bottle of Piso's Cure and gave him half of it through the nostrils. This helped him, and I continued giving same doses night and morning until I had used two bottles. The horse has become perfectly sound. I can recommend Piso's Cure for the horse as well as for man.

N. S. J. STRIDER.

PISO'S CURE FOR

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

CONSUMPTION

RUBBER STAMP OUTFIT FOR SALE CHEAP.

Vulcanizer, Moulds of Type, Cuts, and everything used in the business. Address E. H. BERRY, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by druggists or sent by mail, 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

Sure relief. Price 35c. ASTHMA. Sold by mail. Stowell & Co., Charlestown, Mass.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50. FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Write Brewster & Safir, Fish Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

St. Joe News

MORT & WILD, OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

Subscription Rates:

One Year	25
Six Months	15
Three Months	8

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe as second-class matter.

FRIDAY AUGUST 19, 1887.

FOUR CORRESPONDENTS.

SPENCERVILLE.
Henry Murray is on the sick list.
P. Bishop went to Van Wert, O., Monday.

Jacob Baltz, Sr. spent a few days of last week at Tiffin, Ohio.

Ella Rhodes has been suffering the past few days with a severe sore throat.

James Steward has bought the property recently occupied by Geo. Baltz.

Mrs. M. J. Dawson, of Battie Creek, Mich., was the guest of Mrs. J. W. Ellis last week.

A party of young people from Tintertown attended the picnic Saturday. The Misses Houghtons were among them.

The match game of base ball played Saturday between Spencer and Auburn, came out in favor of Spencer. As usual our boys are ahead.

The picnic last Saturday passed off very pleasantly. Five schools were present. Quite a crowd were at the "Pink" social in the evening, but the grove was so dark we could not see the pink part of it.

CONCORD.
Little Sammie Wasson is quite sick.

W. B. Brown and family visited in the neighborhood last Friday.

G. Shanton and son entertained the threshers last Wednesday.

Mrs. Wayne Scott is very sick and unable to get up any of the time.

Mrs. Joe Koch has been very sick for a few days and is not recovering very rapidly.

The Sunday school voted to attend the picnic in a body, given by the St. Joe M. P. Sabbath school.

Miss Alice Braggoo attended the institute at Newville this week and reports a very interesting session.

James Braggoo and family are ready to welcome the advent of a bright little boy, the female paragon.

Marin Elm has gone to Iowa to see the country, and if it suits him, expects to move there some time in the near future.

We are glad to learn that Lyman Knight is improving in health. He thinks he will not be able to resume his studies this summer.

Miss Smith, of Mansfield, Ohio, is visiting among relatives for a few weeks. At present she is the guest of James Smith and family.

ROBERTSTOWN.
Anna Alton starts for home this week.

Jack Baker has a sick horse. I fear he will lose her.

Al Monroe's little girl fell off of the fence and broke her arm one day last week.

Tip and Pete Milliman are moving the old cheese factory for Many Derrott this week.

War Coburn thinks if his baby had been a girl, it would be a little the nicest baby in town. His old grand-dad feels pretty proud over it as it is, and so does the twentieth grand-child.

Young ladies should be a little careful where they leave their stock—I mean their noses, when they go to school. They should be a little careful where they hang it ought to be.

One would naturally suppose a young man would have pride or shame enough to decently dress himself after bathing, and not walk the streets with his under garments hanging out over his pants; but it seems that some have neither pride nor shame.

As Lucius Farmer with his wife and two or three of his children were out buggy riding last Saturday his horse became frightened at a vicious dog, which came howling out at them, and ran off, upsetting the buggy and throwing them out and badly if not dangerously hurting them all. Mr. Farmer was badly bruised, and his wife was seriously hurt in her back, and one of the children had its arm broken, and the other one a deep gash in its head and it is feared the skull is fractured. The buggy is a perfect wreck. So much for keeping a miserable cur. If there is any law or justice in the land, the owner of the dog should be made to pay all damages.

I am not a Spiritualist and never was, and never expect to be. I don't believe the spirits of the departed ever returned to either bless or curse us, but there was some demonstrations at my house a few nights since, that to the spiritually inclined might look a little that way. Somewhere between ten and twelve o'clock a form (and it didn't look much like a spirit either) entered my house, and after looking into several rooms, and becoming satisfied that we were all in a comfortable snooze, quietly left after tipping over a few chairs without any farther demonstrations. We shall be on the watch hereafter, and should it appear again be it man, woman or devil, shall endeavor to capture it, and find out from whence it came, and whither it goes. If I succeed will report to the News.

PIGEON'S RETREAT.
Martin Kline is seriously ill.

Laten Lake and wife attended the funeral of their cousin, Bennie Lake of near Maysville on last Tuesday.

Harvey Shilling was one of our little boys who was sick, and could not go to school the day his father threshed.

Little Clyde Wasson is very sick. On trying to awaken him on Tuesday morning a week ago, his mother found him in a spasm. At last report he was getting better.

The boys were very happy when they started to the party at Ricketts, but they were equally crestfallen when they came home, for in the language of the poet they said "Susanna was not at home."

Mrs. Tena Arnold and Mrs. Annie Bowers, mother and sister of Mrs. Timmerman, spent a part of last week at her home. Mrs. Bowers has been in very poor health the entire summer and is receiving medical aid from Dr. Hull of Spencerville, and Dr. Hull of Newville.

How we wish we knew of some kind-hearted person, like Barcus for instance, who would smile benignly upon us and say; "Don't worry if you misspell your words or make any mistakes for I'll bear all the blame." Poor, Poor, Barcus! Thy trials are many though thy faults are few.

JUST RECEIVED THIS WEEK AT

LEIGHTY'S

Nearly 5000 Yards of Best Prints

WHICH WILL BE SOLD AT

5 CENTS PER YARD.

ALSO A LARGE STOCK OF OTHER GOODS. CALL AND SEE THEM.

Say, have any of you News readers ever heard Eph Winkland preach a sermon? We have had that pleasure, and we must say that he can crowd more bible quotations into the space of five minutes than any other preacher we ever heard. On the occasion of which we speak he was trying to reform his threshing engine. You see the way it was, while Eph was moving his engine from one place to another, one of the guide chains broke and he thought it his duty to reprimand the engine for its naughtiness. So he mounted the cab of the engine and proceeded (in his own way) to inform the offender that if it did not mend its ways, it would be banished forever more to the land where they don't have ice-cream, (too warm you know) and it would not go in a very blessed state either. Since Eph dotes on Prudence he should have more patience.

'Twas dinner time on threshing day
The men were round the table,
Each one resolved in his own way
To eat all he was able.

Now we, to make our story brief
Will say 'tis of Jack Moody;
He helped himself to a piece of beef
And passed it to Will Rudy.

Then Jack acknowledged himself beat
It nearly made him whistle.
For clinging to that piece of meat
Was a foot or so of gristle.

Of the gristle Jack took off a bite.
And then he said, "Confound it!
It doesn't chew exactly right
I guess they didn't pound it.

The good things fast had disappeared,
Jack chewed with desperation.
And as he chewed he almost feared
He'd die there of starvation.

He chewed until the pies came round
To Jack an awful warning;
But still that gristle was as sound
As it had been that morning.

His dinner cold upon his plate
Before him was a lying;
"I'll swallow it as sure as fate,"
Thought Jack "or die a trying.

So down it went, On my what
Jack could have followed
For the gristle on his palate stuck
And wouldn't go no further.
And with another gulp and Began an awful tussle.
Would it choke Jack or would it
The cartilaginous muscle.
Jack viewed his sins, a heavy
Thought he with many a shiver
He feared they'd swamp him
Rowed.
Across the mighty river
Just then a dog upon his back
The watchful host was giving Down went the gristle, lost and
Was still among the living
Of course his friends were Rough.

But Jack will long rue
That gristle is haist alive
Although the beef is Gone.

Case of Olds desire to rent of the lady readers of the News to their Two Dollar Time Shots. They are the best shot the money ever offered in this
ket. Drop in and see them.

"TRUTH IS MIGHTY, AND WILL PREVAIL."

LOOK THIS WEEK.
I keep on hand a fine line of furniture, which I will sell for the next 60 days at prices that defy competition. Glass Cupboards $8.50. Double Cane Seat and Back Rockers $2. Dressing Case, with French Plate Glass $12.00. Carpet Lounges $2.50. Solid Comfort Beds for $2.25. Undertaking a speciality.
August Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.

A Disastrous Flood!

Heavy damages done by the over-throw of High Prices, and we will continue same. Good Brown Sugar 5 and 6 cts. Granulated 7 cts. Rosin 5 cts. Alum 5 cts. Salts 5 cts. Bird Seed 8 cts. Salt Peter 12 1/2 cts. Prunes 6 1/2 cts. Good Gingham 6 cts. Dress Goods at your own price. Grain Sacks 18 cts. All goods as cheap as the cheapest. Highest market price paid for Wheat, Oats and Seeds.

S. & F. Barney

WHY IS IT?

Why is it that some people have so many more eggs to sell than others? They haven't any more chickens but what they do have, seem to lay better. The facts in the case are they use Rayen's Poultry Food, and that is one of the best preparations in the world to make chickens lay. It is also a preventative of cholera. Try it. For sale at Patterson's Drug Store.

ELECTRIC BITTERS.

This remedy is becoming so well known and so popular that it needs no special mention. All who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise. A purer medicine does not exist and it is guaranteed to do all that is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all cases of indigestion, biliousness, headache, neuralgia, rheumatism and other ailments caused by impure blood. Will drive malaria from the system and prevent as well as cure all malarial fevers. For cure of Hemorrhoids, Constipation and Indigestion try Electric Bitters. Entire refund guaranteed, or money refunded. Price 50 cts. and $1.00 per bottle at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store.

LOCALS.

The price of wheat is a little on the rise.
Rayen's Poultry Food to make your chickens lay.
Watermelons are plenty and so is the cholera morbus.
A brick walk on the school house finished this week.
Read Talmage's sermon on the last page of this paper.
Will Curie is expecting a supply of fresh oysters this week.
Al Weirick returned Tuesday from ten days visit in Illinois.
C. A. Old are selling Good Potatoes for 5 cents per pound.
We were compelled to issue a supplement this week. Read it.
For all kinds of blacksmithing and repairing call on Al Hall.
Bert Patterson spent last Sunday in Hicksville with his best girl.
St. Joe merchants offer bargains in all kinds of goods. Read the advertisements.
Murray Bros. are making arrangements to put a full roller process into their mill at Spencerville.
H. W. Bullock, of Brazil, Ind., delivered an interesting temperance lecture at the Lutheran church last evening.
Rev. J. M. Langley and J. R. Shilling are at Marion, Ind., this week, in attendance at the annual conference of the M. P. church.
The Y. P. T. U. A. will meet at the residence of Miss Anna Merrill, on Wednesday evening, Aug. 24th. A good program has been arranged.
We are under obligations to R. G. Coburn this week for a fine large watermelon. Russ knows how to tickle the palate of the poor printer.
Persons needing any thing in the way of Dentistry should call on Dr. W. L. Holbrook, of Hicksville. He has had twelve years experience and guarantees all work to give perfect satisfaction.

Don Van Fleet, Misses Georgia Van Fleet and Josie Smith are spending a week at Rome City.

Mr. Davis, a nephew of Robert Davis, visited friends in this town over last Sunday.

John Henderson made this office a pleasant call on Monday. He will return to Cleveland, Tenn., in a few days.

Little Estu Baker fell down the whole length of a stairway on Monday of this week. She doubled herself into a knot, and rolled down like a ball, and when she was picked up her black eyes sparkled as bright as ever. It was feared she was seriously hurt, but fortunately she escaped with only a few bruises.

It is generally conceded by all local judges of horse flesh that the young thorough-bred brought here recently from East Tennessee by John Henderson, is far superior to any thing of the kind ever seen in Southern Indiana. The farmers of De Kalb county will feel gratified to have a specimen of prominent farmers of Concord township have purchased this noted colt.

In one corner of the grove at Spencerville last Saturday, they had a tent in which they were exhibiting a lost sheep. As it was a Lutheran sheep, but some of the Lutherans would not own it, they claimed it was a lost sheep from the Methodist fold, while one old brother said it was sort of a long faced sheep and he thought it belonged to the Presbyterians. Any way it cost a nickle to see it.

Last Sunday morning was a delightful morning to sleep, and James Ables took advantage of it, and was slumbering sweetly in his little bed. When all at once there came a rapping. Just as if some one was tapping. Tapping gently at his chamber door.

He awoke, and upon inquiry, found that a couple was waiting to be married. James thought it was rather tough to be called out of bed so early, but yet he hustled around, and got on his best pair of blue overalls and father-hubbard coat, and invited them into his office, where, in the presence of two witnesses, he said the words that made Miss Ella Beam of Spencerville, the wife of Grant F. Squires of Hall's Corners, Ind. The News hopes that Grant will always be Squire and that Ella will always Beam on him with a fond and loving heart.

Last Saturday night about ten o'clock two young men with ladies drove into this place, and hitched their horses in front of one of our business houses, took their ladies to the hotel, and then went to the saloon and proceeded to get full. After embibing freely, and then supplying themselves with an extra bottle full to carry with them, they staggered down to the hotel and got their ladies and returned to their buggies. By this time these would-be young men had become so filled up with benzene that there was hardly a spark of manhood left in them, and they proceeded to act in a most indecent and depraved manner, using the most profane and vulgar language possible. They tried to persuade the ladies to drink with them, but this they refused to do. Finally the ladies become disgusted, and threatened to take one of the rigs and go home, which partially brought the young men to their senses, and they concluded that the best thing they could do would be to go with them; and it is well for them that they did. Such actions are beneath the dignity of persons who call themselves men, and an imposition on a community, and ought not be tolerated under any circumstances.

MOUNTED WITH THE HERBRAND GEAR IRON

ECKHART CARRIAGE WORKS,

AUBURN, DE-KALB CO., IND.

—MANUFACTURER OF—

FIRST CLASS CARRIAGES

CHARLES ECKHART, PROPRIETOR

Call on me when in need of a first-class Carriage or Buggy, and I will save you money. I guarantee all work as represented.

G. E. ECKHART, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencerville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining, Glazing, Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcox. Call and see me, or leave orders at the St. Joe Drugstore.

ST. JOE MARKETS.

COLLECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat	70 cts.
Oats	25 cts.
Corn	35 cts.
Butter	10 cts.
Eggs	12 cts.
Tallow	34 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	50 cts.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

Trains Leave St. Joe as follows:

WESTBOUND.
No. 9 Mail and Express	11:05 A. M.
17 Accommodation	4:18 P. M.
3 Chicago Express	10:42 P. M.
35 Local Freight	3:42 P. M.
EAST BOUND.
No. 10 Express and Mail	2:08 P. M.
16 Accommodation	10:28 A. M.
4 Morning Express	4:55 A. M.
34 Local Freight	7:59 A. M.

W. I. McKee, Agent.

ANOTHER BABY.

Editor of the News: Please allow me space in your interesting paper to let the people know what happened just north of the school house. Tuesday morning the news spread all over the neighborhood that a young daughter had come to stay with J. W. Draggo, and Jim was so excited over it that he told Mr. Acton that he must raise his wages, for he was bound to make a musician of it. Miss Dema stands at the front gate and says to the neighbors as they pass by "come in and see our baby." And it's name must be Hannah Ann Jane and call it Jane for short.

One Who Knows.

Russ Copp and Jake White with their wives, are camping out at Hamilton Lake, this week.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE IN THE WORLD FOR Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Swellings, Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblain, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by W. C. Patterson.

So, did you hear about the fokes who went out walking the other day, and in going thru the woods they came across something hanging to a tree that looked like a large ball of a snake, or a grasshopper. They stopped to examine it, and the fello he pretended to know awl about it, and went on to explain that it was a new fangled birds nest. He take his umbrella, and pointed out the different points of interest, and he was just remarking to the lady that underneath was an opening where the birds went in.

to the nest, wen awl ov a sudden they herd a fearful buzzing an befor they knew it awlmost, they wer surrounded by an innuberbel number ov angry hornets. The man stopped explaining, and run off to one side an hid under the umbrella, while the woman stuck rite to the hornets or rather the hornets stuck to her in a most tender and loving manner. Experience tha sa, is a deer teacher, but these fokes no dout learnt a lesson, and hereafter they will not bea trying to pry into things they dont know ana thing about.

Barcus Q. Hippenhammer.

FACTS ABOUT FANS.

Some of the Most Fashionable and High Priced.

It was written of an English act-

"Assume her fashion if you can And catch the grace of her fan."

and what countless numbers of grateful breeze compellers are now waving over this summer-heated land of ours!

"Gauze fans are all the rage this season," said a salesman in one of Boston's largest retail stores to a reporter, "and heliotrope is the favorite shade. The tendency is toward still larger fans. Perhaps the most stylish, and at the same time the most showy fan, is one made of ostrich feathers, with a marabout aigrette in the center. It is called the Langtry fan by some dealers and by others the Mary Anderson, and comes in all colors. It doesn't close up, and the wavy tips of the feathers make it very graceful and pretty."

China is called the fatherland of fans, and their use has been traced almost as far back as history reaches. While they are now made of ivory, wood, leather, silk, paper, feathers, etc., the earliest fans were probably the leaves of trees or the wings of birds. Fans were introduced into England about the beginning of the sixteenth century. In Shakespeare's day no lady thought of going abroad without a fan, and in speaking of a fop in "Love's Labor Lost," he says:

"Oh, a most dainty man!
To see him walk in force a lady and bear a fan."

When Elizabeth died the royal wardrobe contained no less than twenty-seven fans. Fan exhibitions have been given in England, and an opera fan was once brought out in London giving the box, numbers, and names of subscribers. The Italian fan of the last century was often finely painted after some mythological or sacred subject or one of the great masters. The Spanish fan, nicely colored, represented some incident of gallantry or love, the stick being of mother of pearl, gaily carved and gilt. The small Dutch ivory fan was beautifully painted by one of the masters of the Low Countries, and the German fan possessed a marked nationality, with its painted ivory stick sometimes ingeniously carved a corbeille.

In the hand of the Spanish beauty it is well-known that the fan is made to express love, hope, disdain, anger, and other emotions. The "dagger fan" of China is an instrument for the still more powerful expression of the feelings. It is an elegant imitation in the pier of the common folding fan, but in reality is the sheath of a deadly blade. The uses of the fan in the Flowery Kingdom, however, are almost endless. Maps are printed on the face, and important events are frequently published by its means. At the time of the missionary riots in 1873 at Peking popular ill-feeling was excited against the missionaries by inflammatory pictures on fans. All over the Empire the fan is as much used by men as women. The folding fan generally obtains, and it is stuck in the high boot of the full-dressed Chinaman or at the back of the neck in the collarless jacket of the coolie. The schoolmaster raps the knuckles of unruly boys with it, and the beggar holds it out for alms. In the higher Chinese circles white silk stretched tightly over both sides of a narrow frame of a round, hexagonal, octagonal, or polygonal form is considered the ne plus ultra of elegant refinement, especially so when some charming study in flowers or landscape painting appears on one side, and a verse addressed to the friend for whom it is intended, and signed by the author, is written on the other. An ode to the fan by an Oriental poet begins thus:

"By thy aid gentle gales perennial blow."

According to Chinese etiquette, a Chinaman on horseback or in a sedan chair, meeting an equal of his acquaintance on foot, must dismount, be it only to make a passing bow; or two friends meeting in chairs should both dismount to salute. But to avoid the inconvenience of frequently stopping to dismount at the appearance of every friend, it is allowable to hold the fan so as to screen the face from view, and the two may pass without ceremony, or as if they were strangers. Almost every large city, and certainly every division of the Chinese Empire, has its own characteristic fan.

An odd practice prevails in regard to mourning for deceased relatives in Corea. Any one who has suffered such a loss goes about for a year wearing a kind of pointed basket on his head, which completely hides his face, and no one is permitted to address or speak to him. It was by adopting the mourning bonnet as a disguise that the early Jesuit missionaries succeeded in entering the country and making their way about unquestioned by anybody.

Singing Sands of the Pacific.

In one of the South Pacific islands are some wonderful singing sands. These sands are in a small desert. In the center of the desert are about a dozen coconut trees, and about five miles distant is the ocean. Ka Pule, a native guide, and myself reached the trees about noon. Our horses, as well as ourselves, were about used up, traveling through the deep sand under a blazing sun. As we lay stretched at the foot of the towering cocoanuts, the trade wind set in, cool and refreshing, from the ocean. Notwithstanding the heat and our wearied condition, there was an enchantment about the situation that caused me to think of the beautiful stories I had read in my childhood. I began to feel the soft touch of slumber and all at once I heard a faint musical tinkling as if troops of fairies were coming to greet us as they used to do the enchanted princes in the olden days. I tried to locate the melodious sounds. In all directions there was nothing but hot, glowing sand. I looked up—there was nothing but the beautiful tropical sky and the tremulous atmosphere. Still louder sounded the music; it was all around us; it filled the air. I gazed toward the ocean, and there, apparently a short distance, was a beautiful lake, with its waves dashing upon the moss covered stones. It was not there when we first arrived at the place, and I became half convinced that it was the work of enchantment. Ka Pule had fallen asleep, and, gazing at the lake and listening to the music in the air, I rested my head against the rough bark of a tree. As I did so I heard the distant gurgling of a brook. I could plainly hear the water splashing over the glistening stones and dying away in quiet eddies. I was more and more bewildered, and at length awoke. Ka Pule. I told him what I had heard, and directed his attention to the lake. He explained that the seeming lake was a wailula or mirage; that the sound of gurgling waters came from an underground stream, and that the music was caused by the stirring of flinty sands by the wind. Anyway, the whole experience was beautiful, and I have often said that I once made a visit to fairy land.—Stockton Mail.

Apaches on a Spree.

No drink-loving old toper ever enjoyed their liquor so much as have the Apaches whenever they could procure it, a vice, however that is rapidly subsiding as the tribes are concentrated at agencies more directly under the eye of watchful authorities. Mezen, made from that plant by the Mexicans, found its way in days gone by when population was scattering and the law lax, into Apache maws with every trade and dealing between the two races. From corn they made a fermented drink called tiz-win, which is not as strong as the corn whisky of civilization, but their peculiar method of drinking it compensates for its lack of strength. For some three days before it has reached its highest point of fermentation not a single piece of food is swallowed. At the end of that period they fill themselves to their utmost capacity with the unclarified tiz-win. Although half starved, it takes but a few moments to make them feel as if they had a major general's rations for six months previous, while the most conspicuous effect is to swell their bump of combativeness to an inordinate degree. If a large number have indulged in this liquor, serious outbreaks and disturbances are almost sure to ensue, especially if other bands of Indians or any whites are near enough for them to reach before this temporary, stimulated combativeness has worn away. In fact, after having, when sober, decided to go upon the warpath, by far the most important preliminary is the manufacture of huge quantities of tiz-win. Its peculiar composition, and the no less peculiar manner of taking the liquor, gives it a most lasting effect upon the system, and an Indian with his stomach distended with it is said to have ahead of him a six or eight days' "spree," and during all this time his warlike qualities are sure to be most conspicuous.—Minneapolis Tribune.

In railway circles nowadays there doesn't appear to be much that is of interest if there isn't a "great deal."

The Women of Central Soudan.

The women of the hottish have got over their first terrors, and come to the conclusion that we are a good natured and a harmless looking sort of fellows. At first they peep over the wall or out of neighboring doorways, till growing bolder, they venture in groups out of their hiding places to see, and doubtless to be seen. Not to alarm them, we take notes surreptitiously, and observe that they make up quite an ethnological collection of African types. Fillani and Hausa women from the neighborhood, Nupe and Yoruba specimens from the Niger districts, and others from the triles of Adamawa and the Benue region. Clearly our friend is a man of catholic taste in the matter of women. His harem presents all kinds of face and figure from the copper colored Fillani, with slender, lithe figure, well shaped face, and positively beautiful eyes, to the shapeless form, black skin, ugly face and muddy eyes of the lowest negro type. They are all dressed alike, with a lower turked or cloth round the waist, hanging to the ankles, a second sheet wound around the body under the armpits, and a third worn in the varied modes of a shawl on the head and shoulder. The hair is gathered into a solid ridge of grease and hair, which extends from the brow to the nape of the neck, something after the manner of the crest of a helmet. From each temple hangs a kind of stiff love-lock. The ankles are adorned with enormously heavy anklets of solid brass, the bar being little short of an inch and a half in thickness, the ends ornamented with neatly made polygonal beads. Nothing better finished could be turned out of a European workshop. Round the wrist are placed several more brass bracelets, not so expansively made, but collectively so heavy that to ease their arms, the wearers are frequently to be seen with hands clasped behind the head or hanging down their backs. Their ornaments usually include a string of agate beads made in the country. The women, unlike the men, do not affect white colors, the more fashionable cloths being checks of dark blue, a medium tint of the same, white and Magenta. Among those who can afford expensive articles the latter two colors are prevalent.

Strangers are not usually admitted into the family compound, but it must not be supposed that the women are strictly kept inside, and never let out. Quite the reverse. In the evenings they are almost invariably left at liberty to wander forth and join in any dance or merry-making there may be afoot, and I would not like to be responsible for the statement that their behavior is always of the best on these occasions. During the day, also, if any of the women have anything to buy or sell at the market, there is no restriction to their going thither. In the more wealthy families, however, there is always one if not two wives who are kept in strict seclusion, and not unfrequently eunuchs are employed to guard the morals of the harem.—Joseph Thompson, in Harper's Magazine.

In Central Soudan.

In shady nooks sit picturesque groups of natives in all kinds of combinations discussing the news of the day, haggling over a purchase, or busily engaged in embroidery or making up of gowns and trousers. This trade, we may note, is here entirely in the hands of men, who ply the needle with much skill. Farther on we meet a courtier gorgeously dressed, looking in his voluminous garments a very Falstaff in bulk, as he goes ambling past on his still more richly decorated horse, bent on a little exercise in the cool of the evening. Of the personal appearance of this aristocrat I shall not now speak, but we may take notice of the horse. By good-luck here happens to be one standing waiting to be mounted, so we can more conveniently examine steed and trappings in detail. The animal before us is a very fair specimen of a Soudanese horse. It is somewhat lanky, with little beauty of line, but it is fiery-eyed, and its tail and mane, being uncut, give it a somewhat wild appearance. Soudanese horses are generally very vicious and difficult to manage, stallions alone being used for riding purposes. They are specially trained for sudden forward charges, to stop within their own length when in full gallop, to turn with equal rapidity, and away like the wind out of harm's way. At other times the favorite mode of progression is by making the horse's left legs simultaneously alternate with those of the right side, a method of traveling which is very pleasant and easy. The riders are fond of making their horses prance and plunge about with fierce and fiery action. There is nothing which the central Soudanese is so proud of as his horse, and nothing to which he devotes more time and attention than its appearance and trappings. The head-gear is almost one mass of brass-plated ornaments, little bells, and a thousand tassels and flaps of leather in yellow, light blue, or dark red. The beautifully plaited reins would almost hold an elephant for strength, while the bits are perfect instruments of torture.—Joseph Thompson, in Harper's Magazine.

Tobacco in the White House.

Mr. Cleveland is developing a love for cigars which has already caught the attention of the newspaper paragrapher. There is something about life in the White House and in Washington which seems to stimulate the encetheas fumandi, although Mr. Hayes was not reflected by it. But he was proof against this and other "vanities." The taste grows, cultured, too, in the White House atmosphere, and Mr. Cleveland is said to have discarded the "two for a quarter" variety for a much costlier article. Gen. Grant was able to gratify his love for the weed at little or no tax upon his $50,000 a year. So many of his friends were desirous of making him presents and his fondness for cigars was so universally known that the express companies were kept busy delivering him boxes of the choicest brands. I know of one gift to him of a box of 100 which cost the donor $145—so, at least, the latter told me. I thought this was about the highest price ever paid for such goods, but the gentleman assured me that he had himself smoked cigars which had cost $1.75 apiece. He had done so accidentally, however, for it was far from his disposition to be so extravagant. The gift to Gen. Grant came about in this way: My informant, a merchant of means, was about to visit the General in camp during the closing days of the war and thought a box of fine cigars would be appreciated as a delicate courtesy. Accordingly, he called upon a cigar dealer near his residence and requested him to get the best box of cigars within reach. It was a time when gold was over 200, and the custom duties were very heavy. The package was duly delivered to him in a day or two and with it a bill for $145. Astonished at the price he went to the cigar dealer, who said that the bill was correct.—Brooklyn Citizen.

He Wasn't Qualified.

"Did you hire that young man who applied for your school?" was asked of a Dakota school district officer.

"Well, I should rather say we didn't."

"Why not?"

"His education didn't come up to the scratch."

"What in?"

"Gram'r."

"How did you find it out?"

"Why he got in my wagon to ride from the field to the house an' said I 'Did ye ever drive much?' 'Of late years,' says he, 'I have driven very little.' 'Drove very little, ye mean,' says I. 'I beg yer pardon,' says he, 'but I mean driven.' 'Drove is right,' says I. 'No, sir,' says he, 'driven is the most grammatical.' 'Oh, well, maybe ye know,' says I, sorter sarcastic. 'I reckon I do,' says he, 'I'm jes' comin' out here to learn you folks somethin'.' 'Do ye see that road?' says I. 'I does,' says he. 'Well,' says I, 'it goes to town an' you want to git right out an' humper yourself down it mighty fasten 'cause I'm goin' to begin kickin' ye in about a minute by the clock.' He saw I knowed more 'bout gram'r than he did an' he got out o' that wagon and scooted down the road. You bet we're goin' to have a teacher that understands gram'r or none at all."—Dakota Bell.

MARTIN BEHEM is credited with having discovered America prior to Columbus. In a first voyage of discovery in 1460 he visited Fayal and the Azores, and afterward visited Brazil, sailing as far north as the Straits of Magellan in 1484, six years before Columbus set sail for the West.

ONE may say, generally, that no deeply-rooted tendency was ever extirpated by adverse argument. Not having originally been founded on argument, it cannot be destroyed by logic.

Cuba as it is.

The island has more fine harbors than any other country of its size, and it is no wonder that the buccanniers of the Spanish main selected it as the center of their piratical enterprises. It has two hundred and sixty rivers and plenty of fresh water springs. It has a climate which is one perpetual summer. It never snows in Cuba, though the ice sometimes forms upon the mountains. The babies can go naked here the year round, and as for the stocking trade of Havana its customers are confined to the higher classes. Neither stockings nor suspenders are used by the laborers, and I doubt whether there are one thousand pair of suspenders worn by the one million five hundred thousand people who make up that island's population. They use instead a belt-strap, and the majority of the working-men of the island confine their apparel to an undershirt and trousers. The better class of men dress in white duck, with Panama hats.

The lower class of women wear few underclothes, and a calico wrapper and a pair of heelless slippers are a wardrobe. There are no carpets on the floors nor plaster on the ceilings. Iron bars take the place of glass windows, and there is not a chimney nor a cooking stove in Havana. There are no barns, and the horses are washed in the harbors instead of being carried. There are no bricks used in the sidewalks, and the average sidewalk is three feet wide and of stone. The building stone used is a porous one, and this is covered with stucco. Havana has parks, but there is no grass in them, and as for shade, it can be got only by going to the mountains.

The policemen carry swords and guns, and the offices of all kinds are filled by the Spaniards. There are no mattresses on the Cuban beds, and as for feather pillows, there are not feathers enough used here to make a wad for the earache. There are few china pitchers used in Havana, and the drinking mug is of porous clay, with a hole at the top, out of which the water is poured into the mouth in a trickling stream. Red brick tiles take the place of shingles and the tops of the houses are used in the evenings for sitting-rooms. The gardens of Havana are inside the houses, instead of behind them.

The milkman drives his cow from door to door and milks directly into the vessel of his customer. The calf generally tags along behind, and the cow now and then refuses to give down her milk until the calf has had a pull. The only way of watering the milk is watering the cow; but a cow that is kept on the run much of the time does not always give good milk.

The Cuban takes oranges, bread and butter, and coffee for breakfast. He pares his oranges as we do apples, and you find plates of pared oranges before you on the table when you sit down to the morning meal. The way to eat these oranges is to drive a fork into them, plant your teeth firmly into the luscious fruit and suck the juice. The Cuban breakfast is taken on rising, and there is another breakfast about nine or ten o'clock. This is more like the American meal, and the whole city knocks off for it. Passing along the street at this time you may see families at their meals through the open windows and doors, and an hour or two later the whole town seems to be taking a siesta. Dinner is eaten between five and six o'clock, and the stores keep open until about nine o'clock in the evening.—Home Journal.

An Untenable Defense.

Police Judge (severely)—Prisoner at the bar, you are charged with wanton and unprovoked assault on this district messenger boy, who appears here as complaining witness. What have you to say in your own behalf?

Prisoner (volubly)—You see, your honor, I was coming down the street when this boy dashed out of the bank and dashed against me.

Judge (doubtfully)—You say he ran out of the bank?

Prisoner (confidently)—Yes, your honor. He ran out, as I said, and—

Judge (contemptuously)—You dare to come here and tell this court that a messenger boy ran! I'll have you to understand, sir, that this court cannot be trifled with. Fifty dollars or fifty days in jail.—San Francisco Post.

FLOWERS are the sweetest things that God ever made and forgot to put soul into.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS is an unfailing cure for all diseases originating in biliary derangements caused by the malaria of miasmatic countries. No other medicine now on sale will so effectively remove the disturbing elements, and at the same time tone up the whole system. It is sure and safe in its action.

You can always distinguish the young lady who rules the household by her marshy air.

If a cough disturbs your sleep, take Piso's Cure for Consumption, and rest well.

I found it a specific for Hay Fever. For ten years I have been a great sufferer from August till frost. Ely's Cream Balm is the only preventive I have ever found. Hay Fever sufferers should know of its efficacy.—Frank B. Ainsworth, Publisher, Indianapolis, Ind. Apply Balm into each nostril.

D. R. BAIRD'S GRANULES
Cure Dyspepsia, Malaria, Piles, Heart Disease, Impure Blood, Kidney Disease, Torpid Liver, Habitual Constipation, etc. A new principle, a new remedy. Purely Vegetable. A full size box sent free by postage prepaid, to any invalid, or pair of friends sending their aid case at once. Give account of case, symptoms, etc. Address: DR. BAIRD, 157 W. 23d St., N. Y.
OPIMUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.

A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC R'R

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest—in the only true middle-link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific. The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unequalled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

ALL EXPRESS TRAINS between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE PARLOR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and—between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kanabos, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.

All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employees of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly attention.

For Tickets, Maps, Folders—obtainable at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada—or any desired information, address,

R. R. CABLE, Pres't & Gen'l Mgr., Chicago. E. ST. JOHN, Asst Gen'l Mgr., Chicago. E. A. HOLBROOK, Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Agt., Chicago.

This represents a healthy life. Throughout its various scenes.

Just such a life as they enjoy. Who use the Smith's Bile Beans.

Smith's BILE BEANS purify the blood, by acting directly and promptly on the Liver, Skin and Kidneys. They consist of a vegetable combination that has no equal in medical science. They cure Constipation, Malaria, and Dyspepsia, and are a safeguard against all forms of fever, chills and fever, gall stones, and Bright's disease. Send 2 cents postage for a sample package and test the TRUTH of what we say. Price, 25 cents per bottle, mailed to any address, postpaid. DOSE ONE BEAN. Sold by druggists.

J. F. SMITH & CO., PROPRIETORS, ST. LOUIS, MO.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times." Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

Pierce's Little Pleasant LIVER Purgative PILLS.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS. ALWAYS ASK FOR DR. PIERCE'S PELLETS, OR LITTLE SUGAR-COATED PILLS.

Being entirely vegetable, they operate without disturbance to the system, diet, or occupation. Put up in glass vials, hermetically sealed. Always fresh and reliable. As a laxative, alternative, or purgative, these little Pellets give the most perfect satisfaction.

SICK HEADACHE.

Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.

In explanation of the remedial power of these Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may truthfully be said that their action upon the system is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their salutary influence. Sold by druggists, 25 cents a vial. Manufactured at the Chemical Laboratory of WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

$500 REWARD

is offered by the manufacturer of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for a case of Chronic Nasal Catarrh which they cannot cure.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH. Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; the eyes are weak, watery, and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers; the voice is changed and has a nasal twang; the breath is offensive; smell and taste are impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility. Only a few of the above-named symptoms are likely to be present in any one case. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, or less understood by physicians.

By its mild, soothing, and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases of Catarrh, "cold in the head," Coryza, and Catarrhal Headache. Sold by druggists everywhere; 50 cents.

"Untold Agony from Catarrh."

Prof. W. HARRIS, the famous mesmerist, of Ithaca, N. Y., writes: "Some ten years ago I suffered untold agony from chronic nasal catarrh. My family physician gave me up as incurable, and said I must die. My case was such a bad one, that every day, towards sunset, my voice would become so hoarse, I could barely speak above a whisper. In the morning my coughing and clearing of my throat would almost strangle me. By the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, in three months, I was a well man, and the cure has been permanent."

"Constantly Hawking and Spitting."

THOMAS J. RUSHING, Esq., 2902 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh for three years. At times I could hardly breathe, and was constantly hawking and spitting, and for the last eight months could not breathe through the nostrils. I thought nothing could be done for me. Luckily, I was advised to try Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I believe it to be the only sure remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and one has only to give it a fair trial to experience astounding results and a permanent cure."

Three Bottles Cure Catarrh.

ELI ROBBINS, Rhyman P. O., Columbia Co., Pa., says: "My daughter had catarrh when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her; a third bottle effected a permanent cure. She is now eighteen years old and sound and hearty."

MARVELOUS MEMORY DISCOVERY.

Wholly unlike artificial systems. Any book learned in one reading. Recommended by Mark Twain, Richard Proctor the Scientist, Hon. W. W. Astor, Judah P. Benjamin, Dr. Minor, etc. Class of 100 Columbia law students, two classes 20 each at Yale, 30 University of Penn., 30 at Wellesley College, etc. Prospectus post free. PROF. LOISELLE, 237 Fifth Ave., New York.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for

I have retailed cigars for sixteen years, and I consider your "Tansill's Punch" the best cigar I ever saw.

JOHN W. AITKEN, Druggist, Carbondale, Pa. Your "Tansill's Punch" cigar is becoming more popular every day. Cigar smokers don't bother us any more. HUGO ANDERSEN, Beaver, Pa. Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

MARLIN REPEATING RIFLE

BEST IN THE WORLD! Guaranteed perfectly accurate and absolutely safe. Made in all sizes for large or small game.

BALLARD Gallery, Hunting and Target Rifles. Send for Illustrated Catalogue. Marlin Fire Arms Co., New Haven, Conn.

PATENTS R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Instructions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 22 1/2 years' experience.

N. U. P. W. No. 34-87

When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

SECTARIANISM.

Dr. Talmage's Sermon at the Hamptons.

Bigotry and Sectarianism Disgust People with the Christian Religion and Hinder the Triumph of the Gospel—Intolerance Never Put Anything Down.

THE HAMPTONS, August 14.—To-day the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage's sermon is "Concerning the Bigot," and the text, "Then said they unto him, say now Shibboleth; and he said Shibboleth; for he could not frame to pronounce it right. Then they took him and slew him at the passages of Jordan."—Judges xii, 6.

Do you notice the difference of pronunciation between shibboleth and sibboleth? A very small and unimportant difference, you say. And yet that difference was the difference between life and death for a great many people. The Lord's people, Gilead and Ephraim, got into a great fight, and Ephraim was worsted, and on the retreat came to the fords of the river Jordan to cross. Order was given that all Ephraimites coming there be slain. But how could it be found out who were Ephraimites? They were detected by their pronunciation. Shibboleth was a word that stood for river. The Ephraimites had a brogue of their own, and when they tried to say shibboleth always left out the sound of the "h." When it was asked that they say shibboleth they said sibboleth, and were slain. "Then said they unto him, say now Shibboleth; and he said Sibboleth, for he could not frame to pronounce it right. Then they took him and slew him at the passages of Jordan." A very small difference, you say, between Gilead and Ephraim, and yet how much intolerance about that small difference. The Lord's tribes in our time—by which I mean the different denominations of Christians—sometimes magnify a very small difference, and the only difference between scores of denominations to-day is the difference between shibboleth and sibboleth.

The church of God is divided into a great number of denominations. Time would fail me to tell of the Calvinists, and the Arminians, and the Sabbatarians, and the Baxterians, and the Dunkers, and the Shakers, and the Quakers, and the Methodists, and the Baptists, and the Episcopalians, and the Lutherans, and the Congregationalists, and the Presbyterians, and the Spiritualists, and a score of other denominations of religionists, some of them founded by very good men, and some of them founded by very egotistic men, and some of them founded by very bad men. But as I demand for myself liberty of conscience, I must give that same liberty to every other man, remembering that he no more differs from me than I differ from him. I advocate the largest liberty in all religious belief and form of worship. In art, in politics, in morals, and in religion let there be no gag law, no moving of the previous question, no persecution, no intolerance.

You know that the air and the water keep pure by constant circulation, and I think there is a tendency in religious discussion to purification and moral health. Between the Fourth and the Sixteenth centuries the church proposed to make people think aright by prohibiting discussion and by strong censorship of the press, and by rack, and gibbet, and hot lead down the throat, tried to make people orthodox; but it was discovered that you cannot change a man's belief by twisting off his head, and that you cannot make a man see things differently by putting an awl through his eyes. There is something in a man's conscience which will hurl off the mountain that you threw upon it, and, unsinged of the fire, out of the flame will make red wings on which the martyr will mount to glory.

In that time of which I speak, between the Fourth and Sixteenth centuries, people went from the house of God into the most appalling iniquity, and right along by consecrated altars there were tides of drunkenness and licentiousness such as the world never heard of, and the very sewers of predication broke loose and flooded the church. After a while the printing-press was freed, and it broke the shackles of the human mind. Then there came a large number of bad books, but where there was one man hostile to the Christian religion there were twenty ready to advocate it; so I have not any nervousness in regard to this battle going on between truth and error.

The truth will conquer just as certainly as that God is stronger than the devil. Let error run if you only let truth run along with it. Urged on by skeptic's shout and transcendentalist's spur, let it run. God's angels of wrath are in hot pursuit, and quicker than eagle's beak clutches out a hawk's heart God's vengeance will tear it to pieces.

I propose this morning to speak to you of sectarianism—its origin, its evils, and its cures. There are those who would make us think that this monster, with horns and hoofs, is religion. I shall chase it to its hiding-place, and drag it out of the caverns of darkness and rip off its hide. But I want to make a distinction between bigotry and the lawful fondness for peculiar religious beliefs and forms of worship. I have no admiration for a nothingarian.

In a world of such tremendous vicissitudes and temptation, and with a soul that must after a while stand before a throne of insufferable brightness, in a day when the rocking of the mountains and the flaming of the heavens and the upheaval of the sea shall be among the least of the excitements, to give account for every thought, word, action, preference, and dislike—that man is mad who has no religious preference. But our early education, our physical temperament, our mental constitution will very much decide our form of worship.

A style of psalmody that may please me may displease you. Some would like to have a minister in gown and bands, and surplice, and others prefer to have a minister in plain citizen's apparel. Some are most impressed when a little child is presented at the altar and sprinkled of the waters of a holy benediction "in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost;" and others are more impressed when the penitent comes up out of the river, his garments dripping with the waters of a baptism which signifies the washing away of sin. Let either have his own way. One man likes no noise in prayer, not a word, not a whisper. Another man, just as good, prefers by gesticulation and exclamation to express his devotional aspirations. One is just as good as the other. "Every man fully persuaded in his own mind."

George Whitefield was going over a Quaker rather roughly for some of his religious sentiments, and the Quaker said: "George, I am as thou art; I am for bringing all men to the hope of the Gospel; therefore, if thou wilt not quarrel with me about my broad brim, I will not quarrel with thee about thy black gown. George, give me thy hand."

I, in tracing out the religion of sectarianism, or bigotry, I find that a great deal of it comes from wrong education in the home circle. There are parents who do not think it wrong to caricature and jeer the peculiar forms of religion in the world and denounce other sects and other denominations. It is very often the case that that kind of education acts just opposite to what was expected, and the children grow up and, after a while, go and see for themselves; and looking in those churches, and finding that the people are good there, and they love God and keep his commandments, by natural reaction they go and join those very churches. I could mention the names of prominent ministers of the Gospel who spent their whole lives bombarding other denominations, and who lived to see their children preach the Gospel in those very denominations. But it is often the case that bigotry starts in a household and that the subject of it never recovers. There are tens of thousands of bigots 10 years old.

I think sectarianism and bigotry also arise from too great prominence of any one denomination in a community. All the other denominations are wrong, and his denomination is right because his denomination is the most wealthy, or the most popular, or the most influential, and it is "our" church, and "our" religious organization, and "our" choir, and "our" minister, and the man tosses his head and wants other denominations to know their places. It is a great deal better in any community when the great denominations of Christians are about equal in power, marching side by side for the world's conquest. Mere outside prosperity, mere worldly power, is no evidence that the church is acceptable to God. Better a barn with Christ in the manger than a cathedral with magnificent harmonies rolling through the long-drawn aisles and an angel from Heaven in the pulpit, if there be no Christ in the chancel and no Christ in the robes. Bigotry is often the child of ignorance.

You seldom find a man with large intellect who is a bigot. It is the man who thinks he knows a great deal but does not. That man is almost always a bigot. The whole tendency of education and civilization is to bring a man out of that kind of state of mind and heart. There was in the far East a great obelisk, and one side of the obelisk was white, another side of the obelisk was green, another side of the obelisk was blue, and travelers went and looked at that obelisk, but they did not walk around it. One man looked at one side, another at another side, and they came home, each one looking at only one side. And they happened to meet, the story says, and they got into a rank quarrel about the color of that obelisk. One man said it was white, another man said it was green, another man said it was blue, and when they were in the very heat of the controversy a more intelligent traveler came and said: "Gentlemen, I have seen that obelisk, and you are all right and you are all wrong. Why didn't you walk all around the obelisk?"

Look out for the man who sees only one side of a religious truth. Look out for the man who never walks around about these great theories of God and eternity and the dead. He will be a bigot inevitably—the man who only sees one side. There is no man more to be pitied than he who has in his head just one idea—no more, no less. More light, less sectarianism. There is nothing that will so soon kill bigotry as sunshine—God's sunshine.

II. So I have set before you what I consider to be the cause of bigotry. I have set before you the origin of this great evil. What are some of the baleful effects? First of all it cripples investigation. You are wrong, and I am right, and that ends it. No taste for exploration, no spirit of investigation. From the glorious realm of God's truth, over which an archangel might fly from eternity to eternity and not reach the limit, the man shuts himself out and dies, a blind mole under a corn shock. It stops all investigation.

While each denomination of Christians is to present all the truths of the Bible, it seems to me that God has given to each denomination an especial mission to give particular emphasis to some one doctrine; and so the Calvinistic churches must present the sovereignty of God, and the Arminian churches must present man's free agency, and the Episcopal churches must present the importance of order and solemn ceremony, and the Baptist churches must present the necessity of ordinances, and the Congregational Church must present the responsibility of the individual member, and the Methodist Church must show what holy enthusiasm, hearty, congregational singing can accomplish. While each denomination of Christians must set forth all the doctrines of the Bible, I feel it is especially incumbent upon each denomination to put particular emphasis upon some one doctrine.

Another great damage done by the sectarianism and bigotry of the church is that it disgusts people with the Christian religion. Now, my friends, the Church of God was never intended for a war barracks. People are afraid of a riot. You go down the street and you see an excitement, and missiles flying through the air, and you hear the shock of firearms. Do you, the peaceful and industrious citizen, go through that street? "Oh, no!" you will say, "I'll go around the block." Now, men come and look upon this narrow path to Heaven, and sometimes see the ecclesiastical brickbats flying every whither, and they say, "Well, I guess I'll take the broad road; if it is so rough, and there is so much sharp shooting on the narrow road, I guess I'll try the broad road."

Francis I. so hated the Lutherans that he said if he thought there was one drop of Lutheran blood in his veins he would puncture them and let that drop out. Just as long as there is so much hostility between denomination and denomination, or between one professed Christian and another, just so long men will be disgusted with the Christian religion and say, "If that is religion, I want none of it."

Besides that, if you want to build up any denomination, you will never build it up by trying to pull some other down. Intolerance never put anything down. How much has intolerance accomplished, for instance against the Methodist Church? For long years her ministry was forbidden the pulpits of Great Britain. Why was it that so many of them preached in the fields? Simply because they could not get in the churches. And the name of the church was given in derision and as a sarcasm. The critics of the church said, "They have no order, they have no method in their worship;" and the critics, therefore, in irony called them "Methodists."

I am told that in Astor Library, New York, kept as curiosities there are 707 books and pamphlets against Methodism. Did intolerance stop that church? No; it is either first or second amid the denominations of Christendom, her missionary stations in all parts of the world, her men not only important in religious trusts, but important also in secular trusts. Church marching on, and the more intolerance against it, the faster it marched.

What did intolerance accomplish against the Baptist Church? If laughing scorn and tirade could have destroyed the church it would not have today a disciple left.

The Baptists were hurled out of Boston in the olden times. Those who sympathized with them were confined, and when a petition was offered asking leniency in their behalf all men who signed it were indicted. Has intolerance stopped the Baptist Church? The last statistics in regard to it showed about 30,000 churches and about 2,500,000 communicants. Intolerance never put down anything.

In England a law was made against the Jew. England thrust back the Jew and thrust down the Jew, and declared that no Jew should hold official position. What came of it? Were the Jews destroyed? Was their religion overthrown? No. Who became Prime Minister of England years ago? Who was next to the throne? Who was higher than the throne because he was counselor and adviser? The descendant of a Jew. What were we celebrating in all our churches as well as synagogues a few years ago? The one hundredth birthday anniversary of Montefiore, the great Jewish philanthropist. Intolerance never yet put down anything.

III. But now, my friends, having shown you the origin of bigotry or sectarianism, and having shown you the damage it does, I want briefly to show you how we are to war against this terrible evil, and I think we ought to begin our war by realizing our weakness and our imperfections. If we make so many mistakes in the common affairs of life, is it not possible that we may make mistakes in regard to our religious affairs? Shall we take a man by the throat, or by the collar, because he cannot see religious truths just as we do? In the light of eternity it will be found out, I think, there was something wrong in all our creeds, and something right in all our creeds. But since we may make mistakes in regard to things of the world; do not let us be egotistic, and so puffed up as to have an idea that we cannot make any mistake in regard to religious theories. And then I think we will do a great deal to overthrow the sectarianism from our heart, and the sectarianism from the world, by chiefly enlarging upon those things in which we agree rather than those on which we differ.

Now, here is a great Gospel platform. A man comes up on this side the platform and says: "I don't believe in baby sprinkling." Shall I shove him off? Here is a man coming up on this side the platform, and he says: "I don't believe in the perseverance of the saints." Shall I shove him off? No. I will say: "Do you believe in the Lord Jesus as your Savior?" He says, "Yes." "Do you take Christ for time—and for eternity?" "Yes." I say, "Come on, brother; one in time and one in eternity; brother now, brother forever." Blessed be God for a Gospel platform so large that all who receive Christ may stand on it!

I think we may overthrow the severe sectarianism and bigotry in our hearts, and in the church also, by realizing that all the denominations of Christians have yielded noble institutions and noble men. There is nothing that so stirs my soul as this thought. One denomination yielded a Robert Hall and an Adoniram Judson; another yielded a Latimer and a Melville; another yielded John Wesley and the blessed Summerfield, while our own denomination yielded John Knox and the Alexanders—men of whom the world was not worthy. Now, I say, if we are honest and fair-minded men, when we come up in the presence of such churches and such denominations, although they may be different from our own, we ought to admire them, and we ought to love and honor them. Churches which can produce such men, and such hearty charity, and such magnificent martyrdom, ought to win our affection—at any rate, our respect. So come on, 400,000 Episcopalians in this country, and ye 800,000 Presbyterians, and ye 2,250,000 Baptists, and ye nearly 3,750,000 Methodists—come on, shoulder to shoulder we will march for the world's conquest; for all nations are to be saved, and God demands that you and I help do it. Forward, the whole line.

Moreover, we may also overthrow the feeling of severe sectarianism by joining other denominations in Christian work. I like when the springtime comes and the anniversary occasions begin and all denominations come upon the same platform. That overthrows sectarianism. In the Young Men's Christian Association, in the Bible Society, in the Tract Society, in the Foreign Missionary Society, shoulder to shoulder all denominations.

Perhaps I might more forcibly illustrate this truth by calling your attention to an incident which took place fourteen or fifteen years ago. One Monday morning at about 2 o'clock, while her 900 passengers were sound asleep in her berths dreaming of home, the steamer Atlantic crashed into Mars Head. Five hundred souls in ten minutes landed in eternity! Oh, what a scene! Agonized men and women running up and down the gangways and clutching for the rigging, and the plunge of the helpless steamer, and the clapping of the hands of the merciless sea over the drowning and the dead, threw two continents into terror. But see this brave quartermaster pushing out with the life line until he gets to the rock; and see these fishermen gathering up the shipwrecked and taking them into the cabins and wrapping them in the flannel snug and warm; and see that minister of the Gospel with three other men getting into a lifeboat and pushing out for the wreck, pulling away across the surf and pulling away until they saved one more man, and then getting back with him to the shore. Can those men ever forget that night? And can they ever forget that companionship in peril, companionship in struggle, companionship in awful catastrophe and rescue? Never! Never! In whatever part of the earth they meet they will be friends when they mention the story of that awful night when the Atlantic struck Mars Head.

Well, my friend, our world has gone into a worst shipwreck. Sin drove it on the rocks. The old ship has lurched and tossed in the tempest of six thousand years. Out with the life line! I do not care what denomination carries it. Out with the life boat! I do not care what denomination rows it. Side by side in the memory of common hardships, and common trials, and common prayers, and common tears, let us be brothers forever. We must be. We must be.

One army of the living God
To whose command we bow;
Part of the host have crossed the flood
And part are crossing now.

And I expect to see the day when all denominations of Christians shall join hands around the cross of Christ and recite the creed: "I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, and in the communion of saints, and in the life everlasting." May God inspire us all with the largest hearted Christian charity!

EGOTISM is a man without a collar carrying a gold-headed cane.—New Haven News.

A POLITICIAN is honest when all other means have failed.—Washington Critic.

Supplement to the St. Joe News.

Vol. 1.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 19, 1887.

No. 15.

Morris Widney, of Auburn, was in town on Monday.

Horace H. Mosier, of the Bristol Banner, made this office a pleasant call last week.

Vester Widney sold over three hundred cigars at the Spencerville picnic last Saturday.

There is no danger of St. Joe spoiling. Our merchants got in three car loads of salt this week.

Dave Howey, of Bryan, dropped in on us one day this week. Dave is in the hardware business and looks as if he was making money.

Master Walter Philley of Fort Wayne is spending a few weeks in this place, the guest of J. D. Leighty and family. Walter is having all the fun there is going.

The rain last Sunday prevented quite a number from attending the Spiritualist's meeting, who had expected to go. The rain though, was gladly welcomed by everybody.

J. E. Dermott wishes us to state that he will be at the picnic at St. Joe, on Saturday, Sept. 3rd, at which time he will distribute to the teachers and school children of this township, tickets of admission to the Waterloo fair.

We printed some sale bills for George Swineford this week. He will sell his personal property on Thursday, August 25th. We understand that George will become landlord of the Swineford hotel at Auburn about the first of September.

At a late hour Saturday night, the St. Joe band serenaded the different business houses in town. It was a new wrinkle, and we hardly know whether they were out to show their new caps, or to get a few cigars to smoke on Sunday. Probably a little of both.

If hot, dry and dusty weather is essential to the success of a picnic, then Spencerville had the most successful picnic last Saturday that has been held this season. The dust was so thick you could almost cut it with a knife, but people didn't seem to mind it, they mopped around, and had just as good a time as though the weather was made especially for that occasion. There were several schools present, and the exercises we thought, were a little above the average picnic program. The schools all sang well, the speakers showed their good sense by making their speeches short, and every thing moved off in a lively manner just as it should on such occasions. The exercise by the primary class, under the direction of their efficient teacher Mrs. Lizzie Horn, deserves special mention, for the excellent manner in which it was rendered; the little folks done bravely. In fact the picnic was a success in every particular.

Our Country's Own Production OF AMERICAN TIN PLATE, ### Made of Best SIEMEN'S MARTIN STEEL,

Has been received at our store, of which we can highly recommend to our customers as the Best Double Dipped Roofing Plate made.

J. H. CONRAD, ST. JOE, IND.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNESS

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

M. T. BISHOP,

— DEALER IN —

LUMBER, LIME,

— LATH, —

SHINGLES,

MOULDING &c.

Large Stock and Low Prices. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

MEAT MARKET

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

IS CONSUMPTION INCURABLE?

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with Abscess of Lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an Incurable Consumption. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, am now on my third bottle and able to over-see the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Jesse Middlewart, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption I would have died of Lung Troubles. Was given up by doctors. Am now in best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store.

The Spencerville baseball club assisted by some ex-players on St. Joe, beat the Auburn team at the picnic last Saturday.

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, AUGUST 26, 1887.

NO. 31.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.
J. M. MILLMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SIEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind. John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a speciality. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—The Terre Haute police arrested three men on information given by a farmer that they had been to his place and tried to work a confidence game on him, but as he was a reader of newspapers he declined to be bled. The men gave their names as Parker, Kerns, and Forbes. There could be no charge made against them at Terre Haute, and they were held to await information from the other localities. It turns out they are wanted in Jackson County, this State, for swindling a farmer named Zach Deputy out of $3,000 in cash and a note for $500. Mr. Deputy, who is quite wealthy, was considered a good subject to work upon. One of the men visited the farm of Mr. Deputy, into whose good graces he proceeded to get, which object was accomplished by paying very profuse compliments to his farm, etc. Finally the visitor became so much in love with the place that he determined to buy it. He didn't care what it cost. His father-in-law, at Fort Wayne, whom he represented to be the President of the bank, was literally reeking with wealth. He would bring down the old gentleman in a day or so and let him see the place. Mr. Deputy was much elated at the prospect of selling his farm at a bargain, and the dutiful "son-in-law" accordingly brought down the "old gentleman" the next day. The farm seemed to please them very much. With Mr. Deputy they drove out on the road. Of course, they met another man, quite unexpectedly. Would they like to be one of the beneficiaries in the new scheme he is getting up? The "old gentleman" and the "son-in-law" were willing. It was the same old story. Mr. Deputy had money in the bank. He drew $3,000, hoping, presumably, to carry home with him three or four times that much. He supposed his money had been returned to him, because when moving off, in order to keep him from following them, the three swindlers threw back a package much resembling his, with a $10 note on the outside and the rest Confederate money and advertisements.

—The oldest woman in this State is Mrs. Magdalene Boggs, who resides with her daughter, Mrs. Ann Rothermel, at Milton, Wayne County. Mrs. Boggs was born on December 22, 1783, at Elizabethtown, Lancaster County, Pa. Her father, Peter Shafer, was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. He died in 1848 at the age of 97. She was married to Alexander Boggs in 1801. Mrs. Boggs is the mother of eleven children, four of whom are living, the oldest being 81 and the youngest 64. She has forty-eight grandchildren, ninety great-grandchildren, and twelve great-great-grandchildren. One of her grandchildren is over 50 years old, and one of her great-great-grandchildren is over 25. He is editor of the Latham Signal in Butler County, Kas. Mrs. Boggs is able to make her bed, and does all her own sewing. During the past year she has pieced a dozen quilts. Her faculties are all well preserved. She enjoys good health and her appetite is remarkably good.

—A disease resembling distemper is becoming prevalent among the horses in the vicinity of Martinsville. It attacks young horses more frequently than old ones, but very few of the latter have been afflicted yet. The animal's throat swells to a very large size, so as to make it difficult, if not impossible to swallow anything. The swollen part rarely breaks, but emits matter freely when lanced. Several horses have died of the disease and it is spreading continually. It is slow in its effects but quite fatal.

—The water from the artesian well at Martinsville is attaining a wide reputation for the cure of rheumatism and liver and kidney diseases, and is being shipped to Spencer, Gosport, Mooresville and other places, on account of its excellent medical qualities. All who use it are enthusiastic in praising its good qualities. People visit the well from early morning until late at night, drinking the water and carrying it away in jugs, cans, buckets, and kegs.

—William Patterson, of Indianapolis, was instantly killed at Lafayette. Patterson stepped from an engine on the Lake Erie and Western road to the track of the Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Chicago. A locomotive on the road came rushing by. He attempted to step off the track, but his foot caught in the double rail and held him fast. He was horribly mangled.

—A terrible murder and robbery occurred near Fredericksburg, Washington County, recently. John Hertel and Daniel Wyninger, long time enemies, met on the turnpike, renewed their quarrel and finally ended it by Hertel stabbing Wyninger to death with a huge butcher knife. Hertel then robbed the dead man of $2,000 and fled.

—A stranger was accidentally and instantly killed by the local passenger train, near the depot of the Pittsburgh road, at Fort Wayne. He hailed from Chicago, was apparently a tramp, and probably insane. There was nothing found on his person to lead to his identification.

—Edward T. Brush, switchman in the yards of the Pennsylvania Company, at Fort Wayne, while coupling cars, fell under the cars and was run over, causing death shortly afterward. Deceased was 30 years of age and leaves a family.

—Silas Shroyer, a Bartholomew County farmer, while driving an ox-team attached to a threshing engine descending a hill, fell off, the wheels passing over him, crushing him badly and injuring him internally. He cannot recover.

—Marshal Ellis, of Wabash, went to Marion in pursuit of thieves, and put up at a hotel over night. He got up in the night and walked out of a second-story window, falling thirty feet.

—The Attorney General is ready to bring suit against the Western Union Telegraph Company, the American Express Company, and the Woodruff Sleeping Car Company to recover taxes due under the law passed in 1881.

—Warden Patten, of the Jefferson prison, has settled with the Auditor of State for his quarter ending with July. During that period his receipts were $20,927 and the expenditures $20,270.

—At the firemen's tournament at Plymouth, the champion hose belt of the State was won by Bremon Hose, No. 4.

—Mrs. Sarah Ellen McIntosh, of Salem, oldest child of the late W. C. DePauw, has brought suit to set aside the will, on the ground of undue influence attending the execution.

—Stephen Allen, who has resided in Montgomery County for sixty years, died at his home, six miles south of Crawfordsville, aged 72 years.

—Allen Smith, an aged German of Terre Haute, cut his throat from ear to ear, and died several hours afterward.

—Frank Sanders was struck by a limb while felling timber near Anderson, and received fatal injuries.

—James Summers and wife, living near Memphis, were struck by lightning and instantly killed.

—Charles Haines was drowned while seining in Fall Creek, seven miles west of Anderson.

—Rev. Mr. Hermans will be called to the pastorate of Christ Episcopal Church, Madison.

—Elisha Rainbott was murdered at Jonesboro by two brothers named Brown.

—Charles Werry, of Warrick County, was killed by a runaway horse.

THE tight-laced woman has always good staying power.—Boston Gazette.

SHORT LEGS MADE LONG.

"Your son has grown up to be quite a handsome young man," said an old fellow, addressing a young man.

"Well, no. You see the trouble with Bill is that his legs are too short. He started out with the fairest sort of promise, and at one time I had great hopes of his lending the luster of renown to my family by distinguishing himself as a base-ball player, but all of a sudden his legs stopped growing. This seemed to give fresh impetus to the growing of his body, and the first thing we knew he was all out of proportion."

The two friends were sitting in the rotunda of a Southern hotel. The man who had asked concerning his friend's son pointed to the stairway and said:

"There's his chance."

"How? What do you mean?"

"I mean that your son can reclaim his lost proportion. Listen a moment to a few statements of cold fact. There has never been anything discovered that exercises such an influence upon the length of the human leg as the position of bell-boy in a three-story hotel. I specify the three-story hotel, for it is not tall enough to warrant the use of an elevator. See that long-legged negro over there?"

"Yes."

"Well, I knew him when his legs were so short that he couldn't have straddled a duck. I actually saw him mounted on a horse one day and his legs stuck straight out."

"And did running up and down stairs lengthen his legs that way?"

"Just as sure as you are born. They used to make him a pair of pants by cutting a scollop out of two pieces of cloth and sewing them together. Now, you see, his legs are so long and his body is so short that the only thing necessary to make him a pair of pants is to take two bags and stitch them together at the top. Now, you take your son to a three-story hotel and get him a position as bell-boy, but you'll have to watch him."

"Why so?"

"You'll have to measure him every day to see that his legs do not get too long. I knew a fellow who did that work so long that once when a man, after gazing at him in astonishment, asked him why he wore such a peculiar belt, he took off what was thought to be a belt and proved it to be his collar. Bring your son to this place."—Arkansas Traveler.

BEGGING FOR SOAP.

A ragged and dirty tramp entered Monmouth the other day and visited the stores in succession, begging a bar of soap from each. The purpose was so apparent that he was rarely refused. After putting in a day at this he held an auction at night and disposed of his day's plunder, which was large. The result was a neat sum—enough to keep him in luxury for some time.

CHARLES RAY, one of the curators of the Smithsonian Institution, who recently died in Washington, was a curious character. He had no relatives in this country, and leaves his fortune to a nephew in Germany. For fifty years he lived the life of a miser. He slept and cooked in one room in the Smithsonian building.

"WE ARE WITNESSES."

Discourse by Rev. Dr. Talmage at the Hamptons.

The World Will Be Brought to God Not Through Argument, but Through Testimony—The Christian's Weapon in the Conflict Is Faith, Not Logic.

THE HAMPTONS, Aug. 24.—"The Facts Proved" is the subject of discourse by the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D., to-day.
His text is from Acts xv, 3: "We are witnesses." Following is his sermon in full:

In the days of George Stephenson, the perfector of the locomotive engine, the scientists proved conclusively that a railway train could never be driven by steam power successfully and without peril; but the rushing express trains from Liverpool to Edinburgh, and from Edinburgh to London, have made all the nations witnesses of the splendid achievement. Machinists and navigators proved conclusively that a steamer could never cross the Atlantic ocean; but no sooner had they successfully proved the impossibility of such an undertaking than the work was done, and the passengers on the Cunard and the Inman and the National and the White Star lines are witnesses. There went up a guffaw of wise laughter at Professor Morse's proposition to make the lightning of heaven his errand boy, and it was proved conclusively that the thing could never be done; but now all the news of the wide world, by Associated Press, put in your hands every morning and night, has made all nations witnesses.

So in the time of Christ it was proved conclusively that it was impossible for Him to rise from the dead. It was shown logically that when He was dead He was dead, and the heart and the liver and the lungs having ceased to perform their offices, the limbs would be rigid beyond all power of friction or arousal. They showed it to be an absolute absurdity that the dead Christ should ever get up alive; but no sooner had they proved this than the dead Christ arose, and the disciples behind Him, heard His voice and talked with Him, and they took the witness stand to prove that to be true which the wisemen of the day had proved to be impossible; the record of the experiment and of the testimony is in the text: "Him hath God raised from the dead, whereof we are witnesses."

Now, let me play the skeptic for a moment. "There is no God," says the skeptic, "for I have never seen Him with my physical eyesight. Your Bible is a pack of contradictions. There never was a miracle. Lazarus was not raised from the dead, and the water was never turned into wine. Your religion is an imposition on the credulity of the ages." There is an aged man moving in that pew as though he would like to respond. Here are hundreds of people with faces a little flushed at these announcements, and all through this house there is a suppressed feeling which would like to speak out in behalf of the truth of our glorious Christianity, as in the days of the text, crying out: "We are witnesses!"

The fact is, that if this world is ever brought to God, it will not be through argument, but through testimony. You might cover the whole earth with apologies for Christianity and learned treatises in defense of religion—you would not convert a soul. Lectures on the harmony between science and religion are beautiful mental discipline, but have never saved a soul, and never will save a soul. Put a man of the world and a man of the church against each other and the man of the world will in all probability get the triumph. There are a thousand things in our religion that seem illogical to the world, and always will seem illogical.

Our weapon in this conflict is faith, not logic; faith, not metaphysics; faith, not profundity; faith, not scholastic exploration. But then, in order to have faith we must have testimony, and if 500 men, or 1,000 men, or 500,000 men, or 5,000,000 men get up and tell me that they have felt the religion of Jesus Christ a joy, a comfort, a help, an inspiration, I am bound as a fair-minded man to accept their testimony.
I want just now to put before you three propositions, the truth of which I think this audience will attest with overwhelming unanimity.

The first proposition is: We are witnesses that the religion of Christ is able to convert a soul.

The Gospel may have had a hard time to conquer us, we may have fought it back, but we were vanquished. You say conversion is only an imaginary thing. We know better. "We are witnesses." There never was so great a change in our heart and life on any other subject as on this.
People laughed at the missionaries in Madagascar because they preached ten years without one convert; but there are 33,000 converts in Madagascar to-day.
People laughed at Dr. Judson, the Baptist missionary, because he kept on preaching in Burmah five years without a single convert; but there are 20,000 Baptists in Burmah to-day. People laughed at Dr.
Morrison, in China, for preaching there seven years without a single conversion;
but there are 15,000 Christians in China to-day. People laughed at the missionaries for preaching at Tahiti for fifteen years without a single conversion, and at the missionaries for preaching in Bengal seventeen years without a single conversion; yet in all those lands there are multitudes of Christians to-day.

But why go so far to find evidences of the Gospel's power to save a soul? "We are witnesses." We were so proud that no man could have humbled us; we were so hard that no earthly power could have melted us; angels of God were all around about us, they could not overcome us; but one day, perhaps at a Methodist anxious seat, or at a Presbyterian catechetical lecture, or at a burial, or on horseback, a power seized us, and made us get down,
and made us tremble, and made us kneel, and made us cry for mercy, and we tried to wrench ourselves away from the grasp, but we could not. It hung us flat, and when we arose we were as much plucked as Gorgias, the heathen, who went into a prayer meeting with a dagger and a gun to disturb the meeting and destroy it; but the next day was found crying: "Oh, my great sins! Oh, my great Savior!" and for eleven years preached the gospel of Christ to his fellow mountaineers, the last words on his dying lips being "Free grace!" Oh, it was free grace.

There is a man who was for ten years a hard drinker. The dreadful appetite had set down its roots around the palate and the tongue, and on down until they were interlinked with the vitals of the body, mind, and soul; but he has not taken any stimulants for two years. What did that?
Not temperance societies. Not prohibition laws. Not moral suasion. Conversion did it. "Why," said one upon whom the great change had come, "sir, I feel just as though I were somebody else."

There is a sea captain who swore all the way from New York to Havana, and from Havana to San Francisco, and when he was in port he was worse than when he was on the sea. What power was it that washed his tongue clean of profanities, and made him a psalm singer? Conversion by the Holy Spirit. There are thousands of people in this house to-night who are no more what they once were than a waterily is nightshade, or a morning lark is a vulture, or day is night.

Now, if I should demand that all those people in this house who have felt the converting power of religion should rise, so far from being ashamed, they would spring to their feet with more alacrity than they ever sprang to the dance, the tears mingling with their exhilaration as they cried: "We are witnesses!" And if they tried to sing the old Gospel hymn they would break down with emotion by the time they got to the second line:

Ashamed of Jesus, that dear friend
On whom my hopes of heaven depend?
No! When I blush be this my shame,
That I no more revere His name.

Again I remarked that "we are witnesses"
of the Gospel's power to comfort.

When a man has trouble the world comes in and says: "Now get your mind off this; go out and breathe the fresh air; plunge deeper into business." What poor advice. Get your mind off of it! when everything is up-turned with the bereavement and everything reminds you of what you have lost. Get your mind off of it!
They might as well advise you to stop thinking. You cannot stop thinking, and you cannot stop thinking in that direction.
Take a walk in the fresh air! Why, along that very street or that very road she once accompanied you. Out of that grassplot she plucked flowers, or into that show-window she looked, fascinated, saying: "Come, see the pictures." Go deeper into business! Why, she was associated with all your business ambition, and since she has gone you have no ambition left. Oh, this is a clumsy world when it tries to comfort a broken heart! I can build a Corliss engine, I can paint a Raphael's
"Madonna," I can play a Beethoven's
"Symphony" as easily as this world can comfort a broken heart. And yet you have been comforted. How was it done? Did Christ come to you and say: "Get your mind off this; go out and breathe the fresh air; plunge deeper into business?" No.
There was a minute when he came to you
—perhaps in the watches of the night, perhaps in your place of business, perhaps along the street—and he breathed something into your soul that gave peace, rest, infinite quiet, so that you could take out the photograph of the departed one and look into the eyes and the face of the dear one, and say: "It is all right; she is better off; I would not call her back. Lord, I thank thee that thou hast comforted my poor heart."

There are Christian parents here who are willing to testify to the power of this Gospel to comfort. Your son had just graduated from school or college and was going into business, and the Lord took him. Or your daughter had just graduated from the young ladies' seminary and you thought she was going to be a useful woman and of long life; but the Lord took her and you were tempted to say: "All this culture of twenty years for nothing!" Or a little child came home from school with the hot fever that stopped not for the agonized prayer or for the skillful physician, and the little child was taken. Or the babe was lifted out of your arms by some quick epidemic, and you stood wondering why God ever gave you that child at all, if so soon He was to take it away. And yet you are not repining, you are not fretful, you are not fighting against God.

You see, my friends, I have not put before you an abstraction, or a chimera, or anything like guess work. I present you affidavits of the best men and women, living and dead. Two witnesses in court will establish a fact. Here are not two witnesses but thousands of witnesses—on earth
millions of witnesses, and in Heaven a great multitude of witnesses that no man can number, testifying that there is power in this religion to convert the soul, to give comfort in trouble, and to afford composure
in the last hour.

If ten men should come to you when you
are sick with appalling sickness, and say trial? "Oh," you say, "I took the medicine that God gave my sick soul. In my distress I threw myself at the feet of a sympathizing God; and when I was too weak to pray or to look up He breathed into me a peace that I think must be the foretaste of that Heaven where there is neither a tear, nor a farewell, nor a grave." Come, all ye who have been out to the grave to weep there—come, all ye comforted souls, get up off your knees. Is there no power in this Gospel to soothe the heart? Is there no power in this religion to quiet the worst paroxysm of grief? There comes up an answer from comforted widowhood, and orphanage, and childlessness, saying:

"Aye, aye, we are witnesses!"

Again, I remark that we are witnesses of the fact that religion has power to give composure in the last moment. I shall never forget the first time I confronted death. We went across the cornfields in the country. I was led by my father's hand and we came to the farm house where the bereavement had come, and we saw the crowd of wagons and carriages;
but there was one carriage that especially attracted my boyish attention, and it had black plumes. I said: "What's that?
what's that? Why those black tassels at the top?" and after it was explained to me
I was lifted up to look upon the bright face of an aged Christian woman, who three days before had parted in triumph.
The whole scene made an impression I never forgot.

In our sermons and in our lay exhortations we are very apt, when we want to bring illustrations of dying triumph, to go back to some distinguished personage—to John Knox or a Harriet Newell. But I want you for witnesses.

I want to know if you have ever seen anything to make you believe that the religion of Christ can give composure in the final hour. Now, in the courts, attorney, jury, and judge will never admit mere hearsay. They demand that the witness must have seen with his own eyes, or heard with his own ears, and so I am critical in my examination of you now, and I want to know whether you have seen or heard anything that makes you believe that the religion of Christ gives comfort in the final hour.

"Oh, yes," you say, "I saw my father and mother depart. There was a great difference in their death-beds. Standing by the one we felt more veneration. By the other there was more tenderness." Before the one you bowed perhaps in awe. In the other case you felt as if you would like to go along with her. How did they feel in that last hour? How did they seem to act? Were they very much frightened?
Did they take hold of this world with both hands as though they did not want to give it up? "Oh, no," you say; "no, I remember as though it were yesterday; she had a kind word for us all, and there were a few mementoes distributed among the children, and then she told us how kind we must be to our father in his loneliness, and then she kissed us good-by and went asleep as a child in a cradle."

What made her so composed? Natural courage? "No," you say; "mother was very nervous. When the carriage inclined to the side of the road she would cry out.
She was always rather weakly." What, then, gave her composure? Was it because she did not care much for you and the pangs of parting was not great? "Oh," you say, "she showered upon us a wealth of affection; no mother ever loved her children more than mother loved us. She showed it by the way she nursed us when we were sick, and she toiled for us until her strength gave out." What, then, was it that gave her composure in the last hour?
Do not hide it. Be frank and let me know. "Oh," you say, "it was because she was so good. She made the Lord her portion, and she had faith that she would go straight to glory, and that we should all meet her at last at the foot of the throne."

Here are people who say: "I saw a Christian brother die, and he triumphed." And some one else: "I saw a Christian sister die, and she triumphed." Some one else will say: "I saw a Christian daughter die and she triumphed." Come, all ye who have seen the last moments of a Christian, and give testimony in this cause on trial. Uncover your heads, put your hand on the old family Bible from which they used to read the promises, and promises in the presence of high heaven that you will tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. With what you have seen with your own eyes, and from what you have heard with your own ears, is there power in this Gospel to give calmness and triumph in the last exigency? The response comes from all sides, from young, and old, and middle aged: "We are witnesses!"

You see, my friends, I have not put before you an abstraction, or a chimera, or anything like guess work. I present you affidavits of the best men and women, living and dead. Two witnesses in court will establish a fact. Here are not two witnesses but thousands of witnesses—on earth
millions of witnesses, and in Heaven a great multitude of witnesses that no man can number, testifying that there is power
in this religion to convert the soul, to give comfort in trouble, and to afford composure
in the last hour.

If ten men should come to you when you
are sick with appalling sickness, and say they had the same sickness, and took a certain medicine, and it cured them, you would probably take it. Now, suppose ten other men should come up and say: "We don't believe there is anything in that medicine." "Well," I say, "have you ever tried it?" "No. I never tried it, but don't believe there is anything in it." Of course you discredit their testimony. The skeptic may come and say: "There is no power in your religion." "Have you ever tried it?"

"No, no." "Then await." Let me take the testimony of the millions of souls that have been converted to God and comforted in trial and solaced in the last hour. We will take their testimony as they cry: "We are witnesses!"

Some time ago Prof. Henry, of Washington, discovered a new star, and the tidings sped by submarine telegraph, and all the observatories of Europe were watching for that new star. Oh, hearer, looking out through the darkness of your soul, canst thou see a bright light beaming on thee?
"Where?" you say, "where? How can I find it?" Look along by the line of the cross of the Son of God. Do you not see it trembling with all tenderness and beaming with all hope? It is the Star of Bethlehem.

Deep horror then my vitals froze.
Death struck, I ceased the tide to stem.
When suddenly a star arose
It was the Star of Bethlehem.

Oh, hearer, get your eye on it. It is easier for you now to become Christians than it is to stay away from Christ and Heaven. When Mme. Sontag began her musical career she was hissed off the stage at Vienna by the friends of her rival, Amelia Steininger, who had already begun to decline through her dissipation. Years passed on, and one day Mme. Sontag, in her glory, was riding through the streets of Berlin, when she saw a little child leading a blind woman, and she said: "Come here, my little child, come here. Who is that you are leading by the hand?" And the little child replied: "That's my mother; that's Amelia Steininger. She used to be a great singer, but she lost her voice, and she cried so much about it that she lost her eyesight." "Give my love to her," said Mme. Sontag, "and tell her an old acquaintance will call on her this afternoon."

The next week in Berlin a vast assemblage gathered at a benefit for that poor blind woman, and it was said that Mme.
Sontag sang that night as she had never sung before. And she took a skilled oculist, who in vain tried to give eyesight to the poor blind woman. Until the day of Amelia Steininger's death Mme. Sontag took care of her and her daughter after her. That was what the queen of song did for her enemy.

But, oh! hear a more thrilling story still.
Blind, immortal, poor, and lost—thou who,
when the world and Christ were rivals for thy heart, didst bias thy Lord away—Christ comes now to give thee sight, to give thee a home, to give thee Heaven. With more than a Sontag's generosity He comes now to meet your need. With more than a Son-tag's music He comes to plead for thy deliverance.

Woman's Rights.

Woman's rights conventions are a protest against many former absurd, unreasonable ideas—the mere physical and culinary idea of womanhood, as connected only with puddings and shirt buttons, the unjust and unequal burdens which the laws of harsher ages had cast upon the sex. Many of the women connected with these movements are as superior in everything properly womanly as they are in exceptional talent and culture.

There is no manner of doubt that the sphere of woman is properly to be enlarged, and that republican governments in particular are to be saved from corruption and failure only by allowing to women this enlarged sphere. Every woman has rights as a human being first, which belongs to no sex, and ought to be as freely conceded to her as if she were a man—and first and foremost, the great right of doing anything which God and nature evidently have fitted her to excel in.

A state is but an association of families, and laws relate to the right and immunities which touch woman's most private and immediate wants and dearest hopes; and there is no reason why sister, wife, and mother should be more powerless in the state than in the home. Nor does it make a woman unwomanly to express an opinion by dropping a slip of paper into a box more than to express that same opinion by conversation. In fact, there is no doubt that in all matters relating to the interests of education, temperance, and religion the state would be a material gainer by receiving the votes of women.

—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Toads are an article of merchandise in Paris, being kept in tubes and sold at the rate of two francs a dozen.

We are sure to get the better of fortune if we do but grapple with her.— Seneca.

FOUND IN HOTEL BEDROOMS.

Travelers Forget All Sorts of Property from False Teeth to Clothing.

"Heah am a set ob false teef from a hund'ed an' fo'teen," remarked a bell-boy in one of the city hotels as he deposited a small parcel on the clerk's desk in the presence of a Pittsburgh Dispatch reporter.

"One hundred and fourteen," said the clerk; "that's the old gentleman who was called at 5 o'clock to make a train. He'll be sending for them in a day or two." And the clerk dropped the masticators on his desk.

"Do you gather in many such treasures?" asked the reporter.

"Oh, yes. People are always forgetting something—night-shirts, watches, revolvers, suits of clothes, toilet brushes—almost everything. The articles are at once brought to the office and a card is put on showing the number and occupant of the room. If the loser is a regular visitor he gets the article when he comes round again. If not, the article is kept in the office about a month, and then if not claimed is put away in a storeroom and kept. Almost always, if the article is of any value, we get a telegram from the owner directing us what to do with it, but frequently it happens that they forget where it is left, and never know unless they come back and are told about it."

"I received a telegram from a man one day, saying: 'Left $10 in my room. Save till I come. I couldn't find any $10, but he had left a suit of clothes in the room. These I kept until he showed up about a month afterward. He had found the $10 supposed to have been lost, but he had entirely forgotten where the suit of clothes had been left.'"

Corkscrews and pocket-flasks, are frequently left behind and rarely called for; and a conscientious clerk in one of the most prominent hostelrys still preserves a little silver-clasped bible and an empty half-pint flask with a silver top which were left on the dresser in one of the rooms of the house occupied by a clerical-looking man with a Prince Albert coat and a white tie.

Clerk Al Kane, of the Central Hotel, tells of an amusing experience he had some time ago. A long-haired German came out of the reading-room shortly before 5 o'clock and said that he was going to leave at 6 o'clock, and they were to have him called if he didn't come down. About 5:50 the man rushed up to the desk and said: "Oh! has anybody leaf a pig red pocket-book nit you?"

"No, I think not," said the clerk.

"Mein Gott!" was all the gentleman said, as he ran both hands up through his long hair. Then he darted into the reading-room. In a few seconds he came back, laughing and clapping the big red pocket-book in his hands.

"It was rig'd der blace' in where I left in before, and I vhasn't got another cent," he said as he opened it and counted out $485. The pocket-book had lain an hour on the big writing-table, in plain view from the street or corridors, and it was really a very lucky thing for the gentleman that he had found it.

Pocket-books, watches, and revolvers are among the most frequent finds, owing to the custom so many people have of putting these articles under their pillows. Hotel men say that drummers rarely leave anything behind. It is only those not used to travel, as a rule, that forget their belongings.

A Strange Mummy's Head.

A few days ago a well-known dealer in stamps and curios received from Ecuador the head of a South American Indian, which, from all that can be learned, is anywhere from 300 to 400 years old. The curious part of this cranium is the method which was used in its preservation. It had been cleanly severed from the body, and by means of a slit made in the back of the neck all the facial and cranial bones were removed. By what process is unknown. This done, the back of the neck is sewn up, the stitches being visible to the eye, a number of pieces of string run through the lips, and a stout piece of twine passed through the head. In some mysterious way the head was then compressed until it was no larger than any ordinary wax doll's head. The supposition is that then, by means of the cord through the top of the skull, the head was hung up in a vault or some other such place. At present there are only two of these curiosities in this country. The natives, by whom they are looked upon as a kind of god, are reluctant to part with them. The features of this one, which the World reporter examined closely, are well preserved and show no signs of decay. There is a luxuriant growth of long black hair on the head. The gentlemen in whose possession it is said that he understood that this method was used only in the cases of chiefs or other notables.—New York World.

Christenings in Transylvania.

Two godfathers and two godmothers are generally appointed at Saxon peasant christenings, and it is customary that one couple should be old and the other young; but in no case should a husband and wife figure as godparents at the same baptism, but each one of the quartet must belong to a different family. This is a general custom but in some districts the rule demands two godfathers and one godmother for a boy, two godmothers and one godfather for a girl.

If the parents have lost other children before, then the infant should not be carried out by the door in going to church, but handed out by the window, and brought back in the same way. It should be carried by the broadest streets, never by narrow lanes, else it will learn this thing. The godparents must not look round on their way to church; and the first person met by the christening procession will decide the sex of the next child to be born, a boy if it be a man.

If two children are baptized out of the same water, one of them will soon die; and if several boys are christened successively in the same church, there will be war in the land as soon as they are grown up. Many girls denote fruitful vintage for the country when they have attained a marriageable age.

If the child sleeps during the baptismal ceremony, then it will be pious and good-tempered; but if it cries, it will be bad-tempered or unlucky; therefore, the first question asked by the parents on the return home from church is generally, "Was it a quiet baptism?" and if such had not been the case, the sponsors are apt to conceal the truth.

In some places the christening procession returning to the house of the parents finds the door closed. After knocking for some time in vain, a voice from within summons the godfather to name seven bald men out of the parish. When this has been answered, a further question is asked as to the gospel read in church; and only on receiving, "Let the children come to me," is the door flung open, saying: "Come in, you have harkened attentively to the words of the Lord."—Popular Science Monthly.

The Pope's Guard.

The Pope, who once ruled all Europe with despotic sway, is now visible master of little more than his own palace. His army, once able to contend with the forces of a nation, now consists of 100 Swiss, dressed in baggy knee-breeches of flaming red, yellow, blue, etc., stockings of the same gorgeous hues, jackets ditto, jaunty hats of yellow and red, and feathers in the top—in short, the costume worn six or eight centuries ago. Why this absurd dress is adhered to nobody knows, and, indeed, the raison d'être of guards at all is a mystery. They have nothing to do, and the only purpose they seem to serve is to excite the risibility of visitors to the Vatican. The soldiers of Italy, who march up and down the line around St. Peter's and the Vatican, strictly defining the dominions of the Pope, are paid 25 cents a day and live on soup, bread, and occasionally salt meat. The gorgeous peacocks of the Pope get 32 cents a day and their many-colored dress thrown in; it will be seen, therefore, that it pays better to be ornamental than useful.—Rome letter.

A Give Away.

Miss Pettem—Pretty Polly!
Polly (imitatively)—Pretty Polly!
Miss Pettem—You're sure the bird is a young one?
Dealer—Absolutely, madam! He came from Africa last May.
Polly (suddenly)—Tippecanoe and Tyler too!—oo!—oo!—Puck.

"Johnny," inquired his aunt, "what do you like best of all?" "Candy," replied Johnny. "And what after that?" inquired his aunt. "More candy," replied Johnny, after a moment's deliberation.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Come to the bridal chamber, Death!
Come to the mother, when she feels
For the first time, her first born's breath,
And thou art terrible!

The untimely death which annually carries off thousands of human beings in the prime of youth, is indeed terrible. The first approach of consumption is insidious, and the sufferer himself is the most unconscious of its approach. One of the most alarming symptoms of this dread disease is, in fact, the ineradicable hope, which lurks in the heart of the victim, preventing him from taking timely steps to arrest the malady. That it can be arrested in its earlier stages is beyond question, as there are hundreds of well-authenticated cases where Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has effected a complete cure.

There May Be a Slip.

Sardonicus—I should think there would be more embezzlement in summer than in winter.

Ukerdek—And why?

Sardonicus—The weather is so much nicer in Canada.

Ukerdek—Yes, but the jails are a great deal more uncomfortable in warm weather than in cool.—Detroit Free Press.

Walking advertisements for Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy are the thousands it has cured.

Why is a black horse hard to train? Because you can't make a black horse a bay (objec).

"Consumption Can Be Cured."

Dr. J. S. Combs, Owensville, Ohio, says: "I have given Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites to four patients with better results than seemed possible with any remedy. All were hereditary cases of Lung disease, and advanced to that stage when Coughs, pain in the chest, frequent breathing, frequent pulse, fever and emaciation. All these cases have increased in weight from 16 to 28 lbs., and are not now needing any medicine."

It is no sign because a man makes a stir in the community that he is a spoon.

Harvest Excursions.

The Burlington Route, C. B. and Q. R. R., will sell, on Aug. 30, Sept. 24, and Oct. 11, Harvest Excursion Tickets at one fare for the round trip to principal points in Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, and Dakota. Limit, thirty days. For tickets and further information concerning these excursions, call on the nearest C. B. and Q. Ticket Agent.

All Used Up

Strength all gone. Tired out. Overworked. Feeling mean and miserable.—You must not neglect yourself longer. Delays are dangerous. The downward tendency of your system must be stopped. You need the tonic, strengthening, building up properties of Hood's Sarsaparilla to restore you to health, give you an appetite, and make you active, cheerful, and willing to work. "I felt good results from the first dose of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It seemed to go from my head to my toes. I know Hood's Sarsaparilla is a good thing, and on the strength of my own experience I have sold a great deal of it." G. H. STANLEY, druggist, Westfield, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar.

KIDDER'S

DIGESTYLIN

A SURE CURE FOR INDIGESTION AND DYSPESIA.

Over 5,000 Physicians have sent us their approval of DIGESTYLIN, saying that it is the best preparation for indigestion that they have ever used. We have never heard of a case of Dyspepsia where DIGESTYLIN was taken that was not cured.

FOR CHOLERA INFANTUM.

IT WILL CURE THE MOST AGGRAVATED CASES. IT WILL RELIEVE CONSTIPATION.

For Summer Complaints and Chronic Diarrhea, which are the direct results of imperfect digestion, DIGESTYLIN will effect an immediate cure.

Take DIGESTYLIN for all pains and disorders of the stomach; they all come from indigestion. Ask your druggist for DIGESTYLIN, price $1 per large bottle. If he does not have it, send one dollar to us and we will send a bottle to you, express prepaid. Do not hesitate to send your money. Our bottle is reliable. Established twenty-five years.

W. M. F. KIDDER & CO.,

Manufacturing Chemists, 83 John St., N. Y.

THOUSANDS

say that

Ely's Cream Balm

cured them of

HAY-FEVER

Apply Balm into each nostril.

A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC R'Y

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest—is the only true middle-link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unequalled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

ALL EXPRESS TRAINS between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE PARLOR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and—between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown.

A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kankakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.

All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employes of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly attention.

For Tickets, Maps, Folders—obtainable at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada—or any desired information, address,

R. R. CABLE, E. ST. JOHN, E. A. HOLBROOK,
Pres't & Gen'l Mgr, Chicago. Asst Gen'l Mgr, Chicago. Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Agt, Chicago.

St. Joe News.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year, in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months ..... 50
Three Months ..... 25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe
as second-class matter.

FRIDAY AUGUST 26, 1887.

We will have to take the potatoes this fall, tops and all, to make much of a crop.

The evenings are getting long now, and you will want something to read. Subscribe for the News; only 25 cts. for three months.

The recent rains have been good for the grass. Pasture being so short has had the effect of making the supply of butter very scarce.

Filley & Lounsberry received the contract for putting in the bridge near Henry Hull's. We'll wager an old hat that it will be done right.

Harlow Gee of Orangeville, claims that he has a warrant deed for Union township, for the right to put down drive wells. He traded a two year old colt for it a number of years ago. If this deed proves good it may cause some trouble in the camp, and Harlow may rake in that royalty instead of the other fellow.

Quite a number of our citizens received a very polite invitation this week to step up and pay their $10 royalty on drive wells. Some took it all in good humor, while with others it didn't seem to go down so well. It is an unjust dose, but there don't seem to be any way to avoid taking the medicine.

The Edgerton Observer, one of our wide awake exchanges, completed its first six months existence last week, under the management of Charles S. Austin, the present editor and proprietor. The Observer is a good paper, and deserves the prosperity it is meeting with. By the way, we called on Bro. Austin one day last week, but found the latch-string all on the inside of the door.

After a long and painful illness, Jacob White died at his home in this place, on Friday night, August 19th, at ten o'clock, at the age of 29 years, 11 months and 18 days. The funeral services were held in the Lutheran church, on Sunday afternoon, and were attended by a large number of people. Rev. J. Shaffer of Maysville preached the funeral discourse, after which the remains were laid to rest in the beautiful cemetery at Spencer-ville.

W. I. McKee, agent for the B. & O. at this place, was called to his home at Hologate, Ohio, last Thursday, by a telegram announcing that his brother had been seriously, if not fatally shot. He left on No. 10, but before he arrived there his brother was dead. The facts as near as we could learn, were as follows: His brother, who was about sixteen years of age, in company with a friend of his, had been out hunting, and on their return, he was walking just behind his friend, who was carrying a gun over his shoulder. The gun had carelessly been left cocked and in some way or another it became discharged, and the entire contents entered the left side of the unfortunate young man. He lived for about three hours after the accident. When will people learn to be careful with fire-arms?

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

SPENCERVILLE.

John Bishop is visiting in Van Wert this week.

Ivan Fryberger has been quite sick during the past week.

Miss Louie Rummel and Willis Carey Sundayed at home.

Miss Lottie Parent is the guest of her sister Mrs. Cassius Silberg.

Workmen are engaged in building the steeple on the new church.

Mrs. Askew and Mrs. Nichols, of Auburn, visited in town last Saturday.

Miss Clara Emanuel, of Antwerp, was the guest of her grandparents Sunday.

Murray Bros. are repairing their flouring mill, and will put in a full roller process.

The M. E. Sunday school will attend the picnic to be held at St. Joe, Sept. 3rd.

The effect of having a saloon in town could be plainly seen and heard until a late hour Saturday night.

Miss Bertha Coughanhour, of Hicksville, was the guest of Miss Eva Shutt one day this week.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, will be entertained by Mrs. J. A. Provines, Saturday afternoon Aug. 27th, 1887. All are cordially invited.

It is said that some persons were not content with getting on a bender themselves last Saturday night, but they tried to get a horse drunk. Shame on such actions.

While Andrew Horn was assisting in getting some large poles for use in scaffolds on the new church, he was thrown from the wagon and quite seriously hurt. It will confine him to the house for several weeks.

CONCORD.

Miss Lydia Wyatt has been very sick for several days.

Mrs. Guysinger entertained friends from Garrett last week.

Mrs. John Frets, of Auburn is visiting in the neighborhood for a few days.

Mrs. Wayne Scott, Mrs. G. Morr and Charley Rickett continue on the sick list.

Grandma Simanton and Mrs. Flora Simanton entertained acquaintances last Wednesday.

Mrs. Dott Johnson very kindly assisted Mrs. James Smith in cooking for threshers this week.

Grandma Buchanan and daughter entertained quite a number of friends and relatives last Tuesday afternoon.

We forgot to mention last week that, Rev. J. M. Langley, wife and daughter, of St. Joe, and F. Buchanan and wife, visited in the family of Grandma Baker.

The 51st anniversary of the birthday of Frank Herrick, was duly celebrated on the 20th inst. There was a large party in attendance, about 120 in the day time and a larger number in the evening. The dinner was sumptuous. A beautiful dressing case and mustache cup and saucer were presented him, and an elegant hanging lamp to his wife. The presentation speech by C. A. Jenkins was brief, but quite eloquent and full of pathos. The response by Mr. Herrick was made with much feeling, and showed that he appreciated the gifts, and the coming in of his many friends. It was intended for a surprise but Frank said he "smelled a mice," for he saw so many good things in the way of eatables, around the day before. The young people presented him with $2.65 in the evening, with the request that he get whatever he wished. We regret very much that we could not be there, but had to stay at home and assist in threshing.

JUST RECEIVED THIS WEEK AT

LEIGHTY'S

Nearly 5000 Yards of Best Prints,

WHICH WILL BE SOLD AT

5 CENTS PER YARD.

ALSO A LARGE STOCK OF OTHER GOODS, CHEAP.
CALL AND SEE THEM.

Rev. Beaty of Maysville, delivered a lecture on "Mental Philosophy" at the Methodist church last evening.

Hereafter we shall furnish our readers each week with Talmages sermons. We hope our readers will appreciate this new feature.

The Y. P. T. L. A. will meet at the residence of Miss Nina Filley, on Wednesday evening, Aug. 31th. A good program has been arranged.

The picnic at St. Joe on the 3rd of September promises to be quite a large affair, as already a number of schools have signified their intention of being present.

Weighmaster Baker reports that 1460 bushels of grain has been taken in at the St. Joe elevator in the past week. Farmers are too busy to market much grain.

Not long ago it was all gas wells, but in the last week the general topic of conversation is in regard to drive wells. A good many are taking stock in the scheme to the tune of a ten dollar bill.

Mahlon Baker says: "that everybody wants him to thrash for them at the same time, but that there is no use of talking, he can't be at more than one place at a time." This is a hard world to please everybody.

The many friends of Rev. Langley will be glad to know that he has been returned to this charge for another year. They will also be pleased to know that he had the honor of being elected President of the Northern Indiana Conference.

Mrs. Lucia J. Martin a distinguished elocutionist and dramatic reader, will give an entertainment at Butler, next Thursday evening, under the auspices of the De Kalb County Teachers' Institute. It has been through the efforts of County Superintendent Merica that this entertainment has been arranged, and it will no doubt richly repay any one who will take the trouble to attend.

This space belongs to J. H. Conrad, the man who Gutters and Sputters and Spouts, and makes the best Tinware in the county. Give him a call when needing anything in his line.

Case & Olds desire to call the attention of the lady readers of the News to their Two Dollar Fine Kid Shoes. They are the best shoe for the money ever offered in this market. Drop in and see them.

"TRUTH IS MIGHTY, AND WILL PREVAIL."

LOOK THIS WAY!

I keep on hand a fine line of Furniture, which I will sell for the next 60 days at prices that defy competition. Glass Cupboards $8.50. Double Cane Seat and Back Rockers $2. Dressing Case, with French Plate Glass $12.00. Carpet Lounges $6.50. Solid Comfort Beds for $2.25. Undertaking a speciality.

August Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.

A Disastrous Flood!

Heavy damages done by the over-throw of High Prices, and we will continue same. Good Brown Sugar 5 and 6 cts. Granulated 7 cts. Rosin 5 cts. Alum 5 cts. Salts 3 cts. Bird Seed 8 cts. Salt Peter 12 1/2 cts. Prunes 6 1/2 cts. Good Gingham 6 cts. Dress Goods at your own price. Grain Sacks 18 cts. All goods as cheap as the cheapest. Highest market price paid for Wheat, Oats and Seeds.

S. & F. Barney

Bentley & Rogers' GREAT Consolidated Shows

are coming and will exhibit at

ST. JOE,
Thursday, Sept. 1st.
Ground and
LOFTY TUMBLING
by the company.

Let everybody that want to see a first-class circus come to this next Thursday evening. Admission 25 cts.

NOTICE.

Our annual partnership settlement occurs on the first of September, and we desire to have all who are indebted to us, call on or before that time and settle up. Please attend to this matter at once, and oblige
Filley, Lounsbury & Shuler.

*LOCALS.*

Only two weeks more of Normal school.

The recent rains have helped the late corn.

Get ready for the big picnic at St. Joe on Saturday, Sept 3rd.

A good boot for fall wear, only two dollars, at Case & Olds.

The cool weather is very acceptable after such a severe spell of warm weather.

It is astonishing with what rapidity some of our Normal school girls can "chaw" gum.

A joint council meeting of the St. Joe and Spencerville Lutheran congregations, will be held at Spencerville to-morrow.

George Swineford's sale was not very largely attended yesterday, but the articles sold, brought a good price, as they usually do at sales.

It was reported on our streets yesterday that the fast line had run into a team just west of Concord, but there don't seem to be any foundation to the rumor.

The Hicksville Independent will issue a daily during the fair.

Simon Wineland took in the excursion to Pittsburgh last Saturday.

The pool on wall paper has been broken, and prices are considerably lower this fall.

Notwithstanding the effect of the dry weather on the corn, there will be a fair crop.

Free Zeigler is making a forty-five dollar set of harness for Fred Jenkins. It will be a dandy set.

The managers of the Waterloo Fair are putting forth an extra effort to have the best fair this fall that they have ever had.

Have you seen those elegant twenty button Kid Shoes at Case & Olds? They are just splendid. Don't buy until you see them.

B. A. Woodcox is painting Sam Hineman's farm residence in good style. But then, Barney knows just exactly how to do it.

The Garrett Clipper says that E. J. Boyle was up in that neighborhood last week, looking up his interests as a candidate for sheriff.

The county institute will convene at Butler next Tuesday, and continue its sessions during the week. An interesting and profitable time is expected.

The annual meeting of the Disciples of Christ, in De Kalb county, will be held in the church at Butler, commencing to-day and lasting over Sunday.

Wash Woodcox and Ora Hatch left last Monday for Walnut Ridge, Ark. As soon as they can get up a house, Mr. Woodcox will remove his family to that place.

Mart Engle took up a stray heifer one day last week; it is of a redish color and about two years old. The owner can have same by calling at Mr. Engle's farm north of St. Joe.

Before Wash Woodcox left for the west his wife presented him with another son. If Wash should take a notion to run for some office after his boys have become of age, he will have almost enough votes in his own family to elect him.

Children's day at the Hicksville Fair promises to be a gala day, indeed. There will be a grand balloon ascension, besides many other attractions. All Sunday school children who provide themselves with proper tickets, will be admitted to the ground free.

T. H. Sprott of Auburn, has been appointed agent for the collection of the drive well royalty in this county. A recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States requires that all persons who had a drive well previous to Jan. 1, 1885, pay a royalty of ten dollars. It seems rather tough, but there is no way to get out of paying it. Be careful though, and see that you pay the proper person, as there are some sharpers out who are not authorized to make such collections.

We were lately asked what magazine had made the most progress during the past year, and were unable to give an answer; but DEMOREST'S MONTHLY for September having just arrived calls the question to our mind and an examination of this elegant Family Magazine obliges us to admit that it would be a difficult for any publication to show more enterprise and progress. All the Departments are so complete that there is nothing left to be desired; information can be found herein on every point interesting to the household, even to the monthly news. Subscribe for it. Published by W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, 15 East 14th Street, New York City.

MOUNTED WITH THE HERBRAND GEAR IRONS

ECKHART CARRIAGE WORKS,

AUBURN, DE KALB CO., IND.

—MANUFACTURER OF—

FIRST CLASS CARRIAGES,

CHARLES ECKHART, PROPRIETOR.

Call on me when in need of a first-class Carriage or Huggy, and I will save you money. I guarantee all work as representative.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencerville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining, Glazing Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcox. Call and see me, or leave orders at the St. Joe Drugstore.

*ST. JOE MARKETS.* CORRECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat	70 cts.
Oats	25 cts.
Corn	35 cts.
Butter	10 cts.
Eggs	12 cts.
Tallow	34 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	50 cts.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

Trains Leave St. Joe as follows:

WESTBOUND.
No. 9 Mail and Express	11:05 A. M.
17 Accommodation	4:18 P. M.
3 Chicago Express	10:42 P. M.
35 Local Freight	3:42 P. M.

EAST BOUND.
No. 10 Express and Mail	2:08 P. M.
16 Accommodation	10:28 A. M.
4 Morning Express	4:55 A. M.
34 Local Freight	7:59 A. M.

W. I. McKee, AGENT.

Bucklen's Arnica Salvo.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. PRICE 25 cents per box. For sale by W. C. Patterson.

We are agents for McCraw & Co's. twenty button Kid Shoes. Call and see them.

Will Bishop, brother of M. T. of this place, is dangerously sick at his home in Van Wert, Ohio.

They were measuring the distance from the post office to the depot again this week, to see who is to carry the mail; the post office department or the railroad company. It is nip and tuck, with the odds in favor of tuck.

"No is ever so humble,
There's no place like home."

And no home is complete without first going to Mart Lustison's Grocery and getting a pound can of Baking Powder and a handsome piece of China-ware. Price only 50 cents Baking Powder warranted strictly pure. Main street, St. Joe, Ind.

A SOUND LEGAL OPINION.

E. Bainbridge Munday Esq., County Atty., Clay Co., Tex. says: "Have used Electric Bitters with most happy results. My brother also was very low with Malarial Fever and Jaundice, but was cured by timely use of this medicine. Am satisfied Electric Bitters saved my life."

Mr. D. I. Wilcoxson, of Boone, Ky., adds a like testimony saying, "He positively believes, he would have died, had it not been for Electric Bitters."

This great remedy will ward off, as well as cure all Malaria diseases, and for all Kidney, Liver and Stomach Disorders stands unequalled. Price 50c. and $1. at W. C. Patterson's.

Clover seed is coming into market.

Chris Curie is afflicted like Job was, years and years ago.

What's the matter with your looking at those twenty button Kid Shoes at Case & Olds.

Jonathan Bair, the mail carrier from the north always comes in on time. He's a hustler.

Frank Walker is a center shot. He threw an old shoe at Will Curie the other day, but instead of hitting Will, the shoe went through one of Frank's front plate glass windows.

Our school building looks up big since the new addition has been built on. Ten years ago there was only a small frame school house here, with fifteen or twenty scholars, while to-day we have a large brick building with four rooms and one hundred and fifty scholars. How we do grow.

The St. Joe News.

ST JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

THE TROUBLE AT SANDY FLAT.

He'd jes' come down from Bearin' Run, he told the boys he met,
An' he'd come down to wade in blood an' hev a time you bet;
Fer he'd heered the Flat were some on the fight an' shoot and kill.
An' that they kinder blowed around they thought he'd get his fill;
But he allowed 'twould jes' be fun,
Ter swing around a ten-inch gun,
An' learn 'em all to hev respect fer men from Bearin' Run!

He explained he were a slycone as could tear an' short an' rip
He'd then proceed to do it all ef they gave him any lip;
That when he fit he allays come a-sweepin' like a gale,
An' ef he had an enemy he camped right on his trail;
An' that they'd say he weighed a ton
About the time the fight begun,
An' that Harney's Peak were on 'em when they'd done with Bearin' Run!

He stopped up to a feller as he 'lowed 'n'd make a bite,
An' slapped him one, he said, "ter inaugurate the fight."
But the cuss he swung a billiard cue that knocke'd him on the floor,
An' then he kicked him through the screen as stood up by the door;
An' then they 'lowed the fight were done,
About the time that it begun,
An' the terror scooted up the gulch that led towards Bearin' Run!
Dakota Bell.

A BLISSFUL REUNION.

BY GORDON STABLES, M.D., R.N.

He was a little old man, verging perhaps on 60, with closely-cropped hair, and a hat which Wilhelm could not keep from thinking was one size or more too big for him. A little old man with sad eyes, but with a pleasant voice, and a smile that often quite banished all trace of melancholy from his face.

But Wilhelm—the headwaiter at the dingy old Paris restaurant, where for months he had presented himself at the same hour daily—had taken to him from the very first, and as the gentleman seemed to count retirement, used invariably to ensconce him in the snugest corner of the room, not far from the charcoal stove—the time was winter—and with no other companions save a pair of tabby cats.

"What is it to-day?" M. Albano would inquire, as he seated himself at his table, with his feet on a morsel of goat-skin placed there for them. "What is it to-day, Wilhelm?"

And Wilhelm used invariably to place a white dimpled fore-finger against the name of some particular dish on the card, and that was the dish M. Albano invariably chose.

It was not long before Wilhelm found out that M. Albano was, like himself, a Hungarian, and, like himself, an exile. They were friends, indeed, after this. Wilhelm told the little old man his story, and to some extent the little old man told Wilhelm his. There was some difference, nevertheless, in their stations in life, for in his own dear land M. Albano had been a count, while Wilhelm had been but a junior engineer.

"And so you are really going?" said Wilhelm, as he stood one day near his friend, the empty soup-bowl in his right hand.

"Really going, Wilhelm."

"Oh, dear! Monsieur, I shall sadly miss you. Is it Brussels, Monsieur, Berlin, or Moscow? You say you have had engagements at all these places."

"No, no," replied M. Albano, sadly; "it is neither of these places. I am done with them all—done with the world, I might say, I am going home."

"What!" cried Wilhelm, with brightening eyes—"home to our dear land of—"

"Nay, nay, nay; never there again. What matters imperial forgiveness? Can a king mend a broken heart, even if he could restore my fortunes? Could I gaze without grief on those green-wooded hills and valleys that once were mine? Could I mingle with the good people who dwell there—and who once called me lord—without sadness? No, Wilhelm, no. My home is near London, the home of the refugee, the only city in the whole world amid the bustle and stir of which an exile may woo forgetfulness."

Wilhelm lingered by the table for a few moments. He was deep in thought. "M. Albano," he said at last, "to have employment in London has long been with me an ambitious dream—a castle in the air—call it what you will. I hate the garb of servility in which you now see me. Oh! there are times, Monsieur, that I walk my room all night, wild in thought, because I feel I was born for better things. Yet I try to do my duty—my humble duty."

"Yes, yes, yes," said Albano, speaking more briskly than was his wont. "That is right—do your duty. I trust I do mine, humble though that is. Do not let pride interfere with that duty. Be not self-conscious. Concentrate your thoughts and energies in your work, menial though some may call it. Believe me, Wilhelm, a halo surrounds the head of that man or woman who does whatever his or her hand findeth to do, in no half-hearted way, but with a will, a purpose, and an honest pride of action, feeling inwardly that duty is a sacred thing. Study to be content with the state in which Providence has placed you, Wilhelm. Study that—study that."

"But, Monsieur, you would then leave ambition out of count."

"No; oh, no! Only let your ambition be subservient to your duty. The march of intellect—the march of the world—is ever, ever onward. Better yourself, by all means, if you can; by so doing you may better the world; but ambitious thoughts or actions must never interfere with your hours of labor. These belong to your present employer, Wilhelm."

"I see, Monsieur."

"Well, see and think of it. Meanwhile, here is a pass for the Grand N—r Concert. You will see me and my little violin in the second row of the orchestra. You will wait for me, and we will sup together at the Rhondeville."

High over a score of fiddles at the grand concert that evening, M. Albano's little violin seemed to ring—seemed at all events in Wilhelm's ears, just as one hears and can listen only to the nightingale's voice amidst the babel of bird-voices in the woods in early spring.

After the performance, Wilhelm waited for what appeared quite a long time for his friend. All the other musicians had dressed and filed away, but still he came not.

Wilhelm ventured at last to ask one in authority.

"Oh, no!" was the reply; M. Albano has not gone. He is talking to the manager. The manager wants him to stay on, but he insists on throwing up his engagement."

"Strange!" said Wilhelm.

"Yes, it is strange. You are his friend? Yes. Well, and even you do not seem able to fathom the mystery. But this Albano is a splendid violinist. Any orchestra in Europe would be willing to retain his services, and remunerate him well. Yet, although he is not rich, he is forever on the move. Italy, Belgium, Norway; all countries have him by turns, but none for long. Think you is your friend somewhat distracted?"

"I am sure he is not. I only know he has a reason or reasons for his nomadic tendencies, but he has not thought fit to enlighten me as to what they are, and it would ill become me to inquire. But here he comes."

It was late even for Paris that night ere Wilhelm bade his kind-hearted friend adieu, at the corner of the Rue de la D—, and hurried away to his dingy room.

Yet that evening had been big with Wilhelm's fate. He had supped with M. Albano at a charming little hotel; and, with true politeness, Monsieur had said little or nothing about himself, but had led the young man to speak of all his hopes and ambitions.

Wilhelm's great scheme was connected with electricity, and not for the purpose of lighting cities and country houses, but as the moving power of the future; and M. Albano knew enough about chemistry speedily to discern that, if properly worked out, these plans of Wilhelm's might lead him to fame and fortune.

"You will come to England with me, Wilhelm? I have saved a little sum; I will pay your expenses."

"No, friend, no; to England I will come, but everything I will pay myself. Two more months will I work, and then—"

"You will come?"

"Yes."

"And be my guest for a few weeks at my little cottage home?"

"Well—yes."

So the two parted.

Winter was still holding sway, and snow lay deep all around Paris; but in nine weeks' time what a change there was! With Paris, however, this short and simple story has no longer anything to do. The scene shifts to a tiny but beautiful cottage in Surrey. It stands on the slope of a gently-rising hill, and is almost buried in pine-woods.

"Yes, Wilhelm," M. Albano was saying as the two sat together in a little tent on the lawn, "this cottage, these gardens, the beautiful country around, do not seem the same since Marie—since my daughter left me. They are not the same, for I am older now. I cannot see with the same eyes, hear with the same ears; it seems as if the gloom of the grave were already closing around me."

"But Marie—your daughter—may return."

"No, that cannot be; the pride that caused her to go will prevent her returning. She will never come back."

Wilhelm was silent.
"A few hasty words—and the words were mine—a few peevish mutterings at the fate that banished me from my native land, and that had torn from my breast the insignia of title and honor, and compelled me—me, a count—to drag out a wretched existence in a foreign country, by aid of my violin. I did not mean to imply that I begrudged the labor that kept her as a lady, but I fear I led her to believe so; and I would have laid down my life next minute to have been able to retract, or unsay my cruel words; but next minute Marie was gone. Gone—yes, gone with tears on her face, and maybe a breaking heart, though a proud one. And since then I have sought and obtained engagements in almost every capital in Europe. I have been till now on the move, thinking, always thinking, I would find my Marie; for one brief note—the only one I received—told me she was so far independent, and that on her voice alone she would now trust for a livelihood. But I am tired, hopeless, and weary."

And so indeed he looked.
A year passed away. The old man appeared no more in any orchestra. Hope itself had fled from his heart, and he mourned for his daughter as for one dead.

Wilhelm was a frequent visitor at the cottage. Aided in his ambition by the ex-count, and possessed of the will to work, the determination to triumph, and that mental staying power which oftentimes leads to success without even the aid of genius, the young man conquered all difficulties, and was already on the first steps of the ladder that leads to fame.

His employment frequently led him to Italy and to that Rome which of late years appears to have taken a new lease of glorious life.

An event now took place which is common enough in the life of most young men; Wilhelm fell in love. But I do not blame him, for all Rome was captivated by the sweet voice and modest and charming manner of a young singer that had lately been brought out by a great master.

Night after night, whenever she sang Wilhelm was there, listening enthralled. But he could obtain no introduction. She was so near, and yet so far.

Going home late one night from duties that had occupied him for nearly eight-and-forty hours, with little time for sleep, he heard the startling shout of fire. He followed the mob and the rattling ill-contrived engine down a narrow dark street that, from the showers of sparks and the smoke and heat, seemed on fire from end to end.

Wilhelm got close to the burning building, and helped to work the engine. But there was soon other and braver work for him to tackle. For look! the faces of young people and children appear at an upper window. Who will climb through sparks and smoke up that rickety ladder? Who will volunteer to save them? Wilhelm will! He springs toward it; up and down, and up and down, and he has saved three. He is scorched and burned, but seems to bear a charmed life. The last he saves, to his surprise, if not joy, is the young singer. While she is borne away in safety, he faints and falls.

It is two days before he comes to his senses at his hotel. It would be weeks before he got round. What mattered it? She came daily to see and inquire after his welfare.

Ah! it was the old, old story. But he did not tell it then or there. He told the young singer a story of a different kind; of a lovely little cottage among the pine-woods of Surrey, and of an old man who was dying of sorrow because his daughter would never come again. And the girl bent her head and sobbed, and those tears told Wilhelm all.

There was joy in that Surrey cottage when Marie returned. With her came sunshine; sunshine to bird, and flower, and tree, and sunshine to old Albano's heart.

There is a larger house now among the pines near the little cottage. Wilhelm is its wealthy owner, Marie its mistress. And long indeed they would think that day that did not bring them a visit from father Albano.

Cruelly Treated.

Some boys find it hard to obey even the reasonable commands of their teachers. It is not a good sign in them, for when it comes to disobeying lawful authority, true manliness should lead them to avoid doing it, even when the requirement does not seem reasonable. We heartily congratulate all our school-boy readers that it has fallen to their lot to go to school now, in this age, when, for the first time in the history of the human race, teachers are learning to treat their pupils with decent respect.

The cruel punishments of former times, bad as they were, were perhaps not as hard to bear as those which degraded boys in the sight of their fellows, and, still worse, degraded them in their own eyes. Several of these were mentioned by a speaker at the recent celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the City of Lowell.

It did not hurt a boy's head much to stick a tall foolscap upon it, nor his nose to have two clothespins put astride of it, but it hurt his feelings terribly. One of these punishments was to compel the culprit to spring up, seize an iron staple in the ceiling, and hang to it by his hands to the last possible second, the master standing by, stick in hand. Boys were made to stoop down, place one finger upon the head of a nail in the floor, and so remain until the torture could be borne no more.

Sir Francis Doyle, an English gentleman, who is yet in the land of the living, tells a story or two of his life at a highly fashionable French school in London, which shows how little the feelings of boys were formerly regarded on that side of the Atlantic.

The head boy of the school, Codrington by name, son of the famous Admiral, and himself an Admiral since, could not help making a wry face one day at some particular nasty pudding on his plate. The master roared at him,—"

"Monsieur Codrington, Monsieur Codrington, what are you doing there? If the Prince Regent were to come here to dinner, I should not give him a better pudding than that! Upon your knees, Monsieur Codrington, and eat it at once!"

The boy had no choice but to obey this ridiculous order. He got down upon his knees and ate the whole of "the filthy mess," as Sir Francis Doyle calls it, while the master stood over him watching the operation. As the last spoonful disappeared, poor Codrington gave a sigh of relief, which was, unfortunately, heard by the irate Frenchman.

"Madam," he cried to his wife, "give some more pudding to Monsieur Codrington!"

The second portion had to be devoured before the boy could have the roast mutton which was the main stay of the dinner. It was a practice in boarding schools then to get the boys pretty well filled up with cheap pudding before any sign of meat was allowed to appear.

Our boys are, happily, not now subjected to infamies of this kind, so well calculated to crush the gentle souls, and to convert the stronger ones into ruthless despots. And this is a new reason for cultivating a manly spirit of obedience to lawful authority that the boys should remember.

Dr. PETER WOOD, of London, suggested twenty years ago the use of calcined oyster shells to arrest the growth of cancerous tumors, about half a teaspoonful once or twice a day in a little warm water. He again reports that his experience with it has been in several instances satisfactory, but insists that no benefit from it should be expected in less than three months.

BOARDS of Health endorse Red Star Coughs as a speedy and sure remedy for coughs and colds. Scientists pronounce it entirely vegetable and free from opiates. Price, twenty-five cents a bottle.

SOME genius has invented a chin-holder for the violin. If he could only invent a hand-holder he would do more good.—Texas Sittings.

BODILY pains are instantly relieved by the use of St. Jacobs Oil. Dr. R. Butler, Master of Arts, Cambridge University, England, says, "It acts like magic."

Valuable for Crops.

Stranger—Want to buy some real estate?

Omaha Agent—In Omaha?

"No, two hundred miles away, but there is a railroad along side of it."

"Don't want it."

"Big city in prospect."

"No; got plenty of that kind."

"It's only a small lot, about 50x200 feet."

"No use."

"There's on it a fine crop of potatoes."

"Great Caesar! Why didn't you say so before? Potatoes! New potatoes! Don't stir. I'll rush right out and get up a syndicate to buy it."—Omaha World.

A Trial by Jury.

That great American jury, the people, have rendered a unanimous verdict in favor of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, the standard remedy for bowel and stomach disorders, biliousness, sick headache, dizziness, constipation, and sluggish liver.

THERE is a man in Hunter's Point so crippled up with rheumatism that he is tallest when he lies down.—Brooklyn Times.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS is an unfailing cure for all diseases originating in biliary derangements caused by the malaria of miasmatic countries. No other medicine now on sale will so effectually remove the disturbing elements, and at the same time tone up the whole system. It is sure and safe in its action.

A boy in Pittsfield, Mass., swallowed the bulb of a thermometer. He now has a mercurial temperament.

Harvest Excursions.

The Great Rock Island Route (C., R. I. & P., Ry.) will sell Aug. 30, Sept. 30, and Oct. 11, Harvest Excursion tickets at ONE FAIR THE ROUND TRIP to principal points in Kansas, Nebraska, Northwestern Iowa, Minnesota, and Dakota—limit 30 days from date of sale. For tickets or further information address,

E. A. HOLBROOK,
Gen. Ticket and Passenger Agent,
Chicago, Ill.

R. W. TANSILL & Co., Chicago:

Your Tansill's Punch 5c cigars are going off like hot cakes. I intend that they shall be well advertised. WM. F. H. STEPHENSON, Buffalo, N. Y.

LYON'S Patent Heel Stiffener is the only invention that will make old boots as straight as new.

BRONCHITIS is cured by frequent small doses of Piso's Cure for Consumption.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficent influence of

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health. It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young. As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

A TEXAS negro was struck by lightning and killed. In his pockets were found two horseshoe magnets, two copper cents that had melted together, a nickel that was partly melted and stuck to his watch, and the nickel rim around his money purse was also melted.

WHEN a lovely little tailor-made sweet sixteen bows her head in church and asks for mercy upon her, miserable sinner, she doesn't mean all she says.—Puck.

THE ORIGINAL LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS!

Always ask for Dr. Pierce's Pellets, or Little Sugar-coated Granules or Pills.

BEING ENTIRELY VEGETABLE, Dr. Pierce's Pellets operate without disturbance to the system, diet, or occupation. Put up in glass vials, hermetically sealed. Always fresh and reliable. As a LAXATIVE, ALTERNATIVE, or PURGATIVE, these Little Pellets give the most perfect satisfaction.

SICK HEADACHE

Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels are promptly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may truthfully be said that their action upon the system is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative influence. Sold by druggists, for 25 cents a vial. Manufactured at the Chemical Laboratory of WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

BOILS CURED.

WILLIAM RAMICH, Esq., of Minden, Kearney County, Nebraska, writes: "I was troubled with boils for thirty years. Four years ago I was so afflicted with them that I could not walk. I bought two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, and took one 'Pellet' after each meal, till all were gone. By that time I had no boils, and have had none since. I have also been troubled with sick headache. When I feel it coming on, I take one or two 'Pellets,' and am relieved of the headache."

THE BEST CATHARTIC.

Mrs. C. W. BROWN, of Wapakoneta, Ohio, says: "Your 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets' are without question the best cathartic ever sold. They are also a most efficient remedy for torpor of the liver. We have used them for years in our family, and keep them in the house all the time."

$500 REWARD

DR. SAGE'S Catarrh Remedy

FOR A CASE OF CATARRH WHICH THEY CAN NOT CURE.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.

Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acid; at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; the eyes are weak, watery, and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers; the voice is changed and has a nasal twang; the breath is offensive; smell and taste are impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility. However, only a few of the above-named symptoms are likely to be present in any one case. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, less understood, or more unsuccessfully treated by physicians. By its mild, soothing, and healing properties.

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY

CURES THE WORST CASES OF Catarrh, "Cold in the Head," Coryza, and Catarrhal Headache.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

PRICE, 50 CENTS.

UNTOLD AGONY FROM CATARRH.

Prof. W. HAYES, the famous mezzotintist of Ithaca, N. Y., writes: "Some ten years ago I suffered untold agony from chronic nasal catarrh. My family physician gave me up as incurable, and said I must die. My case was such a bad one, that every day, towards sunset, my voice would become so hoarse I could barely speak above a whisper. In the morning my coughing and clearing of my throat would almost strangle me. By the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, in three months, I was a well man, and the cure has been permanent."

CONSTANTLY HAWKING AND SPITTING.

THOMAS J. HESING, Esq., 202 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh for three years. At times I could hardly breathe, and was constantly hawking and spitting, and for the last eight months could not breathe through the nostrils. I thought nothing could be done for me. Luckily, I was advised to try Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I believe it to be the only sure remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and one has only to give it a fair trial to experience astounding results and a permanent cure."

THREE BOTTLES CURE CATARRH.

ELI ROBBINS, Runyan P. O., Columbia Co., Pa., says: "My daughter had catarrh when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her; a third bottle effected a permanent cure. She is now eighteen years old and sound and hearty."

DETECTIVES

Wanted in every County. Shrewd men to act under our instructions in our Secret Service. Experience not necessary. Send stamp for particulars. GRANNAN DETECTIVE BUREAU, 44 Arcade, Cincinnati, O.

PILES

Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is a sure cure for blind, bleeding or itching piles. Cure guaranteed. Price 50c and $1. At druggists or mailed by Walcott, Kinnear & Marvin, Wholesale Agents, Toledo, Ohio.

PATENTS

R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Instructions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 15-17 years experience. Sure relief ASTHMA. KIDDER'S PASTILLES, by mail, Stowell & Co., Charlestown, Mass.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50. FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Write Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

ENSUIONS COLLECTED and Increased by Fitzgerald & Powell, Indianapolis, Ind. Old cases reopened. Send for copy of Laws, free.

JONES PAYS THE FREIGHT 5 Ton Wagon Scales, Iron Tiers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box for $80. Every size Scale. For free price list mention this paper and address JONES OF BIRMINGHAM, BIRMINGHAM, N. Y.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

ADVERTISERS or others, who wish to examine this paper, or obtain estimates on advertising space when in Chicago, will find it on file at 45 to 49 Randolph St., The Advertising Agency of LORD & THOMAS.

MARVELOUS MEMORY

Wholly unlike artificial systems. Any book learned in one reading. Recommended by Mark Twain, Richard Proctor, the Scientist, Hon. W. W. Astor, Judah P. Benjamin, Dr. Minor, etc. Class of 100 Columbia law students, two classes 20 each at Yale, 30 University of Penn., 30 at Wellesley College, etc. Prospectus post free. PROF. LOISELLE, 237 Fifth Ave., New York.

BIRDSELL CLOVER HULLER THE NEW MONITOR JUNIOR DOES ITS WORK FASTER AND BETTER THAN ANY OTHER OUR NEW RE-CLEANER READY FOR MARKET CLEAN THE SEED FOR MARKET AND LATE CATALOGUE BIRDSELL MFG CO SOUTH BEND INDIANA CHALLENGES ALL OTHERS

FRAZER AXLE GREASE.

Best in the World. Get the genuine. Every package has our Trade-mark and is marked Frazer's. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

OPIUM

Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio. N. U. F. W. No. 35-87. When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

EVENTS OF A WEEK.

THE OLD WORLD.

—The Irish National League has been "proclaimed" under the provisions of the coercion act recently passed. The fact was announced in the House of Lords by Premier Salisbury and in the Commons by Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland. All the important documents of the league have been removed from the headquarters in Dublin. Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. T. W. Russell have withdrawn from the Unionist party in consequence of the proclamation. Leading Irish Nationalists on both sides of the Atlantic denounce the action of the government, but predict that it will be without serious consequences to the home-rule movement.

—Russia is said to have made a proposition to Turkey for the joint occupation of Eastern Roumelia and Bulgaria.

—It is reported that all the Powers have replied to the Porte's note in regard to Bulgaria, expressing disapproval of Prince Ferdinand's irregular action in taking possession of the Bulgarian throne.

—Mr. Chamberlain, in a speech at Birmingham, defended the crimes bill, but said the government had made a mistake in proclaiming the Land League. He declared that he is still a Unionist.

—Resolutions denouncing the proclamation of the National League were passed by the Irish people of Liverpool and the Radicals of London. The league held its weekly meetings, as usual, throughout Ireland.

—Berlin dispatches announce that the Reichstag will reassemble at the beginning of November, when the Government will submit bills for raising the duty on corn, and for securing a system of workmen's insurance. The Emperor William is slowly recovering from an attack of rheumatism, and was well enough to entertain a small party at dinner. Dr. Mackenzie, who is attending the Crown Prince, says the progress made by his patient is quite satisfactory, and there is every prospect of a permanent cure of the malady. The curative process will be slow, and a regrowth is not unlikely before the cure is effected. Owing to the predisposition of the Crown Prince to take cold, Dr. Mackenzie advises him to spend the greater part of the coming month at Venice, and to abstain from using his voice as much as possible. He will, therefore, not attend the military maneuvers this year.

PERSONAL NOTES.

—The official returns of the recent Kentucky election give Buckner (Dem.) 17,015 plurality over Bradley (Rep.).

—Jay Gould is a grandfather, Mrs. George Gould having presented her husband with a son.

—Colonel Lamont says that it has been definitely determined by the President to go direct to St. Louis without a break; that the time of departure will be fixed so as to bring him into St. Louis "Veiled Prophet's" Day; and that he will then proceed straight to Chicago, to arrive there Oct. 5.

—Mrs. William Ogle, of Newburgh, N. Y., who has just died, was the mother of ten children, six of them deaf-mutes. Neither of the parents was thus afflicted.

—Prof. O. R. Fowler, the noted phrenologist and lecturer, is dead.

—Professor Spencer F. Baird, of the United States Fish Commission, died at Wood's Holl, Mass., aged 64 years. Alvan Clark, the famous astronomer and telescope-builder, died at Cambridge, Mass., in his eighty-fourth year.

—Mrs. Melinda R. W. Paine, aged 60, and her daughter Anna, aged 35, fearing they were becoming insane, committed suicide in a New York tenement-house.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL

—The well-known Chicago jewelry house of N. Matson & Co., has failed. The liabilities are placed at about $200,000.

—The financial embarrassments of Indiana are growing more and more serious, says an Indianapolis telegram. The last dollar in the general fund of the State Treasury has been paid out, and there are no resources that can be drawn upon before next December. In the meantime, $200,000 will be needed to pay the current expenses of the State Government and public institutions. Treasurer Lenné announces that he will call upon the counties to advance funds, but if they do so it will be voluntary, as the law does not require them to respond to such calls when they owe the State nothing. One effect of the exhaustion of the treasury will be the suspension of work upon all State institutions, of which several are now in course of erection. The condition of the treasury is due to the failure of the last General Assembly to make needed appropriations.

—In their weekly trade review R. G. Dun & Co. say that everything now turns on crop prospects. The damage to corn has been over-estimated, although the yield will be below that of last year. The wheat crop will, it is thought, reach 430,000,000 bushels. The cotton crop will be below the early estimates, and other important crops will be short. The movement of merchandise is already somewhat restricted by the uncertainty as to the crops. The monetary situation, though not without unfavorable features, is on the whole satisfactory. During the week there were 161 business failures in the United States and Canada.

—It is stated that the losses of Flood and Mackay in the recently collapsed California wheat deal will aggregate $8,000,000.

—The goosamer rubber manufacturers have combined to keep up prices.

—The liabilities of Ives & Co. aggregate over $10,000,000. The nominal assets are put at $32,000,000, but most of the stocks scheduled are worthless.

POLITICAL POINTS.

—The Pennsylvania Republican State Convention, in session at Harrisburg, nominated William H. Hart for Treasurer and Henry W. Williams for Supreme Judge. The platform indorses the State government, advocates protective tariff and restriction of immigration, favors bounties upon exports in American bottoms, declares in favor of a dependent-pension bill, arraigns the national administration for general ineptitude, advocates primary elections for nominating candidates for Congress and the State Senate, includes a plank extending the profound sympathy of the Republicans of Pennsylvania to Gladstone and Parnell, and indorses James G. Blaine for 1888.

—The Nebraska Prohibition Convention met at Lincoln on the 17th inst., 500 delegates being present. A. O. Abbott, of Crete, was nominated for the Supreme Bench. Rev. I. D. Newell, of Richardson, and Rev. H. S. Hilton, of Central City, were named for Regents of the State University. The platform declares for statutory prohibition, State and national; condemns license as a crime of unequalled enormity; denounces the General Government for granting license to sell liquor in States where it is prohibited by law; demands the repeal of the law which permits foreigners to vote before they become naturalized citizens; favors pensions for disabled soldiers; favors Government control of railroad and telegraph companies.

—A Syracuse dispatch says that after a stormy session the Committee on Platform of the United Labor Party Convention managed to fix up a platform, which was reported to the convention by Henry George and immediately adopted. The old platform adopted at the Clarendon Hall meeting last year was taken as the groundwork for the new platform, and enlarged to suit the necessities of a State campaign. A few of the planks of the platform of the old Greenback Labor party are also used. One of the principal of these favored the establishment of postal banks and a postal telegraph system. A full State ticket was put in nomination as follows: Secretary of State, Henry George of New York; Comptroller, Victor A. Wilder of Kings; State Treasurer, B. H. Cummings of Montgomery; Attorney General, Dennis C. Feeley of Monroe; State Engineer and Surveyor, Sylvanus A. Sweet of Broome.

FIRES AND ACCIDENTS.

—By the fall of an elevator in G. Sidenberg & Co.'s building, on Mercer street, New York, one woman was killed, a man fatally hurt, and a dozen girls were more or less injured.

—Dispatches from Republican City, Neb., say that the worst storm ever known in that section struck the town Wednesday evening. A large brick school house, just being completed, was blown down and eight carpenters were buried in the ruins. Two men were killed; the others were badly injured, two so badly that they will die. Several buildings were destroyed and a number of people more or less injured.

—The human line steamer City of Montreal was burned at sea, Aug. 11, when five days out from New York. The fire originated among some cotton, and the passengers and crew were compelled to take to the boats. A boat containing thirteen persons is missing, and its occupants are believed to have been drowned. The steamer York City picked the others up.

—At Enfield, Ill., where the Eighty-seventh Illinois Regiment and the soldiers of White and Hamilton Counties were holding their reunion, two shocking accidents occurred. During the sham battle two cannons used by besiegers and besieged were prematurely discharged, and many persons were injured.

—The steamship Atlas collided with the schooner Lizzie Wilson, from Baltimore to Boston, off Barnegat, N. J. The schooner sank immediately, carrying down the wife and daughter of the captain, and two seamen. The Atlas rescued Captain Chadwick and three sailors. The rest were drowned.

—Near Marion, Ind., Mrs. Newton Lightfoot was shot and killed by her son, who had mistaken her for a burglar.

THE CRIMINAL RECORD.

—An epidemic of railroad accidents seems to have set in. A Baltimore and Ohio freight train ran into the rear of another freight train near Ellicott City, Md., wrecking seventeen cars and fatally injuring four of the trainmen. A Pennsylvania express train was wrecked by spreading rails at Bayard, Ohio, on the Cleveland and Pittsburg Road. The rear sleeper was thrown from the track, and the colored porter instantly killed and four other persons injured, two of them dangerously.

—A dispatch from Valentine, Neb., says: "Jerry White, a negro, broke into the house of Mrs. Hoffmann, in the absence of her husband, and beat her over the head and face with a revolver into a state of insensibility, and was only prevented from completing the crime of outrage by the arrival of neighbors. He was captured at Long Pine, and brought to Valentine. Sixty determined men, armed and masked, formed on the outskirts of the village, marched in a body to the jail, and a detachment was sent to Sheriff Connelly's store to procure the keys from his brother. Breaking into the store they failed to find the keys. Thereupon the crowd broke in the jail door with a sledge hammer and axes. The locks of the steel cage were then cut from their fastenings, the prisoner was taken out to a telegraph pole, and a rope was swung from the cross-bar and tied around his neck. White was given five minutes for confession and prayer. He did not deny his guilt. He was then hauled up and left swinging."

—A dispatch from Chicago says the hoodlars in the County Jail are living in clover. The boys' department is crowded with sympathetic visitors, and poker games and luxurious living are the order of the day.

—Walter S. Babcock, a prominent Chicago lumber dealer, was shot under mysterious circumstances in the little town of Gardner, Ill., and died without having explained how he received the fatal wound.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

—The American Bar Association has concluded its annual session at Saratoga. George G. Wright, of Des Moines, was chosen President for the ensuing year and C. C. Bonney, of Chicago, Chairman of the Executive Committee.

—A telegram from Au Sable, Mich., says: "Ernest Schoeltze, a newcomer here, tells a startling story of personal outrage. With his wife and one son, Schoeltze sailed from Carlsbad for the United States. Their ship touched a Yucatan port, and Schoeltze and his family, together with a number of other emigrants, were sold into slavery. They remained in the interior of the country eighteen months, and then escaped to Campeachy, only to be again taken into custody and subjected to the most inhuman treatment. They were compelled to work in the broiling sun, without covering to their bodies; his wife was driven into the field to work three days after the birth of a child; they were provided with but two pounds of corn-meal a day, and this continued nearly two years and a half. Then the wife fell ill and was sent to the hospital. The husband was allowed to visit her occasionally, and while making one of these visits he fell in with a German sailor, who agreed to carry the family to Logona, whence they were sent to the United States by the German Consul. Schoeltze and his wife show upon their persons the effects of the inhuman treatment given them."

—An Eastern dispatch informs us that the strawboard manufacturers of the United States have formed a "trust." A number of mills have been purchased, and will be permanently shut down, and the remainder will be operated by the trust, thus doing away with all semblance of competition in the business. The promoters of the scheme explain that its purpose is to give consumers cheaper strawboard—which would, of course, have been taken for granted. Everybody understands that the sole object of "trusts" is to benefit the public.

—Reports from various points throughout the West agree that the recent rains came too late to be of much value to the corn crop. Dakota alone reports the condition of the crop above the average. Pasturage was revived by the rains, and a fair supply of fall feed is anticipated. The yield of potatoes is short on account of the prolonged drought. The apple crop is light. Cattle are improving in condition.

M. T. BISHOP,

—DEALER IN—

LUMBER, LIME,

—LATH—

SHINGLES,

MOULDING &c.

Large Stock and Low Prices. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

MEAT MARKET

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNESS

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

Blacksmith

AND

Repair Shop.

Having secured the services of an experienced workman, I am now prepared to do all kinds of Blacksmithing and Repairing in a first-class manner. Special attention given to repairing machinery. Give me a call. Prices reasonable.

A. W. Hall, St. Joe.

SEPTEMBER

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1887.

NO. 32.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLIMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind., Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

F. ILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind., John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a speciality. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—Patents have been issued to the following Indians: Wallace H. Dodge, Mishawaka, wooden pulley; Byron E. Foss, Indianapolis, piston-rod packing; Charles W. Gift, assignor to L. R. Gift, Fairmount, weather strip; Frank Heller, Oakland City, air-heater; James A. Manning, Danville, assignor of one-fourth to E. M. White, Hendricks County, bridle bit; Isaac McCormick, assignor of one-half to C. E. Hall, Logansport, barn truss; Charles McNeal, assignor to Dodge Manufacturing Company, Mishawaka, rabbeting machine; George Phillion, assignor to Dodge Manufacturing Company, tool for turning the faces of pulley-rims; Clayton & Potts, Indianapolis, clay disintegrator; William E. Ryan, French Lick, bellows attachment; Alanson W. Straughn, Lincolnville, automatic corn-dropper; Charles Whittenber, Indianapolis, cash-box drawer.

—Prof. B. S. Coppock, Governor of White's Indiana Manual Labor Institute, near Wabash, has just returned from Pine Ridge Indian Agency, in Dakota, with twenty-nine Indian children, who will be educated in the Institute. There are seventeen girls in the company, several of whom were taken direct from the wigwams and cannot speak or understand English. All are Sioux, but one is a son of Little Chief, who is at the head of the northern Cheyennes. The Indian work at White's Institute is attracting wide attention. Ten girls have just been returned to their western homes, having completed their education. The Government pays $125 a year toward the education of old pupils and $108 for new ones. The deficit is made up by the National Society of Friends.

—A special inquiry elicited the following showing of the condition of crops: The crops in Southern Indiana are even worse than anticipated two or three weeks ago. The corn crop will not be more than one-half, while late potatoes, with few exceptions, may be set down as an entire failure. The river bottoms of Posey show fair corn, but further up the river this crop is seriously damaged. Knox, Daviess, and Martin counties are the worst sufferers by the recent drought. It is thought that Martin County will not raise enough corn to feed the teams that were used tending the crop, and many farmers are selling their stock at a great sacrifice.

—The Indiana M. E. Conference, at the September session, will take preliminary steps toward the purchase of a large tract of land near West Baden Springs, on which will be established the annual camp-meeting of the Methodist congregations of Southern Indiana. A number of cottages, hotel, and tabernacle for worship will be built, and the grounds laid off in the highest art of the landscape gardener.

—At the De Pauw gas wells, abandoned in Harrison County, the gas pressure is so great that salt water is thrown out a distance of fifty feet high. It was the intention of the De Pauws to put up salt-works there this fall, but the will contest will prevent this until the matter is determined. It is estimated that salt water that could be converted into forty tons of salt per week goes to waste at these works.

—A case has been decided by a Montgomery County Justice of the Peace that has attracted considerable notice. The trustee desired to send a man and family back to Fayette County for that county to keep, as that is where they came from. They refused to go, and the trustee resorted to the law to compel them to go. The justice decided they must go back to the county where they belong.

—Samuel Eppard, a wealthy pioneer of Madison County and owner of the old Killbuck saw-mills, fell from a bridge near his residence and killed himself. Mr. Eppard was standing on the bridge talking to Mr. Heagy, a neighbor, when he suddenly said: "I'm not feeling well," fell from the bridge, striking the ground twelve feet below, and was picked up dead.

—At a meeting of the directors of the Clark County Agricultural Association it was decided, on account of the extreme drought and scarcity of water on the fair grounds, that they would be compelled to postpone the fair until the first week in September, 1888, at which time they will have ample water facilities on their grounds.

—The new Court-house that has been building in Muncie for over two years, is completed and the contractors, Messrs. Charles Pearce & Co., have handed it over to the Commissioners. It presents a splendid appearance and is one of the very best court-houses in the State. The contractors have been faithful in every particular.

—Mr. John Melease, a wealthy farmer, living near Yorktown, lay down on a railroad track and went to sleep. A west-bound passenger struck him, leaving him in a state so mangled that his friends did not recognize him. He was dead when found, and some papers in his pocket identified the remains, and they were sent home.

—Ferdinand McNutt, aged 20 years, was killed on the Lake Shore pile-driver, a few miles east of Elkhart, recently. He went up to take the block from under the hammer, the latter fell prematurely, and, striking the block, caused it to strike McNutt, who fell a distance of twenty feet, alighting on his head. He lived about an hour.

—Reeny Allenbass, a young unmarried man, residing with his parents in Hanover Township, and employed in a saw-mill at Tryset, in Jefferson County, was prying on a log with a crow-bar, when he slipped, and fell backward on a circular saw, which cut him nearly in two, causing his instant death.

—The body of Mathias Rapp was exhumed at Kossuth, and a second inquest shows that his death was the result of violence.

—Alexander Gable, a prominent house-builder and contractor of Hartford City, fell from the roof of a house to the joists below, striking upon his side, and breaking his leg and three ribs. He is not expected to recover.

—Lorenz Peck, of Shoals, died of injuries received in a runaway that occurred while returning from the soldiers' reunion at French Lick. She was in the company of George Hawkins, who was seriously injured.

—An unknown man was killed by a train on the C. & A. Railroad at Laketon.

—There is a man named Riley Smith in the county poor-house at Bloomington who wears No. 14 shoes. By actual measurement each shoe will hold a peck of shelled corn.

—John Augustine, while driving a buggy across the Grand Trunk Railroad at South Bend, was struck by the engine of a west-bound special passenger train.

—The third reunion of the Eleventh Indiana Cavalry will be held at Crawfordsville on September 19 to 21.

—The fourth gas well has been successfully sunk at Anderson, yielding a capacity of eight million feet a day.

—Frank Lightfoot, living in Marion County, eighteen miles from Marion, shot and killed his aged mother, mistaking her for a burglar.

—William Perry is under arrest at Lafayette, charged with attempting to wreck a train on the C., I. & C. railway near that place.

—There were 275 graduates of Wabash College in the Union armies during the civil war.

—Christopher Sisson and Reese Hullinger were suffocated to death in a well near Marion.

—C. G. Baker, a Pierceton druggist, suicided by taking morphine.

AN ELEPHANT'S TRICK.

The elephant of the Jardin des Plantes at Paris used to play his visitors a trick which could not have been thought of but by an animal of much intelligence. His house opened upon an enclosure called the elephant's park, containing a pond, in which he would lay himself under the water, concealing every part of him except the very end of his trunk—a mere speck that would hardly be noticed by a stranger to the animal's habits. A crowd would often assemble round the enclosure, and, not seeing him in it, would watch in expectation that he would soon issue from the house. But, while they were gazing about, a copious sprinkle of water would fall upon them; and ladies and gentlemen, with their fine bonnets and coats, would run for shelter under the trees, looking up at the clear sky, and wondering whence such a shower could come. Immediately afterward, however, they would see the elephant rising slowly from his bath, evincing, as it seemed, an awkward joy at the trick that he had played. In the course of time, his amusement became generally known; and the moment the water began to rise from his trunk the spectators would take flight, at which he appeared exceedingly delighted, getting up as fast as he could to see the bustle he had caused.

Strange as it may seem, a huge animal like the elephant has a ridiculous fear of certain small objects. The keeper of the Zoological Garden in Philadelphia says that he has seen an elephant nearly scared into a fit at the sight of a mouse. And one warm day, for the amusement of the spectators, a dozen inflated bladders were thrown into the pond when the animals went in to swim. At first they were greatly frightened. Then Empress struck at one with her trunk; and, when it bounded into the air, both she and her companion trumpeted and scrambled out of the pond. Finally she gently fished one of the bladders out of the water, and kicked at it with her hind feet. No serious results following, the sport was continued until Empress happened to step upon the bladder. It exploded with a loud report, and the elephants scampered home.

WHAT WOULD MAKE IT SOUND BETTER.

"Did you hear me singing, papa?" asked Mabel, as she tripped merrily into the room.

"I did, my child, I did."

"And how did you like it, papa, dear?"

"I can't say that I enjoyed it very much."

"Not enjoy my singing?"

"Well, perhaps it wasn't the singing I didn't like; it might have been the composition; yes, I think it was the selection; I could have suggested considerable improvement upon it."

"How, papa? What change would you make?"

"I think the composition would sound much better if it were transformed into one long, sweet continuous rest."

And Mabel went and shut the piano with all her might. — Merchan's Traveller.

Why a man boots his dog, but merely shoes his hen, has never been precisely determined.

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

BY BENJ. PERLEY POORE.

Martin I. Townsend, a jovial old Representative from the State of New York, declared that when the Democrats passed the Electoral Commission Bill, they did so with the expectation that it would place Tilden in the White House; but they woke up the wrong man. This Mr. Townsend used to illustrate by relating an anecdote of an old Dutchman, who lived up in Troy many years ago, and who went down to New York to find his son Yawpy. To give the Dutchman's own words:

"One time my son Yawpy went down upon New York and upset a grocery. So Yawpy could not come home no more. By and by I wanted to see Yawpy, so I goes down upon Troy and takes a sloop for New York. When we gets to New York they tied up the sloop to the dock, and I starts to find Yawpy. I went up a side hill, to a street I think they call the Broadway. When I gets there I looks on both sides of the street for Yawpy. When I had gone a mile, maybe, in the hot afternoon, who should I find but Yawpy, sitting upon a stoop fast asleep. So I goes up upon the stoop, and there he sits mit his head hanging back and his mouth wide open. I says: 'Yawpy!' but Yawpy does not wake up. I puts me mouth close to Yawpy's ear and hollers: 'Yawpy!' and still 'Yawpy!' and he don't wake up yet. Den I takes Yawpy by his collar and shakes him just so hard as over I could, and I hollers so hard as you could hear me maybe half a mile, and den Yawpy he wakes up. And den, so help me shunoke, it was not Yawpy!"

Edward Everett used to tell a story about himself. He was once traveling in Essex County, Mass., before the days of railroads. He was traveling in a crowded stage, which seemed too full for even the traditional "one more," when a school-girl came out of a house and wished to get in. They made room for her, Mr. Everett offering his knee for her to sit upon. She had sat some time upon that primitive seat, when Mr. Everett at last thought she might like to know upon whose distinguished knee she had the honor of sitting. He said, "Perhaps you would like to know upon whose knee you are sitting." She said she should. He said, "My name is Edward Everett." "Do tell," she replied, "be you a sailor man?" He said that was the last time he undertook to get a reputation.

Mr. Webster, on one of his visits to Marshfield, heard and brought back to Washington the following good-story about the Rev. Dr. Allyn, an eccentric Congregational clergyman at Duxbury. When a violin was first introduced into the choir of Dr. Allyn's church, the innovation gave great offense to some of the worthy parishoners. Especially was the player of the bass viol exercised with sorrow and indignation, when the frivolous and profane fiddle first took its place in the house of God, by the side of his sedate and portly instrument. He accordingly laid the case before the parson, who, after listening soberly to his complaints, replied: "It may be as you say, sir; I don't know but you are right; but if you are it strikes me the greater the fiddle, the greater the sin!" The hero of the big fiddle was untuned.

At a meeting of the Republican National Committee in 1876, just before the Ohio October election, Gov. Hayes produced a letter from Gov. Hayes, in which it was said that Ohio was almost lost; that in order to save it to the Republicans money must be forthcoming, and at once, and $10,000 was mentioned as the sum which it would be desirable to have. The committee thereupon determined that Gov. Hayes' appeal must be responded to, and Zach Chandler, William H. Kemble, of Pennsylvania, and one or two others made up the amount at once. The check was sent to the order of Gov. Hayes, and by him at once endorsed and turned over to the Republican State Committee of Ohio.

It was believed at Washington, after the inauguration of President Hayes and his unconditional surrender of Louisiana and South Carolina to the Democrats, that an arrangement had been made by which the Republicans were to obtain control of the House of Representatives, and elect Gen. Garfield Speaker. The General believed this, and withdrew from the Senatorial contest in Ohio at the suggestion of the President, who also believed it. There was reasonable ground for this belief.

It was understood that Gov. Hampton had pledged himself that Aiken and Evans, the two Democratic members-elect from South Carolina, would refuse to go into the Democratic caucus at the organization of the House, and vote for the Republican candidate for Speaker. It was also understood that Casey Young, of Tennessee, Throckmorton and Schleicher of Texas, Slemmons and Gause of Arkansas, and Chalmers of Mississippi had been induced to make a similar pledge to ex-Gov. Brown, of Tennessee, afterward one of the Louisiana commissioners, and that these men, eight of them, were to hold the balance of power in the next House, and by voting for the Republican candidate for Speaker—Gen. Garfield—were to organize the House in the interest of the administration.

Martin I. Townsend, of New York told a story which illustrated the outcome of this program. He said that a negro was tramping through the woods somewhere down South, with a wild turkey on his back. He was met by a white man who proposed that they play a game of cards for the turkey. After considerable argument and more "bulldozing" the colored man consented. The white man produced the cards, dealt them, and won the game. As he was walking off with the turkey, the negro, who had been somewhat mystified, came to his senses, and called after the white man: "Say, mass'r, w'at 'd. you put up agin' dat bird?" The question of the Republicans was, what did the Southern Democrats put up against Louisiana and South Carolina in this political game they had been playing with the President? They won; they were walking off with the Republican turkey—two turkeys in fact—to which they had no more right than they had to govern the kingdom of heaven, and the Republicans were asking what good was to come of all this? But they lost two States.

The Insect World.

Were it possible to take a census of the individual insects upon the globe, the result would be an array of figures of whose meaning we could form little conception. Members of each species multiply in countless millions, yet even the number of distinct species is so great that we can hardly do more than guess at it. Entomologists generally concede that upward of one hundred thousand species of insects have been recognized, and some authors place the number as high as one hundred and fifty thousand, while it is probable that these may represent not more than a tenth of the number actually inhabiting the earth's surface. "Probably not less than one-half of the indicated forms," says Professor Hailprinn, "belong to the order Coleoptera, or beetles, which is by far the most numerous represented of all the orders. The Lepidoptera, or butterflies, have thus far yielded some fifteen thousand species—or about one-fifth of the total number (200,000) estimated by Speyer for the world at large—and an equal number may, perhaps, be credited to the Hymenoptera (bees, wasps, and ants), the Hemiptera (bug), and Diptera (flies). The Orthoptera, or straight-winged insects, which include the locusts, grasshoppers, etc., are considerably less numerous, while the species of netted forms (Neuroptera) probably number only about two thousand. The insects are most numerous developed in the tropics, but they are by no means rare in the coldest regions reached by man. Sir George Nares brought home no less than forty-five species of true insects from beyond the seventy-eighth parallel of latitude in Grinnell Land, and more than three hundred in Iceland. Many of the insects of earlier geological ages are known to us as fossils from the rocks, these being found by Mr. S. H. Scudder to embrace at the present time at least two thousand six hundred species.

A Baptist Transformation.

Some fifty years ago (writes a veteran) the orthodox church people in this town, which is not far from Boston, were much disturbed at a movement to organize a Baptist Church from among them, and a little congregation of that faith had already been gathered, which was receiving accessions from the old church. The pastor in charge of the Baptist Church took courage, and assured the brethren that if they would only subscribe liberally and build a meeting-house, "Parson P.—'s chickens will all turn to ducks."—Harper's Magazine.

SLAPPING A KING'S FACE.

Rebuke of a Woman Who Was Insulted by Charles XII.

Charles XII. of Sweden has been represented as naturally indifferent to women. He abjured at a very early age all intercourse with the sex. The Kings of Sweden, at that period, were of easy access on the part of their subjects. They practiced the condescension, but within proper limitations, of sometimes even engaging in their convivial pastimes.

Charles XII., on his accession, enjoyed this jocund prerogative with all the vivacity of his very early youth; and one evening, but a little time before he was to leave Stockholm to open his military renown, he went to sup with a Dalecarian gentleman, residing at the capital.

Charles was then only in his fifteenth year, and loved to talk with this brave descendant of the preserver of his great ancestor, Gustavus Vasa, with all the fervor of his own royal patriotism. But the young King's romance did not end there. He had seen a beautiful serving maid from those very mountains, the wildest regions of his kingdom; he had seen her once or twice attend in the rooms, while a guest under the simple roof of his brave subject. He had seen and admired her in silence.

It happened that evening that she opened the door for him. She was alone and he was unaccompanied. He could not resist the temptation, for she blushed at the sight of him and exhibited emotion. The King thought there was more than kindly awe in this, and, gently taking her hand in his, proffered a kiss. He expected she would gladly accept it. But he was mistaken; she drew back. He thought she was only coy and attempted to force the kiss. She struggled; then, bursting from him, with words of severe rebuke, in the agitation of her repulsion, struck him in the face. At the moment she disappeared, the gentleman of the house, having heard the gentle, came out of his room to see what was the matter.

On seeing the King and his disorder the worthy Dalecarian, after a few hasty words of respect, inquired if anything had happened to disturb his Majesty.

Charles smiled and composedly said: "I confess that I am disturbed, and discomforted likewise, and deservedly so, for I am ashamed to say I tried to force a kiss from your pretty damsel, and she made my cheek suffer for it. This little adventure, however, will give me my freedom from all of her sex for life.

"I am a king and a soldier," he continued; "my soul's first object is the glory attendant upon those titles, and I know that the greatest men have at times wrecked both by an undue admiration of women. They ruined Antony, they almost ruined Caesar, and they made a fool of Alexander; but, by Heaven! they shall not ruin or make a fool of me. I know the susceptibility of my own nature, and I know the power—the hearts—the tyranny of the sex. Therefore, from this moment, I swear by the scepter of Sweden and this good sword never to look on woman again with an eye to desire, her smile or fear her frown—in short, to regard her as to me no more."

It was even with solemnity that he kissed his sword on uttering his vows, and then, turning their discourse immediately on the business of his visit, the old Dalecarian saw only the brave and loyal descendant of the great Gustavus before him.

Ross Raymond in Sing Sing.

I entered the library of the prison, and was somewhat taken back to be confronted with Ross Raymond with the convict suit on. The suit here is of a grayish stuff a good deal like the old Confederate uniform, with a stripe of black, which runs around the cloth, instead of at angles. Even in his prison garb Raymond retains his handsome looks. It was his shape which so well enabled him to play his confidence games. When President Garfield was shot Raymond was on the staff of the New York Herald and was sent to the Washington bureau as an assistant. A tall, heavily set man, with handsome, swarthy face; black eyes, and black hair, and with the polish of manner, he soon won the confidence of his fellow-craftsmen. At Elberon, when the dying President was removed there, Raymond was a positive favorite. Once established, he began his confidence operations and left many to regret his acquaintance. Subsequently, when discharged by the Herald for crooked financial deals, he drifted west. His play was to draw drafts upon the Herald and have them cashed by those he could duped. Finally he abandoned his wife, and with a female companion was next heard of in London, where he assumed to be in the confidential service, of the Khedive of Egypt. In London he lived quite swell, but, of course, at somebody's expense. Then he drifted back to the United States and left his trail of duplicity from San Francisco to New York. His latter exploits added forgery to his catalogue of graces, for which he was indicted and convicted and is now cking out a seven years' term. He is the assistant librarian of the prison, and is also an aide to the chaplain. This would seem to imply that even within the prison walls he has successfully practiced his confidence game.—New York letter.

Mugwumps.

"Mugwump" is a term applied to an Independent Republican. On the nomination of James G. Blaine for the Presidency, June 6, 1884, a strong opposition developed among disaffected Republicans naming themselves "Independents." The movement originated June 7 at a meeting in Boston and was promptly taken up in New York and elsewhere. The supporters of the regular nomination affected to believe that the Independents set themselves up as the supervisors of their former associates. They were termed "dudes, Pharisees, and hypocrites," and on June 15, 1884, the New York Sun designated them "Mugwumps." The word was forthwith adopted by the press and the public, though for a time its meaning was problematical. It appeared that the term had been in use colloquially in some parts of New England, notably on the Massachusetts coast. Thence it had been carried inland, and was used in large type as a headline in the Indianapolis Sentinel as early as 1872. This, on the authority of Mr. F. H. Keenan, who was at the time editor of that journal, and had picked up the word in New England. In this instance it was used to emphasize some local issue. After this the word seems to have lain perdu until resuscitated by the Sun on March 23, 1884, when it in turn applied to a local issue at Dobb's Ferry, N. Y., printing "Mugwump D. O. Bradley" in large type at the top of one of its prominent columns. After the Independent movement was started, the word was launched on its career of popularity but not until Sept. 6, 1884, was it authoritatively defined. The Critic of that date contained a note of Dr. J. Hammond Trumbull, of Hartford, to the effect that the word was of Algonquian origin and occurred in Elliott's Indian Bible, being used to translate such high titles as lord, high-captain, chief, leader, or duke. In Matthew vi. 21, it occurs as muk-guomp, and again in Genesis, xxvi. 40-43, and several times in II. Samuel xxiii. The word aroused widespread philological discussion, which continued long after the campaign had ended. As is frequently the case in American politics, the word was used as a term of derision and reproach by one section and accepted with a half humorous sense of its aptness by the other.—Toledo Blade.

Beyond the Breakers.

"This is Pure Old Government Rio. is it, Mr. Lightweight?" asked the customer.

"Oh, yes," replied the grocer, "that's coffee from Coffeyville."

"But you charge as much for it as you did last week, and I have been told that the panic in the coffee market had reduced the price greatly."

"Oh, yes, I know," said the honest grocer, abstractedly removing a handful of grains from the scales to make them weigh more; "but you know a break in the coffee market has no effect on the price of chickory. There you are, 17 cents a pound, and as you're an old customer I've put up five pounds for a dollar; the nutmegs 11 cents, soap 18, yeast cakes 4, clothespins 23—that was a dollar bill you gave me? Yes, yes, a dollar eighty-one out of two; yes, yes, eleven cents, here you are; much obliged; call again. Oh, no, we make no charge for delivering goods."—Burdette.

THE glory of ancestors sheds a light around posterity; it allows neither their good nor bad qualities to remain in obscurity.—Salust.

WELLINGTON'S HOME.

Mementos of the Duke to be Seen at the Apsley House, (London Exchange.)

All visitors to London know the outward aspect of Apsley House, the home of the Duke of Wellington; severe, yet stately, fronting the lovely park, with its unornamented facade, owing all its grandeur to its ownership and all its charms to the beauty of its situation. The uncle of the present Duke caused the iron window shutters to be removed, which were put up by the hero of Waterloo after the assault on his residence by the mob, owing to his resistance of the passage of the Reform Bill. They stayed there till the grim old soldier died; he never would suffer them to be taken away, preferring probably to keep them as an outward and visible sign of the brief nature of popular affection, even though he on whom it was bestowed has saved his country and blessed her with enduring peace.

Passing the jealously guarded portals the visitor enters a vast square hall paved with black and white marble. The first room shown is a small one on the right, containing some fine busts in white marble. Among these is one of the Duke and a very fine one of Jenny Lind taken when she was a young girl. The great Duke much admired the young Swedish songstress, and a very sincere and warm friendship existed between them. Passing through this room, we were shown into the Waterloo room, a veritable Wellington museum, the walls lined with tall glass-fronted presses, the floor occupied with glass topped cases, and all filled with relics and trophies of the great deeds of the original owner of the mansion.

There, ranged in order, were the Marshal's batons that were the insignia of his military rank; the one in solid gold sent him in exchange for the baton of Marshal Jourdan captured at the battle of Vittoria; another covered with cloth of gold, encircled with laurel branches in emeralds and decorated with the Russian eagle in diamonds, the gift of the Emperor Alexander; and that of the Constable of the Tower, a plain gold shaft surmounted with a crown. There were the orders bestowed upon him by the sovereigns of Europe, stars, crosses, ribbons, without end. The Duke's Peninsular medal and clasp, which he wore in common with the humblest soldier in the British army, attracted me far more than did the blaze of foreign stars and crosses.

Then, in another case lay the sword of Napoleon, its jewelled hilt and enamelled scabbard contrasting with the severely simple style of the sword worn by the Duke at the battle of Waterloo. There was no lack of diamond-hilted weapons and scabbards, rich in velvet or gorgeous in gold and gems; but amid all the magnificence the eye instinctively sought that plain, unornamented sword, and the field glass in a shabby leather case that lay beside it. For the eagle eye of Wellington had through that glass surveyed the strife at Waterloo; through the field of its vision had swept the tide of battle that bore with it to destruction the last hope of Napoleon.

In the presses around the walls were arranged the magnificent offerings in plate and porcelain laid at the Duke's feet by potentates and corporations. Foremost among these is the vast gold shield offered by the merchants and bankers of London, the border ornamented with scenes from the Duke's battles, and the center bearing in high relief a group representing the Duke surrounded by his generals. The candelabra to match are over four feet in height. The silver set of table ornaments, the gift of the King of Portugal, is a bewildering but artistic combination of statuettes and feathery palm trees. The Emperor of Austria's gift was a dinner set in Sevres porcelain, each plate exquisitely painted with a view of some palace or castle in Europe.

AT THE WEST POINT RIDING-HALL.

It is accounted "great fun" to witness the first rides of the yearlings, so we will go down there and laugh at their mishaps.

Mounting the stairs to the gallery, we look down upon a large space strewn with tanbark, at one end of which is a row of some twenty horses with watering-bridles. Soon the performers file in and come to a halt in front of the horses. Do they intend to ride with only a watering-bridle, without even saddle or blanket? They will try to; at all event. The instructor commands:

"Stand to horse! Prepare to mount. Mount!"

In obedience to his command the cadets spring, struggle, leap, and kick, in their efforts to bestride their steeds. The moment they are mounted several horses develop astonishing bucking propensities, to the anguish of their riders and the delight of the gallery. Now they start around the hall at a walk. It seems rather tame, doesn't it? But soon the command "trot!" is given, and the fun begins. The poor fellows bounce about on the horses' backs like India-rubber boys, and wobble from side to side like jumping-jacks. The trot is accelerated, the horses take the gallop, and dash around the hall, tumbling their riders in heaps at the corners, while those who by chance are still mounted grasp frantically at their horses' manes. Finally, the gait is reduced to a walk; line is formed; the dismounted yearlings, nothing daunted, catch their horses and remount, and then the performance is repeated.

If we had visited the gymnasium and fencing academy in the morning we should have seen sections of the fourth class exercising under a rigid system of instruction; and if from there we had gone to the riding-hall at the hour of first-class attendance, we should have seen exhibited the high degree of muscular skill and activity to which the system of training in gymnasium and riding-hall brings cadets. For the first-class cadets ride like Indians. It is immaterial to them whether they have a saddle or blanket or ride bare-back. They leap hurdles, go through the saber exercise, and are adepts at pistol practice; they mount, dismount, vault their horses and pick up articles from the ground, all while at full speed; they ride forward, backward, sideways, and double; lying down, kneeling, and standing up. Visitors at the riding-hall during first-class hours go to admire, not to laugh.—George I. Putnam, in St. Nicholas.

KIDD KITTY SENT HIM SKIPPING.

They were old friends, though she suspected there was a rival in his affections. But when he snuggled up to her on the sofa in the little parlor on Mariner street and whispered "Kitty," very softly, she realized that the blissful moment had come. "Kitty," he said in tremulous tones, "I'm about to propose, er—that is I'm going to ask, er—Jennie Grampus to be mine. Do you, er—think, do you believe she would consent to wed me?" Kitty deliberately rose up with her cheeks on fire, and pulled his golden mustache until he howled. "If I were Jennie Grampus," she cried, "I wouldn't marry you if you were the last man on earth. Why, I never heard of such presumption in my life. Goodness gracious, Mr. Mumbley, what could you have been thinking of?" But Mr. Mumbley didn't stop to reply. He seized his hat and tore out of the house, and ever since has devoted himself strictly to business, avowing that women are all fickle and false, and that he will have none of them.—Buffalo Courier.

My ways are as broad as the king's high road, and my means lie in an inkstand.—Southey.

The Ladies' Favorite.

The newest fashion in ladies' hats will doubtless cause a flutter of pleasurable excitement among the fair sex. Ladies are always susceptible to the changes of a fashion plate; and the more startling the departure, the more earnest the gossip over the new mode. Dr. Pierce's favorite Prescription is a positive cure for the ills which afflict females and make their lives miserable. This sovereign panacea can be relied on in case of displacements and all functional derangements. It builds up the poor, haggard, and dragged-out victim, and gives her renewed hope and a fresh lease of life. It is the only medicine for woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money refunded. Read printed guarantee on bottle wrapper.

A COOK who prefers Burns to Browning shouldn't have anything to do with Bacon or Lamb.

If Sufferers from Consumption,

Scrofula, Bronchitis, and General Debility will try Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, they will find immediate relief and permanent benefit. The Medical Profession universally declare it a remedy of the greatest value and very palatable. Read: "I have used Scott's Emulsion in several cases of Scrofula and Debility in Children. Results most gratifying. My little patients take it with pleasure."—W. A. HULBERT, M.D., Salisbury, Ill.

SPECIAL taxes are levied upon bachelors in France, and they pay it cheerfully; nary a kick.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS is an unfailing cure for all diseases originating in biliary derangements caused by the malaria of miasmatic countries. No other medicine now on sale will so effectually remove the disturbing elements, and at the same time tone up the whole system. It is sure and safe in its action.

NOTWITHSTANDING the fact that "one good turn deserves another," it is not advisable to turn a collar more than three times.

Odd Fellows' Excursion to Denver, Col., via "Rock Island Route."

The C. R. I. & P. Ry. offers the grandest opportunity to see the wonderful mountain scenery of Colorado at smallest expense ever known. Tickets to Denver and return on sale September 13 to 18 inclusive, good to return until October 31, at extremely low rates. Excursions from Denver to all points in Colorado at one fare for the round trip to holders of these tickets. For further particulars address:

G. T. & P. A., C. R. I. & P. Ry., Chicago, Ill.

Prof. Loissette's Memory Discovery.

No doubt can be entertained about the value and genuineness of Prof. Loissette's Memory System, as it is so strongly recommended by Mark Twain, Mr. Proctor, Hon. W. W. Astor, Judah P. Benjamin, Dr. Buckley, and others. For full details send for Prof. Loissette's prospectus, at 237 Fifth Ave., New York. From it the System is taught by correspondence quite as well as by personal instruction. Colleges near New York have secured his lectures. He has had 100 Columbia Law students, two classes of 200 each at Yale, 200 at Meriden, 200 at Norwich, 400 at Wellesley College, and 400 at University of Penn. We cannot conceive how a system could receive any higher indorsement.

RELIEF is immediate, and a cure sure. Pico's Remedy for Catarrh. 50 cents.

If afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it 25c.

Do Not Neglect

That tired feeling, impure blood, distress after eating, pains in the back, headache, or similar affections till some powerful disease obtains a firm foothold, and recovery is difficult, perhaps impossible. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the defender of health, in time to banish all bad feelings and restore you to perfect health.

"When I took Hood's Sarsaparilla that heaviness in my stomach left; the dullness in my head and the ghomy, despondent feeling disappeared. I began to get stronger, my blood gained better circulation, the coldness in my hands and feet left me, and my kidneys do not bother me as before." O. W. HULL, Attorney at Law, Millersburg, O.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar.

300 PANTS

HANDSOME, STYLISH PANTS

Made to order in first-class style. Perfect fit guaranteed or money refunded.

For samples of cloth and 4 foot tape measure (worth 10c.) send 3 2c. stamps. Circulars Free.

Established 1877.

THE HUNTER CINCINNATI, O. MFG CO.

300 SHOES

OUR FULL SEAMLESS SHOES

beat the world. Made in sizes and styles to please. Perfect fit guaranteed. We refer to any Bank, Express Co., or leading business house in this city.

It is a Perfect Cure.

I was severely afflicted with Hay Fever for twenty-five years. I tried Ely's Cream Balm, and the effect was marvellous. It is a perfect cure.—Wm. T. Carr, Presbyterian Pastor, Elizabeth, N. J.

Apply Balm into each nostril.

PENSIONS COLLECTED and Increased by Fitzgerald & Powell, Indianapolis, Ind. Old cases reviewed. Send for copy of Laws, free.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficent influence of

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health. It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young. As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

KIDDER'S

DIGESTYLIN

A SURE CURE FOR INDIGESTION AND DYSPEPSIA.

Over 5,000 Physicians have sent us their approval of DIGESTYLIN, saying that it is the best preparation for indigestion that they have ever used.

We have never heard of a case of Dyspepsia where DIGESTYLIN was taken that was not cured.

FOR CHOLERA INFANTUM.

IT WILL CURE THE MOST AGGRAVATED CASES. IT WILL RELIEVE CONSTIPATION.

For Summer Complaints and Chronic Diarrhea which are the direct results of imperfect digestion DIGESTYLIN will effect an immediate cure.

Take DIGESTYLIN for all pains and disorders of the stomach; they all come from indigestion. Ask your druggist for DIGESTYLIN (price $1 per large bottle). If he does not have it, send one dollar to us and we will send a bottle to you, express prepaid. Do not hesitate to send your money. Our house is reliable. Established twenty-five years.

WM. F. KIDDER & CO., Manufacturing Chemists, 83 John St., N. Y.

BIRDSELL

FOR MOTOR JUNIOR

BIRDSELL MFG CO.

SOUTH BEND, IND.

CHALLENGE

THE NEW CLOVER HULLER

DOES ITS WORK THAN FASTER AND BETTER ANY OTHER

OUR NEW RE-CLEANER

CLEAN THE SEED

SEND FOR OUR CHALLENGE

AND LATE CATALOGUE

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town.

TANSILL'S PUNCH 5 & 1

We are selling four times as many "Tansill's Punch" against any other cigar, and have only had them in the case a week.

J. A. Tansill, Druggist, Brockport, N. Y.

Your "Tansill's Punch" is cigars as staple as sugar, and they never fail to give perfect satisfaction.

H. W. MAHAN, Champagne, Ill.

Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

MARLIN REPEATING RIFLE

Guaranteed perfectly accurate and absolutely safe. Made in all sizes for large or small game.

BALLARD

Galleries, Hunting and Target Rifles. Send for Illustrated Catalogue.

Marlin Fire Arms Co., New Haven, Conn.

R. BAIRD'S GRANULES

Cure Dyspepsia, Malaria, Piles, Stomach Disorders, Impure Blood, Kidney Disease, Torpid Liver, Habitual Constipation, etc.

A new principle, a new remedy. Purely Vegetable. A full size box sent FREE, postage prepaid, to any invalid, or their friends sending their address at once. Give account of case, symptoms, etc.

DR. BAIRD, 157 W. 23d St., N. Y.

FOR SALE CHEAP!

One of Payne & Son's automatic ten-horse power engines. It has only been used about two years, and is in every respect as good as the day it came out of the shop. This engine is equal to twenty-horse power if required of it. Address, FORT WAYNE STEAMSHIP UNION, 55 & 57 Columbia St., Fort Wayne, Ind.

RUBBER STAMP OUTFIT

FOR SALE CHEAP.

Vulcanizer, 16 fonts of Type, Cuts, and everything used in the business. Address E. R. 174 E. Berry St., Fort Wayne, Ind.

R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D.C.

Instructions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 17 years' experience.

PATENTS

KIDDER'S PASTILLES Price 35c. Asthma, Cough, Bronchitis, Stomach, Stowell & Co., Charlestown, Mass.

OPIMUM

Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.

to $5 a day. Samples worth $1.50. FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Write Brewster Safety Ram Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

$5

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year, in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months ..... 50
Three Months ..... 25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe as second-class matter.

FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 2, 1887.

Last Friday Mrs. M. J. Widney of this place received the startling intelligence that her son Harvey had been drowned. She got ready and immediately left for his home in Excelsor, Minn. Nothing more has been known in regard to the sad affair, until yesterday, a paper was received by Sam Widney, which contained the following account: "One of the saddest fatalities that has ever happened at the lake occurred yesterday, near the Excelsor Academy, causing the death of Prof. H. S. Widney, principal of the Excelsor Academy and Lulu Haines, the 14 year old daughter of a well known citizen of Excelsor. Prof. Widney's two daughters and Lulu Haines were gathering water lilies on a raft in a pond near the rear of the Academy. The raft began to sink, when Prof. Widney jumped off, thinking to lessen the weight, and save the little girls. He had no sooner jumped in, however, when the girls followed after him, and in the struggle which ensued, Prof. Widney and Lulu Haines were drowned. The two daughters of Prof. Widney were rescued from a watery grave through the bravery of Theodore Bast Jr., who witnessed the accident and jumped in to the rescue. The bodies were recovered soon after life was extinct. At first it was thought that three were drowned but both the daughters recovered consciousness soon after being taken from the water. Prof. Widney has resided in Excelsor but one year, yet has gained hosts of friends by his generosity and noble manhood. He was principal of the Excelsor Academy and has recently been engaged in making preparations for the opening of the season of '87 and '88. He leaves a wife and two children to mourn his untimely death. It is supposed that the raft tipped down on one side, causing Prof. Widney and the children to slip off, and the children caught hold of him so that he could help neither himself or them. Theodore Bast, who was the first to the rescue, was at work on Prof. Widney's new residence. When he reached the scene of the drowning he jumped into the water just in time to save Widney's two children. The grass and soft mud so obstructed and hindered him that only the timely arrival of other persons prevented him from drowning also. He did not know that Prof. Widney was drowned until one of the children told of it. At a meeting of the citizens of Excelsor the following resolution was adopted: In the death of Prof. Widney our village has lost a noble and upright citizen; our youth an able instructor and warm friend; the church a zealous and devout Christian worker, and his family a loving husband and kind father."

The Y. P. T. L. A. will meet at the residence of Miss Sake Wineland, on Wednesday evening, Sept. 7th. A good program has been arranged. We want every member to be present as there is some matters of importance to attend to.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.
COBURN TOWN.

Some sickness in the neighborhood. I understand. Daye Andrews family are all sick.

Some of the farmers have commenced sowing their wheat; pretty dry don't it.

R. G. Coburn is now on the road with the Albion Cultivator again. Now is the time for farmers to pitch in and buy while they can get them cheap and on long time.

We have only two babies to report this week, but we hope to do better in the future. Johnny Abel is the proud father of a bouncing boy, while Wil's Beaber has to be satisfied with a girl, but he is awful proud though.

Augustus Coburn has gone into the real estate business. Office in Dr. Sheffer's office. Any one contemplating going west, will do well by consulting him, as he has some of the finest land in the Arkansas valley, for sale very cheap, and on easy terms.

PERSONS' RETREAT.

Mort N. Kline's health is no better. The whooping-cough has broken out in Leo.

"Bab" Shilling has quit farming and is now buying stock.

Grandma Kline has recovered from her recent attack of cholera morbus. She is able to be around again.

It is reported that there are some cases of the black-tongue diphtheria between St. Joe and Hicksville. Will our Coburntown correspondent kindly inform us if the report is true?

On account of ill health our teacher Miss Ida Koch, closed her school at this place on last Friday. We understand that the parents were well pleased with the school, and would have liked to have had it continue another month.

Bert Zimmerman in company with Charley Mills of Maysville, Sundayed at home. He brings news of a large barn burning near Maysville. Some children playing at burning corn-stalks, with matches, set the barn on fire, burning a large amount of hay and grain. Children and matches should never play together.

NEWVILLE.

This city was quite well represented at Butler last Sunday.

Arthur Olds visited with his parents at Spencerville last Sunday.

Ulysses Swansgood, of Stafford, was the guest of Cora Plum Saturday evening.

Both of the Sunday schools will attend the picnic at St. Joe next Saturday.

We understand Ida Cotrell will teach at No. 2, Newville township, this winter.

Rev. I. W. Lowman preaches his farewell sermon at the U. B. church, Sept. 11th.

Frank Segur and Miss Eva Fell attended the lecture at Butler Monday evening.

Wonder what caused Mr. Patco to visit this city one day this week? Ask Ida to explain.

One of our city ladies, Miss Lusina Smith was married to John Hahlwetz of Butler, Aug. 28th.

Mrs. Akins, Cora Plum, Lizzie Seely and Charrie Linton are attending Institute at Butler this week.

Nathan Stafford was surprised by a gathering of his children at his home on last Saturday, it being his 70th birthday.

Our Normal school closes next Friday. Profs. Walton and Koeppe gave the best of satisfaction, and we would be pleased to receive them back next year.

JUST RECEIVED THIS WEEK AT

LEIGHTY'S

Nearly 5000 Yards of Best Prints,

WHICH WILL BE SOLD AT

5 CENTS PER YARD.

ALSO A LARGE STOCK OF OTHER GOODS, CHEAP
CALL AND SEE THEM

CONCORD.

Bill Baker is selling a good many pumps.

Henry Baker is the happy father of a 9 lb. girl.

The fast train killed two fine colts west of here last week.

Mrs. M. J. Widney, of St. Joe, visited in the family of F. Buchanan last Thursday.

Mrs. N. Huffman contemplates going to Illinois sometime in the near future to open up a boarding house.

Mrs. M. E. Baker entertained quite a number of friends last Sunday. Among them were Warren Strong of Spencerville.

The fortune teller over north has been quite liberally patronized of late, and the young people are permitted to know what is in store for them in the future.

Little Ray E. son of Calvin and Elida Ohinger died last Sunday morning, August 28th, age four months. The funeral services were conducted at the house of it's grand-parents, G. and J. Morr, on Monday afternoon, by Rev. Langley.

Mrs. M. J. Dawson returned to Auburn last Friday, where she will remain until about the middle of September. She will then go to Colorado to spend the winter visiting with friends on the way at different places, for a short time.

A very pleasant and agreeable surprise was given Mrs. H. F. on Thursday of last week. The unsuspected arrangement of it was due Mrs. James Smith and Miss H. M. There were quite a number of guests present. Time passed swiftly, friends had met, pleasant conversations indulged in and charming music listened to. A repast was then served, to which all did ample justice. A few nice presents were given, and all returned to their respective homes feeling that they had had a good time.

This space belongs to J. H. Conrad, the man who Gutters and Sputters and Spouts, and makes the best Tinware in the county. Give him a call when needing anything in his line.

SORGHUM MAKING.

I am now prepared to make Sorghum molasses at my residence east of St. Joe. I have a new process for clearing, which enables me to make better molasses than ever before. Give me a call. Prices reasonable and satisfaction guaranteed.

Howard Northrup

"TRUTH IS MIGHTY, AND WILL PREVAIL."

LOOK THIS WAY!

I keep on hand a fine line of Furniture, which I will sell for the next 60 days at prices that defy competition. Glass Cupboards $8.50. Double Cane Seat and Back Rockers $2. Dressing Case with French Plate Glass $12.00. Carpet Lounges $6.50. Solid Comfort Beds for $2.25. Undertaking a speciality.

August Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.

A Disastrous Flood!

Heavy damages done by the over-throw of High Prices, and we will continue same. Good Brown Sugar 5 and 6 cts. Granulated 7 cts. Rosin 5 cts. Alum 5 cts. Salts 5 cts. Bird Seed 8 cts. Salt Peter 12 1/2 cts. Prunes 6 1/2 cts. Good Gingham 6 cts. Dress Goods at your own price. Grain Sacks 18 cts. All goods as cheap as the cheapest. Highest market price paid for Wheat, Oats and Seeds.

S. & F. Barney

WHY IS IT?

Why is it that some people have so many more eggs to sell than others? They have not any more chickens but what they do have seem to lay better. The facts in the case are they use Raven's Poultry Food, and that is one of the best preparations in the world to make chickens lay. It is also a sure preventative of cholera. Try it. For sale at Patterson's Drugstore, St. Joe, Ind.

DON'T EXPERIMENT.

You cannot afford to waste time in experimenting when your lungs are in danger. Consumption always seems at first, only a cold. Do not permit any dealer to impose upon you with some cheap imitation of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, but be sure you get the genuine. Because he can make more profit he may tell you he has something just as good, or just the same. Don't be deceived, but insist upon getting Dr. King's New Discovery, which is guaranteed to give relief in all Throat, Lung and Chest affections. Trial bottles free at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store. Large Bottles $1.

NOTICE.

Our annual partnership settlement occurs on the first of September, and we desire to have all who are indebted to us, call on or before that time and settle up. Please attend to this matter at once, and oblige.

Filley, Lounsberry & Shuler.

LOCALS.

The circus exhibits at Newville today.

Miss Anna Merrill spent the Sunday with friends at Waterloo.

Some interesting reading matter will be found in the supplement this week.

Little Johnny Dills, who has been very sick the past week, remains about the same.

Mrs. W. B. McClaran is spending a few days with friends here and at Spencerville.

C. E. Everett, general agent for the Union Central Life Insurance Co., was in town this week.

Mrs. Jake White has removed her household goods to her parents, and will make her home with them.

Clocks, Watches and Jewelry repaired by Bert Patterson, at the St. Joe Drugstore. All work warranted.

Dr. T. J. Dills of Fort Wayne, and Wm. Dills and wife of Auburn, were the guests of J. W. Dills last Sunday.

W. K. Sheffer of the Angola Herald, with his wife and children, were the guests of his brother, Dr. Sheffer, over last Sunday.

Bert Patterson has taken an interest in the drug business at this place, with his brother, W. C. Bert is a young man of good business qualifications, and we are glad to have him become a citizen of our thriving town.

The marriage of Miss Eva B. Shutt to Dr. Elson, of Canton, Ohio, occurred yesterday, at the home of the bride, at 12 o'clock. The happy couple left on the afternoon train for an extended wedding tour in the east. The News extends congratulations.

Lafayette was recently visited by a shower of frogs.

The Waterloo fair promises to be a good one this year.

Mrs. J. D. Leighty visited friends near Maysville, last Friday.

Don't buy your fall shoes until you have seen those twenty button Kids at Case & Olds.

Mrs. E. Metsgar of Fort Wayne, visited in this place last week, the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. D. Leighty.

Mrs. Henry Sharp of Fort Wayne and Mrs. Newman of Edgerton, Ohio, were the guests of Mrs. M. J. Olds, last Friday.

Mrs. S. G. Flint returned last week from an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. C. M. Thayer, of Minneapolis.

The W. C. T. U. will meet at the residence of P. P. Shuler, on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 8th, at 2 o'clock. All are invited.

The Normal school has been closed since Tuesday, in order to allow the teachers and students to attend the county institute at Butler.

A meeting has been called at Auburn for to-morrow, at two o'clock, to take some action in regard to the payment of the drive well royalty.

Never borrow if you can possibly avoid it, but if you must borrow, don't borrow the St. Joe News. Take it yourself; only 25 cents for three months.

Art Woodcox says: "That's all right, August Kinsey, but you wait down to our house Sunday night, and I can prove it by my own mother." That settles it.

The bears set a bad example before the crowd last Friday by stopping in front of the saloon and drinking a couple glasses of beer. They handled the glasses like old toppers.

Rev. J. A. Thomas will deliver a lecture in this place on Wednesday evening, Sept. 7th, before the students of the Normal school, and all others who will attend. Subject: "Generalization and Classification of Knowledge."

We went to press last week to early to report the success of the lecture by Rev. Beaty, at the Methodist church, but we are glad to state that it was well attended, and highly appreciated by our citizens. The Normal school students were out in full force, and no doubt they obtained many new ideas, and derived much useful information. Such lectures are a benefit to the town, and we are glad to know that we are to have more of them.

The Auburn ball-club is no good, and it ought to go into the shop for repairs, before they ever try to play again. Some time ago the Spencerville club beat them by a good score, and last Saturday they played a game at Auburn, and the score stood 15 to 35 in favor of Spencerville. Poor old Auburn has had her share of trouble this summer. Her balloon would not go up, her gas well was a failure, and now to think that her ball club should get so gloriously whipped, is just too bad.

In order to fill previous engagements, it became necessary for Prof. Hootman to resign his position as instructor in the Normal at this place. Prof. Price has secured the services of an assistant for the balance of the term, which it is hoped will prove satisfactory to all concerned. During Prof. Hootman's brief stay among us, he has made many warm friends, and they no doubt join with us in wishing him success in his new field of labor. We understand that he takes charge of the schools at Eureka, Ill.

MOUNTED WITH THE HERBRAND GEAR IRON

ECKHART CARRIAGE WORKS,

AUBURN, DE KALB CO., IND.

—MANUFACTURER OF—

FIRST CLASS CARRIAGES,

CHARLES ECKHART, PROPRIETOR.

Call on me when in need of a first class Carriage or Buggy, and I will save you money. I guarantee all work as represented.

ST. JOE MARKETS.

CORRECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat	70 cts.
Oats	25 cts.
Corn	35 cts.
Butter	15 cts.
Eggs	12 cts.
Tallow	31 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	50 cts.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

Trains Leave St. Joe as follows:

WESTBOUND.
No. 9 Mail and Express	11:05 A. M.
17 Accommodation	4:18 P. M.
3 Chicago Express	10:42 P. M.
35 Local Freight	3:42 P. M.

EASTBOUND.
No. 10 Express and Mail	2:08 P. M.
16 Accommodation	10:28 A. M.
14 Morning Express	4:55 A. M.
34 Local Freight	7:59 A. M.

W. I. McKee, Agent.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chills, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by W. C. Patterson.

Wonderful Cures.

W. D. Hoyt & Co., Wholesale and Retail Druggists of St. Joe, Ga., say: We have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery, Electric Bitters and Bucklen's Arnica Salve, for four years. Have never handled remedies that sell as well, or give such universal satisfaction. There have been some wonderful cures effected by these medicines in this city. Several cases of pronounced Consumption have been entirely cured by use of a few bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery, taken in connection with Electric Bitters. We guarantee them always. Sold by W. C. Patterson.

There will be a soldier's re-union at Hicksville on Oct. 6th and 7th.

J. D. Leighty told Mervin Widney that if he would clean off his potato patch, and put it in condition for sowing turnip seed, he would give him what stray potatoes he might find. He did so, and got thirty bushels of nice potatoes for his trouble.

PERSONAL.

Mr. N. H. Frohlichstein, of Mobile, Ala., writes: I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, having used it for a severe attack of Bronchitis and Catarrh. It gave me instant relief and entirely cured me and I have not been afflicted since. I also beg to state that I had tried other remedies with no good result. Have also used Electric Bitters and Dr. King's New Life Pills, both of which I can recommend.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds, is sold on a positive guarantee. Trial bottles free at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store.

Last week quite a number of the brethren of this vicinity received thru the U. S. mail a letter with red something like this: "You will please crawl at my odds in Auburn and pay the royalty on your drive well in this, save trouble and costs." Some of them take the matter in a cool, kam way, while others got hot, and said that it was a regular swindle from beginning to end. We heard of one gude old brother that got a littel hotter than awl the rest, and he started home with a club in his hand (see cut) and he said that the first pedlar, litching-rod or sowing machine agent, bohannan oats man, patent rite swindlar or ana other sardere that cum onto his farm to sell gudes wood git the day-lite knocked out of him in double quick ordar. The fact is this is an age of swindels and swindlers. A pursion don't hardly feel safe to go to sleep at nite fur fear sum fello wil cum along the next morning an want him to pa a royalty on his sleeping apparatus.

Bareus Q. Hippenhammer.

The St. Joe News.

ST JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS,

PUBLISHERS.

THE SECRET DRAWER.

BY CHARLES MACKAY.

In idle mood I touched the springs
That opened wide the secret drawer,
To gaze on half-forgotten things
That waked the memories of yore;
Small scraps of letters loosely tied
With silken bands of faded blue,
Containing words of love and pride,
Wrung from my heart when life was new.

A lock of radiant golden hair
That once adorned a glorious head
Of a young angel heavenly fair—
And long since numbered with the dead;
A dark brown tress—the sole remains
Of a brave woman lost and gone,
The partner of my joys and pains,
Whose smile made sunlight where it shone.

I sighed, I kissed them like a fool—
Although perhaps the fool was wise
With wisdom learned in sorrow's school.
Who saw the truth through all disguise.
And in my counsel with my thought
I asked myself, mid haze of tears,
Why those fond relics, fancy-treasures,
Should live beyond my span of years?

Live with their tale of thought or deed,
For mementoes in scandal's mart,
To satisfy the clamorous greed
Of scribblers who'd dissect my heart
When I lay slumbering in the mold,
Unwept of Fame's noisy blast—
And sell for miserable gold
The sacred secrets of the past?

To build romances from my life,
Or weave the lies that seem like truth,
From shadows of long-ended strife
And unknown agonies of youth?
Take them, ye flames! such fate is best!
All but the lock of hair I crave
To wear upon my living breast,
And perish with me in the grave.
—Temple Bar.

A SCHEMING WOMAN.

MRS. W. F. SMITH.

"Why, Mr. Maynard, what a very uncomplimentary gentleman you are! Did Mrs. Jackson give you such a poor dinner that you feel justified in denouncing all cooks, or are you above being influenced by tough steaks and thick coffee?"

"I should be hardly human, Miss Gertie, if such things did not have some weight in forming my decisions. I think Dr. Pillsbury hardly realized what I should have to endure at Mrs. Jackson's hands, or he would not have sent me out into the country to rest and regain my strength."

"If you had as much strength as the butter she gave us for breakfast you would have been able to pursue your studies without a rest," said Olive Marlett, speaking for the first time. "I should think she would be ashamed to set any one down to such a table; really, I think I shall be obliged to go home soon unless I can find a different place to board. I did not expect to find anything very wonderful in the country, but I did suppose the folks knew enough to cook a decent meal."

Gertie Weston's face flushed. "You should not judge all country people by Mrs. Jackson, or Sarah Ann," she said, gently. "I know a number of young ladies, educated and refined, that are also excellent cooks."

"Do you, really, Miss Weston? Then I should think you might take pity on me, and go with me to look for a new boarding place. I will be under lasting obligations to you if you will, and will try and make the ride pleasant beside."

Bert Maynard became very much in earnest, as he thought how pleasant a ride would be with Gertie Weston as guide and companion.

But Miss Marlett had no intention of letting them take such a ride without her, if she could help it. For she had fancied, of late, that Bert felt more than an ordinary interest in Gertie, and for the sake of her own plans for the future she did not wish them to get any better acquainted, so she joined in the conversation at once, speaking as if she had been included in the invitation, and asking if they should go the next morning.

Bert's interest in the ride seemed to die out as speedily as it had arisen; and he did not appoint any other time or urge the matter when Gertie said to Olive that it would be impossible for her to go in the morning.

Miss Marlett noticed how willing he was to let the subject drop, and was quick enough to see the reason, and a jealous hatred and determination to lessen his regard for Gertie took possession of her; but she did not show it in her actions she was pleasant and sweet to the young girl, while inwardly planning to mortify and humiliate her.

They were still laughing and chatting together when Mrs. Jackson's supper-bell rang; and as Miss Marlett and Bert walked across the lawn she tried to lead him to make some disparaging remark about Gertie, saying: "Did you notice Miss Weston's hands? They are such an odd shape, so short and stubby," and she glanced complacently at her own slender fingers. But he only said:

"You have such nicely-shaped hands yourself, Miss Marlett, it makes you take more notice of others' than I do." Then, as he, too, glanced at her hands he continued:

"That is an odd bracelet you wear, at least the bangles are odd."

"Yes," she said, "it is odd, and also very valuable. Would you like to look at it? and she slipped it off and handed it to him. "My uncle was a collector of rare coins, and left those to me when he died. I do not like them to be out of my sight, and thought if I had them put on a band now while it is the fashion to wear bangles it would be the easiest way for me to take care of them. You and the jeweler," and she laughed a little, "are the only ones that have ever handled them, except myself, since they came into my possession."

"Indeed! I feel quite honored. But here is one that some one else will handle if you don't have it fixed. See, the fastening is defective."

"Why, so it is! I am very glad you noticed it. I will have to be careful or I shall lose it, but will have it repaired the first time I go to the city."

As she held out the slender wrist for Bert to put the bracelet on, she added:

"If I should lose it, Mr. Maynard, I will call upon you to identify it in case of its being found. It is the most valuable coin in my collection. Would you know it again?"

"Certainly I should, no matter where I saw it."

They had reached the house by this time, and the conversation dropped.

The next afternoon Miss Marlett, watching from behind the shelter of Mrs. Jackson's green blinds, saw Bert cross the lawn to Mrs. Weston's, and at once decided to go there herself. Catching up her hat she reached the shaded porch almost as soon as Bert himself, whom she appeared much surprised to see.

Living so close to Mrs. Jackson's it was no unusual thing for her summer boarders to make themselves at home at motherly Mrs. Weston's, so there was no need of an excuse for their coming.

Gertie and Mrs. Weston brought chairs for them, and the four were soon having a pleasant chat.

In the course of their conversation Mrs. Weston asked if they were fond of honey. And on their replying, said, "Mr. Weston took out about three hundred pounds from our hives this morning, and Gertie has promised him she will make warm biscuits for tea; you had better stay and have some with us."

Bert glanced at Gertie with a smile. "I shall be more than pleased to accept my share of your kind invitation," Mrs. Weston, he said, "for Miss Gertie and I had an argument yesterday about young ladies cooking, and I shall be glad to let her convince me that I was in error."

"Will you acknowledge that you are in error if the biscuits are good?" Gertie asked, as she glanced at the clock, and began to roll up her work.

"Certainly. It shall be an unconditional surrender," and from the look in Bert's eyes Miss Marlett thought that it would not be his side of the argument alone that would be surrendered to Gertie.

A few moments later Gertie excused herself and went to the kitchen to make the biscuits for tea; and Mrs. Weston and Bert were soon so deeply engaged in conversation that they never noticed that Miss Marlett, laying down the paper she had been pretending to read, had left them alone for a moment or two, returning with a somewhat flushed face, but a triumphant look in her eyes.

When Gertie appeared, after putting her biscuits in the oven, Miss Marlett proposed that they have tea out on the porch. "It will not make you much more work, for we will help," she said; "you get whatever you want for tea ready, and I will carry it out and set the table."

Of course Gertie acquiesced; and the table was soon set. Miss Marlett proved so helpful in her fear of making Gertie more work by her plan of an out-door tea, that she even took the biscuits from the oven and arranged them upon the table; so it was not until Mrs. Weston, removing the snowy napkin that covered them, passed the plate to Mr. Maynard that Gertie noticed them. Then she could scarcely believe her eyes, for instead of the nice, white biscuits she had expected to see, and which all her past experience justified her in expecting, they were as yellow as saffron, and smelt strongly of salaratus.

"What in the world ails your biscuits, Gertie?" said Mrs. Weston. "Stop, Mr. Maynard," as that gentleman, in pity for the embarrassment so plainly discernible in Gertie's face, broke open the one he had taken and raised it to his lips. "Don't eat that; Gertie will get some bread."

Thanking her mother, in her heart, for sending her instead of going herself, Gertie rose just as Miss Marlett, with a perceptible sneer in her voice, said:

"I'm so sorry you didn't tell us you couldn't make them, and let me do it for you, Gertie; but don't feel at all grieved over your failure; perhaps you will do better next time."

"Perhaps she will, Miss Marlett, if she does not have too much assistance. The old saying of 'too many cooks spoiling the broth' is undoubtedly true; and this little trifle will prove that some one else, as well as Miss Gertie, took part in mixing the biscuits," and Bert held out a piece of the one he had taken, with a small gold coin imbedded in the center of it.

Miss Marlett glanced at the trifle, and her face took a grayish hue as she recognized the coin that last night had occupied a place upon her bracelet.

Not for ten times the value of that coin would she have had Bert Maynard know how she lost it, and she would have denied owning it now, but she knew by his looks it was no use. Her hand trembled a little in spite of her efforts to keep it steady, as she silently took the coin he held toward her; and she mentally blessed Mr. Weston, who, seeing her distress and pitying her, asked Mr. Maynard some question and so changed the conversation, while Gertie and her mother, with true lady-like tact, appeared not to notice her embarrassment.

In spite of the efforts of all concerned the meal was rather a silent one, and no objections were raised when, at its close, Miss Marlett, saying she had letters to write, begged to be excused, and went back to Mrs. Jackson's.

"I see now how it was," said Gertie, when, later in the evening, Bert had told them how he knew to whom the bangle belonged. "I left the flour in the pan, and the box of salaratus by it, while I went to the well for some fresh water. She must have put the salaratus in while I was gone and lost the bangle then."

"I presume so," said Bert, "for I remember now that she left your mother and I alone for a few moments, but perhaps the chance of settling our argument is not lost, for your mother has consented to let me board here the rest of the vacation."

When Mr. Maynard returned to Mrs. Jackson's late that evening he was surprised to find Sarah Ann still up, and to learn that Miss Marlett had left for New York on the night express. And as she left no address it was impossible to send her wedding cards when, that fall, Gertie became Bert Maynard's bride.

Willing to Correct.

He walked into the office looking pretty much like a man dissatisfied with general results.

"Can I see the editor?" he inquired. He was directed to the foot of the throne.

"Good morning, sir," he began gruffly.

"Mornin'," grunted the editor.

"I came in," he proceeded, "to tell you of a misprint in the paper."

"What is it?"

"Well I sent a notice here that my friend Smith had just been married, and your infernal compositor got it, 'Mr. Smith has just been martyred.'"

"Ugh, you call that a misprint, do you? Well I don't, and I've raised that compositor's wages. If you don't like it, send Smith around to me ten years from now, and if he wants it corrected, I'll have it done."

The visitor departed to see Smith.—Merchant-Traveler.

PITH AND POINT.

A BIG spread—the sky.

TROUBLE in grease—explosion in a lard factory.

THE bald-headed man is just as well satisfied with a back seat as with a front one—at church.

A POSTAGE stamp is like a youngster. It always sticks to business better after it has been thoroughly licked.

WHEN a man loses money faster at poker than he makes it in his business, something is going to drop soon.

VIOLET—Ma, how do people know that it's a man in the moon? Mother (sadly)—Because it's always out nights.

LADY (to friend calling)—You won't mind my going on with my work while you are here, will you? Then I shan't feel I am wasting time.

OLD MAID—Is this parrot for sale? Bird-dealer—Yes, mum. "Can't he talk?" "Not yet, but he understands everything you say to him.—Texas Siftings.

AN Indiana man drew a revolver on a doctor, and the doctor drew a box of pills on the Hoosier. Both fired at once, and neither can recover.—New-moon Independent.

HEINRICH—I am afraid it is not for me that you come here so often, but for my money. Ardent wooer—You are cruel to say so. How can I get your money without getting you?—Boston Courier.

SOME man who would invent a new swear-word that would be as expressive and effective as the old favorites, and at the same time would not be wicked, would surely fill a long-felt want. Somerville Journal.

MRS. YERGER—Matilda, who was that man you were talking to last night at the back fence? Matilda Snowball—Has yer nebbler felt de influence ob de tender pashun dat yer axes me sich qeshuns?—Texas Siftings.

"GOOD-BYE is a simple little phrase," says a writer, "but ah! how much there is in it." True, indeed, and we never realize more fully how much there is in it than when we see two women bidding each other good-bye.—Boston Courier.

ACCORDING to records kept for many years, London fogs are becoming less frequent every year. This will be a cruel blow to certain New Yorkers who were talking seriously of adopting London fogs, because they were so awfully English we know.—Peck's Sun.

THE reports of burglars had made the mistress of the house cautious, and she reminded her maid-of-all-work that the door at the foot of the back stairs must be bolted at night, and told her the reason why. "They wouldn't come upstairs, would they?" asked Abigail. "They might," said the mistress. "And go into the rooms where folks are sleeping?" "Yes, indeed." "Well, if they ain't got cheek!"

A MAN was in the smoking-car on a Dakota train and put his head out of a window to look at some stock. In drawing back his fine silk hat came off and fell down by the side of the car. "See here, conductor!" he yelled, "I lost a $5 hat out this window—what are you going to do about it?" "Just step back to the hind platform of the sleeper and pick it up as you go past," replied the conductor. "We're behind time and trying to make it up, so I can't stop for it."—Dakota Bell.

"WILL you please allow me to ask you why you have stopped here?" asked a passenger on a "backwoods" railroad, addressing the conductor, who had just come into the car. "Yes, sir," the conductor replied; "hot box." "Hot box!" exclaimed the passenger; "hot box, when we haven't averaged eight miles an hour!" "I can't help that; we have a hot box, all the same." "I don't understand it," said the passenger. "There's no mystery connected with it," the conductor replied. "We stopped too near some burning cord-wood back yonder, and the box took fire."—Arkansas Traveler.

A Boarding Paradise.

OMAHA Man—What do you charge for board at this hotel?

HOTEL Man—We can accommodate you for $200 a month.

"That's outrageous."

"In this hotel we do not allow waiters to accept tips, and we make the servants eat what the guests don't want instead of making the guests eat what the servants don't want."

"Oh! That's different."—Omaha World.

Don't Laugh at Nervous People.

Their sufferings are very real, although you, with your vigorous physique and strong nerves, can scarcely believe it. Rather suggest the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which, in removing every trace of dyspepsia, and regulating the liver and bowels, strikes at and extirpates the most prolific cause of chronic nervous trouble. That nerve-shattering disease, fever and ague, is among the formidable ailments, to the removal of which this genial remedy is specially adapted. Nervous prostration, resulting from protracted mental or physical effort, is also a state of the system where the intervention of this tonic is very desirable, more particularly as its use is to quiet and relax the tension of overwrought nerves. The Bitters are invaluable in rheumatism, neuralgia, and kidney troubles. Employ no substitute for it.

An Arkansas Judgment.

In the course of his charge to the jury on a murder case an Arkansas judge said: "In making your decision, gentlemen, please bear in mind that the deceased was reaching for his hip pocket when the prisoner blazed away at him. The territorial statutes, you understand, gentlemen, allow one man, when he sees another make this motion, to produce his gun and begin the bombardment. To be sure it has been proved that the deceased was reaching for his handkerchief, but that makes no difference, the law does not recognize any such movements. The very fact that he was carrying a pocket-handkerchief while in Arkansas shows that he was an unfit member for our society. Please weigh all of these facts before bringing in your verdict."—Texas Tarantula.

This most severe cough can at once be removed by Red Star Cough Cure. "Give it to your children by all means," says Prof. Williams, ex-State Chemist of Delaware, who found it wonderfully efficacious. Price only twenty-five cents a bottle.

Why find fault with the Boston girl, there are spots on the sun.

$10,000 were spent in eighteen years by Prof. C. A. Donaldson, of Louisville, Ky., in trying to get rid of his rheumatism, but he found no relief until at last he used St. Jacobs Oil, which speedily cured him.

Met His Match.

"Well, lad," said an inquisitive village squire to a boy who was home for a summer visit, "I hear you've got a splendid chance in the city."
"Pretty good, sir."
"Nice house?"
"Yes, sir."
"Pay pretty well?"
"Yes, sir."
"How much did you make last year?"
"Nothing."
"Saved it up to put in the bank against a rainy day, I suppose?"
"Yes; would you like to borrow half?"

The Cutest Little Things.

"Cutest!" he echoed. "Well, I don't know as the adjective would have occurred to me in just that connection. But if you mean that they do their work thoroughly, yet make no fuss about it; cause no pain or weakness; and, in short, are everything that a pill ought to be, and nothing that it ought not, then I agree that Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are the cutest little things going!"

THE bulldog in the show whose part it was to seize the villain by the throat and hold on for dear life succeeded at Cincinnati the other night in dragging from under the player's collar the piece of liver which coaxed him on, and, taking it before the footlights, he sat down and quietly ate it, while the villain escaped.

I THINK it best not to dispute where there is no probability of convincing.—Whitefield.

From Boston.

One of the most eminent physicians in Boston gives his opinion that the extent of the Moxie Nerve Food plant, now rapidly substituting stimulants and recovering the nervous system, will probably become one of the great trade staples of the country, because its place cannot be filled. Most of the dealers so consulted now, and even the grocers deliver it to their customers as they do catfishes. When we consider it has been on the market but fourteen months, and that it can now be found in almost any part of the country, and that the company are selling it at the rate of 7,200,000 bottles per year, it must have a most marvellous power over the people.

Everything booms.

"Gimme bre'kfas' an' I'll split yer ten sticks o' wood," said a tramp to a Sioux Falls lady, as she came to the back door.

"No, sir; I won't do it unless you split twenty sticks."

"But yer uster gimme bre'kfas' for ten sticks."

"Can't help it; breakfasts have had a boom since you were here last. You split twenty or more on, else I'll untie the dog and come out with a kettle of hot water and scream for the police."—Dakota Bell.

MILD, soothing, and healing is Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

THERE is hope for dudes. A French scientist claims to manufacture artificial brains.—Philadelphia Call.

ASK your shoe and hardware dealers for Lyon's Heel Stiffeners; they keep boots and shoes straight.

THE Frazer Axle Grease is better and cheaper than any other at double the price.

This represents a healthy life. Throughout its various scenes.

MARVELOUS MEMORY DISCOVERY.

Wholly unlike artificial systems. Any book learned in one reading. Recommended by Mark Twain, Ed. Hart Proctor, the Scientist Hon. W. W. Astor, Judah P. Benjamin, Dr. Minor, etc. Class of 100 Columbia law students, two classes 200 each at Yale, the University of Penn., St. Valerius College, etc. Prospectus post free. PROF. LORETTI, 237 Fifth Ave., New York.

Smith's BILE BEANS purify the blood, by acting directly and promptly on the Liver, Skin and Kidneys. They consist of a vegetable combination that has no equal in medical science. They cure Constipation, Malaria, and Dyspepsia, and are a safeguard against all forms of fevers, chills and fever, gall stones, and Bright's disease. Send 4 cents postage for a sample package and test the TRUTH of what we say. Price, 25 cents per bottle, mailed to any address, postpaid. DOSE ONE BEAN. Sold by druggists. J. P. SMITH & CO., PROPRIETORS, ST. LOUIS, MO.

A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RY

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest—is the only true middle-link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Waverly, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unequalled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

ALL EXPRESS TRAINS between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE PARLOR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and—between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kanabeka, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.

All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employees of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly attention.

For Tickets, Maps, Folders—obtainable at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada—or any desired information, address,

R. R. CABLE, Pres't & Gen'l M'gr, Chicago. E. ST. JOHN, Asst' Gen'l M'gr, Chicago. E. A. HOLBROOK, Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Agt., Chicago.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND

SLICKER

Is The Best Waterproof Coat Ever Made.

Don't waste your money on a gum or rubber coat. The FISH BRAND SLICKER is absolutely water and wind proof, and will keep you dry in the hardest storm. Ask for the "FISH BRAND" SLICKER and take no other. If your storekeeper does not have the "FISH BRAND," send for descriptive catalogue to J. J. TOWER, 20 Summer St., Boston, Mass.

The treatment of many thousands of cases of these chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females, at the Invalid Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in wisely adapting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of women's peculiar maladies.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful remedy ever devised for the relief and cure of suffering women. It is not recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect specific for women's peculiar ailments.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and to the womb and its appendages in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to women's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. For morning sickness, or nausea, from whatever cause arising, weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia and kindred symptoms, its use, in small doses, will prove very beneficial.

"Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhoea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapse, or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

As a regulator and promoter of functional action, at that critical period of change from girlhood to womanhood, "Favorite Prescription" is a perfectly safe remedial agent, and can produce only good results. It is equally efficacious and valuable in its effects when taken for those disorders and derangements incident to that later and most critical period, known as "The Change of Life."

"Favorite Prescription" when taken in connection with the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and small laxative doses of Dr. Pierce's Purgative Pellets (Little Liver Pills), cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder diseases. Their combined use also removes blood taints, and abolishes cancerous and scrofulous humors from the system.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Large bottles (100 doses) $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

For large, illustrated Treatise on Diseases of Women (100 pages, paper-covered), send ten cents in stamps. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main St., BUFFALO, N. Y.

WEBSTER'S

Unabridged Dictionary.

A DICTIONARY

118,000 Words, 2,000 Engravings.

GAZETTEER OF THE WORLD of 25,000 Cities, and a

BIOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY

of nearly 10,000 Noted Persons.

ALL IN ONE BOOK.

Contains 2000 more Words and nearly 2000 more Illustrations than any other American Dictionary.

Webster is Standard Authority in the Gov't Printing Office, and with the U. S. Supreme Court. It is recommended by State Sup'ts of Schools in 37 States, and by nearly all of the College Presidents. Sale 20 to 1 of any other series.

It is a library in itself, and contains the pith and the essence of all other books. With this and the Bible, we might go comfortably through the world and find no great lack.—Independent.

G. & C. MERRIAM & CO., Pub'rs, Springfield, Mass.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

ADVERTISERS or others, who wish to examine this paper, or obtain estimates on advertising space when in Chicago, will find it on file at 45 to 49 Randolph St., the Advertising Agency of LORD & THOMAS.

N. U. F. W. No. 36-37
When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisements in this paper.

For a woman to say she does not use Procter & Gamble's Lenox Soap, is to admit she is "behind the times."
Nobody uses ordinary soap now they can get "Lenox."

WOMAN'S OPPORTUNITY.

Discourse by Rev. Dr. Talmage at the Hamptons.

God Made Man and Woman for a Specific Work and to Move in Particular Spheres—Woman Suffragists Unfit to Vote or to Keep House.

THE HAMPTONS, Aug. 28.—"Woman's Opportunity" was the subject of discourse by the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D., to-day; and his text: "So God created man in His own image, the image of God created He him; male and female created He them." Genesis i, 27. Following is the sermon in full:

In other words God, who can make no mistake, made man and woman for a specific work and to move in particular spheres—man to be regnant in his realm, woman to be dominant in hers. The boundary line between Italy and Switzerland, between England and Scotland, is not more thoroughly marked than this distinction between the empire masculine and the empire feminine. So entirely dissimilar are the fields to which God called them that you can no more compare them than you can oxygen and nitrogen, water and grass, trees and stars. All this talk about the superiority of one sex to the other sex is an everlasting waste of ink and speech. A jeweler may have a scale so delicate that he can weigh the dust of diamonds; but where are the scales so delicate that you can weigh in them affection against affection, sentiment against sentiment, thought against thought, soul against soul, a man's world against a woman's world? You come out with your stereotyped remark, the man is superior to woman in intellect, and then I open on my desk the swarthy, iron-typed, thunderbolted writings of Harriet Martineau, and Elizabeth Browning, and George Eliot. You come on with your stereotyped remark about woman's superiority to man in the item of affection; but I ask you where was there more capacity to love than in John the disciple, and Robert McCheyne, the Scotchman, and John Summerfield the Methodist, and Henry Martin the missionary? The heart of those men was so large, that after you had rolled into it two hemispheres there was room still left to marshal the hosts of Heaven and set up the throne of the eternal Jehovah. I deny to man the throne intellectual. I deny to woman the throne affectional. No human phraseology will ever define the spheres, while there is an intuition by which we know when a man is in his realm, and when a woman is in her realm, and when either of them is out of it. No bungling legislature ought to attempt to make a definition or to say: "This is the line and that is the line." My theory is that if a woman wants to vote she ought to vote, and that if a man wants to embroider and keep house he ought to be allowed to embroider and keep house. There are masculine women and there are effeminate men. My theory is that you have no right to interfere with any one's doing anything that is righteous. Albany and Washington might as well decree by legislation how high a brown thrasher should fly, or how deep a trout should plunge, as to try to seek out the right or the depth of woman's duty. The question of capacity will settle finally the whole question, the whole subject. When a woman is prepared to preach she will preach, and neither conference nor presbytery can hinder her. When a woman is prepared to move in highest commercial spheres she will have great influence on the exchange, and no boards of trade can hinder her. I want woman to understand that heart and brain can overfly any barrier that politicians may set up, any that nothing can keep her back or keep her down but the question of incapacity.

There are women, I know, of most undesirable nature, who wander up and down the country—having no homes of their own, or forsaking their own homes—talking about their rights; and we know very well that they themselves are fit neither to vote, nor fit to keep house. Their mission seems to be to humiliate the two sexes at the thought of what any one of us might become. No one would want to live under the laws that such women would enact, or to have cast upon society the children that such women would raise. But I shall show you this morning that the best rights that woman can own, she already has in her possession; that her position in this country at this time is not one of commiseration, but one of congratulation; that the grandeur and power of her realm have never yet been appreciated; that she sits to-day on a throne so high, that all the thrones of earth piled on top of each other would not make for her a footstool. Here is the platform on which she stands. Away down below it are the ballot-box and the congressional assemblage and the legislative hall. Woman always has voted and always will vote. Our great grandfathers thought they were by their votes putting Washington into the Presidential chair. No. His mother, by the principles she taught him, and by the habits she inculcated, made him President. It was a Christian mother's hand dropping the ballot when Lord Bacon wrote, and Newton philosophized, and Alfred the Great governed, and Jonathan Edwards thundered of judgment to come. How many men there have been in high political station, who would have been insufficient to stand the test to which their moral principle was put, had it not been for a wife's voice that encouraged them to do right, and a wife's prayer that sounded louder than the clamor of partisanship! Why, my friends, the right of suffrage, as we men exercise it, seems to be a feeble thing. You, a Christian man, come up to the ballot-box and drop your vote. Right after you comes a libertine, of a sort—the offscouring of the street—and he drops his vote; and his vote counteracts yours. But if in the quiet of home life a daughter by her Christian demeanor, a wife by her industry, a mother by her faithfulness, casts a vote in the right direction, then nothing can resist it, and the influence of that vote will throb through the eternities.

My chief anxiety then is, not that woman have other rights accorded her; but that she, by the grace of God, rise up to the appreciation of the glorious rights she already possesses. This morning I shall only have time to speak of one grand and all-absorbing right that every woman has, and that is to make home happy. That realm no one has ever disputed with her. Men may come home at noon or at night, and they tarry a comparatively little while; but she, all day long, governs it, beautifies it, sanctifies it. It is within her power to make it the most attractive place on earth. It is the only calm harbor in this world. You know as well as I do, that this outside world and the business world is a long scene of jostle and contention. The man who has a dollar struggles to keep it; the man who has it not struggles to get it. Prices up. Prices down. Losses. Gains. Misrepresentations. Gouging. Under-selling. Buyers depreciating; salesmen exaggerating. Tenants seeking less rent; landlords demanding more. Gold-fidgity. Struggles about office. Men who are in trying to keep in; men out trying to get in. Slips. Tumbles. Defalcations. Panics. Catastrophes. O woman! thank God you have a home, and that you may be queen in it. Better be there than wear Victoria's coronet. Better be there than carry the purse of a princess. Your abode may be humble, but you can, by your faith in God and your cheerfulness of demeanor, gild it with splendors such as an upholsterer's hand never yet kindled. There are abodes in the city—humble, two stories; four plain, unpapered rooms; undesirable neighborhood; and yet there is a man here this morning who would die on that threshold rather than surrender it. Why? It is a home. Whenever he thinks of it, he sees angels of God hovering around it. The ladders of Heaven are let down to that house. Over the child's rough crib there are the chantings of angels as those that broke over Bethlehem. It is home. These children may come up after awhile, and they may win high position, and they may have an affluent residence; but they will not until their dying day forget that humble roof under which their father rested, and their mother sang and their sisters played. O, if you would gather up all tender memories, all the lights and shades of the heart, all banquetings and reunions, all filial, fraternal, paternal, and conjugal affections, and you had only just four letters with which to spell out that height and depth, and length, and breadth, and magnitude and eternity of meaning, you would, with streaming eyes, and trembling voice, and agitated hand, write it out in those four living capitals, H-O-M-E.

What right does woman want that is grander than to be queen in such a realm? Why, the eagles of Heaven cannot fly across that dominion. Horses, panting and with lathered flanks, are not swift enough to run to the outpost of that realm. They say that the sun never sets upon the English empire; but I have to tell you that on this realm of woman's influence eternity never marks any bound. Isabella fled from the Spanish throne, pursued by the nation's anathemas; but she who is queen in a home will never lose her throne, and death itself will only be the annexation of heavenly principalities.

When you want to get your grandest idea of a queen you do not think of Catharine of Russia, or of Anne of England, or Marie Theresa of Germany; but when you want to get your grandest idea of a queen you think of the plain woman who sat opposite your father at the table, or walked with him arm in arm down life's pathway; sometimes to the thanksgiving banquet, sometimes to the grave, but always together—soothing your petty griefs, correcting your childish waywardness, joining in your infantile sports, listening to your evening prayers, toiling for you with needle or at the spinning-wheel, and on cold nights wrapping you up snug and warm. And then at last, on that day when she lay in the back room dying, and you saw her take those thin hands with which she toiled for you so long and put them together in a dying prayer that commended you to the God whom she had taught you to trust—O, she was the queen! The chariots of God came down to fetch her, and as she went in all Heaven rose up. You cannot think of her now without a rush of tenderness that stirs the deep foundations of your soul, and you feel as much a child again as when you cried on her lap; and if you could bring her back again to speak just once more your name as tenderly as she used to speak it you would be willing to throw yourself on the ground and kiss the sod that covers her, crying: "Mother, mother!"

Ah, she was the queen—she was the queen. Now, can you tell me how many thousand miles a woman like that would have to travel down before she got to the ballot-box? Compared with this work of training kings and queens for God and eternity, how insignificant seems all this work of voting for aldermen and common councilmen, and sheriffs, and constables, and mayors, and presidents. To make one such grand woman as I have described, how many thousands would you want of those people who go in the round of godlessness and fashion and dissipation, distorting their body until in their monstrosities they seem to outdo the dromedary and hippopotamus! going as far toward disgraceful apparel as they dare go so as not to be arrested of the police—their behavior a sorrow to the good and a caricature of the vicious, and an insult to that God who made them women and not gorgons; and tramping on, down through a frivolous and dissipated life, to temporal and eternal damnation.

O, woman, with the lightning of your soul, strike dead at your feet all these allurements to dissipation and to fashion. Your immortal soul cannot be fed upon such garbage. God calls you up to empire and dominion. Will you have it? O, give to God your heart; give to God your best energies; give to God all your culture; give to God all your refinement, give yourself to Him, for this world and the next. Soon all these bright eyes will be quenched, and these voices will be hushed. For the last time you will look upon this fair earth. Father's hand, mother's hand, sister's hand, child's hand will be no more in yours. It will be night, and there will come up a cold wind from the Jordan, and you must start. Will it be a lone woman on a trackless moor? Ah! no. Jesus will come up in that hour and offer His hand, and He will say: "You stood by me when you were well; now I will not desert you when you are sick." One wave of His hand, and the storm will drop; and another wave, of His hand, and midnight shall break into midnight; and another wave of His hand, and the chamberlains of God will come down from the treasure houses of Heaven with robes lustrous, blood-washed, and heaven-glinted, in which you will array yourself for the marriage supper of the Lamb. And then with Miriam, who struck the timbrel of the Red Sea; and with Deborah, who led the Lord's host into the fight; and with Hannah, who gave her Samuel to the Lord; and with Mary, who rocked Jesus to sleep while there were angels singing in the air; and with Florence Nightingale, who bound up the battle wounds of the Crimea, you will, from the chalice of God, drink to the soul's eternal rescue.

One twilight, after I had been playing with the children for some time, I laid down on the lounge to rest. The children said, play more. Children always want to play more. And, half asleep and half awake, I seemed to dream this dream. It seemed to me that I was in a far distant land—not Persia, although more than oriental luxuriance crowned the cities; nor the tropics—although more than tropical fruitfulness filled the gardens; nor Italy—although more than Italian softness filled the air. And I wandered around, looking for thorns and nettles, but I found none of them grew there. And I walked forth and I saw the sun rise, and I said, "When will it set again?" and the sun sank not. And I saw all the people in holiday apparel, and I said: "When will they put on workingman's garb again and delve in the mine and sweelter at the forge?" but neither the garments nor the robes did they put off. And I wandered in the suburbs, and I said: "Where do they bury the dead of this city?" and I looked along by the hills where it would be most beautiful for the dead to sleep, and I saw castles, and towns, and battlements, but not a mausoleum, nor monument, nor white slab could I see. And I went into the great chapel of the town, and I said: "Where do the poor worship? Where are the benches on which they sit?" and a voice answered: "We have no poor in this great city!" And I wandered out, seeking to find the place where were the hovels of the destitute; and I found mansions of amber and ivory and gold, but no tear did I see nor sigh hear. I was bewildered, and I sat under the shadow of a great tree and I said: "What am I and whence comes all this?" And at that moment there came from among the leaves, skipping up the flowery paths and across the sparkling waters, a very bright and sparkling group; and when I saw their step I knew it, and when I heard their voices I thought I knew them; but their apparel was so different from anything I had ever seen, I bowed, a stranger to stranger. But after awhile, when they clapped their hands and shouted, "Welcome! welcome!" the mystery was solved, and I saw that time had passed, and that eternity had come, and that God had gathered us up into a higher home; and I said "Are we all here?" and the voice of innumerable generations answered, "All here;" and while tears of gladness were raining down our cheeks, and the branches of the Lebanon cedars were clapping their hands, and the towers of the great city were chiming their welcome, we began to laugh, and sing, and leap, and shout: "Home! Home! Home!"

Then I felt a child's hand on my face and it woke me. The children wanted to play more. Children always want to play more.

M. T. BISHOP,

—DEALER IN—

LUMBER, LIME,

—LATH—

SHINGLES,

MOULDING &c.

Large Stock and Low Prices. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

MEAT MARKET

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNESS

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

Blacksmith

AND

Repair Shop.

Having secured the services of an experienced workman, I am now prepared to do all kinds of Blacksmithing and Repairing in a first-class manner. Special attention given to repairing machinery. Give me a call. Prices reasonable.

A. W. Hall, St. Joe.

Supplement to the St. Joe News.

Vol. I.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1887.

No.

The Auburn school begins next Monday.

The county commissioners meet next week.

It is said there are 3500 drive wells in this county.

Don't miss the Waterloo fair from Sept. 26th to 30th.

The old settlers of Defiance county, will meet on the fair grounds in Hicksville on Sept. 8th.

Miss Mabel Nelson of Hicksville, has been visiting her cousin, Miss Bessie Patterson, this week.

Tomatoes are scarce this year, and prices will be high for canned goods before another spring.

There is a fair crop of pears this year, and will be a good many apples when they get them all gathered up.

Fairs are now in order. The Defiance fair is being held this week, and next week the Toledo fair takes place.

The B. & O. will carry passengers to Philadelphia and return from September 8th to 17th, at half fare rates. Tickets good to return until Sept. 22nd.

The Criterion Comedy company open up the season at Avilla this week. Charley Meek, formerly of this place, is one of the leading actors in the company.

M. & B. Cole one of our subscribers at Concord, is traveling with Houltons circus. He was at home over Sunday, and says their show will strike this place in about four weeks.

A Fort Wayne Gazette man in writing up Auburn last week, claims that they have the finest looking lot of girls there that he has seen in the state. Oh hosh! He ought to come over and see our St. Joe girls.

Those who were fortunate enough to plant potatoes on low ground or muck swamps this year, will be the lucky ones. J. D. Leighty planted about 4 acres of low mucky ground, just south of this place, in potatoes, and got over 700 bushels.

Chris Curie is a practical farmer. He believes it is better and more profitable to put out 10 acres of wheat, and do it right, than to put out twice that amount, and only half do it. A look at Mr. Curie's farm, the manner in which he does his work and the crops he always harvests, bears us out in this statement.

Last Friday the town was drier than a chip until about two o'clock, when a couple of Frenchmen struck the town with two large performing bears, and it was not five minutes until there was a crowd on street large enough to make a person think there was a circus in town. The bears were well trained, and the performance was quite amusing; especially to the little folks. Of course they didn't forget to pass the hat.

MONEY TO LOAN.

Interest payable only once a year. No commission charged. You can return any part or all of loan, at any time. For further particulars see

W. C. Patterson, St. Joe.

"Be it ever so busy,
There's no place like home."

And no home is complete without first going to Mart Tustison's Grocery and getting a pound can of Baking Powder and a handsome piece of China-ware. Price only 50 cents. Baking Powder warranted strictly pure. Main street, St. Joe, Ind.

Remember the Waterloo fair, Sept. 26th to 30th.

A fast man is very slow when it comes to paying his debts.

Bentley & Rogers' circus skipped Spencerville. They only show in larger towns.

There were three bears in town last Friday; two cinnamon bears and one Jonathan Bair.

In some localities they are clubbing together, and will stand the drive well royalty a suit.

Ad Chubb is putting in lots of tile on his farm this fall. Adam thinks that it is money well spent.

George Swineford's brown mare sold for $208.00 at the sale last Thursday. C. C. Walters was the purchaser.

Mr. John Hefty is very happy these days, all because of the young lady in the family, an heir, usual weight.—Waterloo Press. William Hefty of this place, is rejoicing under the same circumstances. They probably both feel Hefty.

THE INTER-STATE FAIR.

Fort Wayne, Indiana, September 27, 28, 29, 30, 1887.

For five years past the Inter-State Fair has had

The largest cattle show in the State.
The largest horse show in the State.
The largest side show in the State.
The largest hog show in the State.
The largest poultry show in the State.
The best races in the State.
The most liberal premiums of any Fair in the State.

The best line of attractions and amusements of any Fair in the State.
Every premium has been paid in full, as advertised, and every promise has been fulfilled.

The Fair of 1887 will equal its predecessors in every particular, and in many features will surpass any former fair.

The same liberal policy in regard to premiums and attractions will govern the management this year as in the past, and exhibitors will receive uniform treatment, and liberal inducements to show at the Fort Wayne Fair.

To the progressive farmer the stock exhibit, the immense line of agricultural implements, and the horticultural display, offer an interesting field of study, amply sufficient to repay him for the time and money spent at the Fair.

To the mechanic the many improved machines and other displays in the mechanical line will afford an endless amount of instruction and amusement.

To entertain the amusement-loving public a fine line of attractions have been secured, over $3,000 being offered in this department alone.

Believing that in no way can the farmer, the mechanic, the laboring man, the merchant, the housewife, the young and the old receive the same amount of instruction and amusement as at the great Inter-State Fair, a cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

Subscribe for the St. Joe News.

A girl may be like sugar for two reasons. She may be sweet, and she may be sandy and full of grit.

The B. & O. only runs two freight trains now on Sunday. They either haven't got as much business as formerly, or else they are getting too pious to run trains on Sunday.

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1887.

NO. 33.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLIMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind., John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a speciality. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—A Logansport special says: Recent developments have brought to the surface a new scheme to defraud and rob the farmers. The first move made by the sharper is to write his victim a letter stating that a distant relative in New York or Philadelphia has just died, leaving him a large sum of ready cash. The amount is usually placed at about $3,000. The farmer is urged to keep the matter strictly to himself, or at least divulge it to his intimate friends only, and he is urged to come to the city at the earliest possible moment, with as much as $250 to pay legal expenses. If he does not become suspicious he follows the instructions and meets the agent who so graciously informs him of his good fortune at a hotel. The $3,000 in crisp, new bills is counted out to him and done up in a neat package. He pays the "legal expenses," and is given a package, the exact counterpart of the one containing the bills, which he is advised to send home by express. When he reaches home and anxiously tears open his package, to his surprise he finds a brick, waste paper, and saw-dust. Several complaints have been made to the authorities by persons victimized in this way, but thus far no arrests have been made.

—Alfred W. Scott has sent his resignation as Representative of Morgan County to the Governor. Mr. Scott proposes to make his home in Lincoln, Neb. If an extra session of the Legislature should be called two Senators and four Representatives would have to be elected to fill the vacancies caused by the resignations of Senators Sellers and Bailey, and Representatives Barnes, Gordon, Patton, and Scott.

—One of the largest people's mass meetings ever held in Fort Wayne took place at the Court-house recently to organize a stock company, composed of citizens, to pipe natural gas to the city from Hartford City, a distance of forty miles. It requires a capital of $400,000. One hundred thousand dollars were raised at once, and the entire sum will be subscribed. It is expected that pipe-laying will commence at once.

—The Executive Committee of the Ninth District Veteran's Association, whose reunion will be held at Crawfordsville, September 19 to 22, has chosen Capt. J. E. Southard, of Frankfort, as Commander of Camp H. S. Lane. His aids are: Adjutant, J. W. Aughe; Quartermaster, J. Q. W. Wilhite; Chief of Ordnance, H. H. Talbot; Commissary, J. H. Wasson; Surgeon, Dr. S. L. Ensminger.

—A most strange thing has occurred on the farm of E. D. Higley, near Tocsin, on the Chicago and Atlantic Railway. A well had nearly gone dry—had only a few inches of water on the bottom. When Mr. Higley went as usual to draw water the other morning he found that the bottom had dropped out of the well. There is now a deep black hole there, which has not yet been fathomed.

—By the fall of a portion of a heavy derrick at the bridge being erected over Silver Creek near New Albany, for the O. & M. Railroad extension to New Albany, Harry Connelly was struck over the heart by a piece of timber and died in an hour. Thomas Stanger was very badly injured, but will recover. Both men were employed by the contractor for the bridge piers.

—Rushville is infested by a gang of small boys who, for the past few weeks, have set fire to seven barns in different parts of the town, all of which have burned to the ground. The last to burn was owned by M. C. Kerr. The authorities are making strong efforts to break up the gang, and it is believed the infamous practice will soon be stopped.

—Jack Vanbibber, a young man residing near Evansville, attempted to jump on a log-wagon, but lost his hold and fell to the ground between the wheels. One of the hind wheels passed over him, inflicting internal injuries, crushing his skull, and breaking his right thigh. He died a few hours later, after suffering intense agony.

—Henry Fletcher, a young man 23 years of age, of Elkhart, was blown to fractions by the explosion of fifty pounds of dynamite cartridges while blasting stumps on the farm of John Hill, near La Porte. Parts of his body were found eighty rods distant, hanging in the limbs of trees forty feet from the ground.

—Two men named Darrow were overcome by damps while digging a well on the farm of Mr. McNamee, five miles east of Wabash. Before help arrived both men perished. The dead men were aged 30 and 40, respectively, and were brothers. Both resided in the vicinity and were well known.

—The Sixth, Twenty-second, and Eighty-third Regiments, Indiana Volunteers, will hold their annual reunion at Columbus, Oct. 6, 7, and 8. Several other regiments are expected to participate. All old soldiers are cordially invited.

—Sylvester Kirk, of Mount Vernon, a painter, fell from a scaffold recently, receiving what is believed to be fatal injuries. He fell a distance of over fifty feet. He leaves a large family, who were entirely dependent upon him for support.

—Rev. Alexander Blackburn, for nine years pastor of the Baptist Church, at Lafayette, has received and accepted a call at Lowell, Mass. He will leave on November 1. His present salary is $1,800; his prospective salary, $2,500.

—The remains of a mastodon were discovered on the Godfrey farm, four miles east of Montpelier, at a depth of five feet. This makes two mastodons and one mammoth (hairy elephant) found in that locality during the past four years.

—E. W. Benjamin, a pioneer of Wabash County, and an old Mason, died recently in LaGro Township, aged 77.

—While digging a public well at Farwell, at the depth of thirty feet black-shale was struck, and petroleum flowed in quantities sufficient to warrant the hope of good results. The inhabitants are jubilant over the prospects.

—Mrs. Hannah Kingsman has entered suit in the Montgomery County Court against the L. N. A. & C. Railway, asking $5,000 damages for refusing to stop a fast train at Cherry Grove and let her get off.

—Samuel Slagle, while working in the Wabash gravel pit at Fort Wayne, was killed by the bank caving in.

—Alvin Buley, a farmer, aged about thirty-five, residing five miles north of Vincennes, was instantly killed by a runaway team recently. He was unmarried and an excellent citizen.

—James Echoline, while painting the tower of an engine-house at Peru, fell off a ladder, striking on the roof, falling thence to the ground, receiving injuries which are probably fatal.

—Jennie S. Allen, a descendant of Ethan Allen, has been engaged by Prof. Howe to take charge of the voice-culture department of the school of music at DePauw University.

—Thomas Lewis, while engaged in blowing up stumps with dynamite, on the farm of Mr. Zergeble, near Mount Vernon, was seriously injured by a premature explosion.

—Robert S. Mitchell was crushed to death beneath a box-car in process of repair in the Pap Handle shops at Indianapolis.

—Aaron Lyons, a young man employed at the North Marion Glass Works, fell recently, and received probably fatal injuries.

—An attempt was made to burn the bridge over the culvert on the Wabash Railway near Lafayette.

MONEY

TO

LOAN

On Farm Property

IN SUMS OVER $200.

Interest only once a year. We charge no commission. You can pay any part or all of the loan at any time. You can keep the money as long as you please if the interest is promptly paid. For further particulars call on or address

W. C. Patterson,
ST. JOE, IND.

Ho for Arkansas!

Cheap Homes for Everybody!

In a high, healthy, rich land country. On the 15th of September and the 1st of October there will be excursions from this place to that point at a very low rate of fare. For full information in regard to these excursions call on A. B. Coburn, Real Estate Agent, St. Joe, Ind. Office with Dr. Sheffer, one door east of Drugstore.

GO to the News Office, St. Joe for all kinds of Printing. All work done promptly, and at the lowest prices. Give us a call.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencerville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining, Glazing Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcox. Call and see me, or leave orders at the St. Joe Drugstore.

THE QUEENS OF HOME.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Preaches at the Hamptons.

Woman Has the Special Right to Comfort the Sick, to Care for the Poor and to Solert Charities. Husbands Should Consider Their Troubles to Their Wives.

THE HAMPTONS, Sept. 4.—The Rev. Dr.
T. De Witt Talmage's text to-day was from Solomon's Song, vi, 8: "There are three-score queens." Following is the sermon in full:

So Solomon, by one stroke, set forth the imperial character of a true Christian woman.
She is not a slave, not a hireling, not a subordinate, but a queen; and in my text Solomon sees sixty of these helping to make up the royal pageant of Jesus. In a former sermon I showed you that crown and courtly attendants, and imperial wardrobe were not necessary to make a queen;
but that graces of the heart and life will give coronation to any woman. I showed you at some length that woman's position was higher in the world than man's, and that although she had often been denied the right of suffrage, she always did vote and always would vote by her influence; and that her chief desire ought to be that she should have grace rightly to rule in the dominion which she has already won. I began an enumeration of some of her rights, and this morning resume the subject.

In the first place, woman has a special and superlative right—not again going back to what I have already said—woman has the special and superlative right of blessing and comforting the sick.

What lan I, what street, what house has not felt the smitings of disease? Tens of thousands of sick be! What shall we do with them? Shall man, with his rough hand and clumsy feet go stumping around the sick room trying to soothe the distracted nerves, and alleviate the pains of the tossing patient? The young man at college may scoff at the idea of being under material influences; but at the first blast of the typhoid fever on his cheek, he says: "Where is mother?" Walter Scott wrote partly in satire and partly in compliment when he said:

O woman, in hours of ease,
Uncertain, coy, and hard to please,
When pain and anguish wring the brow,
A ministering angel thou.

I think the most pathetic passage of all the Bible is the description of the lad who went out to the harvest field of Shunem and got sunstruck—throwing his hands on his temples and crying out: "Oh, my head!
my head!" and they said: "Carry him to his mother." And then the record is: "He sat on her knees till noon, and then died."
It is an awful thing to be ill away from home in a strange hotel, once in awhile men coming in to look at you, holding their hand over their mouth for fear they will catch the contagion. How roughly they turn you in bed. How loudly they talk.
How you long for the ministries of home.
I knew one such who went away from one of the brightest of homes, for several weeks' business absence at the west. A telegram came at midnight that he was on his death bed, far away from home. By express train the wife and daughters went westward, but they went too late. He feared not to die, but he was in agony to live until his family got there. He tried to bribe the doctor to make him live a little while longer. He said: "I am willing to die, but not alone." But the pulses fluttered, the eyes closed and the heart stopped. The express trains met in the midnight; wife and daughters going westward—lifeless remains of husband and father coming eastward. Oh, it was a sad, pitiful, overwhelming spectacle! When we are sick we want to be sick at home; when the time comes for us to die we want to die at home.
The room may be very humble, and the faces that look into ours may be very plain; but who cares for that? Loving hands to bathe the temples. Loving voices to speak good cheer. Loving lips to read the comforting promises of Jesus. In our last dreadful war, men cast the cannon; men fashioned the musketry; men cried to the hosts: "Forward, march!" men hurled their battalions on the sharp edges of the enemy, crying, "Charge! charge!" but woman scruped the lint; woman administered the cordials; woman watched by the dying couch; woman wrote the last message to the home circle; woman wept at the solitary burial attended by herself and four men and a spade. We greeted the General home with brass bands, and triumphal arches, and wild huzzas; but the story is too good to be written anywhere, save in the chronicles of Heaven, of Mrs. Brady, who came down among the sick in the swamps of the Chickahominy; of Margaret Breckinridge, who came to men who had been for weeks with their wounds un-dressed—some of them frozen to the ground, and when she turned them over those that had an arm left waved it and filled the air with their "hurrah!" of Mrs.
Hodge, who came from Chicago with blankets and with pillows, until the men shouted: "Three cheers for the Christian commission!" God bless the women at home!" then sitting down to take the last message: "Tell my wife not to fret about me, but to meet me in Heaven; tell her to train up the boys whom we have loved so well; tell her we shall meet again in the good land; tell her to bear my love like the Christian wife of a Christian soldier;" and of Mrs. T. Holt, who, when she saw the convalescent soldier looked and said: "Your grapes and eolone cure me." Men did their work with shot and shell and carbinand howitzer; women did their work with socks and slippers and bandages and warm drinks and Scripture texts and gentle stroking of the hot temples and stories of that land where they never have any pain.

Men knelt down over the wounded and said: "On which side did you fight?"
Women knelt down over the wounded and said: "Where are you hurt? What nice thing can I make for you to eat? What makes you cry?" To-night, while we men are sound asleep in our beds, there will be a light in yonder loft; there will be cries of distress in that cellar. Men will sleep, and women will watch.

Again, woman has a superlative right to take care of the poor. There are hundreds and thousands of them all over the land.
There is a kind of work that men cannot do for the poor. Here comes a group of very little bare foot children to the door of the Pious Society. They need to be clothed and provided for. Which of these directors of banks would know how many yards it would take to make that little girl a dress? Which of these masculine hands could fit a list to that little girl's head?
Which of the wise men would know how to tie that new pair of shoes? Man sometimes gives his charity in a rough way and it falls like the fruit of a tree in the east, which fruit comes down so heavily that it breaks the skull of the man who is trying to gather it. But woman glides so softly into the house of destitution, and finds for all the sorrows of the place, and puts so quietly the donation on the table, that all the family come out on the front steps as she departs, expecting that from under her shawl she will thrust out two wings and fly right up toward Heaven, from whence she seems to have come down. (Christian young woman) if you would make yourself happy and win the blessing of Christ, go out among the destitute. A loaf of bread or a bundle of socks may make a home-load to carry, but the angels of God will come out to watch, and the Lord Almighty will give his messenger hosts a charge, saying: "Look after that woman. Canopy her with your wings and shelter her from all harm;" and while you are seated in the house of destitution and suffering, the little ones around the room will whisper:
"Who is she? Ain't she beautiful?" and if you will listen right sharply you will hear dripping down through the leaky roof and rolling over the rotten stairs, the angel chant that shook Bethlehem. "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men." Can you tell me why a Christian woman, going down among the haunts of iniquity on a Christian errand, never meets with any iniquity? I stood in the chapel of Helen Chalmers, the daughter of the celebrated Dr. Chalmers, of the most abandoned part of the city of Edinburgh; and I said to her as I looked around upon the fearful surroundings of that place: "Do you come here nights to hold a service?" "Oh, yes," she said. "Can it be possible that you never meet with an insult while performing this Christian errand?" "Never," she said, "never."
That young woman who has her father by her side walking down the street, an armed police at each corner, is not so well defended as that Christian woman who goes forth on Gospel work into the haunts of iniquity, carrying the Bibles and bread.
God, with the red right arm of his wrath omnipotent, would tear to pieces any one who should offer indignity. He would smite him with lightnings and drown him with floods, and swallow him with earthquakes, and damn him with eternal in-dignations. Some one said: "I dislike very much to see that Christian woman teaching those bad boys in the mission school."
I am afraid to have her instruct them.
"So," said another man, "I am afraid, too."
Said the first: "I am afraid they will use vile language before they leave the place."
"Ah," said the other man, "I am not afraid of that. What I am afraid of is, that if any of those boys should use a bad word in that presence the other boys would tear him to pieces, and kill him on the spot." That woman is the best sheltered who is sheltered by the Lord God Almighty, and you need never fear going anywhere where God tells you to go.

It seems as if the Lord had ordained woman for an especial work in the solicitation of charities. Backed up by barrels in which there is no flour, and by stoves in which there is no fire, and by wardrobes in which there are no clothes, a woman is irresistible; passing on her errand God says to her: "You go into that bank, or store, or shop, and get the money." She goes in and gets it. The man is hard-fisted, but she gets it. She could not help but get it. It is decreed from eternity she should get it. No need of your turning your back and pretending you don't hear; you do hear. There is no need of your saying you are begged to death. There is no need of your wasting your time, and you might as well submit first as last. You had better right away take your check book, mark the number of the check, fill up the blank, sign your name, and hand it to her. There is no need of wasting time. Those poor children on the back street have been hungry long enough. That sick man must have some farina. That consumptive must have something to ease his cough. I meet this destitute of a relief society coming out of the store of such a hard-fisted man, and I say: "Did you get the money?" "Of course," she says, "I got the money; that's what I went for." The Lord told me to go in and get it, and He never sends me on a fool's errand.

Again: I have to tell you that it is a woman's specific right to comfort under the stress of dire disaster. She is called the weaker vessel; but all prophane as well as sacred history attests that when the crisis comes she is better prepared than man to meet the emergency. How often you have seen a woman who seemed to be a disciple of frivolity and indolence, who, under one stroke of calamity, changed to a heroine. Oh, what a great mistake those business men make who never tell their business troubles to their wives! There comes some great loss to their store, or some of their companions in business play them a sad trick, and they carry the burden all alone. He is asked in the household again and again: What is the matter? but he believes it a sort of Christian duty to keep all that trouble within his own soul. Oh, your first duty was to tell your wife all about it. She, perhaps, might not have disentangled your finances, or extended your credit, but she would have helped you to bear your misfortune. You have no right to carry on one shoulder that which is intended for two. There are business men here who know what I mean.
There came a crisis in your affairs. You struggled bravely and long, but after a while there came a day when you said:
"Here I shall have to stop," and you called in your partners, and you called in the most prominent men in your employ, and you said: "We have got to stop."
You left the store suddenly. You could hardly make up your mind to pass through the street and over on the ferry boat. You felt everybody would be looking at you,
and blaming you, and denouncing you.
You hastened home. You told your wife all about the affair. What did she say?
Did she play the butterfly? Did she talk about the silks, and the ribbons, and the fashions? No. She came up to the emergency. She quailed not under the stroke. She helped you to begin to plan right away. She offered to go out of the comfortable house into a smaller one, and wear the old cloak another winter. She was one who understood your affairs without blaming you. You looked upon what you thought was a Chin, weak woman's arm holding you up; but while you looked at that arm there came into the feeble muscles of it the strength of the eternal God. No chiding. No fretting.
No telling you about the beautiful house of her father, from which you brought her, ten, twenty, or thirty years ago. You said: "Well, this is the happiest day of my life. I am glad I have got from under my burden. My wife don't care—I don't care." At the moment you were utterly exhausted God sent Deborah to meet the host of the Amalekites and scatter them like chaff over the plain. There are sometimes women who sit reading sentimental novels, and who wish that they had some grand field in which to display their Christian powers. O, what grand and glorious things they could do if they only had an opportunity! My sister, you need not wait for any such time. A crisis will come in your affairs. There will be a Thermopylae in your own household where God will tell you to stand. There are scores and hundreds of households to-day where as much bravery and courage are demanded of women as was exhibited by Grace Darling, or Marie Antoinette, or Joan of Arc.

Again: I remark, it is a woman's right to bring to us the kingdom of Heaven. It is easier for a woman to be a Christian than for a man. Why? You say she is weaker. No. Her heart is more responsive to the pleadings of divine love. She is in vast majority. The fact that she can more easily become a Christian, I prove by the statement that three-fourths of the members of the churches in all Christendom are women. So God appoints them to be the chief agencies for bringing this world back to God. I may stand here and say the soul is immortal. There is a man who will refute it. I may stand here and say we are lost, and undone without Christ.
There is a man who will refute it. I may stand here and say there will be a judgment day after a while. Yonder is some one who will refute it. But a Christian woman in a Christian household, living in the faith and the consistency of Christ's Gospel—nobody can refute that. The greatest sermons are not preached on celebrated platforms; they are preached with an audience of two or three, and in private home life. A consistent, consecrated Christian service is an unanswerable demonstration of God's truth. A sailor came shipping down the ratline one night, as though something had happened, and the sailors cried: "What's the matter?" He said:
"My mother's prayer haunts me like a ghost." Home influences, consecrated, Christian home influences, are the mightiest of all influences upon the soul. There are men here to-day who have maintained their integrity, not because they were any better naturally than some other people, but because there were home influences praying for them all the time. They got a good start. They were launched on the world with the benedictions of a Christian mother. They may track Siberian snows, they may plunge in African jungles, they may fly to the earth's end—they cannot go so far and so fast but the prayers will keep up with them.

I stand before women to-day who have the eternal salvation of their husbands in their right hand. On the marriage day you took an oath before men and angels that you would be faithful and kind until death did you part, and I believe you are going to keep that oath; but after that parting at the door of the grave will it be an eternal separation? Is there any such thing as an immortal marriage, making the flowers that grow on the top of the sepulcher brighter than the garlands which at the marriage banquet flooded the air with aroma? Yes; I stand here as a priest of the most high God, to proclaim the blessing of immortal union for all those who join hands in the grace of Christ. Oh, woman, is your husband, your father, your son away from God? The Lord demands their redemption at our hands. There are prayers for you to offer, there are exhortations for you to give, there are examples for you to set, and I say now, as Paul said to the Corinthian woman:
"What knowest thou, O woman, but thou canst save thy husband?"

Lastly: I wish to say that one of the specific rights of woman is, through the grace of Christ, finally to reach Heaven.
O, what a multitude of women in Heaven!
Mary, Christ's mother in Heaven; Elizabeth Fry in Heaven; Charlotte Elizabeth Fry in Heaven; the mother of Augustine in Heaven; the Countess of Huntingdon who sold her splendid jewels to fund charity in Heaven; while a great many others who have never been heard of on earth, or known of little, have gone into the great assembly of Heaven. What most? What? It was from the small room, with no fire and one window, the glass broken out, and the aching side, and worn out eyes, to the "house of many mansions." No more stitching until 12 o'clock at night, no more thrusting of the thumb by the employer through the work to show it was not done quite right. Plenty of bread at last. Heaven for aching heads. Heaven for broken hearts. Heaven for anguish-bitten frames. No more sitting up until midnight for the coming of staggering steps. No more rough blows across the temples. No more sharp, keen, bitter curses. Some of you will have no rest in this world. It will be toil, and struggle, and suffering, all the way up. You will have to stand at your door fighting back the wolf with your own hand, red with carnage. But God has a crown for you.
I want to realize this morning that He is now making it, and whenever you weep a tear He sets another gem in that crown;
whenever you have a pang of body or soul
He puts another gem in that crown, until, after a while, in all the time there will be no room for another splendor, and God will say to His angel: "The crown is done; let her up that she may wear it." And as the Lord of Righteousness puts the crown upon your brow, angel will cry to angel:
"Who is she?" and Christ will say: "I will tell you who she is. She is the one that came up out of great tribulation, and had her robe washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb." And then God will spread a banquet, and He will invite all the principalities of Heaven to sit at the feast; and the tables will blush with the best clusters from the vineyards of God, and crimson with the twelve manner of fruits from the Tree of Life; and waters from the fountains of the rock will flash from the golden tankards; and the old harpers of Heaven will sit there, making music with their harps; and Christ will point you out, amid the celebrities of Heaven, saying: "She suffered with me on earth, now we are going to be glorified together." And the banqueters, no longer able to hold their peace, will break forth with congratulation:
"Hail! hail!" And there will be handwritings on the wall—not such as struck the Persian nobleman with horror—but fire-tipped fingers, writing in blazing capitals of light, and love, and victory: "God hath wiped away all tears from all faces!"

Not Much of a Game.

"Things seem kinder quiet 'round here to-night," remarked a Western citizen, as he stepped into a Third Avenue saloon.

"Yes, sir," replied the bartender, instinctively reaching for the black bottle.
"The boys were having a little game of poker, but it got to be bedtime and they all quit."

"Stopped playing poker just to go to bed!" said the Western man with disdain; "it must have been a mighty poor game."—Drake's Magazine.

THE Queen is very much afraid that she shall be blown up during her jubilee, but Buffalo Williamj assures her that there is no danger.

"Why do you think so?" the Queen asked.

"Because," replied Williamj, bowing with wild Western grace, "the dynam-iters are afraid that they might hurt me."

ROMANCE OF A CONFEDERATE FLAG.

Its Owner Led Captive Through a Plucky Union Girl.

[American (Ga.) Republican.]

I was a regular rebel soldier, in the Confederate army over four years, enjoyed its triumphs, took my part of its defeats to heart as much as any one, starved, suffered, bled, froze, and melted in winter and summer under the glorious cross of the South, with a heart as full of devotion as a child could have for a mother or a devoted to his true and beneficent God.

When I first started out from the lovely town in an adjoining State, a lovely daughter of the city gave me a Confederate flag, made of silk, with the bars and starry decorated cross, shining and gleaming with gold and silver threads. It was a pretty thing and I carried it hid in an inside pocket, for it was not larger than a gentleman's handkerchief. I carried it wherever I went, for I had promised to plant it on the Washington Monument if I ever got there.

While Lee's army was encamped near Chambersburg, Pa., one June afternoon I strolled out with Felix C., and about four miles from camp found a cosy retreat in a cottage inhabited by an elderly lady and a beautiful girl of about 18 years. We got a good dinner and heard the ladies deplore the war, for they had relatives South with whom they spent the summer every year until the war broke out. Now this pleasure was debarred. While they were talking I went to a cool shade and soon fell asleep, and then Felix, forgetting my presence, left me. About two hours after I was awakened by the young girl and some one talking, and found that a wounded federal officer was her companion. They did not know of my presence, and when they ran upon me I was awake and pretty much alive; but as the officer remarked, "He was not in service on account of a wound received at Cedar Run, and we could exchange civilities." We had a pretty good talk and milk and bread where we were. During the talk I exposed the flag, which was snatched by the girl, who exclaimed exultingly, "I have captured a rebel flag and intend to keep it." I begged for it, but she wilfully shook her head. I told her it was a present from a dear friend named Mattie, and that she should not have it. Then she said: "Well, Rebel, sir! My name is Mattie, a good Union girl. I have my hands on the emblem of treason, a traitor's flag; and I'll keep it or die!" and her eyes flashed with fire. "I wish I were a man," she said, "that I too might fight." I tried to snatch the flag, but she was too quick, and the officer said prettily, "Here, Sergeant, bring your men quick!" and it seemed as if I were surrounded by four or five men in blue uniforms before I could turn around. The girl said, "Well, Lieutenant, you can keep your prisoner in the cellar until you and your men have tea," and led the way. Soon I was locked up alone in a cellar, wherein there was no security, and the girl laughed as she waved the flag at me. I knew that I had to get out before supper was over and, as I pondered over my position, a fear began to creep over me that I was to suffer a long confinement in a Yankee prison. After an hour or two an inner door opened and Miss Mattie, who had stolen my flag, stood before me, candle in hand, saying: "I guess, Mr. Rebel, that you and I can come to terms. You have no arms and I can trust you. I'll keep your flag, and for my love of friends in the South you shall go free. Cousin Robert and his men are eating."

I went through the house, found their arms, and taking off the caps, wet the tubes thoroughly, stole a pistol that belonged to the officer and started for the door while the young lady was entertaining the soldiers. I ran thirty or forty steps before they discovered my absence, when with a yell they broke for their arms. You can bet there was no shooting. In my race toward camp two guards halted me, but as they were some distance off, I replied, "I don't understand," and kept running. The Dutchmen joined the pursuers, but a detachment of Lomax's cavalry approached and they ran the other way. I have no desire for the return of that flag now, for it has been South several times since the war, and will come again and again.

A girl in one of the public schools applied to her teacher for leave to be absent half a day, on the plea that they had company at home. The teacher referred her to the printed list of reasons that the school committee think sufficient to justify absence, and asked her if her case came under any of them. She naively replied that it might come under the head of "domestic affliction."

A Nervous Woman.

A nervous woman, on board a railroad train in Missouri, called the conductor and said:

"I would like so much to take a sleeper, for I've been up three nights, hand runnin', but I am afeard."

"What are you afraid of, madam?"

"W'y, I'm afeard that the train wout run off the track."

"But will your staying awake keep it on the track?"

"Wall, do you know I hadn't thought of that? W'y, my settin' up here with my eyes open kain't have the slightest effect upon the train, can it?"

"None that I can see."

"Then if you was in my place you'd go in the sleeper an' git a good night's rest?"

"I certainly should."

"Well, I will; but whenever you think there's any danger of the train runnin' off, w'y, I wish you'd have me called."

She went into the sleeper. About three hours later, while the conductor was passing through the train, he found the woman sitting on the seat which she had occupied during the day.

"Why, madam, I thought you had taken a sleeper."

"I did," she replied, "but the fetch-taken train kep' a threatenin' an' a threatenin' to run off the track till I thought the safest plan would be fur me to git right out an' set here where I ken watch everything, but do you know that when I got up that fetch-taken nigger in there had tuck my shoes and sloped off with 'em? Well, he had done that very thing, an' I had the hardest sort of work gittin' 'em back again, fur the cussed rascal had put a little dab of blackin' on 'em an' wanted to charge me 10 cents. I paid the conductor $2 for the shelf—or berth, as he calls it, but I reckon he'll give it back to me in the mornin'."

"He won't give it back."

"He won't?"

"No."

"Not if I tell him I am a pore widdier?"

"That won't make any difference."

"Wall, I'm bouncin' up, 'I'll jest go back there an' lay there waitin' fur the train to run off, fur I'll be bound if I'm goin' to be beat out of my money that-er-way. Whenever the train starts to run off you must call me, an' if you hear a awful rumpus in there you may know that the cussed nigger is arter my shoes again, an' that I am defendin' my right."—Arkansaw Traveler.

Musical Mexican Bells.

In the large tower hangs the monster bell, which is rarely sounded, but there are many others of moderate size which are continually chiming. All these bells, and indeed nearly all the bells in the republic, are remarkable for sweetness and softness of tone. It is very rarely that one hears a harsh bell. They are exceedingly melodious and pleasing. It is sometimes explained that this is due to the mixture of silver in the bell-metal, and that the new bells are cast from old metal. I believe that the chief reason why the Mexican bells are so much more musical than ours is that the Mexican bells are artistically made, shaped with reference to tone, thin at the edge, each one a work of art intelligently manipulated, not mechanically cast without reference to the sound it shall produce. The great bells are struck with a clapper, and not swung. There would be much less objection to the use of church bells in the United States—the harsh and barbarous jangle which shocks the Sunday stillness—if our bells had any of the musical quality of the Mexican.—Charles Dudley Warner, in Harper's Magazine.

Scientific Prizes.

The Prussian Society for the Promotion of Industry has offered two prizes, the competition for one to close with 1887, and for the other with 1888. The first prize is about $750 for the most exhaustive critical comparison of all kinds of existing bronze, tombac, and brass alloys used or recommended for machinery; the second is $1,250 for the best work on light and heat radiation of burning gases.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

IT IS A PURELY VEGETABLE PREPARATION CONTAINING PRICKLY ASH BARK AND PRICKLY ASH BERRIES.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

SENNA-MANDRAKE-BUCHU AND OTHER EQUALLY EFFICIENT REMEDIES.

It has stood the Test of Years, in Curing all Diseases of the BLOOD, LIVER, STOMACH, KIDNEYS, BOWELS, &c. It Purifies the Blood, Invigorates and Cleanses the System.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

CURES ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER, KIDNEYS, STOMACH AND BOWELS.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

PRICE 1 DOLLAR.

It is purely a Medicine as its cathartic properties forbid its use as a beverage. It is pleasant to the taste, and as easily taken by children as adults.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CO.
Sole Proprietors,
St. Louis and Kansas City.

INVENTORS having delayed, rejected, abandoned or forfeited applications in the U.S. Patent Office, or wishing to file new applications, will receive valuable advice and assistance by communicating with CONSOLIDATED PATENT ATTORNEYS, Washington, D.C.

OFFICE ESTABLISHED IN 1870. Every branch of the Patent Law and soliciting business thoroughly understood and skillfully conducted.

PATENTS R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D.C. Last actions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 27 17 years' experience.

MARVELOUS MEMORY

DISCOVERY. Wholly unlike artificial systems. Any book learned in one reading. Recommended by Mark Twain, Richard Proctor, the Scientist, Hon. W. W. Astor, Judah P. Benjamin, Dr. Minor, etc. Class of 121 Columbia law students, two classes at each at Yale, 30 University of Penn., 300 at Wesleyan College, etc. Prospectus just free. PROF. ROSETTE, 237 Fifth Ave., New York.

BIRDSELL CLOVER HULLER

THE NEW! DOES ITS WORK FASTER AND BETTER THAN ANY OTHER.

OUR NEW RE-CLEANER CLEANS THE SEED MARKET CHALLENGE.

BIRDSELL MFG CO. SOUTH BEND, INDY.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE.

Best in the World. Get the genuine. Every package has our Trade-mark and is marked Frazer's. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

LOOK NEVER SUCH A BARGAIN BEFORE $11 COLT REPEATING RIFLE

New from Factory. We stake our reputation of 47 years on this rifle, and 13 shot guarantee it the biggest offer ever made. Send 6c. in stamps for illustrated 100-page descriptive Catalogue, Guns, Rifles, Revolvers, Fishing Tackle, Bowlers, Sporting Goods, etc. JOHN P. FOWLER ARMS CO., Boston, Mass.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Taste good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RY

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest—is the only true middle-link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Iowa; Des Moines, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie, Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unequalled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

ALL EXPRESS TRAINS between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE PARLOR of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE PARLOR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown.

A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kankakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.

All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employes of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly attention.

For Tickets, Maps, Folders—obtainable at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada—or any desired information, address,

R. R. CABLE, Pres't & Gen'l M'gr, Chicago. E. ST. JOHN, Asst Gen'l M'gr, Chicago. E. A. HOLBROOK, Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Agt., Chicago.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND SLICKER

The Best Waterproof Coat.

The FISH BRAND SLICKER is warranted waterproof, and will keep you dry in the hardest storm. The new FISH BRAND SLICKER is a perfect thing, and covers the entire saddle. Beware of imitations. See genuine with the "Fish Brand" trade-mark. Illustrated Catalogue free. A. J. Tower, Boston, Mass.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One Year, in advance	$0.75
Six Months	50
Three Months	25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe as second-class matter.

FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 9, 1887.

The Normal school will close next week.

You will always find a good line of Men's Shoes at Case & Olds.

The Fort Wayne Fair takes place from the 27th to 30th of Sept.

Misses Georgia Van Fleit and Josie Smith began teaching in the Garrett schools, this week.

The Methodist people made about twenty dollars out of the stands at the picnic last Saturday.

"Mamma," said a little boy when the district school was out, "run the line comb through my hair and turn the rascals out."

W. T. Bishop and wife spent last Sunday at Van Wert, Ohio, visiting his brothers. He reports his brother Will, who has been very sick with typhoid fever, as being some better when he left.

We understand that W. I. McKee, the agent at this place, thinks of leaving. He has been offered a position at Hologate, Ohio, and as that is his home, he will probably accept it. He is a good agent and a gentleman, and our people will be sorry to lose him.

Monday, Wash Woodcox's family had their goods nearly all packed, and were loading them on wagons to take them to Butler to ship over the Wabash road. They also had their tickets bought and paid for. In fact they were already to go, when a telegram from Wash was received, telling them not to come, but to rent a house and to move into it, and not to make any further arrangements until they heard from him.

People must like to come to St. Joe, for we never have any thing in the way of a picnic, festival or old settler's meeting, but what we have a big crowd and a good time. The picnic at this place last Saturday was no exception to this rule, as it was estimated that there were between three and four thousand persons on the ground. There were eleven Sunday schools present, besides a great many others from all parts of this and adjoining counties. The program, consisting of speaking, and singing by the different schools was quite interesting, and considering the large crowd, was attentively listened to. One of the most enjoyable features of the occasion, and one in which everybody took an active part, was the dinner exercise. No sooner had the large audience been dismissed, when there was a general scramble for dinner baskets, and in about twenty minutes, all that was left to tell the story of well-filled lunch baskets, was a pile of closely knawed chicken bones and a few empty plates. But that is the best part of a picnic; is to have an abundance of good things to eat, and a long intermission of two or three hours at noon, in which to shake hands with your friends, talk over old times, ask about the crops, hug the girls, kiss the babies and have a general good time. The picnic was a success in every way.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

NEWVILLE.

The people who attended the institute report a pleasant time.

Mr. Dean and wife, and Miss Lucy Brownmiller are visiting friends in Marshall county.

Gustin Flint has moved his family back to Hicksville, where they will make their future home.

We wonder what has become of the three M's? We have not heard from them for some time.

Miss Laura McDonald of Walkerton, is making a short visit with her parents and friends at this place.

The funeral services of Joel Davis was held in the U. B. church, Saturday, Sept. 3rd, Rev. Thomas, officiating.

The Band of Hope, which meets at the Disciple church every two weeks is growing in attendance and interest.

The Brethren Sunday school attended the picnic at St. Joe, Saturday, and all come home feeling it was good to be there.

CONCORD.

Mrs. Emma Welsh entertained visitors last Tuesday.

Mrs. M. E. Baker was the guest of Mrs. Jane Hull last Tuesday.

John Baker and wife are the happy parents of a son of usual weight.

Green Brown and wife spent the Sabbath with Jake Baker's family.

Miss Artie Morr, of Auburn Junction, has been visiting among relatives for the past week.

Orange Herrick and wife visited her father and family in Jackson township last Sunday.

Frank Herrick was called to Maysville last Wednesday to attend the funeral of his step-mother.

Joseph Koch threshed forty-three bushels of clover seed from a fifteen acre field one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Darling, of Perrysville, Ohio, father and mother of Marion Darling, are visiting relatives here this week.

Mrs. James Smith's condition remains about the same. The attending physician pronounces her disease typhoid malaria.

As Stella Hay was going to Auburn one day last week, she fell out of the wagon on her head and shoulders, and was otherwise hurt quite badly. She is some better at present.

PIGEON'S RETREAT.

Mrs. Israel Horn is on the sick list.

Ben Wasson's cider mill has been in full blast for a couple of weeks.

If Nettie Kline attends school this winter she is apt to gain a reward of Merit.

Misses Laura and Alda Shutt started for Valparaiso, last Friday to attend school.

Nearly all the pigeons from this retreat attended the St. Joe picnic last Saturday.

Among the interesting things seen at the picnic was Bert Hull of Pleasant Hill, with two large (S)warts on his hands.

We hoped to chronicle a wedding this week, but that obliging editor of ours stepped in ahead of us and published the happy event last week.

Sol Shilling attended the drive well meeting at Auburn, last Saturday. His son, "Bub," wonders why there can't be a meeting called in regard to the Bohemian oats swindle. Guess "Bub" got bit.

This neighborhood has its gossips as well as any other, but they have one redeeming point; viz: they go a distance from home to tell their tales of scandal. We call that generosity, for the hapless victim of their tongues

JUST RECEIVED THIS WEEK AT

LEIGHTY'S

Nearly 5000 Yards of Best Prints,

WHICH WILL BE SOLD AT

5 CENTS PER YARD.

ALSO A LARGE STOCK OF OTHER GOODS, CHEAP
CALL AND SEE THEM.

don't hear the hurtful remarks about themselves for about a month or so afterwards. Girls did the shoe about those left-hand compliments fit too quick for comfort?

SPENCERVILLE.

Becks Erick went to Toledo Tuesday.

Miss Mabel Murray is attending school at Leo.

G. A. Bishop was at Auburn the first of the week.

Jake Baltz St. and wife were at Fort Wayne Thursday.

Mrs. Dr. Houghton, of Hantertown, is visiting friends in town this week.

Claudia Prossnes has been visiting in the country during the past week.

Willis Carey started to Valparaiso Thursday, where he expects to attend school.

E. J. Coder, wife and daughter, of Auburn, were the guests of his parents Sunday.

Miss Mary Carnes left for Ohio last Thursday to visit among relatives and friends.

Mrs. W. B. McClaran left for Sturgis, Mich., last Monday, where her husband is at present located.

John Zimmerman came down from Auburn last Saturday evening, on a bicycle and returned Sunday.

Ben Zimmerman, the photographer went to Rockford, Mich., last Tuesday to be gone a couple of weeks. The gallery will be closed during his absence.

We noticed in the last issue of the News that the editor says the show didn't stop at Spencerville, it only took in the larger towns. We suppose he means cities like Leo, St. Joe and Newville; but we would inform him that our town isn't so small as he thinks it is, and besides the showmen know by the appearance of our quiet and pleasant place that its people are above attending such a one-horse circus, and consequently moved on to St. Joe, where the people think more of a ten-cent circus than they do of home enterprises.

I am an American, and keep the genuine American Tin Plates the best in the market. Roofing, Spouting, and Guttering a specialty. A full line of Cartridges, Shot, Powder, Cutlery &c., at J. A. Conrad's, St. Joe, Ind. Give me a call when needing any thing in my line. All work fully warranted and prices the very lowest.

TRUTH IS MIGHTY, AND WILL PREVAIL.

LOOK THIS WAY!

I keep on hand a fine line of Furniture, which I will sell for the next 60 days at prices that defy competition. Glass Cupboards $8.50. Double Cane Seat and Back Rockers $2. Dressing Case, with French Plate Glass $12.00. Carpet Lounges $4.50. Solid Comfort Beds for $2.25. Undertaking a specialty.

August Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.

A Disastrous Flood!

Heavy damages done by the over-throw of High Prices, and we will continue same. Good Brown Sugar 5 and 6 cts. Granulated 7 cts. Rosin 5 cts. Alum 5 cts. Salts 5 cts. Bird Seed 8 cts. Salt Peter 12 1/2 cts. Prunes 6 1/2 cts. Good Gingham 6 cts. Dress Goods at your own price. Grain Sacks 18 cts. All goods as cheap as the cheapest. Highest market price paid for Wheat, Oats and Seeds.

S. & F. Barney

Watch and Clock

REPAIRING DONE.

and all work warranted satisfactory.
by C. A. Patterson, at the

ST. JOE

DRUGSTORE.

where will be found at all times a full line of

JEWELRY, CLOCKS, WATCHES.

GENERAL DRUGS.

MEDICINES, PAINTERS' SUPPLIES,
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, &c. SCHOOL BOOKS AND SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles and was cured of Rheumatism of 10 years standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Bellville, O., affirms: "The best selling medicines, I have ever handled in my 20 years experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store.

Sorghum Making.

I am now prepared to make Sorghum molasses at my residence east of St. Joe. I have a new process for clearing, which enables me to make better molasses than ever before. Give me a call. Prices reasonable and satisfaction guaranteed.

Howard Northup.

LOCALS.

There are no houses to rent in St. Joe.

The storm Tuesday night done considerable damage.

Considerable clover seed has been marketed here this week.

Will Curie shipped a car load of hogs to Chicago Tuesday.

We have added eighteen new subscribers to our list since last week.

Case & Olds will receive some of the latest fall styles of Men's Hats, this week.

St. Joe always pays the highest market price for all kinds of grain and seeds.

At the drive well meeting held at Auburn last Saturday, a committee was appointed to go to Indianapolis, and if possible, effect some kind of a compromise with the parties. J. D. Leighty is one of that committee.

The lecture delivered at the Methodist church on Wednesday evening, by Rev. J. A. Thomas, was not only very interesting but highly instructive. The collection taken up at the close of the lecture, was kindly donated to the W. C. T. U.

We couldn't imagine what made the wind blow so furious hard on Tuesday night, but when Frank Barney came over to the store the next morning and announced that he was the father of an eight pound baby, the matter was easily explained. Its a boy, and they say that Frank got so excited over it that he offered a man forty dollars a bushel for clover seed.

Miss Addie Widney will teach the Sodom school, this winter.

If you think of going west, call on A. B. Coburn at Dr. Shaffer's office.

There were 160 teachers in attendance at the county institute at Butler, last week.

Charley Jenkins sends the News to his brother Stephen A. Jenkins of Jacobsville, Md.

The best line of fall clothing ever shown in St. Joe, just received this week, at Case & Olds.

One of Windland's thrashing engines went through a bridge near Russ Coburn's one day last week. Nobody hurt.

A pair of spectacles and case was found near the hotel one day last week. The owner can have same by calling at this office.

Married, at the M. C. parsonage, St. Joe, on Saturday, Sept. 21st, Mr. Henry A. Porter of Allen Co., to Miss Maggie M. Wyatt of De Kalb county.

Fred Johnson left a stalk of corn at this office last week, that just lacked two inches of being twelve feet high. Ad Chubb was to bring one in that would beat it, but he hasn't done it yet. Come Adam, put up or shut up.

A correspondent in writing to one of the county papers last week says: "It's time to sow wheat now. Such information is very valuable, as there are a great many farmers who probably didn't know it, until they saw that item."

Some half-starved galoots, without the least speck of principle, stole some of the cabbages out of the wagons at the picnic last Saturday. Had they been caught in the act, it is quite likely that they wouldn't have been able to set down with any degree of comfort for several days.

The circus took about forty dollars out of the town last week. If some person had undertaken to raise money for the benefit and improvement of the town or for some benevolent purpose, they probably couldn't have scraped up one sixteenth part of that amount. But that's the way of the world.

We noticed the following item in one of our exchanges last week, and we wondered whether any of the people who are constantly finding fault with prices and grumbling at what they call "hard times," had ever stopped to think of it. "Sixty years ago a bushel of wheat would buy only two yards of calico; now it will buy fifteen or twenty. Then a bushel of corn would buy only a pound of nails; now it will buy ten. Then it took a good cow to buy a pair of factory blankets; now a common cow will pay for six pairs fully as good. Think of these things when disposed to talk up the good old times of long ago."

Last Thursday evening, Charley Koch, accompanied by two young ladies, was driving Florence Buchanan's horse and buggy down Main St., and as he attempted to drive around another team, the horse got frightened in some way, and became unmanageable, and in turning the corner near August Kinsey's residence, the buggy was up-set, and all three occupants were thrown out. The horse continued on, down the street at a rapid rate, and finally ran into the hitching posts in front of the Methodist church, breaking the buggy up badly, and seriously, if not fatally injuring the horse. Fortunately, those who were thrown from the buggy escaped with only a few sprains and bruises. The horse was a fine young colt valued at $175.00. Mr. Buchanan seems to be unfortunate with horses, as it is but little over a year ago since he lost a valuable horse.

MOUNTED WITH THE HERBRAND GEAR WORKS.

ECKHART CARRIAGE WORKS,

AUBURN, DE KALB CO., IND.

—MANUFACTURER OF—

FIRST CLASS CARRIAGES.

CHARLES ECKHART, PROPRIETOR.

Call on me when in need of a first-class Carriage or Buggy, and I will save you money. I guarantee all work as represented.

Go to M. Tustison,

DEALER IN—

Groceries, Flour,

PROVISIONS.

CANDIES, CIGARS &c.

and get some of those splendid Fresh Apricots, only 23c per can.

ST. JOE, IND.

—ST. JOE MARKETS—

CORRECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat	70 cts.
Oats	26 cts.
Corn	35 cts.
Butter	15 cts.
Eggs	12 cts.
Tallow	34 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	70 cts.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

Trains Leave St. Joe as follows:

WESTBOUND.
No. 9 Mail and Express	11:05 A. M.
17 Accommodation	4:18 P. M.
3 Chicago Express	10:42 P. M.
35 Local Freight	3:42 P. M.
EAST BOUND.
No. 10 Express and Mail	2:08 P. M.
16 Accommodation	10:28 A. M.
4 Morning Express	4:55 A. M.
34 Local Freight	7:59 A. M.

W. I. McKEE, AGENT.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. PRICE 25 cents per box. For sale by W. C. Patterson.

Read the new advertisements.

Fat hogs are selling for 4 1/2 cents per pound.

Bert Patterson having permanently located in St. Joe, and gone into the drug business with his brother, will also work at his trade, that of a Jeweler. Clocks, Watches and Jewelry repaired in the best manner, and at reasonable prices. Call and see him at the St. Joe Drugstore.

A Woman's Discovery.

Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady in this county. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz. This writes W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelby, N. C.—Get a free trial bottle at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store.

THE INTER-STATE FAIR.

Fort Wayne, Indiana, September 27, 28, 29, 30, 1887.

For five years past the Inter-State Fair has had

The largest cattle show in the State.
The largest horse show in the State.
The largest sheep show in the State.
The largest hog show in the State.
The largest poultry show in the State.
The best races in the State.
The most liberal premiums of any Fair in the State.

The best line of attractions and amusements of any Fair in the State.

Every premium has been paid in full, as advertised, and every promise has been fulfilled.

The Fair of 1887 will equal its predecessors in every particular, and in many features will surpass any former Fair.

The same liberal policy in regard to premiums and attractions will govern the management this year as in the past, and exhibitors will receive uniformly courteous treatment, and liberal inducements to show at the Fort Wayne Fair.

To the progressive farmer the stock exhibit, the immense line of agricultural implements, and the horticultural display, offer an interesting field of study, amply sufficient to repay him for the time and money spent at the Fair.

To the mechanic the many improved machines and other displays in the mechanical line will afford an endless amount of instruction and amusement.

To entertain the amusement-loving public a fine line of attractions have been secured, over $3,000 being offered in this department alone.

Believing that in no way can the farmer, the mechanic, the laboring man, the merchant, the housewife, the young and the old receive the same amount of instruction and amusement as at the great Inter-State Fair, a cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

It is said that over one thousand dollars worth of beer was sold on the Defiance fair ground, on Thursday of last week. Better turn it into a beer garden and be done with it.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & W. H. OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SILENT WOODS OF INDIANA.

BY CHARLOTTE H. HAYES.

Silent woods of Indiana,
Forests of primeval gloom,
Here and there a rude hut rising
Near the prairie's sea of bloom.

There, amid a little clearing,
Shrinking from a life so rude,
Lived a mother as heroic
As was sweet her womanhood.

Sometimes, at rosy sunset,
With her young boy at her feet,
Spoke she of that noble living,
That for God's high truths is meet.

Or, amid the deepening shadows,
When the twilight hour grew dim,
Prayed she, "O Father may he serve thee,
Whoso'er may come to him."

Then the silver cord was loosened,
And her face of tender love
Shone with hallowed light, reflected
From the golden spheres above.

Round her forest grave they gathered,
On a quiet Sabbath day,
With the simple, rustic parson,
Who had come from far to pray.

Loving friends, from distant places,
Listened to that fervent prayer;
And the sunlight, through the pine-trees,
Shone on tear-wet faces there.

Then they left her there to slumber,
Mid the prairie lone and wild,
Little dreaming what a future
Waited him, her orphan child.

Little dreaming how the nation
Should arise and call him blessed,
In the years that were to follow,
While she, voiceless, lay at rest.

Once, when rung the people's plaudits,
Bowed he low his prince-crowned head,
With the humblest of his people,
The past brought back, and said,

While his heart was overflowing:
"All I am, or hope to be,
Owe I to that Christian mother,
Blessed be her memory!"

Silent woods of Indiana,
Peaceful be her grave in thee,
While the nation joins that memory
With the martyr of the free.

—Youth's Companion.

A BROTHER'S TREACHERY.

Yesterday was my reception day, and an hundred self-invited guests thronged my rooms, eager to see and be seen, honored to be my guests. My pretty rooms were brilliant with color, and the gay, chattering, smiling crowd made them seem like some fascinating horris cave.

To-day they are closed and dark. The crowd has gone, and my hand and I have come up here to mourn together and comfort each other.

It is the anniversary of our little one's death.

You who see me now, would not dream that we had tasted the very dregs of poverty; would not dream that just five years ago to-day our Saidee, our darling, died; died of starvation.

In this very city, in this very room, outside, the same jostling, smiling, maddening crowd; she, the only darling God ever sent to bless our home and gladden our hearts, died; died of starvation.

The thought almost drives me crazy! I throw open the window for air! I feel stifled, even now!

Ah, me! How treacherous the world is, and how I sometimes hate it!

How eagerly it greets the rich and prosperous with outstretched hands and smiling faces, and fawning words on lying lips; and turns to the poor poverty-stricken wretch with a push, a scowl, a curse, and a kick to help send him headlong on the downward grade.

We know (husband and I) we have tasted the bitterness of poverty's dregs, and know the hollowness of the world's friendship.

But, thank God, not all the rich are worldlings.

My father died when I was a child and left an unencumbered estate worth, perhaps, fifty thousand dollars. My mother soon followed him to the grave and brother (ten years older than myself) and I were left alone. He was executor of the estate. I, child-like, believed in him implicitly and never questioned his authority. In due time I graduated from the high-school, and afterwards from the university at W.

Clarence had sold off nearly everything while I was at W., and established himself in business at Los Angeles. After graduating, I followed him, never doubting my welcome, never dreaming of treachery.

But my reception was coolly business-like, and I was soon given to understand that I was expected to support myself. He said the estate was not as valuable as at first supposed, and he, of course, could not be expected to support me.

We had a dreadful quarrel. I returned East and Clarence became my bitter enemy.

Then I met Tom Dalton and soon we were married. He was a hotel manager, did nicely in business and we were very happy.

Then Saidee came, and when she was 2 years old, we got the California fever; sold out everything we possessed and came to Los Angeles.

Ah, me! had we but known.

From that time everything went wrong. Finally he got a position as night clerk at the old Cosmopolitan. He worked industriously and would have pleased; but one night Clarence passed, saw Tom inside, went to the proprietors, told them Heaven knows what, and the very next day Tom was discharged without a word of warning. So it was everywhere Tom worked. Clarence Sands followed him like a living fiend, everywhere telling lies about us and driving Tom from his position.

At first we had lived nicely; but as matters grew from bad to worse, we moved from one house to another, from one room to another, until we finally came to this poor little room where we now sit. This was a tenement then. Since we have bought the house, had it remodeled and refurnished, all but this one little room, which we have always kept just the same, and where no one but Tom and I ever comes and sits, and we but seldom; the memories are too sad.

But I forget. I tried everywhere for work, but who wanted to see my half-starved face around? We grew so very poor we had but one meal a day and that a meager one.

One after another our valuables found their way to the pawnshop, until nothing was left but my wedding-ring which had never been off my finger. What should we do? There was one gentleman in the city I had known when a child—Judge Brundell. My father had started him in business, loaned him money and given him his first cases. I could not bring myself to ask help from him. What could we do?

Finally Saidee fell sick. I exhausted the resources of my small medicine case, but all the medicines in the universe cannot take the place of proper food and nourishment.

All day she moaned and tossed on her poor little bed; could not eat the bread we gave her and we had nothing else.

Tom hung over her bedside almost crazed with sorrow, and, along in the afternoon I, unable to bear the sight, took my hat and started for the pawnshop.

I passed Judge Brundell's office, stopped, but could not make up my mind to enter.

At the pawnshop I quickly slipped the ring from my finger and gave it to the old man, who waited expectantly.

"Ten dollars is the best I can do," it was a small fortune to me, for it meant soup and fruit for Saidee.

"I could not give that much, but it's evidently your wedding-ring and will probably be redeemed soon," and the old man beamed at me curiously.

I nodded, grasped the money, hastened away from the shop, made my few purchases and started home. As I turned a corner Clarence drove down near the curb and motioned me to stop.

"How's my sweet sister?"

"Do not dare to speak to me," I cried out indignantly.

"Oh! I keep track of you. You're just about to starve. You'll come to me yet, and then—"

He laughed in a horribly significant way, struck his horse and went on.

I stood dazed. "In the nineteenth century could such things be?"

Quickly I retraced my steps and this time entered Judge Brundell's office. Oh, had I but gone before! Brokenly I told my story to the kind-hearted man, who listened attentively after I had once told him who I was. He urged me and I told him all; everything, even down to the insults of a few minutes ago. "I must go now. I've been away too long already; even now Saidee may be dying," I said. I hurried home, and almost before I had told Tom the Judge came; and with him a doctor.

The latter looked grave over Saidee and shook his head. "It is too late," he said, and I think my heart died. We administered restoratives but nothing could be done, and two days later she died.

I did not know it. The fever had entered my brain and for weeks I lay between life and death. When I recovered everything was changed—this room had been locked up. We were at Judge Brundell's, and Tom had a good position.

As soon as I could talk about it the Judge asked me all manner of questions about father's estate, and at once began suit to recover possession.

My one idea was revenge on Clarence. I could not get it out of my head day or night.

Owing to the Judge's influence everything prospered. Tom's salary was increased. I wrote constantly and was well paid, and we finally got about thirty thousand dollars back from Clarence, which embarrassed his affairs considerably.

We bought the tenement, remodeled it, as you see; and then began to buy up Clarence's notes, paid his outstanding debts and had them transferred to us.

I wanted to starve him as he had us. Everything we touched seemed to prosper. Friends crowded around us and we had everything that heart could wish and money could buy. Everything but our Saidee, our darling; and when I thought of her I hardened my heart and was more determined than ever to crush my brother.

Tom never opposed me; but he said nothing.

Everything was now ready for my revenge. I really owned my brother, and I sent for him to come to me. I brought him into this very room, showed him its poor furniture and the little bed where Saidee had died; and then I told him what I meant to do with him.

He, poor, miserable, weak wretch, snivelled and cried like a whipped hound, begged for mercy, and whimpered to be spared.

"My heart misgave me. Should I crush him, as I had planned?"

I thought of Saidee. "Yes, let him suffer as my poor, wan darling had suffered, for food and nourishment!"

Then came Tom's dear, good, noble Tom, and said, "Let him go, Hetty, for Saidee's sake."

"For Saidee's sake." Could it be for her sake?

I hesitated long, then the temptation was over. "Take your notes and money, but get out of my sight forever! I cannot trust myself."

Without one word of thanks Clarence grabbed the roll and escaped from the room; and I sank down by Tom's side and cried like a child.

I'm glad it's over. I'm glad I did not punish him as I had meant to do. I'm glad I let him go, but 'twas a terrible temptation.

Always Tell Mother.

There is something that tugs at one's heart in the last words of the young woman in Sacramento who shot Patterson and then committed suicide with morphine. After being long in a stupor she rallied a moment and said to the attendant: "Please don't tell mother." It was the final illumination of a path that was ending in gloom and disgrace. Made the victim of heartless selfishness by the man she had killed, and going to her final account tarnished and forlorn, she was, after all, the victim of not telling mother. There is no way of estimating the sorrow and sin and suffering that would be avoided if the confidence of children continued through life to run to their mothers. Over the grave of this girl, dead untimely by her own hand, on which was the blood of another, might be inscribed the epitaph: "Died in her youth, heartbroken, dishonored, a slayer, self-slain, because she would not tell mother."—San Francisco Alta.

Carl Pretzel's Philosophy.

When der bleed comes der heart out, on account of misfortune, dhere vas nothing so good to shtob der bleed like der comfort you found out in der Bible book.

On der outside in of efery heart dhere vas a spark of benefelences and goodness. Some fellers shtob der cavity un mit cross eyed looks, so you coodn't see dot pooty gwick.

I belief me in woomans sufferage on ackound dhey vas suffer-age so much, and it.—Carl Pretzel's Weekly.

PITH AND POINT.

LOST at sea—the sight of land.

A TRIM creature—the milliner.

A FLAT failure—a poor pancake.

PARTY liner—rows of wallflowers.

A HANGMAN who wished to conceal his vocation said he was traveling for a suspender company.—Texas Siftings.

It is perfectly safe to go into a dentist's shop and call him a liar to his teeth, if the dentist isn't in.—Texas Siftings.

"Old Tabat Cadi was a man of mind. In the days when the earth was new, But he never tackled a single pig."

When the hair is in the butter room it is a bad sign.—Tabat Cadi.

"Yes, sir," said Dibbs, earnestly, "we should always look upon long-haired men with respect. It is a surety that they have not been in prison for a while."

The days of the book agent are numbered. A German firm has invented a steel-clad bullet that will penetrate four inches of brass.—Newman Independent.

The witty man of the Middle Temple students said at a city chop-house: "I won't pay for steaks as tough as these; no law can compel me; they're not legal tender."

RESTAURANT-KEEPER (to guest)—Is your seat quite comfortable, sir? Are you too near the window? Guest. No, the window is all right; but I wouldn't mind sitting a little farther from the butter.

Mrs. Wells (about to hire a new servant)—Now, in regard to going out visiting. I—Servant (interrupting). "Oh, go out whenever yez loikes; you'll not find Bridget Murphy harrud, mum, or dictatorial loike."

Brown—I say, Robinson, are you still sweet on Miss Littleback? Robinson—I'm afraid she didn't appreciate my visits. "Why do you think so?" "Well, the last time I called she had an alarm clock in the parlor, and had it set for 10 o'clock. I've given up calling there." New York Sun.

"Young man," he said, earnestly, "do you ever put the present aside, and gaze thoughtfully into the future?" "You bet I do," was the emphatic response. "I've got a six-months' lease's option on 10,000 barrels of crude oil, and just now I'm spelling future with a big, big F."—New York Sun.

Once there was lying by the side of the ditch a pig. On the other side lay a man. The pig was sober, the man was drunk. The pig had a ring in his nose, and man had a ring on his finger. Some one passing exclaimed, so the pig heard it, "One is judged from the company he keeps." Instantly the pig rose and went away.

A lady who had been abroad was describing some of the sights of her trip to a party of friends. "But what pleased me as much as anything," she said, "was the wonderful clock at Strasburg." "Oh, how I would love to see it," gushed a pretty young woman in pink. "I am so much interested in such things. And did you see the celebrated watch on the Rhine, too?"

Oh, I know I can't," she said the woman, after she returned from her husband's funeral, "I just know I can't ever think of anything else with poor John in the—the—the—coo-omb!" and she broke down again. "There was a very large attendance at the funeral," said a lady friend, trying to get the poor woman's mind into some other channel. "Mrs. Gen. Parade was pre-ent." "Was Mrs. Gen. Parade there?" "Yes." "What-wh-what did she have on?" and the poor widow burst into tears anew.—Dakota Bell.

Mrs. SHODDY—What has become of your beau, Belle? Miss S.—He has gone to the beach for his health. Mrs. S.—He's rich, and I can't see why you shilly-shally with him so long. Why don't you marry him? Miss S.—I do not care to marry him. He is a val-tudinarian. Mrs. S.—What's that got to do with it? We're no sticklers about religion. It ain't like an if either of you were Catholics and needed a dispensation. You ought to be glad of the chance. If I was in your place I'd marry him if he was a vegetarian.—Boston Courier.

"THERE is evidently a great deal to be learned about women," says a Philadelphia editor. "There is, indeed, and the best way to learn it is to ask some other woman about it."—Somerville Journal.

The affection of parents is best shown to their children by teaching them what is good and true.

In the Whole Hideous Catalogue
Of diseases, there were none which, previous to the discovery of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, offered more formidable resistance to the old-fashioned modes of treatment than the group of maladies which, under the collective name of malarial disease, afflicted entire communities that suffered hopelessly. Chills and fever, dumb ague, ague cake, and bilious remittent were once regarded as well nigh incurable.
Now it rejoices the hearts of thousands who reside in districts periodically subject to the visitation of malaria, to feel certain that in the Bitters they possess a certain defense against the scourge, a sure means of expelling its poison from the system. To the settler in the far West, the new emigrant thither, and to travelers and tourists by land and sea, the possession of this pleasant safeguard is a guaranty of safety from diseases which they might vainly seek from any other source.

In Chicago: Citizen (to visiting friend)—"There's the handsomest gambling-house in the country."

"What, do you mean to say it is a gambling-house?"

"Yes."

"Has the new Mayor made an effort to close it?"

"No."

"What is the name of the place?"

"Board of Trade."

On the obscure road that leads to health, (Unmarked by board or sign;
Wisdom avails not, powerless is wealth
To soothe these aches of these.
But do not despair, with life there a hope,
The cloud conceals the sun;
With Pierce's Favorite Prescription at hand
You life's full course may run.
More truth than poetry in these lines, as thousands of ladies all over the land now blossoming with health, testify to the great curative powers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, adapted by much research and careful study to the happy relief of all those weaknesses and ailments peculiar to females.
All druggists.

"JOHNNY," inquired his aunt, "what do you like best of all?" "Candy," replied Johnny. "And what after that?"
inquired his aunt. "More candy," replied Johnny, after a moment's deliberation.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

How soon a smile of God can change
the world.—Browning.

C-h-o-o! C-h-o-o! C-h-o-o!!!

Don't sneeze, sneeze, hawk, spit, blow, and disgust everybody with your offensive breath. If you have acid, watery discharges from the nose and eyes, throat disease, causing chok sensations, cough, ringing noises in head, splitting headache and other symptoms of nasal catarrh, remember that the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy offer, in good faith, $500 reward for a case of catarrh which they cannot cure.
The Remedy is sold by druggists at only 50 cents.

Why are children like jellies? Because as they are molded so they will turn out.

How to Gain Flesh and Strength.

Use after each meal Scott's Emulsion with Hypophosphites. It is as palatable as milk, and easily digested. The rapidity with which delicate people improve with its use is wonderful. Use it and try your weight. As a remedy for Consumption, Throat affections, and Bronchitis, it is unequalled. Please read:
"I used Scott's Emulsion in a child eight months old with good results. He gained four pounds in a very short time."—Thos. Paim,
M. D., Alabama.

TELEGRAPH messages never make haste to get rich.

PRICKLY ACH BITTERS is an unfailing cure for all diseases originating in biliary derangements caused by the malaria of miasmatic countries. No other medicine now on sale will so effectually remove the disturbing elements, and at the same time tone up the whole system. It is sure and safe in its action.

Why are troubles like dogs? Because the smaller they are the more they annoy you.

R. W. Tansill & Co., Chicago:
I have retailed cigars for sixteen years, and I consider your "Tansill's Punch" the best 5c cigar I ever saw. JOHN W. AITKEN, Druggist, Carbondale, Pa.

Nervous People

Who take Hood's Sarsaparilla earnestly declare: "It gives us complete and permanent control of our nerves." By regulating the digestion it also overcomes dyspepsia and disagreeable feelings in the stomach, cures headache and heartburn. By its action on the blood impurities are expelled and the whole body is benefited.

"I never can thank Hood's Sarsaparilla for helping me so much. When I began taking it I was confined to the bed nearly all the time. Now I am up the best part of the day, have a better appetite than for five years, and am not nearly so nervous as I have been."
—MRS. ANN A. HALLER, Nicetown, Philadelphia.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by O. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar.

CATARRH
AND HAY-FEVER
CURE.
ELY'S CREAM BALM.

Apply Balm into each nostril.

PENSIONS COLLECTED and increased by Fitzgerald & Powell, Indianapolis,
Ind. Old cases reopened. Send for copy of Laws, free.

The Sweetest Girl in School.

"She's the sweetest girl in school!" enthusiastically exclaimed one young man to another, as they passed down the street together. "Edith is so kind, and gentle, and unselfish, every one likes her. And she has lovely golden hair and pretty eyes. Isn't it a pity her complexion is so bad; it spoils her looks. And then she has such dreadful headaches!" The girls skipped along, but it happened Edith's mother had heard what they said. It set her thinking. What could be done for those headaches and the rough, muddy complexion, that was such a trial to her gentle daughter. She recalled what she had read of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and on the spur of the moment she slipped into a drug store and bought a supply.
Edith took it faithfully, with the result that it cleared her disordered blood, relieved the headaches, made her skin soft, fair and rosy, and now she is not only the "sweetest girl in school" but the most beautiful.

It is easier for a saloon-keeper in Iowa to get rich than for a Congressman to refuse a drink.

FIVE dollars can be saved every year in boots and shoes by using Lyon's Heel Stiffeners; cost only 25c.

The best cough medicine is Piso's Cure for Consumption. Sold everywhere. 25c.

KIDDER'S

DIGESTYLIN

A SURE CURE FOR INDIGESTION and DYSPEPSIA.

Over 100 Physicians have sent us their approval of DIGESTYLIN, saying that it is the best preparation for Indigestion that they have ever used.

We have never heard of a case of Dyspepsia where DIGESTYLIN was taken that was not cured.

FOR CHOLERA INFANTUM.
IT WILL CURE THE MOST AGGRAVATED CASES.
IT WILL STOP VOMITING IN PREGNANCY.
IT WILL RELIEVE CONSTIPATION.

For Summer Complaints and Chronic Diarrhea, which are the direct results of imperfect digestion,
DIGESTYLIN will effect an immediate cure.
Take DIGESTYLIN for all pains and disorders of the stomach; they all come from indigestion. Ask your druggist for DIGESTYLIN (price $1 per large bottle). If he does not have it, send one dollar to us and we will send a bottle to you, express prepaid.
Do not hesitate to send your money. Our house is reliable. Established twenty-five years.

WM. F. KIDDER & CO.,
Manufacturing Chemists, 83 John St., N. Y.

FOR SALE CHEAP!

One of Payne & Son's automatic ten-horse power engines. It has only been used about two years, and is in every respect as good as the day it came out of the shop. This engine is equal to twenty horse power if required. It is at the WAYNE & LAWSPIDER UNION, 55 & 57
Columbia St., Fort Wayne, Ind.

ADVERTISERS or others who wish to advertise
this paper, or obtain estimates
on advertising space when in Chicago, will find it at 45 to 47 Randolph St.,
the Advertising Agency of

LORD & THOMAS.

PILES
Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is a sure cure for bleeding or itching piles. Cure guaranteed.
Price 50c. and 1 lb. At druggists or mailed by Wm. L. Mumford & Marvin, who sell Aq. Toledo, Ohio.

Send for the best catalogue of the best Business College, shorthand, Typewriting and Penmanship
School in the world. SPENCER
IAN BUSINESS COLLEGE, Cleveland, Ohio. Circulars free.

Best
KIDDER'S PASTILLES
Sure relief for ASTHMA.
Price 50c. by mail. Stowell & Co.,
Hartford, Conn.

$250 A MONTH. Agents wanted. 50 best advertising articles in the world. Sample FREE.
Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

$5 to $25 a day. Samples worth $1.50. FREE.
Lines not under the horse's feet. Write
Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

The following words, in praise of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a remedy for those delicate diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women, must be of interest to every sufferer from such maladies. They are fair samples of the spontaneous expressions with which thousands give utterance to their sense of gratitude for the inestimable boon of health which has been restored to them by the use of this world-famed medicine.

$100
THROWN AWAY.

THE GREATEST EARTHLY BOON.

The 'Favorite Prescription' is the greatest earthly boon to us poor suffering women."

THREW AWAY HER SUPPORTER.

IT WORKS WONDERS.

ment of myself and friends. I can now be on my feet all day, attending to the duties of my household.

Mrs. SOPHIA F. ROSEWELL, White Cottage, O., writes: "I took eleven bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and one bottle of your 'Pellets.' I am doing my work, and have been for some time. I have had to employ help for about sixteen years before I commenced taking your medicine. I have had to wear a supporter most of the time; this I have laid aside, and feel as well as I ever did."

Mrs. MAY GLEASON, of Nymica, Ottawa Co., Mich., writes: "Your 'Favorite Prescription' has worked wonders in my case.
Again she writes: "Having taken several bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I have regained my health wonderfully, to the astonishment of myself and friends. I can now be on my feet all day, attending to the duties of my household."

TREATING THE WRONG DISEASE.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here or there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent, or over-busy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some womb disorder. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages his practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine, like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

3 PHYSICIANS FAILED.

alone. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and using the local treatment recommended in his "Common Sense Medical Adviser." I commenced to improve at once. In three months I was perfectly cured, and have had no trouble since. I wrote a letter to my family paper, briefly mentioning how my health had been restored, and offering to send the full particulars to any one writing me for them, and enclosing a stamped-envelope for reply. I have received over four hundred letters.
In reply, I have described my case and the treatment used, and have earnestly advised them to "do likewise." From a great many I have received second letters of thanks, stating that they had commenced the use of 'Favorite Prescription,' had sent the $1.50 required for the 'Medical Adviser,' and had applied the local treatment so fully and, plainly laid down therein, and were much better already."

JEALOUS DOCTORS.

of money, but received no lasting benefit. At last my husband frustrated me to try your medicine, which I was loath to do, because I was prejudiced against them, and the doctors said they would do me no good. I finally told my husband that if he would get me some of your medicine, I would try them against the advice of my physician. He got me six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription,' also six bottles of the 'Discovery,' for ten dollars. I took three bottles of 'Discovery' and four of 'Favorite Prescription,' and I have been a sound woman for four years. I then gave the balance of the medicine to my sister, who was troubled in the same way, and she cured herself in a short time. I have not had to take any medicine now for almost four years."

A Marvelous Cure.—Mrs. G. F. SPRAGUE, of Crystal, Mich., writes: "I was troubled with female weakness, leucorrhoea and falling of the womb for seven years, so I had to keep my bed for a good part of the time. I doctored with an array of different physicians, and spent large sums of money, but received no lasting benefit. At last my husband frustrated me to try your medicine, which I was loath to do, because I was prejudiced against them, and the doctors said they would do me no good. I finally told my husband that if he would get me some of your medicine, I would try them against the advice of my physician. He got me six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription,' also six bottles of the 'Discovery,' for ten dollars. I took three bottles of 'Discovery' and four of 'Favorite Prescription,' and I have been a sound woman for four years. I then gave the balance of the medicine to my sister, who was troubled in the same way, and she cured herself in a short time. I have not had to take any medicine now for almost four years."

THE OUTGROWTH OF A VAST EXPERIENCE.

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females, at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in nicely adapting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of woman's peculiar maladies.
Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful remedy ever devised for the relief and cure of suffering women. It is not recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect Specific for woman's peculiar ailments.
As a powerful, invigorating tonic,
it imparts strength to the whole system,
and to the uterus, or womb and its appendages, in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses,
"shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr.
Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic. It promotes digestion and assimilation of food, cures nausea, weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating and eructations of gas.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.
Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system.
"Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhoea, or "whites," excessive flowing at monthly periods, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapse or falling of the womb, weak-back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

In pregnancy, "Favorite Prescription" is a "mother's cordial," relieving nausea, weakness of stomach and other distressing symptoms common to that condition. If its use is kept up in the latter months of gestation, it so prepares the system for delivery as to greatly lessen, and many times almost entirely do away with the sufferings of that trying ordeal.
"Favorite Prescription," when taken in connection with the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and small laxative doses of Dr. Pierce's Purgative Pellets (Little Liver Pills), cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder diseases. Their combined use also removes blood taints, and abolishes cancerous and scrofulous humors from the system.
"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women sold, by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years. Large bottles (100 doses) $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.
Send ten cents in stamps for Dr.
Pierce's large, illustrated Treatise (160 pages) on Diseases of Women.
063 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

JONES
PAYS THE FREIGHT
5 Ton Wagon Service,
Iron Lovers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tire Beams and Beam Box for $80.
Every size Scale. For free price list mention this paper and address
JONES OF BINGHAMTON,
BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

The Oldest Medicine in the World is probably Dr. Isaac Thompson's
Celebrated Eye Water
This article is a carefully prepared physician's prescription, and has been in constant use for nearly a century, and notwithstanding the many other preparations that have been introduced into the market, the sale of this article is constantly increasing. If the diseases are followed it will never fail. We particularly invite the attention of physicians to its merits.
John L. Thompson, Sons & Co., Troy, N. Y.

DETECTIVES
Wanted in every County. Shrewd men to act under our instructions in our Secret Service. Experience not necessary. Send stamp for particulars. GRANNAN DETEC-TIVE BUREAU, 44 Arcade, Cincinnati, O.
N. U. P. W. No. 37-87
When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper

BY TELEGRAPH.

EVENTS OF A WEEK.

THE OLD WORLD.

—Messengers have reached Zanzibar from Uganda with the tidings that Emin Bey is well and still holding out.

—A prosecution has been instituted against John Mandeville, leader of the plan of campaign movement in County Cork, for incendiary utterances. Condon, a member of Parliament for East Tipperary, and William O'Brien will be prosecuted simultaneously with Mandeville.

—Franzini was guillotined at 5 o'clock this morning in the presence of more than twenty thousand people, says a Paris dispatch. He was perfectly calm, said he was glad he was to die instead of being imprisoned for life, and when pressed to make a confession to the priest, simply said: "Father, you do your duty and I'll do mine." As to the murder, he repeated his protestations of innocence. When seized by the executioners he resisted, wanting them to let him alone, but they speedily had him bound and strapped to the couch. His head was buried in the ivy cemetery and his body turned over to the medical faculty. Franzini's crime was the murder of Marie Regnault, alias Mme. de Montille, her maid, Annie Gramet, and the latter's child.

PERSONAL NOTES.

—The United States Court at San Francisco has blocked the Pacific Railway investigation by refusing to issue an order upon Senator Stanford to answer questions or to direct the officers of the railroad companies to produce their books. The following abstract of the decision, which was delivered by Justice Field, was telegraphed from San Francisco:

The Pacific Railway Commission, created under act of Congress of March 3, 1867, is not a judicial body. It possesses no judicial power. It can determine no right of the Government, or of the companies whose affairs it investigates. Those rights will remain the subject of judicial inquiry and determination as fully as though the commission had never been created, and in such inquiry its report to the President of its action will not be even admissible as evidence of any of the matters investigated. It is a mere board of inquiry, directed to obtain information upon certain matters, and report the result of its investigations to the President; also, to lay the same before Congress in the progress of its investigations, and in furtherance of them it is authorized to invoke the aid of the courts of the United States in requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of books, papers, and documents, and the act provides that the Circuit or District Court of the United States within the jurisdiction of which contumacy or refusal of any person to obey subpoenas to him may issue an order requiring such persons to appear before the Commission, and produce books and papers, and give evidence touching the matters in question. Of all rights of the citizen few are of greater importance or more essential to his peace and happiness than the right of personal security, and that involves not merely the protection of his person from assault, but exemption of his private affairs, books, and papers from inspection and scrutiny of others. Without the enjoyment of this right, all other rights would lose half their value. The law provides for compulsory production in the progress of judicial proceedings or by direct suit for that purpose of such documents as affect the interest of others, and also in certain cases for the seizure of criminal papers necessary for the prosecution of offenders against public justice, and only in one of these ways can they be obtained and their contents made known against the will of the owners. In the recent case of Boyd vs. United States, 116 U. S. 616, the Supreme Court held that the provision of a law of Congress which authorized the Court of the United States in revenue cases on motion of the Government to require defendant or claimant to produce in court his private books, invoices, and papers, or that the allegations of the attorney respecting them should be taken as confessed, was unconstitutional and void as applied to suits for penalties or to establish forfeiture of party's goods. In Kilbourn vs. Thompson, 113 U. S. 165, we have the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States that neither house of Congress had the power to make inquiries into the private affairs of a citizen.

—One year ago, Mrs. Eliza McAlister, an elderly lady of Terre Haute, Ind., was mysteriously lost on a Chicago and Alton train between St. Louis and Kansas City. During the months that have elapsed since that time every effort has been made to discover the whereabouts of the missing lady. Tuesday her skeleton was found on the Missouri River bank, near Marshall. The remains were recognized by a ring, which had the lady's name on the inside, and which gleamed with mocking splendor on the fleshless finger. It is thought she was robbed and thrown from the train.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL.

—A company of Pittsburgh and New York capitalists has entered the field in opposition to the Standard Oil Company. Pipe lines are being laid from Washington to Pittsburgh. The company has a capital of $3,000,000.

—Reports received from more than fifty cotton-growing counties in Arkansas show the condition of the crop to be about 10 per cent.

below what it was this time last year. Picking has commenced, but will not become general for a week or ten days. The reports estimate that the yield will barely exceed 600,000 bales.

—The Manufacturers' Record of this week, says a Baltimore dispatch, contains about five pages of special reports from the entire South as to the crops and the condition of business:

The corn crop of the South is unprecedentedly large, exceeding the yield of 1886 by over 50,000,000 bushels, the yield of 1885 by 70,000,000 bushels, and the yield of 1884 by 107,000,000 bushels. The South will this year, it is said, be nearly self-supporting in the matter of corn, and many millions that have heretofore gone West for corn will this season be saved to Southern farmers. While recent unfavorable weather has damaged to some extent the cotton prospects which a month ago promised such an enormous yield, the crop will be a large one. Advanced prices for tobacco will, it is claimed, counterbalance to the farmers the decrease in yield, due mainly to decreased acreage. Other crops have, with few exceptions, been very good, and it is said that the farmers will enjoy greater prosperity than for many seasons. The business prospects are reported brighter than ever before, and one correspondent predicts that this will be noted as a debt-paying year.

—An assignment has been made at Philadelphia by the extensive coal mining firms of Robert Hare Powell & Co., and Robert Hare Powell, Sons & Co., the liabilities are estimated at $1,578,000, while the assets are said to exceed $4,000,000. The suspension was caused by the failure of Charles E. Pennock & Co., iron plate merchants at Coatesville, to take up paper indorsed by the Powell firms.

POLITICAL POINTS.

—In the Democratic State convention at Allentown, Pa., J. Ross Thompson was nominated for Judge of the Supreme Court, and Bernard J. McGrann for Treasurer. The platform was reported by Congressman Scott. It demands that the surplus in the National Treasury be used to pay the public debt, favors a "wise and prudent reduction of internal taxation and of duties on imports," indorses the administration of President Cleveland, favors "liberal pensions to deserving Union soldiers and sailors," expresses sympathy for the people of Ireland in their struggle for Home Rule, and concludes as follows:

We still hold to the ancient doctrine of the party that the preservation of the rights of the people demand that we should look with jealousy upon monopolies and restrict corporate power within its proper sphere, and we heartily approve the action of the national administration in reclaiming and throwing open to the people for settlement 100,000,000 acres of lands which, through artifice and fraud, were wrongfully held by corporations, having been forfeited to the people by failure to comply with the conditions of the grant.

—A Des Moines dispatch of Thursday says: The Greenback party in Iowa finally passed out of existence here yesterday. After the organization of the Union Labor party at Cincinnati the Greenback leaders in Iowa fell smoothly in with the new movement until the State convention was held at Marshalltown. There are two factions in the party here, one led by General Weaver and the other by ex-Congressman Weller. Both plotted to capture the convention, and Weller succeeded. Then the Weaver faction bolted, and called this convention. There were about forty delegates present. Serious differences at once arose, one element wanting to indorse the Marshalltown ticket and another insisting on straight nominations. A compromise was finally effected by which the Greenback party becomes a thing of the past in Iowa. No ticket was named, but resolutions were adopted indorsing the Marshalltown platform, and calling on the farmers to immediately call a non-partisan State convention to place an independent ticket in the field.

—The Iowa State Democratic convention assembled at Des Moines on the 1st inst. and made the following nominations: For Governor, Maj. T. J. Anderson; Lieutenant Governor, J. M. Elder; Supreme Court Judge, Charles S. Fogg; Superintendent of Public Instruction, H. W. Sawyer. Following is a synopsis of the platform:

It commends the fidelity of President Cleveland to the obligations of his high trust, and congratulates the country upon the economy, courage, honesty and patriotism of his administration; approves the civil-service policy; commends the efficiency of the Pension Department; demands of Congress a remission of tariff laws in the interest of equal taxation, and favors retaining its internal revenue taxes; welcomes to our shores the liberty-loving people of all lands; approves the efforts of Gladstone and Parnell in behalf of the cause of Ireland; declares the vigorous prosecution of faithless officials and those who have corrupted them now being conducted by Democratic prosecuting officers in New York and Chicago a hopeful sign of reform of public morals, and demands that the same measure of justice visited upon bribery of local boards should be visited upon the defense when committed in State and national legislatures; favors the repeal of the present prohibitory liquor law and the substitution in its stead of a local option and carefully guarded license law, with a minimum license fee of $500, for the better control of the liquor traffic.

FIRES AND ACCIDENTS.

—Princeton (Mo.) telegram: "At the Mercer County Fair Randall Bakeslee, a half-breed Indian, made a balloon ascension, hanging to a trapeze bar. In the ascent the balloon shot up suddenly, giving Bakeslee a severe wrench, and he was unable to pull himself on the bar, but managed to hold himself up by a loop which he had drawn around his wrist. After traveling about a mile and a half, reaching an altitude of 2,000 feet, the balloon began to descend, but the poor fellow's strength gave out, and when within 500 feet of the earth his grip relaxed and he fell to the earth, lighting on his feet in a cornfield, his thighs being broken and driven into the trunk of his body."

—The boiler of a steam thrasher exploded on the farm of Lyman G. Curtis, near Flint, Mich. Mr. Curtis was fatally injured, Daniel Steegar, one of the thrashers, was instantly killed, and Miss Belle Newcomb and Miss Jennie Foadick, who were looking on, and several others were more or less injured.

THE CRIMINAL RECORD.

—Frank C. McNeilly, a clerk in the Saco and Biddeford Savings Institution, at Saco, Me., has decamped, taking $3,500 in cash, and United States and other bonds amounting to $276,000, belonging to the bank. Detectives are after the fugitive. The bank is said to be solvent. It is believed that the thief cannot make use of the $185,000 in Government bonds which he carried off. McNeilly is only 19 years old.

—A dispatch from Columbus, O., says: Josiah Terrill was executed at 12:30 o'clock Friday morning, and proclaimed his innocence after he had been brought upon the scaffold. The execution took place in the Penitentiary. Terrill slept up to 11 p. m., and then ate a lunch, and, after smoking, was ready to proceed to the gallows. His exhibition of nerve was something wonderful, and those who had seen many hanged before stated that they had never witnessed one in which there was so much quiet determination exhibited. Terrill was convicted of murdering Charles Phelps, aged about 60 years. He was an inoffensive citizen, and it is supposed that Terrill committed the murder for the purpose of robbery.

—New Albany (Ind.) dispatch: "The White Caps visited the residence of John Hildebrand, a Justice of the Peace residing near Frenchtown, in Harrison County, last midnight, took him from his bed, and gave him a terrible switching. The White Caps charged the Justice with drunkenness and whipping his wife. At De Pauw, a short distance from Frenchtown, the White Caps called on Joseph Rosenberger, a saloon-keeper. He was taken out, a badly scared man, and got orders that he must be more orderly and drink less whisky, under penalty of being tied to a tree and whipped and salted. At the residence of Paul Henriot, the Postmaster, and Judge J. C. Calhoun, the White Caps gave explicit orders to report Justice Hildebrand's fate to all his neighbors for miles around, or, failing to obey, they would be similarly treated and run out of the community."

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

—Forty-six of the sixty-four Grand Army posts in Connecticut have taken a vote upon the pension bill proposed by the national encampment. All but one favor the measure, which is practically identical with the bill vetoed by the President last spring.

—A Chicago dispatch of Wednesday says: General Terry has received the following, dated Fort Duchesne, Utah, Aug. 20:

Colorow and all his following are now at Ouray Agency, fifty miles from the Colorado, and manifest a disposition to remain on the reservation. There is no excitement among the Indians. The cowboys hold hundreds of horses and thousands of sheep and goats belonging to Colorow and Chiptie, Ouray's widow. This stock was grazing on the land claimed by the Indians as belonging to their reservation, and where they have been permitted by their agent to live for years. The Colorado settlers have claimed locations there, and have at last succeeded in driving the Indians in. Colorow has not in this trouble been on the warpath, and has made his way to the reservation, avoiding hostilities as far as possible.

—The Washington authorities have telegraphic advices that Colorow and his followers are all back at the Ouray agency, and willing to remain there. The Acting Secretary of the Interior requests the Governor of Colorado to take measures for the return of three hundred horses and a large number of sheep and goats, with other property belonging to the Indians. The militia and cowboys captured the animals and property, and the Acting Secretary asks that they be delivered to Agent Byrnes.

—The plant, franchise, and business of the Baltimore and Ohio Express have been sold to the United States Express Company for a period of thirty years. It is said the price paid was $2,500,000.

—Suits for damages amounting to $127,500 have been commenced at Peoria, Ill., against the Toledo, Peoria and Western Railroad Company—all growing out of the Chateworth disaster.

—There is another "international affair" on the Rio Grande. Mr. Brigham, United States Consul at Paso del Norte, called at the residence of Zubia, a local Mexican Judge, on some business. The Judge said he had more important affairs to attend to. The Consul, on leaving, made some remarks which the Judge did not like, and the latter thumped the Consul's head and then ran in and locked the door. The matter has been telegraphed to Washington.

M. T. BISHOP,

— DEALER IN —

LUMBER, LIME,

—LATH—

SHINGLES,

MOULDING &c.

Large Stock and Low Prices. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

MEAT MARKET

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNESS

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

Blacksmith

AND

Repair Shop.

Having secured the services of an experienced workman, I am now prepared to do all kinds of Blacksmithing and Repairing in a first-class manner. Special attention given to repairing machinery. Give me a call. Prices reasonable.

A. W. Hall, St. Joe.

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1887.

NO. 34.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLIMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind., John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a speciality. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—Patents have been granted to Indiana inventors as follows: Charles Bennett, Manchester, assignor of one-half to C. Arkenberg, Milan, churn; Benjamin F. Berger and I. Samsley, South Bend, wheel cultivator; William Bunday, Carthage, machine for making wire and wood fencing; William Dunkle, Linden, corn-planter; Martin A. Eisenhour, Plymouth, cultivator tooth; George S. Faulkner and G. K. Pope, Indianapolis, gas-pressure regulator and cut-off; Joseph Imler, Garrett, well-drilling machine; Samuel F. Knies, Warsaw, gate; Andrew J. Sonner, Miltown, hame coupling; Cyrus Stephens, C. A. Carter, and Louis Creek, straw-rope machine; Charles O. Wilder, Indianapolis, indicator attachment for chucks; Jacob Wintrode, Huntington, picket fence.

—One evening recently, while Eli Williams, who lives ten miles northwest of Portland, was returning home with a young man named Paxton Miller, he proposed to go over the watermelon-patch of Levi Pence and get a melon. Unfortunately for Williams, Pence was expecting some boys who had been there a few nights before, and was armed with a shotgun. When the man got fairly in the patch Pence fired, and twenty-one No 1 shot entered Williams' back, killing him instantly. Williams and Pence are both prosperous farmers. Williams leaves a family, and stood very high for honesty and industry.

—It is thought that the new building for the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home at Knightstown will be ready for occupancy by the first of December. It is proposed to make the house-warming a grand event for the children and the friends of this institution. A feature of the exercises is to be a military parade and drill by the boys, who are being organized for that purpose. The girls, too, are to have a share in the ceremonies. The managers think that within sixty days after the building is occupied they will have 500 children under their care. At present there are only 150 in the institution.

—A mass-meeting of citizens of Vincennes was held recently to protest against the driven-well royalty. Attorney J. T. Goodman presided, and Editor Boland, of the Commercial, acted as Secretary. A committee of ten, including several prominent citizens, was appointed to call on L. Johnson, the local agent for the collection of the royalty, for the purpose of requesting him to resign his position. Great feeling was shown by the meeting and it seems pretty well settled that any attempt to collect the odious royalty will meet with the most determined resistance.

—In a little house on the farm of Mr. John Potter, near Cementville, Clark County, lies dying the oldest woman in the State of Indiana. She is Maria Kennedy, colored, born in Henry County, Kentucky, in 1785, consequently is 102 years old. She came to Indiana about twenty-three years ago. Before the emancipation she was the slave of Mr. William Kennedy, twelve miles from Louisville on the Salt River Pike. Three children, the youngest 54 years old, twenty grandchildren, the oldest 40 years old, and thirty-nine great-grandchildren are her descendants.

—The Board of Trustees of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum has ordered the purchase of a printing press at a cost not to exceed $800. This will give them sixteen cases. Printing has been added to the regular industrial curriculum. They expect to publish a semi-monthly paper, as is done in New York, Kentucky, and some other States, at Institutions for the Deaf and Dumb. No distinction of sex will be made. It is expected that pupils will attain proficiency in type-setting in two years of instruction.

—A very sad accident occurred at English Lake, recently. While Joseph Podach and two young ladies, Miss Kate Homalka and Miss Tillie Honvalenka, were out boat riding on the lake, the boat upset and the girls were drowned. The bodies were raised in about an hour. Both girls were highly esteemed by all who knew them, and their loss is mourned by many. The young man escaped and is nearly wild with grief. All parties are Bohemians.

—While Mrs. Ida Steele and her aunt, Mrs. Dilliard, of Kansas, were driving near the railroad track at Greenfield, the horse became frightened at a passing train, suddenly turning, and both occupants were thrown from the buggy. Mrs. Dilliard's head struck a rock, and she received injuries that will prove fatal. Mrs. Steele was also seriously hurt, and may be crippled for life.

—Amos White, brakeman on the Bee-Line, was run over and killed at Muncie. He was making a coupling in the yards when he fell in front of a stone car, and was cut completely in two. Strange to say, he remained alive for over an hour. He piteously begged his friends to kill him. White was about 27 years of age, unmarried, and a resident of Lawrence.

—The nineteenth annual reunion of the 120th Indiana Volunteers will be held at Warsaw October 6. All ex-soldiers of Northeastern Indiana, and especially members of Hovey's division, 23d corps, are invited to be present. Communications addressed to E. G. Melundy, at Fremont, will be promptly answered.

—The postoffice at Stillwell, LaPorte County, was burglarized recently, and some $30 worth of stamps, all that the office contained, were carried off. A general store is conducted in connection with the office, but none of the goods were disturbed.

—While the 3-year-old child of Fletcher Pettinger, of Muncie, was playing in the yard it was butted and killed by a ram. The ram mangled the child terribly, breaking nearly every bone in its little body.

—The Indiana State headquarters of the G. A. R. will leave Indianapolis for St. Louis at 11 o'clock a. m., September 26, on a special train. Stops will be made at Greencastle, Brazil, and Terre Haute. The train will be lavishly decorated.

—A horrible accident occurred at a saw-mill near Markley, in Huntington County. The rope which held the circular saw broke, and the saw struck John Drabenstot, a mill hand, in the back, ripping his body almost open. He died in a short time.

—Lee Scott, farmer, living near Muncie, was gored to death by a bull.

—While a traction engine was passing along Pennsylvania street, Indianapolis, several boys attempted to climb upon it. Eddie Reardon, aged 11 years, fell beneath the wheels and was fatally crushed.

—The old-settlers' meeting at Oakland was very successful, the attendance being large, the weather beautiful, and the addresses very satisfactory.

—Edward Hermanheimer, living five miles west of Fort Wayne, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a gun he was polishing.

—Hog cholera has broken out in Wabash County.

—The eighth annual reunion of the Society of the Fifty-seventh Regiment Indiana Volunteers will be held in Richmond, Oct. 11 and 12.

—The fifth annual reunion of the Fifth Indiana Cavalry Association will be held at Greenfield on October 12 and 13.

—Rev. N. W. Heermans, of Ottawa, Ill., has accepted the rectorship of Christ Episcopal Church, Madison.

—John Federspeil, a wealthy blacksmith at New Haven, committed suicide by hanging in a barn.

—A young man named Henry Moréy was smothered to death in a gravel bank south of Fowler.

MONEY

TO

LOAN

On Farm Property

IN SUMS OVER $200.

Interest only once a year. We charge no commission. You can pay any part or all of the loan at any time. You can keep the money as long as you please if the interest is promptly paid. For further particulars call on or address

W. C. Patterson,
ST. JOE, IND.

Ho for Arkansas! Cheap Homes for Everybody!

In a high, healthy, rich land country. On the 15th of September and the 1st of October there will be excursions from this place to that point at a very low rate of fare. For full information in regard to these excursions call on A. B. Coburn, Real Estate Agent, St. Joe, Ind. Office with Dr. Sheffer, one door east of Drugstore.

GO to the News Office, St. Joe for all kinds of Printing. All work done promptly, and at the lowest prices. Give us a call.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencerville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining, Glazing Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcox. Call and see me, or leave orders at the St. Joe Drugstore.

HOW TO TREAT COMPANY.

Discourse by the Rev. Dr. Talmage at the Hamptons.

The Trials and Rewards of Christian Hospitality. The Toil and Expense of Exercising It. A Pretty Custom Among the Greeks.

THE HAMPTONS, Sept. 11.—The Rev. Dr. T. De Witt Talmage's text to-day was from Romans xii, 13: "Given to hospitality;" and his discourse was as follows:

"There is danger that the multiplication of large and commodious hotels in our towns and cities and villages will utterly exterminate that grace which Abraham exhibited when he entertained the angels, and which Lot showed when he watched for guests at the gate of the city, and which Christ recognized as a positive requisite for entering Heaven when He declared: 'I was a stranger and ye took me in.'"

I propose to speak this morning of the trials and rewards of Christian hospitality. The first trial often comes in the whim and eccentricity of the guest himself. There are a great many excellent people who have profuberances of disposition and sharp edges of temperament, and unliability of character, which make them a positive nuisance in any house where they stay. On short acquaintance they will begin to command the household affairs; order the employees to unusual services, keep unreasonable hours, use narcotics in places offensive to sensitive nostrils, put their feet at unusual elevations, drop the ashes of their Havana on costly tapestry, open bureaus they ought never to touch, and pry into things they ought never to see, and become impervious to rousing bells, and have all the peculiarities of the gormandizer or the dyspeptic, and make excavations from poor dentistry with unusual implements, and in a thousand ways afflict the household which proposes to take care of them. Added to all, they stay too long. They have no idea when their welcome is worn out, and they would be unmoved even by the blessing which my friend Gerrit Smith, the philanthropist, asked one morning at his breakfast table, on the day when he hoped that the long protracted guests would depart, saying: "O Lord, bless this provision and our friends who leave us to-day." But, my friends, there are alleviations to be put on their side of the scale. Perhaps they have not had the same refining influences about them in early life that you have had. Perhaps they have inherited eccentricities that they cannot help. Perhaps it is your duty, by example, to show them a better way. Perhaps they are sent to be a trial for the development of your patience. Perhaps they were to be intended as an illustration of the opposite of what you are trying to inculcate in the minds of your children. Perhaps it is to make your home the brighter when they are gone. When our guests are cheery and fascinating and elegant it is very easy to entertain them; but when we find in our guests that which is antagonistic to our taste and sentiment, it is a positive triumph when we can obey the words of my text, and be "given to hospitality."

Another trial in the using of this grace is in the toil and expense of exercising it. In the well-regulated household things go smoothly, but now you have introduced a foreign element into the machinery, and though you may stoutly declare that they must take things as they find them, the Martha will break in. The ungovernable stove; the ruined dessert; the joint that proves to be unmanageable; the delayed marketing; the perplexities of a caterer; the difficulty of doing proper work, and yet always being presentable. Though you may say there shall be no care or anxiety, there will be care and there will be anxiety. In 1694 the captain general provided a very grand entertainment, and among other things he had a fountain in his garden—a fountain of strong drink. In it were four hogsheds of brandy, eight hogsheds of water, 25,000 lemons, thirteen hundred-weight of Lisbon sugar, five pounds of grated nutmeg, 300 toasted biscuit, and a boat built on purpose was placed in the fountain and a boy rowed around it and filled the cups of the people who came there to be supplied. Well, you say, that was a luxurious entertainment, and of course the man had no anxiety; but I have to tell you that, though you had or propose an entertainment like that, you have anxiety. In the very thing comes the divine reward. We were born to serve, and when we serve others, we serve God. The flush on that woman's cheek, as she bends over the hot stove, is as sacred in God's sight as the flush on the cheek of one who, on a hot day, preaches the Gospel. We may serve God with plate, and cutlery, and broom, as certainly as we can serve him with psalm book and liturgy. Margaret, queen of Norway, and Sweden, and Denmark, had a royal cup of ten lips, on which were recorded the names of the guests who had drank from this cup. And every Christian woman has a royal cup, on which are written all the names of those who have ever been entertained by her in Christian style—names not cut by human ingenuity, but written by the hand of a divine Jesus. But, my friends, you are not to toil unnecessarily. Though the fare be plain, cheerful presidency of the table, and cleanliness of appointments will be good enough for anybody that ever comes to your house. John Howard was invited to the house of a nobleman. He said: "I will come on one condition, and that is that you have nothing but potatoes on the table." The requisition was complied with. Cyrus, King of Persia, under the same circumstances, prescribed that on the table there must be nothing but bread. Of course, these were extremes, but they are illustrations of the fact that more depends upon the banquet than upon the banquet. I want to lift this idea of Christian entertainment out of a positive large into a glorious inimitable. Every effort you put forth, and every dollar you give to the entertainment of friend or foe, you give directly to Christ. Suppose it were announced that the Lord Jesus Christ would come to this place this week, what woman in this house would not be glad to wash for Him, or spread for Him a bed, or bake bread for Him? There was one of old who washed for Him, drawing the water from the well of her own tears. He is coming. He will be here tomorrow. "Inasmuch as ye have done it to one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it to me." In picture galleries we have often seen representations of Walter Scott and his friends, or Washington Irving with his associates; but all those engravings will fade out, while through everlasting ages, hanging luminous and conspicuous, will be the pictures of you and your Christian guests.

You see we have passed out from the trials into the rewards of Christian hospitality: grand, glorious, and eternal. The first reward of Christian hospitality is the divine benediction. When any one attends to this duty, God's blessing comes upon him, upon his companion, upon his children, upon his dining-hall, upon his parlor, upon his nursery. The blessing comes in at the front door, and the back door, and down through the skylights. God draws a long mark of credit for services received. Christ said to His disciples: "He that receiveth you, receiveth me; and he that giveth a cup of cold water in the name of a disciple shall in no wise lose his reward." As we have had so many things recorded against us in Heaven, it will be a satisfaction to have written on unfading archives the fact that in the month of May, or June, or September, or December, 1887, we made the blissful mistake of supposing that we were entertaining weak men like ourselves, when lo! they shayed their pinions before they left, and we found out that they were angels unawares.

Another reward comes in the good wishes and prayers of our guests. I do not think one's house ever gets over having had a good man or woman abide there. George Whitefield used to scratch on the window of the room where he was entertained a passage of Scripture, and in one case, after he left, the whole household was converted by the reading of that passage on the window pane. The woman of Shunem furnished a little room over the wall for Elisha, and all the ages have heard the glorious consequences. On a cold, stormy winter night my father entertained Truman Osborne, the evangelist, and through all eternity I will thank God that Truman Osborne stopped at our house. How many of our guests have brought for us condolence and sympathy and help! There is a legend told of St. Sebald, that in his Christian rounds he used to stop for entertainment at the house of a poor cartwright. Coming there one day, he found the cartwright and his family freezing for the lack of any fuel. St. Sebald ordered the man to go and break the icicles from the side of the house and bring them in, and the icicles were brought into the house and thrown on the hearth, and they began to blaze immediately, and the freezing family gathered around and were warmed by them. That was a legend; but how often have our guests come in to gather up the cold, freezing sorrows of our life, kindling them into illumination and warmth and good cheer. He who opens his house to Christian hospitality turns those who are strangers into friends. Years will go by, and there will be great changes in you, and there will be a great change in them. Some day you will be sitting in loneliness, watching a bereavement, and you will get a letter in a strange handwriting, and you will look at the postoffice mark and say: "Why, I don't know anybody living in that city; and you will break the envelope, and there you will read the story of thanks for your Christian generosity long years before, and how they have heard afar off of your trouble. And the letter will be so full of kindly reminiscences and Christian condolence it will be a plaster large enough to cover up all the deep gashes of your soul. When we take people into our houses as Christian guests, we take them into our sympathies forever. In Dort, Holland, a soldier with a sword at his side stopped at a house, desiring lodging and shelter. The woman of the house at first refused admittance, saying that the men of the house were not at home; but when he showed his credentials that he had been honorably discharged from the army, he was admitted and tarried during the night. In the night time there was a knocking at the front door, and two ruffians broke in to despoil that household. No sooner had they come over the doorsill than the armed guest, who had primed his piece and charged it with slugs, met them, and telling the woman to stand back, I am happy to say, dropped the two assaulting desperadoes dead at his feet. Well, now there are no bandits prowling around to destroy our houses; but how often it is that we find those that have been our guests become our defenders. We give them shelter first, and then afterward in the conflicts of life they fought for our reputation, they fought for our property, they fought for our soul.

Another reward that comes from Christian hospitality is in the assurance that we shall have hospitality shown to us and to ours. In the upturnings of this life who knows in what city or what land we may be thrown, and how much we may need an open door? There may come no such crisis to us, but our children may be thrown into some such strait. He who is in a Christian manner hospitable has a free pass through all Christendom. It may be that you will have been dead fifty years before any such stress shall come upon one of your descendants; but do you not suppose that God can remember fifty years? and the knuckle of the grandchild will be heard against the door of some stranger, and that door will open, and it will be talked over in Heaven, and it will be said: "That man's grandfather, fifty years ago, gave shelter to a stranger, and now a stranger's door is open for a grandson."

Among the Greeks, after entertaining and being entertained, they take a piece of lead and cut it in two, and the host takes one-half of the piece of lead and the guest takes the other half as they part. These two pieces of lead are handed down from generation to generation, and from family to family, and after a while, perhaps one of the families in want or in trouble go out with this one piece of lead and find the other family with the corresponding piece of lead, and no sooner is the tally completed than the old hospitality is aroused and eternal friendship pledged. So the memory of Christian hospitality will go down from generation to generation, and from family to family, and the tally will never be lost, neither in this world nor the world to come.

Mark this: The day will come when we will all be turned out of doors—without any exception—bare foot, bare head, no water in the canteen, no bread in the haversack, and we will go in that way into the future world. And I wonder if eternal hospitalities will open before us, and if we will be received into everlasting habitations? Francis Frescobaldi was a rich Italian, and he was very merciful and very hospitable. One day an Englishman by the name of Thomas Cromwell appeared at his door asking for shelter and alms, which were cheerfully rendered. Frescobaldi afterward lost all his property, became very poor, and wandered up into England, and one day he saw a procession passing, and lo! it was the Lord Chancellor of England, and lo! the Lord Chancellor of England was Thomas Cromwell, the very man whom he had once befriended down in Italy. The Lord Chancellor at the first glance of Frescobaldi recognized him and dismounted from his carriage, threw his arms around him and embraced him, paid his debts, invited him to his house and said: "Here are ten pieces of money to pay for the bread you gave me, and here are ten pieces of money to provide for the horse you loaned me, and here are four bags, in each of which are 400 denars. Take them and be well." So it will be at last with us. If we entertain Christ in the person of His disciples in this world, when we pass up into the next country we will meet Christ in a regal procession, and He will pour all the wealth of Heaven into our lap and open before us everlasting hospitalities. And O how tame are the richest entertainments we can give on earth compared with the regal magnificence which Christ will display before our souls in Heaven! I was reading the account which Thomas Fuller gives of the entertainment provided by George Neville. Among other things for that banquet they had 300 quarters of wheat, 104 tons of wine, 80 oxen, 3,000 capons, 200 cranes, 200 kids, 4,000 pigeons, 1,000 rabbits, 204 bitterns, 200 pheasants, 500 partridges, 400 plover, 100 quail, 100 curlews, 1,500 hot pasties, 4,000 cold venison pasties, 4,000 custards—the Earl of Warwick acting as steward, and servants 1,000. O, what a grand feast was that! but then compare it with the provision which God has made for us on high; that great banquet hour; the 144,000 as guests; all the harps and trumpets of Heaven as the orchestra; the vintage of the celestial hills poured into the tankards; all the fruit of the orchards of God piled on the golden platters; the angels of the Lord for cup bearers, and the once folded starry banner of the blue sky flung out over the scene, while seated at the head of the table shall be the One who eighteen centuries ago declared: "I was a stranger and ye took me in." Our sins pardoned, may we all mingle in those hospitalities!

A LITTLE grain of the romance is no ill ingredient to preserve and exalt the dignity of human nature, without which it is apt to degenerate into everything that is sordid, vicious, and low.—Swift.

He that would relish success to purpose should keep his passion cool, and his expectation low.—Jeremy Collier.

What the Dying Umpire Said.

A base-ball umpire lay dying. It appears there was lack of tender usage, there was dearth of friendly cheers, and a player stood beside him as his life's sands ebbed away, and bent with rapt attention to hear what he might say. The "croaking" umpire faltered as he took the player's paw, and he said: "Old boy, I'm going; you'll miss my tuneful jay. Say to all your brother players who were once dear (?) friends of mine: If they check the man who runs the game, expect they must a fine." Tell the pitcher of your base-ball club—I think his name is Mike—that he can't expect each ball that's pitched to be declared a 'strike,' and he mustn't scowl and show his wrath or make display of gall, when the hired man behind the plate shouts forcibly 'one ball.' And just whisper to your brother not to pause when ball is caught; such breaks as that will change a man's decision not a jot. Besides," he said, his glossy eyes were wet with tears of brine, "they cannot grumble if they get a reasonable fine. Tell your 'coacher, who at first or third is wont to take his place, not to open up his insillade until a man's on base; and, furthermore, if captain, I would warn him to desist, for he makes the people tired, and he never would be missed. Tell the fellows that an umpire's only human, after all, and they can't expect him not to err sometimes in games of ball, and the only way we have to keep recalcitrants in line is to 'sock it to 'em' gently with a 'tenner' for a fine. Say to all the members of your club, whenever disputes arise, that it hurts one's feelings to be told direct that he lies; and, also to the fellows three who occupy the field, to hold their ground, because, be sure the umpire will not yield. This wordy warfare only serves to cause delays in the game. You may hound the umpire most to death, but he'll get there just the same, and he'll make cold shivers 'chassez' up and down each kicker's spine by passing around among you all a souvenir in fine. Tell the mouthy men, who make remarks while seated in the stand, that their witticisms and chestnuts, are no time in demand; that umpires cannot always rule in favor of their team, however strange or startling this assertion may seem, and cries of 'rats' put 'em out' and 'umpire, how is that?' disgust all lovers of the game—are silly, 'stale, and flat.' Such people should in dungeons be, and there, be made repine, for an umpire cannot reach them with his customary fine. I'm going now, old fellow; I think I've told you all the things that umpires must detest while refereeing ball. I've done my best to satisfy the patrons of the game, and if I erred in judgment, sure my heart was, not to blame. I've only this request to make when I am laid away, that you'll think of what I told you in the games you'll often play. Soon I'll quit this sphere of sorrow for a land that's more divine, where the umpire gets a square shake, and there's no more need for fine."—St. Paul Globe.

The Wedding Ring.

The ceremony perceeded along smooth and proper till Hannibal undertook to find the ring to put on my finger. Then there was trouble. He fumbled first in one pocket, then another, took out a cigar, a little box o' matches, a tooth-pick, a penknife, a horse-chestnut that he alwers carries for rheumatiz, and several other things—took 'em out one to a time, looked at 'em thoughtful and inquirin' and put 'em back agin. Finally he dove into some place and took out a little wad o' paper, and all our sperits revived. That looked more like, but when he ondid it, out rolled a dozen or more sugar-coated pills on to the floor! He let 'em roll and tried agin. This time he fished out a small card that 'peared ter have some writin' on it. (I found out afterwards that he'd writ down on that card where he put the ring, for fear he'd forgot, jest as he had.) When he'd read the card what did-dedew but stoop over deliberate and pull off one o' 'em dreifal boots and shake the ring out o' the 'tee on't! Then he put his boot back on, and straightened himself up as calm as if it was customary and common for bridegrooms to carry the ring in the toe o' their boots, and, takin' my hand, slipped the ring on to my finger as graceful as you please.—American Magazine.

IMMORTALITY will come to such as are fit for it, and he who would be a great soul in the future must be a great soul now.—Emerson

NABBED BY WOLF MEN.

A Montana Mail-Carrier's Narrow Escape from Being Hanged.

"Vic Smith is a famous character in the northern territories, and though he is less than thirty-five years of age his experience as a government scout has given him a wider knowledge of the country along the Missouri and Yellowstone rivers, the Big and Little Horn, and Powder, Musselshell, and Tongue rivers than any man in Montana or Dakota. I spent a day in Vic's company last summer, and he told me an event in his life that was as remarkable as it was interesting," said a gentleman to a San Francisco Examiner reporter. "He was born in Milwaukee, and ran away from home at the age of thirteen. When seventeen he was carrying the mail between Fort Abercrombie, on the Devil's lake, and Grand Forks. The city of Grand Forks was then only a wolf station. That is, there was only a shed for travelers to put up at and for men who poison wolves for a living during the winter. They received bounty money for each tail and sold the pelts, and they did quite well during the fall and winter. It was in the fall when the frosts were heavy and biting cold that a rich prospector named Brown arrived at the wolf station and told the men that he was looking for land. He intimated that he had $5,000 upon him, and was anxious to have it laid away in some secure place for the several days he would remain in camp. The men were all supposed to be honest, and the traveler had no fear.

"In the camp was a dissolute man named Robinson, who had been lounging about for a month and making himself generally obnoxious to the other men. Brown had been in camp three days when Robinson took leave of the men with the remark that he was going up to the fort, which was 120 miles distant and a three days' ride.

"Vic was out a day and a half from Fort Abercrombie with his mail, and was riding along at an easy canter, when Robinson rode up. 'Hello, Vic,' he says; 'that's a nice horse you're riding.' Vic answered that it was, but thought Robinson's was a much better one. Then the latter proposed a trade, and to hurry up a bargain offered Vic a premium of $50. It was accepted at once, and as they were parting Robinson handed him a pistol, which he told him to put in his saddle pouch. Vic was very happy when he pulled up at the next 'dog station' about sundown, and set to work preparing his supper of bacon and bread. He had just finished his repast when half a dozen wolfmen came up to the door. They did not speak, and after waiting some time for them to make some remark Vic told them if they wanted any supper they could come in and cook it for themselves. 'There's lots of bacon and flour, so help yourselves,' he said. They looked at each other and then roared with laughter. 'You've got considerable gall, youngster,' they said, and then one stepped in and took him out of the shanty. They bound him hand and foot, then driving a stake in the ground, tied him to it. This done, they went in and prepared their supper. Vic was young, though spirited, and he begged that they would not leave him in that position all night for he would freeze. They would hold no conversation with him, but turned in and slept until morning. When day broke they arose and found Vic numb and apparently lifeless. His limbs were swollen to twice their size from the hemp which had been tied so tightly about them. He was in a frightful condition, and his long black glossy hair was turned to white; not a black hair could be seen. One old man in the party took compassion on him and loosened his hands. A consultation was held and it was decided to hang him at once.

"Where did you get your horse?" they asked. He told them, but they did not believe his story. Then it just dawned upon him that the horse he got from Robinson was not his property. He was correct in his surmises. Brown left camp the day after Robinson did, and the latter, knowing that Brown intended passing along the trail next day, lay in wait and murder him. A traveler, passing soon after, noticed the body, and informed the wolfmen at the station. They started out immediately to find the murderer, and seeing Vic with Brown's horse supposed they had the right man.

"Vic pleaded with tears in his eyes and asked them to go up to the fort and ask the officers there whether he had not left there only two days since.

"They did not wish to go to the trouble but the old man said they should give him that little show for his life, and the others acquiesced. They decided to take him within six miles of the fort and wait there while one man went up and inquired what time Vic had left. This was done and Vic's life was saved."

Letter-writing in Olden Time.

In nothing has our mode of life as a people changed more noticeably than in our letter-writing. Now we telegraph or write short notes if business is our theme, or take the railroad or steamboat if pleasurable converse with friends be our object. Felix Oldboy, in the Evening Post, discourses delightfully of the part the letter played in his boyhood:

The art of writing a letter is unknown to the generation of to-day. Cheap postage killed it, and the telegraph buried it. People have neither the time nor the patience to sit down and write a dozen pages of gossip, giving delicious glimpses of life painted with the delicacy of a photograph and with its fidelity. Yet this was the epistolary style of our ancestors. I remember the advent of such letters in my boyhood. A great packet of creamy paper, carefully folded by the rule we were taught in boyhood, addressed with many a quaint but painstaking flourish, and made fast with a broad seal of red wax bearing the sender's coat-of-arms, was handed in by the postman and welcomed with a universal shout. What a revelation it was. There was the atmosphere of the Blue Ridge of Western Virginia in its folds, the lapping of the shallow waters of the Shenandoah over their rocky bed, the rustling of the warty branches and waxy leaves of the persimmon tree, the lowing of great herds of cattle on the mountain side, the waving of meadowy miles of yellow wheat, the song of the slave at his toil, the prattle of the little ones from the cool depths of the verandas that surrounded the great house, and the glint of the white hair of my mother's grandfather, who had fought at Yorktown, and in his quiet Southern home was nearing the century milestone. It was an event in my life when I was first permitted to send a letter in reply to a message in one of these epistles. A week's labor was put into it, and I know that it faithfully mirrored every phase of our city life, down to my surreptitious guinea-pigs in the back yard.

Here is a yellow, faded sheet which contains on its three quarto pages in the cramped little school hand of the day, the story of a voyage from New York and Santa Cruz, in the brig Eliza, forty-four years ago this month. It is only a child's letter, but it tells of the flying fish and the nautilus, of the hooks thrown overboard that came back laden with seaweed in which little crabs made their burrows, of sailors clambering aloft, and the black cook catching a sea that wrecked his tray of dishes and his dignified self—and in these groupings of the pen it is the perfection of a letter.

Bright Prospects.

Gus Snobberly is one of Gotham's fast young men. His tailor sent word to him the other day that he must come and see him about his bill. He called and found the man of the shears busy at his desk figuring up accounts.

"I really cannot understand why you do not pay me my little bill. You had a good salary and it has been raised," said the tailor.

"Yes."

"And you promised me faithfully that you would pay me out of the amount you saved from your extra allowance."

"Precisely."

"Then you have lied to me, for you haven't paid me the first red cent."

"I haven't lied at all. I simply haven't saved anything from my extra allowance. When I do I'll pay you. Your prospects, my dear sir, are brighter than they ever were before."

—Texas Sitings.

THE love of some men for their wives is like that of Altiery for his horse. "My attachment for him," said he, "went so far as to destroy my peace every time that he had the least ailment; but my love for him did not prevent me from fretting and chafing him whenever he did not wish to go my way."

—Bover.

Misery After Eating

Is avoided by dyspeptics who, guided by the recorded experience of thousands, begin and systematically pursue a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Persistence in the use of this pure and highly accredited stomachic, is the sole and agreeable condition of the entire removal of the obstinate forms of dyspepsia, no less than a temporary fit of indigestion. In connection with the use of this specific, it is desirable to avoid articles of food which individual experience has shown to be difficult of digestion, by the stomach sought to be benefited. Each dyspeptic's past observation of his digestive capacity should enable him to be his own guide, and mentor in this particular, not trusting to any set of dietetic rules too general to be suited to particular cases. Bilioousness and constipation, heartburn, wind upon the stomach, sour eructations, headache and mental despondency, are among the concomitants of dyspepsia, and we put it to flight by the Bitters.

Wasn't Fit to Go Anywhere.

"Oi, say, Dinny, air yees afther seein' O'Rafferty this mornin'?" asked Micky Shane of his next-door neighbor, as he leaned over the fence.

"Faith, Oi hivin't, Micky."

"Begorra, an' utes all broke up, so he is."

"Phawt do be ailin' av im?"

"Din't ye hear about it? No! Well,ould yer whist till Oi be afther tellin' yeess. Shure, his old woman, Nora, doid lasht week, long loife to her, an' O'Rafferty gave her the finest wake in the county av Moglahod. She'd er hid-loight av four'e as nate candles at'er fate as iver yer saw; an' tha poteen! Och! but niver moind that. Ute not 'bout that same Oid be afther tellin' yeess. Whin Timmy Flynn an' Doompny, the crooner, waz er carryin' av'er oot, the shutter turned cospide doon, an' the poor craythur rolled over'n the doort. Hiven! bliss her! an' yer moind ut rained yisterdy. An' O'Rafferty sed, sez he—an' phawt d'y'e s'pose 'e sed?"

"Ochone! it's meself that couldn't till a wurrid."

"He loked at Nora an' sez, sez he, 'Wurra, wurra, avick! Oi spint three pound sixpence fer candles an' snoot an' poteen an' poipes ter aise yer way ter Hiven, an' begorra, now yer ain't fit ter go ter the devil, himself!'"

Italy's Abyssinian Expedition.

The Italian government will have 30,000 troops in Abyssinia by the middle of September. They propose to punish King John for interrupting their stealing of his territory. The experience of England in punishing an Abyssinian king, some years ago, shows that one little expedition into the interior with 20,000 or 30,000 men costs $60,000,000 to $70,000,000. The Italians are in for a very expensive war, and possibly a disastrous one.—New Orleans Times Democrat.

A Bloody Affray

Is often the result of "bad blood" in a family or community, but nowhere is bad blood more destructive of happiness and health than in the human system. When the life current is foul and sluggish with impurities, and is slowly distributing its poisons to every part of the body, the peril to health, and life even, is imminent. Early symptoms are dull and drowsy feelings, severe headaches, coated tongue, poor appetite, indigestion and general lassitude. Delay in treatment may entail the most serious consequences. Don't let disease get a strong hold on your constitution, but treat yourself by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and be restored to the blessings of health. All druggists.

The jackass would not hide his ears if he could. He thinks they look well enough.—New Orleans Picayune.

In another column of this issue will be found an entirely new and novel specimen of attractive advertising. It is one of the neatest ever placed in our paper and we think our readers will be well repaid for examining the supposed display letters in the advertisement of Prickly Ash Bitters.

"SARAH," said a war "it's all over town!" "What's all over town?" was the anxious inquiry. "Mud," Sarah's eyes dropped.

REMEMBER that one of Smith's Bile Beans does the work of five ordinary cathartic pills and that it is absolutely harmless.

Don't undertake to kiss a furious woman; risk not a smack in a storm.

32 PANTS

32 SHOES

HANDSOME, STYLISH PANTS

OUR FULL SEAMLESS SHOES

made to order in first-class style. Perfect fit guaranteed or money refunded.

For samples of cloth and 4 foot tape measure (worth 10c.) send 3c. stamps. Circulars Free.

beat the world. Made in sizes and styles to please. Perfect fit guaranteed. We refer to any Bank, Express Co., or leading business house in this city.

Established in 1877.

THE HUNTER CINCINNATI, O. MFG CO.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficent influence of

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health. It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young. As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

FOR HORSES. Uvilla, W. Va., Nov. 17, 1886.

Recently I bought a young horse. He was taken very ill with Pneumonia. I tried to think of something to relieve him. Concluded what was good for man would be good for the horse. So I got a bottle of Piso's Cure and gave him half of it through the nostrils. This helped him, and I continued giving same doses night and morning until I had used two bottles. The horse has become perfectly sound. I can recommend Piso's Cure for the horse as well as for man.

N. S. J. STRIDER.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

FOR ALL DISORDERS OF THE Stomach, Liver and Bowels

STRICTLY VEGETABLE. Cure Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Piles, Sick Headache, Liver Complaints, Loss of Appetite, Biliousness, Nervousness, Jaundice, etc. For Sale by all Druggists. Price, 25 Cents. PACIFIC MANUFACTURING CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

BIRDSELL

THE NEW CLOVER HULLER

DOES ITS WORK FASTER AND BETTER THAN ANY OTHER

OUR NEW RE-CLEANER

CLEAN THE SEED FOR MARKET AND LATE SOWING

Young Man and woman should have a practical business education. The best school is the DETROIT BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Detroit, Mich., established 1897; 70 students last year. Superior Short-hand school. Elegant illustrated Catalogue free.

Every PATENTS R. E. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Instructions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 17 years' experience.

PENSIONS FREE An increase may be due. Address M. R. STEVENSON, Metropolitan Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

$5 to $3 a day. Samples worth $1.50, FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Write Brewer Safety Razor Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

GOLD is worth $200 per pound. Pettit's Eye Salve ($1.00), but is sold at 25 cents a box by dealers.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
One Year, in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months ..... .50
Three Months ..... .25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe as second-class matter.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1887.

The B. & O. has sold out slick and clean.

Mart Eagle and family are attending the fair at Montpelier, this week, and visiting friends in that vicinity.

There will a concert in the U. B. church at Newville, to-morrow evening. Some fine music will be rendered.

The Normal school closed Tuesday. So far as we have heard, Prof. Price has given the best of satisfaction.

Henry Milliman, Al Bishop and John Provins went to Potoskey, Tuesday, to fish, hunt and have a general good time.

J. D. Leighty accompanied his son John to Terre Haute this week, after which he went to Indianapolis to see whether any thing could be done by way of a compromise in the drive well matter.

Jonathan Shull presented the News this week with a sweet potato that weighed just 41 pounds. It's a lunker, and we predict that it can't be beat in this neighborhood. It will make the News family several square meals.

Some change in the management of J. B. & O., Avilla people have got it into their heads that the shops at Garrett will be moved to that place. The Avilla News cautions them to keep cool, and not count their chickens before they are hatched.

Mell Bishop is having the property he recently purchased of Wash Woodcox repaired, painted and papered and will move into it just as soon as the work is completed. Mell will have a pleasant and convenient home when he gets every thing arranged as he has planned.

Frank Sechler and Vester Widney went to Attica, Ohio yesterday, to visit with Mr. and Mrs. Sell Bowen and other friends. They will be gone two or three weeks and will attend the Sandusky fair, and other points of interest. This is Vester's first trip on the cars and he and his dog Sam will enjoy it highly. We wish them a pleasant time.

School Day at the Waterloo Fair promises to be one of the most interesting days. The best of arrangements are being perfected, and the children are to have a real gala day. All the school children and teachers of the county are to be admitted free, and County Superintendent Merica is very anxious that they all attend.

BRACE UP.—You are feeling depressed, your appetite is poor, you are bothered with Headache, you are fidgetty, nervous, and generally out of sorts, and want to brace up. Brace up, but not with stimulants, spring medicines, or bitters, which have for their basis very cheap, bad whisky, and which stimulate you for an hour, and then leave you in worse condition than before. What you want is an alternative that will purify your blood, start healthy action of Liver and Kidneys, restore your vitality, and give renewed health and strength. Such a medicine you will find in Electric Bitters, and only 50 cents a bottle at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

SPENCERVILLE.

Ivan Fryberger is again able to be on the streets.

Misses Rallie and Rossie Murphy of Leo, were in town Saturday.

P. Bishop and wife visited with their daughter Mrs. Kagey at Hicksville last Tuesday.

Miss Iva Hussey, of Kendallville, was the guest of Miss Minnie Provins a part of last week.

The Lutheran Sunday school will attend the picnic to be held at Halls corners next Saturday.

Considerable damage was done by the storm last week. Mill Hersh was one of the unfortunate in having a valuable cow killed by lightning.

Prof. Weedan held a meeting in the Lutheran church Tuesday evening for the purpose of organizing a singing class. Quite a large number are in attendance.

Dell Steward had quite an accident Saturday evening. His horse frightening at some lumber on a bridge backed off of the embankment, doing considerable damage.

NEWVILLE.

Mrs. Rhodes was called to Hicksville to attend her sister who is very low.

W. B. Cheesman and Milo Stafford have gone on a hunting expedition for a few days.

Miss Josephine Lorens has returned from Findlay, Ohio, and will remain until fall.

Mr. Plum is moving his family into the house vacated by Gustus Flint, where they will live this winter.

Mr. Porter and wife have returned from their extended visit in Michigan, and look improved by their journey.

There will be a picnic on the Brethren church ground, Saturday afternoon Sept. 17th, 1887. All are invited.

Mrs. Jones, of Garrett, will address the Band of Hope on next Sunday, and deliver a lecture at the Brethren church in the evening.

Prof. E. L. Coburn is holding a free singing school at the Brethren church and will close on next Saturday evening with a concert. Everybody should attend as they expect a jolly good time.

CORINTHTOWN.

R. G. Coburn sold two Albion Cultivators last week.

There was no meeting at the Corners last Sunday, to much rain.

War Coburn has just completed the mason work on Dave Murray's new house.

The Sunday school will attend the Hicksville fair in a body, as they go in free.

Mrs. Emma Abel, of Hesperia, is expected here on a visit to her parents in a few days.

Nelson Scholes will put a slate roof on his house this week. He expects the slaters on about Thursday.

Some sickness in town. Grandma Milliman is quite poorly, and A. B. Coburn is not feeling as well for the last few days.

Mrs. Sell Gee visited with her parents a few days last week, while Sell was at work on the Rolland Bearss house, for Volmer and Smith.

In answer to your correspondent from Pigeon's Retreat permit me to say, there is no black-tongue diphtheria between St. Joe and Hicksville, nor has't been as I can ascertain. If there is such a report out it is no doubt false.

J. M. Milliman will canvas the township for the sale of a very interesting book, the title of which I have forgotten. Give him your patronage as he is in feeble health, and deserves it; that is your patronage, not his poor health.

EXAMINE THE LARGEST, FINEST,

AND MOST COMPLETE LINE OF

Men's, Ladies', Misses' & Children's FINE SHOES.

Ever exhibited in St. Joe. They comprise the most popular brands, such as Reed, Weaver, Gokey & Son, &c. The buttons will be reset on all shoes purchased of us, with Wilkin's patent fasteners. Call and see.

J. D. LEIGHTY, ST. JOE.

PIGEON'S RETREAT.

Little Beulah Koch was quite sick last week.

Miss Emma Kline is the happy possessor of a brand new organ.

Laten Lake and wife, and Joe Keister and wife spent Sunday at Solomon Shilling's.

Will and Elsworth Shilling shipped a car load of cattle to Massillon, Ohio one day this week.

Laten Lake has had to draw several loads of water from the river for his cattle on account of his well being dry.

Martin Kline is still very poorly. A number of his neighborly neighbors gathered in last Saturday afternoon and cut corn for him.

Clark Mathews still makes his weekly visits through this place, and deals out cash and groceries to the farmers wives, in exchange for their butter and eggs.

The cyclone last week did no further damage than blowing most of the winter apples off the trees, uprooting a few apple and forest trees and frightening E. L. Dilley's folks so badly that they took refuge in the cellar. George recovered sufficiently from his scare however, to call upon his best girl Saturday evening.

CONCORD.

Mrs. Henry Baker is very sick with intermittent fever.

"Bub" Shilling returned from an Ohio visit the first of the week.

Mrs. Shurts and Mrs. Smith are slowly recovering from a protracted illness.

George Hamilton and wife visited at the M. P. parsonage in St. Joe last Tuesday.

Mrs. Ida Stafford has been seriously ill nearly all summer, and at present is but very little better.

The Sunday school was thinly attended last Sabbath, because of the disagreeableness of the weather.

We are informed that Alcock's kitchen caught fire and burned down, while himself and family were at the picnic, one week ago last Saturday.

The News editor thinks they may be the prettiest girls in the world. We are glad to see you stuck to your own town, but 'tis a pity you may have been away from home.

Last Tuesday about twenty friends and neighbors met at the residence of her parents, to celebrate Mrs. O. birthday. A good many interesting presents were given, and good time had by all present.

Lyman Knight met with an accident last Saturday evening. As he was coming home from a horse back, some one behind him, frightened his horse, and throwing him to the ground. I was hurt quite badly, but seriously we have not yet.

I am an American, and keep the genuine American Tin Plate, the best in the market. Roofing, Spouting, and Guttering a specialty. A full line of Cartridges, Shot, Powder, Cutlery &c., at J. A. Conrad's, St. Joe, Ind. Give me a call when needing any thing in my line. All work fully warranted, and prices the very lowest.

A Disastrous Flood!

Heavy damages done by the over-throw of High Prices, and we will continue same. Good Brown Sugar 5 and 6 cts. Granulated 7 cts. Rosin 5 cts. Alum 5 cts. Salts 5 cts. Bird Seed 8 cts. Salt Peter 12 1/2 cts. Prunes 6 1/2 cts. Good Gingham 6 cts. Dress Goods at your own price. Grain Sacks 18 cts. All goods as cheap as the cheapest. Highest market price paid for Wheat, Oats and Seeds.

S. & F. Barney

Watch and Clock

REPAIRING DONE.

and all work warranted satisfactory by C. A. Patterson, at the

ST. JOE

DRUGSTORE,

where will be found at all times a full line of

JEWELRY, GLOVES, WATCHES,

GENERAL DRUGS,

MEDICINES, PAINTERS' SUPPLIES, TOBACCOES, CIGARS, AC., SCHOOL BOOKS AND SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

THEIR BUSINESS BOOMING.

Probably no one thing has caused such a general revival of trade at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store as their giving away to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Their trade is simply enormous in this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints: Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

LOCALS.

The Hicksville fair will be on deck next week.

Case & Olds sell the Fort Wayne factory vams.

Hugh Nelson of Hicksville, was in town Tuesday.

Joe Smith is agent for an organ that turns with a crank.

Bartine's band made some fine music on our streets yesterday.

Wheat is bringing 70 cts, Oats 26 cts, Eggs 13 cts, Butter 15 cts.

Bartine's circus exhibited here yesterday. It went from here to Hicksville.

The Methodist Sunday school will attend a picnic at Springfield Center to-morrow.

Geo. Wilson, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Kagey of Hicksville were in town Thursday.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. will attend a temperance picnic at Newville to-morrow.

Geo. Hamm and Jimmie Ryan had a little tussle with Blackstone at Spencerville this week.

Chas. Sullivan, the big man of Garrett, was trying the strength of our side-walks last Monday.

Adam Chubb put up this week, by bringing in a stalk of corn that measures twelve feet and one inch high.

John Leighty left Monday for Terre Haute, where he will enter upon a four year's course of studies at the State University.

The W. C. T. U. will meet at the residence of Mrs. M. J. Widney on Sept. 22nd, at 2:30 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

A party was given at the residence of John Davis last Monday evening, by the Normal students, in honor of Prof. Price. A very pleasant time was had.

While Jim White was fooling with one of the knives in Frank Walker's harness shop the other day, he accidentally cut the arm of Grant Burchfield in quite a serious manner. It will lay him up for several weeks.

Farmers are using considerable salt this fall as a fertilizer.

Miss Callie Ettinger of Waterloo, visited friends in this place last week.

The Waterloo Fair offers many new attractions this year. Week after next is the time.

The balloon ascensions at the Hicksville fair will be made by a lady, on Wednesday and Thursday.

On the Lake Shore railroad the fast trains have steam-boat whistles on them, to distinguish them from other trains.

Hi Blinks was married last week to Miss Laura E. Simmers of Hicksville. They visited friends in this place last Sunday.

Cranberries are in the market at 8 and 10 cents a quart. They make the best kind of sauce, but when you buy a quart of them you might as well lay in a supply of sugar.

Lige Saylor was married a few days ago to Miss Fanny Boylich, of Wilmington township. Lige was rather shy about it, as it is not generally known in this neighborhood.

The matter of changing the arithmetics in the schools of the county has been laid over until next spring. At that time they had better lay it over again and then keep it laid over.

Already sixty-five Reading Circles have been formed among the teachers of the county. These circles can be made of great benefit to teachers and we hope to see one organized here.

One of the prisoners in the jail at Auburn made a saw from a steel shank out of his shoe, one day last week, and had sawed one of the bars to the door partly off, when he was detected and the saw taken from him.

Stanley Van Fliet was given a position on the B. & O. this week, as night-operator at Alida, Ind. Peck Sanders takes his place here, and tags the mail bags around with a broad grin on his face and says: "Don't stop the U. S. mail."

A man in Michigan was awarded damages against the owner of a dog who frightened his team by running out into the street and barking, causing it to run away. It is certainly very annoying, and sometimes dangerous, to have a dog come barking snapping and snarling in front of a team when driving along the road. A dog may be a good thing in its place, but just where its place is, is sometimes a hard matter to tell.

The following item from Emanuel Elm, who has been spending the past two or three weeks with Will Dilleys at Graceland, Iowa, was handed to us for publication this week: "I noticed in the St. Joe News the amount of grain taken in at the elevator at St. Joe in a week, and I thought I would drop you a few lines and let you know how the west is off for grain. I was in town a few days ago, and there were two elevators, at the one there was 3000 bushels unloaded in one day, and I think there was equally that much grain taken in at the other elevator.

Our neighboring town of Butler must be growing in a very rapid manner, judging from the following item from that place: Harry Weamer, proprietor of the Weamer House, says: "Last week I went out to the ball ground to witness a game of base ball, and on my return I noticed four new dwelling houses, which sprang up while the game was in progress." That's putting it pretty strong, but really, Butler is building up fast. We were over there last week, and were surprised to see the many new, and elegant residences that are being erected. Truly Butler boometh.

We invite your attention to our new line of fall clothing which we have just received this week. No shoddy, but all the best goods at low prices. Good line of Overcoats, and the Nobbiest lot of latest styled men's hats in town. Call and see them. Case & Olds.

CLOTHING

In men's and boys' boots our stock never was as large and prices as low as this season. We earnestly solicit a share of your boot patronage and promise you full value for all the money you spend with us. Drop in and look us over.

TRUTH IS MIGHTY, AND WILL PREVAIL.

LOOK THIS WAY!

I keep on hand a fine line of Furniture which I will sell for the next 60 days at prices that defy competition. Glass Cupboards $8.50. Double Canoe Seat and Back Rockers $2. Dressing Case, with French Plate Glass $12.00. Carpet Lounges $6.50. Solid Comfort Beds for $22.25. Undertaking a specialty.

August Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.

Go to M. Tustison,

DEALER IN

Groceries, Flour,

PROVISIONS,

CANDIES, CIGARS & C.

and get some of those splendid Fresh Apples, only 23c per can.

ST. JOE, IND.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by W. C. Patterson.

GARD OF THANKS.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. return thanks to Rev. J. A. Thomas for kindly donating to them the proceeds of his lecture, delivered at the Methodist church, Sept. 7th.

C. P. Houser, of Auburn, was in town Wednesday.

You will always find a good line of Men's Shoes at Case & Olds.

Mrs. Dr. Houghton of Hometown, visited friends in this place this week.

There will be a bicycle race at the Waterloo Fair. Don't forget it, from 26th to 30th of September.

J. H. Conrad our cranky tinner, fell from a roof the other day, and might have hurt himself, but he didn't.

A threshing machine fell onto John Johnson the other day, or rather John fell onto a threshing machine and hurt one side of his face quite seriously.

Ad Chubb came into the store the other day and said: "I might just as well tell it; we've got a new baby up to the Chubb house, that weighs 114 pounds." Its the biggest Chubb Adam ever caught.

THE INTER-STATE FAIR.

Fort Wayne, Indiana, September 27, 28, 29, 30, 1887.

For five years past the Inter-State Fair has had

The largest cattle show in the State. The largest horse show in the State. The largest sheep show in the State. The largest hog show in the State. The largest poultry show in the State. The best races in the State. The most liberal premiums of any Fair in the State.

The best line of attractions and amusements of any Fair in the State. Every premium has been paid in full, as advertised, and every promise has been fulfilled.

The Fair of 1887 will equal its predecessors in every particular, and many features will surpass any former Fair.

The same liberal policy in regard to premiums and attractions will govern the management this year, as in the past. Exhibitors will receive uniformly courteous treatment, and liberal inducements to show at the Fort Wayne Fair.

To the progressive farmer the stock exhibit, the immense line of agricultural implements, and the horticultural display offer an interesting field of study, and sufficient to repay him for the time and money spent at the Fair.

To the mechanic the many improvements in machinery, and other displays in the mechanical line will afford an endless amount of instruction and amusement.

To entertain the amusement seekers, a fine line of attractions have been secured, over $30,000 being offered in this department alone.

Believing that in no way can the farmer, the mechanic, the laboring man, the merchant, the housewife, the young and the old receive the same amount of instruction and amusement as at the great Inter-State Fair, a cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

Last week Tuesday night, when the wind was blowing a two-forty gale, and the twisted lightning flashed, muttering thunder rolled on their promising evidence, of a general western cyclone, a good many people in this town got scared. The most that was sent quite red, to the flowery beds of ease, and none of them hankered to go out, and see what the wild winds were saying. Some of them, tho' seriously of moving into the cellars, and thus escape the impending danger. While all this commotion was going on, the Professor of the Normal school was slumbering, and snoring sweetly unconcerned that any thing unusual was happening. As the storm approached the landlord of the boarding house, where he is stopping, went to shut the windows, and as he went into his room the Professor thought it was a burglar, and as he was awakened suddenly out of his sleep, he was awfully scared, and as he raised up in bed his head stood on end, and he said: "Hold on there." I guess he offered to give up every thing if the burglar would just go away and leave him alone.

Barens Q. Hippenhammer.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & W. H. OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

CUTTING OFF THE BABY'S CURLS.

BY MARY A. DENISON.

My beautiful darling ran in from his play.
His blue eyes swimming with tears unshed;
"The boys all call me a 'dirl,' mamma,
And I isn't a 'dirl,'" he said.
"It's cause I've got curls, and they're just like a dirl's."

And I wish you'd cut off all these mis-table curls."

I held my darling close, close to my breast,
And I hushed his sobs with a sigh and a smile.
But oh, my heart was so ill at rest
As I thought of the past the while;
Must I sever those ringlets, half silk, half gold,
That lovingly over my fingers I rolled?

I thought of the baby kisses and wiles;
Alas! had my baby gone far away?
Must I look in vain for his dream-like smiles,
And watch him no more at his play?
Nor call him my "we dimpled pearl of pearls,"
While I stealthily fondled the hated curls?

I lifted them gently—my boy, my pet,
Still sobbed and still clamored to have them
shorn;

His cheeks were like scarlet, his eyes were wet,
As he heaved of his playmate's scorn;
And my own eyes were heavy with unshed
tears,
As the shining tresses fell off the shears.

It was done—my darling no longer wept,
But proudly held up his head as he ran.
"See! now you can't call me a dirl any more;
My curls are all gone—I'm a man!"
Ah, poor little maikin, what did he care
That my tears fell hot on that glistening hair?

I laid them aside in a carved box.
Those living tresses of amber glow,
And I look at them now with a yearning love,
Though my locks are as white as the snow;
And they straighten and spring into spirals of gold
At the touch of my tremulous hand, as of old.

And I think of the head which they clustered soft,
Of the tearful voice and the wet blue eyes;
And I wish if his ringlets are grown again,
In his beautiful home in the skies.
My baby! his triumph was brief as wild—
He died on my bosom a little child.

I had dreamed my dreams of the coming man,
My proud, high dreams, but they never led
So high as the heaven to which he has gone.
Or stooped to that narrow bed;
They were full of glory, untrodden by pain—
Now God has the glory, and he has the gain.

And I sometimes see through the open door
My darling, my baby, my pearl of pearls!
His hands outstretched and his shoulders hid
In a cloud of golden curls.
Ah! me, these tresses will never grow gray,
Yet my tears fall like rain as I hide them away.

—Youth's Companion.

AT THE PICNIC.

BY JEFFIE FORBUSH HANAFORD.

Do I love her? "If a man does not love a girl why should he seek her society daily, talk nonsense to her every chance he gets, and nearly bankrupt himself to keep her supplied in chocolate caramels?"

I remember having read that somewhere, and it all flashes through my mind as I lazily swing back and forth in a remarkably comfortable hammock, under a large apple tree in the orchard.
The day is exceedingly warm and sultry, and I find this peaceful abode, with the addition of my cherished cigar,
very desirable.

"She is very pretty," continuing my mental soliloquy. "Yes, decidedly pretty," remembering her dark eyes, so full of sparkling life, her glossy dark hair, her cherry lips and merry ringing laughter. But—do I love her? That's the all-important question.

Here I so far forget myself as to fall asleep, regardless of my cigar, and the danger in its close proximity to my carefully-treasured mustache.

"Down the shadowy lane she goes.
Happy little maiden."

Thus sang a clear, sweet voice, as its owner, closely followed by a big Newfoundland dog, entered the orchard by a little side gate and made straight for the hammock under the cool, shady trees.

As the first words of the song reach my ears I open my eyes, and sitting through the trees I see the object of my thoughts, pretty Lillian Earlford, her cheeks flushed with exercise and health, and her hands full of blossoms.

Here I discreetly close my eyes and feign sleep. Nearer and nearer she comes, until, all of a sudden, the sweet song dies on her lips, and I know that I am discovered.

Do I love her? The question again agitates my mind.

At this moment, fortunately for me,
Carlo gives a loud bark and dashes away after an imaginary rabbit, and of course I immediately embrace the opportunity to "wake up," that is to say,
I open my eyes.

But alas! Lillian is nowhere to be seen. I lift my head with a gesture of impatience, and look to the right and left, but am not rewarded by even a glimpse of her dotted white muslin.

But the hammock has no further attractions for me. So I gather myself up as gracefully as the occasion permits, and pulling my hat over my eyes with a savage jerk, make straight for the little gate through which Lillian had come. Where has she disappeared to? Why did she leave in such haste?
Was the simple fact of my being present disagreeable to her?

Each of these questions demands an answer. Still I keep on my way regardless of where my steps lead me, when all of a sudden I hear the sharp bark of a dog. I hasten my lingering steps and soon I can see in the distance Lillian in her dainty white muslin and fluttering blue ribbons. I make up my mind at once that I will join her and—but hark! She is not alone. As I'm alive, that detestable Tom Burchard is with her, and she is smiling up into his face as she says, "Why, you see, Tom, I haven't got the shawl.
Well, I did go for it, but Mr. Clayton was asleep in the hammock, and so rather than disturb him I did not get it, for—" with a merry laugh—"the shawl was in the hammock, too."

Tom laughs good-naturedly and answers carelessly. "Well, never mind.
Fair Lilly," at the same time takes possession of one of Lillian's dimpled white hands, and helps her to a seat beside him—having first spread down his handkerchief.

Yes, I am quite decided now, and there is no hesitation this time. I love her, and in all probability she loves Tom. For didn't she call me formally
"Mr. Clayton," and speak to him as "Tom?"

I turn away and walk very rapidly in the opposite direction. "Miserable" doesn't half express my feelings on this memorable occasion! I love Lillian and Lillian loves Tom. Alas! for human nature, all too quick to jump at conclusions.

The next day and the next pass and I do not once see Lillian. On the evening of the third day I determine to see her and hear from her own lips
if there is any hope for me.

I am going away for a week or two on a fishing expedition, expecting to start the next day. But I cannot go without bidding Lillian good-bye.

So at precisely seven o'clock I start to call on her. The question "Do I love her?" had been satisfactorily settled; and now the question that torments me is, "Can I win her love in return?" Taking a short cut through the orchard I hasten along, and even feel an inclination to whistle. My spirits are certainly rising.

I open the front gate softly and proceed up the gravel path leading to the house. I am still in the shadow of the large oaks as the door opens admitting a flood of light, and I see Lillian and Tom Burchard come out and come down the path toward me.
In an instant I step out of the path, deeper into the shadow of the friendly oak. And as they pass me, near enough for me to touch Lillian's dress, I hear Tom whisper:

"I have something to tell you, Lilly,
dear, and I must tell you to-night; I hope—"

They pass through the gate and out of hearing; so, feeling utterly crushed,
I turn my steps toward home.

Two weeks from that day I returned home and deposited my fishing-tackle on the front steps. I enter the house, and on opening the sitting-room door, come face to face with Lilly. How the bright blushes come and go at my unexpected appearance! My sister, Edna, accepts my brotherly kiss, and hastens away to get me some refreshments. Lilly has commenced putting on her hat, and seems in a decided hurry to get away, or, at least, it appears so to me. "Lilly," I say, without looking at her. "Do not be in a hurry, wait five minutes, and I will walk home with you."

This is how it happens that I am walking by her side on the way to her home. The quiet evening shadows are commencing to fall; and in the houses
as we pass the bright lights twinkle.

After a most prolonged silence, I astonished myself as well as Lillian by saying in a tragic whisper, "Lilly, I am going away." The pressure of her little hand tightens on my arm, and she looks up quickly as she says, "Why you have only just returned home, Frank!"

"Yes, I know," I answered, my heart turning completely over at the sound of her dear voice pronouncing my name.

"But I am going away again, and I can't say if I shall ever return."

"Oh!" says Lilly, and again silence reigns supreme.

"Yes, I am going away," I begin again, desperately, "and before I go I want to offer my congratulations, and hope you will be happy with the man of your choice."

I cannot see Lillian's face. But I can feel her hand tremble, as, with a little gesture of impatience, she answers: "Thank you, Mr. Clayton, I am always happy. Good-night."

By this time we are close to Lillian's home, and before I am aware of her intentions, she disappears through the gate and I find myself standing on the outside alone.

"Lillian," I call, but receive no answer; so I am obliged to return home completely disgusted with myself.

Two weeks have passed away. Two very uneventful weeks. For during that time I have not once seen Lillian.

There is to be a picnic to-morrow at "Glenwood Grove," and every one is delighted at the prospects of a day in the woods. I am almost happy myself, for the reason that Tom Burchard is away and will not be present, and I can see Lillian.

Now a wild idea has entered my head, and without waiting to consider I start off to call on Lillian and offer myself as her escort to the picnic. As I find myself in sight of the house, my heart misgives me; I have not seen her since the night she left me, so unceremoniously at the gate. Suddenly I remember that I told her I was going away, and I have no excuse to offer for not going. However, it is too late to draw back now, for Lillian stands not far from the old-fashioned rustic gate without her shade hat and her hands full of scarlet poppies. She is looking unconsciously in the opposite direction; but I feel sure, by the quick turn of her head, that she has seen me. So without any outward show of hesitation
I smilingly wish her "good morning."
Half expecting a refusal, I politely request the pleasure of her company to the picnic.

To my joyful surprise she answers,
"yes," with a smile so bright and winning that I long to clasp her in my arms and tell her of my love.

Fortunately I realize that this is scarcely the time or place to speak of love, so I thank her for the pleasure her acceptance has given me, and depart.

Now the day for the picnic has arrived. It is a lovely morning. There is a golden haze that gives promise of a warm summer day.

There are ten couples of us, and it is decided that we all go in one large conveyance. Every one seemed in the best of spirits, and amid a general confusion of voices and merry laughter we are at last on our way.

Some one remarks: "It is a pity Tom Burchard is away, as he is always such a jolly fellow for a picnic."

I glanced quickly at Lillian and imagine she looks unhappy. Probably on account of Burchard's absence.

However, if she feels unhappy it does not make her less fair to look upon. She is dressed in white, her favorite color. I find myself growing deeper in love, and am conscious of a firm determination to win her in spite of fate (Tom Burchard representing fate).
In the woods at last, we find it deliciously cool. The bright green of the trees is very refreshing, and the hush and stillness is broken only by the twitter of the birds or the quick scamper of an astonished squirrel.

After selecting what we consider a sufficiently secluded spot, the baskets are deposited on the soft carpet of moss, thickly studded with little acorns.

Lillian assists in spreading the tablecloth under a large tree, and every one frantically offers assistance. At last all is in readiness and we proceed to eat of the good things prepared for the occasion.

As a matter of course there are the usual number of mishaps common to lunches served in the open air. Salt is used in place of sugar; and a large spider is discovered seated contentedly on top of the chocolate cake, while it would be impossible to number the flies that embraced the opportunity to commit suicide in the milk and tea.

This only adds to the general hilarity; for what would a picnic be without these little mishaps?

At last lunch is at an end and the dishes are replaced in the baskets.

Some one suggests that we explore a large cave at the top of a rather steep bluff on our left, and offers to lead the way if we will all promise to follow.

Of course we all agree, and are soon on our way.

The cave Tracy Kent has reference to is large enough to allow us to enter, so we follow Tracy, and find ourselves in a large, roomy space, dimly lighted by a ray of daylight that creeps in through the opening where we entered.

"There was an old miser once made this his home," said Tracy, "and the story goes that he died here all alone of starvation. Several years after his death, two hunters, on passing, stopped and entered. In one corner they found a little iron chest, open, and full of gold, and near it lay the skeleton of a man. And just as they attempted to lift the box and carry it away a deep voice said 'halt' and a tall ghost-like form advanced from—"

We do not wait for the remainder of the weird tale. There is a general rush for the opening where we entered, the girls all scream, and each tries to be the first one out.

Slipping my arm around Lillian
I draw her closer to me,
and bending my head, whisper:

"Don't be frightened, darling, I will take care of you."

But Lillian is very much frightened and clings to me convulsively, and I can feel her slight form tremble. I reassure her with loving words, while my heart beats rapidly with the great pleasure I experience at having her so near and feeling that she does not repulse me.

It seems an eternity before it comes our turn to leave the cave, and Lillian draws a breath of intense relief when she finds herself in the open air again.

Once on the outside, every one laughs at the story that caused so much consternation in the cave, and all agree to a race back to the place where we left the baskets, and instantly start, at a quick pace down the rather steep hillside.

"Let us rest here a little—it is so awfully hot," I suggest to Lillian, and we seat ourselves on a moss-covered stone, under the shadow of a large rock.

"Isn't it delightful here?" Lillian says, leaning back against the rock and removing her large shade hat.

The wind blows the curls back from her face, and the unusual excitement has deepened the roses in her cheeks.
I instantly decide that she never looked prettier.

Without waiting to consider what I am about to say I clasp the little hands so near my own and press them to my lips. All I say is:

"O Lillian, my darling, I love you—
I love you!"

Lillian does not look astonished, and she does not draw her hands away. My heart gives a tremendous thump and then stands still.

"Oh! Lilly, dear, can you not love me a little?"

"No, it is impossible," she answers, and for the first time a thought of Tom Burchard crosses my mind. "Of course, she loves Tom. What an idiot I am!"

"But," continues the soft voice, while the blue eyes I love, so well are raised to meet my own, "Frank, I can love you a great deal, if that will satisfy you."

Only an instant and she is in my arms, and I am assuring her that I am the happiest man in the world.

"And you do not love Tom?" I ask presently.

"What, Tom Burchard? Why, don't you know he is engaged to my cousin, Belle Earlford?"

"I certainly did not, I reply. "But am sure I wish him much happiness as long as it isn't my little girl he is engaged to. Oh! my darling, I was so jealous of Tom."

"I know it," says Lilly, demurely,
then we both laugh.

The ride home by moonlight is thoroughly enjoyed by all, and there are no troublesome questions to torment me.
They are all satisfactorily answered at last, and I am happy. I not only love
Lillian, but my darling loves me.

An instance of the value of photography in detecting the relative motion of stars is given by M. de Gothard. Comparison of a recent photograph with measures recorded by Vogel in 1857-60 appears to show that cluster 4,411 G. C. contains an eleventh magnitude star which has changed its position relatively to the other stars to the extent of 23 seconds a year.

Jenks' Dream.

Jenks had a queer dream the other night. He thought he saw a "prize-fighters" ring, and in the middle of it stood a doughty little champion who met and deliberately knocked over, one by one, a score or more of big, burly looking fellows, as they advanced to the attack. Giants as they were in size, the valiant pigmy proved more than a match for them. It was all so funny that Jenks woke up laughing. He accounts for the dream by the fact that he had just come to the conclusion, after trying nearly every big, drastic pill on the market, that Pierce's tiny Purgative Pills easily "knock out" and beat all the rest hollow!

Growing Glaciers.

Conformably to the laws of advance and retreat of glaciers, it is said those in the Valley of Chamouix, Switzerland, are now beginning to advance. The lower extremity of the Glacier des Bossons is "not more than 3,000 feet above the level of the sea," and is going still lower. During the past three years this lower extremity "has advanced at the rate of fifty yards a year." It is said that "a grotto cut out of the ice in May, 1886, a quarter of a mile from the extremity, has moved down more than sixty yards.—New York Hour.

A Woman's Sweet Will.

She is prematurely deprived of her charms of face and form, and made unattractive by the wasting effects of ailments and irregularities peculiar to her sex. To check this drain upon not only her strength and health, but upon her amiable qualities as well, is her first duty. This is safely and speedily accomplished by a course of self-treatment with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a nervine and tonic of wonderful efficacy, and prepared especially for the alleviation of those suffering from "dragging-down" pains, sensations of nausea, and weakness incident to women—a boon to her sex. Druggists.

When grief comes to an honest man, he usually shows a clean balance-sheet. When a scamp comes to grief, he usually shows a clean pair of heels.

"Consumption Can Be Cured."

Dr. J. S. Compas, Owensville, Ohio, says: "I have given Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites to four patients with better results than seemed possible with any remedy. All were hereditary cases of Lung disease, and advanced to that stage when Coughs, pain in the chest, frequent breathing, frequent pulse, fever and Emaciation. All these cases have increased in weight from 16 to 28 lbs., and are not now needing any medicine."

"What have you to remark about my singing?" asked an irate vocalist. "Nothing," replied a spectator; "it is not remarkable."

NORFOLK, Mich., November, 1886. SMITH'S BILE BEANS give entire satisfaction, and our trade is increasing constantly. They are thorough, mild, and the most economical liver remedy in the market. So say all who have used them. Yours respectfully, L. D. CRY, M. D., Dealer in Drugs, Stationery, Etc.

Best, easiest to use and cheapest. Pico's Remedy for Catarrh. By Druggists. 50c.

Get Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners applied to those new boots and they will never run over.

The Frazer is kept by all dealers. One box lasts as long as two of any other.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 30, 1886. I HAVE used Smith's Bile Beans in my family for some time; they have always given entire satisfaction; would not be without them. J. B. WALSH, 1908 Biddle Street.

Sick Headache

Is one of the most distressing affections; and people who are its victims deserve sympathy. But the great success Hood's Sarsaparilla has had in curing sick headache makes it seem almost foolish to allow the trouble to continue. By its tonic and invigorating effect upon the digestive organs, Hood's Sarsaparilla readily gives relief when headache arises from indigestion; and in neuralgic conditions by building up the debilitated system, Hood's Sarsaparilla removes the cause, and hence overcomes the difficulty.

"My wife suffered from sick headache and neuralgia. After taking Hood's Sarsaparilla she was much relieved." W. R. BAIN, Wilmington, Ohio.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1, six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar.

I have been a periodical sufferer from Hay Fever since the summer of 1879, and until I used Ely's Cream Balm I was never able to find any relief. I can say that Cream Balm cured me. — L. M. Georgia, Birmingham, N. Y.

Apply Balm into each nostril.

FOR SALE CHEAP!

One of Payne & Son's automatic ten-horse power engines. It has only been used about two years, and is in every respect as good as the day it came out of the shop. This engine is equal to twenty-horse power if required of it. Address, FORT WAYNE NEWS-PAPEL UNION, 55 & 57 Columbia St., Fort Wayne, Ind.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Sure relief ASTHMA. Price 50c. By mail, Stowell & Co., Charlestown, Mass.

$250 A MONTH. Agents wanted. 50 best-selling articles in the world. 1 sample FREE. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

SINGLE LADIES provided for during confinement at Dr. Thayer's Sanitarium, 54 Walton Ave., Fort Wayne, Ind.

KIDDER'S

DIGESTYLIN

A SURE CURE FOR INDIGESTION and DYSPEPSIA.

Over 5,000 Physicians have sent as their approval of DIGESTYLIN, saying that it is the best preparation for Indigestion that they have ever used. We have never heard of a case of Dyspepsia where DIGESTYLIN was taken that was not cured.

FOR CHOLERA INFANTUM.

IT WILL CURE THE MOST AGGRAVATED CASES. IT WILL STOP VOMITING IN PRENANCY. IT WILL RELIEVE CONSTIPATION.

For Summer Complaints and Chronic Diarrhea, which are the direct results of imperfect digestion, DIGESTYLIN will effect an immediate cure. Take DIGESTYLIN for all pains and disorders of the stomach; they all come from indigestion. Ask your druggist for DIGESTYLIN, price 1¢ per bottle. If he does not have it, send one dollar to us and we will send a bottle to you, express prepaid. Do not hesitate to send your money. Our house is reliable. Established twenty-five years.

WM. F. KIDDER & CO., Manufacturing Chemists, 83 John St., N. Y.

This represents a healthy life, Throughout its various scenes.

Just such a life as they enjoy Who use the Smith's Bile Beans.

Smith's BILE BEANS purify the blood, by acting directly and promptly on the Liver, Skin and Kidneys. They consist of a vegetable combination that has no equal in medical science. They cure Constipation, Malaria, and Dyspepsia, and are a safeguard against all forms of fevers, chills and fever, gall stones, and Bright's disease. Send 1 cent postage for a sample package and test the TRUTH of what we say. Price, 25 cents per bottle, mailed to any address, postpaid. DOSE ONE BEAN. Sold by druggists. J. F. SMITH & CO., PROPRIETORS, ST. LOUIS, MO.

A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RY

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest, is the only true middle-link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairbairn, Ottumwa, Oakdale, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie, Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unequalled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

ALL EXPRESS TRAINS between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE PARLOR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and—between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kanabek, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.

All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employees of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly attention.

For Tickets, Maps, Folders—obtainable at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada—or any desired information, address,

R. R. CABLE, Pres't & Gen'l Mgr, Chicago.

E. ST. JOHN, Asst Gen'l Mgr, Chicago.

E. A. HOLBROOK, Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Agt., Chicago.

SLICKER

Is The Best Waterproof Coat Ever Made.

Don't waste your money on a gum or rubber coat. The FISH BRAND SLICKER is absolutely water and wind proof, and will keep you dry in the hardest storm. Ask for the "FISH BRAND" slicker and take no other. If your storekeeper does not have the "Fish Brand," send for descriptive catalogue to A. J. TOWER, 20 Simmons St., Boston, Mass.

KING OF THE BOODLERS

A PLOT FOR A MILLION

A Thrilling Narrative of the Great Chicago Boodle Ring and Its Prosecution by JUDGE JULIUS H. GRINNELL.

This highly interesting serial will begin in THE CHICAGO DREDGER of October 12, a sample copy of which will be mailed FREE to any one who sends a postal card bearing their name and address. Let us hear from you if you wish to see a copy of the cheap and best story paper in the United States. Address THE CHICAGO DREDGER, Chicago, Ill.

CATARRH

Pico's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest. Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

OPIMUM Habit Cured before any pay. Prof. J. E. BARTON, 25th Ward, Cincinnati, O.

WHAT AILS YOU?

Do you feel dull, languid, low-spirited, lifeless, and indescribably miserable, both physically and mentally; experience a sense of fullness or bloating after eating, or of "gripes," or emptiness of stomach in the morning, tongue coated, bitter or bad taste in mouth, irregular appetite, dizziness, frequent headaches, blurred eyesight, "floating specks" before the eyes, nervous prostration or exhaustion, irritability of temper, hot flushes, alternating with chilly sensations, sharp, biting, transient pains here and there, cold feet, drowsiness after meals, wakefulness, or disturbed and unrefreshing sleep, constant, indescribable feeling of dread, or of impending calamity?

If you have all, or any considerable number of these symptoms, you are suffering from that most common of American maladies—Bilious Dyspepsia, or Torpid Liver, associated with Dyspepsia, or Indigestion. The more complicated your disease has become, the greater the number and diversity of symptoms. No matter what stage it has reached, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will subdue it, if taken according to directions for a reasonable length of time. If not cured, complications multiply and Consumption of the Lungs, Skin Diseases, Heart Disease, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease, or other grave maladies are quite liable to set in, and sooner or later, induce a fatal termination.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery acts powerfully upon the Liver, and through that great blood-purifying organ, cleanses the system of all blood-taints and impurities, from whatever cause arising. It is equally efficacious in acting upon the Kidneys, and other excretory organs, cleansing, strengthening, and healing their diseases. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it promotes digestion and nutrition, thereby building up both flesh and strength. In malarial districts, this wonderful medicine has gained great celebrity in curing Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Dumb Ague, and kindred diseases.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

CURES ALL HUMORS,

from a common Itch, or Eruption, to the worst Scrofula, Salt-rheum, "Fever-sores," Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine. Great Eating Ulcers rapidly heal under its benign influence. Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Hip-joint Disease, "White Swellings," Gout, or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands. Send ten cents in stamps for a large Treatise, with colored plates, on Skin Diseases, or the same amount for a Treatise on Scrofulous Affections.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

Thoroughly cleanse it by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength and bodily health will be established.

CONSUMPTION,

which is Scrofula of the Lungs, is arrested and cured by this remedy, if taken in the earlier stages of the disease. From its marvellous power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now world-famed remedy to the public, Dr. Pierce thought seriously of calling it his "Consumption Cure," but abandoned that name as too restrictive for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alternative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is unequalled, not only as a remedy for Consumption, but for all Chronic Diseases of the

Liver, Blood, and Lungs.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Chronic Nasal Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Severe Coughs, and kindred affections, it is an efficient remedy.

Sold by Druggists at $1.00, or Six Bottles for $5.00.

Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's book on Consumption. Address,

World's Dispensary Medical Association,

663 Main St., BUFFALO, N. Y.

MARVELOUS

MEMORY

DISCOVERY.

Wholly unlike artificial systems. Any book learned in one reading. Recommended by Mark Twain, Richard Proctor the Scientist, Hon. W. W. Astor, Julian P. Benjamin, Dr. Blair, etc. One of the Columbia law students, two classes at Yale, at University of Penn., at Wellesley College, etc. Prospectus post free. PROF. LOISELLE, 247 Fifth Ave., New York.

One Agent—Merchant only—wanted in every town for

I have retained one hundred and three thousand names of Tansill's Punch, and have been using the past four months, and some, issued during the past five years. — Wm. M. Tansill, Chicago.

My retained names, Tansill's Punch, for the year for last year, 1885, were 18,000. This year, I expect to sell at least 20,000 of this popular brand.

Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

R. BAIRD'S GRANULES

Cure Dyspepsia, Malaria, Piles, Heart Disease, Indigestion, Blood, Kidney Disease, Torpid Liver, Habitual Constipation, Etc. A new principle, a new remedy. Purely Vegetable. A full size Box sent FREE, postage prepaid, to any invalid, or feeble person, sending their address at once, on receipt of 50c. symptoms, etc. Address, R. BAIRD, 157 W. 23d St., N. Y.

PENSIONS COLLECTED and increased by Fitzgibbon & Powell, Indianapolis, Ind. Old cases renewed. Send for copy of Law, free.

N. U., F. W., No. 38-87.

When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

BY TELEGRAPH.

EVENTS OF A WEEK.

THE OLD WORLD.

—Having made his way safely out of Persia, where he had been long detained, Ayoub Khan is now seeking help among the border tribes to seize the Afghan throne. The present Amier has recently subdued a powerful and extended insurrection, and will probably be able to take care of his old enemy, Ayoub, if the latter gets an army in the field.

—The proposed evictions on the Ponsonby estates in Ireland have been abandoned. Under the provisions of the land act twenty-six of the Ponsonby tenants are protected and cannot be evicted.

—A riot with loss of life occurred at Mitchellstown, Ireland, at a meeting in the public square. A Government stenographer being defended by the police, a mob repulsed the latter, and several were severely injured. Being reinforced, the police returned and fired six shots, killing two men instantly and injuring others.

—The Spanish Government has ordered the release of Mr. Doane, the American missionary at the Caroline Islands, who was lately arrested by the Spanish authorities there, and imprisoned at Manila.

—Mr. O'Brien, who was not present at the Mitchellstown battle, was arrested in Dublin under the coercion act.

—The police at Mitchellstown, Ireland, paraded the day after the battle. A dispatch says "a majority of them wore bandages over the wounds they received." Fourteen of the more seriously injured were in the hospital, and did not turn out to exhibit the bandage used instead of laurels in that part of the world.

—Mr. Sexton, in the House of Commons, challenged the Government to justify its action in the Mitchellstown affray. Mr. Balfour replied to the effect that the attack on the police had been brutal and unprovoked. T. P. Gill, M. P., in a lengthened description of the riots, shows that the police were wholly to blame for the fatal affray. —The interference of the troops was an unwarrantable outrage.

PERSONAL NOTES.

—William Aiken, who was Governor of South Carolina in 1844, and served three terms in Congress prior to 1857, died near Charleston, aged eighty-one. He owned more slaves than other men in the State before the war, but opposed secession.

—At the Rock County (Wis.) fair, held at Janesville, Miss Abbie Ferris and Mr. G. A. Crossman were married in the presence of 5,000 people. The young people received very many presents.

—N. L. Brown, a traveling salesman for a Cincinnati clothing-house, committed suicide at Quincy, Ill., where his family reside.

—Mr. Lothrop, United States Minister to Russia, has not resigned, reports to the contrary notwithstanding. He says he will spend the winter in St. Petersburg.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL.

—The Wisconsin Leather Company, Milwaukee, the oldest of the kind in the West, yielded to a pressure of judgments Monday and went under. The liabilities are said to be $400,000. No statements of the assets can be made yet. Mr. E. K. Miller was appointed receiver.

—Dispatches from New Haven, Ct., report the failure of E. S. Wheeler & Co., importers of iron, steel, etc., with liabilities of $2,000,000. The house has branches in several cities, Chicago among the number.

—The Charles Stewart Paper Company, of Cincinnati, has failed. The assets are about $75,000, while the liabilities are figured at $100,000.

THE business failures in the United States for the week, according to R. G. Dun & Co., numbered 153, and for Canada 22—together 174, against 149 the previous week.

—A receiver has taken charge of the business of Colby, Duncan & Co., piano manufacturers at New York, whose liabilities are said to be about $175,000.

—F. C. Davenport, dealer in metals at Boston, Mass., has made an assignment, his embarrassment being caused by the failure of E. S. Wheeler & Co., of New Haven. Davenport's liabilities are figured at $100,000.

—Chipman & Holt, extensive coal dealers of Philadelphia, Pa., have failed, the disaster being due to the assignments of Charles E. Pennock & Co. and Robert Hare Powell & Co. The assets are $288,000, and the liabilities $217,000.

—Assignments have been made by Thomas

Flourney, Jr., tobaccoist, at Richmond, Va., and by Bessette, Lefort & Co., of Montreal. The latter owe $60,000, while Flourney's liabilities are placed at $50,000.

POLITICAL POINTS.

—Nine hundred and twenty-five delegates attended the Massachusetts Prohibition State Convention at Worcester. A telegram was sent to Neal Dow, giving the number present and saying: "Cheer up, old man, your children are growing to a mighty height." The convention made the following nominations:

For Governor, W. H. Earle, of Worcester; for Lieutenant Governor, Dr. John Blackmer, of Springfield; for Secretary of State, Amos E. Hall, of Chelsea; for Treasurer, J. H. Kilborn, of Lee; for Attorney General, Allen Coffin, of Nantucket; for Auditor, E. N. Stowe.

The platform accuses the liquor men of bribing Legislatures and murdering its opponents; declares against licensing and local options; insists on the necessity of a third party; declares that the Democratic party makes no pretensions in the direction of prohibition, and that the Republican party does nothing else, and, in conclusion, it demands the immediate repeal of all license laws and the submission of a constitutional prohibition amendment to the people. The committee reported a plank demanding the ballot for women. This created the only exciting episode of the day, and, after a hot discussion, and in order to compromise with the anti-woman suffragists, the plank was modified to the extent that the Legislature should submit the question of municipal suffrage to women.

—The State Convention of the Union Labor and Greenback party of Pennsylvania was held at Williamsport. The platform of the Union Labor party adopted at Cincinnati in February last was unanimously adopted, as was also a resolution denouncing the alleged utter disregard by corporations of the provisions of the State Constitution. Charles S. Keyser, of Philadelphia, was nominated for Supreme Court Judge, and H. D. Bunker, of Hollidaysburg, for State Treasurer.

—Washington telegram: "The announcement of the final determination of ex-Governor Porter, of Tennessee, to resign his position as First Assistant Secretary of State creates a commotion in political circles at Washington, since it has become publicly known that his retirement is impelled as a consequence of long standing strained relations between Secretary Bayard and himself. Governor Porter's friends are outspoken in their indignation at the shabby way in which they allege he has been treated, and assert that the true cause of the trouble lies in the fact that Gov. Porter has made friends for the administration, while Secretary Bayard has seriously embarrassed the President, on various occasions, and lost many friends both to the Democratic party and himself. This, they say, aroused Secretary Bayard's jealousy, and hence Gov. Porter has been shorn of his official authority until he had no alternative but to resign."

—Seven out of nine Missouri counties Wednesday voted in favor of local option. There are now thirty pronounced prohibition counties in that State.

FIRES AND ACCIDENTS.

—Cheboygan (Mich.) special: "A boat from Detroit brings the report that the schooner Niagara, of the Australasia's tow, broke her tow-line eleven miles from Whitefish Point in a terrible storm, and foundered with all hands, thirteen in number, including the Captain's wife and family. The Niagara rolled heavily, opened out, and disappeared after breaking loose. She was laden with ore. The boat was commanded by Capt. Clements, and ore-laden from Ashland to Ashland."

—A dispatch from St. John's, N. F., says: "Reports daily arriving from all parts of the country go to show that the gale of the 26th of August was one that will long be remembered for the loss of life and extent of damage sustained from it. Several large vessels went ashore on Dog Island, near St. Pierre, and in many cases became total wrecks. One hundred thousand dollars will not cover the extent of damage to property sustained by Newfoundland vessels that were on the banks during the storm. Dories swept away, anchors shipped and burst, sails split and torn, lines, twines, and trawls lost and abandoned is the daily report, and many a vessel arriving has the sadder record of loss of life."

—A spark from an engine ignited the bedding of a car-load of fine cattle, en route from Clinton, Ill., to the Atlanta fair. Most of the animals were roasted to death. The others were frightfully burned, and had to be put to death.

—The railroad shops, machinery, etc., of the Milwaukee road at Yankton, Dakota, have been burned. Loss, $60,000.

—A terrible accident is reported from Needmore, Tenn. The Rev. J. M. Carter and Dr. Logan were to speak there in favor of prohibition. When they arrived they found a big revival in progress and did not speak. The revival was conducted in a two-story church building, the upper floor being used for church purposes and the lower floor for school purposes. There was an immense audience in the upper story listening attentively to the exhortation of the minister, when the rear end of the floor gave way with a crash, carrying sixty or seventy people with it. The fall was thirteen feet, and hardly one person escaped injury. Two or three were mortally hurt.

—The new railroad round-house, machine-shops, and five locomotives were burned at Lewiston, Pa. Loss, $65,000.

—In Montreal, Porter's tannery and boot factory and an adjoining tenement-house were burned. Loss, $200,000.

—Five large saw-mills were burned in Minneapolis, causing an aggregate loss of $250,000.

THE CRIMINAL RECORD.

—John Thomas Ross was executed in the jail at Baltimore on Friday. On Dec. 10 Ross beat to death an old white woman named Emily Brown, and sold her body to a medical college for $15. He confessed the murder, but threw the blame upon Anderson Perry, who, he claimed, had made him drunk and induced him to commit the crime. Upon being placed on trial Ross was convicted. Perry was acquitted, but narrowly escaped lynching at the hands of the infuriated Baltimore colored people.

—Shade Sunshine, a Cherokee Indian, was hanged in the national prison-yard at Talequah, Indian Territory. He was convicted of the murder of Long John, in Sequoyah District, Christmas night. He showed no signs of fear, and was nery to the last. He spoke from the scaffold, gave a short history of the crime, acknowledged the same, and thought he did not get justice in the trial.

—A special dispatch from Leavenworth, in Southern Indiana, says:

James Wilson, an aged farmer of Crawford County, was the victim of a cowardly outrage by the White Cap. regulators, being brutally whipped by a party, one of whom is said to be his own son. The young man expressed a desire to join the White Caps, and his father opposing, they got into an altercation and parted in anger. The son told some of the members of the vicious organization of the cause of the trouble, and they took the old gentleman from his house, tied him to a tree, and gave him a terrible whipping. Wilson has left the country, and claims that his son was one of the desperadoes who abused him so shamefully. Hildebrand, another old farmer, was whipped severely a few days ago, but was unwilling to complain on account of the disgrace. He was waited upon the next night and forced to write a communication to the county paper, giving the details of the whipping. No effort appears to be making to stop the outrages.

—The Grand Jury at Chicago has indicted Dra. St. John and Dell, Captain John Irwin, of the schooner E. Blake, and Captain John Freer, of the schooner George Marsh, for assisting McGarigle to escape.

—The trial of the Bald-Knobbars at Jefferson City, Mo., came to an end by the defendants agreeing to plead guilty to all of the indictments.

—The Grand Jury at Morris, Ill., refused by a vote of 18 to 5 to return an indictment against Miss Sarah Dodge, charged with the murder of Walter S. Babcock, the Chicago lumber dealer.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

—A special from Warsaw, Ind., says: "Chaplain C. C. McCabe, Secretary of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has received in behalf of the board the largest private donation ever made to that body or for missions in the history of the church. The gift consists of property in Warsaw valued at $130,000, and the donors are Elijah Hayes and wife. The property comprises their entire possessions. Mr. Hayes asked only an annuity of $300, which, however, was made $1,000. The deed provides that the board shall have for fifty years the rents and profits of the property, and at the end of that time it shall be at the disposal of the board. Mr. and Mrs. Hayes are aged, and have no heirs."

—Reports have been received at the Department of State from Chili to the effect that cholera is spreading rapidly in that country.

—The steel stern-post and stem of the new Government cruiser now being built at San Francisco have been cast. The stem weighs 16,000 pounds, and is said to be the largest casting ever made in America.

—The signal-service weather crop bulletin for last week says corn is reported as harvested and below the average in Nebraska, as out of danger from frost in Minnesota, and more rain needed for late corn in Central and Western Kansas; cutting is in progress in Michigan. Pastures are reported good from Nebraska, as improved in Minnesota, Michigan, and Northern Illinois, and as dried up in Southern Illinois. Light frosts are reported to have injured sweet potatoes in Northwestern North Carolina and as having occurred in Northern Illinois. Killing frosts were reported from Central Minnesota, Upper Michigan, and Northern Vermont.

M. T. BISHOP,

—DEALER IN—

LUMBER, LIME,

—LATH—

SHINGLES,

MOULDING &c.

Large Stock and Low Prices. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

MEAT MARKET

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNESS

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

Blacksmith

AND

Repair Shop.

Having secured the services of an experienced workman, I am now prepared to do all kinds of Blacksmithing and Repairing in a first-class manner. Special attention given to repairing machinery. Give me a call. Prices reasonable.

A. W. Hall, St. Joe.

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1887.

NO. 35.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLIMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind. John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a speciality. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—W. J. Gronert, leader of C. G. Conn's famous Trumpet Note band, of Elkhart, is one of those who experienced the executive clemency of Queen Victoria, of England, in her recent decree that those who had deserted from her military service before a certain time should be pardoned the offense and allowed to enter England again, should they desire to do so. As a lad Mr. Gronert was in the Queen's service, and while in China, before he had attained his majority, he decided to desert, and did so, stowing himself away on a vessel. When the craft had been at sea three days he appeared on the deck in his uniform, very much to the astonishment of the crew, which happened to be Dutch, not one of them being able to speak a word of English. They threatened to throw him overboard, but he finally induced them to abandon their design, and by the aid of his clarinet he soon made friends of them. After a six months' voyage he landed in San Francisco, and went thence to New York. Since his arrival he has never dared return to England, and when the Queen issued her declaration that all whose desertion ante-dated a certain time would be pardoned, if they would apply to her before a stated period, he made application, and has just received his parchment granting him full pardon. He is very anxious to visit his parents, and will do so soon.

—The skeleton of a mastodon was found on the banks of Silver Creek, about five miles from Jeffersonville, recently. John Jacobs and William Crawley were fishing at a point on the creek when the latter discovered what he thought to be the branch of a tree lying on the ground. An attempt to cut it with a pen-knife proved that it was bone. This aroused the curiosity of the fishermen, and, procuring a spade, they began digging underneath the spot where the bone had been found. At a depth of about four feet they came upon what is undoubtedly the skeleton of one of the largest mastodons ever unearthed. It was in a tolerable good state of preservation, considering the great lapse of time since it was buried there, but contact with the air caused it to crumble, and many of the bones were thus lost. The tusks are broken off, but still measure about four feet in length and sixteen inches in circumference at the largest part. The bones are very black from long contact with the moist ground, and it is estimated that they have lain there many centuries. It has not yet been decided what disposition will be made of the remains of this relic of the dark ages, but it will probably be placed in the museum at the Borden Institute.

—John Nutt, a helper working on the new government building at Fort Wayne, was instantly killed by a falling derrick. It is said that Nutt, whose duty it was to see that the derrick ropes were properly secured, either forgot or neglected to fasten the guy-rope, and while engaged with others in swinging a heavy stone, weighing a ton, into position, the derrick, not being properly supported, toppled over. The unfortunate man was dragged with it, being precipitated sixty feet to the ground, resulting in instant death.

—The City Council of Fort Wayne ordered the condemnation and purchase of the canal feeder for the purpose of supplying the city with water. S. C. Lumbard, H. C. Graffe, and J. L. Gruber were appointed Commissioners to have charge of the condemnation and purchase of the property, and will commence their work at once. The feeder is five miles long and intersects the St. Joe River five miles north of the city, and when repaired and cleaned will give the city an unfailing supply of good, pure water.

—D. J. Mackey, President of the Mackey system of railroads, was interviewed at Evansville recently, in regard to the corn crop in Southern Indiana. He said he had traveled some 600 miles, going right into the field and examining corn, and he is of the opinion the average yield will not be over fifteen bushels to the acre. Streams are dry, and fields are dusty. He believes corn will be scarce and high this year.

—Joseph Allen, residing near Eckerty, was killed by a tree falling upon him. He had chopped two trees, both of which lodged against a larger one, and while felling the latter, one of the lodged ones fell upon him, breaking his neck and breaking his back in numerous places, killing him instantly. Friends found him within ten minutes after the accident.

—The One Hundred and Fifteenth Regiment Indiana Volunteers has formed an association. Ex-Lieutenant Governor Hanna was chosen President, and W. Edgman, of Portland Mills, Secretary. Comrades are requested to send their names and addresses to the latter, in order that a complete roster may be made.

—Hepry Dickman, aged about thirty-five years, employed by the Enterprise Stone Works, at Vincennes, was run down by a north-bound Evansville & Terre Haute train and had his head and right arm severed from his body. He was on his way to Brazil, Ind., to join his wife.

—Dr. J. R. Harrold, of Dundee, while returning from the Warren fair, attempted to pass a team. His team made a lunge and the rig was tumbled over an embankment. The doctor has a broken arm and is otherwise seriously, perhaps fatally, injured.

—The little 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. McCoy, who had just removed to Kokomo from Tipton, fell through the Panhandle Railroad bridge that crosses Sycamore street, a distance of twenty feet, and received injuries that will prove fatal.

—At a special election held at Seymour the proposition to establish a system of water-works was carried by a majority of 340. A small vote was polled.

—The great weight upon the fourth floor of a building in Indianapolis caused it to fall, carrying down the third and second, causing a loss of $20,000. The floors were occupied by the Steel Pulley Company, Ewald, Murphy, Hilben & Company.

—A young unmarried man, William Allen, aged 23, was struck by a belt at Hanna's saw-mill in Chelsea, Monroe Township, Jefferson County. His skull was fractured and he will die.

—George Smith, living near Logansport, threw a club at a cow and hit his 4-year-old girl on the head, tearing off the scalp.

—Elijah Hayes and wife, old people without heirs, of Warsaw, have deeded lands of an annual value of $5,000, the profits to be used in the foreign mission work of the M. E. Church.

—Valentine Dobski, a painter employed at the Studebaker Works, South Bend, was run over and killed by a train on the Lake Shore Road.

—At Greensburg, William Baker was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary on his confession that he burned the barn of Jesse Heon.

—Frank J. Walker was crushed to death by cars at Dublin.

—Charles Collins, of Fort Wayne, brakeman on the Fort Wayne and Chicago, was killed at Chicago by being crushed between cars.

—The Hendricks Monument Committee have agreed to advertise for new designs for a monument to cost not more than $15,000.

—The tenth annual reunion of the Seventh Indiana Volunteers will be held at Franklin, Oct. 20.

—The fourth reunion of the Thirty-sixth Indiana Infantry will be held at Muncie Oct. 6.

—Nate Campbell shot and killed himself near Shelbyville.

MONEY

TO

LOAN

On Farm Property

IN SUMS OVER $200.

Interest only once a year. We charge no commission. You can pay any part or all of the loan at any time. You can keep the money as long as you please if the interest is promptly paid. For further particulars call on or address

W. C. Patterson,
ST. JOE, IND.

Ho for Arkansas!

Cheap Homes for Everybody!

In a high, healthy, rich land country. On the 15th of September and the 1st of October there will be excursions from this place to that point at a very low rate of fare. For full information in regard to these excursions call on A. B. Coburn, Real Estate Agent, St. Joe, Ind. Office with Dr. Sheffer, one door east of Drugstore.

GO to the News Office, St. Joe for all kinds of Printing. All work done promptly, and at the lowest prices. Give us a call.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencerville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining, Glazing Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcox. Call and see me, or leave orders at the St. Joe Drugstore.

THE PRIME MINISTER.

Rev. Dr. Talmage's Sermon at the Brooklyn Tabernacle.

Every Man is Finally Valued at His Real Worth: Rising to High Position Through Public Abuse. The World Must Honor Christian Character.

BROOKLYN, September 18.—After being closed for some weeks for improvements and enlargements, the Brooklyn Tabernacle was opened to-day. The same overwhelming throngs were in attendance as before. The congregation sang with great effect the hymn:

Behold Jehovah's awful throne,
Ye nations bow with awed awe,
Know that the Lord is God alone,
He can create and He can destroy.

After explaining appropriate passages of Scripture Dr. Talmage took his text from Genesis xli. 11: "And Pharaoh said unto Joseph: See, I have set thee over all the land of Egypt." The subject of the sermon was "The Prime Minister." Dr. Talmage said:

You cannot keep a good man down. God has decreed for him a certain elevation to which he must attain. He will bring him through, though it cost him 1,000 worlds. There are men constantly in trouble lest they shall not be appreciated. Every man comes in the end to be valued at just what he is worth. How often you see men turn out all their forces to crush one man or set of men. How do they succeed? No better than did the government that tried to crush Joseph, a Scripture character or upon which we speak to-day. It would be an insult to suppose that you were not all familiar with the life of Joseph: how his jealous brothers threw him into the pit, but, seeing a caravan of Arabian merchants moving along on their camels with spices and gums that loaded the air with aroma, sold their brother to these merchants, who carried him down into Egypt; how Joseph was sold to Potiphar, a man of influence and office; how by integrity he raised himself to high position in the realm, until under the false charge of a vile wretch he was hurled into the penitentiary; how by the interpretation of Pharaoh's dream he was freed and became the chief man in the government—the Bismarck of the nation; how in time of famine Joseph had control of a storehouse which he had filled during the seven years of plenty; how when his brothers, who had thrown him into the pit and sold him into captivity, applied for corn, he sent them home with their beasts borne down under the beft of the corn sacks; how the sin against their brother, which had so long been hid, came out at last, and was returned by that brother's forgiveness and kindness, an illustrious triumph of Christian principle.

Learn from this story in the first place that the world is compelled to honor Christian character. Potiphar was only a man of the world, yet Joseph rose in his estimation until all the affairs of that great house were committed to his charge. From this servant no honors or confidences were withheld. When Joseph was in prison he soon won the heart of the keeper, and, though placed there for being a scoundrel, he soon convinced the jailer that he was an innocent and trustworthy man, and, released from close confinement, he became a general superintendent of prison affairs. Wherever Joseph was placed, whether a servant in the house of Potiphar or a prisoner in the penitentiary, he became the first man everywhere, and is an illustration of the truth I lay down that the world is compelled to honor Christian character.

There are those who affect to despise a religious life. They speak of it as a system of phylotomy, by which a man is bled of all his courage and nobility. They say he has beheaded himself. They pretend to have no more confidence in him since his conversion than before his conversion. But all that is hypocrisy. It is impossible for any man not to admire and confide in a Christian who shows that he has really become a child of God and is what he professes to be. You cannot despise a son or a daughter of the Lord God Almighty. Of course half and half religious character wins no approbation. Redwald, the King of the Saxons, after Christian baptism had two altars, one for the worship of God and the other for the sacrifice of devils. You may have a contempt for such men for mere pretension religion, but when you behold the excellency of Jesus Christ come out in the life of one of his disciples, all that there is good and noble in your soul rises up into admiration. Though that Christian be as far beneath you in estate as the Egyptian slave of whom we are discussing, by an irrevocable law of our nature Potiphar and Pharaoh will always esteem Joseph. Chrysostom, when threatened with death by Eudoxia, the Empress, sent word to her saying: "Go tell her that I fear nothing but sin." Such nobility of character will always be applauded. There was something in Agrippa and Felix which demanded their respect for Paul, the rebel against government. I doubt not they would willingly have yielded their office and dignity for the thousandth part of that true heroism which beamed in the eye and beat in the heart of the unconquerable Apostle. The infidel and wofling are compelled to honor in their hearts, though they may not eulogize with their lips, a Christian firm in persecution, cheerful in poverty, trustful in losses, triumphant in death. I had Christian men in all professions and occupations, and I find them respected, and honored, and successful. John Frederick Oberlin alleviating ignorance and distress, John Howard passing from dungeon to lazaretto, with healing for the body and the soul, Elizabeth Frye coming to the profligate of Newgate prison to shake down their obduracy as the angel came to their prison, Philip, driving open the doors and snapping locks and chains, as well as the lives of thousands of the followers of Jesus who have devoted themselves to the temporal and spiritual welfare of the race, are monuments of the Christian religion that shall not crumble while the world lasts. A man in the cars said: "I would like to become a Christian if I only knew what religion is. But if this lying and cheating and bad behavior among men who profess to be good is religion, I want none of it." But, my friends, if I am an artist in Rome and a man comes to me and asks me what the art of painting is I must not show him the dabb of some mere pretender. I will take him to the Raphael and the Michael Angelo. It is most unfair and dishonest to take the ignominious failures in Christian profession instead of the glorious successes. The Bible and the church are great picture galleries filled with masterpieces.

Furthermore, we learn from this story of Joseph that the results of persecution is elevation. Had it not been for his being sold into Egyptian bondage by his malicious brothers and his false imprisonment Joseph never would have become Prime Minister. Everybody accepts the promise: "Blessed are they that are persecuted for righteousness sake, for theirs is the kingdom of Heaven;" but they do not realize the fact that this principle applies to worldly as well as spiritual success. It is true in all departments. Had it not been for the machines who brought impeachment against Demosthenes, the immortal orator, the Corona would never have been delivered. Men rise to high political position through misrepresentation and the assault of the public. Public abuse is all that some of our public men have had to rely upon for their elevation. It has brought to them what talent and executive force could never have achieved. Many of those who are making great effort for place and power will never succeed just because they are not of enough importance to be abused. It is the nature of man to gather about those who are persecuted and defend them, and they are apt to forget the faults of those who are the subjects of attack while attempting to drive back their slanderers. Helen Stirk, a Scotch martyr condemned with her husband to death for Christ's sake, said to her husband: "Rejoice, we have lived together many joyous days, but this day wherein we must die together ought to be most joyful to us both. Therefore I will bid you good-night, for soon we shall meet in the heavenly kingdom." By the flash of the furnace best Christian character is demonstrated.

Go into another department, and I find that those great denominations of Christians which have been most abused have spread the most rapidly. No good man was ever more vilely maligned than John Wesley. His followers were hooted at and maligned, and called by every detestable name that infernal incunabula could invent, but the hotter the persecution the more rapid the spread of that denomination, until you know what a great host they have become and what a tremendous force for God and the truth they are wielding all the world over. It was persecution that gave Scotland to Presbyterianism. It was persecution which gave our own land first to civil liberty and afterward to religious freedom. Yes, I may go further back and say it was persecution that gave the world the great salvation of the Gospel. The ribald mockery, the hungering and thirsting, the unjust trial and ignominious death where all the force of hell's fury was hurled against the cross, was the introduction of that religion which is yet to be the earth's deliverance from guilt and suffering, and her everlasting enticement among the principalities of Heaven. The State has sometimes said to the church: "Come let me take your hand and I will help you." What has been the result? The church has gone back and has lost its estate of holiness and has become ineffective. At other times the State has said to the church: "I will crush you." What has been the result? After the storms have spent their fury, the church, so far from having lost any of its force, has increased and is worth infinitely more after the assault than before it. The church is far more indebted to the opposition of civil government than to its approval. The fires of the stake have only been the torches which Christ held in His hand, by the light of which the church has marched to her present position. In the sound of racks and implements of torture I hear the rumbling of the wheels of the Gospel chariot. Scaffolds of martyrdom have been the stairs by which the church has ascended. "Aqua fortis is the best test of pure gold."

Furthermore, our subject impresses us that sins will come to exposure. Long ago had these brothers sold Joseph into Egypt. They had suppressed the crime, and it was a profound secret well kept by the brothers. But suddenly the secret is out. The old father hears that his son is in Egypt, having been sold there by the malice of his own brothers. How their cheeks must have burned and their hearts sunk at the flaming out of this suppressed crime. The smallest iniquity has a thousand tongues and they will blab out an exposure. Saul was sent to destroy the Canaanites, their sheep and their oxen. But when he got down there, among the pastures he saw some fine sheep and oxen too fat to kill, and so he thought he would steal them. He drove them toward home, but stopped to report to the prophet how well he had executed the commission, when in the distance the sheep began to bleat and the oxen to bellow. The secret was out and Saul's task to the blushing and confounded Saul: "What means the bleating of the sheep that I hear and the bellowing of the cattle?" Aye, my hearers, you cannot keep an iniquity quiet. At just the wrong time the sheep will bleat and the oxen will bellow. Achan cannot steal the Babylonish garment without getting stoned to death, nor Benedict Arnold betray his country without having his neck stretched. Look over the public arrests, these thieves, these burglars, these adulterers, these counterfeiters, these highwaymen, these assassins! They all thought they could bury their iniquity so deep down that it would never come to resurrection. But there was some shoe that answered to the print in the sand, some false key found in possession, some bloody knife that whispered of the deed, and the public indignation, and the anathema of outraged law hurled him into the Tombs or hoisted him on the gallows. At the close of the battle between the Dauphin of France and the Helvetians, Bufchard Monk was so elated with the victory that he lifted his helmet to look off upon the field, when a wounded soldier hurled a stone that struck his uncovered forehead and he fell. Sin will always leave some point exposed, and there is no safety in iniquity. Francis I., King of France, was discussing how it was best to get his army into Italy. Amaril, the court fool, sprang out from the corner and said to the King and his staff officers: "You had better be thinking how you will get your army back out of Italy after once you have entered." In other words, it is easier for us to get into sin than to get out of it. Whitefield was riding on horseback in a lonely way with some missionary money in a sack fastened to the saddle bags. A highwayman sprang out from the thicket and put his hand out toward the gold, when Whitefield turned upon him and said: "That belongs to the Lord Jesus Christ; touch it if you dare," and the villain fell back empty handed into the thicket. Oh, the power of conscience! If offended, it becomes God's an-aging minister. Do not think that you can hide any great and protracted sin in your hearts. In an unguarded moment in will slip off of the lip, or some slight occasion may for a moment set ajar this door of hell that you wanted to keep closed. But suppose that in this life you hide it, and you get along with that transgression burning in your heart, as a ship on fire within for days may hinder the flame from bursting out by keeping down the hatchways; yet at last, in the judgment, that iniquity will blaze out before the throne of God and the universe.

Furthermore, learn from this subject the inseparable connection between all events, however remote. Lord Hastings was beheaded one year after he had caused the death of the queen's children, in the very month, the very day, the very hour and the very moment. There is wonderful precision in the Divine judgments. The universe is only one thought of God. Those things which seem fragmentary and isolated are only different parts of that one great thought. How far apart seemed those two events—Joseph sold to the Arabian merchants and the rulership of Egypt. Yet you see in what a mysterious way God connected the two in one plan. So all events are linked together. You who are aged can look back and group together a thousand things in your life that once seemed isolated. "One unbroken chain of events reached from the garden of Eden to the cross of Calvary, and thus up to Heaven. There is a relation between the smallest insect that hums in the summer air and the archangel on his throne; God can trace a direct ancestral line from the blue jay that last spring built its nest in a tree behind the house, to some one of that flock of birds which, when Noah hoisted the ark's window, with a whirl and dash of bright wings went out to sing over Mt. Ararat. The tulips that bloomed this summer in the flower bed were nursed by last winter's snow flakes. The furthest star on one side the universe could not look to the furthest star on the other side and say: "You are no relation to me;" for from that bright orb a voice of light would ring across the heavens responding: "Yes, yes; we are sisters." Sir Sidney Smith in prison was playing lawn tennis in the yard and the ball flew over the wall. Another ball containing letters was thrown back, and so communication was opened with the outside world, and Sidney Smith escaped in time to defeat Bonaparte's Egyptian expedition. What a small accident connected with what a vast result! Sir Robert Peel, from a pattern he drew on the back of a pewter dinner plate, got suggestions of that which led to the important invention by which calico is printed. Nothing in God's universe swings at both ends. Accidents are only God's way of turning a leaf in the book of his eternal decrees. From our cradle to our grave there is a path all marked out. Each event in our life is connected with every other event in our life. Our loss may be the most direct road to our gain. Our defeat and victories are twin brothers. The whole direction of your life was changed by something which at the time seemed to you a trifle, while some occurrence which seemed tremendous affected you but little. The Rev. Dr. Kennedy, of Fisking Ridge, N. J., went into his pulpit one Sabbath and by a strange freak of memory forgot his subject and forgot his text, and in great embarrassment rose before his audience and announced the circumstance and declared himself entirely unable to preach; then launched forth in a few earnest words of entreaty and warning which resulted in the outbursting of the mightiest revival of religion ever known in that State, a revival of religion that resulted in churches still standing and in the conversion of a large number of men who entered the Gospel ministry who have brought their thousands into the kingdom of God. God's plans are magnificent beyond all comprehension. He turns and directs us, and we know it not. Thousands of years are to him but as the flight of a shuttle. The most terrible occurrence does not make God tremble, and the most triumphant achievement does not lift him into nature. That one great thought of God goes on through the centuries, and nations rise and fall and eras pass, and the world itself changes, but God still keeps the undivided mastery, linking event to event and century to century. To God they are all one event, one history, one plan, one development, one system. Great and marvelous are thy works, Lord God Almighty.

Furthermore, we learn from this story the propriety of laying up for the future. During seven years of plenty Joseph prepared for the famine, and when it came he had a crowded storehouse. The life of most men in a worldly respect is divided into years of plenty and famine. It is seldom that any man passes through life without at least seven years of plenty. During these seven prosperous years your business bears a rich harvest. You hardly know where all the money comes from, it comes so fast. Every bargain you make seems to turn into gold. You contract few bad debts. You are astounded with large dividends. You invest more and more capital. You wonder how men can be content with a small business, gathering in only $100 where you reap your thousands. These are the seven years of plenty. Now, Joseph, is the time to prepare for famine, for to almost every man there do come seven years of famine.

Finally, learn from this subject that in every famine there is a storehouse. Up the long row of building, piled to the very roof with corn, come the hungry multitudes, and Joseph commanded that their sacks and their wagons be filled. The world has been blasted. Every green thing has withered under the touch of sin. From all continents and islands and zones up the groan of dying millions. Over tropical spout groves and Siberian ice hat and Hindu jungle the light has fallen. The famine is universal. But, glory be to God! there is a great storehouse. Jesus Christ, our elder brother, this day bids us come in from our hunger and beggary and obtain infinite supplies of grace enough to make us rich forever. Many of you have for a long while been smitten of the famine. The world has not stilled the throbbing of your spirit. Your conscience sometimes rouses you up with such suddenness and strength that it requires the most gigantic determination to quell the disturbance. Your courage quakes at the thought of the future. Oh, why will you tarry amid the blastings of the famine when such a glorious storehouse is open in God's mercy?

Ye wretched, hungry, starving poor,
Behold a royal feast.
Where mercy spreads her bounteous stores
For every humble guest.
See, Jesus stands with open arms,
He calls, He bids you come;
Guilt holds you back amidst alarms,
But see, there yet is room.

A Mean Trick.

"Never heard of anything so contemptibly mean in all my life—never!" she said, as he brought his right hand down upon his left.

"What was it?"
"Why, I bet $20 with a man on one of the races, and we put the money in the hands of stakeholder. I won it."

"Well?"
"Well, a constable stood right there and attached the whole $40 for a debt of five years old!"

"No!"
"He positively did, and he offered to mop the ground with me to boot! It is just such work as this that has brought horse-racing into disrepute, and which keeps honest people away from the tracks!"—Detroit Free Press.

How little do they see what is who frame their hasty judgment upon that which seems.—Southey.

BARRYMORE'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Sequel to the Murder of Actor Porter in Texas Years Ago.
(Chicago Tribune.)

"The severest test I was ever subjected to," said Maurice Barrymore recently in talking of emergencies that prove a man's metal, "was in connection with the Porter murder case in Marshall, Texas. I do not refer to the killing itself, but to one of the complications that grew out of it."

The Porter murder will be recalled by every newspaper, as it created a great sensation at the time in theatrical circles all over the country. A New York company was playing "Diplomacy" down in Texas, and among the members were Robert Porter, Minnie Cummings, and Maurice Barrymore. These three were together when they happened to enter the railroad station in Marshall. They were accosted by a half-drunken rough named Jim Currie, who fancied that some slight had been put upon him, and who followed them, using the vilest language. Barrymore warned him to stop, but this only infuriated the fellow, who drew two pistols and blazed away. Both bullets took effect, one in the fleshy part of Barrymore's arm, the other breaking the shoulder blade. The wounded man ran into a neighboring saloon and begged the bartender to give him a revolver to defend himself. The bartender would not and Barrymore returned to his companions in time to see Porter on his knees as if imploring mercy, while Currie took deliberate aim at his breast and killed him. A year after a Texas jury set Currie free on the plea of insanity.

"After traveling thousands of miles to give testimony at the trial against the cowardly murderer," said Barrymore, "you may fancy what my feelings were at the verdict. I expressed myself pretty freely in denouncing the trial as a farce, and ascribed the verdict to the venality of the marshal. Some friends came to me and warned me to leave town, as I might expect to get riddled by the marshal as soon as my words were carried to his ears. It seems that this excellent official was himself a desperado, and had earned the respect of his fellow townsmen by the number of killings he had to his credit. I assure you I had no desire of provoking a quarrel with him and resolved to get out of town as soon as possible.

"That night I was sitting on the veranda of the hotel about dusk, and there were some half dozen of us in conversation, when we saw the marshal approaching. He was a one-armed man and wore his revolver exposed in a belt, as the law permitted him to do. My companions scented trouble and got up quietly and walked away in different directions. I sat where I was, not knowing what else to do. The marshal, who did not know me by sight, passed me and went up to the hotel clerk, who was behind his desk, only a few steps from me. 'Is Mr. Barrymore in?' I heard him ask. The clerk, with a presence of mind which I mentally blessed, replied, 'No; he left town this afternoon.' The marshal was about to go when a darkey, who was cleaning spittoons near by, looked up and said, 'Dat's Mr. Barrymore out dere sittin' on de steps.' 'It's all up,' I thought, and for the second time in my life I cursed fate that I had no weapon. What was I to do? I couldn't run away, and yet to remain was death. I made up my mind to snatch a pistol from his belt when he approached. He had but one arm and I had two, and there was an advantage in that. He came toward me and asked quietly, 'Is this Mr. Barrymore?' 'Yes,' said I, and arose. I was sitting three steps beneath him, and when I stood up my head about reached to his waist. As I straightened up his hand fell on the handle of his revolver, and he drew it.

"I have faced danger in life when it was sudden, and have hardly realized it till it was over, but the mental strain of that moment was something I never wish to go through again. As he drew the revolver he handed it to me, handle foremost, saying: 'I've brought you the revolver that Jim Currie shot you with last year. I thought you might be curious to see it.'"

"I was stupefied. It was no sudden revulsion of feeling. The situation had been too terrible to suddenly become ridiculous. I mistrusted him. I took the pistol and examined it. It was fully ten minutes before I returned it to him, convinced that he merely came to gratify my curiosity and not to make a corpse of me. The fact was he bore me no ill will at all, as he had not heard of the disparaging remarks I had made about him. I kept him at the bar drinking with me until it was time for my train to go, and then I shook hands with him and jumped on board with a thankful heart.—Chicago Tribune.

Cool Rejoinders.

Our neighbors across the Channel are fond of relating humorous little incidents of sang froid in which an Englishman usually acts the role of chief character. As, for instance:—A man entered a furniture shop and said:

"Have you any old furniture?"

"No, sir; but we can make you some!"

This reminds us of the Englishman in a restaurant who called for stale bread.

"We have none, my lord."

"Make some, then; I will wait," was the calm reply.

Instances of remarkable coolness and assurance among adventurers "out West" are only to be expected. To begin with a small example. A boy who comes of a chronically borrowing family, went to a neighbor's for a cup of sour milk.

"I haven't got anything but sweet milk," said the woman, pettishly.

"I'll wait till it sours," said the obliging youth, sinking into a chair.

But in many of the cases now under consideration, foreigners of several nationalities will be found to have figured conspicuously in the matter of taking things coolly.

It is related that a lady and gentleman came to a ferry, and the boatman deputed his grandson to row them across.

"Why do you not manage your boat yourself," asked the lady, "instead of letting this child do it?"

"Oh, don't you be afraid, ma'am," answered the ferryman; "the lad can swim."

Equally indifferent to the fate of others was one of the sufferers by a late railway accident. He was seen rushing anxiously about, when some one asked if he was hurt.

"No; but I can't find my umbrella."

About a year ago, when the upper part of a hotel was on fire, one of the servant girls was directed to awaken two gentlemen who were asleep in an upstairs room. She knocked at the door, and, with the greatest simplicity, said:

"I beg pardon, gentlemen, for disturbing you, but the house is on fire."

This case of what may be called ludicrous politeness brings to mind another.

"Hi! you dropped a brick up there!" shouted a pedestrian on whose shoulder one of those articles had fallen from a three-story scaffold.

"All right," cheerfully responded the bricklayer; "you needn't take the trouble to bring it up."

"What is the matter?" asked a lawyer of his coachman.

"The horses are running away, sir."

"Can't you pull them up?"

"I am afraid not."

"Then," said the lawyer after judicial delay, "run into something cheap."—Chambers' Journal.

Blessing Cattle in Bulgaria.

In the Greek Church of Eastern Europe much of the religious work is done by the married parish clergy, who are popularly styled "Papae" or "Fathers." Bishops are not allowed to marry, but the working clergy are not as a rule ordained until they are married. They differ from the monastic clergy, from among which the bishops are chosen, in other ways, but it is to them that the people look for pastoral work. They belong by birth to the people, and they usually live on terms of familiarity with the peasantry, and identify themselves with the rustic population, being not much distinguished from them in manners and habits of domestic life. Among the ecclesiastical customs of Bulgaria is that of the priest visiting a farmyard, at stated intervals, to pronounce a religious benediction upon the increase of flocks and herds; the oxen and cows, the sheep, the goats, getting the benefit of his blessing, which is read with solemnity from an authorized liturgy, accompanied with the gentle waving of a feathered fan, sprinkling a few drops of consecrated water in the presence of the assembled rural household.

If a rich man doesn't dispense money in charity—he is called miserly; if he does he is accused of doing it for notoriety.

The Correct Time.

There are very few men who do not pride themselves on always having the correct time, and wonderful and delicate mechanisms are devised to enable them to do so. But the more delicate a chronometer is made the more subject it becomes to derangement, and unless it be kept always perfectly clean it soon loses its usefulness. What wonder, then, that the human machine—so much more delicate and intricate than any work of man—should require to be kept thoroughly cleansed. The liver is the main spring of this complex structure, and on the impurities left in the blood by a disordered liver depend most of the ills that flesh is heir to. Even consumption (which is lung scrofula) is traceable to the imperfect action of this organ. Kidney disease, skin diseases, sick headache, heart disease, dropsy, and a long catalogue of grave maladies have their origin in a torpid or sluggish liver. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, by establishing a healthy, normal action of the liver, acts as a cure and preventive of these diseases.

How to make a horse fast: Don't feed him.

If Sufferers from Consumption.

Scrofula, Bronchitis, and General Debility will try Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, they will find immediate relief and permanent benefit. The Medical Profession universally declare it a remedy of the greatest value and very palatable. Read: "I have used Scott's Emulsion in several cases of Scrofula and Debility in Children. Results most gratifying. My little patients take it with pleasure."—W. A. HULBERT, M.D., Salisbury, Ill.

When an owner of a sailing vessel grows wealthy, would it be proper to say that he has almost a fortune?

Harvest Excursions.

The Burlington Route, C. B. & Q. R. R., will sell, on Sept. 20 and Oct. 11, Harvest Excursion Tickets at one fare for the round trip to principal points in Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, and Dakota. Limit, thirty days. Tickets and further information may be obtained of any C. B. & Q. Ticket Agent, or by addressing Paul Morton, Gen'l Passenger and Ticket Agent, Chicago, Ill.

A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC R'Y

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest—is the only true middle-link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific. The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unequalled in the West—unsurpassed in the world. ALL EXPRESS TRAINS between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE PARLOR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and—between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kankakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.

All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employees of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly attention.

For Tickets, Maps, Folders—obtainable at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada—or any desired information, address,

R. R. CABLE, E. ST. JOHN, E. A. HOLBROOK,
Pres't & Gen'l Mgr, Chicago. Asst Gen'l Mgr, Chicago. Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Agt., Chicago.

TOWER'S
FISH BRAND

SLICKER

The Best Waterproof Coat.

The FISH BRAND SLICKER is warranted waterproof, and will keep you dry in the heaviest storm. The new FISH BRAND SLICKER is a perfect fitting coat, and covers the entire saddle. Beware of imitations. None genuine without the "Fish Brand" trade-mark. Illustrated Catalogue free. A. J. Tower, Boston, Mass.

KIDDER'S

DIGESTYLIN

A SURE CURE FOR INDIGESTION AND DYSPEPSIA.

Over 5000 Physicians have sent us their approval of DIGESTYLIN, saying that it is the best preparation for Indigestion that they have ever used.

We have never heard of a case of Dyspepsia where DIGESTYLIN was taken that was not cured.

FOR CHOLERA INFANTUM.

IT WILL CURE THE MOST AGGRAVATED CASES. IT WILL STOP VOMITING IN PREGNANCY.

IT WILL RELIEVE CONSTIPATION.

For Summer Complaints and Chronic Diarrhea, which are the direct results of imperfect digestion, DIGESTYLIN will effect an immediate cure.

Take DIGESTYLIN for all pains and disorders of the stomach; they all come from indigestion. Ask your druggist for DIGESTYLIN (price $1 per large bottle). If he does not have it, send one dollar to us and we will send a bottle to you, express prepaid.

Do not hesitate to send your money. Our house is reliable. Established twenty-five years.

W. M. F. KIDDER & CO.,

Manufacturing Chemists, 23 John St., N. Y.

FOR ALL DISORDERS OF THE ## Stomach, Liver

and Bowels

—TAKE—

PACIFIC LIVER PILLS

STRICTLY VEGETABLE.

Cure Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Piles, Sick Headache, Liver Complaints, Loss of Appetite, Bilelessness, Nervousness, Jaundice, etc.

For Sale by all Druggists. Price, 25 Cents.

PACIFIC MANUFACTURING CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

(101 Pills worth $50 per pound, Pettit's Eye Salve $1.00, but is sold at 25 cents a box by dealers.)

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
One Year, in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months ..... 50
Three Months ..... 25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe
as second-class matter.

FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 23, 1887.

The Hicksville Independent issued a very creditable daily during the fair.

Just a round dozen new subscribers have entered their names on our books this week.

The Auburn Dispatch says that 500 men will be set to work in the Garrett shops about Oct. 1st.

Dick White is traveling with Bartine's circus. He furnishes a team of mules and gets ten dollars a week.

Ladies wishing dress making done in all the latest styles at reasonable prices, should call on Mrs. Everett and Mrs. Merrill over Tustison's grocery.

Wash Woodcox returned Tuesday and has rented a house and moved his family into it. That looks as if he expected to remain here for the present.

What has become of the great mine of muck that was discovered on Stepleten farm near Newville some time ago. It is like a great many other air castles that have been built only on imagination.

Manager Watkins telegraphs the managers of the great Inter-State Fair, that the Detroit, the champion Ball club of the world will positively be in Fort Wayne on the 29th inst. Don't miss seeing this great club.

The slickest thing we have seen lately, is the new button fastener that Olso & Olds received this week. It does the work perfect and secure. Exchange for fastening the button in your shoes. Call and see it work.

Messrs. White, Samuel Lawhead and Mrs. Clara Wyatt left Tuesday for a three weeks visit with friends in and near Allen Creek, Michigan. Uncle Rastus took a gun with him, and expects to kill a few deer, while uncle Sam had a box full of fishing tackle, and will rake in some big fish.

Alex. Filley took over two tons of W. C. T. U. ladies to Newville last Saturday, and they in return presented him with a fine large cake, in which was a one-dollar silver piece. We don't know whether Mr. Filley was like the boy we used to read about in the second reader, who ate so much cake that it made him sick, but we do know that he appreciated the kindness of the ladies, and probably divided the cake up among his friends, although we haven't got our piece yet.

Mell Bishop says that Simon Wineband upset his elevator the other day. Mell was a little off though; he meant separator. As they were pulling out Monday morning, one of the bolts that fastens the tongue to the axle broke, running the separator off to the side of the road, and upsetting it into one of those large holes near the gravel pit. Mr. Wineband was setting on top of the separator when it went over, and although he was considerably frightened and some bruised, he escaped without serious injury.

AN INTERESTING LETTER FROM S. S. WIDNEY.

ATTICA, OHIO,
SEPT. 19th, 1887.

EDITOR NEWS: To make good my promise I will try and write a few lines from this part of Buckeye state which may be of interest to a few of the many readers of the News. In just four hours ride, which was made pleasant and interesting by the gentlemanly baggage-master, we arrived safely at our destination; old "Fan" seeming to enjoy the ride as hugely as myself. The locality we are stopping in is on the line between Seneca and Huron counties, about twenty miles south of Sandusky, in a fine farming and stock country; the crops with a few exceptions average fairly with old DeKalb. The loss in the failure of the apple crop is made up to a large extent by a fine peach crop, the good qualities which we have already sampled. Among other things noticeable in this country is the custom among the fair sex of riding on horse-back, which to a St. Joeite presents rather a novel way of transportation. The town of Attica is located about a mile south of the station and is a nice clean business place of about one thousand inhabitants. We will attend the Sandusky fair and visit other places of interest this week. S. S. Widney.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

CONCORD.

Grandpa Baker is quite sick with chills and fever.

Janie Monroe visited under the parental roof last Sabbath.

Dick Monroe has gone to Garrett to assist in the telegraph office.

Emma Morr started last Wednesday to visit friends in LaGrange for a few weeks.

Mrs. Callie Brown, of Auburn, visited with grandma Buchanan a few days last week.

Miss Louise Plattner, of near Butler, was the guest of Miss Samantha Buchanan last Sunday.

Grandpa Baker went to Waterloo one day this week and procured some fine fish with which to stock his fish pond.

George Draggoo and wife have gone to Indianapolis this week to attend the state fair, and expect to stop off on the way and visit with their son Frank.

SPENCERVILLE.

W. C. Tindall is dangerously ill.

L. Raber, of Greentown, Ohio, is the guest of S. S. Shutt.

Quite a number of our citizens attended the Hicksville Fair on Wednesday and Thursday.

S. S. Shutt was called to Akron, Ohio, last Tuesday, to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law.

Misses Flora Houghton and Ella Simons, of Hometown, are visiting their many friends at this place.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will be entertained by Mrs. Charley Rhodes, Saturday afternoon Oct. 1st, 1887. A cordial invitation is given to all.

Mrs. Crane and her son Henry, of Butler, were the guests of J. W. Dills and family over last Sunday. Mrs. Crane was formerly Mrs. Spencer Dills, well known to many of the older residents of this vicinity.

County Clerk-elect Bishop didn't have very good luck in catching fish at Petoskey, but upon his arrival home he found something bigger and livelier than any thing he caught while he was gone. It was a girl of the usual weight.

EXAMINE THE LARGEST, FINEST,

AND MOST COMPLETE LINE OF

Men's, Ladies', Misses' AND Children's FINE SHOES.

Ever exhibited in St. Joe. They comprise the most popular brands, such as Reed, Weaver, Gōkey & Son, &c. The buttons will be reset on all shoes purchased of us, with Wilkin's patent fasteners. Call and see

J. D. LEIGHTY, ST. JOE.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

Trains Leave St. Joe as follows:

WESTBOUND.

No. 9 Mail and Express 11:05 A. M.
17 Accommodation 4:18 P. M.
3 Chicago Express 10:42 A. M.
35 Local Freight 3:42 P. M.

EAST BOUND.

No. 10 Express and Mail 2:08 P. M.
16 Accommodation 10:28 A. M.
4 Morning Express 4:55 A. M.
34 Local Freight 7:59 A. M.

W. I. McKEE, AGENT.

ST. JOE MARKETS.

CORRECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat	70 cts.
Oats	26 cts.
Corn	35 cts.
Butter	15 cts.
Eggs	14 cts.
Tallow	3 1/2 cts.
Lard	10 cts.
Potatoes	70 cts.

RENEWS HER YOUTH.

Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, Peterson, Clay Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: "I am 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years; could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and soreness, and am able to do all my own housework. I owe my thanks to Electric Bitters for having renewed my youth and removed completely all disease and pain." Try a bottle, 50c. and $1. at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store.

Case & Olds desire to call the attention of the lady readers of the News to their Two Dollar Fine Kid Shoes. They are the best shoe for the money ever offered in this market. Drop in and see them.

REPORT OF THE DRIVEN WELL COMMITTEE.

For the information of the people of DeKalb county who are interested in the "drive well" question, the following report is submitted by the undersigned, who were appointed a committee to confer with the agent for Indiana of the owner of the patent.

After a full conference with the agent we find that there is no prospect of any settlement of the claims for royalty against any one, or more persons for a sum less than ten dollars each; but by prompt and concerted action throughout the county the people can save several thousand dollars by the payment of a sum in lump for the entire county. We have assurances that such a proposition, if promptly made, will be entertained.

For the purpose of submitting the subject to the people for their consideration and decision, we appoint a meeting to be held at the court house at Auburn, on Monday the 26th day of Sept. 1887, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. We suggest that all who are interested, either individually or generally in behalf of the people of the county, should attend the meeting, as success depends on the prompt and united action of the people in all parts of the country.

Sept. 16, 1887. J. D. LEIGHTY,
E. D. HARTMAN,
W. L. PENFIELD.

In order to aid the meeting in determining whether a settlement is practicable, full reports should be made to the meeting from each school district or township, as to the number of drive wells put down before January 14, 1885, and the amount that could be depended upon for settlement. COMMITTEE.

The Famous Detroit Base Ball club will play at the Fort Wayne fair on Thursday the 29th inst, the big day of the fair. Don't fail to see this great game. Admission to the grounds only 25 cents.

A Disastrous Flood!

Heavy damages done by the over-throw of High Prices, and we will continue same. Good Brown Sugar 5 and 6 cts. Granulated 7 cts. Rosin 5 cts. Alum 5 cts. Salts 5 cts. Bird Seed 3 cts. Salt Peter 12 1/2 cts. Prunes 6 1/2 cts. Good Gingham 6 cts. Dress Goods at your own price. Grain Sacks 18 cts. All goods as cheap as the cheapest. Highest market price paid for Wheat, Oats and Seeds.

S. & F. Barney

We just want to call your attention to three things this week that we want you to know.

1st. The finest line of Clocks, Watches and Jewelry in St. Joe can be found at the Drugstore.

2nd. Nobody carries as fine a line of Ladies Hand Bags as the St. Joe Drugstore.

3rd. The only place in St. Joe to find a line of Fine Perfumeries is at the Drugstore.

WORTH KNOWING.

Mr. W. H. Morgan, merchant, Lake City, Fla., was taken with a severe Cold, attended with a distressing Cough and running into Consumption in its first stages. He tried many so-called popular cough remedies and steadily grew worse. Was reduced in flesh, had difficulty in breathing and was unable to sleep. Finally tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and found immediate relief, and after using about a half dozen bottles found himself well and has no return of the disease. No other remedy can show so grand a record of cures, as Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption Guaranteed to do just what is claimed for it.—Trial bottles free at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store.

LOCALS.

Auditor C. C. Walter was in town Wednesday.

Will Gee barbered in Hicksville a part of this week.

S. S. Widney has an interesting letter in this issue.

Clocks and Watches repaired at the St. Joe Drug Store.

Some repairs are being made on the saw mill at this place.

The Hicksville Fair ground was flooded with children Wednesday.

The Fair at Hicksville is reported a success by all who have attended.

Half fare tickets to Chicago on sale at the depot in this place every Monday.

Plenty of fresh home-made Lard at Curie's Meat Market. Only 10 cents per pound.

The St. Joe Band went to the Hicksville Fair Wednesday with the Coburntown Sunday school.

W. I. McKee and Don Van Fleet attended an entertainment at Hicksville on Wednesday evening.

The Fort Wayne Fair offers special attractions next week; one of them being a game of ball by the famous Detroit club.

Free Zeigler received this week a full line of Horse Blankets, Lap Robes &c. Give him a call when you get ready to buy such goods.

The Methodist church at Waterloo was destroyed by fire last Saturday evening. It was a new brick structure, and was one of the finest churches in that city.

Some of the best racing horses in the country will be at the great Inter-State Fair at Fort Wayne, as well as the greatest Base Ball club in the world, the famous Detroit.

Chris Curie requests us to say that a conveyance will be provided to take all the school children to the Waterloo Fair next Wednesday, who desire to go. Teams will leave the west end of Main Street not later than seven o'clock.

The Hicksville schools have an enrollment of 420 pupils.

The seven anarchists of Chicago, are doomed to hang on the 11th of November.

The annual election of officers occurs at the Lutheran Sunday school next Sunday.

St. Joe has already had two circuses, and we understand that a third one is headed this way.

The St. Joe Band accompanied the Methodist Sunday school to the picnic at Springfield last Saturday.

Wall Papers are very cheap this fall. Case & Olds have just received some handsome new patterns.

Wm. Smith has purchased of Chris Curie the property opposite Ben Leighty's, and moved into it this week.

Ferguson & Copp will complete their work on the school-house this week. They will then put up Mahlon Baker's new residence.

Base ball seems to be occupying the time and attention of our neighboring towns. In the mean time St. Joe people are attending strictly to business.

The fare from Hicksville to the G. A. R. Encampment at St. Louis is said to be only $5.00 for the round trip. Who can't afford to travel at such prices?

We received a copy of the Maysville News, this week, a little sheet published by Charlie Grubb for advertising purposes. It contains quite a good deal of local news and is pretty well gotten up for a new hand.

Wiggins, the great Canadian weather prophet, prophesied a big storm on the 19th of this month, but just as might be expected, he didn't know anything about it. At least it was the pleasantest kind of a day in this neighborhood.

The county convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, will be held in this place some time in the latter part of October. Prominent speakers will be present, and a good time is expected. Due notice will be given of the time.

Those who attended the picnic at Springfield last Saturday, report a pleasant time; although the crowd was not as large as had been expected, there only being three schools present. That probably ends the picnics for this season.

There will be a school meeting at the school house in this place, on Saturday evening, Sept 24th, to elect a director, appoint a time for school to commence, and attend to any other business necessary for the welfare of the school. Let there be a general turn out.

Some time ago people complained that there wasn't going to be any corn, but as usual, they cried before they were hurt. Farmers have been bringing sample ears of corn into this office, and they all report a fair crop. Dave Andrews brought in an ear that had twenty-eight rows on it.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. of St. Joe went to Newville last Saturday, to attend the picnic at that place. The exercises were held in the Disciple church and church yard, and consisted in singing, speaking, eating and a social time. Mrs. Jones of Garrett was present, and in her pleasant manner, spoke words of cheer and encouragement to those engaged in the temperance work. Rev. Thomas also made some appropriate remarks, and put in a few hard licks for prohibition. The ladies of the W. C. T. U. of Newville entertained the ladies of St. Joe in a right royal manner, and they all came home well pleased with their trip.

We invite your attention to our new line of fall Clothing which we have just received this week. No shoddy, but all the best goods at low prices. Good line of Overcoats, and the Nobbiest lot of latest styled men's hats in town. Call and see them.
Case & Olds.

CLOTHING

In men's and boys' boots our stock never was as large and prices as low as this season. We earnestly solicit a share of your boot patronage, and promise you full value for all the money you spend with us. Drop in and look us over.
Case & Olds

TRUTH IS MIGHTY AND WILL PREVAIL.

LOOK THIS WAY!

I keep on hand a fine line of Furniture, which I will sell for the next 60 days at prices that defy competition. Glass Cupboards $8.50. Double Cane Seat and Back Rockers $2. Dressing Case, with French Plate Glass $12.00. Carpet Lounges $6.50. Solid Comfort Beds for $2.25. Undertaking a speciality.

August Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.

M. TUSTISON,

—DEALER IN—

Groceries, Flour,

PROVISIONS,

CANDIES, GIGARS, TOBACCO.

Canned Fruits, Beans, Dried Beef, Cheese, Bologna &c. Produce taken in exchange for goods.

ST. JOE, IND.

—G. A. PATTERSON.—

at the St. Joe Drugstore, repairs Clocks, Watches and Jewelry. All work warranted and prices reasonable. Give me your work.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. PRICE 25 cents per box. For sale by W. C. Patterson.

S. & F. Barney are buying lots of clover seed.

The Kendallville Fair will be held from the 3rd to the 7th of Oct.

We noticed Prof. Price in town Sunday evening. The Normal has closed, but it seems that the Professor still retains an interest here.

The Detroit Base Ball club, the National League champions will play at the great Fort Wayne Fair on Thursday the 29th. You will never have an opportunity to see this great club for so small an admission, 25 cents to the entire Fair, so don't fail to see them.

THE INTER-STATE FAIR

Fort Wayne, Indiana, September 27, 28, 29, 30, 1887.

For five years past the Inter-State Fair has had

The largest cattle show in the State.
The largest horse show in the State.
The largest sheep show in the State.
The largest hog show in the State.
The largest poultry show in the State.
The best races in the State.
The most liberal premiums of any Fair in the State.

The best line of attractions and amusements of any Fair in the State.

Every premium has been paid in full, as advertised, and every promise has been fulfilled.

The Fair of 1887 will equal its predecessors in every particular, and in many features will surpass any former Fair.

The same liberal policy in regard to premiums and attractions will govern the management this year as in the past, and exhibitors will receive uniformly courteous treatment, and liberal inducements to show at the Fort Wayne Fair.

To the progressive farmer the stock exhibit, the immense line of agricultural implements, and the horticultural display, offer an interesting field of study, amply sufficient to repay him for the time and money spent at the Fair.

To the mechanic the many improved machines and other displays in the mechanical line will afford an endless amount of instruction and amusement.

To entertain the amusement-loving public a fine line of attractions have been secured, over $3,000 being offered in this department alone.

Believing that in no way can the farmer, the mechanic, the laboring man, the merchant, the housewife, the young and the old receive the same amount of instruction and amusement as at the great Inter-State Fair, a cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

Everabody in this naborhood knoe Jon Davis, an tha awl kno that ther is no one that kan laff ana longer an louder than Jon kan, when he sees smnthing funny tu laff at. Last weak one day sumthing happened that was fun fur the rest ov us, but was hard on Jon. It seems that Jon had a sow with sum young pigs an it so happened that the pigs wer up at one end ov the lane an the old sow was down at the othar end hunting sumthing tu eat. Jon thot he wood hav a littel fun an so he began tu maik sort ov a squeeking noise, to maik the old sow think sumthing was aftar her pigs. The sow herd it and she caim pel-mel down the lane and maid a bea line fur Jon in a wa that ment business. Jon thot it was fun at furst, but wen he saw that the old sow was in earnest he actually clum the fenc an wood'nt cum down. He wont be apt tu fule with the old sow ana moor.
Barcus Q. Hippenhammer.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

THE WONDERFUL COUNTRY.

BY JOHN BOYLE O'REILLEY.

There once was a time when, as old songs prove it,

The earth was not round, but an endless plain;

The sea was as wide as the heavens above it—

Just millions of miles and begin again.

And that was the time—ay, and more's the pity

It ever should end! when the world could play,

When singers told tales of a crystal city

In a wonderful country far away!

But the schools must come, with their scales

And measures,

To limit the visions and weigh the spells;

They scoffed at the dreamers with rainbow

Treasures.

And circled the world in their parallels;

They chartered the vales and the sunny mea-Dows.

Where minstrels might ride for a year and a

Day;

They sounded the depths and they pierced the Shadows

Of that wonderful country far away.

For fancies they gave us their microscopes;

For knowledge a rubble of fact and doubt;

Wing-broken and caged, like a bird from the Tropics.

Romance at the wandering stars looked out.

Cold Reason, they said, is the early Eden;

But fairer the flowers and fields forbidden

Of that wonderful country far away.

They questioned the slumbering baby's laughter,

And cautioned its elders to dream by rule;

All mysteries past and to come her after

Were settled and solved in their common school.

But sweeter the streams and the wild birds' singing.

The friendship and love that were true always;

The gladness unseen, like a far bell ringing,

In that wonderful country far away.

Nay, not in their Reason, nor dear illusion,

But truer than truths that are measured and weighed—

O land of the spirit! where no intrusion

From bookmen or debaters shall ever be made!

There still breaks the murmuring sea to greet us

On shadowy vale and peaceful bay;

And souls that were truest still wait to meet us

In that wonderful country far away!

—Scribner's Magazine

HOW TED GOT EVEN.

BY RYE JOHNSON.

Uncle Sam Lusted had been a sailor many years, and his collection of rare and curious things from all parts of the globe was well worth seeing.

Two long rooms in the great house were especially devoted to them, and we loved to gather there on rainy days.

Gussie and I, who are twins, and as like as two rosebuds, (so Cousin Kent always said) had lived with uncle ever since we were made orphans by a fearful railway accident. We were too young to remember it, and now were 17.

There was another orphan cousin, Ted Clarkson, who was also a member of the family.

Uncle had but one child, Cousin Kent, who was now a grave-faced man of 26, already a practicing physician and a great favorite all through the neighboring country.

Ted was just at the imp age, 14, and an adept in mischief. Ted was a constant grief to me, for he never could tell Gussie and me apart, and was always giving my messages or letters and everything else to her. But he rarely gave hers to me, so I never quite believed him innocent in the matter.

She had a lover, but I had none, and of all the comical mistakes you ever heard Ted was constantly getting him into.

He was the minister, and a trifle near-sighted. I never could hear him, for he was small and slight, almost girlish, with a slow, sweet way about him, that captivated all the old women and—Gussie.

But I really disliked him, and when on several occasions he mistook me for her, it gave me the "creeps." Once he took me in his arms, and was about to kiss me, when I gave him a ringing slap that startled him broad awake for once.

I was ashamed when he apologized so sweetly, but he never attempted any more caresses until he was sure "which was which."

Ted and I were good friends, and after Gussie became a victim of the tender passion, we became constant companions. We lived in a large, old-fashioned house in the edge of town.

There were great stretches of forest on two sides, where summers we wandered and lost ourselves. A fine lake, only half a mile away, furnished boating and skating in season, and a high hill on one bank the grandest kind of coasting.

Uncle Sam and Aunt Kate let us run wild, only requiring gentlemanly and ladylike behavior on all occasions, and uninterrupted attendance at the school, which only kept five months each year.

We had plenty of time for mischief, and well we improved it.

Cousin Kent used to reprove me sometimes for my wildness, but one day I saucily called him an old man, and begged him to let us be young while we could.

"Do I seem so very old to you?" he asked, half sadly.

"You act older than Uncle Sam," I replied, and then hated myself for it, he looked so troubled and turned so abruptly away.

I sprang after him, flung my arms about his neck, and drew his handsome face to mine.

"I did not mean it, dear Kent. You are just a darling when you don't scold," and I kissed him impulsively on the lips.

To my surprise, a deep flush crept over his face, and he pushed me away.

"Don't do that," he cried, his face becoming white in contrast to its previous color.

I stood amazed and cross. To be repulsed when I wished to make friends was more than I could bear with any sort of patience.

"I will go with Ted, now, anyway," and I rushed away.

He had heard of some tom-boy frolic we had on hand, and had been persuading me not to go.

I flung off up garret to a favorite hiding place I had, where even Ted had never intruded as yet. There I always went when my "moods" were on, and stayed until I was good-natured again.

There I sat a long time on that day, puzzling my brain over Kent's odd behavior. At last I came to the conclusion that he thought me bold and unmaidenly for kissing him. That I had shocked his exalted ideas of maidenly modesty. A hot flush dyed my face at the thought, and I vowed to be circumspection itself toward him in the future.

Ted called me many times, while I sat there, and I finally saw him go away to the lake alone, looking cross and out of patience.

I kept myself out of sight all day, and when I saw Ted returning went to meet him. Vainly I tried to induce him not to tell that he had gone alone.

He was ugly. Everything had gone wrong, and he said it was all my fault. At supper Kent asked sarcastically if our fun had paid us, and he answered crossly that he had no fun at all, nodding maliciously and looking full at me.

"Bessie hid herself somewhere and did not go, but told me not to tell you."

A pleased look crossed Kent's face, and he glanced eagerly at me, but I was angry at Ted, and replied hastily. "Be sure I should have gone had I wanted to, and, furthermore, Master Ted, small aid will you get from me in the future to further your fun."

Ted stared open-mouthed at such an outburst, but Kent paid no apparent attention, and went quietly on with his supper.

I got away as soon as I could and went into the garden for a good cry, though I did not seem to know what I was crying for.

I had thrown myself face downward upon a rustic bench, and did not hear any one approach, so was startled to feel an arm passed about me, and hear the minister's low, sweet voice say, "What is the matter, Gussie dear?"

I sprang to my feet in a fury.

"Just please keep your hands off me, John Gordon. I hate the sight of you. You are always making such mistakes. I declare I believe you do it on purpose," and disregarding his dismayed attempt at an apology, I rushed away to my room.

I was thoroughly ashamed of myself in a moment, and when he started home I intercepted him at the gate, and begged his pardon most humbly.

He, gentle soul, quickly granted it, and in turn begged me not to be so angry if he ever transgressed in that way again. I promised, and was nearer liking the small man than I ever was before.

Returning to the house I met Ted, and tried to make peace with him, but the young savage utterly refused all overtures, ending by threatening a most terrible revenge. I shivered a little, for I knew Ted's revenges of old, and wondered what form it would take. I never doubted but it would come.

Time went on, and I became a re-

Ted sneered openly, and predicted a speedy return to fun and folly. Kent gave me an approving smile now, and then, and I knew he appreciated the change.

But since that day I had called him "old" he treated me as if he were 60 and I 10, and called me "little maid" on all occasions.

I missed our long, pleasant "book" talks, missed the delicate attentions he had given me as a young lady, but the change was of my making and I could not complain.

One day I did something that pleased him, and he patted me on the head approvingly, calling me a "dear little girl."

My temper flew instantly. Jerking myself away I cried angrily: "I am not a little girl. I won't have you treat me so."

An amused look crept into his fine eyes, and he said roguishly: "Neither am I an old man."

Then we both laughed heartily, and our real friendship began.

All through that long summer we were constantly together. Gussie and John were so absorbed in each other, Ted was so ugly, that I really had no companion in the house, so I went with Kent on many of his long rides.

I was beginning to hope he cared for me. I dared not own, even to myself, how much I cared for him. His manner was always kind, but sometimes I fancied there was more than brotherly love in the care he took of me.

Ted still occasionally warned me to "look out," that the time would soon come when he would square the debt between us. He honestly thought I had ruined all his fun for the summer, and I knew his nature so well that I daily looked for trouble.

One day some friends came to visit, and we spent the afternoon in uncle's rooms. He, good soul, delighted to get so appreciate an audience, exhibited and explained many curious things.

Only one thing particularly interested me, as I had seen everything before. That was some strange bean-like objects, that he said were the seed of a plant that grew only in India, and called by the natives, a "laughing plant." When ground fine, and taken internally or through the nostrils, it would cause the victim to soon begin laughing immoderately until exhaustion ensued, terminating sometimes in death, and at others in fainting.

It was a curious plant, and best not meddled with, he concluded, fixing his eyes upon Ted, who he saw was listening eagerly. He shrank back, but fixed his eyes upon me with a look that made me shiver.

When the friends departed, after a dainty lunch, Kent and I walked to the gate with them.

It was a glorious night in August. The harvest moon flooded all things with a radiant light. The air was pure and cool; after a sultry day.

We turned aside from the direct path on our return and wandered into the garden.

An arbor reached, Kent drew me to a seat beside him, and in few direct, earnest words told me the "old, old story." My heart beat so with joy that I could scarcely breathe. Then, good heavens! what made me do it? I burst into an uncontrollable fit of laughter.

I could not help it, to save my life, although I would have died sooner than done it.

His dismayed face cut me to the heart, but I laughed and laughed. I tried to speak, but could not control myself long enough to utter a sentence. But he saw by my pleading face, that I had not meant to laugh.

I heard him mutter something about "that cursed Ted," but I only laughed until the family had all gathered about, and I finally fainted from exhaustion.

I awoke in my own bed, with Aunt Kate and Kent administering to me. I could remember nothing at first, and was weak as a babe. The doctor's troubled face showed something wrong, but what?

I essayed to speak, but failed. Then, turned an inquiring glance to Aunt Kate. She was crying softly, but replied:

"Kent says Ted has been giving you some of father's laughing plant."

Then I remembered the scene in the garden and turned to him.

"I did not mean to laugh," I faintly whispered.

"I know," he replied as softly, and, regardless of his mother's presence, kissed me lovingly. His face grew radiant as I kissed him in return, for then he knew what my answer would have been.

Ted was so badly frightened when he heard he had endangered my life that he ran away to another uncle's, and did not return, for years. But, all in all, I never had any desire to try again the effects of "laughing plant."

The Action of a Tornado.

When the conditions of atmospheric instability have given birth to a tornado, the fact is announced to the observer by a sudden gathering of dark, swift-whirling clouds, from which depend a writhing, serpent-like body formed of condensed vapor. This writhing column extends rapidly downward until it touches the earth. When it attains the surface it becomes audible from the violent rending actions which it creates upon that surface. As soon as the whirl is created it begins to move away, generally toward the northeast, for the evident reason that the upper cold layer of air against which it originates has, in the northern hemisphere, a movement in that direction.

In its path over the surface, the circling movement of the writhing air and the sucking action of the partial vacuum in the central portion of the shaft combine to bring about an extreme devastation. On the outside of the whirl the air, which rushes in a circling path toward the vortex, overturns all movable objects, and in the center these objects, if they are not too heavy, are sucked up as by a great air-pump. Thus the roofs of houses, bodies of men, and animals, may be lifted to great elevations, until they are tossed by the tumultuous movements beyond the limits of the ascending currents and fall back upon the earth. Where the center of the whirlwind passes over a building, the sudden decrease in the pressure of the outer air often causes the atmosphere which is contained within the walls suddenly to press against the sides of the structure, so that these sides are quickly driven outward as if by a charge of gunpowder.

It is not unlikely that the diminution of pressure brought about by the passage of the interior of the whirl over a building may be about as much as is indicated by the fall of four inches in the barometer. This is equivalent to a change in the pressure amounting to about three hundred pounds to the square foot. This force operates to burst out the walls of a building. It is not improbable that the diminution of pressure may be much greater than this, but even the amount named is sufficient to account for the bursting out of the frail-walled structures which these devastating movements encounter in the western parts of the United States.—N. S. Shaler, in Scribner's Magazine.

Matthew Arnold Surprised.

Mr. Matthew Arnold was greatly struck by this democratic government of our reading-room when he was in Boston. He came in here one day and saw a little barefooted newsboy sitting in one of the best chairs of the reading-room, enjoying himself, apparently, for dear life. The great essayist was completely astounded.

"Do you let bar-footed boys in this reading-room?" he asked. "You would never see such a sight as that in Europe. I do not believe there is a reading-room in all Europe in which that boy, dressed as he is, would enter."

Then Mr. Arnold went over to the boy, engaged him in conversation, and found that he was reading the "Life of Washington," and that he was a young gentleman of decidedly anti-British tendencies, and, for his age, remarkably well informed.

Mr. Arnold remained talking with the youngster for some time, and as he came back to our desk, the great Englishman said:

"I do not think I have been so impressed with anything else that I have seen since arriving in this country as I am now with meeting this barefooted boy in this reading-room. What a tribute to democratic institutions it is to say that, instead of sending that boy out to wander alone in the streets, they permit him to come in here and excite his youthful imagination by reading such a book as the 'Life of Washington'! The reading of that one book may change the whole course of that boy's life, and may be the means of making him a useful, honorable, worthy citizen of this great country. It is, I tell you, a sight that impresses a European not accustomed to your democratic ways."—Boston Herald.

Removing a Serious Obstruction Gently.

Dynamite and giant powder might answer admirably to remove obstructions from Hell Gate, in East River, New York, but explosive measures in medication are ever attended with disastrous consequences. For instance, the bowels cannot be violently drenched with safety, nor is there the slightest necessity for so doing. On the contrary, it is most unwise. None but the public adherents of antiquated theories in medicine advise or sanction such a course. To weaken the intestines—the effect of drastic purgation—is to compromise the health of the entire system. With Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, on the other hand, the bowels are relaxed, not by a convulsion of nature approximating to an eruption of Mt. Fujiyama, but gradually, beneficially, without wrenching. The liver and stomach, as well as the bowels, are toned and benefited by it.

DR. GRIFFITH, an English physician, has recently demonstrated that iron sulphate is an antidote for many of the most virulent epidemics which attack field and garden crops. These diseases are due to microscopic funguses, whose structures are built up in a somewhat different manner from the corresponding parts in other plants. It appears that the cellulose in these funguses is acted upon by iron sulphate, whereas in the higher plants the cellulose of the cell-walls is not influenced. The iron sulphate destroys the cellulose of the funguses, but does not affect that of the attacked plant. It is, therefore, an antidote and destroyer of such parasitic germs and funguses as the potato disease, wheat mildew, etc.

A Memory of Early Days.

Rare of childhood's tender years,
Swallowed off with groans and tears,
How it made the flesh recoil,
Loathsome, greasy, cancerous,
Search your early memory close,
Till you find another dose
All the shuddering frame revolts
At the thought of Epsom salts!
Underneath the pill-box lid
Was a greater horror hid,
Climax of all inward ills,
Huge and gripping old blue pills!

What a contrast to the mild and gentle action of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, sugar-coated, easy to take, cleansing, refreshing, renovating the system without wrenching it with agony. Sold by druggists.

"HAVEN'T you finished sealing the fish yet, Sam?" "No, master; 'tis a very large one." "Why, you have had time to seal a mountain."

In another column of this issue will be found an entirely new and novel specimen of attractive advertising. It is one of the nearest ever placed in our paper and we think our readers will be well repaid for examining the superb display letters in the advertisement of Prickly Ash Bitters.

A MAN over ready to scrape an acquaintance the barber.

You will get more comfort for 25c. in Lyon's Head Stuffers than in any other article you buy.

We Point with Pride

To the "G. name at home" won by Hood's Sarsaparilla. In Lowell, Mass., where it is prepared, there is more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold than of all other medicines. Whole neighborhoods are taking it at the same time, and it has given the best of satisfaction since its introduction ten years ago. This could not be if the medicine did not possess merit. If you suffer from impure blood or debility, try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I had salt rheum on my left arm three years, suffering terribly. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the salt rheum has entirely disappeared." H. M. MILLIS, 71 French St., Lowell, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficent influence of

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health. It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young. As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

$500 Reward

Is offered, in good faith, by the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy for a case of catarrh which they cannot cure. It is mild, soothing, and healing in its effects, and cures "cold in the head," catarrhal deafness, throat ailments, and many other complications of this distressing disease. 50 cents, by druggists.

The man who has no rights is the man who lost his right arm and limb in the late war.

R. W. Tansill & Co., Chicago: Your "Tansill's Punch" 5c cigar is becoming more popular every day. Cigar drummers don't bother us any more. RICH ANDRESEN, Beaver, Pa.

No other in Piso's Cure for Consumption. Cures where other remedies fail. 25c.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Sure relief for Catarrh of the Bladder, Uterus, etc. Price 25c. per box. Sold by all druggists.

PENSIONS COLLECTED and increased by Fitzgibbon & Powell, Indianapolis, Ind. Old cases reopened. Send for copy of Laws, free.

$250 A MONTH. Agents wanted, 10 best-selling articles in the world. 1 sample FREE. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

OPIUM Habit Cured. Satisfactory before any fee. Prof. J. E. BARTON, 25th Ward, Cincinnati, O.

Ely's Cream Balm
Is worth $1000 to any Man, Woman or Child suffering from CATARRH.

LOOK COLT REPEATING RIFLE
15 shot. Guarantee is the biggest offer ever made. Send 6c. in stamps for illustrated 100-page descriptive catalogue, guns, rifles, revolvers, fishing tackle, birdies, sporting goods. JOHN P. LOVELL, ARMS CO., Boston, Mass.

PILES
Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is a sure cure for blind, bleeding or itching piles. Cure guaranteed. Price 50c. and $1. At druggists or mailed by Wm. H. Kinnear & Marvin, Who. Case Agents, Toledo, Ohio.

PATENTS
R. E. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Instructions and opinions as to patentability FREE. 17 years' experience.

$5 to $25 a day. Samples worth $1.50, FREE. (Lines not under the horse's feet. Write Brewster Safety Razor Holder Co., Holly, Mich.)

MARVELOUS MEMORY

Wholly artificial system. Any book learned in one reading. Recommended by Mark Twain, R. H. Proctor, the Scientist, Hon. W. W. Astor, Judah P. Benjamin, Dr. Minor, etc. Class of 100 Columbia law students, two classes each at Yale, at University of Penna., at Wellesley College, etc. Prospectus post free. PROF. LOISELLE, 237 Fifth Ave., New York.

BIRDSELL CLOVER HULLER
DOES ITS WORK FASTER AND BETTER THAN ANY OTHER. OUR NEW RE-CLEANER. SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE.

PISCATOR FOR CONSUMPTION
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

LIVER, BLOOD AND LUNG DISEASES.

LIVER DISEASE AND HEART TROUBLE.

Mrs. MARY A. McCLURE, Columbia, Kans., writes: "I addressed you in November, 1891, in regard to my health, being afflicted with liver disease, heart trouble, and female weakness. I was advised to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Favorite Prescription and Pellets. I used one bottle of the 'Prescription,' five of the 'Discovery,' and four of the 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' My health began to improve under the use of your medicine, and my strength came back. My difficulties have all disappeared. I can work hard all day, or walk four or five miles a day, and stand it well; and when I began using the medicine I could scarcely walk across the room, most of the time, and I did not think I could ever feel well again. I have a little baby girl eight months old. Although she is a little delicate in size and appearance, she is healthy. I give your remedies all the credit for curing me, as I took no other treatment after beginning their use. I am very grateful for your kindness, and thank God and thank you that I am as well as I am after years of suffering."

LIVER DISEASE.

Mrs. I. V. WEBER, of Yorkshire, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., writes: "I wish to say a few words in praise of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' For five years previous to taking them I was a great sufferer; I had a severe pain in my right side continually; was unable to do my own work. I am happy to say I am now well and strong, thanks to your medicines."

Chronic Diarrhea Cured.—D. LAZARUS, Esq., 275 and 277 Decatur Street, New Orleans, La., writes: "I used three bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and it has cured me of chronic diarrhea. My bowels are now regular."

"THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, and bodily health and vigor will be established. Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the worst Scrofula, or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing Salt-rheum or Tetter, Fever-sores, Hip-joint Disease, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Enlarged Glands, and Eating Ulcers.

INDIGESTION BOILS, BLOTCHES.

Rev. F. ASHBY HOWELL, Pastor of the M. E. Church, of Silverton, N. J., says: "I was afflicted with catarrh and indigestion. Boils and blotches began to arise on the surface of the skin, and I experienced a tired feeling and dullness. I experienced the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as directed by him for such complaints, and in one week's time I began to feel like a new man, and am now sound and well. The 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets' are the best remedy for bilious or sick headache, or tightness about the chest, and bad taste in the mouth, that I have ever used. My wife could not walk across the floor when she began to take your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' Now she can walk quite a little ways, and do some light work."

HIP-JOINT DISEASE.

Mrs. D. M. STROUD, of Ainsworth, Ind., writes: "My little boy had been troubled with hip-joint disease for two years. When he commenced the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' he was confined to his bed, and could not be moved without suffering great pain. But now, thanks to your 'Discovery,' he is able to be up all the time."

CONSUMPTION, WEAK LUNGS, SPITTING OF BLOOD.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. While it promptly cures the severest Coughs it strengthens the system and purifies the blood.

It rapidly builds up the system, and increases the flesh and weight of those reduced below the usual standard of health by "wasting diseases."

Consumption.—Mrs. EDWARD NEWTON, of Harrowsmith, Ont., writes: "You will ever be praised by me for the remarkable cure in my case. I was so reduced that my friends had all given me up, and I had also been given up by two doctors. I then went to the best doctor in these parts. He told me that medicine was only a punishment in my case, and would not undertake to treat me. He said I might try Cod liver oil if I liked, as that was the only thing that could possibly have any curative power over consumption so far advanced. I tried the Cod liver oil as a last treatment, but I was so weak I could not keep it on my stomach. My husband, not feeling satisfied to give me up yet, though he had bought for me everything he saw advertised for my complaint, procured a quantity of your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I took only four bottles, and, to the surprise of everybody, am to-day doing my own work, and am entirely free from that terrible cough which harassed me night and day. I have been afflicted with rheumatism for a number of years, and now feel so much better that I believe, with a continuation of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I will be restored to perfect health. I would say to those who are falling a prey to that terrible disease consumption, do not do as I did, take everything else first; but take the 'Golden Medical Discovery' in the early stages of the disease, and thereby save a great deal of suffering and be restored to health at once. Any person who is still in doubt, need but write me, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply, when the foregoing statement will be fully substantiated by me."

Ulcus Cured.—ISAAC E. DOWNS, Esq., of Spring Valley, Rockland Co., N. Y. (P. O. Box 23), writes: "The 'Golden Medical Discovery' is sold by druggists."

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors,
No. 663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE.
Best in the World. Get the genuine. Every package has our Trade-mark and is marked FRAZER'S. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

JONES PAYS the FREIGHT
For Wagon Scales, Iron Scales, Steel Scales, and Beam Scales. $80.00. Every size Scale. For free price list mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

Best
Send for the best catalogue of the best Business College, Shorthand, Typewriting and Penmanship School in the world. SPENCER, IAN BUSINESS COLLEGE, Cleveland, Ohio. Circulars free. SINGLE LADIES provided for during confinement. S. at Dr. Thayer's, 54 Walton Ave., Fort Wayne, Ind. N. U. F. W. No. 30-37. When Writing to Advertisers, please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

EVENTS OF A WEEK.

PERSONAL NOTES.

—Ex-Gov. Luke Blackburn, of Kentucky, died at Frankfort after a lingering illness, aged 61 years. He was eminent as a physician and philanthropist.

—Mrs. Cleveland was given a reception at the country seat of George Washington Childs, near Philadelphia. An incident of the affair was the presentation by the host to his fair guest of a Jersey cow.

—Hon. Joseph Cilley, the oldest ex-United States Senator and a veteran of the war of 1812, died at Nottingham, N. H., at the age of 93 years.

—Rear Admiral J. R. Madison Mullaney, U. S. N., died at Bryn Mawr, Pa., aged 70 years.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL.

—A receiver has taken charge of the business of Colby, Duncan & Co., piano manufacturers at New York, whose liabilities are said to be about $175,000.

—F. C. Davenport, dealer in metals at Boston, Mass., has made an assignment, his embarrassment being caused by the failure of E. S. Wheeler & Co., of New Haven. Davenport's liabilities are figured at $100,000.

—Chipman & Holt, extensive coal dealers of Philadelphia, Pa., have failed, the disaster being due to the assignments of Charles E. Pennock & Co. and Robert Hare Powell & Co. The assets are $288,000, and the liabilities $217,000.

—Assignments have been made by Thomas Flourney, Jr., tobaccoist, at Richmond, Va., and by Besette, Lefort & Co., of Montreal. The latter owe $600,000, while Flourney's liabilities are placed at $70,000.

—More than a thousand cigarmakers have been "locked out" by their bosses in Boston, on account of differences about the employment of apprentices.

POLITICAL POINTS.

—The New York Republican Convention met at Saratoga on Wednesday. Ex-Mayor Seth Low, of Brooklyn, was the temporary Chairman, and ex-United States Senator Warner Miller permanent Chairman. A full ticket was nominated, with Col. Fred Grant at the head for Secretary of State. The platform "arraigns" the administrations of President Cleveland and Governor Hill, indorses the protective tariff, demands "liberal" pensions for the old soldiers, advocates restrictions upon immigration, and favors local option.

—The new political combination known as the American party convened at Philadelphia and adopted an elaborate platform. It denounces the present system of immigration and naturalization, and charges that hordes of foreign immigrants are the refuse of European countries and are unfit to become American citizens, "banding together in societies for the destruction of private property and personal liberty, becoming the political and social agitators, of every cause looking to the destruction of private rights, leading and encouraging all disturbance of labor, seeking to array labor against capital, setting themselves up as the judges of the rights of the American people, committing murder, arson, and other crimes by means of secret organizations, thrusting aside the American citizen and wage-worker to make place for themselves, preventing by threats the children of American citizens from apprenticeship to trades—the enemies of free government by the people." It charges both the old parties with dodging this question and with pandering to the worst foreign element in order to secure votes, and demands that a Department of Immigration, whose head shall be a Cabinet officer, be established by Congress to restrict and regulate foreign immigration. It calls for a revision of the naturalization laws, making fourteen years' residence requisite for citizenship, and excluding all communists, socialists, nihilists, anarchists, paupers, and criminals from naturalization. It favors the limiting of real-estate holdings in area and value; opposes the holding of land by non-resident aliens, and condemns the granting of public lands to private and public corporations. In conclusion, the party declares that it "recognizes no North, no South, no East, and no West in these United States, but one people pledged to our liberty and independence."

FIRES AND ACCIDENTS.

—By the fall of a pile of lumber in the street railway engine-house in Kansas City six men were severely injured. Their names are: John H. Kennett, John Logan, W. H. Smith, James Good, L. W. Whitsitt, and Isaac Verner.

—A Chatsworth (Ill.) special says: "The last of the wondrous of the ill-fated Niagara excursionists remaining here, Mrs. S. R. Borden, of Tonica, LaSalle County, Ill., died yesterday, at the home of her friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Martin. Mrs. Borden took the train with the expectation of visiting her old home in Pennsylvania. Her injuries were broken and bruised ankle and a bruise in the shoulder. The last two weeks of her suffering she was unconscious most of the time. The direct cause of her death was nervous prostration from the great shock sustained. The deceased was 59 years of age."

—The town of Ironwood, on the Gogebic range, in the Northern Peninsula of Michigan, was visited by a destructive fire. The loss will reach $150,000.

—Four workmen were severely injured by the fall of the roof trusses in the new Jewish synagogue, at the corner of Judd and Clinton streets, Chicago.

THE CRIMINAL RECORD.

—The friends of the condemned Anarchists have decided to take no chances so far as the Supreme Court of the United States is concerned, says a Chicago telegram. The Amnesty Association held its first informal meeting Thursday night and decided to immediately commence the circulation of a petition asking for executive clemency. The following form was adopted:

This petition must be at headquarters Amnesty Association Nov. 1, 1897. City of —, State of —. To his Excellency, Richard J. Oglesby, Governor of the State of Illinois: The undersigned, believing that in any case involving life, humanity and the state are better served by mercy than by the rigorous execution of a sentence the justice of which is questioned by many of our people, respectfully but urgently bespeak the exercise of the Executive clemency by your Excellency in behalf of August Spies, Michael Schwab, Oscar Neebe, Albert R. Parsons, Samuel Fielden, Adolph Fischer, Louis Lingg, and George Engel, being persuaded that such action on your part will conduce to the peace of the State.

This will be accompanied by a circular requesting the recipient to use every effort to obtain signatures from all classes of citizens. Copies will only be sent out of the State upon application, and the association will confine its work entirely to Illinois.

—The trial of Fred Munchbrath, Jr., at Sioux City, Iowa, for the murder of Rev. George Haddock resulted in a verdict of guilty of manslaughter, the extreme penalty of which is eight years. The jury was out nearly twenty hours.

—Petitions asking for a commutation of the sentence in the anarchists' case are being circulated at Chicago. The Clothing Cutters' Assembly has formally condemned the action of the Supreme Court. The anarchists in other cities are issuing rabid appeals, some demanding mercy and others threatening vengeance.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

—According to an Ottawa dispatch the Dominion Government is preparing to employ heroic measures to bring the obstreperous Manitobans to terms on the railway question. It is said that if Manitoba does not abandon her present attitude of disobedience the Federal Government will withhold payment of the next half year's subsidy to the Provincial Government, which will, it is expected, prevent it from carrying forward the Red River Valley project. The Provincial Treasurer has, it is said, secured a loan of $51,000 at Montreal, the proceeds of which have been applied to the purchase of enough rails to lay fifteen miles of track on the new road.

—The celebration of the 100th anniversary of the adoption of the Federal Constitution began at Philadelphia on Thursday, the 15th inst., under favoring conditions. It is estimated that 25,000 strangers were in the city. The principal streets were gay with decorations, and were thronged with eager sight-seers. The civic and industrial parade was an imposing affair, about 3,000 "floats," 12,000 men, 3,000 horses, and 150 bands of music being in line. A Philadelphia telegram says of the grand parade:

To give an idea of the enormous proportions of the pageant it may be said at 2:20 o'clock only seven of the twenty-three divisions had passed by the reviewing stand, and by the time the seventh division had passed southward the head of the column had arrived on the counter-march, having traveled twenty-three squares south of market street. The march was made without casualties, further than that an unknown man dropped dead near Chestnut street, presumably from heart disease, and a little girl was somewhat injured in a crowd. Among the Governors occupying seats on the reviewing stand were Larrabee, of Iowa; Beaver, of Pennsylvania; Hughes, of Arkansas; Buckner, of Kentucky; Thayer, of Nebraska; Pennoyer, of Oregon; Wilson, of West Virginia; Foraker, of Ohio; and Fitzhugh Lee, of Virginia. The President's party, consisting of the President, Mrs. Cleveland, Secretary Bayard, and Col. and Mrs. Lamont, left Washington at 4 p. m. in charge of Major J. M. Carson. Before reaching Baltimore a hot journal delayed the train twenty minutes, which loss was not made up during the journey. At Baltimore a large crowd collected around the station and cheered for the President, but he did not show himself. At Wilmington an immense crowd cheered and called for the President. He finally appeared in company with Mrs. Cleveland on the platform and bowed acknowledgments. At Wilmington the Presidential party was met by the Philadelphia reception committee and escorted to Philadelphia. The party landed at Thirty-second and Market streets, where city troops were in waiting. Under their escort the party was driven to the Lafayette Hotel. Here a great assembly was gathered anticipating a reception. In answer to repeated calls and cheers the President and Mrs. Cleveland appeared on the balcony and bowed acknowledgments and tremendous cheering.

—In an interview at Boston, Gen. Benj. F. Butler is reported as saying:

It is not strictly true that I have undertaken the case of the condemned Chicago anarchists. I was in communication with their representative before I heard of the Supreme Court decision. I told him then that so far as I had been furnished with the facts I could see no Federal question involved in the case of the anarchists. I added, however, that as there doubtless would be ample time in case of an adverse decision given in which to determine by deliberate examination of the history of the case as to its merits and legal technicalities I would look into it further. I did not know until to-day that General Pryor favored carrying the case to the United States Court. I think myself that there are many questions involved in the trial that will bear review, but I have not yet been able to see that any Federal issue has been raised. My position is just this: From what examination of the matter I have thus far made, I do not see anything to warrant my taking any active step in their behalf. On the other hand, I have not completed the examination sufficiently for me to refuse definitely to do so. The public may rest assured that I will never allow a man's life to be sacrificed if I can see any ground on which it can possibly be saved. I thoroughly believe, as the Supreme Court of Massachusetts once expressed it, that "a man always has a right to quibble for his life."

—The Constitutional celebration was continued at Philadelphia, on Friday, the 16th, when about half a million strangers are said to have been in the city. The President, attended by Secretary Bayard, ex-President Hayes and other notabilities, reviewed the employees of the Custom House, and was afterward tendered a reception at the Commercial Exchange, where he made a brief address, urging the importance of a more active interest and participation in public affairs by the business classes. From the Exchange the Presidential party proceeded to Broad and Walnut streets, where they reviewed the great military parade, which was led by Lieutenant General Sheridan. About 30,000 men were in line. A Philadelphia dispatch says:

The military parade was under command of Gen. Sheridan. It included nearly 30,000 uniformed soldiers, and, taken as a whole, was perhaps never equaled by any similar demonstration of modern times. The sounds of fire and drum early told that preparations were being made for the grand street demonstrations of the nation's protectors. Even during the time of the war of the rebellion there were not as many soldiers in Philadelphia. The arrival of the Presidential party was the signal for repeated cheering, and when the Chief Magistrate made his way to the rostrum at the lower end of the hall cheering broke out again, and the names of Secretary Bayard, Governor Beaver, George W. Childs, Mayor Fittler, and A. J. Brevet were also cheered. President Colby introduced the President. The cheering broke out again, and it was some time before Mr. Cleveland could be heard. He said: "I am glad I have an opportunity to meet so large a representation of the business men of Philadelphia. It is well that we should not entirely forget in the midst of our centennial jubilee that the aim and purpose of good government tend, after all, to the advancement of the material interests of the people and the increase of their trade and commerce. The thought has sometimes occurred to me that in the hurry and crush of business there might well be infused a little more patriotism than we are wont to see, and a little more recognition of the fact that a wholesale political sentiment is closely related not only to the general good but to the general success of business. Of course our citizens engaged in business are quick to see the bearing of any policy which the Government may adopt, as it affects their personal success and their accumulation. But I would like to see that broad and patriotic sentiment among them which can see beyond their regular personal interests, and which can recognize that the advancement of the entire country is an object for which they may well strive, even sometimes to the diminution of the constantly increasing profits. Must we always look for the political opinions of our business men precisely where they suppose their immediate pecuniary advantage is found? I know how vain it is to hope for the eradication of a selfish motive in all the affairs of life, but I am reminded that we celebrate to-day the triumph of patriotism over selfishness. Will any one say that the concessions of the Constitution were not well made, or that we are not to-day in the full enjoyment of the blessings resulting from a due regard for all the conflicting interests represented by the different States which were united a hundred years ago? I believe the complete benefits promised to the people by our form of government can only be secured by an exercise of the same spirit of toleration for each other's rights and interests in which it had its birth. This spirit will prevail when the business men of the country cultivate political thought, when they cease to act for their purely selfish and exclusive benefit, I am of the opinion that there is no place in the country where such a condition can be so properly and successfully maintained as here among the enlightened and enterprising business men of Philadelphia."

—The Constitutional celebration at Philadelphia was concluded on the 17th inst. The memorial meeting was held in Independence Square, which was crowded with people. On the stand, among other notabilities, were President Cleveland and wife, Secretaries Bayard and Fairchild, Bishop Potter, Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Ryan, John A. Kasson, of Iowa, President of the Constitutional Centennial Commission, General Sheridan, Justice Miller, of the Supreme Court, and ex-Vice President Hamlin. The exercises were appropriate and impressive, and included an address by the President and the memorial oration by Justice Miller. In the morning, before proceeding to Independence Square, the President, attended by Secretaries Bayard and Fairchild, held a public reception at the City Hall, during which he shook hands with many thousands of people.

—The Surveyor General of New Mexico has discovered two more large land grants in that Territory which appear to have been greatly increased by fraudulent surveys. He recommends that proceedings be instituted to vacate the patents, and Commissioner Spartz approves the recommendation.

M. T. BISHOP,

—DEALER IN—

LUMBER, LIME,

—LATH—

SHINGLES,
MOULDING &c.

Large Stock and Low Prices. Yard
Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

MEAT MARKET

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides,
Tallow &c. Give me a call.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNESS

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

Blacksmith

AND

Repair Shop.

Having secured the services of an experienced workman, I am now prepared to do all kinds of Blacksmithing and Repairing in a first-class manner. Special attention given to repairing machinery. Give me a call. Prices reasonable.

A. W. Hall, St. Joe.

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1887.

NO. 36.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind. John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a speciality. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—The recent reunion of Gen. Wilder's Brigade at Greencastle was the means of bringing information to Mrs. Elizabeth Collard, of Indianapolis, about a son, whom she supposed had long ago died. The son was I. W. Collard, a member of the Seventeenth Indiana Volunteers. Ten years ago he started West, intending to send for his mother within a year. After his departure there was no further communication between the mother and son. After numerous unsuccessful attempts to obtain some information of each other, they each reached the conclusion that the other was dead. Mr. Collard attended the Wilder Brigade reunion, and met an Indianapolis gentleman, whom he asked for some information regarding his mother. The gentleman promised, upon his return to Indianapolis, to ascertain, if possible, the whereabouts of Mrs. Collard. This he easily succeeded in doing, and apprised her of her son's inquiries regarding her, greatly to her surprise. The son, in turn, was informed of where his mother was living and the happy meeting between mother and son was very affecting.

—Hon. Rufus Magee, United States Minister to Norway and Sweden, has written to President Jordan, of Indiana University, stating that Baron Nordenstrod, the Swedish arctic explorer and scientist, has presented him with a copy of a map made in 1482 and 1486, showing the geographer's idea at that period of the world. The Baron discovered it in an old library in Russia, and caused 100 copies to be made. The only other one in America is at Harvard University. Minister Magee reached the conclusion that he could make no better disposition of the copy given to him than to present it to the University of his native State, in which he was once a student. The map will be framed and hung in the college library.

—Patents have been issued to the following-named Indiana inventors: Martin V. Beiger, Mishawaka, fabric boot; Nelson P. Bowsher, South Bend, grinding mill; Sharon Case, Montezuma, automatic grain scales; Isaac M. Brown, Columbus, ruling machine; John A. Hay, New Goshen, fence; Conrad Lamm, Garrett, eaves-trough hanger; Henry A. Pershing, assignor by mesne assignments to G. A. Baker, South Bend, petit ledger; John T. Splenberger, Kokomo, thill coupling; James L. Sullivan, Xenia, clock-striking machine.

—George McDaniels, a farmer living near Boswell, Benton County, was run over by a C. & I. C. car, at the Colborn lumber switch in Athens. An engine threw two cars on the switch without warning, and McDaniels, who was standing between two cars unloading lumber, did not see them. His right arm and leg were terribly lacerated, the bones of his arm being crushed into a pulp.

—A distressing accident occurred at Bloomington resulting in the death of the 18-months-old child of Andrew Wycoll. The parents had just returned from a circus, and the little one was playing about the room, when it pushed a lamp over and fired its clothes. No one was in the room at the time and when the mother came in the child lay dying on the floor. It died in an hour.

—Henry Grener, of Columbus, while hunting ducks in White River, landed his boat, and in drawing his shotgun out it was discharged, the charge entering his right side under the armpit, ranging around, tearing him fearfully. He got back in the boat, rowed a mile and then walked a mile to town, trailing blood all the way. He is now in a dying condition.

—The first gas for Selma, was struck recently at a depth of 1,000 feet. It is one of the best wells in the State. From the time the first gush came the gas increased in volume and force so rapidly with every stroke of the drill that the company soon discovered that they were getting more gas than they could control, and ordered the drilling stopped.

—Mrs. Will Wright, of New Castle, gave premature birth to four children recently. This is the first case of the kind that ever occurred in Henry County, and the event has been the subject of a great deal of comment. To add to this record, Mrs. Wright had previously given birth to five pairs of twins, making fourteen children at six births.

—David Cram, wife, child, and a hired man, living north of Laporte, were thrown from a buggy by a runaway team and they were more or less injured. Mrs. Cram had her right arm broken and was badly hurt about the head, having the entire scalp torn loose. She is in a dangerous condition and it is very doubtful if she recovers.

—Mack Steins, of Greensburg, while at work on the bridge at St. Paul, fell a distance of seventy-four feet into the river and was killed, living only an hour after the accident. He was about thirty-five years old, and leaves a widow and one child.

—While C. C. Corwin, a prominent attorney, and Deputy Sheriff John A. Adair were driving out to the Portland gas well recently, their horse took fright and ran away, throwing both out, seriously hurting them, the latter probably fatally.

The muster-roll of the Peru Guards, a new military company, has been received by Adjutant General Koontz. It numbers forty-three men and the enlistment is for three years. The Captain is William Henry Harrison Spaulding.

—Alfred Arnick, the oldest resident of Lexington, Scott County, fell from excessive weakness and, striking a fence, broke the point of his shoulder-blade and sustained serious internal injuries. He now lies in a critical condition.

—Thirty thousand people attended the yearly meeting of Friends at Plainfield.

—The escaping gas at the Wheeler well at Noblesville was ignited by some mischievous person, setting fire to and completely consuming the derrick and a large amount of drilling rope.

—William Laymon, of Crawfordsvill, fell dead in his yard recently. He was in his usual health, and it is supposed that the cause of death was heart disease. He leaves a family.

The round-house and machine shops of the L. N. A. & C. R. R., at Michigan City, were entirely consumed by fire. Loss, $25,000.

—Mrs. Mary Johnson, aged 63, wife of Oliver Johnson, of Madison, fell dead on the street while going to a grocery near her residence. Coroner's verdict, heart disease.

—Chas. Strimaller, of Fort Wayne, died from the effects of lock-jaw, which was brought about by a severe goring he received from a vicious cow a few days ago.

—The mangled remains of Christian Scherer, a farmer near Monroeville, were found on the railway track near his home.

—Perry Freeman, of Muncie, committed suicide by taking morphine.

—The Rev. Mr. Lyons, minister at Zion M. E. Church, New Albany, has been transferred to Philadelphia conference.

—Thomas Coakley, a fireman on the C. & I. Railroad, was killed by falling from the train and being run over.

—Stephen Jeffries was killed by cars at Aurora.

A boy in Pittsfield, Mass., swallowed the bulb of a thermometer. He now has a mercurial temperament.

Why is a black horse hard to train? because you can't make a black horse a bay (obey).

It is no sign because a man makes a stir in the community that he is a spoon.

MONEY

TO

LOAN

On Farm Property

IN SUMS OVER $200.

Interest only once a year. We charge no commission. You can pay any part or all of the loan at any time. You can keep the money as long as you please if the interest is promptly paid. For further particulars call on or address

W. C. Patterson,
ST. JOE, IND.

Ho for Arkansas!

Cheap Homes for Everybody!

In a high, healthy, rich land country. On the 15th of September and the 1st of October, there will be excursions from this place to that point at a very low rate of fare. For full information in regard to these excursions call on A. B. Coburn, Real Estate Agent, St. Joe, Ind. Office with Dr. Sheffer, one door east of Drugstore.

GO to the News Office, St. Joe for all kinds of Printing. All work done promptly, and at the lowest prices. Give us a call.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencerville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining, Glazing Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcox. Call and see me, or leave orders at the St. Joe Drugstore.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

WHEN THE HEARSE COMES BACK.

BY JAMES WHITEHEAD KELLY.

A thing 'at's 'bout as tryin' as a body can to make poor Mr. Ed's funeral a beginnin' to the horses—slow enough the patience of the gentleman the gravel and the slow
every wee 'at everybody the contrast when I hear the
the horses
Hearse
Come Back!

Meet it goin' to ride the country, you'll want to chap your eyes
But of the plumes don't fetch you, you'll ketch
you otherwise
You'll had to see the easin', though you'd ort to look away.
And 'conomize and save 'yer signs for any other day.
Yersey 'pathetic' won't wake up the sleeper
f'r his rest
Yer tears won't thaw them hands, o' his 'at's f'rze across his breast
And this is why—when mirth and sky's a-pettin' blurred and black
I like the whoop and racket
—When the Hearse
Come Back!

The idly 'wadin' round here over shoe-mouth deep in woe,
When they's a graded pike o' joy and sunshine,
don't you know!
When evenin' strikes the pasture, cows'll puff out for the bars,
And skittish-like from out the dark'll prance
the happy stars,
And so when my time comes to die, and I've got ary, f'r, no
'At wants expressed my last request I'll mebbey recommend
To drive slow, of they have to, goin' long the onward track,
But I'll smile and say, "You speed 'em
—When the Hearse
Come Back!"

A WOMAN'S DULICITY.

BY BETH DAY.

Great was the excitement in May Harding's country home, when, one afternoon, her brother brought a letter which proved to be from "Aunt Edwards in the city," containing an invitation to May to spend the winter with them and share with her cousins, Tom and Julia, in the season's gaiety.

Mrs. Edwards had hinted, during her annual visit to the farm, that such invitation might be expected, nevertheless, it came with the shock of a pleasant surprise, for she had hinted in the same manner before, when no invitation had followed. With the exception of a week's stay during the holiday season of the previous winter, May had never been invited to visit them. That week had been a glimpse of fairy land to her. They had all been so kind, and Tom, her schoolboy cousin, had crowded as much sight-seeing as possible into her short stay. There had been a ball, a real ball, at the Edwards mansion, and there she had met Frank Carrol, whose dark, magnetic eyes haunted her even yet. How his hand had trembled as his fingers touched her wrist, when he had begged leave to fasten her glove; it was the thought of this, perhaps, that sent the light to her eyes, and the color to her cheek, as she stood waiting her mother's reply to her eager question.

"May I go, mamma? do you really think I may go?"

How lovely she looked as she stood there, her dark-blue eyes shining, the peach-bloom color in her rounded cheeks deepening to rose, expectation in every curve of the graceful figure. The mother saw, and a sudden pang smote her; a premonition of all this visit might mean to her, and that thought made her voice faintly tremulous, but she answered bravely:

"Yes, dear, I think you may go."

One month later Miss May was comfortably seated in the cars whirling away towards all that awaited her in the city.

Within a week after her arrival there was a grand ball to which they all were invited, and where she again met Frank Carrol. From that time he became a frequent visitor at the Edwards mansion. He and Tom were firm friends, and Julia had long been endeavoring to awaken something more than friendship in his heart for herself.

As his visits became more frequent she flattered herself that she had succeeded; then, as she perceived that she was not the sole object that drew him thither, she became filled with a bitter and unreasoning jealousy of one who could take without an effort what she had striven so hard to gain.

"He shall never marry her, never!" she exclaimed to herself again and again, as she no longer tenderly glanced, or loverlike attention. But no opportunity to near their friendship presented itself until the holiday season drew near.

The great event of the season was to be a ball on Christmas eve; Julia and her cousin had accepted invitations, and on the evening in question had retired to their separate apartments to dress for the occasion. There was a ring at the doorbell and Julia sent her maid down.

"A parcel for Miss Harding," said the girl, not raising.

"Give it to me," said her mistress, who had caught sight of the address, and recognized the handwriting as that of Frank Carrol.

"It is for Miss Harding," said the girl, drawing back.

"She shall never have it, never!" exclaimed Julia, passionately. Then suddenly conscious that she had betrayed her feelings to her maid, she drew the girl into the room and closed the door.

"Bettie," she said, quietly, "you are in my employ, and it is right for you to do whatever I tell you to do. Do you not think it is?"

"I do not know, m'am. Is it really?" asked the girl, doubtfully.

"Yes, of course," replied the unscrupulous Julia. "Give me the parcel, and promise you will not tell my cousin, and you shall have that dress of mine that you have wanted so long, and," she added, hastily, seeing little signs of acquiescence in Bettie's face, "you shall go home and visit your mother for a week."

That decided Bettie. What would she not give, what would she not do, to gain the privilege of visiting that mother whose care-worn face she had not seen for nearly three years? When ever she had asked for a holiday Julia had threatened her with the loss of her place if she did not postpone it; and, as her wages were a necessity to the family at home, she could but submit.

She handed the parcel to Julia, who, without a moment's hesitancy, tore open the wrapper, disclosing a box containing a few choice hot-house flowers, and among them one exquisite white rose, beside whose snowy petals lay a note addressed to Miss Harding. As Julia read the few words penned for other eyes than hers, the dark flush of anger rose in her cheeks, her eyes flashed with a dangerous light; forgetting all else in her passion, she crushed the unconscious paper fiercely in her clenched hand, flung it upon the floor and set her foot upon it, exclaiming through set teeth, "No! she shall never wear that rose if she loves him," and cutting the rose she was about to send it after the crushed and crumpled biller-doux, when some unexpressed thought made her pause. A sinister smile touched her lips, and she began to fasten the flowers in her hair and corsage.

A moment later May Harding came to the door.

"Are you not ready, cousin?" she asked.

"Not quite," replied Julia, pushing the crumpled note under the dressing bureau with her foot. "I must wear some of these flowers; Mr. Carrol sent them; are they not lovely? I will come in a moment," she added, as May, with paling cheeks, left the room.

The observant Bettie saw the disappearance of the note. As soon as her mistress left the room she secured it.

Next day Miss Julia instituted a quiet search for the crumpled bit of paper, and discovered that after Catherine, the chambermaid, had swept the room the scraps of paper were taken from the dust-bin to light the dining-room fire. "I am safe," muttered Julia, exultingly, "for Catherine cannot read."

At the ball Julia stationed herself where Frank Carrol would be sure to see her, before his eyes fell upon May.

"Ah!" she exclaimed gaily, as he came near, "you are admiring my roses, I see," for, in truth, his eyes were riveted upon them. "Are they not lovely? Some one sent them to May, and I am indebted to her for them," and the arch-traitor smiled to herself, as she noted the fact that he did not seek May during the evening.

When they were leaving, however, he placed them in the carriage, and taking May's hand, pressed it to his lips, murmuring as he bowed his head over it, a low-spoken, but significant farewell.

The tone, more than the words, told her that it was forever. She could not understand his changed demeanor; she felt it keenly, but managed to hide it bravely, as women can and do, and when, a week later, she received a letter from her mother stating that she was suffering under a slight indisposition, May made it the pretext for an immediate return to her home, leaving Tom disconsolate and Julia jubilant.

When Tom made his semi-annual visit to the farm in the spring he was shocked by his cousin's changed appearance, and with the astuteness of fifteen, fancied that he divined the cause; he determined, by what he considered a noble act of unselfishness, to bring the vanished roses again to her cheeks.

"Auntie," he inquired, "may I bring my chum down here for a week to fish?"

"Certainly," replied Mrs. Harding, who was never known to refuse Tom anything; and, armed with this permission, Tom went to Frank Carrol and asked him to go.

"What is your aunt's name?" inquired Carrol.

"Harding," answered Tom, hesitatingly.

"I should like to accompany you, Tom," said the young man, "but really, just now it is impossible; so much to do, you know."

All Tom could say did not alter his decision.

Scarcely had the disappointed boy left the lawyer's office—Frank Carrol was a lawyer—when a young woman closely veiled, and apparently in deep trouble, was ushered into the apartment. She raised her veil, thereby disclosing the tear-stained features of Bettie, and she, with much trembling and many sobs, related to the astonished lawyer the fate of the note and the bouquet he had sent to Miss Harding months before.

"You see, sir," she sobbed, "I haven't had a mite of peace since; an' Miss Julia didn't let me go to see my mother after all, and now she's dead and I can't," and a burst of sobs completed the sentence.

"Who is Miss Julia?" asked the lawyer, more for the purpose of drawing the girl's mind from her sorrow than from any interest he felt in the lady.

"Julia Edwards? I was her maid, and the other lady was Miss May Harding, Miss Julia's cousin."

"Oh!" said the lawyer, a light beginning to break in upon him.

"And he got the letter, sir, as was with the flowers," continued the repentant Bettie, producing it. "I couldn't read it, an' don't know who sent them, or who wrote it, but I thought best to keep it, so maybe I could give it to Miss Harding some time."

"Why didn't you tell this before? or rather, why have you told it now?" asked Carrol.

"Because I thought they'd put me in jail for it. But my mother is dead and don't need me now, an' you can send me there as soon as you please," sobbed Bettie.

"You are a good girl, Bettie, I shall not send you to jail," said Carrol.

"Nor Miss Julia, neither?" queried the amazed and ungrammatical Bettie.

"No," said the lawyer. "Now I want to ask a favor of you; it is, that you do not tell Miss Julia or any one else what you have told me."

Bettie promised and went away with a lighter heart than she had known for many a day.

Fifteen minutes later Frank Carrol astonished Tom by rushing into his presence and announcing with all the enthusiasm of a boy of ten, that he had so arranged his business that he could take care of itself for the remainder of the week, and if Tom would, renew his invitation, which Tom did without ceremony, they would the next morning be off for the country.

The third day of his visit was drawn to a close before he found an opportunity of speaking to May alone. He found her sitting on a rustic seat in the garden among the roses. He laid the crumpled note before her, stating how it had come to him, touching, as lightly as possible, Julia's share in the transaction.

"Tell me, May," he whispered when she had read the note, "would you have worn the rose?"

She made no reply.

Nervously he tore the date from the note, and, plucking a rose from the bush beside him, laid it with the note, in her lap. Then he turned away. When he looked back she was pressing them both to her lips.

A moment later Tom, coming suddenly around the corner of the house, gave a low chuckle of surprise, or delight, and, turning on his heel, sped away in an opposite direction.

Six weeks later Tom acted as groomsmen at his cousin's wedding. Miss Julia did not accept the invitation extended to her, though she wondered greatly how her duplicity had been covered, for the said invitation was enclosed in a small box of hot-house flowers, conspicuous among which was one magnificent white rose.

Old California-Hotel.

"I was in California during the stirring days of 1848-2," said an old, tall, lank minstrel man who has been in Australia for the last twenty years, and who recently returned to this country, to die, being afflicted with an incurable disease. "I was 14 years old or so," he went on to a reporter of the Sydney Standard, "and a hanger-on at my uncle's mining camp. We ran into San Francisco frequently, and I shall never forget the attractions which two rival hotels offered to the public to eclipse the other's patronage. One of them was known as the Clean Shirt and the other as the Golden Eagle. The Clean Shirt started with a small one-horse brass-band concert on the balcony every evening, and drew big crowds, including about all the Golden Eagle's guests. Pretty soon, however, the Clean Shirt began to lose her boarders by the score without any apparent cause. The proprietor enlarged his brass-band and polished up his bar without effect. It did not take him long to find out that the Golden Eagle was having nightly cocking mains and dog-fights for the exclusive benefit of her guests. Then the Clean Shirt got back part of her custom by introducing private prize fights and slugging matches. It's a fact, gentlemen, that when miners and others had personal differences to settle they used to offer their services to the proprietor of the Clean Shirt, who paid well for a fight, the money going to the winner. Of course these exhibitions were given in private quarters and none but guests and their friends were admitted. The Golden Eagle next enhanced its attractiveness by knocking out one end of its dining-room and building on a stage and a green-room and other like accessories, and had variety performances at every meal. Women were scarce in that part of the country and the Golden Eagle's half-dozen serio-comics, which came on from the Lord knows where, proved a great asset, a better one than the Clean Shirt with all its ingenuity could play. One day, however, a desperado went into the Clean Shirt and shot a bartender, a phenomenon which made her funions and placed her far ahead of the Golden Eagle in the estimation of the traveling public. But the proprietor of the Eagle was an ingenious, enterprising cuss and saw his opportunity. He headed a gang which went out and captured the murderer, and, bringing him back strung him up on the dining-room stage one evening at supper, and all the guests, transient and permanent, were accorded the privilege of firing their revolvers at his dangling body. That was a great day for Golden Eagle. One shot accidentally went through the head of a waiter, and the entertainment far exceeded the proprietor's most sanguine expectations."

Punishment for an Anarchist.

Some years ago a quondam brigand chief was raised to the Presidency of Bolivia. He was noted for his long shaggy hair and beard, on which he never bestowed the slightest pains. On the day of his election he had to attend mass in obedience to the usual custom, and a barber was called in to comb and dress the matted hair and beard of his Excellency. When the tedious and painful operation was over, an official came in to inform his Excellency that there was a criminal sentenced to death and awaiting execution, but that it was customary for a newly elected President to commute the sentence into a lighter one. "Well, and what other punishment am I to give him?" inquired the President, still smarting from the recent operation. "Whichever your Excellency may please." "Then let him have his hair combed and have done with it!" was the reply. — New York Mercury.

The Advance from Richardson's Planché to our Day.

The age of women is what they call this last quarter of the nineteenth century sometimes. Of a certainly whatever else it may or may not be, nobody could pronounce it the age of the girl. The girl has had her day. A long day it was and a sunny one, but she does not seem at present likely to get another.

No change wrought in the last hundred years is more marked than the steady advance in the period of life at which the feminine part of humanity is thought to reach its prime. When the novel originated its first heroine was the 14-year-old, Richardson's Pamela, Clarissa and their kin might be 13 than very many years above it. Sweet 16 and blooming 17 reigned in the pages of Irving and Cooper, dominating the sentiment of a half to a third of a century ago; 20, 21, and 22 were the next favorites springing up with the women's colleges, as the better education of girls kept them in the schoolroom and out of society longer, while the mature woman of 27 or 33 quite as frequent nowadays finds herself brought to the fore in the modern novel which is a fairly truthful index of the civilization it tries to represent.

History and society chronicles tell the same tale as the novel. When the French Revolution was hatching, the wild sayings and gay doings of Marie-Antoinette fed the discontent, and yet she whom the folk of Paris judged so harshly and took so seriously was a girl of 14 when she was taken out of the nursery and lifted to the throne. Benedict Arnold's wife was under 20 when his disgrace bowed her to the ground, and pretty Dolly Payne before she became Dolly Madison at 24 had been a quaker belle, had kept house for Mrs. John Tod, had sorrowed as a widow and bloomed on through several years of "belledoni" again. Our granddames not so many generations removed on whom we look back with the awe and reverence that hedge an ancestor were very youthful dignitaries indeed when they took the responsibilities of life upon them. As the boy went to college at 14 so the girl took her place in society, married at 16, had a brood of children while yet under age, and was relegated to knitting work and caps while hardly mature, ending all active career under 40, at an age when the modern woman feels that she is just coming to the full command of her powers.

From being passeé at 20 to being charming at 30 tells in itself the whole tale of woman's growth for the past century. That peculiar combination of angel and idiot which was the ideal woman was unthinkable except in the teens. Idiocy was angelic after the first score of years. The rosebud is delightful and everybody loves it, but there is not a woman left who would care to be always 18. Up to 35 a woman is not now at all abashed at owning her age. She knows she has but gained in charm; she knows that the man who fought shy of taking her out to dinner during her first season, and who was mute and bored during the whole time that he sat by her side, will seek her out in company now, and will recognize her added experience and maturity by giving her credit for common sense in the talk which he begins with her. She knows that where her crudeness used to drive off people worth knowing, she can at her will call them about her now.

Frau Von Stein was past 30 when she carried off Goethe captive after he had weathered the dangers of the younger Lillis Charlotte and the rest. And in New York or any of the country's great centers to-day it is not the younger women whose positions in the only society that is worth the name is happiest or best established. The woman who marries is 25 when she used to be 15. The woman who gathers about her any circle that deserves the name of salon is Mary E. Booth at 50; Mrs. Marth J. Lamb, with the gray hairs coming; Mrs. Frank Leslie; Jenny June, with a third of a century of active work in the city behind her; or at the youngest, Miss Grace H. Dodge, on the border line of the thirties; women who are often better looking and always better worth seeing than when they were younger. It is a tribute to the common sense of the day that things should be as they are. The world will always feel and acknowledge a girl's fresh charm. There is nothing also quite like it. But the mature woman, whose face has thought and knowledge in it is the woman who is crowned on in a later life.

Year an old German castle is a lim

Near an old German castle, is a lime which a boy, accused of killing his master, planted with its head in the earth, to attest his innocence if it grew and flourished. Two friends were attacked by robbers in a wood, and one of them was killed. The robbers having been put to flight by a flash of lightning, the surviving friend, found kneeling at the side of his dead companion, was condemned to death for his murder. On his way to execution he planted a stick, which he adjured to take root and grow if he was innocent. As, of course, it is proved that he was by the beautiful apple tree that the stick became. Somewhat similar is the account of the Luther elm near Worms. A bigoted old Catholic lady, planting a stick in the ground, declared her resolution not to accept the new faith till that dry stick became green. The fact that it did so proves the interest taken by trees in the preservation of orthodoxy, but it would seem that the elm tree takes a special interest in matters of this sort, for is not the elm tree the symbol of St. Zenobius, whose coffin of that saint was carried past a dry elm tree suddenly burst into leaf?

Another way by which trees revealed their inherent sympathy with humanity is by bleeding. Both Virgil and Ovid tell the story of Polydore, one of Priam's sons, intrusted to the care of a king of Thrace, and by him killed after the taking of Troy; from his grave there grew a myrtle, which, when Æneus plucked its boughs, bled in a pure human fashion, much to that hero's dismay. The present writer himself has searched for an oak tree in a Surrey wood which was said to show a blood-red sap in memory of a murderer committed in its vicinity. At all events, if a deed of blood had been committed near the spot the tree in question had forgotten all about it, for no blood issued from its wound, and a disbelief in bleeding trees had to take itself to many another negative conclusion.

The peculiarities, no less than the existence, of trees, admit of mythological explanation; and strangely absurd those explanations often are. Here, for instance, is one of the jagged form of the oak leaves, an explanation of the same order as that which traces the minute holes in the leaves of the St. John's wort to the needle with which the devil pricked it as a punishment for its devil-dispelling powers. The devil agreed with a man that he should have the latter's soul at the time when the oak leaves fell; but when he came to look at the oak in the autumn he found it still in leaf, nor did it part with its old leaves till the new ones began to sprout. In his rage and disappointment he scratched the leaves so vehemently that they have been in consequence jagged ever since. — Gentleman's Magazine.

Now it is a fact, well-known and beyond dispute, that every animate or inanimate structure responds to some chord or note of music, called the dominant. We have all felt some building vibrate in unison with the pulsation of some note of a musical instrument; we have felt "creepy" shivers run through us as some musical chord is sounded. It is well-known that animals are strangely affected by certain harmonies.

Some day, when civilization has advanced, it is believed that these evidences of physiological structure will be better understood. It will be recognized that vice and virtue are in accord with different harmonies, and yield to the power of different dominants; and, when once the classification is made, and the disclosures of the dominant understood, then the extent and influence of the dominant will be a physiological test to define the character and ruling passions of men's nature, and to decide the fitness of men for the various pursuits of life, and even for life itself.—Exchange.

CONQUER thyself. Till thou hast one that thou art a slave; for it is almost as well to be in subjection to another's appetite as thy own.

CLEVERNESS is a sort of genius for instrumentality. It is the brain of the hand. — Coleridge.

The Corn Palace at Sioux City.

This question applies to everybody. Some will say yes, while others will answer, "Not if we know ourselves; no West in ours." Well, perhaps not. But time works wonders, and as one knows what a day may bring forth; therefore those who have no idea of going West just at present should keep posted a little, for there is no telling how soon the "Western fever" may strike them, and if it does their departure will be as sudden as that of a bank cashier who has got on the wrong side of the wheat market. So we say keep posted just a little, and particularly as to the best and safest road over which to make a Western trip.

From Chicago there are numerous well-equipped railways that branch out to nearly every section of the great West, none of which are more prominent than the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul. For years this road has been noted for its enterprise in improving its train service and its efforts to provide comfort, convenience and safety for the traveling public. This is a fact which is appreciated by those who are obliged to spend much of their time in a passenger coach or a sleeping car. It is a pleasure to travel on any division of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, for a more courteous and obliging corps of conductors and subordinates, cannot be found than is in charge of the numerous trains of this popular railway system.

Trains are leaving Chicago over this line for different points in the West almost hourly. One of the new and popular trains recently added to its service is that which leaves Chicago every day at 7:30 p. m. and arrives at St. Paul the next morning at 9:30 o'clock, and at Minneapolis only thirty-five minutes later. This train is known as the "business man's favorite" because it leaves Chicago at the end of the day and arrives in St. Paul the next morning before business begins.

Another very popular train up in this road is the Sioux City short line. Leaving Chicago at noon daily, passengers arrive in Sioux City shortly after 9 o'clock the next morning, making close connections with trains for Northern and Southern Dakota. Elegant dining cars are run upon this train, upon which dinner, supper, and breakfast are served in a style that traveling men say is ahead of any other road.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Roadway offers superior advantage to all who contemplate a Western trip. Its various lines traverse Northern Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and Dakota to a greater extent than any other road. Its equipment is first-class in every respect, and travelers who patronize it speak in the highest terms of it.

Parties who propose to attend the great "Corn Palace" festivities, which are to be held at Sioux City, Iowa, from October 3 to October 8, inclusive, should not fail to buy their tickets over the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul.

The next Harvest Excursion over this favorite road will leave Chicago October 11. Tickets for this Excursion will be sold at half prices to points in Minnesota, Dakota, and Northern Iowa. For further particulars address A. V. H. Carpenter, General Passenger Agent, Milwaukee, Wis., or F. A. Miller Assistant General Passenger Agent, 65 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

"Bright Eyes," the eloquent Indian advocate, will lecture this season on the wrongs on the Indians. Good subject; the Indian is full of 'em; he seems to be wrong half the time; and the other half he is waiting for the grass to get green so that he may go wrong again. His wrongs keep this peaceful and Christian land in such a perennial turmoil that we hardly know; whether it is because we have the Indian wrongs or the wrong Indians. — Burdette.

"Didn't I tell you so?" said a gentleman to an acquaintance whom he chanced to meet on the street; "it's always the way." "What's always the way?" inquired a mutual friend of the two men, who happened along just then. "Why, just this," replied the first speaker; "you see Smith, here, the last time I met him he had one of the worst coughs you ever heard. He complained of a loss of appetite, of night-sweats, of low spirits and other unmistakable premonitory symptoms of consumption. I told him to get a supply of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery at once. He did so, and look at him now! Did you ever see a healthier-looking man? The 'Discovery' has snatched thousands from consumptives' graves. I knew it would cure Smith. It's always the way."

There is said to be 'a great similarity between a vain young lady and a confirmed drunkard, in that neither of them can ever get enough of the glass.

We call attention of our lady readers to the handsome present that is being prepared for them. By special arrangement with Demorest's Monthly, the Greatest of all Family Magazines, we will print in our next issue an ORDER, entitling every one of our readers to a pattern of this handsome jacket (free). Look out for it, for it is worth 25 cents.

While Demorest's is not a Fashion Magazine, many suppose it to be, because its Fashion Department, like all its other departments, is so perfect.

Don't subscribe for another magazine for next year before sending for this pattern, for the pattern's descriptive envelope will contain all information about Demorest's Monthly, which is published by W. Jennings Demorest, 5 East 14th St., New York.

The Fraser Axle Grease is the very best.
A trial will prove we are right.

[illegible]

"Feeling languid and dizzy. Having no appetite and no ambition to work. Took Hood's Sarsaparilla, with the best results. As a health invigorator and tone house for general debility I think it superior to anything else." A. A. RIKES, Albany Street, Utica, N. Y.

100 Doses One Dollar:

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels.
Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation,
Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficent influence of

It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health.
It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young.
As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

STRICTLY VEGETABLE.
Cure Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Piles, Sick Headache, Liver Complaints, Loss of Appetite, Billiousness, Nervousness, Jaundice, etc.
For Sale by all Druggists. Price, 25 Cents.
PACIFIC MANUFACTURING CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

300 PANTS

300 SHOES

HANDSOME, STYLISH
PANTS

made to order in first-class style.
Perfect Fit guaranteed or money refunded.

For samples of cloth and foot type measure, worth loc.)
send 3 2c. stamps.

Circulars Free.

Established
in 1877.

THE HUNTER
CINCINNATI, O. F. G. CO.

A black and white advertisement for Ely's Cream Balm. On the left is a profile of a man's head facing right. Various parts of his face and head are labeled with ailments: "EYES GOLD" near the eye, "COLD" near the nose, "HEADACHE" along the top of the head, "SORES" on the ear, "ITCHING" on the neck, "PRICK SORE" on the cheek, "ELY'S BALM" on the forehead, "OWED" on the chin, and "USA" at the bottom. To the right of the head is a large testimonial in italics: "I found it a specific for Hay Fever. For ten years I have been a great sufferer from August 9th till frost. Ely's Cream Balm is the only preventive I have ever found. Hay Fever sufferers should know of its efficacy.—Frank B. Ainsworth, Publisher, Indianapolis, Ind. Apply Balm into each nostril."

Lauderbach's German Catarrh Remedy.
 Since 1891. Samples free at Druggists. Mailed for 10c. in stamps.
 HUNDREDS CURED since the discovery of this method of treatment. Every man brings letters from grateful persons CURED. B. B. LAUDERBACH & CO., Newark, N. J., U.S.A.

FOR SALE CHEAP!
One of Payne & Son's automatic ten-horse power engines. It has only been used about two years. It is in every respect as good as the day it came out of the shop. This engine is equal to twenty-horse power if required of it. Address, FORT WAYNE NEWS-PAPEr UNION, 55 & 57 Columbia St., Fort Wayne, Ind.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by druggists or sent by mail.
50c. E. T. Haseltine, Warren, Pa.

OME STUDY. Bookkeeping, Business Forms, Penmanship, Arithmetic, Short-hand, etc., thoroughly taught by mail. Circulars free. BRYANT'S BUSINESS COLLEGE, Buffalo, N.Y.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

Subscription Rates:

One Year, in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months ..... 50
Three Months ..... 25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe as second-class matter.

FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 30, 1887.

St. Joe is the best hog market in the county.

The Chautauqua Circle of this place begin their course of readings for 1887-8, Oct. 1st.

Jud Davis left last Monday night for Janesville, Wis., to complete his course in telegraphy.

We are reminded by the "sear and yellow" condition of things, that autumn is here, and that it will soon be time to clean house and put that awful stove-pipe together again.

The Butler Review says that invitations were printed at that office announcing the wedding of Miss Mabel Andrews of Newville, and Mr. Frank Seiler of Fairfield township.

The Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church of Northern Indiana meets at Columbia City, this week. Rev. Fryberger is in attendance and will be absent over Sunday, consequently there will be no preaching in the Lutheran church on Sunday morning.

Remember that we stop all papers when the time, for which the subscription was given, expires. Therefore if any of the readers of the News should not receive their paper, they will know the cause. If you wish to continue taking the paper, let us know either in person, or by postal card, and it will be promptly forwarded.

At the school meeting last Saturday evening, Chris Curie was re-elected director, and it was decided to open the winter term of school on Oct. 1st. A resolution was also passed, asking the trustee to require the teachers to be responsible for the good condition of the school building, and see that no damage is done to the same.

Some time ago it was predicted that bogus driven-well agents would soon let themselves loose upon the unsuspecting. They have "arrived." They appear upon the farm with a long story and lots of authority, on paper, to settle with the farmer for a small sum, the farmer in turn to say nothing about the matter, but simply present his receipt if called upon. Owners of wells should be a little careful to which gang of swindlers they pay the royalty.—Avilla News.

ELECTRIC BITTERS:—The remedy is becoming so well known and so popular as to need no special mention. All who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise. A purer medicine does not exist and it is guaranteed to do all that is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all diseases of the Liver and Kidneys, will remove Pimples, Boils, Salt Rheum, and other affections caused by impure blood. Will drive Malaria from the system and prevent as well cure all Malarial fevers. For cure of Headache, Constipation and Indigestion try Electric Bitters. Entire satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded. Price 50 cts. and $1.00 per bottle at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

NEWVILLE.

Orin Hatch is moving to Waterloo this week.

Mrs. Akins school is progressing very favorably.

Joseph Rex and wife have left for Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Hathaway is moving into her house again from Hicksville.

Ernest Brown visited friends in Auburn and Waterloo Sunday.

William Moody and Uriah Linton were in Butler the first of the week.

James Stafford, of St. Louis, Mich. is visiting friends in this place this week.

W. B. Chiesman and George Bartlett went to Waterloo the first of the week.

D. D. DeLong Professor of Lebanon College Pennsylvania, has visited his mother and brother lately.

Newville was well represented at the Hicksville Fair. The U. B. Sunday school turned out enmasse on Wednesday.

SPENCERVILLE.

Florence Fryberger is on the sick list.

Mrs. Burley is very ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Wise.

Will Bishop and wife are spending a couple of weeks at this place.

Mrs. Ed. Gelhausen, of Garrett, is visiting friends in town this week.

Rev. S. P. Fryberger started for Columbia City Wednesday to attend Synod.

G. A. Bishop went to Chicago Tuesday night to purchase a stock of goods.

Miss Julia Emanuel, of Antwerp, O., was the guest of her grandparents last Sunday.

Ben Zimmerman has returned from Rockford Mich., and invites all who are in need of photographs to give him a call.

Orange Fales and wife are visiting at the home of his parents. He has just returned from the west where he has been traveling for his health.

Mr. W. C. Tindall died at his home last Friday morning, aged 61 years. He has been a great sufferer nearly all summer, but had began to be around some, when he was suddenly taken worse and after a severe illness of ten days, departed this life. He leaves a wife, two children and many friends to mourn his loss. The funeral services were held in the M. E. church on Sunday morning and were largely attended.

CONCORD.

Con Howey visited under his father's roof last Sunday.

Joseph Koch and wife visited with their son Reuben last Sabbath.

Sadie Hilderbrandt was a visitor under the parental roof Sunday.

Aleck Provines and wife visited with grandpa Baker and wife last Sunday.

John Smith and family visited in Jackson township last Saturday and Sunday.

Eph Wyatt and family, of near Fort Wayne, visited with his mother last Sunday.

Sam Johnson and wife were the guests of David Miller and family last Sunday.

Miss Maud Maxwell, of Hopewell, is a visitor in Henry Jenkins' family this week.

The enrollment of the infant class in Sunday school, now numbers thirty-seven and more to follow.

EXAMINE THE LARGEST, FINEST

AND MOST COMPLETE LINE OF

Men's, Ladies', Misses' & Children's FINE SHOES.

Ever exhibited in St. Joe. They comprise the most popular brands, such as Reed, Weaver, Gokey & Son, &c. The buttons will be reset on all shoes purchased of us, with Wilkin's patent fasteners. Call and see

J. D. LEIGHTY, ST. JOE.

Vet Johnson and Ed Berry, of Rehoboth, were visitors at Sunday school last Sunday. Ask Belle what the attraction was.

Ike Meese will move to St. Joe in a short time. We dislike to lose such good neighbors, but our loss will be St. Joe's gain.

James Draggoo and Will Scott entered their horses at the Hicksville Fair, and Will had a fine colt, which drew first premium.

Charley Knight moved to Butler last Tuesday. He has been employed as a brakeman on a freight train, on the Lake Shore road.

Jake Baker, wife and son went to Garrett last Sunday, and returned Sunday evening. They were the guests of Frank Smith and family.

Richard Irvin is agent for a firm in Philadelphia, for enlarging pictures from smaller ones. The samples are very good, and we wish him success in his new enterprise.

Mrs. P. A. Shurts was improving quite rapidly last week, but has taken a relapse and at present is much worse. Her physician thinks that it will be only with the best of care that she will recover.

While Tillie Knight was riding horse-back one day last week, she was thrown off, the horse stepping on her foot and hurting her quite seriously. It is feared that amputation will be necessary.

While Sherd Plattner was staying with his girl last Saturday evening, his horse which was hitched to the fence, broke the halter strap and ran away. The last account we had, he had heard nothing of its whereabouts. His girl should invite him to put his horse in the barn.

The Y. P. T. L. A. will meet at the residence of Clarence Hull, on Wednesday evening, Oct. 5th. Every member is expected to take part in the exercises. There will be a way provided to take all who want to go; so let us have a full attendance.

J. H. CONRAD.

Wash morning is sure to come and of course now and then your boiler will give out and you will be compelled to get a new 1. In that case call on J. H. Conrad, St. Joe, and get one of those splendid one dollar boilers.

J. H. CONRAD.

Baltimore & Ohio R.R.

Trains Leave St. Joe as follows

WEST BOUND.

No. 9 Mail and Express 11:05 A. M.
17 Accommodation 4:18 P. M.
3 Chicago Express 10:42 P. M.
35 Local Freight 3:42 P. M.

EAST BOUND.

No. 10 Express and Mail 2:08 P. M.
16 Accommodation 10:28 A. M.
4 Morning Express 4:55 A. M.
34 Local Freight 7:59 A. M.

W. I. McKee, Agent.

ST. JOE MARKETS.

CORRECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat ..... 70 cts.
Oats ..... 26 cts.
Corn ..... 35 cts.
Butter ..... 15 cts.
Eggs ..... 15 cts.
Tallow ..... 34 cts.
Lard ..... 10 cts.
Potatoes ..... 70 cts.

A Disastrous Flood!

Heavy damages done by the over-throw of High Prices, and we will continue same. Good Brown Sugar 5 and 6 cts. Granulated 7 cts. Rosin 5 cts. Alum 5 cts. Salts 5 cts. Bird Seed 8 cts. Salt Peter 12 1/2 cts. Prunes 6 1/2 cts. Good Gingham 6 cts. Dress Goods at your own price. Grain Sacks 18 cts. All goods as cheap as the cheapest. Highest market price paid for Wheat, Oats and Seeds.

S. & F. Barney

We just want to call your attention to three things this week that we want you to know.

1st. The finest line of Clocks, Watches and Jewelry in St. Joe can be found at the Drugstore.

2nd. Nobody carries as fine a line of Ladies Hand Bags as the St. Joe Drugstore.

3rd. The only place in St. Joe to find a line of Fine Perfumeries is at the Drugstore.

IS CONSUMPTION CURABLE.

Read the following. Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with Abscess of Lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an Incurable Consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, am now on my third bottle, and able to over see the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Jesse Middlewart, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption I would have died of Lung Troubles. Was given up by doctors. Am now in best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store.

LOCALS.

Miss Anna Merrill Sundayed over at Waterloo.

New Overcoats received this week, at Case & Olds.

A. M. Richards of Hicksville, was in town one day this week.

Man Ulms arrived home from his extended trip in the west this week.

There will be preaching at the Methodist church on next Sunday evening.

Miss Nettie Galloway, of Garrett, is the guest of Mrs. Sanders this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Patterson and daughter Bessie are visiting at Fort Wayne this week.

E. Olds is in Chicago this week buying new goods for the fall and winter trade.

Will Gee was at North Baltimore this week taking in the sights. He thinks that is a boss town.

Mr. Webb has changed his base, and now makes and repairs boots and shoes in Frank Walker's harness shop.

Hicksville is billed for a big reunion on next Thursday and Friday, Oct. 6th and 7th. They invite everybody to attend.

In last week's News we stated that fare tickets to Chicago would be on sale at the depot every Monday. It should have been Tuesday.

One belonging to S. P. Platner of Mt. Hope, was hitched in front of Curie's last Saturday night and somehow it broke loose, and has not been heard of. He was jetted with a small white spot on his left hind foot, and shod with a small white spot on his right hind foot. He had a buggy harness on; information in regard to him will be thankfully received at the post

Sam Johnson and family have moved to Waterloo.

Samuel Widney expects to take a trip west this fall.

Ask J. W. Dills what premium he was awarded on his roadster at the fair last week?

George Swineford, of the Swineford house, Auburn, was in town one day last week.

Miss Jessie Wentz of Tiffin, Ohio, is visiting in this place, the guest of Miss Cora White.

There ought to be some money in the country this fall from the amount of clover seed that is being sold.

When you get ready to buy a Lap Robe call on Free Zeigler. He also has a big line of Horse Blankets.

Quite a number of our citizens attended the funeral services of Wm. Tindall, at Spencerville last Sunday.

Hugh Nelson and daughter Miss Emma, of Hicksville, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Patterson over last Sunday.

The corn crop in this state will average about 60 per cent. What's the matter with that, when it was thought there wouldn't be any corn at all.

Charlie and Miss Sake Bartlett took in the Niagara Falls excursion last Saturday. They returned Tuesday, well pleased with their trip.

Frank Seehler returned from his visit in Ohio, last week. Vester Widney had not seen all of the sights yet, and will not be home for a few days.

Garrett people are as bad off as St. Joe for a cemetery. They bury their dead at Auburn, while our people go either to Spencerville or Newville.

One of the cheapest excursions we have known of, was that which went over the B. & O. last Saturday to Niagara Falls. Only $4.60 from St. Joe and return.

A saloon building at Hicksville was destroyed by fire last Saturday morning. Saloon men and their followers have a hard road to travel in that lively town.

Wash Woodcox has bought the William Vanzile property near the depot, and will move his family into the same. Instead of going west, Wash went about sixty feet south.

A horse 30 years old was frightened to death by the cars at Hicksville one day last week. It would seem as though he was old enough to know better than to get scared at a train of cars.

A. M. Richards of Hicksville was here last week, and adjusted in a prompt and satisfactory manner, the loss to Mrs. Culbertson, caused by the burning of her summer kitchen some time ago. The companies Mr. Richards represents are always prompt in paying their losses.

One of our popular dry goods clerks and the B. & O. agent at this place, were at Garrett Sunday evening. It is hardly necessary for us to state what they went for, as almost everybody here knows that two of our good looking young ladies are teachers in the Garrett schools.

The trial of the persons who robbed the grave of Miss Belle Bowen, near Attica, Ohio, will come off at the October term of court. Our citizens will remember the horrible occurrence, which happened some over a year ago. The parties, being men of some influence and money, have been able, thus far, to but the trial off, but it is hoped that they will now receive the punishment they so justly deserve.

Fort Wayne Yarn.
Fort Wayne Yarn.
Fort Wayne Yarn.
Fort Wayne Yarn.
Fort Wayne Yarn.
Fort Wayne Yarn.
Fort Wayne Yarn.
Fort Wayne Yarn.
Fort Wayne Yarn.

"SOCKS."

Perhaps it may be a little early to speak about yarns, but it is getting along that way, and these cold snaps reminds us that winter is headed this way. We are prepared to "sock" everybody with the Fort Wayne Factory Yarn. "Socks" knit from this yarn will wear twice as long as this cheap John shoddy stuff. Sold only by Case & Olds.

TRUTH IS MIGHTY AND WILL PREVAIL.

LOOK THIS WAY!

I keep on hand a fine line of Furniture, which I will sell for the next 60 days at prices that defy competition. Glass Cupboards $8.50. Double Cane Seat and Back Rockers $2. Dressing Case, with French Plate Glass $12.00. Carpet Lounges $6.50. Solid Comfort Beds for $2.25. Undertaking a speciality.

August Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.

M. TUSTISON,

—DEALER IN—

Groceries, Flour,

PROVISIONS,

GANDIES, CIGARS, TOBACCO.

Canned Fruits, Beans, Dried Beef, Cheese, Bologna &c. Produce taken in exchange for goods.

ST. JOE, IND.

—G. A. PATTERSON—

at the St. Joe Drugstore, repairs Clocks, Watches and Jewelry. All work warranted and prices reasonable. Give me your work.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. PRICE 25 cents per box. For sale by W. C. Patterson.

Ralph Cole moved his family to Garrett this week, where he has a position in the shops.

The ladies of the Christian church will give a Pumpkin Pie Social at the Vollmar building, one week from to-night, Friday Oct. 7th. Preparations are being made for a pleasant time. Everybody cordially invited. Refreshments 10 cents.

Clocks and Watches repaired at the St. Joe Drug Store.

J. H. Conrad is doing the tin work on the new church at Spencerville.

Twenty-five cents pays for the St. Joe News for thirteen weeks. Try it.

It is reported that 2,340 hogs have recently died in Elkhart county, of cholera.

The Methodist church at Waterloo which was recently destroyed by fire will be rebuilt.

Plenty of fresh home-made Lard at Curie's Meat Market. Only 10 cents per pound.

There are now 615 convicts in the Michigan City prison, fifty-four of whom are under life sentence.

Free Zeigler received this week a full line of Horse Blankets, Lap Robes &c. Give him a call when you get ready to buy such goods.

Houlton's circus passed through this place one day last week on their way to Butler. They were a sorry looking troupe.

This is the way a Dutch farmer advertises for a lost calf: "Rund away—2 read and vite. His tube hind legs vos plack; he vos a she calf. Enipoti vot prings him pack gives five tollars. Jacob Zuddering, Clear Creek, three miles behind the pridge."

A good many big stories are going the rounds of the papers, but the following from the Waterloo Press, is the biggest corn fodder yarn we have heard. "Our second corn story is reported by Will Jackson. Mr. J. and Charles Nodine cut and shocked two hundred shocks of heavy corn, eight hills square, between 7 and 12 o'clock, a. m., last Friday. They also tied the saddles and shocks."

The sharper and confidence man is abroad in the land, and their latest victim is John Warner, of an adjoining county. A few days ago a nice looking, smooth talking fellow stopped at his house, and after getting on the good side of the old man, offered to send him free a patent harrow he was introducing. The harrow was to be attached to a plow and finish the ground as it went. All that was required of the old gentleman was to write his name and address on a postal card "to prevent any mistake in shipping." This he readily consented to do, and the smooth talking gentleman left. A few days after another man appeared with the self-same postal card, on which was an order for $282 for harrows, which had been shipped, and for which he demanded settlement. The matter was finally settled by the old gentleman paying fifty dollars and the agent giving up the order. Warner is now considerable wiser, though a little poorer.

Rev. Dr. Talmage's Sermon at the First Tabernacle.

Brooklyn, Sept. 25.- After the great congregation had sung the long meter hymnology in the Brooklyn Tabernacle this morning, Dr. Tallmage expounded the sixth chapter of the Second Epistle to the Corinthians, setting forth the importance of separation from the world, Jewish, and saying that a man is no better than the company he keeps. Professor Henry Lyre Brown played an organ solo, Sonata No. 1 in D minor by Gunglman. The subject of the sermon was "A Straight Up and Down Religion," and the text was Amos vii, 8, "And the Lord said unto me, Amos, what seest thou? and I said, a plumb line." Dr. Tallmage said:

What the world wants is a straight up and down religion. Much of the so-called society of the day bends this way and that, to suit the times. It is horizontal with a low state of sentiment and morals. We have all been building a wall of character, and it is glaringly imperfect and needs reconstruction. How shall it be brought into the perpendicular? Only by the divine measurement. "And the Lord said unto me, Amos, what seest thou? and I said, A plumb line."

The pressure to do wrong is all the stronger from the fact that in our day the big business houses are swallowing up the smaller, the whales dining on bluefish and minnows. The large houses under-ell the small ones because they can afford it. They can afford to make nothing, or actually lose, on some styles of goods, assuredly they can make it up on others. So a great many goods house go outside of its regular line and sell books at cost, or less than cost, and that swamps the booksellers; or the dry goods house sells bric-a-brac at low prices, that swamps the small dealer in bric-a-brac. And the same thing goes on in other styles of merchandise, and the consequence is that all along the business streets of all our cities there are hordes of small capital who are in terrible struggle to keep their heads above water. The Cunarders run down the Newfoundland fishing smacks. This is nothing against the man who has the big store, for every man has a large a store, and so great a business as he can manage. To feel right and do right under all this pressure requires martyr grace, requires divine support, requires celestial re-enforcement. But there are tens of thousands of such men getting splendidly through. They see the others going up and themselves going down, but they keep their patience, and

In the same way we need to measure our religions. All sorts of religions are putting forth their intentions. Some have a spiritualistic religion, and their chief work is with ghosts, and others a religion of official economy, I propose to put on a human masonry by a new style of religion, and there is a humanitarian religion that looks after the body of man and lets the soul look after itself, and there is a legislative religion that proposes to rectify all wrongs by enactment of better laws, and there is an aesthetic religion that by gifts of exquisite taste would lift the heart out of its deformities, and religions of all sorts, religions by the peck, religions by the square foot, and religions by the ton all of them devices of the devil that would take the heart away from the only religion that will ever effect anything for the human race, and that is the straight up and down religion written in the book, which begins with Genesis and ends with Revelation, the religion of the skies, the old religion, the God given religion, the everlasting religion, which says: "Love God above all and your neighbor as yourself."
 All religions but this one begin at the wrong end and in the wrong place. The Bible religion demands that we first fight with God. It begins at the top and measures down, while the other religions begin at the bottom and try to measure up, they stand at the foot of the wall up to their knees in the mud of human theory and speculation, and have a plummet and string tied fast to it. And they throw the plummet this way, and break a head there, and throw the plummet another way and break a head there, and then they throw it up, and it comes down upon their own heads. Fools! Why will you stand at the foot of the wall measuring up when you ought to stand at the top measuring down?
 A few days ago I was in the country, thirsty for a long walk. And I came in, and my child was blowing soap bubbles, and they fled out of the cup, blue, and gold, and green, and sparkling, and beautiful, and peculiar, and in so small a space I never saw more splendor concentrated. But she blew once too often and all the glory vanished into suds. Then I turned and took a glass of plain water and was refreshed, and so far as soul thirst is concerned, I fight against all the glowing, glittering soap bubbles of worldly reform and human speculation one draught from the fountain of life under the throne of God, clear as crystal. Glory to God for the religion that pours from above, not coming up from beneath! "And the Lord said unto me, Moses, what seest thou? and I said, A want you to notice this fact, that when man gives up the straight up-and-down religion in the Bible for any new fangled religion, it is generally to suit his sins. When first hear of his change of religion, and then you hear of some swindle he has effected in Colorado mining stock, tell some one if he will put in $10,000 he can take out $100,000, or he has sacrificed chastity, or plunged into irremediable wickedness. His sins are so broad he has broadened his religion, and he becomes as bad as temptation, as broad as the soul's weakness, as broad as hell. They want a religion that will allow them to keep their sins, and then at death say to them: "Well done, good and faithful servant," and tell them: "All is well, for there is no hell." Let a glorious Heaven they hold before them. Come, let us go in and see it. There Herod and all the babes he massacred, there is Charles Guiteau, Jim Fisk, and Desperiere, the friend of the French Revolution, and all the liars, thieves, house-breakers, gamblers, pickpockets, and liars, of all the centuries. They have all crowns, and thrones, and harps, and scepters, and when they chant they sing: "Thanksgiving, and honor, and glory, and power to the broad religion that let us all go to Heaven without repentance and faith in those disgraceful dogmas of ecclesiastical theologians."

Lord Nelson's general direction when he engaged in naval battle was, no man can do anything that places his ship at sea alongside the enemy. My friend, you will never do wrong if you keep your life close alongside the Ten Commandments. Do not think and you can be as brave as Maria Theresa, who rode up the hill of Defiance and shook her sword at the four corners of the earth.

But," you say, "you shut us young folks out from all fun." Oh, no! I like fun. I love fun. I have had lots of it in my life. But I have not had to go into paths of sin to find it. No credit to me, but because of an extraordinary parental example of influence I was kept from outward aggressions; though my heart was bad enough and desperately wicked. I have had fun limitless, though I never swore a oath, and never gambled for so much the value of a pin, and never saw the inside of a haunt of sin save as when ten years ago, with commissioner of police and detective and two elders of my church, I explored these cities by midnight, not out of curiosity, but that I might in pulpits dissuade set before the people the poverty of the horrors of underground city life. I though I never was intoxicated for an instant, and never committed one act of looseness, restrained only by the grace of God, without which restraint I would have gone headlong to the bottom of iniquity. I have had so much fun that I don't believe there is a man on the planet at the present time who has had more. Hear it, men and boys, women and girls, all the fun is on the side of right. It may seem attractive, but it is dreadful, like the munchedale, a tree whose dew is poisonous. The only genuine happiness is in an honest Christian life. The hypocrite, wanting to see God, blackens his face with charcoal and fasts till he has vision of what he calls God. My God I see best when I take my hat off and let the sunshine blaze in my face, and after a comfortable breakfast. He is not a God of darkness and starvation, but of light and attitude, and the glory of the noonday is Egyptian midnight compared to it. Where they go—two brothers. The one converted a year ago in church, one day morning, during prayer, or sermon, or hymn. No one knew it at the time. The sons on either side of him suspected nothing, but in that young man's life this process went on: "Lord, I am, a young man amid the temptations of city life, and I am afraid to be alone; come and be my parlor, my help; save me from making the mistake that some of my comrades are making, and save me now." And quicker than a flash God rolled Heaven into his heart. He is just as jolly as he used to be, just as brilliant as he used to be. He can strike a ball or catch one as easily as when he was converted. With gun or

[illegible]

"I say you," "if there be nothing but plumb line what can any of us do, for e is and old proverb which 'truthfully ares: 'If the best man's faults were ten on his forehead it would make him his hat over his eyes.' What shall we then, according to Isaiah, God shall judgment to the line and righteousness e plummet?" Ah, here is where the el comes in with a Saviour's righteous-to make up for our defects. And o I see hanging on the wall a plumb
I see also hanging there a cross." And the one condemns us the other saves if only we will hold to it. And here now you may be set free with a more ous liberty than Hampden, or Sidney.
Kosciusko ever fought for. Not yonder, or down there, or up here, ust where you are you may get it. The id proprietress of a wealthy estate in land visited the continent of Europe rid of her maladies, and she went to Baden and tried those waters, and to Carlsbad and tried those waters, went to Hamburg and tried those s, and instead of getting better she orse, and in despair she said to a ician: "What shall I do?" His rease: "Medicine can do nothing for You have no chance in the waters at Keathly, Scotland." "Is it possie she replied. "Why, those waters are y own estate!" She returned,
k of the fountain, and in a few months etely recovered. Oh sick, and dis-ed, and sinning, and dying hearer, go trudging all the world over, eeking here and there relief for your maged spirit, when close by, and at very feet, and at the door of your aye, within the very estate of your consciousness, the healing waters of al life may be had, and had this very

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

EVENTS OF A WEEK.

THE OLD WORLD.

—The Dublin Gazette publishes a proclamation suppressing the league and all its branches in County Clare and the baronies of Leitrim and Loughrea, in Galway; Corkaguiney, in Kerry; Coudone, Clannigibon, and Muskerry, in Cork; and Shelburne, in Wexford. The proclamation makes it criminal to convoke, hold, or publish meetings, or do anything in connection with the league. The branches of the league were not prepared for the proclamation, not expecting it so soon. The Nationalist leaders, says a Dublin dispatch, are hurriedly consulting as to what measures shall be taken.

—The British steamer Romeo, from New Orleans to Rouen, capsized at Villeguon, August 30, with a loss of seventeen lives.

—The trial of William O'Brien on two counts of an indictment charging him with uttering seditious language at a recent meeting in Mitchelstown resulted in a verdict of guilty, the punishment being fixed at three months' imprisonment in each case. He was released on bail pending the decision on an appeal. Mr. O'Brien, in his speech of defense, said the crown was guilty of having suppressed evidence favorable to him. The crown had withheld, for instance, the notes made by the head constable of the defendant's speech. In these notes, he said, was recorded his statement that the Irish party would give the land bill fair play. Continuing, Mr. O'Brien justified his defense of the Kingstown tenants on the ground that the evictions against them were begun just on the eve of the passage of the land bill, and thus an attempt was made to defraud the tenants of the benefits of the measure. He admitted that he had advised the tenants not to give up without resistance, and he declared that, before God and man, they were justified in defending their homes.

POLITICAL POINTS.

—The following ticket was placed in the field by the Massachusetts Democratic State Convention at Worcester: For Governor, Henry B. Lovering, of Lynn; for Lieutenant Governor, Walter E. Cutting, of Pittsfield; for Secretary of State, John F. Murphy, of Lowell; for Treasurer, H. C. Thatcher, of Yarmouth; for Attorney General, John W. Corcoran, of Clinton; for Auditor, William F. Cook, of Springfield. The platform of the convention indorses President Cleveland and his administration; approves of the laws forbidding the importation of contract labor and requiring the return of vicious immigrants; sympathizes with Ireland; demands the abolishment of the State poll-tax; pledges the party to legislate in the best interests of the wage-worker; and indorses the candidates nominated.

—It can now be stated on the best authority that the straight Greenbackers will make no nominations. The State Committee will meet next week, and, while that body may offer no definite course for the party to follow, it is safe to say there will be no hostility to the Democratic platform and ticket. This indicates, other things being taken into account, an outcome in November no worse for the Democracy than two years ago, when Gov. Larrabee had about 6,000 majority.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL.

—Great opposition to the re-election of Mr. Powderly and the General Executive Board has developed among the Knights of Labor, says a Philadelphia special. Mr. Powderly and all his colleagues are now engaged in getting ready their annual reports. Mr. Powderly in his report will review his course throughout the past year, and will make a large number of recommendations for the future conduct of the Knights' organization. He will favor, he says, an open convention of the General Assembly at Minneapolis, to which the newspaper correspondents will be admitted. Mr. Powderly will also advance certain plans for the promotion of temperance and education. He will center his greatest efforts, however, in urging the adoption of the new constitution, which General Secretary Litchman last June announced as adopted, but which has been contested since. Mr. Powderly thoroughly appreciates the difficulty of the task, and his expectation is that a great contest will be waged over it in the General Assembly. He will also strongly advocate the adoption of his new scheme in regard to the formation of national trades assemblies which he promulgated.

—A Cincinnati telegram says: "Nearly two hundred colored male waiters at seven hotels struck for recognition as a union, and for about 25 per cent. higher wages. The hotel men have refused the demands. The strike includes not only the colored waiters now employed, but the unemployed who follow the profession have agreed to stand by the strikers. A waiter, reciting his grievances, said: 'We get only $20 a month and have to furnish a $4 jacket, and if we are detected eating a piece of warm bread or cake we are charged 25 cents. We have no protection whatever.'

PERSONAL NOTES.

—The following is the itinerary of the President's journey in the South and West, as telegraphed from Washington:

Leave Washington Friday, Sept. 30, at 10 a. m.; arrive at Indianapolis Saturday, Oct. 1, at 11 a. m.; leave Indianapolis Oct. 1 at 4 p. m.; arrive at Terre Haute at 5:30 p. m.; leave Terre Haute Oct. 1 at 6:15 p. m.; arrive at St. Louis Oct. 1 at 12 o'clock midnight; leave St. Louis Oct. 4 at 11 p. m.; arrive at Chicago Oct. 5 at 9 a. m.; leave Chicago Thursday, Oct. 6, at 10 a. m.; arrive at Milwaukee Oct. 6 at 1 p. m.; leave Milwaukee Oct. 7 at 10 a. m.; arrive at Madison Oct. 7 at 1 p. m.; leave Madison Oct. 9 at 9 a. m.; arrive at St. Paul Oct. 10 at 5:30 p. m.; leave St. Paul Oct. 11 at 12 noon; arrive at Minneapolis Oct. 11 at 1 p. m.; leave Minneapolis Oct. 11 at 8 p. m.; arrive at Omaha Oct. 12 at 11 a. m.; leave Omaha Oct. 12 at 12 noon; arrive at St. Joseph Oct. 12 at 5:15 p. m.; leave St. Joseph Oct. 12 at 5:45 p. m.; arrive at Kansas City Oct. 13 at 11 p. m.; leave Kansas City Oct. 13 at 11 p. m.; arrive at Memphis Oct. 14 at 6 p. m.; leave Memphis Oct. 15 at 1 p. m.; arrive at Nashville Oct. 15 at 11 p. m.; leave Nashville Oct. 17 at 11 a. m.; arrive at Atlanta Oct. 17 at 11 p. m.; leave Atlanta Oct. 19 at midnight; arrive at Montgomery Oct. 20 at 8 a. m.; leave Montgomery Oct. 20 at 1 p. m.; reach Washington Saturday, Oct. 22, at 6 a. m. At the suggestion of the President much proposed speech-making at the places to be visited has been abandoned.

FIRES AND ACCIDENTS.

—Kansas City (Mo.) special: "A disastrous wreck occurred on the Gulf Division of the Southern Kansas Railroad at Guthrie, four miles south of Purcell, I. T. An engine and construction train collided while both were moving at a high rate of speed. The two engines and twelve freight-cars were piled in a heap, and the list of killed and wounded is large. Engineer Charles Pearson of the light engine was fatally crushed, and his fireman, Charles Stewart, seriously hurt. It is rumored that a large number of workmen were killed, but details are meager. Reports say that eight to ten were killed or wounded."

—Details of the recent hurricane on the Mexican border show that its destructiveness was even greater than indicated by the first reports. The path of the storm presents an appalling picture of ruin and desolation. Many of the victims are in a destitute condition, and unless relief is speedily obtained from abroad their sufferings will be appalling.

—The villages of Wynne, Ark., and Union Mills, Ind., have been almost totally destroyed by fire. Extensive car-shops at Michigan City, Ind., were burned.

—Three children of a farmer named Gault, near Quebec, while playing on the Island of Orleans, found a shell and lit the fuse. The bomb exploded and killed them all instantly.

THE CRIMINAL RECORD.

Anarchist Parsons has issued a long address to the American people in which he attempts to show that he was convicted on speeches that he never made, and articles he never wrote. He wants his liberty or death, preferring the execution of the full force of his sentence to commutation. In closing he says:

I am prepared to die. I am ready if needs be to lay down my life for my rights and the rights of my fellow-men. But I object to be killed on false and unproved accusations. Therefore I cannot countenance or accept the efforts of those who would endeavor to procure a commutation of my sentence to an imprisonment in the penitentiary. Neither do I approve of any further appeals to the courts of law. I believe them to be all alike the agency of the privileged class to perpetuate their power, to oppress and plunder the toiling masses. As between capital and its legal rights and labor and its rights the courts of law must side with the capitalistic class. To appeal to them is in vain. It is the appeal of the wage slave to his capitalist master for liberty. The answer is curses, blows, imprisonment, and death. If I had never been an anarchist before, my experience with courts and the laws of the governing classes would make an anarchist of me now. No, I am not guilty. I have not been proved guilty. I leave it to you to decide from the record itself as to my guilt or innocence. I cannot, therefore, accept a commutation to imprisonment. I appeal not for mercy, but for justice.

—The following correspondence speaks for itself:

CELL NO. 29, CAPITALIST BASTILLE, CHICAGO, SEPT. 16, 1897.

Citizen George Francis Train:

Your kind note received. Yes, "murdered by the State." Is there anything strange or unusual in that fact? No! O, no! Murder is the legitimate and only occupation of the social organization called "the State." What else but the State, through the mechanism of its constitutions and laws, has made convicts, beggars, and slaves of the vast majority of the human race? What else but this social monster known as "the State" has made of the producers—the world's workers—a race of dependent hirelings and wage-slaves? What else but this social monster called "the State" has made enforced poverty, ignorance, and superstition the artificial condition of those who by their industry create all wealth? Owned by the State, say I; and for this "the State" says I must die! So be it. For if I live I am in duty bound to kill the State. Yours for humanity.

A. R. PARSONS, Anarchist.

Citizen Train:

Accept my thanks and those of any comrades for the many stand you have taken in behalf of justice! Will street and its hirelings triumph—how long yet? Fraternally.

CHICAGO, SEPT. 16.

A. SPENCER.

Citizen Editor Devine, Western Newsman, No. 13 South Clark street, Chicago:

Spies-Parsons Letters Received! Will Liberate "Socialists" or Tear Down Bastille! One man left Press Law Police cannot "Bulldoze!"

GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN.

—Gen. Roger A. Pryor, of New York, who has accepted employment as counsel for the anarchists, says the constitutionality of the Illinois jury law will be attacked in the proceedings before the Supreme Court. He knows of no reason to believe that Justice Miller will have anything more to do with the case than his fellow Judges.

—At Haverhill, Mass., J. H. Abbott shot and killed his daughter and then killed himself. John Glendening, of Middletown, Ohio, committed suicide after killing John Nolan, against whom he had long cherished a grudge. Both crimes were committed under the influence of whisky.

—The sensational event among the Anarchists on Saturday, says a Chicago special, was the arrest of Lucy Parsons, wife of A. R. Parsons, by Officer P. J. Ward, at the corner of Fifth avenue and Randolph street. She was taken to the Central Station on a charge of violating an ordinance passed Sept. 18, 1881, prohibiting the distribution of circulars or handbills on the streets. She had been distributing circulars headed "An Appeal to the American People," and containing the address written by her husband. The arrest caused a great deal of excitement, owing to the fact that for some hours the people were unable to find out the charge against her. A large crowd gathered at the Central Station when she was taken in. She was asked to obey the ordinance and to stop distributing the circulars, but to this she replied that she would make no promises, but was "amenable to the laws." Orders were then given to lock her up, and Mrs. Parsons looked perfectly happy and proceeded to distribute the remainder of the circulars to the bystanders.

—A collision between the United States Marshal's posse and a band of smugglers, in which four of the latter were killed and their camp captured, took place at Rio Grande City.

—Prescott (Arizona) dispatch: "News has been received here of a bloody fight at Tonto Basin. Thomas Graham, Joseph Ellingwood, and a man named Middleton were killed on the Graham side; and George Newton and James Tewkesbury on the Tewkesbury side. The Graham party ambushed near John Tewkesbury's house, and found Tewkesbury on guard. When the Graham party was discovered, a battle commenced. John Tewkesbury, who was recently ambushed and killed, was found ten days later."

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

—Cincinnati telegram: "The operation of the law of last winter which repealed the statute authorizing the establishment of separate schools for colored pupils is producing friction in many places. At Oxford, Ohio, the colored pupils nearly all deserted their own school and applied for admission to the white school. A public meeting was held and the School Board was asked to order the colored pupils to their own schools. The board complied with the request, and the colored people propose to apply for a mandamus. At Yellow Springs the School Board has ordered the schools closed indefinitely, or until the Legislature can meet and take some action. At Ripley, Ohio, a suit in mandamus has been entered to compel the School Board to admit colored pupils."

—A New York telegram of Saturday last says:

A sensation was created by the announcement that the steamer Alexia, which arrived from Marseilles and Naples, had Asiatic cholera on board. Eight of her passengers died on the passage, and on her arrival at quarantine the health officer found four cases aboard. He sent the Alexia and her passengers to West Bank, in the lower bay. The Alexia left Marseilles Aug. 30, and Naples Sept. 3. All of the victims were buried at sea. The sick passengers will be transferred to the Swinburne Island Hospital. All the remaining passengers will be transferred to Hoffman Island for observation. The ship will remain in the lower bay until she has been thoroughly fumigated and cleaned.

—The National Association of ex-Prisoners of War has just concluded its Chicago meeting. A report from the Committee on Pensions, recommending the passage of a bill giving all ex-prisoners of war $2 for each day they were in captivity, and placing them on the pension rolls at rates proportioned to the length of their confinement, was unanimously adopted. A resolution was also passed declaring that the captured rebel flags should be held sacred by the National Government, and displayed in some public place, as provided by law. General W. H. Powell was elected President for the ensuing year. The next annual meeting will be held at Indianapolis.

M. T. BISHOP,

—DEALER IN—

LUMBER, LIME,

—BLITH—

SHINGLES,

MOULDING &c.

Large Stock and Low Prices. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

MEAT MARKET

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNESS

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

Blacksmith

AND

Repair Shop.

Having secured the services of an experienced workman, I am now prepared to do all kinds of Blacksmithing and Repairing in a first-class manner. Special attention given to repairing machinery. Give me a call. Prices reasonable.

A. W. Hall, St. Joe.

OCTOBER

---

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1887.

NO. 37.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.

J. M. MILLIMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind. John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a specialty. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—The following patents have been granted Indiana inventors: Wm. Adair, Leesville, nut lock; Joseph D. Adams, Marshall, and F. M. Pennock, Kennel Square, Pa., road-grader; Charles A. Bertsch, Cambridge City, furniture ester; John W. Lochner and N. Oster, Aurora, device for ageing and purifying liquors; Britton Poulson and E. L. Lathrop, Fort Wayne, assignors to American Road Machine Company, Kennel Square, Pa., road-grader; Charles J. Rinderknecht, Indianapolis, saw-mill set works; John Rogers, Elkhart, machine for grinding mowing machine knives; Isidore V. Roy, assignor to Dodge Manufacturing Company, Mishawaka, wooden pulley; Calvin W. Telle, North Indianapolis, towel arm.

—The Chief of Police of Fort Wayne has issued an order directing the immediate closing of all gambling houses in that city, under penalty of raids, arrest, and punishment of all room-keepers and inmates. The blow was so sudden and unexpected that the gentry of the green cloth cannot realize what has struck them. For years gamblers have carried things with a high hand there, and there were three public faro banks, one keno room, and numerous poker rooms, public and private, in operation. The Law and Order League is also making vigorous war upon the saloons.

—John Barrett, a well-to-do farmer, retired to a room on the second floor of Mrs. Knight's boarding-house at Logansport, and was not seen again until an early hour next morning, when he was found immediately under the window, with a broken arm, fractured hip, and badly bruised head and face. He also sustained internal injuries that may result seriously. It is generally supposed that he staggered out of the window, as it was open.

—Workmen engaged in a gravel-pit in the southeastern part of Rochester, have unearthed a number of human bones, which on being put together show that they are the skeletons of five grown persons. The bones were found at a place, about five feet beneath the surface, and had evidently been dismembered before being buried. The oldest inhabitants of the place are unable to solve the mystery.

—The Indiana Farmer's latest report shows that the average crop yield of wheat in this State is about thirteen bushels per acre, making the aggregate crop between 38,000,000 and 40,000,000 bushels. The yield of corn is 60 per cent. of a full crop. There is about an average area of oats, with a yield of thirty-two bushels per acre. The average production of potatoes is below thirty bushels per acre.

—A passenger train on the Cairo, Vincennes & Chicago Railroad ran into a saw-log that was laid upon the track recently, about eight miles south of Vincennes. A few nights before an attempt was made to wreck an Ohio and Mississippi train between Shoals and Huron. On this occasion cross-ties were piled across the track, but Engineer Thom saw them in time to save the train.

—Gesey Thompson, who had been working at Hammond and was on his way home, at Rochester, on a freight, in getting off the train slipped and fell, the wheels passing over his right leg and left foot, tearing the flesh and breaking the bone. His hands and head were also bruised, from which injuries he died in about three hours. Deceased was 24 years old.

—A cow belonging to G. A. Smith, living near Elkhart, gave birth, a night or two ago, to a remarkable freak of nature. It had the head and nose of a bull-dog, the ears of a calf, and the legs and hoofs of a hog. The knee-joints of the hind legs were fastened to the hips. The fore-quarters were very heavy and the fore legs very short.

—At North Vernon three sisters named Kelly and a companion named Lena Smith, while returning from school, were attacked by a vicious cow. The Kelly girls escaped injury, but Lena Smith was seriously injured, one of the cow's horns entering her nose and tearing open the flesh from the nostril to the top of her head.

—French Lick Springs, in Orange County, are to be turned over by the recent purchaser, Col. H. E. Wells, to a joint stock company, with a capital stock of $200,000, who will at once make such improvements as will create of the springs a resort first-class in all respects. The parties interested are Louisville capitalists.

—At the Central Iron and Steel Company's works in Brazil an explosion in one of the furnaces drove a red-hot cinder into the eye of John Billiter, an employe, quite destroying it. He was also so badly burned about the other eye that he will probably lose the sight of it.

—One of a gang of burglars convicted at Princeton, just before sentence communicated to the Court that she was a woman. She had been masquerading in male attire for three years. She was sentenced to the Female Reformatory for three years.

—The citizens of Richmond are so sanguine that the Evansville and Richmond road will be built that they are squabbling over what line it shall enter their city, and have asked the Board of Trade to take the matter up.

—The Rockville Light Artillery, on its return home from Evansville, where it won first prize in the artillery contest, was given a handsome reception, followed by a banquet, at which complimentary speeches were made.

—Samuel Hilman, of Columbus, has a sword captured by him in battle in the late war. It is inscribed, "Lieutenant Colonel Bay, Second Tennessee Cavalry, C. S. A." He is anxious to return it to the owner, if living.

—Benj. Lyon, a well-known young man of Elkhart, was very badly burned by having his face and eyes filled with vitrol, the result of an accident. It is scarcely probable that his eyesight can be saved.

—Rev. A. B. Burner, of Westville, Fayette County, a few days ago fell down stairs at his residence, while carrying an armful of books, and received internal injuries which may prove fatal.

—At Rushville two young ladies named Nora and Katie Barrett were toying with a pistol, when the latter was shot in the shoulder, the wound being a serious one.

—Rev. A. G. Moore was elected Treasurer of Hanover College by the Board of Trustees. Mr. Moore resides in Hanover, and is pastor of the Presbyterian Church there.

—Clarence, the 4-year-old son of A. C. Malone, of Vincennes, was fatally burned. He had gone into an upper room and set fire to a bed while playing with matches.

—Miss Stella Ross, 17 years old, fell from a second-story window of her residence in Fort Wayne, suffering internal injuries from which she may die.

—Willie Shannon, aged 8 years, of Madison, died from eating nightshade berries. —Typhoid fever is almost epidemic in Jeffersonville. One physician has in his care fifteen patients suffering from that disease.

—John Dreeder, a carpenter, who was injured at Muncie recently by falling from the roof of a two-story building, has since died.

—Charles Peterman, a veteran soldier, of Madison, was drowned by falling from the bridge at St. Louis.

—The books of the municipal government of New Albany are being overhauled by experts.

—At Doedsville Philip Fentox had both legs cut off by a circular saw. He will die.

MONEY

TO

LOAN

On Farm Property

IN SUMS OVER $200.

Interest only once a year. We charge no commission. You can pay any part or all of the loan at any time. You can keep the money as long as you please if the interest is promptly paid. For further particulars call on or address

W. C. Patterson,
ST. JOE, IND.

Ho for Arkansas!

Cheap Homes for Everybody!

In a high, healthy, rich land country. On the 15th of September and the 1st of October there will be excursions from this place to that point at a very low rate of fare. For full information in regard to these excursions call on A. B. Coburn, Real Estate Agent, St. Joe, Ind. Office with Dr. Sheffer, one door east of Drugstore.

GO to the News Office, St. Joe for all kinds of Printing. All work done promptly, and at the lowest prices. Give us a call.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencerville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining, Glazing Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcox. Call and see me, or leave orders at the St. Joe Drugstore.

FREE GRACE.

Rev. Dr. Talmage's Sermon Last Sunday Morning—Other Worlds Than Ours Inhabitable—The Religion of Christ Not an Abstraction.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 2.—The capacity for a still larger audience has been made at the Brooklyn tabernacle. An adjoining lecture room has been built so that during the week this used by itself, but on the Sabbath it is thrown into the main auditorium and filled by those sitting or standing. Notwithstanding the enlargement the crowd that go away not able to get inside the building are greater this fall than ever before. To-day the pastor explained appropriate passages of Scripture. Prof. Brown rendered upon the organ the First Sonata in D minor, Ritzler. The text of the sermon was from II Corinthians, viii. 9: "Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though He was rich, yet for your sakes He became poor." Dr. Talmage said:

That all the worlds which on a cold winter's night make the heavens one great glitter are inhabitable is an absurdity. Philosophers tell us that many of these worlds are too hot, or too cold, or too rarefied of atmosphere for residence. But, if not fit for human abode, they may be fit for beings different from and superior to ourselves. We are told that the world of Jupiter is changing until it is almost fit for creatures like the human race, and that Mars would do for the human family with a little change in the structure of the respiratory organs. But that there is a great world swung somewhere, vast beyond imagination, and that it is the headquarters of the universe and the metropolis of immensity, and has a population in numbers vast beyond all statistics and appointments of splendor beyond the capacity of canvas, or poem, or angel to describe, is as certain as the Bible is authentic. Perhaps some of the astronomers with their big telescopes have already caught a glimpse of it, not knowing what it is. We spell it with six letters, and pronounce it Heaven.

That is where Prince Jesus lived nineteen centuries ago. He was the King's son. It was the old homestead of eternity, and all its castles were as old as God. Not a frost had ever chilled the air. Not a tear had ever rolled down the cheek of one of its inhabitants. There had never been in it a headache, or a sideache, or a heartache. There had not been a funeral in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. There had never in all the land been worn a black veil, for there had never been anything to mourn over. The passage of millions of years had not wrinkled or crippled or bedimmed any of its citizens. All the people there were in a state of eternal adolescence. What floral and pomonic brightness! Gardens of perpetual bloom and orchards in unending fruitage. Had some spirit from another world entered and asked, "What is sin? what is bereavement? what is sorrow? what is death?" the brightest of the intelligences would have failed to give definition. Though to study the question there were silence in Heaven for half an hour. The Prince of whom I speak had honors, emoluments, acclamations, such as no other prince, celestial or terrestrial, ever enjoyed. As He passed the street, the inhabitants took off from their brows garlands of white lilies and threw them in the way. He never entered any of the temples without all the worshipers rising up and bowing in obeisance. In all the processions of the high days He was the one who evoked the loudest welcome. Sometimes on foot, walking in loving talk with the humblest of the land, but at other times He took chariot, and among the 20,000 that David spoke of His was the swiftest and most flaming; or, as when John described Him, He took white palfrey with what grace of foot, and arch of neck, and roll of mane, and gleam of eye is only dimly suggested in the Apocalypse. He was not like other princes, waiting for the father to die and then take the throne. When a few years ago an artist in Germany made a picture for the Royal gallery representing Emperor William on the throne, and the Crown Prince as having one foot on the step of the throne, Emperor William ordered the picture changed, and said: "Let the Prince keep his foot off the throne till I leave it."

Already enthroned was the Heavenly Prince, side by side with the Father. What a circle of dominion! What myrmidons of admirers! All the towers chimed the Prince's praises. Of all the inhabitants, from the center of the city, on over the hills and clear down to the beach, against which the ocean of immensity rolls its billows, the Prince was the acknowledged favorite. No wonder my text says that "he was rich." Set all the diamonds of the earth in one scepter, build all the palaces of the earth in one Alhambra, gather all the pearls of sea in one diadem, put all the values of the earth in one coin; the aggregate would not express his affluence. Yes, Paul was right. Solomon had in gold 6680,000,000 and in silver 21,020,000,377 sterling. But a greater than Solomon is here. Not the millionaire, but the quadrillionaire of Heaven. To describe his celestial surroundings the Bible uses all colors, gathering them in rainbow over the throne and setting them as gems in the temple window, and heisting twelve of them into a wall from stripped jasper at the base to transparent amethyst in the cupstone, while between are green of emerald, and snow of pearl, and blue of sapphire, and yellow of topaz, gray of hyacinth, and flame of jacinth. All the loveliness of landscape in foliage, and river, and rill, and all enchantment a pumarine, the sea of glass mingled with fire as when the sun sinks in the Mediterranean. All the thrill of music, instrumental and vocal, harps, trumpets, dulcimer, and organ. There stood the Prince, surrounded by those who had under their wings the velocity of millions of miles in a second, rich in love, rich in adoration, rich in power, rich in worship, rich in holiness, rich in God.

But one day there was a big disaster in a department of God's universe. A race fallen! A world in ruins! Our planet the scene of catastrophe! A globe swinging out into darkness, with mountains and seas and islands, an awful centrifugal of sin seeming to overpower the beautiful centripetal of righteousness, and from it a groan reached Heaven. Such a sound had never been heard there. Plenty of sweet sounds, but never an outcry of distress or an echo of agony. At that one groan the Prince rose from all the blissful circumstance and started for the outer gate and descended into the nigh of this world. Out of what a bright harbor into what rough sea! "Stay with us," cried angel after angel and potentate after potentate. "No," said the Prince, "I cannot stay; I must be off for that wreck of a world. I must stop that groan. I must hush that distress. I must fathom that way. I must redeem those nations. Farewell, thrones and temples, companions cherubic, seraphic, archangelic! Excuse this absence, for I will come back again, carrying on my shoulder a ransomed world. Till this is done I choose earthly scoff to heavenly acclamation, and a cattle pen to a king's palace, a frigid zone of earth to atmosphere of celestial radiance. I have no time to lose, for hark ye to the groan that grows mightier while I wait. Farewell, farewell."

"Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes He became poor."

Was there ever a contrast so overpowering as that between the noonday of Christ's celestial departure and the midnight of his earthly arrival? Sure enough, the angels were out that night in the sky, and especial meteor acted as escort, but all that was from other worlds, and not from this world. The earth made no demonstration of welcome. If one of the great princes of this world steps out at a depot cheers resound, and the bands play, and the flags wave. But for the arrival of this missionary Prince of the skies not a torch flared, not a trumpet blew, not a plume fluttered. All the music and the pomp were overhead. Our world opened for him nothing better than a barn door. The rajah of Cashmere sent to Victoria a bedstead of carved gold and a canopy that cost $750,000, but the world had for the Prince of Heaven and earth only a litter of straw. The crown jewels in the Tower of London amount to $15,000,000, but this member of eternal royalty had nowhere to lay his head. To know how poor He was, ask the camel drivers, ask the shepherds, ask Mary, ask the three wise men of the East who afterward came there, young Caspar and middle-aged Balthasar and old Melchior. To know how poor He was, examine all the records of real estate in all that oriental country, and see what vineyard, or what house, or what field He owned. Not one. Of what mortgage was He the mortgagee? Of what tenement was He the landlord? Of what lease was He the lessee? Who ever paid Him rent? Not owning the boat on which He sailed, or the beast on which He rode, or the pillow on which He slept. He had so little estate that in order to pay his tax He had to perform a miracle, putting the amount of the assessment in a fish's mouth and having it hauled ashore. And after His death the world rushed in to take an inventory of His goods, and the entire aggregate was the garments He had worn, sleeping in them by night and traveling in them by day, bearing on them the dust of the highway and the saturation of the sea. Paul in my text did not go far from hitting the mark, did he, when he said of the missionary Prince: "For your sakes He became poor?"

The world could have treated Him better if it had chosen. It had all the means for making His earthly condition comfortable. Only a few years before when Pompey, the general, arrived at Brindisi he was greeted with arches and a costly column, which celebrated the 12,000,000 people whom he had killed or conquered, and he was allowed to wear his triumphal robes in the Senate. The world had applause for imperial butchers, but buffetings for the Prince of Peace. Plenty of golden chalices for the favored to drink out of, but our Prince must put His lips to the bucket of the well by the roadside after He had begged for a drink. Poor! Born in another man's barn and eating at another man's table, and cruising the lake in another man's fishing smack, and buried in another man's mausoleum. Four inspired authors wrote of His biography, and innumerable lives of Christ have been published, but He composed His autobiography in a most compressed way. He said: "I have trodden the wine press alone." Poor in the estimation of nearly all the prosperous classes. They called Him Sabbath breaker, wine bibber, traitor, blasphemer, and ransacker of the dictionary of opprobrium from lid to lid to express their detestation. I can think now of only two well-to-do men who responded His cause—Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimathea. His friends for the most part were people who, in that climate where ophthalmia or inflammation of the eyeball sweeps ever and anon as a scourge, had become blind, sick people who were anxious to get well, and troubled people in whose family there was some one dead or dying. If He had a purse at all it was empty, or we would have heard what was done with the contents at the post-mortem. Poor? The pigeon in the dove cote, the rabbit in its burrow, the silk worm in its cocoon, the bee in its hive, is better provided for, better off, better sheltered. Aye, the brute creation has a home on earth, which Christ has not.

If on windy days the raven
Garbol like a dancing skiff,
Not the less he loves his haven
On the bosom of the cliff.
If almost with eagle pinion
O'er the Alps the chamois roams,
Yet he has some small dominion
Which no doubt he calls his home.

But the Crown Prince of all heavenly dominion has less than the raven, less than the chamois, for He was homeless. Aye, in the history of the universe there is no other instance of such coming down. Who can count the miles from the top of the throne to the bottom of the cross? Cleopatra, giving a banquet to Antony, took a pearl worth $800,000 and dissolved it in vinegar and swallowed it. But when our Prince, according to the evangelist, in His last hours took the vinegar, in it had been dissolved all the pearls of his heavenly royalty. Down until there was no other depth for Him to touch, troubled until there was no other harassment to suffer, poor until there was no other pauperism to torture. Billions of dollars spent in wars to destroy men, who will furnish the statistics of the value of that precious blood that was shed to save us? "Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich yet for your sakes he became poor."

Only those who study this text in two places can fully reach its power—the Holy Land of Asia Minor and the holy land of Heaven. How I should like some day to take a drink out of Jacob's well, and take a sail on Galilee, and read the Sermon on the Mount while standing on Olivet, and see the wilderness where Christ was tempted, and be some afternoon on Calvary at about 3 o'clock, the hour at which closed the crucifixion, and sit under the sycamores and by the side of the brooks, and think and dream and pray about the poverty of Him who came our souls to save. But you and I will probably be denied that, and so here, in another continent and in another hemisphere, and in scenes as different as possible, we recount as well we may how poor our heavenly Prince became. And in the other holy land above we may all study the riches that He left behind when He started for earthly expedition. Come, let us bargain to meet each other at the door of the Father's mansion, or on the bank of the river just where it rolls from under the throne, or at the outside gate. Jesus got the contrast by exchanging that world for this; we will get it by exchanging this world for that. There and then you will understand more of the wonders of the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ who, "though He was rich, yet for your sakes became poor."

Yes, grace, free grace, sovereign grace, omnipotent grace. Among the thousands of words of the language there is no more queenly word. It means free and unmerited kindness. My text has no monopoly of the word. One hundred and twenty-nine times does the Bible eulogize grace. It is a door swung wide open to let into the pardon of God all the millions who choose to enter it.

John Newton sang of it when he wrote:
Amazing grace, how sweet the sound!
That saved a wretch like me!

Philip Doddridge put it into an hymnology when he wrote:

Grace! 'tis a charming sound,
Harmonious to the ear;
Heaven with the echo shall resound,
And all the world shall hear.

One of John Bunyan's great books is entitled "Abounding Grace." "It is all of grace that I am saved" has been on the lips of hundreds of dying Christians. The boy Sammy was right when, being examined for admission into church membership, he was asked: "Whose work was your salvation?" and he answered: "Part mine and part God's." Then the examiner asked: "What part did you do, Sammy?" and the answer was: "I opposed God all I could, and He did the rest!" Oh, the height of it, the depth of it, the length of it, the breadth of it, the grace of God. Mr. Fletcher having written a pamphlet that pleased the King, the King offered to compensate him, and Fletcher answered: "There is only one thing I want, and that is more grace." Yes, my blood-bought hearers, grace to live by and grace to die by. Grace that saved the publican, that saved Lydia, that saved the dying thief, that saved the jailer, that saved me. But the riches of that grace will not be fully understood until Heaven breaks in upon the soul. An old Scotchman, who had been a soldier in one of the European wars, was sick and dying in one of our American hospitals. His one desire was to see Scotland and his old home, and once again walk the heather of the Highlands, and hear the bagpipes of the Scotch regiments. The night that the old Scotch soldier died a young man, somewhat reckless but kind-hearted, got a company of musicians to come and play under the old soldier's window, and among the instruments there was a bagpipe. The instant that the musicians began the dying old man in delirium said: "What's that? what's that? Why, it's the regiments coming home. That's the tune; yes, that's the tune. Thank God, I have got home once more!" "Bonny Scotland and Bonny Doon" were the last words he uttered as he passed up to the highlands of the better country. And there are here to-day hundreds homesick for Heaven; so, because you have so many bereavements, some because you have so many temptations, some because you have so many ailments; homesick, very homesick, for the fatherland of Heaven, and the music that you want to hear now is the song of free grace, and the music you want to hear when you die is free grace, and forever before the throne of God you will sing of the "grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, who, though He was rich, for your sakes became poor."

Yes, yes; for your sakes! It was not of pleasure excursion that He came, for it was all pain. It was not of astronomical exploration, for He knew this world as well before He alighted as afterward. It was not because He was compelled to come, for He volunteered. It was not because it was easy, for He knew that it would be thorn and spike and hunger, and thirst, and vociferation of angry mobs. "For your sakes! Wipe away your tears. To forgive your wrongdoing, to companionship your loneliness, to soothe your sorrows, to sit with you by the new-made grave, to bind up your wounds in the ugly battle with the world and bring you home at last, kindling up the mists that fall on your dying vision with the sunlight of a glorious morn. For your sakes! No, I will change that. Paul will not care, and Christ will not care if I change it, for I must get into the blessedness of the text myself, and so I say: "For our sakes!" For we all have our temptations, and bereavements, and conflicts. For our sakes! We who deserve for our sins to be expatriated into a world as much poorer than this earth was poorer than heaven. For our sakes!

But what a fruitful coming down to take us gloriously up! When Artaxerxes was hunting Tiribazus, who was attending him, showed the king a rent in his garment. The king said: "How shall I mend it?" "By giving it to me," said Tiribazus. Then the king gave him the robe, but commanded him never to wear it as it would be inappropriate. See the startling and comforting fact, while our Prince throws off the habit He not only allows us to wear it, but commands us to wear it, and it will become us well, and for the over-ties of our spiritual state we may put on the splendor of heavenly reglement. For our sakes! Oh, the personality of this religion! Not an abstraction, not an arch under which we walk to behold elaborate masonry, not an ice castle like that which Empress Elizabeth, of Russia, over 100 years ago ordered constructed, winter with its trowel of crystal cementing the huge block that had been quarried from the frozen rivers of the north, but a father's house with a wide hearth crackling a hearty welcome. A religion of warmth and inspiration, and light, and cheer, something we can take into our hearts, and homes, and business, recreations, and joys, and sorrows. Not an unmanageable gift like the galley presented to Ptolemy, which required 4,000 men to row, and its draught of water was so great that it could not come near the shore, but something you can run up any stream of annoyance, however shallow. Enrichment now, enrichment forever!

Right about face! for you are going in the wrong direction. While you are in a favorable mood for it, enter into life. Here and just now decide everything that makes for peace and heaven. Agassiz says that he has stood at one place in the Alps where he could throw a chip into the water in one direction, and it would roll on into the German Ocean, or he could throw a chip into the water in another direction, and it would reach the Black Sea by the Danube, or he could throw a chip in another direction, and it would enter the Mediterranean by the Rhone. How far apart the Mediterranean, and the Black Sea, and the German Ocean? Standing to-day on this Alps of Gospel privilege, you can project your soul into right currents, and it will roll on into the ocean of life, or project it in the wrong direction, and it will roll into the sea of death. But how far apart the two distances! May God help us to appreciate more and more the momentous meaning of our text! The seven wise men of Greece were chiefly known each for one aphorism; Solon for the saying: "Know thyself;" Periander for the saying: "Nothing is impossible to industry;" Chilo for the saying: "Consider the end;" Thales for the saying: "Suretyship is the precursor of ruin." And Paul, distinguished for a thousand utterances, might well afford to be memorable for the saying: "You know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though He was rich, yet for your sakes became poor, that ye through His poverty might be rich."

He that spareth the rod catcheth no fish.

THE SWORD.

Something About the Blades of All Ages and Nations.

[New Orleans, Picayune.]

For thousands of years and until the invention of gunpowder the sword was the chief weapon used in battle. A collection of the swords of all ages and all nations would be of extreme interest. It would embrace the stone swords of the American aborigines, pointed and double edged, twenty-two inches long in the blade, which was with marvelous skill wrought from a flint stone, and of which, one of the most magnificent specimens extant is in the fine private museum of Dr. Joseph Jones, of this city. There would be also the bronze sword of the early Greeks and of the Teutonic races; the short, stout sword of the Romans, with its double-edged blade nineteen inches long of steel tempered by Celtiberian smiths, carried to Italy from the Spanish peninsula; prominent would be the long two-handed sword of England in the time of Richard the Lion, with blades nearly five feet long, the weapon being slung to the back and drawn over the left shoulder. The sword of Richard naturally suggests the scimitar of Saladin with its Damascus blade curved like the crescent it so ably fought for. Such a collection would not be complete without the sword of the South Sea Islander, made of wood, its edge set with shark's teeth or splinters of obsidian in serrated rows, terribly formidable when used upon the naked body of a foe.

The sword represents so much war, history, and romance that it brings up an endless array of interesting and imposing events. All the early people used a shield to repel attacks with the sword, but after the Middle Ages the art of fencing, probably derived from India, was developed to such a degree that the shield could be dispensed with, and the sword became both sword and shield. All the readers of the incomparable romances of Alexander Dumas will remember the phenomenal fencing of the celebrated guardsmen.

The Orientals are the only people who specially sharpen their swords. Their curved blades, made as keen as razors, are terribly formidable to men not protected by steel armor. In the celebrated trial of skill between the English King and the Saracen Sultan, as related by the immortal Walter Scott, the English champion by main force cleft helmets and chipped through at one blow an iron mare, while the Saracen, with his keen blade, cut through shreds of silk gauze as they floated through the air. In regard to the use of sharp blades for weapons, it is possible that the partiality of the American negro for a razor is due to the presence of the Oriental passion for keen-bladed swords. It has also been suggested in this connection that the razor, except where special statutes on the subject exist, not being considered a weapon, could be carried without suspicion or hindrance, hence its use by the negro. A correspondent from India, writing to the English Mechanic on the wonderful sword practice with sharp blades, says:

"The quiet dweller in Europe will scarcely believe the prodigies performed in sword-cutting by these coarse, ill-looking bits of curved metal, costing frequently no more than 1s 6d to 2s. I had shot numerous wild beasts when I was told by an expert that my hunting education was very deficient, as I could not handle a scimitar to stop my game. I was told to exercise continually on a pillar of soft clay, and thus acquire the drawing cut at the proper part of the blade; then on a pillar loosely stuffed with cotton; then on a newly-killed wildcat or jackal, kneaded previous to the practice by the feet of a heavy man till the carcass became a loose, soft mass; then on a great pond carp, a fish clad with heavy, horny scales, like elastic mail—considered as a feat to test man and sword. My first trial at this experiment resulted in a triple fracture of the good blade, sundry scales flying in the air, uncut, only dislodged; then the artistic tour de force at paper cones placed on a table—all manner of strange and difficult tasks, which being only ornamental, I eventually forsook for the useful and more easy decapitation of fierce quadrupeds, beginning with a wounded wild hog of full growth, and on essaying the sloping stroke behind the ears, sweeping off the head neatly, that important part dropping between the forefeet. Not long before I had seen a bold young Ghooraka dismount from his elephant, leaving it standing to await his return, and follow on foot alone an immense bear he had wounded with his rifle. On nearing the powerful brute, it champed its foamy tusk to charge. He drew his kokre (or Nepalese sword), and as it sprang at him the blade was buried across piggy's back, all but severing him in two parts."

The sword in modern warfare is getting to be a mere badge of office, and a proposition is said some time ago to have been made to strip the infantry officer in the French army of his sword and give him something to shoot with. The manufacture of swords all over the world is represented to have declined visibly, and it is stated that there is not in the United States to-day a single establishment where sword blades are made, unless it may be that sabres for the cavalry are manufactured in the United States armory at Springfield, Mass.

What Shall We Eat?

This is the age of adulteration. Articles of food in particular are tampered with in a most heart-rending, or rather stomach-rending, manner.

The modes of adulterating butter, for instance, are so numerous that there is reason to believe that the only honest butter is the goat. In these oleomargarine days, no one knows on which side the bread is buttered.

Sugar is shamefully adulterated. Occasionally sugar goes up so high as to produce a slight increase in the price of sand.

Doubtless some of our readers have heard or read of milk being adulterated. Not long since a milkman drank some of his own milk, and according to the autopsy his death was caused by water on the brain.

There are several modes of deceiving the public with coffee. One is to substitute peas. There are a great many p's in pepper, but not half as many as there are in coffee.

Pure Italian olive oil consumed in the United States is manufactured in Chicago, the essential ingredients being lard, which, it is fair to presume, has been previously adulterated.

Under the circumstances we are constrained to believe that there is some truth in the following beautiful Arabian legend:

THE WISE FLY.

Once upon a time several flies flew into a kitchen through a window. They were looking for something nice to eat, but they were not particular. They were willing to put up with anything they could find.

The first fly took a sip at some dough which the cook had left in the pan. It tasted very nice, but in a short time the insect was racked with a dreadful pain in his abdomen, and in a short time he breathed his last in great agony. His bowels could not stand the alum with which the flour had been carefully adulterated.

The second fly took a sip at some coffee drugs, and immediately his head began to swim, and he experienced a sensation of nausea. After a few fearful contortions, the fly held up his legs, and was relieved from his sufferings by death. Oxide of iron, with which the coffee was adulterated, was more than the fly constitution could stand.

The third fly tried the syrup and dropped dead into the pitcher. Unless a fly is provided with Bessemer steel bowels he should never inhale sulphuric acid. It's not healthy.

The fourth fly had a massive, sixty-five-ounce brain. He had studied the nature of his fellow-insect, man, and was up to his tricks and devices. Noticing a box of Rough on Flies, which was labeled "Poison," he flew gayly to it, and fed voraciously on its contents. The fly never experienced evil effects, for like everything else, the fly poison was adulterated.—Texas Siftings.

Ingenuity of a Dog.

It is about as difficult for a dog to get a really satisfactory scratch at his back as it is for a one-armed man to rub his elbow, but a Hartford (Conn.) dog does it. In front of his master's house is an old stone hitching post, which time and weather have made rough and scaly. Proceeding to this the dog sits down, throws himself backwards till he is leaning against this, and then proceeds to rub his back as cleverly as a "long-shorn" reman or one of the ancient Scots who used to bless the Duke of Argyll.—Chicago News.

HARVEST EXCURSIONS.

The Corn Palace at Sioux City.

ARE YOU GOING WEST?

This question applies to everybody. Some will say yes, while others will answer, "Not if we know ourselves; no West in ours." Well, perhaps not. But time works wonders, and one knows what a day may bring forth; therefore those who have no idea of going West just at present should keep posted a little, for there is no telling how soon the "Western fever" may strike them, and if it does their departure will be as sudden as that of a bank cashier who has got on the wrong side of the wheat market. So we say keep posted just a little, and particularly as to the best and safest road over which to make a Western trip.

From Chicago there are numerous well-equipped railways that branch out to nearly every section of the great West, none of which are more prominent than the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul. For years this road has been noted for its enterprise in improving its train service and its efforts to provide comfort, convenience, and safety for the traveling public. This is a fact which is appreciated by those who are obliged to spend much of their time in a passenger coach or a sleeping car. It is a pleasure to travel on any division of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, for a more courteous and obliging corps of conductors and subordinates cannot be found than is in charge of the numerous trains of this popular railway system.

Trains are leaving Chicago over this line for different points in the West almost hourly. One of the new and popular trains recently added to its service is that which leaves Chicago every day at 7:30 p. m. and arrives at St. Paul the next morning at 9:30 o'clock, and at Minneapolis only thirty-five minutes later. This train is known as the "business man's favorite," because he can leave Chicago after business hours and arrive in St. Paul the next morning before business begins.

Another very popular train upon this road is the Sioux City short line. Leaving Chicago at noon daily, passengers arrive in Sioux City shortly after 9 o'clock the next morning, making close connections with trains for Northern and Southern Dakota. Elegant dining-cars are run upon this train, upon which dinner, supper, and breakfast are served in a style that traveling men say is ahead of any other road.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway offers superior advantages to all who contemplate a Western trip. Its various lines traverse Northern Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and Dakota to a greater extent than any other road. Its equipment is first-class in every respect, and travelers who patronize it speak in the highest terms of it.

Parties who propose to attend the great "Corn Palace" festivities, which are to be held at Sioux City, Iowa, from October 3 to October 8, inclusive, should not fail to buy their tickets over the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul.

The next Harvest Excursion over this favorite road will leave Chicago October 11. Tickets for this Excursion will be sold at half rates to points in Minnesota, Dakota, and Northern Iowa. For further particulars address A. V. H. Carpenter, General Passenger Agent, Milwaukee, Wis., or F. A. Miller, Assistant General Passenger Agent, 61 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

A Fertile Subject.

"Bright Eyes," the eloquent Indian advocate, will lecture this season on the wrongs on the Indians. Good subject; the Indian is full of 'em; he seems to be wrong half the time, and the other half he is waiting for the grass to get green so that he may go wrong again. His wrongs keep this peaceful and Christian land in such a perennial turmoil that we hardly know whether it is because we have the Indian wrongs or the wrong Indians.—Burdette.

It's Always the Way.

"Didn't I tell you so?" said a gentleman to an acquaintance whom he chanced to meet on the street; "it's always the way." "What's always the way?" inquired a mutual friend of the two men, who happened along just then. "Why, just this," replied the first speaker; "you see Smith, here, the last time I met him he had one of the worst coughs you ever heard. He complained of a loss of appetite, of night-sweats, of low spirits and other unmistakable premonitory symptoms of consumption. I told him to get a supply of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery at once. He did so, and look at him now! Did you ever see a healthier-looking man? The 'Discovery' has snatched thousands from consumptives' graves. I knew it would cure Smith. It's always the way."

There is said to be a great similarity between a vain young lady and a confirmed drunkard, in that neither of them can ever get enough of the glass.

A Great Offer.

We call attention of our lady readers to the handsome present that is being prepared for them. By special arrangement with Demorest's Monthly, the Greatest of all Family Magazines, we will print in our next issue an OLDER, entitling every one of our readers to a pattern of this handsome jacket (free). Look out for it, for it is worth 25 cents.

While Demorest's is not a Fashion Magazine, many suppose it to be, because its Fashion Department, like all its other departments, is so perfect.

Don't subscribe for another magazine for next year before sending for this pattern, for the pattern's descriptive envelope will contain full information about Demorest's Monthly, which is published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York.

The Frazer Axle Grease is the very best. A trial will prove we are right.

Tired All Over

Is the expression a lady used in describing her condition before using Hood's Sarsaparilla. This preparation is wonderfully adapted for weakened or low state of the system. It quickly tones the whole body, gives purity and vitality to the blood, and clears and freshens the mind. Take it now if you feel "tired all over."

"Feeling languid and dizzy, having no appetite and no ambition to work, I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, with the best results. As a health invigorator and medicine for general debility I think it superior to anything else." A. A. RIKER, Albany Street, Utica, N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists, $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. F. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficent influence of

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health.

It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young.

As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

FOR ALL DISORDERS OF THE Stomach, Liver and Bowels TAKE PACIFIC LIVER PILLS

STRICTLY VEGETABLE.

Cure Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Piles, Sick Headache, Liver Complaints, Loss of Appetite, Biliousness, Nervousness, Jaundice, etc. For Sale by all Druggists. Price, 25 Cents. PACIFIC MANUFACTURING CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

322 PANTS

HANDSOME, STYLISH PANTS

made to order in first-class style. Perfect fit guaranteed or money refunded.

For samples of cloth and 4 foot tape measure (worth 10c.) send 3c. stamps. Circulars Free.

Established 1877.

322 SHOES

OUR FULL SEAMLESS SHOES

beat the world. Made in sizes and styles to please. Perfect fit guaranteed. We refer to any Bank, Express Co., or leading business house in this city.

THE HUNTER CINCINNATI, O. MFG CO.

FLY'S CREAM BALM CURES COLIC, HEADACHE, BRUISES, BURNS, SORE THROAT, RHEUMATISM, AND ALL PAINFUL AFFECTIONS. PRICE 25 CENTS. BOTTLED BY J. C. HUNTER, CINCINNATI, O.

I found it a specific for Hay Fever. For ten years I have been a great sufferer from August 9th till frost. Fly's Cream Balm is the only preventive I have ever found. Hay Fever sufferers should know of its efficacy.—Frank B. Ainsworth, Publisher, Indianapolis, Ind.

Apply Balm into each nostril.

SURE CURE DISCOVERED FOR CATARRH

Lauderbach's German Catarrh Remedy. Price $1. Samples free at Druggists. Mailed for 10c. in stamps. THOUSANDS CURED since the discovery of this method of treatment. Every mail brings letters from grateful persons CURED. E. A. LAUDERBACH & CO., Newark, N. J., U.S.A.

FOR SALE CHEAP!

One of Payne & Son's automatic ten-horse power engines. It has only been used about two years, and is in every respect as good as the day it came out of the shop. This engine is equal to twenty-horse power if required of it. Address, FORT WAYNE NEWS-PAPEER UNION, 55 & 57 Columbia St., Fort Wayne, Ind.

Pico's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

HOME STUDY. Bookkeeping, Business Forms, Penmanship, Arithmetic, Short-hand, etc., thoroughly taught by mail. Circulars free. BRYANT'S BUSINESS COLLEGE, Buffalo, N.Y.

OPIMUM Habit Cured call factory before any pay. Prof. J. B. BARTON, 25th Ward, Cincinnati, O.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
One Year, in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months ..... 50
Three Months ..... 25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe as second-class matter.

FRIDAY OCTOBER 7, 1887.

Public sentiment is growing more and more in favor of prohibition.

E. Zimmerman of Auburn, was in town a short time on Tuesday evening.

President and Mrs. Cleveland are in Chicago this week. They will not visit St. Joe this fall.

It is said that the present trip of President Cleveland is 4,436 miles long and will cost $12,000.

E. L. Milliman died at Hoytsville, Ohio, and was buried in the Colburn town cemetery on Wednesday.

The sale of the Hart and Reed Hitches will take place at St. Joe, on Wednesday, Oct. 19th, 1887.

Seven thousand dollars is the modest amount asked for in settlement of the drive well royalty in this county.

People who can't suit themselves in St. Joe this fall, ought not to be suited, for the town is jam-full of new goods.

M. T. Bishop is having a fine veranda built on the front part of his residence, which adds much to the looks of it.

Gen. Baker received a letter from Frank Reynolds this week. He is now located at Tiffin, and is dealing in produce and provisions.

Deputy Surveyor Williams was in town Wednesday, and staked off the ground recently purchased by Wash Woodcock from Wm. Vanzile.

To extinguish kerosene flames, if no cloth is at hand, throw flour on the flames. Flour rapidly absorbs the flame and deadens the flames.

Case & Olds desire to call the attention of the lady readers of the News to their Two Dollar Fine Kid Shoes. They are the best shoe for the money ever offered in this market. Drop in and see them.

Mrs. Matilda Widney left Wednesday for the south, where she will spend the winter with her son Charles. Mrs. Widney is an active worker in Sunday school and church work, and she will be greatly missed from her accustomed place.

John Widney brought us in a potato this week, twelve inches long with two or three small potatoes attached. Russ Coburn was to be put down in that kind of a way, and so brought in one that in this man in good shape, with head, ears, feet &c. Who's next, and what?

DON'T EXPERIMENT—You cannot afford to waste time in experimenting when your lungs are in danger. Consumption always seems, at first only a cold. Do not permit any dealer to impose upon you with some cheap imitation of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, but be sure you get the genuine. Because he can make more profit he may tell you he has something just as good, or just the same. Don't be deceived, but insist upon getting Dr. King's New Discovery, which is guaranteed to give relief in all Throat, Lung and Chest affection. Trial bottles free at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store. Large Bottles $1.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

PIGEON'S RETREAT.

Billy Farmer is working for Billy Shilling.

Louis Lake will move in the near future to Michigan.

Mrs. Arnold, of Leo, is spending the week with her daughter Mrs. Timmerman.

Pigeon's Retreat was represented on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the Waterloo Fair.

Some small Spencervillians have been scouring the woods in this neighborhood in search of nuts.

The Shilling Bros. entertained the threshers four days last week. They threshed 1900 bushels of grain.

Gandy & Nickey's teamsters are drawing the ash logs from the farm purchased of Daniel Shilling of Ohio, to Concord, to be conveyed by rail from that place to Auburn.

A Mr. Fultz was elected at the school meeting on Saturday evening, to teach the winter term of school at this place; but as he has been already engaged to teach another school the matter will be left in the hands of the trustee.

COBURN TOWN.

A. B. Coburn spent Sunday in Hicksville.

Two insurance agents, both from Butler called on us one day last week.

Uncle John Engle, Dr. Sheffer and wife, from St. Joe, were at church at the corners last Sunday.

Billy Wade has vacated Al Monroe's house and moved into Free Abels house south of the corners.

Charley Coburn is now in a position to count the flies on the ceiling, cause, lame back. War Coburn is at work for him during his lay up.

The viewers took another look at the much contested road from Byron Woodcock's to B. A. Hadsell's. They were all pretty good looking men, so I think we are sure of the road.

Jake Baker has had another well put down on his place. He dug about thirty feet in order to get a fair start, and then got Joe Shell and Cam Hadsell to drive the rest of the way. They went down about fifty-five feet, and now he has a splendid well.

At a school meeting held last Saturday evening, J. M. Milliman was re-elected director, and John Simanton furnished the wood for another year at one dollar per cord, they also voted to have a winter term of four months, and a spring term the balance of the time.

Strange how forgetful some young men are, but then a baby's head is a rather unusual thing for a young man to buy, and it is not so very strange after all that he should forget what he went after, but it is rather strange that it should take him until two o'clock in the morning before he could make up his mind to come without it.

NEWVILLE.

Harry Smith has returned home from his visit at Cleveland.

Moody & Fusselman are doing quite a lively stock business this fall.

Rev. Barr preached in the Disciple church last Sunday morning and evening.

There is more attraction at the bend on Sunday than any other day of the week.

There has been some very nice fish caught in the river lately by Bro. Thomas and others.

We will state for the benefit of our readers that Mike Long was not seen on our streets Sunday.

EXAMINE THE LARGEST, FINEST,

AND MOST COMPLETE LINE OF

Men's, Ladies', Misses' & Children's FINE SHOES.

Ever exhibited in St. Joe. They comprise the most popular brands such as Reed, Weaver, Okey & Son, &c. The buttons will be reset on all shoes purchased of us, with Wilkin's patent fasteners. Call and see

J. D. LEIGHTY, ST. JOE.

Mrs. Bailey, of Cleveland, is visiting with friends at this place.

Mr. Parlingington moves this week east of Butler and Joe Hall moves in the house vacated by him.

Wonder why Frank Felt didn't go in when he took his girl home Saturday evening? Frank is quite a dude.

Uncle George Weeks is boss at the post office, for he neither allows loafing in the office nor on the steps in front of the office.

Father Sheffield and Joe Rhodes were seen conversing very closely Sunday evening; we think the natives want to be on the look out for them.

Clara and Cora Meeks, her sons, on from Bryon, visiting them, and Frank Sagar appears to be the shining light in the young lady's eyes.

Dalton Charley Heasley, going to finish husking this week. Dal is farming on farm, Chilson's second growth farm north of town.

Trustee Chiesman made ample provision to carry all the school children to the Waterloo Fair but owing to the rain the little folks were badly disappointed.

It is too bad to think that George Bartlett had to walk home from the fair, when his girl came in with a nice rig, the best that Butler can afford. Guess George was a little off.

Yank Linton thinks he has a good bell; he tried to call a deaf and dumb man to the door to sell him some meat, and as he didn't come out, Yank moved on and says he is not at home. Yank is a hustler.

The celebrated steed known as Lady Paulding, formerly owned by the Mutter Bros., but now owned by O. Fusselman, departed this life Oct. 2nd, funeral the 3rd. Young Fusselman squandered the large sum of fifty cents for her but we think he will get his money back if he sells the hide and bones, for it won't take long for the hide to decay, as there was not much on the frame.

J. H. CONRAD.

Wash morning is sure to mean and of course now and then your boiler will fly out and you will be compelled to get a new one. In this case call on J. H. Conrad, St. Joe, and get one of those splendid one dollar boilers.

J. H. CONRAD.

Baltimore, Ohio E. R.

Trains Leave St. Joe as follows.

WEST BOUND.

No. 9 Mail and Express 11:05 A. M.
17 Accommodation 1:15 P. M.
3 Chicago Express 10:42 P. M.
35 Local Freight 3:42 P. M.

EAST BOUND.

No. 10 Express and Mail 2:08 P. M.
16 Accommodation 10:28 A. M.
4 Morning Express 4:55 A. M.
34 Local Freight 7:59 A. M.

W. I. McKee, Agent.

ST. JOE MARKETS.

CORRESPONDENT FRIDAY.

Wheat	70 cts.
Oats	26 cts.
Corn	35 cts.
Butter	15 cts.
Eggs	15 cts.
Hay	3 1/2 cts.
Straw	10 cts.
Potatoes	70 cts.

New Goods Arriving Daily!

CALL ON US FOR

BIG BARGAINS.

FULL LINE OF

LADIES CLOAKS AND WRAPS.

FINE STOCK OF CLOTHING ON HAND.
HEATING & COOK STOVES A SPECIALTY.

S. & F. BARNEY, ST. JOE, IND.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WELLS, PUBLISHERS.

EVENTS OF A WEEK.

THE OLD WORLD.

—The Moscow Gazette, speaking of the plan of dividing influence in the Balkans between Austria and Russia, says that Russia will never relinquish her present position.

—The Vatican is greatly disturbed by a visitation of cholera, of which an officer of the Pontifical guard is the victim. Every precaution will be taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

—It is semi-officially announced that M. Flourens, French Minister of Foreign Affairs, in conversing with Count von Munster, the German Ambassador, on the subject of the frontier shooting incident, pointed out, first, that not a single stain of blood had been found on German soil; second, that Kaufmann, after firing, fled, showing that he was conscious of having committed an illegal act. The French official inquiry, therefore, argued Flourens, proved that the German agent knowingly committed an offense. Count von Munster replied that as the German inquiry had not been concluded he could give no pledge as to what would be done. The French Government will insist upon the punishment of Kaufmann, the question of indemnity being of secondary importance. The Procurator of Nancy will meet the German law officers at the scene of the incident for the purpose of making a joint examination. M. Lebigne, a banker at Nancy, who is the lessee of the ground where the shooting occurred, and who was one of the party of sportsmen, says the party did not cross the frontier line. "After the shooting," he says, "we found blood-pools on French soil. I requested a sergeant of gendarmes to mark a tree at the spot. I swear that neither challenge nor cry was addressed to us. Had the Germans uttered a sound we must have heard them."

—A Russian adventuress known by the nickname of "The Golden Hand" has been condemned by the tribunal of Moscow to transportation for life. This extraordinary woman has been married no less than sixteen times and is described as being remarkably handsome. Her husbands belonged to all nationalities and creeds. She ran away from two in France and three in Germany, carrying off as much of their property as she could lay her hands on. She was in Vienna in 1878 under an assumed name. She robbed her different husbands altogether of more than 300,000 rubles. When traveling she invariably made dupes of them or disappeared with their money, jewels, and even their watches.

PERSONAL NOTES.

—An anonymous citizen of St. Louis has contributed $10,000 to the fund of a million dollars with which the Presbyterians propose to endow their board of relief for ministers' widows and orphans. It is expected that the fund will be completed at the centennial meeting of the Presbyterian general assembly, in Philadelphia next year.

—The President's train arrived at Columbus, Ohio, at 4:30 a. m., on Saturday, and remained only long enough to change engines. About one thousand persons were at the depot, but as the party were asleep no demonstration was made. At Richmond, Ind., after daylight, the President went out on the platform and shook hands with all who could get to him during the five minutes' stop. At Indianapolis the drizzling rain ceased, and the sun shone out as the procession moved from the depot to the State House through streets thronged with people and gayly decorated. At the State House a stand had been erected, to which the President was conducted, and a speech of welcome was made by Governor Gray. The President responded, complimenting the State of Indiana and its capital, and paying a handsome tribute to the memory of Vice President Hendricks. At Terre Haute, Ind., the President remarked that he has had some acquaintance with the most widely-known product of that region, the "Tall Sycamore of the Wabash," and has made up his mind that the Sycamore "has height enough and size enough for any locality or for any purpose."

—Thomas A. Armstrong, one of the most prominent labor leaders in the United States, died at Pittsburgh, after a lingering illness. He was editor of the Labor Tribune of that city, a prominent member of the Grand Army, and was identified with nearly all of the secret labor organizations of the country. Six years ago he was the candidate of the Greenback-Labor party for Governor of the State, and received a very large vote. Last year he was urged by his party to again head their State ticket, but he declined on account of ill-health. He was about 48 years of age. His death was indirectly caused by a wound received during the war.

—August Stoeper, a well-known musician in New York and London, died in the former city, recently, in the arms of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Miller, known in the theatrical profession as Miss Bijou Heron.

POLITICAL POINTS.

—Memphis (Tenn.) dispatch: "An election was held in this State on the question of the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution prohibiting the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors. Returns so far received indicate that the amendment was defeated by a very small majority. The anti-prohibitionists carried this city by a majority of 4,232 out of a total vote of 9,010. Country districts' returns are coming in slowly, but Shelby County will give about 6,000 majority against the amendment. Women worked for the amendment at all the voting precincts in the city. Dispatches from sections of the State representing 100,000 votes out of a total of 250,000 give a majority of about 5,000 against the amendment. The returns are a complete surprise and upset all conjectures, making the result doubtful, with the chances in favor of the defeat of the amendment. Both parties claim a victory."

—The anti-prohibitionists of Florida have just discovered that the "pros" are too sharp for them, and that the State will soon be irrevocably a dry State without a State vote having been taken on the issue. The last Legislature allowed the "pros" to frame a local option law. By its construction, if certain districts in a county go "dry," but the county as a whole goes wet, these dry districts remain so. On the contrary, if a majority of the districts of a county go "dry" the wet districts cannot remain so, but the whole county is declared dry, and the law is so enforced that the "pros" always win and never lose. They have carried half the State already.

—Latest returns indicate that the majority against prohibition in Tennessee will be between 12,000 and 20,000. The vote exceeds that cast at the last gubernatorial election.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL.

—Chipman & Holt, extensive coal dealers of Philadelphia, Pa., have failed, the disaster being due to the assignments of Charles E. Pennock & Co. and Robert Hare Powell & Co. The assets are $288,000, and the liabilities $217,000.

—A receiver has taken charge of the business of Colby, Duncan & Co., piano manufacturers at New York, whose liabilities are said to be about $175,000.

—Assignments have been made by Thomas Flourney, Jr., tobaccoist, at Richmond, Va., and by Bessette, Lefort & Co., of Montreal. The latter owe $60,000, while Flourney's liabilities are placed at $50,000.

—F. C. Davenport, dealer in metals at Boston, Mass., has made an assignment, his embarrassment being caused by the failure of E. S. Wheeler & Co., of New Haven. Davenport's liabilities are figured at $100,000.

—Small change is only coined at the Philadelphia mint. Last year the coinage of cents amounted to $391,147; that of "nickels" to $552,573, and of dimes to $1,095,273.50. Now it is reported that the mint cannot turn out the coins fast enough, the orders being over $70,000 ahead.

—A treaty of peace has been made between the employing and employed glassmakers at Pittsburgh. The workmen have agreed to accept a 5 per cent. advance in wages instead of the 10 per cent. demanded. About seven thousand men have been idle since the summer vacation in June, awaiting the adjustment of this matter. The idle factories throughout the West will now, it is expected, resume work.

FIRES AND ACCIDENTS.

—A panic occurred in Harris' Theater, Cincinnati, at the performance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" which came near causing a serious loss of life. The house was crowded, and just as little Eva was dying in the last act a steam roller at work in the neighborhood blew its whistle, producing a startlingly loud noise. Some one in the gallery shouted "Fire," and at once the crowd started down stairs. It happened that two policemen were in the house. They threw themselves between the panic-stricken crowd and the door and succeeded in pacifying them. During the excitement fifteen women fainted and were carried into the street.

—Three men and two boys were suffocated and thirteen others were overcome with gas in the Boat colliery, at Ashland, Pa. A pillar gave way, bringing with it a large amount of gas, which suffocated the workmen and rendered escape impossible to those in that gangway. The men in the neighboring breast heard the tremendous rush of air and escaped by fleeing to the bottom of the slope. Those killed were: Frederick Outrich, fire-boss; John Cochran, John McDonald, John Guillian, and Park Tully. It is feared some of the others overcome by gas will die.

—Destructive bush fires are again reported throughout Canada.

THE CRIMINAL RECORD.

—A special from London, Ky., gives the particulars of a swindle worked by an Albany, N. Y., party upon Basil Cornett and J. U. Baker of that locality. Recently they received a circular in which it was stated that for $700 of any good circulating medium they would be furnished with $10,000 in bills which would pass anywhere. If they should have any doubt it was suggested that they come to Albany in person and judge for themselves. Mr. Baker accepted the latter proposition and proceeded thither. He said the party showed him a trunk full of money, and explained that the bills were duplicates of regular United States Treasury notes. A trade for $10,000 was made and the amount packed into a box and handed to Baker, who paid $300 in cash, with the understanding that $400 more was to be paid when the box was received through the express office. When he and his companion opened the box which he had seen packed and had in person expressed it contained good, hard brick. The greenies consulted a lawyer and a suit was filed and the $400 attached in the hands of the express company.

—Isaac Mullen, of Jackson County, Indiana, poisoned himself with carbolic acid because his son was arrested and put on trial for making a disturbance in church.

—The Rev. Henry Clemens, a Free Methodist preacher, committed suicide in a horrible manner near Millersburg, Ohio. He placed the muzzle of a shotgun in his mouth and discharged it with his foot, blowing off the entire top of his head. Temporary insanity was the cause.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

—Further experiments with Zelenki's dynamite gun have been in a measure successful.

—The American sloop Volunteer defeated the Scotch cutter Thistle in the first 1887 contest for the America's cup by 19 minutes 29 seconds, says a New York dispatch of Wednesday. Fully fifty thousand people crowded the 300 steamboats, tugs, steam and sailing yachts, and other craft improvised for the occasion. The heterogeneous mass of craft covered fifty or more acres of water. The crowds kept up an incessant hullabaloo of gun-firing, steam-whistling, and cheering that inspired the wildest kind of enthusiasm, but sadly interfered with the duties of the officials who had business to attend to. The result was a most decisive victory for the American Sloop. Beating, stretching, and running with frolics the Volunteer out-sailed the Thistle. The total distance was thirty-eight statute miles. Everywhere, except on the run with spinnakers, where the excursion boats did so much to keep the wind from her, the Volunteer out-sailed her antagonist. The following are the figures:

	Start.	Buoy 10.	Light-ship.
	H. M. S.	H. M. S.	H. M. S.
Volunteer	12 34 58	2 21 3	3 42 12
Thistle	12 33 0	2 36 45	4 1 15
	Finish.	Elapsed.	Correct time.
Volunteer	5 38 16	4 53 18	4 53 18
Thistle	5 45 53	5 12 47	5 12 42

The Volunteer beat the Thistle 19 minutes 29 seconds. After the race Mr. James Bell, principal owner of the Thistle, said he was not at all satisfied with the result. The Thistle, he declared, had never moved so slowly through the water. He was of the opinion that there was "something wrong with the cutter's bottom." Appended is a description of the two yachts:

	Volunteer.	Feet.
Length over all	108.5
Length on water line	84.43
Breadth of beam	23.3
Depth of hold	14.10
Draft	11
Length for time allowance	88.20

	Thistle.	Feet.
Length over all	108.5
Length on water line	84.43
Breadth of beam	23.3
Depth of hold	14.10
Draft	11
Length for time allowance	88.20

—The Illinois Supreme Court has decided that one railroad company can not condemn any part of the right of way of another for the purpose of constructing a railroad longitudinally along the possessing company's tracks, and that "property already applied to a public use" can not be taken by condemnation for railroad purposes.

—The Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd-Fellows will meet next year in Los Angeles, Cal.

—It is expected that, as a result of Governor Gordon's investigation of the treatment of convicts by the lessees of convict labor, the Governor will declare the lease forfeited. The evidence shows that the convicts were most inhumanly treated and half starved, and that gross immoralities prevailed. The Legislature will authorize the employment of the convicts upon a large farm.

M. T. BISHOP,

—DEALER IN—

LUMBER, LIME,

—ALTH—

SHINGLES,

MOULDING &c.

Large Stock and Low Prices. Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c.

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

MEAT MARKET

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNESS

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

Blacksmith

AND

Repair Shop.

Having secured the services of an experienced workman, I am now prepared to do all kinds of Blacksmithing and Repairing in a first-class manner. Special attention given to repairing machinery. Give me a call. Prices reasonable.

A. W. Hall, St. Joe.

We just want to call your attention to three things this week that we want you to know.

1st. The finest line of Clocks, Watches and Jewelry in St. Joe can be found at the Drugstore.

2nd. Nobody carries as fine a line of Ladies Hand Bags as the St. Joe Drugstore.

3rd. The only place in St. Joe to find a line of Fine Perfumeries is at the Drugstore.

LOCALS

Wills Sanders talks of moving to Garrett.

A shower of hail fell on Thursday morning.

Now that the fairs are over, what comes next?

Fresh Baltimore Oysters at Curie's meat market.

Read the new advertisements in this issue.

Pumpkin Pie social in the Volmer building tonight.

Get your Clocks and Watches repaired at the Drugstore.

Potatoes are very scarce and are selling for $1.00 a bushel.

Josh Lounsberry attended the reunion at Hicksville, yesterday.

Big line of Robes and Horse Blankets at Zeigler's Harness Shop.

Mrs. E. W. Erick visited in town last week with Mrs. John Leighty.

The local now stops at Concord when there is any freight to put off.

The Fort Wayne Yarn takes the lead. For sale only by Case & Olds.

The St. Joe Band must have put up for the winter; we haven't heard it for some time.

Orange Fades is now at the home of his parents in Spencerville and is in very poor health.

This is the week of the Kendallville fair, and it hasn't been a very pleasant week, either.

A number of Mrs. Widney's friends and Sunday school scholars gave her a farewell surprise party at her residence, on Tuesday evening, and kindly remembered her with several fine presents.

The wedding of Miss Mino Andrews and Mr. Frank Seiler, occurred yesterday. The News extends congratulations, and although we didn't get to sample the wedding cake, we know it was good.

Orville Wilkinson and Dr. Bowman had a few words this week. Dr. claimed it was a girl, while Orville thought it ought to be a boy. Its a baby any-how, and weighs about the same as all babies do.

The Y. P. T. L. A. will meet at the residence of Clarence Hull, on Wednesday evening, Oct. 12th. Every member is expected to take part in the exercises. There will be a way provided to take all who want to go; so let us have a full attendance.

On account of ill health, Cal Maxwell has been compelled to resign the position of principal of the St. Joe schools, and Frank Coughanour of Hicksville, has been secured to take his place. Mr. Coughanour is one of the county examiners of Defiance county, and comes well recommended, both as a teacher and disciplinarian.

Wm. Saylor received the red ribbon on his horse at the Waterloo fair.

Jerry Andrews sold his trotting horse last week to Mr. Mason of Butler.

A seven hundred pound bell has been ordered for the Methodist church in this place.

Ruff McDonald was in town this week. He is now in the grocery business at Elkhart.

Case & Olds are showing the best line of Men's and Ladies' Underwear ever opened up in St. Joe.

Ben Leighty is at work for the B. & O. again as car repairer. The B. & O. can't get along without Ben.

The G. A. R. boys had a wet week at their encampment at St. Louis last week. It rained nearly all the time.

Wash Woodcox has put down a well on the property he recently bought of Wm. Vanzile. It isn't a drive well.

C. F. Mosier and son Horace of the Bristol Banner, were in town a part of this week, the guests of J. M. Lounsberry.

Byron Woodcox went around the fore part of the week with his off eye done up in a rag. Its the same old story; a barn flew up and hit him.

Miss Topping's school at Garrett received the first prize for primary work at the Waterloo Fair. Miss Topping was formerly a teacher in the St. Joe school.

The difficulty between Chris Curie and Ralph Cole in regard to the payment of rent due Mr. Curie was not settled last Saturday; the case being postponed for two weeks on account of the illness of Esquire Ables.

Esquire Ables was too sick to hold court on Saturday, but on Sunday morning, when Will Keefer and Miss Beam, of Spencerville, called there to get married, he was up in a hurry, and spliced them too quick. "Jeems" is a hustler when it comes to marrying folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Bishop of Van Wert, Ohio, were in town one day this week visiting his brother M. T. Mr. Bishop has just passed through a very long and severe attack of typhoid fever, and while he has sufficiently recovered to be out, yet he looks bad.

The heavy wind on Monday cut up a good many queer antics, in blowing off hats and causing people to run after them. Henry Jenkins was out in the field husking corn, when a gust of wind came along and blew off his hat. He finished that shock before looking for it, and then it wasn't to be found, nor has he been able to find it since. Any one finding a stray hat will know where it belongs.

Last week a large lumber firm at Auburn wrote to us, asking for a column in the News in which to advertise their business. A clothing house at Hicksville also wanted the same amount of space. We refused both, from the fact that we haven't got the space to spare, and even if we had, we do not care to advertise for other towns as long as our own business men stand by us. We don't intend to advise our readers to go Auburn to buy lumber when we know they can buy it a little cheaper here at home. And the same with other lines of goods. We are working for the interest of St. Joe, and while oftentimes we could rake in a few extra dollars by taking in outside advertisements, we don't propose to do so as long as we receive a liberal amount of advertising patronage from our own business men.

THEY HAVE ARRIVED.

We mean our Fall and Winter Stock of Goods. A way, we've just got this much to say, and we don't care if you tell it or not, but we little rather you would, for we do so want everybody to know that we have just opened up as big a line of seasonable goods as one usually finds in a town of this size. We've got some bargains, too. In Dress Flannels we can show you something that will surprise you. Some of the newest things in dress trimmings. An entirely new line of Ladies Cloaks and Jackets at bed-rock prices. New 5 and 10 cent counters loaded down with red hot bargains. Haven't space to tell you all, but come and see. Case & Olds, St. Joe, Ind.

TOOTH IS RIGHT AND WILL PREVAIL.

LOOK THIS WAY!

I keep on hand a fine line of Furniture which I will sell for the next 30 days at prices that defy competition. Glass Cupboards $8.50. Double Cane Seat and Back Rockers $2. Dressing Case, with French Plate Glass $12.00. Carpet Lounges $6.50. Solid Comfort Beds for $2.25. Undertaking a specialty. August Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.

M. TUSTISON,

—DEALER IN—

Groceries, Flour,

PROVISIONS,

GANDIES, CIGARS, TOBACCO.

Canned Fruits, Beans, Dried Beef, Cheese, Bologna &c. Produce taken in exchange for goods.

ST. JOE, IND.

G. A. PATTERSON.

at the St. Joe Drugstore, repairs Clocks, Watches and Jewelry. All work warranted and prices reasonable. Give me your work.

Buclen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Fester, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Put in 25 cents per box. For sale by W. C. Patterson.

Elegant line of New Goods received at Case & Olds this week.

Miss Jennie Bicknel of Bristol, has been visiting in this place the past week the guest of Miss Prudie Lounsberry.

George Hamm, George Ridgway, Byron Hadsell and his sons Marshall and Irvin, went to Chicago on Tuesday night to take in the sights of that great city and see President Cleveland.

For Sale.

A good one and a half story dwelling and lot, situated in St. Joe, for sale at a bargain. For particulars call on or address

A. M. Richards, Hicksville, O.

For Sale or Rent.

House and lot on Main street, St. Joe, Ind. For further particulars call on J. M. Lounsberry. Will sell cheap and on easy terms.

Rebecca McDonald.

A SOUND LEGAL OPINION.

E. B. Burdette, Murray Esq., County Atty., Clay Co., Tex., says: "Have used Electric Bitters with most happy results. My brother also was very low with Malarial Fever and Jaundice, but was cured by timely use of this medicine. Am satisfied Electric Bitters saved his life."

Mr. D. I. Wilcoxson of Horse Cave, Ky., adds a like testimony, saying: "He positively believes he would have died, had it not been for Electric Bitters. This great remedy will ward off, as well as cure all Malaria Diseases and for all Kidney, Liver and Stomach Disorders stands unequalled. Price 50c. and $1. at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store."

Last week was fair weak but it wasn't very fair weather. The ranes descended an the floods came and a grate mana peple who had intended going to the fair had to give it up an stay at home. The wheathes was veri salubrious, an folkes diddnt like tu ventur out tu fur from hoam. Not so with two young men we herd ov who liv ovar north ov hear. Tha was bound tu go anaway, rane or no rane. Thor was a cupple ov gurls in the case and tha had promised to bea ther, an go tha wood. So tha put on ther Sunday best an sailed forth tu conker or tu dy. Tha sa ov course tha had a gude tyme, but when tha cum hoam tha wer a sorry looking site. Poor felloes, tha will kno better when tha git oldar.

Barcus Q. Hippenhammer.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & W. L. OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

HOW THE BROOK WENT TO MILL.

BY BENJAMIN F. TAYLOR.

I. A rift d rock in a wooded hill,
A spring within like a lookin'-glass,
A nameless rill like a skein of rain
That showed as faint as a feeble vein,
And crept away in the thicket grass
With a voiceless flow and a wandering will.
The wish-ton-wish of a maiden's dress,
The murmured tone of a maiden's "yes!"
A thirsty ox could have quaffed it up,
A boy dipped dry with a drinking cup!
Broke in a brook the rill complete—
Broke in a song the brook so fleet—
Broke in a laugh the song so sweet!

II. 'Twas pebble, rubble, and fallen tree,
'Twas bubble, double, through every mile;
It battled on with a shout and shriek,
And white with foam was the rugged rock,
And dark were the hemlocks all the while,
Till the road grew broad and the creek ran free.
It glided along the slippery slide,
And shot away with an arrowy glide—
It slipped its shoes and in stocking feet
Under the bank and in from the street
Whirled in a waltz about and out—
Sprinkled with gold and put to rout—
And bright with the flash of the spotted trout!

III. It floats a name and it bears a boat;
'Tis Leonard's Creek and is bound for mill,
And makes you think, with its ripple and flow,
So light it trips to the stones below.
The rhythmic touch of the gay quadrille—
How her fingers when they moved by note
Through measures fine, as she marched them Over
The yielding plank of the ivory floor,
Beneath the bridge with a rasping rush,
A bird takes toll—'tis a thirsty thrush—
It hears the Gulf of the hemlock night
Where stars shine down in the mid-day light,
It verges the brink of the shadow's lair,
Stumbles and falls on the limestone stair!
Clings to the mute and motionless edge—
Tumbles and booms from ledge to ledge—
Thunders and blunders down to the sedge!

COQUETTISH SUSIE.

BY A. S. O.

"For heaven's sake, Susie, do be serious if you can for five minutes. Pray cease this trifling, which is but cruel playing with my feelings, and let us treat this subject as it deserves, soberly and seriously."

"Well, there, then!" said the laughing black-eyed girl, to whom Charles Westerly spoke. "There, then, is this grave enough? See, the corners of my mouth are duly turned down, and my eyes rolled up, and I am as sober as a patient who has caught sight of the dentist's pullikins. Do I suit you so?"

"You suit me anyhow, and you know it well, you witch," said Charles, gazing with a smile at the pretty face puckered up in its effectation of demureness. But he was not to be driven from his point; and he resumed, gravely after a pause: "The time has come, Susie, when I feel that I have a right to demand an explicit answer to my suit. You have trifled with my earnest feelings long enough. I have grown restless under my fetters."

"Shake them off, Charlie!" exclaimed the saucy girl, with a pretty defiant toss of her head, which plainly said: "I defy you to do it."

"I cannot, Susie, I cannot, and you know it," replied the hapless lover, impatiently.

"That being the case, take my advice, wear them gracefully, and don't pull and jerk so, it only makes them hurt you."

The young man turned away angrily, and walked silently up and down the room, evidently fretting and fuming internally. Susie, meanwhile, looked out of the window and yawned.

"Oh! what a beautiful blue-bird out on the maple tree," exclaimed Susie, suddenly; "do come and see it."

Charles approached the window and looked out.

"Don't you think, Charlie," said Susie, laying her hand on his arm, and looking up eagerly into his face, "don't you think you could manage to—"

"What? Susie, dear," asked Charles, all his tenderness awakened by her manner.

"Drop a pinch of salt on his tail," replied the provoking girl, with an affection of simplicity, "for then you know you could catch it."

He flung her arm off, with a suppressed exclamation, and turned angrily away.

His walk this time was longer than before, and his cogitations more earnest; for he didn't heed any of Susie's artfully artless devices to allure his attention. At last he stopped abruptly before her, and said: "Susie, for three long years I have been your suitor, without either a confession of love or promise of marriage on your part. Often as I have demanded to know your sentiments toward me, you have always coquettishly refused me an answer. I love you, as you know, better than my life, but I will no longer be your plaything. To-morrow you are going away to a distance, to be absent for months; and if you cannot, this very day, throw aside your coquetry and give me an honest 'yes' for my answer I shall consider that I have received a 'no,' and act accordingly."

"And how would that be? What would you do?" asked Miss Susie, curiously.

"Begin by tearing your false and worthless image from my breast," exclaimed Charles, furiously.

"It would be a bloody business, Charlie; and you would not succeed either."

"I should and would succeed, as you shall see, if you wish, cruel, heartless girl."

"But I don't wish it, Charlie, dear. I love dearly to have you love me."

"Why, then," said the foolish youth, quite won over again, "why, then, dearest Susie, will you not consent?"

"Remember, I said that I liked to be loved. I did not say anything about loving. But, pray, how long did you say you had been courting me, in that pretty little speech of yours?"

"Three long years."

"Neatly and accurately quoted, Charlie. But you know Rachel, in the Bible, was only won after seven years' courtship. You don't suppose I am going to rate myself any cheaper than she did, do you? Suppose we drop this tiresome subject for four years; perhaps by that time I may be able to work myself up to the falling-in-love point; there is no knowing what wonders time may effect."

"If you are not in love now, you never will be," returned Charles, sturdily, "and I will have my answer now or never."

"Never, then," laughed Susie. But she had gone a step too far. Her often-severely-trying lover was now too much in earnest to bear her trifling longer.

"Never be it, then," he exclaimed, and seizing his hat, he stroled angrily from the room.

Susie listened to his receding footsteps with dismay. Had she, indeed, by her incorrigible love of coquetry, alienated that noble, manly heart? It smote her to the soul to think so. As she heard him open the front door, impelled by a feeling of despair, she raised the window, and leaning out, said:

"Charlie, Charlie, you will be at the boat to-morrow to bid me good-bye, won't you? Surely we are still friends."

As she spoke she tore a rose from her bosom and threw it at him. It lodged on his arm, but he brushed it away as though it had been poison, and passed on without looking up.

Susie spent the rest of that day in tears.

The next morning, early, began the bustle of departure. Susie was going to accompany her widowed and invalid mother on a trip to Havana for her health.

As they reached the wharf and descended from the carriage, Susie's eyes were busy looking for one wisher-for face, but it was nowhere to be seen.

The steamboat lay panting and puffing, impatient to be let loose. Susie's mother, aided by the man-servant who accompanied them, had already crossed the plank which lay between the wharf and the boat, and Susie was reluctantly following, when the sound of a voice behind her—the very voice she was longing to hear—startled her. She turned to look around, and missing her footing, fell into the water.

In an instant Charles had thrown off his coat, and calling loudly, "Tell the Captain not to allow the wheel to stir, and to lower me a rope," he sprang into the river. But of her for whom he was risking his life to save he could perceive no trace.

Judging that the current of the river might have carried her a little forward he swam around the wheel, but still he could see nothing of her, and despair seized his heart as he thought that perhaps she might be under the boat. He strained his eyes to see through the water, and at last discerned what seemed to be the end of a floating garment, lodged between the wheel and the rounded bottom of the boat.

If this were indeed the unfortunate girl, the least movement of the wheel would inevitably crush her; and Charles in his terror fancied that it was already beginning to turn. He dived and clutched at the garment, but missed it. He rose panting, and almost exhausted; but scarcely waiting to get a breath, again he plunged below. This time his efforts were rewarded with success, at least, so far as he was able to bring Susie's form to the surface of the water, but she seemed totally lifeless. Charles was now so nearly exhausted, that he had only sufficient presence of mind left to clasp Susie convulsively to him, while he kept himself afloat by holding on to the wheel. But this his last hope of support, seemed also about to fail him, as he saw the wheel was really beginning to turn slowly around. By a desperate effort he struck his foot against one of the paddles, so as to push himself as far from danger as possible. As he did so something touched his head, and his hand grasped a rope. New life seemed now to be infused into him.

He gathered all his energies and fastened the rope around Susie's waist; consciousness then entirely forsook him.

In the meantime the witnesses of the accident, after giving Charles's instructions to the Captain, had watched the noble rescuer's struggles and exertions with breathless interest. The friendly rope had been flung to him again and again, but in his excitement and his semi-insensibility, he had been incapable of availing himself of the offered aid.

At last, seeing that he was quite exhausted, and must soon let go his hold on the wheel, and then probably sink to rise no more, the Captain judged it best to run the risk of moving off, so that a small boat could be sent to the rescue.

The result of this hazardous experiment, as we have seen, was successful. Susie was raised on board by means of the rope; and a boat reached Charles in time to save him also.

Both sufferers were taken on board the boat, which now rapidly moved off to make up for lost time.

And thus, when Charles regained his consciousness he found himself on the Mississippi River, many miles from home, bound for New Orleans. Of course his first anxious inquiry was for Susie, and when informed that she was rapidly recovering, his happiness seemed complete. He showed his contentment by turning over and falling into a deep, quiet sleep. About sundown a message came to him, saying that Miss B—— desired to see him.

He found her lying on a sofa in the captain's state-room, which had been given up to her, with her mother sitting near her.

"Charlie," she said, without offering a word of thanks, "I want to see a clergyman; is there one on board?"

"I will go and see," said Charles, moving toward the door, but a dreadful thought striking him, he turned around and exclaimed: "Good God, Susie, you don't think—"

"That I am going to die? No, Charlie, but I want to see a clergyman."

Charles went away and soon returned, accompanied by a minister of the Gospel.

"I thank you, sir, for coming to me," said Susie to the clergyman. "I have a strange request to make of you. Would you object, sir, in the presence of and with the consent of my mother, to unite me to that gentleman?"

If the minister was astonished at this request, Charles was greatly more so. "What did you say, Susie? Did I hear aright?"

"I guess you did," said Susie, smiling at his eager amazement. "Does the scheme meet with your approval?"

"It was heaven-inspired!" exclaimed Charles, with ill-concealed joy. But a shade coming over his radiant face, he said, gravely: "But, Susie, have you considered? Remember I want your love, not your gratitude, and will not be satisfied with anything less."

"Do not be concerned about that, dear Charlie," replied Susie, looking at him very tenderly through her tears. "Be assured you have them both, and had the first long, long before you had the last."

"But, Susie, you said only yesterday—"

"Never mind what I said yesterday," interrupted Susie, with some show of her old spirit. "Just mind what I say to-day. If I was a fool once, is that any reason why I must be one always? But, indeed, Charlie," she said, more softly, "I have always intended to be your wife; the only scruple I have is that I am not half good enough for you."

It is needless to say how this discussion ended. The reader has already divined that Charles continued his journey to Havana. And thus, in the course of one eventful day, he risked his life and saved a life, made an impromptu marriage, and set out on a most unexpected wedding tour.

A Pair of Funny Toads.

"No one knows the funny things toads will do," said the Hon. James A. Sweeney, a Luzerne County naturalist and ex-member of the Pennsylvania Legislature, to a correspondent of the New York Times. "On a recent cloudy day, after a hard rain, there was a cool breeze blowing. I was walking in a friend's garden, near Hazelton, when I heard a peculiar sound. Looking in the direction from which it came, I saw two toads in an open space in the garden. One was quite large and the other was at least a third smaller. They were both standing on their hind feet, facing each other. The large toad had its fore feet over on each side of the smaller toad's shoulders; the small toad had his left fore foot on the large one's right leg. As they stood in that way they uttered strange guttural sounds, as if they were discussing some subject between themselves. Suddenly the small toad thrust its right foot or hand, you might call it, against the large one's stomach, and the next instant the latter threw the former to the ground and a lively wrestle between them began."

"During the struggle on the ground the skins of both toads burst open on the back, and I supposed I was about to see the interesting process of toads taking off their old coats, rolling them up in little balls, and swallowing them, as naturalists say they do. I did witness the process of shedding the skins, but something much more singular than the swallowing incident occurred. The day was raw and windy, as I said, and after the toads had rubbed their skins in a comical way toward their heads until they had both pulled themselves clear of them each one began to shiver perceptibly with the cold. Suddenly the small toad hopped quickly to where the skin of the big one lay and picking it up in his mouth, hopped away several feet. The big toad followed the purloiner of his cast-off clothing with his eyes, and gave two or three appealing croaks, but made no further effort to recapture the stolen goods. When the small toad saw that he was not followed, he deliberately set to work to don the skin he had taken. It took him some time to do it, but he finally accomplished his purpose and went masquerading around in the mist garment exactly like a clown in a circus wearing the big baggy costume some of them appear in."

"The little fellow seemed to enjoy the novelty of the situation, and hopped around the large toad in what must have been a most tantalizing manner. The big toad was shivering like a person chilled through, and by and by picked up the skin of the small one and began to force it on his body. The process was a difficult one, but after several minutes of unceasing effort, he stood habilitated in the cast-off garments of his diminutive companion. If the effect of the big skin on the little toad had been comical, that of the little skin on the big toad was more so. The sleeves of the coat, so to speak, only came half-way down the arm, and the legs of the trousers covered the toad's legs as though they had been knickerbockers. The body of the garment was so tight that the toad could not work either his legs or his arms, and he stood there the picture of comical despair. By and by he began to swell himself up, and that apparently stretched the skin, for he was able afterward to move away slowly."

Unruly Japanese Haranguers.

Young men clad in the garments formerly worn by students have been numerous in the streets of Osaka, Japan, lately. They lecture in out-of-the-way corners, and even in crowded streets when no constable is at hand, upon political subjects, and frequently urge the doctrine that "official salaries are the life blood of the people."—Chicago News.

LET us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it.—Abraham Lincoln.

THE ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. I.

ST. JOE, IND., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1887.

NO. 38.

Churches.

DISCIPLE.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday evening, in the Lutheran church. Cottage prayer meeting every Friday evening.

J. A. THOMAS, PASTOR.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

SERVICES every alternate Sunday at 10:30 A. M. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

J. M. LANGLEY, PASTOR.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN.

SERVICES every Sunday, one Sunday in the morning at 10:30, and the following Sunday in the evening. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening. Sunday School at 9:30 A. M.

S. P. FRYBERGER, PASTOR.

Societies.

G. A. R.

REGULAR meetings on Saturday evening on or before the full moon of each month, at their hall over Leighty's store.

O. H. WIDNEY, COMMANDER.
J. M. MILLIMAN, ADJUTANT.

Business Notices.

H. W. BOWMAN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Office opposite the Drugstore.

ST. JOE HOTEL, Wm. Leighty, proprietor. Special attention given to furnishing teams for commercial men.

B. S. SHEFFER, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, St. Joe, Ind. Prompt and careful attention to all business entrusted to his care.

ST. JOE BARBER SHOP, one door west of hotel, Will Gee, proprietor. Satisfaction guaranteed. Your patronage is solicited.

FILLEY, LOUNSBERRY AND SHULER, proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill. All work promptly done. Cash paid for Oak Logs.

CITY BARBER SHOP, St. Joe, Ind., John Hull, proprietor. Shaving, Hair Cutting &c. done in the best of style. Come and see me. Two doors west of Kinsey's Furniture Store.

SIMON WINELAND, proprietor St. Joe Handle and Feed Mills. Feed grinding a specialty. Highest prices paid for second growth White Ash. Enquire at the mill for full particulars.

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

—The following patents have been issued to Indiana inventors: William P. Bollenbacher, Bloomington, cigar box; Thomas B. Carroll, Indianapolis, apparatus for regulating pressure; John P. Dodds and E. Dawson, assignors to L. Shultz, Terre Haute, piston or valve rod packing; John A. Evans and L. A. Teagle, Richmond, cash operator for green-houses; Rufus R. Gillespie, Fort Wayne, garment adjuster; George W. Hays, Goshen, back rest; Andrew E. Hoffman, Fort Wayne, feed mechanism for saw-mill carriage; Lewis McNutt, Brazil, shade exhibitor; Ora M. Miller, Greensburg, extensible seat; Lucian R. Oakes, Valparaiso, milk cooler; George W. Smith, assignor of one-half to C. H. Cadwallader, Union City, box; Levi Sutherland, Indianapolis, thill coupling; John A. Witmer, Wakarusa, road cart; Theophilus A. and S. B. Wylie, Bloomington, instrument for describing circles; Harvey B. Yaryan, assignor of two-thirds, to J. H. Watson and C. N. Vancleave, Crawfordsville, reach coupling.

—One evening recently, as Wilbur Hadley, the son of a prominent farmer living seven miles north of Plainfield, returned home from school, he found all the members of the family away from home. Entering the house quietly, he was startled by a burglar rushing past him. He had barely recovered from his astonishment when a second thief appeared at the head of the stairs. Wilbur produced a revolver and commanded the burglar to surrender, when the thief bounded down the stairway and attempted to escape. At this moment Wilbur fired, the ball taking effect in the burglar's thigh, but only disabled him for a second, when he continued his way. Several minor articles were found missing by the young man, who then proceeded to track the thieves. Following the blood drops a short distance, the burglar was found lying in some high weeds. He was taken in charge, and is unknown.

—The dreaded hog cholera appears to be spreading in the north part of Wabash County. A gentleman from a point five miles northwest of Wabash states that during the past three weeks fully 400 hogs have died in his neighborhood alone, the value of the animals being from $7 to $8 each. The finest and healthiest hogs seem to be attacked first, those from seven to eight months old and weighing about 150 pounds being most susceptible to the malady. The symptoms are drowsiness, bleeding at the nose and a deaf and dumb condition. If the scourge continues, very little pork will be marketed from the north part of the county. Nothing has been found to check the cholera.

—The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Kokomo District, North Indiana Conference M. E. Church, have elected the following officers: President, Mrs. J. E. Ervin, of Kokomo; Recording Secretary, Mrs. W. H. D. Daniels, of Logansport; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. C. G. Miller, of Peru; Treasurer, Mrs. W. E. Mowbray, of Peru. Mrs. J. E. Ervin, of this city, was chosen a delegate to the annual convention of the northwest branch of the W. F. M. S., which convenes in Milwaukee Oct. 12. The next district annual meeting will be held at Peru in September, 1888.

—The telephone crisis at Logansport has at last come. All contracts which the telephone company made with its subscribers when it introduced its extortionate toll-system some three months ago has expired, and with their expiration a large number abandoned its service. At one time there was about 200 instruments in use in the city, while at present there are only about one-fourth that number. The indictment and arrest of Manager Dunseath will unquestionably be the means of a similar move being inaugurated throughout the State.

—A fine-blooded bull, belonging to Mr. Conden, a farmer of Cass County, was bitten by a dog. A few days ago it became suddenly mad, and tearing across the field, gored about a dozen fine heifers, valued at over $2,500. It then jumped a high fence and started for Logansport. Two of Conden's hired hands, who witnessed the unusual actions of the animal, mounted horses and pursued him to within a mile of the city, when they shot him, just as he was making for a party of children who were out nutting.

—Shortly after the war a wagon loaded with barreled cement was upset on the levee, at Jeffersonville, and a greater portion of the load rolled into the river. Recently, while a number of men were at work repairing the wharf-logs, the contents of one barrel was found lying in the water. The cooperage had long since rotted away, but the cement had remained together and had become as hard as stone.

—The lifeless body of Michael Ryan was found by the side of the Panhandle track, a mile and a half east of Upland. Ryan was a farm hand employed by James Palmer. The day previous he had gone on a big spree, and when he started home was scarcely able to walk. It is presumed he lay down on the track and was killed by the cars. He was 45 years old, and so far as known has no living relatives.

—The Randolph County Board of Education has resolved upon measures to have representative work of the schools of the county exhibited at the next county institute, and also at the county fair. At least 150 of the teachers of the county will take up the reading-circle work. The average length of school terms in the county will be six months.

—A hired man, working for Joseph Dant, a farmer near Vincennes, after cleaning a revolver, laid it down on a table. Mr. Dant's 8-year-old daughter picked it up and it went off, wounding the child—probably fatally.

—The Randolph County Agricultural Society has elected the following officers: Directors, John Frazer, Albert Canfield, A. J. Cranor, James Adkins, Frank Judge, Lewis N. Cook, and George Hiatt; President, N. T. Butts; Vice President, Abraham Sheeley; Secretary, Hon. J. W. Macey; Treasurer, Frank Moorman.

—Gas has been struck at Atlanta at a depth of 976 feet, and eighteen inches in the Trenton rock. It carries a flame from a six-inch pipe to a height of eight or ten feet, and when fully developed is expected to become a gusher.

—Wilson Hunt, a stock-raiser of Madison Township, Montgomery County, was set upon by a drove of hogs, which he was feeding, recently, and sustained severe injuries, his hip-bone being broken. It was only by the arrival of help that his life was saved.

—Grant Houston, brakeman on a fast mail train, while waving his handkerchief at his sweetheart at Straughn's Station, was struck on the head by an iron crane alongside the track and fatally hurt.

—Thomas B. Powell has filed his bond, and his commission as postmaster at Wilmington has been issued.

—A barn of William Cobb, of Marion Township, Boone County, was destroyed by fire. This is the third barn burned in that neighborhood within the past month.

—Isaac Taylor was killed in a mine at Glendale by the iron cage, which fell a distance of forty feet, crushing him to death.

—John Jones shot and killed himself at Fort Wayne, after an unsuccessful attempt to murder his wife.

—The mills of the Bloomington Roller Mill Company were destroyed by fire. Loss, $80,000.

—The ministers of Indianapolis will probably organize a Law and Order League.

MONEY

TO

LOAN

On Farm Property

IN SUMS OVER $200.

Interest only once a year. We charge no commission. You can pay any part or all of the loan at any time. You can keep the money as long as you please if the interest is promptly paid. For further particulars call on or address

W. C. Patterson,
ST. JOE, IND.

Ho for Arkansas!

Cheap Homes for Everybody!

In a high, healthy, rich land country. On the 15th of September and the 1st of October there will be excursions from this place to that point at a very low rate of fare. For full information in regard to these excursions call on A. B. Coburn, Real Estate Agent, St. Joe, Ind. Office with Dr. Sheffer, one door east of Drugstore.

GO to the News Office, St. Joe for all kinds of Printing. All work done promptly, and at the lowest prices. Give us a call.

G. E. EMANUEL, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Spencerville, Ind. Office in J. Emanuel & Son's Drug Store. All calls promptly answered.

HOUSE PAINTING, Graining, Glazing Paper Hanging and Ceiling Decorating a specialty. All work guaranteed. B. A. Woodcox. Call and see me, or leave orders at the St. Joe Drugstore.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS, - - PUBLISHERS

A CHARACTER.

BY JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY.

I.

Swallowed up in gulfs of tho't—
Eye-glass fixed on—who knows what?
We but know he sees us not.

Change upon him, here and there—
Base-ball park, -Indian rial Fair—
Broadway—Long Branch—anywhere!

Even at the races—yet
With his eye-glass tranced and set
On some dreamland minaret.

At the beach, the where, perhaps,
Tenderest of eyes may glance
On the fitness of his pants.

Vain! all admiration—vain!
His mouth, 'er and 'er again,
Absentmindedly absorbs his cane.

Vain, as well, all tribute paid
To his morning coat, indeed
With cross-bars of every shade.

He is so oblivious, tho'
We played checkers to art! fro
On his back—he would not know.

II.

So removed—illustrated—
Pencil kiss him is, and leave him thus.
He hath never need of us.

Come away! Enough! Let be!
Purest praise, to such as he,
Were as basest obloquy.

Vex no more that mind of his—
We, to him, are but as phizz
Unto pop that knows it is.

Haply, even as we prate
Of him here—in astral state—
Or juck-a-tral—he, elate.

Browses round, with sportive hops,
In fur fields of sperry crops,
Nibbling stars like clover tops.

He, occult and psychic, may
Now be, oliving why to lay
Is not midnight. But away!

Cease vain queries! Let us go!
Leave him all unfathomed, Lo,
He can hear his whi-kers grow.

HIS ONLY LOVE.

BY EUGENE DANKLEY.

That Pat was either actually suffering from mental aberration or endeavoring his utmost to inspire one with that suspicion, I could not well doubt. For several days he had been acting in a strange, I might say remarkably absurd manner, and appeared entirely to have lost his gay, almost French, spirits.

Pat Oakley was a genuine Dublin Irishman, generous to a fault, reckless, brimful of fun and animal spirits, and bound to have a little taste of foreign life, as he expressed it; and I was a blase Englishman, traveling to kill time. We became acquainted with each other at Geneva, in Switzerland, and a warm friendship soon sprang up between us; thenceforth we were inseparable companions, traveling everywhere together.

Before we departed each for his own country, Pat and I concluded to spend a few weeks in Paris. It is needless to state that time never hung heavy on our hands during our sojourn there. No one in that gayest of cities, with plenty of money, ever experiences any difficulty in finding plenty of amusement. But suddenly Pat grew sulky and silent, spending his afternoons I knew not where, and his evenings in pacing up and down the floor of our spacious chamber.

One evening about twilight, just as I had thrown myself upon the sofa, I heard Pat's heavy tread in the hall. He threw open the door with a great deal of unnecessary violence, and glared about the room with an exceedingly savage scowl at nothing in particular, or rather at everything in general—the glare was not at all specific. Having uttered in a sepulchral tone some choice expressions rarely heard off the tragic stage, he entered the chamber and began pacing the floor. Pausing for a moment to kick over the spittoon and to utter a most pathetic groan, he went to his writing-desk and took therefrom a small package of dainty notes; these he proceeded to ignite, and watched them burn with the air of one offering up a sacrifice; next, he took from his pocket a miniature, seemed about to break it in twain, but, changing his mind, flung it impatiently from him, and seating himself on his trunk, sighed heavily.

I had discovered the secret of Pat's absurd conduct: he was deeply, desperately in love, or at least imagined himself to be. I buried my face in the velvet cushion to smother my laughter, but he must have heard it, for he sprang up with a very impolite ejaculation, and began pacing the floor again; finally he threw himself on the couch and—and the fellow actually burst into tears.

"Pat," I exclaimed, "you're a fool!" "I know I am, Bob!" he said, rising; "but light a cigar and come and sit down by the window, and I'll tell you all about it."

I could not do less than comply with this rational request of my irrational friend.

"Well, Bob," he began, "you remember that night about two weeks ago you declined to go out with me on the score of indisposition, or something of the sort, and I left you lying on the sofa humming one of those confounded tuneless English songs of yours, and started for the Theater Francaise. Well, I did not go; changing my mind, I drifted about from street to street until I completely lost my bearings. Just as I was passing a dark, dismal looking lane I heard a smothered shriek, and regardless of the consequences I rushed down the lane whence it proceeded, and beheld a woman struggling in the grasp of two ruffians. I knocked one of them down, and the other took to his heels. The woman was nearly frightened out of her senses, and gladly accepted my offer to escort her to her home. She said the men who had assaulted her were thieves, and that they had nearly succeeded in robbing her when I came to her assistance. When we had issued from the lane into a decently-lighted street, I scrutinized her features. I was thunderstruck. The woman was a delicate girl of nineteen summers. Her figure was petite and graceful, almost fragile. She had hazel hair and dark-brown, saucy, laughing eyes that would set your brain in a whirl, and the softest, silvery voice I ever listened to. She was my ideal exactly. You should have seen her, old fellow!" And he gave me such a hearty slap on the back that I moved out of reach lest another outburst of enthusiasm should be followed by a similar demonstration.

"Now, candidly, Bob Gordon, don't you think she was beautiful?" "I could tell better if I had seen her, Pat," I replied, gazing up at the ceiling and wondering if he had forgotten the miniature on the floor. "After going some distance," he continued, "we entered a neat, unpretending little street, in which it seems she lived. I asked her if I might call. After some hesitation she said yes, any afternoon; she never received any one in the evening; and taking a card from her pocket she hastily wrote her name and address on it, and handing it to me, again thanking me for my kindness and—ahem!—bravery, and bade me good night. On the card was written, 'Aimee Lorette, 18 Rue St. Severin.' With a great deal of difficulty I managed to find my way home, arriving rather late in the morning, as no doubt you remember. I waited impatiently two long days and then called. Aimee received me very cordially in a cozy little sitting-room, and we had a pleasant chat together. Her parents were both dead, and she lived—would you believe it?—entirely alone, with the exception of a faithful old Algerian, a servant who had been long in the service of her family. After my first call I went to see Aimee very frequently, nearly every afternoon; we became first rate friends, and, to be candid, Bob, I fell deeply in love with her. Yesterday I asked her to become my wife and go to Ireland with me, anywhere to the four corners of the globe, for that matter. She flatly refused me, saying she liked me as a friend, but had never yet seen a man she could love, and never expected to; and further forbade me to ever mention the subject again; and I left in a huff."

"That is quite a romance, Pat," I laughingly exclaimed.

"But what, under heaven, am I to do?" "Forget all about her." "But I can't do that," he groaned. I simply smiled.

"If you had ever been in love, Bob, you wouldn't sit there and grin."

"You are right, Pat; I have never been in love, and never expect to be. It is a foolish scrape to get into, and if you propose to fall in love with girls of uncertain character, why—"

But Pat was at my throat in a flash, his eyes blazing with anger, his face pale with passion.

"By the holy powers!" he said hoarsely,

"Well, well! She may be a countess in disguise for aught I know," I said, pacifically; "but since she does not love you, I cannot perceive that there is anything to be done."

"But something must be done," persisted Pat.

"Pack up and leave Paris," I suggested.

"I can't leave Aimee," he groaned.

I pointed out to him the absurdity of forming such an attachment for a girl of whose character, family, and position he knew absolutely nothing. I expostulated, pleaded, entreated, beseeched, but words were useless.

Finally, we came to an agreement to the effect that I should go with him to see Aimee, and when I had fully made her acquaintance, I was to intercede for him; should this fail he promised to bear the disappointment with fortitude and leave Paris.

I saw Aimee. Making some allowance for Pat's exuberant fancy, his description had been tolerably correct. Aimee Lorette was certainly an attractive looking girl, and there was a something in her dark brown, laughing eyes that interested even so phlegmatic an Englishman as myself. The fluency with which she spoke English led me to suspect that her home had not always been in la belle France; but I said nothing.

In time, Aimee and I became quite confidential friends, though toward Pat, ever since his declaration, she always appeared a little reserved. I found her well educated, intelligent, and refined, and above all, decidedly original. Finally I interceded for Pat; but she would not listen to me, and I saw at once that his case was hopeless.

Pat endeavored to bear his disappointment like a man, and shortly afterwards receiving intelligence of the serious illness of his only sister, he left for Dublin.

With a hearty grasp of the hand and "Good-bye, Heaven bless you, old fellow; do not forget the little girl of the Rue St. Severin," he was gone.

Dear Pat! I can see him now, his tall form bent over the window of the train, looking as blue as though he were going to his own funeral.

After Pat's departure I went to see Aimee very frequently, for I missed his society; and hers was quite acceptable. I was convinced of the purity of her character, and that she had one day been in better circumstances. But very gradually she grew reserved and shy, and concluding that she had tired of my society I discontinued my visit, and in the course of time left Paris.

It was evident that Pat, like myself, was no letter writer. Nearly a twelvemonth elapsed before I heard from him. He had quietly settled down, and—bless my soul!—the rascal was actually married.

"How is Aimee?" he inquired in his letter; and I know he blushed when he wrote that name, for there was a big, awkward blot directly above it.

"Men's hearts are curious things," thought I, my mind reverting to Paris, and the Rue St. Severin; and growing restless, I packed my box forthwith and wandered off on one of my rambling tours.

Being at Rome one day in the studio of a young artist, an acquaintance of mine, a half-finished portrait of Aimee Lorette arrested my attention.

"Ah!" said the artist, "that is a pretty French girl with whom I have been trying to pick up an acquaintance for the last month; but she is modest, and will not flirt. She lives next door. I have been painting her portrait from memory. She used to pass by my window every day, but I hear she is very ill now, poor girl!"

Aimee ill! I bade the young artist good afternoon with more haste, I fear, than is consistent with good manner, and I hurried next door. I was admitted by the old Algerian servant. Mademoiselle Aimee would see me, and I was ushered into a neat, tastefully furnished chamber, where she was sitting in an easy chair, looking very pale and ill. She sprang up with an ejaculation of surprise as she saw me, a faint blush mantling cheek and brow as she extended me her hand, saying, "I never thought to see you again, Monsieur Gordon."

"I am very sorry to see you so ill, Aimee," I said sadly.

"I do not believe I shall live long," she said with a faint smile, "and the few who would be sorry to see me die would soon forget me, and—there is only one whom I would care to live for."

"A lover, perhaps, Aimee?" I said, lightly.

"No," she cried, passionately, "for he loves me not."

Our eyes met, and I read her secret as she divined mine, and clasped her to my bosom. I had loved her, very long, but my pride had never suffered it to appear either in look, word, or deed, for I had thought my love was not returned.

How poor a reader of woman's heart is man.

"Why did you leave Paris without coming to say good-bye?" Aimee asked, reproachfully.

"Because, Aimee, I thought you were tired of my society," I replied.

"Why did you grow so cold and shy?"

"Because—because I—I loved you," she falteringly whispered, as the rosy blushes crimsoned her pale features.

She promised to become my wife as soon as she recovered her health. I experienced the sensations of a second boyhood; everything that before had seemed dull and insipid now appeared novel and interesting. I was very happy, but my joy was of brief duration. Aimee grew rapidly worse. Physicians were of no avail. Nothing was withheld that would rescue her from the hand of death; but she died—died as the last mellow ray of the departing sun illuminated the chamber and fell aslant her pale wan features—died with my name upon her lips—died happy.

To me the love of a lifetime had come and gone. It came to me as a delightful dream of fountains of crystal water comes to the feverish slumbers of the thirsty, dying traveler amid the sands of the desert; and, like him, I awoke to realize the bitterness of a joy departed.

Many years have elapsed since then. I am now an old bachelor, and my head is as gray as my heart; yet every twilight, as I sit by the fire in "Merrie England" and muse on bygone days, my eyes instinctively turn toward my flower-gemmed bay window, and I think of sunny Italy, where sighing breezes kiss the silver lilacs above the grave of the only woman I ever loved—the brown-eyed, hazel-haired little French girl of the Rue St. Severin.

Good Penmanship.

For business or counting-room writing there can no more be a standard than for the stature and physiognomy of those who write it. Even those who have learned to write by practicing from the same copies, and under the same teacher, and who, as schoolboys, have written essentially the same hands, will ultimately write styles differing as widely as will their environments and varied standing in business and life, although in each there may remain the same relative degree of excellence. Nevertheless, there are certain qualities which must be present in all good writing. It must be legible, written with facility, and graceful and harmonious in appearance. The less shade used in business writing the better. Shaded lines can be produced only by a special contraction of the muscles. Motion is thus retarded, and the muscular force exhausted; while in unshaded writing there is a uniform, easy-flowing motion of the pen. In order that there should be the requisite strength of line for clear, strong, legible writing, a pen of more than medium coarseness should be used. A person thus writing need have no fear of the writer's cramp. In several instances where parties were afflicted with the cramp, an entire change to the forearm movement, and unshaded small writing, has wrought a speedy cure. To present a pleasing appearance to the eye, writing must have uniformity in form, size, shape, slant, line, and flow of motion. One of the most fruitful sources of bad writing is carelessness. For persons who lack the power or skill to write legibly there might be some reasonable excuse, but for those possessing all the requisite skill and power to destroy legibility through sheer carelessness there can be no excuse; good and characteristic forms cost no more to make than do illegible or doubtful ones. Figures should be small, unshaded, distinctive in their character. A large proportion of errors in accounts results from failure to place figures accurately in their respective places.—Prof. D. T. Ames.

"Don't you suppose," said a member of the police force, "that a policeman knows a rogue when he sees him?" "No doubt," was the reply, "but the trouble is that he does not seize a rogue when he knows him."

SHOOTING ON STILTS.

How the Hunters of La Rochelle, France, Penetrate the Vast Marshes.

As might be expected, these marshes form a great breeding ground for duck, plover, rails, water hens, and aquatic fowl of every kind, says a writer in the Youth's Companion describing the great fens of La Rochelle, France. Many very rare migratory birds are found here during the spring and autumn flights, and as soon as the breeding season is over and the market demand for fowl commences the professional fowlers of La Rochelle are on the ground, and reap the harvest that has to find them in food almost the year round.

As one would find but few fowl by traversing the "hill-paths," and if one beat the edges with a dog, he would only drive the fowl farther into the marsh, human ingenuity was not long before it found a way to compass the difficulty.

Boats or flats could not make their way through the tangles the shooting stands erected proved of little use after a week or so, and, be the summer never so dry, the water and mud in the marsh never seemed to decrease in volume. Beyond turning a little brown at the edges where the sun baked and cracked the mud, and a little stronger smell than usual, there was no change winter or summer, and the interior of the marsh remained forbidden ground. Then, many years ago, some bright intellect suggested stilts, and, from then until now, the fowler of La Rochelle has used them in his profession.

The very idea of shooting from a pair of stilts is ludicrous, but still more so is the spectacle of the amateur who first tries it.

The stilts are about eight feet in length, and are made in the usual way, having the stirrup placed about sixteen inches from the top of the pole; just above this is a strap to put round the ankle, and at the top, to fit round the upper part of the calf, is another strap. The lower part of the pole, about six inches from the bottom, is surrounded with wood arranged in bell shape, extending about three inches on either side, which serves to prevent the pole from sinking too deeply into the softer places.

When the hunter has strapped on his stilts both his hands are free to handle his gun, and he is also at a sufficient height to see the fowl as they fly over the tall reeds and along the intersecting lanes. Besides the gun and his stilts, his outfit consists of a capacious game bag, slung at his back, and a light pole about five feet, fitted with a net, something like a lacrosse bat.

Some fowlers provide themselves with an iron hook, but the net is more common than the hook and by far the most satisfactory. Either implement is also carried slant across the back by a strap fitting round the right shoulder. A rough, hardy, long-legged dog completes the category. Breed is of no account; if he retrieves well, is fond of water and not so heavy as to sink in the mud, that is all that is required of him.

These fowlers present a curious figure in a country landscape, and may be seen at any time striding along the hill-paths to that part of the marsh each one favors in the early morning light or in the waning twilight of evening, looking most uncanny and spectral, looming up, clearly defined against the horizon, like so many giants.

In one of the public insane asylums of New York the curious experiment has been tried of pitting two cases of insanity against each other. Each patient had a particular delusion and a tendency to self-destruction; so each patient was told that the other was a lunatic and that he was set to watch over him and protect him. Thus each had a charge in the other. Their vigilance was unceasing. Each supposed himself perfectly sane, and this belief was accompanied by considerable scorn for the other's weakness of intellect. This centering their attention on a definite duty and objects outside of themselves gradually completed the cure of both of them. This, at first sight, seems like an improbable story, but it is not at all impossible, and is going the rounds of the scientific press. Dr. Foote's Health Monthly.

COL. BOB AS A SAMARITAN.

An interesting story is told of Bob Ingersoll which, if it reaches the ears of St. Peter, may improve the Colonel's standing with that gentleman. Some time ago an old Illinois soldier made application for a pension on account of lung trouble which he had contracted during his service in the army. During the examination into his case the examiner was struck with the peculiar exactness with which the applicant recalled the very day upon which he caught the cold from the effects of which his trouble was claimed to have originated.

"How is it," asked he, "that you are so sure that you caught a cold on February 21, 1862? You must have an excellent memory to recollect such an insignificant event for so long a time."

"I remember it from the fact that Col. Bob Ingersoll was married on the following day."

"Why, what has that to do with it?" asked the pension examiner, astonished.

"Well, I was in the Colonel's regiment, and on the night of that day I was on guard duty. It was a bitterly cold night. Col. Ingersoll happened to stroll along by me, and I said to him that if he did not either send me a warm overcoat, a bottle of whisky, or relieve me from guard duty, I'd freeze to death."

"I'll do all three," said the Colonel, and, suiting the action to the word, he took off a fine fur overcoat he was wearing and handed it to me. Then he took from one of his pockets a flask of splendid old rye, which he also gave me. Not content with this, he actually went up to headquarters and wrote out an order calling in the guards, as it was entirely too cold for guard duty. This is why I happen to have such a vivid recollection of the Colonel's marriage and the contraction of my cold."—Washington Capital.

BEARDED INDIANS.

While at the Indian agency I made sure to visit the camp, in order to inspect the Yankton brave when at home. Aside from all their meritorious progressions, bucks, squaws, papooses, boys and maidens, still cling to their ancient savage antipathy to hair growing on the face. It was not an infrequent sight to see the old men, the youths approaching manhood, and the middle-aged fellows, too, squatted on the grass, with bits of mirrors before them, busily at work pulling from their faces with fine nippers, the sprouts of growing beard. Even the squaws were engaged in a like occupation, pulling unmercifully at their eye-brows until every barb was removed, and then covering over the face with red, green, or some other colored paint. In all that camp there was not an aborigine with the slightest suspicion of hair on his or her face, the efforts of the missionaries having been successful in every other particular excepting this one barbarous custom, and the highly civilized occupation of horse stealing. The writer never has in all his plains experience seen but one bearded Indian. He was a Northern Cheyenne, and seemed very proud of a fiery red mustache, which gained him more than usual attention from the squaws. He was, however, not on speaking terms with his male neighbors, who regarded him somewhat as we do our modern nineteenth century dudes.—Philadelphia Record.

Terrible Are the Ravages

Upon the system inflicted by diseases of the kidneys and bladder. They wreck the constitution more speedily in some cases than consumption and other maladies of a fatal pulmonary type. As you value your life, arrest a tendency to debility, and consequent inactivity of the renal organs, should you experience any such. Infuse vigor and activity into the vitally important secretory action of the kidneys with that salutary diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The proper degree of stimulation is imparted by it to the bladder also, when that organ is sluggish. With this timely check, Bright's disease, diabetes, catarrh of the bladder, and other kindred disorders, may be prevented. Liver complaint, constipation, nervous ailments, and rheumatism are likewise conquerable with this sovereign household remedy. Against the effects of exposure in damp or otherwise inclement weather, it is a benign safeguard, and revives strength after undue fatigue.

PROF. A. G. BOURNE has made a number of experiments of three species of scorpions found at Madras, with the object of determining whether the popular notion that scorpions can commit suicide is true. He finds that it is undoubtedly physically impossible for a scorpion to sting itself in a vulnerable place, and when one is placed in very unpleasant circumstances it not unfrequently lashes its tail about, which causes actual penetration of the sting. But the poison of a scorpion is quite powerless to kill the same individual or another of the same or even of another species. Two scorpions, when fighting, repeatedly sting one another with little if any effect, the stronger killing the weaker by tearing it to pieces. The poison may be pressed out of the sting with the fingers of a pair of forceps, when it is found to be a milky white fluid, with very pungent smell, resembling that of formic acid.

Food makes Blood and Blood makes Beauty. Improper digestion of food necessarily produces bad blood, resulting in a feeling of fullness in the stomach, acidity, heartburn, sick-headache, and other dyspeptic symptoms. A closely confined life causes indigestion, constipation, biliousness, and loss of appetite. To remove these troubles there is no remedy equal to Prickly Ash Bitters. It has been tried and proven to be a specific.

An Irishman claims that the O'Rientals came from the old sod originally.—Siftings.

Lyon's Patent Metallic Buffers prevent boots and shoes from running over, ripping in the seams or wearing unevenly on the heels.

Make No Mistake

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion and preparation, curative power superior to any other article of the kind before the people.

"In one store the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's Sarsaparilla. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was, I had taken it, was perfectly satisfied with it, and did not want any other." Mrs. ELLA A. GORF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

332 PANTS

HANDSOME, STYLISH PANTS

Made to order in latest style. Perfect fit guaranteed or money refunded.

For samples of cloth and 4 foot tape measure (worth 10c.) send 3 c. stamp. Circulars Free.

Established

332 SHOES

OUR FULL SEAMLESS SHOES

beat the world. Made in sizes and styles to please. Perfect fit guaranteed.

We refer to any Bank, Express Co., or leading Business house in this city.

1877.

THE HUNTER CINCINNATI, O. MFG CO.

KIDDER'S

DIGESTYLIN

A SURE CURE FOR

INDIGESTION AND DYSPEPSIA.

Over 3,000 Physicians have sent us their approval of DIGESTYLIN, saying that it is the best preparation for indigestion that they have ever used.

We have never heard of a case of Dyspepsia where DIGESTYLIN was taken that was not cured.

FOR CHOLERA INFANTUM.

IT WILL CURE THE MOST AGGRAVATED CASES. IT WILL STOP VOMITING IN PREGNANCY. IT WILL RELIEVE CONSTIPATION.

For Summer Complaints and Chronic Diarrhea, DIGESTYLIN will effect an immediate cure.

Take DIGESTYLIN for all pains and disorders of the stomach; they all come from indigestion. Ask your druggist for DIGESTYLIN (price $1 per large bottle). If he does not have it, send one dollar to us and we will send a bottle to you, express prepaid. Do not hesitate to send your money. Our house is reliable. Established twenty-five years.

WM. F. KIDDER & CO.,

Manufacturing Chemists, 83 John St., N. Y.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

IT IS A PURELY VEGETABLE PREPARATION CONTAINING PRICKLY ASH BARK AND PRICKLY ASH BERRIES SENNA-MANDRAKE-BUCHU AND OTHER EQUALLY EFFICIENT REMEDIES

Zeit der Zeit seines Bestehens ist der Prickly Ash Bitters als ein Universalmittel zum Beseitigen des Uebels, zur Stärkung der Leber, Galle, Nieren und des Magens bekannt.

Thayephta, Vertigo, Schwindel, Uebelkeit, Kopfweh, Nerven, leicht und schnell beseitigt durch den heilbringenden Einfluss des Prickly Ash Bitters.

Der Prickly Ash Bitters ist ein paradiesisches Magenmittel, und kann folglich nicht als ein Getränk gebraucht werden, obwohl es durch seinen angenehmen Geschmack dazu berechtigt wäre.

Prickly Ash Bitters Co. Allein. Eigentümers, St. Louis & Kansas City.

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females, at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in nicely adapting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of woman's peculiar maladies.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful remedy ever devised for the relief and cure of suffering women. It is not recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect specific for woman's peculiar ailments.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and to the womb and its appendages in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nerve, "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. For morning sickness, or nausea, from whatever cause arising, weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia and kindred symptoms, its use, in small doses, will prove very beneficial.

"Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhoea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, weak back, female weakness, anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

As a regulator and promoter of functional action, at that critical period of change from girlhood to womanhood, "Favorite Prescription" is a perfectly safe remedial agent, and can produce only good results. It is equally efficacious and valuable in its effects when taken for those disorders and derangements incident to that later and most critical period, known as "The Change of Life."

"Favorite Prescription," when taken in connection with the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and small laxative doses of Dr. Pierce's Purgative Pellets (Little Liver Pills), cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder diseases. Their combined use also removes blood taints, and abolishes cancerous and scrofulous humors from the system.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, that the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Large bottles (100 doses) $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

For large, illustrated Treatise on Diseases of Women (100 pages, paper-covered), send ten cents in stamps. Address,

World's Dispensary Medical Association, 603 Main St., BUFFALO, N. Y.

OLD is worth $500 per pound, Pettit's Eye Salve $1.00, but is sold at 25 cents a box by dealers.

MORT & WILL OLDS PUBLISHERS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year, in advance ..... $0.75
Six Months ..... 50
Three Months ..... 25

Entered at the Post Office at St. Joe as second-class matter

FRIDAY OCTOBER 11, 1887

Edward Scoville, an old settler of Newville township, died Wednesday.

Communion services at the Lutheran church Sunday morning at half past ten o'clock. All are invited.

George Hamm went to Chicago last week and had such a good time that he went again this week, and took his wife with him.

Wills Sanders has secured the job of running the B. & O. pump at this place, and will not move to Garrett, as we stated last week.

The highest denomination of U. S. legal tender notes is ten thousand dollars. They are scarce, though, and are mostly in the hands of the government.

Dan Baker found part of a pack of cards in a load of wheat that was unloaded at the elevator the other day. Dan don't know whether he holds a full hand or not.

A Deliaed editor offers to send his paper a year free, to every new born baby in the county. We would not dare make such an offer as that, or it would bankrupt us.

Miss Jessie Wentz, who has been visiting in this place for some time, returned to her home in Tiffin, Ohio, last Tuesday. The drug clerk and the mail carrier are both feeling bad over her departure.

Wonder what kind of a grudge the Waterloo Press has got against us? Several times recently they have sent us a paper that had the appearance of being struck by lightning just about the time it was printed.

James Draggoo brought in a stalk of corn last week that measured just thirteen feet long. That lays Ad and Fred Johnson in the shade, and unless somebody can beat that, James will be entitled to the cigars.

St. Joe has a Chautauqua circle. That town is coming right out of the woods.—Auburn Dispatch. Oh pshaw! now, Mr. Dispatch man, St. Joe has had a Chautauqua circle for over two years. Its Auburn that's just getting out of the brush.

A pension examiner from Washington, was in town last Tuesday, to enquire into the granting of a pension to Wm. Young, an old man who is at present staying with Jake Schler. There is no doubt but what Mr. Young is entitled to a pension, and we understand that a favorable report was obtained and it will probably be granted.

WONDERFUL CURES.—W. D. Hoyt & Co., Wholesale and Retail Druggists of Rome Ga., say: We have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery, Electric Bitters and Bucklen's Arnica Salve for four years. Have never handled remedies that sell as well, or give such universal satisfaction. There have been some wonderful cures effected by these medicines in this city. Several cases of pronounced Consumption have been entirely cured by use of a few bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery, taken in connection with Electric Bitters. We guarantee them always. Sold by C. Patterson.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

SPENCERVILLE.

Jacob Baltz Jr. returned from Tiffin Saturday.

J. A. Provines has give his awning a fresh coat of paint.

Miss Bell Scott went to Angola Wednesday to attend the fair.

Miss Minnie Provines has been spending a few days at Auburn

Miss Rallie Murphy, of Leo, visited friends in town over Sunday.

The home of Job C. Smith has been made happy by the arrival of a boy baby.

Call on P. Bishop for your fall and winter goods. Largest stock at lowest prices.

Miss Rena Fryberger has returned from Hudson where she has been visiting friends.

Grace Zimmerman entertained a number of her little friends last Saturday afternoon, it being her ninth birthday.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather Sunday, the communion services at the Lutheran church were postponed for two weeks.

Another wedding.—Kell Hart and Miss Mattie Smith were married Sunday evening, at five o'clock, at the residence of C. A. Rhodes, Rev. Curry officiating. The happy couple left the first of the week for Angola where they will spend a few days.

CONCORD.

Dan Herriek will move to St. Joe about the first of November.

John Guysinger visited his brother in Mooresville on Sunday of last week.

Jake White and family are very comfortably settled in their new house.

Mrs. Dan Herriek has been entertaining a cousin from Lansing, for a few days.

The debating society was organized last Friday evening at the Jenkins school house.

Ed. White and wife, and Mrs. Engle of St. Joe, attended the birthday party last Monday.

Mrs. Wm. Pervines started to Ohio last Thursday, and expects to remain about three weeks.

Dan Morr, wife and daughter were at Goshen last Sunday attending the funeral of Mrs. Morr's father.

Grandma Buchanan and daughter visited Saturday and Sunday of last week in the family of S. Plattner.

Wm. Johnson, Jake White and others started for the big woods last Tuesday, to enjoy a week or two in hunting.

Mann Film thinks that Indiana will compare favorably with any of the states farther west, and is content to settle down among us for life.

James Draggoo, wife and two daughters, started for Kansas last Monday to visit Mrs. Draggoo's brother, and possibly, to look up a new home.

Mrs. Jones and daughters, of near Bryan, came up last Friday to celebrate Mrs. Fetter's birthday. She brought some beautiful presents in honor of the occasion.

Abe Culberson has sold the old homestead to his brother Aleck, and in the spring Abe will build on what is known as the Rhodes farm which he purchased of his brother Richard.

Friends and neighbors to the number of about sixty, gathered at the residence of Mart White to celebrate his birthday last Monday. The presents were useful as well as ornamental. If any are desirous of knowing whether it was good to be there or not, just ask Blanche Jenkins if all had a good time. Her mother won't let her go to any more birthday parties.

EXAMINE THE LARGEST, FINEST,

AND MOST COMPLETE LINE OF

Men's, Ladies', Misses' & Children's FINE SHOES.

Ever exhibited in St. Joe. They comprise the most popular brands, such as Reed, Weaver, Gokey & Son, &c. The buttons will be reset on shoes purchased of us with Wilkin's patent fasteners. Call on

J. D. LEIGHTY, ST. JOE.

J. H. CONRAD.

Wash morning is sure to come and of course now and then your boiler will give out and you will be compelled to get a new one. In that case call on J. H. Conrad, St. Joe, and get one of those splendid one-dollar boilers.

Mrs. Ella Lucas, of West Virginia, is here for a few weeks taking care of her sister, Mrs. P. A. Shurts, who has been dangerously ill for the past six weeks, and at present is but very little better.

Mr. Fernald formerly of this neighborhood, but for a few years a resident of Goshen, died very suddenly of apoplexy in Nebraska while on a visit to his son. His remains were brought home, and interred in the Goshen cemetery last Sunday.

Lyman Knight has been employed to teach the Hay school, the winter term, and Fred Jenkins, the Carr school, and Ida Scholes the Jenkins school. They are all efficient teachers and we have no doubts in our mind but that the schools will be a success.

Dan Shilling had a run-away last Thursday. As he started down the hill east of grandpa Baker's, the wagon struck against the horses heels and frightened them. Dan and one of the boys were thrown out, the wagon running over Dan, hurting him slightly. By the time the team got in front of John Fetter's barn, the wagon was pretty badly broken to pieces. The next day the same team attempted to run again, but he was on the look-out and managed them better.

A barrel of fresh cranberries just received at Tustison's grocery.

The contract for digging the Hart ditch will be sold at this place next Wednesday at one o'clock.

The Y. P. T. L. A. will meet at the residence of Rev. Langley, on Wednesday evening, Oct. 19th.

The little folks enjoyed a pleasant party at Miss Rusha Warner's, on Wednesday afternoon, in honor of the birthday of Miss Myra Hart.

Estrayed, from the farm of Samuel Widney, a black, spotted sow, with rings in her nose, and weighs about 275 pounds. A liberal reward will be paid for her return or any information in regard to the same.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

Trains leave St. Joe as follows WEST BOUND.

No. 9 Mail and Express 11:05 A.
17 Accommodation 4:18 P. M.
3 Chicago Express 10:42 P. M.
35 Local Freight 3:42 P. M.

EAST BOUND.

No. 10 Express and Mail 2:08 P. M.
16 Accommodation 10:28 A. M.
4 Morning Express 4:15 A. M.
34 Local Freight 7:50 A. M.

W. J. McKee, Agent

ST. JOE MARKETS.

CORRECTED EVERY FRIDAY.

Wheat ..... 71
Oats ..... 27 cts.
Corn ..... 35 cts.
Butter ..... 15 cts.
Eggs ..... 15 cts.
Tallow ..... 3 1/2 cts.
Lard ..... 10 cts.
Potatoes ..... 80 cts.

New Goods Arriving Daily!

CALL ON US FOR

BIG BARGAINS.

FULL LINE OF

LADIES CLOAKS AND WRAPS.

FINE STOCK OF CLOTHING ON HAND.

HEATING & COOK STOVES A SPECIALTY.

S. & F. BARNEY, ST. JOE, IND.

We just want to call your attention to three things this week that we want you to know.

1st. The finest line of Clocks, Watches and Jewelry in St. Joe can be found at the Drugstore.

2nd. Nobody carries a finer line of Ladies Hand Bags as the St. Joe Drugstore.

3rd. The only place in St. Joe to find a line of Fine Perfumeries is at the Drugstore.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by W. C. Patterson.

W. C. PATTERSON.

at the St. Joe Drugstore, repairs Clocks, Watches and Jewelry. All work warranted and prices reasonable. Give me your work.

LOCALS.

Will Gee thinks of leaving St. Joe.

The sour-knot crop will be short this year.

The grand jury is grinding out a grist this week.

A wreck near Chicago, Tuesday, killed twenty people.

The new church at Spencerville will not be finished this fall.

The addition to the school house cost fourteen hundred dollars.

J. W. Pills caught a pickerel Monday that weighed 11½ pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. John Leighty have been visiting friends at Muncie for the past week.

The Lutheran church at this place has been undergoing some needed improvements.

Raven's Food prevents cholera and will make chickens lay. Try it. Sold by W. C. Patterson.

A reunion of the Jones and Chaney families, was held at Dr. Bowman's residence in this place yesterday.

The Hicksville soldier's reunion was a grand success. In fact, every thing that town has is a success, unless it is a saloon.

Those 50 cent 52 inch all wool Dress Flannels at Case & Olds are selling off rapidly. They are bargains that are not picked up every day.

Miss Narcissa E. White will deliver a lecture on temperance in the M. P. church in St. Joe, on Sunday evening, Oct. 23, 1887. She has a world-wide reputation. All are cordially invited.

The machinery for the roller process in the mill at Spencerville was shipped here this week, and taken to that place. We don't begrudge Spencerville her roller mill, but we would be mighty glad if we had one here. That's what.

Blessed are those who advertise in the papers, for they shall be full of business.

Wm. Lehigh bought in and shipped a car load of cider apples from this place this week. Fifteen cents per bushel was the price paid.

If the friends will bring in a few more sample ears of extra large corn and a few more potatoes, we think we'll be able to get through the winter.

Some one has figured out that it costs over four thousand dollars to raise a boy until he is twenty years old. The best way to raise some boys is to take a leather strap.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Patterson of Hicksville, visited friends in town last week. A democratic administration must agree with Andrew, for he is enjoying better health than in former years.

The Ninth Annual Reunion of the surviving members of the 44th Regiment, Indiana Volunteers, will be held at Waterloo, Thursday, October 20th. A number from this neighborhood will attend.

Stephen Baker has bought the building on Wm. Stamen's farm, formerly occupied by them as a residence, and is moving it on to his farm this week, to be used by them as a dwelling. It will make a pleasant home. Hart Bros., of this place, done the moving.

Notwithstanding the exceeding dampness of the weather last Sunday there was a fair attendance at Sunday school and church. We heard a lady remark that people seem to turn out here, even if it does rain. St. Joe people are not afraid of water, let it sprinkle, pour or come down in bucket-fuls.

A brakeman who's name we were unable to learn, came near being seriously injured, at the depot in this place last Monday. In coupling two cars, as they came together, in some way the pin flew out, striking the brakeman in the head and knocked him down. He fell between the moving cars and but for the timely assistance of the conductor, who was standing near, and who grabbed him, and drew him out from beneath the cars, he would certainly have been run over and probably killed.

Vester Wilney returned last Friday, from a three week's visit in Ohio. He spent most of the time with his sister, Mrs. Etta Bowen, and together with them visited Sandusky, Titlin, Norwalk, and other places. They also attended several of the fairs in that vicinity. This was Vester's first experience in railroad traveling, and to one in his condition, who is deprived of many of the pleasures of life, it was one of great enjoyment, and no doubt the recollections of it will long linger in his memory.

Although many years have passed since it's first introduction, yet a majority of people at the present time seem to be as partial to a piece of good pumpkin pie as they was in our grandfather's days. This fact was fully verified at the social given by members of the Christian church, in the Volmar building, last Friday evening. The ladies had prepared a hundred pies, but it wasn't any too many to satisfy the demands of a hungry crowd, who probably hadn't engaged in the luxury of a pumpkin pie since last pumpkin time. The social was largely attended; quite a number being present from Newville and Coburntown. Some excellent music was rendered by the Newville choir, under the direction of Mr. Cornie Wartenbee, and also the choir here sang some good selections. The occasion was a very pleasant one, and all enjoyed it. The proceeds were about $24.

CRACK THESE NUTS!

All Wool Dress Flannels, 52 inches wide, only 50 cts.
Fancy Striped Worsted Dress goods reduced to 45 cts.
Big line of Canton Flannels at 8, 10 and 12 cts.
Best and Cheapest line of Men's and Ladies' Underwear in town.
Elegant line of Toboggan Caps at 25 cents.
Ladies' Cloaks and Jackets at prices that defy all competition.
Goods usually sold at 20 and 25 cts we sell at 5 and 10 cts.

CASE & OLDS, ST. JOE.

TRUTH IS MOST AND WILL PREVAIL.

LOOK THIS WAY!

I keep on hand a fine line of Furniture, which I will sell for the next 30 days at prices that defy competition. Glass Cupboards $8.50. Double Cane Seat and Back Rockers $2. Dressing Case, with French Plate Glass $12.00. Carpet Lounges $6.50. Solid Comfort Beds for $2.25. Undertaking a speciality.

August Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.

M. TUSTISON,

—DEALER IN—

Groceries, Flour,

PROVISIONS,

CANDIES, GIGARS, TOBACCO

Canned Fruits, Beans, Dried Beans, Cheese, Bologna &c. Produce taken in exchange for goods.

ST. JOE, IND.

ANOTHER PIONEER GONE.

Mrs. Nelson Ulm died very suddenly of heart disease, at her home near Concord, Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock. Of late she has been more or less subject to attacks of heart disease, but was feeling about as well as usual, and on that evening prepared supper, done up her work and retired at her usual hour. Mr. Ulm read awhile and then went to bed a little before eight o'clock. He perhaps had not been in bed ten minutes when he noticed that something was wrong with his wife. He immediately got up, and at a glance saw that she was very sick. Being alone, he hurried to the nearest neighbor for assistance, and but a few minutes after their arrival, she was dead. Mr. and Mrs. Ulm were among the very earliest settlers along the St. Joe river. They were married in 1837, and were the first couple ever married in the county. The funeral occurred Thursday at Spencerville, after which the body was laid to rest in the cemetery at that place. Thus one by one are the old landmarks passing away, and soon none will be left to tell the story of early pioneer days in De Kalb county.

For Sale.

A good one and a half story dwelling and lot, situated in St. Joe, for sale at a bargain. For particulars call on or address A. M. Richards, Hicksville, O.

For Sale.

House and lot on Main street, St. Joe, Ind. For further particulars call on J. M. Lounsbury. Will sell cheap and on easy terms.

Rebecca McDonald

Farm for Sale.

I offer at private sale, a good well improved farm, 1 mile north of Concord, and 2½ miles north-west of St. Joe, 7 miles east of Auburn. It has 120 acres, 85 in good cultivation, good substantial buildings, good well, good orchard and everything in good farming order. Terms reasonable and payments easy. For particulars inquire of J. C. St. Clair, 1½ miles south of Waterloo.

J. C. St. Clair, Waterloo, Ind.

Farm for Sale or Trade.

Said farm consists of 160 acres 120 well improved. Good building, nearly new bank barn, 40 x 70, painted in good style, good timber, running water &c. Will sell cheap, or take a small farm in exchange and will give long time to pay the difference. Farm lays 3 miles north of St. Joe, and 7½ miles east of Auburn. Reason for selling, have no help.

A. E. Swineford, St. Joe, Ind.

The Angola fair is being held this week.

The Gaudes Rubber Boots and Shoes are the best in the market. Sold only by Case & Olds.

The W. O. T. U. will meet at the home of Rev. J. M. Langley, on Thursday, Oct. 20th, at 2:30 o'clock. An invitation is extended to all.

Burglars broke into Ainsworth, Boon & Bevington's store, at Hicksville, one night last week and carried off goods to the amount of $50.00.

PERSONAL.—Mr. N. H. Frohlichstein, of Mobile, Ala., writes: I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, having used it for a severe attack of Bronchitis and Catarrh. It gave me instant relief and entirely cured me and I have not been afflicted since. I also beg to state that I had tried other remedies with no good result. Have also used Electric Bitters and Dr. King's New Life Pills, both of which I can recommend.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, is sold on a positive guarantee. Trial bottles free at W. C. Patterson's Drug Store.

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

MORT & WILL OLDS, PUBLISHERS.

EVENTS OF A WEEK.

THE OLD WORLD.

—The Vatican is greatly disturbed by a visitation of cholera, of which an officer of the Pontifical guard is the victim. Every precaution will be taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

—Russia has accepted the Porte's proposal to send an Ottoman Commissioner to Bulgaria to act in conjunction with a Russian Lieutenant Governor of princely rank, but Russia wants her representative to be the superior in rank.

—Berlin dispatches announce that the triple alliance, so long desired by Italy, has been consummated, by which Russia's ambitious schemes have been frustrated, and Italy has gained a prestige she has always lacked. The London dispatches represent that constellations was caused at St. Petersburg when the alliance became known. The alliance is regarded as a menace to Russia, and the peace of Europe is assured for the present.

PERSONAL NOTES.

—President Cleveland made a flying visit to the International Military Encampment in the western end of Chicago, on Thursday morning, after which he hurried to the Northwestern Depot, and was whirled away in the direction of Milwaukee. The scenes along the way from Chicago were of the usual character. At Evanston there was a brass band, a parade and a triumphal arch of evergreens. At Racine flags could be seen flying over the town a mile away. At smaller stations all the country population roundabout was in waiting, and even the plowmen in the fields had their horses bedecked with flags and ribbons. At Milwaukee an elaborate reception programme had been arranged, and was duly carried out. An immense crowd was waiting at the depot, and the streets along the line of procession were packed closely with people. Mayor Waller delivered an address of welcome and the President replied as follows:

I am very glad to have an opportunity, though the time allowed is very brief, to meet the people of Wisconsin's chief city. Since we left home, and in passing through different States on our way, there has been presented to us a variety of physical features characteristic of their diversity in soil and conformation. But the people we have met at all points have been the same in their energy and activity, in their local pride, and in that peculiar trait of American character which produces the belief, firmly adhered to by every individual, that his particular place of residence is the chosen and most favored spot which the world contains. This condition creates an aggregate of sentiment invincible in operation, furnishing the motive power which has brought about the stupendous growth and development of our country. But there has been another element of character displayed among the people everywhere on our travels which has been universal, and not disturbed or changed by any difference in place or circumstance. No State lines have circumscribed, no local pride has distinguished, and no business activity has in the least stifled the kindness and cordiality of the people's welcome. There is bitterness enough in the partisan feeling which seems inseparable from our political methods; but the good people of the United States have, I believe, decreed that there are occasions when this shall have no place. This is well manifested today in our hearty greeting by the people of Wisconsin and this active, stirring city. Municipal enterprise has added much to the natural beauty of your metropolis, as is attested by your pleasant streets and handsome homes, with their surroundings. But its great increase in population, its manufactures, and its trade demonstrate that its citizens have not been content with beauty alone. I cannot forget my interest in municipal affairs, arising from an active experience at one time in city government; and I find myself very much inclined to scrutinize such statements as fall under my eye demonstrating their financial condition. With all its extensive public improvements, unless I am much at fault, the city of Milwaukee has less of public debt than any city of its population in the United States, excepting one. In these days, when the temptation to local public extravagance is not often enough withstood, you may well be proud of this exhibit; and besides the satisfaction which this financial condition produces, it has a practical side to it. Large enterprises are often much influenced in their location by such considerations, and they are apt to be established where the burden of taxation is the least, and where the share of public indebtedness to be borne by them is the smallest.

—President Cleveland and party drove to the Soldiers' Home, near Milwaukee, on Friday morning, and at 10:30 left for Madison. A rapid run was made, and at 1 o'clock the capital of Wisconsin was reached. An enthusiastic crowd of people met them at the depot, and in their eagerness quite overwhelmed the police force stationed to preserve order. The inevitable procession followed soon after the arrival of the distinguished guests. Chief Justice Cole delivered an address of welcome, and the President responded briefly. Saturday the President went on a fishing excursion with Mr. Vilas. Sunday was spent quietly at the home of the Postmaster General in Madison.

—President Cleveland, Postmaster General Vilas, Colonel Dan Lamont, Dr. J. D. Bryant, and M. A. Bissell went fishing in Mendota Lake, near Madison, Wis. But a few moments passed till beautiful yellow bass were one after another brought out wriggling and twisting in a vain endeavor to free themselves from the hook. The President was not without his share of luck. With a light trout rod in hand he deftly guided the line as the fish began to bite, and his patience was soon rewarded by the safe landing of a magnificent specimen of yellow bass. This was quickly followed by others, until seven or eight fine fish as ever bit had succumbed to his skill. Two of these were large, weighing fully five pounds each. The President was delighted. He said the fishing far exceeded anything he ever had in the St. Lawrence country. One particularly fine specimen required fully twenty minutes to land, so large was he and savage in his plunges after he took the hook. The President and Mrs. Cleveland spent Sunday quietly at the home of Postmaster General Vilas. They had expected to attend church, but were deterred by the inclemency of the weather. They left Madison on Monday morning at 4 o'clock for St. Paul.

POLITICAL POINTS.

—The National Greenback party of New York State assembled in convention at Albany and nominated a full State ticket, headed by the Rev. Thomas K. Beecher for Secretary of State. This makes seven tickets in the field—those of the Republican, Democratic, Prohibition, George of United Labor, Socialist, and Union Labor parties. The National Reformers propose also to run a ticket. The platform calls for the issue of paper currency to the amount of $50 per capita on the whole population of the country, and warns owners of Government bonds that unless this is done "the American people's banks will be broken, as there are more chips on the table than there is money in the box to redeem them with." It denounces the Republican, Democratic, and George parties, although it sympathizes with ex-Father McGlynn in his struggle against the Pope. Boards of trade are denounced as gambling-hells that subvert the morals of society and business.

—The Nebraska Republicans had a lively two days' session at Lincoln. The issue was between the railroads of the State and the people. The railroads attempted to defeat the renomination of Judge Maxwell for the Supreme bench, and to squelch all attempts to adopt resolutions favoring an extra session of the Legislature for the enactment of additional railway legislation. Five hundred and fifty delegates were present. George D. Micklejohn, of Nance County, presided. Judge Maxwell was renominated for Supreme Judge with a hurrah, only one ballot being required to settle the matter. The platform condemns a system of revenue that compels the farmers of the West to pay tribute to the manufacturers of the East, favors pensioning Union soldiers, sympathizes with Ireland, commends the efforts of Parnell and Gladstone, pledges the party to submit a prohibitory amendment, condemns the President for his attempt to return the flag, favors the admission of Dakota, views with alarm the abuse of the veto power of the President, and sustains the Board of Transportation in its efforts to secure reasonable freight and passenger rates.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL.

—The long and bitter telegraph war, the severest the Western Union Telegraph Company ever engaged in, is ended at last. The Western Union Company has purchased, through the bankers who saved the Baltimore and Ohio Company from the hands of a receiver, the Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph property for just one-half what the Baltimore and Ohio people say it cost them. The only opposition now left to the Western Union is the United Lines, an aggregation of smaller bankrupt concerns which poverty brought together, and which exist through the generosity of John W. Mackay. The price paid is $5,000,000, par value of Western Union Telegraph stock, which, at $80 a share, would be equivalent to about $4,000,000 in cash.

—The Knights of Labor are waging a vigorous war against Sunday work at Erie, Pennsylvania. They have compelled the Anchor Line Transportation Company to stop business Sundays by prosecuting their employees, and they propose to serve the street-railway companies in the same way. These prosecutions are being carried on under an act that was passed in 1794.

THE CRIMINAL RECORD.

—At Cincinnati, Charles Doll, ex-member of the Board of Public Works, was sentenced to two years in the Penitentiary for having misappropriated city funds.

—In the United States Circuit Court at Richmond, Va., Judge Bond fined Attorney General Ayers $500 for bringing suits under the law known as the "coupon-cruiser," in disobedience of his injunction order, and committed him to the custody of the Marshal until the fines were paid. He also fined the State Attorneys of Fauquier and Loudoun counties for disobeying the same order, and committed them until the fines are paid and the suits brought are dismissed.

—If the report from Tucson, Arizona, is true a little light is shed upon the recent Indian troubles in the far Southwest. It is stated that the United States Grand Jury has discovered that an organized band of cattle thieves, with which prominent citizens are connected, have been stealing cattle from the Indians on the San Carlos Reservation during the last year.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

—Eastern railroad managers have decided that traveling theatrical companies are not "families," and are not therefore entitled to travel upon family mileage tickets.

FIRES AND ACCIDENTS.

—The propeller California, laden with corn and pork, was wrecked off St. Helena Island, near Mackinaw City, Mich., Tuesday morning. Of the twenty-seven persons on board, thirteen perished. A St. Ignace dispatch gives the following particulars of the disaster:

The California left Chicago, bound for Montreal, Saturday night, with a crew of twenty-two and five passengers. Monday morning at 5 o'clock, when off Beaver Island, she was struck by a gale from the northwest. Toward midnight the sea was running so high that it was impossible to steer her. Three hundred barrels of pork were thrown overboard, but it did not relieve the steamer. It was then determined to beach her above St. Helena Island, and the passengers and crew were provided with life-preservers and told to make ready for the final struggle when the steamer should strike. At 1 o'clock the wind having increased to a hurricane and the waves running high, the gangways were stove in, and the water swept into the hold, extinguishing the fires. It was thought that she would drift ashore on St. Helena Island. Suddenly the steamer lurched to starboard and the Captain ordered the boat launched. As soon as it was lowered the Captain went into the cabin to get the passengers, and when he returned to the deck he found that the first mate and several of the crew had taken the boat and left. It was the most cold-blooded outrage ever perpetrated on the lakes. Helpless women and all of the passengers were abandoned and left to drown by the cowardly mate and deck hands. The steamer now began to settle rapidly, and in a few minutes she rolled over on her starboard side and went down. Those that remained on the wreck found themselves struggling in the water. Luckily for them when the steamer sank she went down so suddenly that the top of the cabin was torn off, and toward this they fought their way among flying timbers. The Captain and engineer succeeded in reaching the cabin and getting a boat that was hanging to the davits. They immediately began rendering aid to those struggling in the water. One lady passenger and the second engineer and stewardess were all that could be found. Their boat drifted alongside the Folsom, and they were taken on board and kindly cared for until landed here.

—The tug Orient was lost during the recent heavy storm on Lake Erie. She went down a short distance above Point Pelee, and her loss was witnessed by the crews of several vessels, which could render no help, because of the heavy sea. The tug drifted for a time before sinking, the seas having extinguished her fires. When she went down the crew were bailing the water out of her with buckets. She had six men on board, all of whom found watery graves.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

—The Mormon Constitutional Convention at Salt Lake City has prepared a memorial to Congress praying for the admission of Utah into the union.

—The General Land Office at Washington is in receipt of information that a British syndicate, which is said to have purchased a large tract of land in Iowa from the McGregor Western Railroad Company, is mercilessly evicting settlers, the title to the land being in dispute in the State courts. A settler writes:

Women over 60 years of age, sick in bed, have been taken by six men and carried out into the driving storm. Delicate women have had their hands tied with cords till their flesh was bruised, and then dragged shrieking from their homes. Children have been born prematurely at sight of the band of evictors. Strong men have been run down by ruffians on horseback, and then handcuffed and dragged from their life possessions. I might go on and multiply instances where the Sheriff, with a writ of ejectment in one hand and a British contract in the other, gave these poor people their choice between these two evils, which they would take.

Attidavits of the cruelties practiced are being collected, says this writer, for use at Washington this winter, and will be read in both houses of Congress. They are expected to create a sensation when the people of the East are brought fully to realize what the native American pioneers are suffering at the hands of the new invaders. It is said that no official information has been received on the subject at the Interior Department.

—Ammi Baldwin, who was cashier of the Fidelity National Bank of Cincinnati, the disastrous collapse of which institution was one of the most dramatic incidents in the great Chicago wheat deal, has made a startling confession, making damaging charges against Harber and others in connection with the failure.

M. T. BISHOP,

—DEALER IN—

LUMBER, LIME,

—LITH—

SHINGLES,

MOULDING &c.

Large Stock and Low Prices Yard Near Depot, St. Joe, Ind.

J. F. WALKER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

Harness, Collars,

WHIPS, HARNESS OIL &c

ST. JOE, IND.

Repairing done promptly. Prices as low as the lowest. Call and see.

WILLIAM CURIE,

PROPRIETOR OF

MEAT MARKET

ST. JOE, IND.

Highest market price paid for Hides, Tallow &c. Give me a call.

F. A. ZEIGLER,

MAKER AND DEALER IN

HARNESS

COLLARS, WHIPS,

Fly Nets and Dusters,

HARNESS OIL &c.

Prices the Lowest. All work guaranteed. Call and see me.

Blacksmith

AND

Repair Shop.

Having secured the services of an experienced workman, I am now prepared to do all kinds of Blacksmithing and Repairing in a first-class manner. Special attention given to repairing machinery. Give me a call. Prices reasonable.

A. W. Hall, St. Joe.

Trying Hour for Mark.
As every one knows, Mr. Clemens first met his beautiful wife while on the famous voyage of the Quaker City, and he pursued his acquaintance after their return so closely that at last the young lady's papa one day called the ardent and devoted Mark into his private study and said, after some preamble:

"Mr. Clemens, I have something to say to you which bears upon a subject of grave importance, at least to me and mine. You have been coming here for some time, and your manner leaves no doubt in my mind as to your object. Now, my daughter's welfare is very dear to me, and before I can admit you to her society on the footing of a suitor to her hand I would like to know something more than I do about you and your antecedents, etc. Stop a minute. You must remember that a man may be a 'good fellow' and a pleasant companion on a voyage, and all that, but when it is a question as grave as this a wise father tries to take every precaution before allowing his daughter's affections to become engaged, and I ask of you, as a gentleman, that you shall give me the names of some of your friends in California, to whom I may write and make such inquiries as I deem necessary; that is if you still desire our friendship."

It was now Mark Twain's turn. "Sir," said he, bowing profoundly, as became a young man who respects his hoped-for father-in-law, "your sentiments are in every way correct. I approve of them myself, and hasten to add that you have not been mistaken in my sentiments toward your daughter, whom, I may tell you candidly, seems to me to be the most perfect of her sex, and I honor your solicitation for her welfare. I am not only perfectly willing to give you references, but I am only too glad to have an opportunity to do so, which my natural modesty would have prevented me from offering. Therefore permit me to give you the names of a few of my friends. I will write them down. First is Lieutenant General John McComb, Alexander Badlam, General Lander, and Colonel W. H. L. Barnes. They would all lie for me just as I would for them under like circumstances."

This conclusion broke the old man all up, and he never asked more references nor wrote to those gentlemen.—Indianapolis Journal.

He Was Basely Deceived.
"I say, stranger," whispered a Western man who had strayed in a theater where "Romeo and Juliet" was going on, "I can't make head nor tail of this thing. What's the name of this play, anyhow?"

"Romeo and Juliet."

"Well, if I'd known that," said the disgusted Westerner, "I wouldn't have come in. I understood the feller at the door to say it was something about Omaha and Juliet." — Philadelphia Telegraph.

She scolds and frets,
She's full of petts,
She's fairly kind and tender;
The thorn of life
Is a fretful wife—
I wonder what will mend her?

Try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Ten to one, your wife is cross and fretful because she is sick and suffering, and cannot control her nervousness when things go wrong. Make a healthy woman of her and the chances are you will make a cheerful and pleasant one. "Favorite Prescription" is the only remedy for woman's peculiar ailments, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturer, that it will give satisfaction in every case or money will be refunded. See guarantee on bottle wrapper. Large bottles, $1. Six for $5.

WHEN are sportsmen like fashionable tailors? When they make good "bugs."

Prof. Loissette's Memory Discovery.
No doubt can be entertained about the value and genuineness of Prof. Loissette's Memory System, as it is so strongly recommended by Mark Twain, Mr. Proctor, Hons. W. W. Astor, Judah P. Benjamin, Dr. Buckley, and others. For full details send for Prof. L.'s prospectus, at 237 Fifth Ave., New York. From it the System is taught by correspondence quite as well as by personal instruction. Colleges near New York have secured his lectures. He has had 100 Columbia Law students, two classes of 200 each at Yale, 300 at Meriden, 250 at Norwich, 400 at Wellesley College, and 400 at University of Penn. We cannot conceive how a system could receive any higher indorsement.

The Favorite Line to California.
The Great Rock Island (C., R. I. & P. Ry.) offers a choice of routes beyond Missouri River, on both single and round-trip tickets. First-class excursions every week. Rates as low as the lowest. Trains composed of elegant day coaches, superb dining cars, magnificent chair cars, and Pullman Palace sleeping cars. For full information, address E. A. Holbrook, G. T. & P. A., Chicago, Ill.

FRANCIS AXLE Grease lasts four times as long as any other. Saves your time and money.

Humbog.
Barnum said "the American people like to be humbugged." This may be true in the line of entertainment, but not where life is at stake. A man with consumption, or any lingering disease, looking death in the face and seeking to evade his awful grasp, does not like to be trifled with. So with confidence we place before our readers Nature's great remedy, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a sure relief for that long train of diseases resulting from impure blood, such as Consumption, Chronic Nasal Catarrh, Liver Complaint, Kidney Disorder, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Scrofula and General Debility. Time-tried and thoroughly tested, it stands without an equal! Any druggist.

He that is familiar with certain lectures may not advocate stage effects, but he is certainly in favor of the drop curtain.—Yonkers Gazette.

